VI. The VALLAIS, or Bishoprick of SION, or SITTEN, a Mountainous Country, and the Air so unwholsome, that many of the People have Swellings in their Throats, and are subject to Fevers, Madness, and Lameness, occasioned by the badness of the Air and Water, which is mix'd with melted Snow. It is divided into Upper and Lower, is able to raise 20000 Men on occasion, under their own Commanders, most of whom are Innkeepers. They are generally Papists, and depend on the Bishop of Sion, who is a Prince of the Empire, and Suffragan of Tarantaise, elected by the Chapter, most of whom are Persons of Quality. Here are Mines of Silver and Lead, Christal of several sorts, Hot Baths, good Wine, and Saffron. The Capital is Sion, the ancient Civitas Sedunorum, and a Roman Colony, mention'd by Cæsar. It lies on the Rhone, 20 miles East of the Lake of Geneva, and is defended by several Castles.

VII. GENEVA, and its Territory. This City lies on the Rhone, where it issues from Lake Leman, and is so ancient, that the Time of its Foundation is not known. It was some time the Residence of Cæsar, and has undergone many Vicissitudes. It continued under the Romans, till the Decay of the Empire, and during the Quarrel betwixt Pope Alexander V. and the Emperor Frederic Barbarossa, their Bishops claim'd the Sovereignty, but were always limited by the Senate; the Dukes of Savoy also pretended to it, in vertue of a Deed of Sale by one of their Bishops; but the Citizens opposed it, and in 1535. they threw off their Bishop, because he oppress'd them, and opposed the Reformation: then they set up a Government much like that of the Swiss Cantons; they lodged the Sovereignty in a Council of 200, out of which they chose 25, as a lesser Council, to be Checks upon one another. The small Council chuses the great one, and inspects their Conduct; the great one examines what is done by the small one; 60 are chosen out of the great Council, who form a Council of State: they give their Advice to the small Council, in all matters of Importance, and in a manner govern their Deliberations. All the Members of the two Councils are chosen for Life. They have four Syndics, who are their chief Magistrates, and carry a black Batoon, tipp'd with Silver at both Ends, as a Mark of their Dignity. The chief Syndic has the principal Care of the Government, and the other three have their peculiar Offices. They are all chosen by the Citizens. In the Place where the Senate meets, there are seven Judges painted on the Wall without Hands, to signify that they should take no Bribes; and in the middle there is one with one Hand, in which he holds a Balance of Justice. The Town is divided into 2 Parts by the Rhone, over which are 3 Timber Bridges, on two of which there are many Shops. Betwixt the Bridges there is an Island with a Harbour for Galleys, and a strong Tower, where they have an Arsenal with more Arms than they have Subjects; and, as Dr. Burnet says, the best furnish'd, in proportion to the bigness of the State. Here they keep the Spoils taken from their Enemies, and particularly from the Savoyards, who attempted to surprize the Town Dec. 22. 1602. which has since been observed as an Anniversary for that great Deliverance. Here is a noble Town-House, a Mint, and an University, in which there is a public Library of 30000 Volumes: It is furnish'd with able Professors, and has bred many Great Men; but the Persecution in France lessen'd the Number of their Students. Here is also an Academy for instructing Youth in their Exercises, which is pretty much frequented by Protestant Gentlemen from several Parts of Europe. Their chief Church is St. Peter's Cathedral, in which is the Tomb of that great Protestant General, Henry Duke of Rohan. From the Steeple there is not only a Prospect of the Lake, but one may see into France, Savoy, Swisserland, the Valtoline, and French County. Here are several other Churches, particularly one for the Dutch, and another for the Italians.

The Streets are large and fair; most of the Houses high, and of hewn Stone; and those in the chief Streets have Piazzas. Mr. Ray reckon'd the Inhabitants about 30000. It is well govern'd, and Vice suppress'd; but they are not very strict in keeping the Lord's Day. A great many of the Inhabitants are employ'd in making Silver and Gold Lace; and they have a considerable Commerce, by reason of their advantageous Situation. The Town is well fortified, towards which several Protestant Princes and States have much contributed. Sheriff Bethel says, their chief Trade is in Silks, Thread Lace, Pistols, Shamoy Leather, Watches, and Printing. They connive at Dancing and Cards in Strangers, but forbid them to their own Citizens. The Vulgar speak a bad French, or Savoyard, are somewhat clownish, but honest: the Better sort speak good French, and are very polite and easy in their Conversation. They allow no Refuge to Murderers, but either try them themselves, or deliver them up to such Governments as demand them. Their Church is govern'd by their 15 Ministers, and the Burgomaster for Reformation, with 16 Men chose promiscuously out of the Great Council; but their Resolves must be confirm'd by the Great Council of 200, before they are of Force. The Territories of the City take up about 4 miles, and contain about 13 Congregations, whose Ministers joining at certain times of the Year with the Consistory, form the Synod, who make Acts for governing the whole Church in their respective Districts; but they must also be ratified by the Council of 200. Their Ministers have not above 50 or 60 l. a Year, and Calvin himself had no more; so that when he died, all he left behind him, including his Books, did not come to above 60 l. Before the Reformation, the Motto of this City was, Post Tenebras Spero Lucem; but since that Time they have with

with good Reaſon changed it to Poſt Tenebras Lux; i. e. After Darkneſs came Light. The City has very pleaſant Walks about it, and the Territory abounds with Gardens, Vineyards, and fruitful Hills; and the neighbouring Lake with excellent Wild Fowl and Fiſh, of which the Inhabitants make great Profit.

VIII. The Counties of NEUFCHATEL and VALANGIN, which form a Sovereignty now belonging to the King of Pruſſia. The Inhabitants are Proteſtants. It lies North from the Canton of Bern, is about 9 German Leagues long, and 5 broad. Here is a Lake of the ſame Name 7 miles long and 3 broad, which abounds with excellent Fiſh, and particularly large Trouts. The Prince's Revenue is about 40000 Florins per Annum, and riſes chiefly from this Fiſhery. The Air about the Lake is temperate and mild, but ſharp in the mountainous Parts. The Soil produces Barley, Oats, Pulſe, good Red and White Wine, and has Mines of Iron and Steel. They have excellent Paſtures, with abundance of Cattle and many Wild Beaſts in the Mountains. The Inhabitants are brave, are able to raiſe 8000 Men without hindring Buſineſs, and 15000 on preſſing Occaſions. It is the Key of Swiſſerland on that ſide, becauſe of 6 Paſſes well fortified, which may be defended by ſmall Numbers againſt great Armies.

Places of Note are,

1. Neufchâtel on the Bank of the Lake, 22 miles North-Weſt from Bern. It is well built and watered, has ſeveral Monuments of Antiquity, and a very fine Caſtle, the Reſidence of the Prince.

2. Landeron, near the Lake of Biel, noted for its impregnable Situation and the Bravery of the Inhabitants, and a noble Caſtle belonging to the Prince, who has a fine Country Seat and Gardens upon the Lake within a League of it.

3. Valangin Town and Caſtle lie at the foot of Mount Jura, which parts it from Burgundy.

The Subjects of the Swiſſers are,

I. The County of Baden, whoſe Inhabitants are a Mixture of Proteſtants and Papiſts. The Capital of the ſame name lies on the Limmat, 13 miles North-Weſt from Zurich, and 6 South from the Rhine. The Name came from famous Hot Baths in a neighbouring Village. It is the place of the General Dyet of the Cantons, becauſe of its convenient Situation, and many large Houſes fit to receive Ambaſſadors, &c. The Town is ſubject to the Cantons of Zurich, Lucern, Ury, Swiſs, Underwald, Zug and Bern, but has its own Magiſtrates; ſo that the Bailiff of the Cantons has little Power in the City. The Harbour on the River belongs to the Town, but the Cuſtom-houſe to the Cantons.

2. Zurſach, a large Village on the Rhine, 9 miles North from Baden, is well built, and has two annual Fairs much frequented by Merchants from Germany, France and Italy.

II. The Bailiwic of BREMGARTEN on the Ruſs, about 7 miles South from Baden, formerly an Imperial Town, is very pleaſant, inhabited by Merchants and Tradeſmen, governed by a greater and a leſſer Council; but the Chief Magiſtrate is choſen by the Cantons, and in Capital Cauſes they are ſubject to Zurich; and in Cauſes relating to the Town itſelf, there lies an Appeal to the eight old Cantons.

III. The Bailiwic of MELLINGEN on the ſame River, 6 miles North-Weſt from Bremgarten. The Capital is of the ſame name, and the whole is ſubject to the eight old Cantons.

IV. The Free Provinces of RUSS conſiſts only of ſome Villages, and is called Free, becauſe they have the Liberty to chuſe their own Magiſtrates. They are ſubject to the 7 oldeſt Cantons.

V. The RHINTAL, ſo called, becauſe it lies along the Rhine. It is divided betwixt the Houſe of Auſtria, the Abbot of St. Gall, and the eight ancient Cantons. The Inhabitants live chiefly by the Vineyards and Linnen Cloth. It is about 20 miles long, and 5 broad, has ſeveral Caſtles and conſiderable Villages. The chief Town is Reineck, a League and a half North-Eaſt from St. Gall on the Rhine, as it enters the Lake of Conſtance.

VI. ROTTERSWEIL, on the Bank of the Lake, 17 miles South-Eaſt from Zurich. It is famous for a wooden Bridge over the Lake, which is a mile and a half long. The Townſmen are Papiſts. It is ſubject to the Cantons of Ury, Switz, Underwald, and Glaris.

VII. The TURGOW has the Rhine and Lake of Conſtance on the North and North-Eaſt, and Zurich on the Weſt, is 14 German Leagues long, and 8 broad. It is one of the moſt populous Parts of Swiſſerland, and has 50 Pariſhes. Much of it belongs to Zurich. The 7 old Cantons have the Supream Juriſdiction, and appoint their Governours and Judges; but the Chapter of Conſtance, and the Abbot of St. Gall, and others, have the inferiour Juriſdiction in ſuch Places as they poſſeſs. The Capital is Frawenfeld on the Murck, 11 miles Weſt of Conſtance, and belongs to the 7 ancient Cantons; as does alſo Dieſſenhoven on the Rhine, 5 miles Eaſt of Schafhauſen, which is a handſome City, chuſes its own Magiſtrates, has conſiderable Privileges and Juriſdiction over ſome Villages. Other Places are, Weil, 2 German Leagues and a half North-Weſt from St. Gall, with a fine Caſtle, where the Abbot reſides: and Biſhops-Cell, 3 Leagues and an half North-Weſt of St. Gall, where the Biſhop of Conſtance has a Caſtle and Governour; but the Town chuſes its own Magiſtrates, and the Biſhop is obliged by Oath to maintain their Privileges.

VIII. The Four Governments in Italy that were formerly part of Milan, but given to the Cantons in 1412, by the Duke, for aſſiſting him againſt France. The firſt is LUGANO, ſo called from a Town on a Lake of the ſame Name, about 8 miles from the Frontiers of Milan. It has 100 Villages, many Gentlemens Seats under its Juriſdiction, and is the Reſidence of the Swiſs Governour, who commands all the Bailiwicks in caſe of a ſudden War. 2. LOCARNO, 10 miles North-Weſt of Lugano, near Lake Major, in a fine Plain and a good Air. It is the largeſt Town upon the Lake, and inhabited by many Perſons of Quality. The adjacent Country is full of Vineyards, that produce good Wine; and the Soil is ſo fruitful, that it yields twenty fold. They have a Harveſt of Wheat and Rye in June, and one of Millet and other Grain in October. They have all the uſual Fruits of Italy. The Lake affords excellent Fiſh, particularly Trouts, which yield a great Price at Milan. And there is Plenty of Goats and Fowl in their Woods, from which they make great Profit, in tranſporting Timber by the Lake to Pavia, &c. Here is a famous Market once a Fortnight, frequented by moſt of their Neighbours. The twelve Cantons ſend a Governour hither by turns once in two Years, who has very great Power, but muſt ſwear to maintain the Peoples Privileges, which are conſiderable; for they chuſe their Magiſtrates, who ordain what they think proper for the Republic. 3. The Bailiwic of MENDRIS, which has a pleaſant Town called Mendriſium, 12 miles South-Eaſt of Lugano. 4. That of MAYNSHAL, or MAGIA, its Capital, 2 Leagues North-Weſt of Locarno.

IX. The ITALIAN BAILIWICS, ſo called becauſe they lie in the Dutchy of Milan, and were given to the Cantons of Uri, Switz, and Underwald, in 1422. 1. Bellinzona, ſo named from its Capital, a large trading and well fortified Town, 17 miles North-Weſt of Locarno. 2. That of Valbrune. 3. That of Poleſe, named from their chief Towns. There are ſome other Bailiwics intermixed with the Cantons, which are not conſiderable.

The Subjects of the Allies of the Swiſſers are,

I. The VALTELINE, which lies betwixt the Lake of Como and Tirol, South of the League of the Houſe of God. It is 60 miles long, and 16 where broadeſt, and divided into three Parts, and ſubject to the Grisons. The Air is wholſome, except in Summer, when a certain Wind blows from the Lake of Como. It is alſo ſubject to Inundations from the River Adda. The Soil is ſo fruitful, that they have commonly three Crops a Year. They ſow Wheat among their Vines, and then Millet, Turneps and Pot-Herbs ſucceſſively. Here is good ſorts of all common Fruits, with Almonds, Pomegranates, Olives, and vaſt quantities of Cheſnuts. Here is excellent Wine on the Banks of the Adda, and one ſort, called Malmſy, equal to that of Crete. They have good Paſturage, great Herds of Cattle, all the common ſorts of Wild Beaſts and Fowl in their Woods, and Timber for building Ships. The Adda ſupplies them with Trouts and other Fiſh; and Gold is ſometimes found in its Sand. Here are Mines of Silver, Copper, Lead, Alum, and Sulphur; and Mineral Waters good againſt many Diſeaſes. The People are brave, and fit for Arts and Sciences. Their Language is a corrupt Italian. Their chief Trade is in Wine, Cattle, Hides, Tallow, Butter and Cheeſe. The Inhabitants are about 25000, of whom 4000 are fit to bear Arms. The Country is defended by Mountains and Paſſes, where ſmall Numbers may reſiſt Armies. The Papiſts are more numerous than the Proteſtants, ſince the Maſſacre of the latter by the Spaniards in the laſt Century; but moſt of Quality and Eſtates are Proteſtants, and have Churches in the chief Towns. Sondrio is the chief Town, the Situation pleaſant, the Houſes well built, and the Streets handſome. It lies on the Adda, 40 miles South-Eaſt of Come, and is pretty well fortified. It is the Seat of a Court of Juſtice, but there lies an Appeal to the Dyet of the Griſons, who appoint the Preſident.

II. The County of CHIAVENNA, or CLAVENNA, North-Weſt of the Valteline. The Air is wholſome, except in ſome part of the Summer, that 'tis infeſted by Vapours from the Lake of Como. Here is Plenty of Wine, but not much Corn, which the common People make up by their Cheſnuts. They have ſtore of Fiſh, great Herds of Cattle, and make conſiderable Profit by their Butter and Cheeſe, and alſo from Stone Kettles hewed out of their Rocks, which they ſay throw out any Poiſon that may be caſt into them as ſoon as ſet on the Fire. The People are about 5000, polite, fit for Arts and Arms, and much given to Trade. The wealthieſt Griſons chuſe to reſide here, and 'tis a common Retreat for Italians that turn Proteſtants. They have a conſiderable Trade by the Lake of Como. Their Magiſtrates are ſent once in two Years by the Griſons, and the Proteſtants have Churches in all the chief Towns. The Capital is Chiavenna on the Mera, 18 miles North-Weſt from Sondrio. It lies pleaſantly at the foot of a Mountain, is well fortified, has a ſtrong Caſtle, and is inhabited by many People of Quality, has 6 Churches, and is the common Paſſage for Merchants betwixt Italy and Germany.

III. The County of BORMIO is North-Eaſt from the Valteline, and conſiſts of five Bailiwicks among inacceſſible Mountains. They have great Privileges, and chuſe their own Magiſtrates by Ballot, but their Governour is ſent by the Griſons. The Capital is of the ſame Name, 22 miles North-Eaſt of Sondrio, and is defended by a good Caſtle on the Adda.

SPAIN

LIES betwixt Lat. 35. 50. and 44. and betwixt West Lon. 10. and East Long. 3. 30. in the fifth, sixth, and seventh Climates. The longest Day in the South is 14 Hours, and in the North 14 and an half. It is 490 miles South and North, from the Straits of Gibraltar to Cape de Las-pennas, and 445 East and West where broadest from the Borders of Portugal to Cape Palafugel in Catalonia, but is much indented by the Sea, France, and Portugal. It has the Sea of Biscay on the North, Portugal and part of the Atlantick on the West, the Mediterranean on the South, has part of France from which 'tis separated by the Pyrenees on the North-East, and the Mediterranean on the East.

The Air is hot, but clear and healthful in general. The Soil is dry, stony, sandy, not much cultivated, which if it were, it would not fail of being fruitful in many parts. Their Corn, Wine, Game, Cattle, Fish, Figs, Grapes, and other Fruits are excellent; their Oils the sweetest, their Wool the finest, and their Horses in Andalusia the handsomest in Europe. Here are Mines of Iron, Salt, and Vermilion, and, as they say, of Gold and Silver, but the two latter not much talked of, since the Discovery of America. The Country is not populous in proportion to its Extent, for their Women are not reckoned fruitful; and by the Expulsion of above 800000 Moors in 1610, and the great numbers sent to their other Dominions, especially America, it is much drained of its Inhabitants. The Spaniards, 'tis true, bring vast Sums from thence, and, as appears by their Registers in 1618, they had received 1536 Millions of Gold from that Country; but as the Merchants of other Parts of Europe have the greatest part of those Riches, Spain has not gained by those new Dominions in proportion to her loss of People. The other Commodities exported from hence are, fine Wool, Oil, Fruits, Salt, Soap, and Vermilion. The principal Rivers are the Douro, the Tagus, Guadiana, Ebro, Guadalquiver, and Minho; all which have their Sources in the Country.

The Government is Monarchical, and Females succeed as well as Male. The People are grave, serious, politick, cunning, make good Foot Soldiers, and are loyal to their King, patient in what they undertake, sober in Eating and Drinking, but are accounted mistrustful, very proud, idle and revengeful. Their Language is fine, and reckoned the most Majestick of any derived from the Latin; so that Charles V. used to say, that were he to speak to God Almighty, he would do it in that Language.

Their Religion is that of the Church of Rome, and they have a very severe Inquisition against the Exercise of all others, and to punish those who dissent from it in their opinion. There are ten Tribunals in the chief Cities of the Kingdom, belonging to this Court, from whence Appeals lie to the Sovereign Tribunal at Madrid, whose President is called the Inquisitor General.

Here are 8 Archbishops and 44 Suffragans, as follows:

1. The Archbishop of Toledo, Primate of the Kingdom, whose Suffragans are the Bishops of Corduba, Segovia, Cartagena, Siguenca, Osma, Cuenca, Jaer, and Valadolid.
2. The Archbishop of Burgos, whose Suffragans are Pampeluna, Calahorra, and Palenca.
3. The Archbishop of Compostella: His Suffragans are, Salamanca, Avila, Placentia, Lugo, Astorga, Zamora, Orensa, Tuy, Badajos, Mondonedo, Coria, Cividad-Rodrigo, Leon and Oviedo.
4. The Archbishop of Seville: His Suffragans are, Cadix, Guadix and Canaries.
5. The Archbishop of Granada has Malaga and Almeria.
6. The Archbishop of Saragossa, has Huesca, Jaca, Taracona, Balbastro, Teruel and Albarazin.
7. The Archbishop of Tarragona has Barcelona, Gironne, Lerida, Vich, Solsona, Urgel and Tortosa. He had also Perpignan, which now belongs to France.
8. The Archbishop of Valencia has Majorca and Oribuela.

The most considerable Universities of Spain are Salamanca, Alcala de Henares, formerly Complutum, Seville, Toledo, Grenada, and Valencia.

Modern Geographers divide Spain into North and South, and subdivide them into Fourteen Provinces.

NORTH SPAIN

Contains the Eight following Provinces.

I. GALICIA, which has the Biscaian Sea on the North, Portugal on the South, the Atlantick on the West, and Asturias and part of Leon on the East. It was formerly a Kingdom, is 110 miles South and North, and 110 East and West, and more populous than fertile. The Air is the moistest and least healthful in Spain. It has many hot Springs, abundance of Cattle and good Wine, Mines of Copper, Iron, Vermilion, and some say Gold. Their chief Riches consist in their Wool and Fishing. It is thus divided.

I. The Diocese of COMPOSTELLA, so named from its Capital St. James of Compostella, Lat. 43. West Long. 9. It is famous for Pilgrimages to the Apostle St. James, whose Body they pretend to have in their magnificent Church dedicated to him. It has a fine rich Hospital for the Pilgrims, is the See of an Archbishop, has an University, and many stately Houses. The Archbishop has 40000 Ducats per Annum, the Chapter 100000, and seven of the Canons must be Cardinals.

Other Towns here are,

1. The Groyne, 30 miles North of Compostella, on a Bay in the Biscayan Sea, and one of the best Harbours in Spain.
2. St. Mary de Finisterre, 48 miles West from Compostella, near the Cape of that name, which is the most Westerly part of Europe.

II. The Diocese of MONDONEDO, so named from its Capital; 5 miles North-East of Compostella. It is the See of a Bishop. Castro d'Ortegal a large open Town, lies also in this Diocese near Cape Ortegal, 45 miles North-West of Mondonedo, and is the most Northerly part of Spain.

III. The Diocese of LUGO, so called from its Capital, 30 miles South-East of Mondonedo. It is the See of a Bishop, and noted for its Mineral Waters.

IV. The Diocese of ORENSE, 52 miles South-East of Compostella. The Capital of the same name is a Bishop's See, and has very healthful warm Springs.

V. TUY, Capital of its Diocese, 47 miles South-East of Orensee, is the See of a Bishop.

Other Places are,

1. Bayonna, 16 miles South of it, has the Title of a Marquisate, and a pretty good Harbour.
2. Vigo, 15 miles North-West of Tuy, a small Sea-Port Town, noted for the Burning of the Spanish Galleons, and the French Squadron which guarded them, in 1702, by the English and Dutch, and was taken by the English in 1719.
3. Pontevedra, 12 miles North-West from Vigo, a large ill-built Town, with a Harbour little frequented. Here is a Magazine with good Brass Guns and small Arms, a large stately Church with Marble Pillars, and a curious wrought Cieling, several other Churches, a Friery, a Nunnery, and a Jesuits College. This Town was plundered by the English in 1719.

II. The Principality of ASTURIAS, on the Coast, East from Galicia, and West from Biscay. 'Tis divided into Asturia d' Oviedo on the West, and Santillana on the East: is mountainous, ill peopled, and chiefly noted for giving Title of Prince to the eldest Son of Spain. It is about 115 miles East and West, and 55 where broadest, South and North. The Air is healthful. It has some Corn and Wine, Mines of Azure and Vermilion, and, as some say, Gold. Their chief Riches is in their Fishery and Horses, reckoned the strongest in Spain.

Places of note, are,

1. Oviedo, the Capital, 58 miles North West of Lugo. 'Tis the See of a Bishop, ill built and peopled, but has a tolerable University.
2. Gigon, on the Coast, 21 miles North East of Oviedo; is almost surrounded by the Sea, has a Harbour and Castle, and was formerly the Capital of the Province.
3. Santillana on the Coast, 78 miles East of Oviedo, Capital of East Asturias, but of small note.

III. The Province of BISCAY, on the Coast, has Esturias on the West, and France on the East; is divided into Biscay Proper, Olava and Guipuscoa; 115 miles East and West, and 80 where broadest, South and North. 'Tis mountainous; has little Corn or Wine, but rich Mines of Iron and Steel, of which they are said to export yearly 30 millions of Pounds weight. Here are also Wool and Saffron.

Places of note, are,

1. Bilboa, Capital of Biscay Proper. It lies on a Bay, at the Mouth of a River 12 miles East of Santillana. It has an excellent Harbour, is pleasantly situated, and has a good Trade in Wool, Armour and Sword Blades, which are much valued. The neighbouring Country yields good Corn and Wine.
2. Castro de Verdeales, a Town of good Trade on the Coast, 18 miles West of Bilboa.
3. St. Antonio, one of the best Harbours in the Province, 33 miles West. Colonel Stanhope with a Detachment of French and English, burnt some Spanish Ships here, in 1719.
4. St. Andero, a good Port much frequented, 15 miles West of St. Antonio.
5. Vitoria, Capital of Alava, 41 miles South-East of Bilboa, a handsome, well built and fortified Town.
6. Tolosa, Capital of Guipuscoa, 48 miles South-East of Bilboa.
7. Placentia, 20 miles North-West of Tolosa, famous for Arms and other Iron work.
8. St. Sebastian, 11 miles North-East of Tolosa, has a good Harbour defended by two Moles. The Town is fortified with double Walls, Bastions and Half-moons, and defended by a strong Castle on a Rock. The Town is handsome, well built, and has a considerable Trade in Wool and Iron ware. The Streets long and broad. The Houses pretty good, and the Churches handsome. They plead a Privilege, that when they send Deputies to the King, he should speak to them bareheaded. This Town and Castle was taken by the French in the Year 1719, under the Duke of Berwick, after a much shorter Siege than was expected, considering the Strength of the place.
9. Port Passage, 6 miles West from Fontarabia, and 4 East of St. Sebastian; a Port and Harbour, where a French Detachment sent by the Duke of Berwick in 1719, burnt several Spanish Men of War upon the Stocks, with many Naval Stores, and brought off a great deal.
10. Fontarabia, 10 miles East of St. Sebastian, a small Town and Fortress, separated from France by the River Bidassoa; taken also by the French in 1719.

IV. SPANISH NAVARRE, has Biscay and part of Old Castile on the West, French Navarre, from which 'tis separated by the Pyrenean Mountains on the East, and Arragon on the East and South. 'Tis 82 miles where longest, South and North, and 60 where broadest, East and and West. 'Twas usurped by the Spaniards from its own King in 1412; but the French Kings having always called themselves Kings of Navarre since Henry IV. who was King of it, succeeded to the Crown of France. The Air is temperate, but the Soil for most part fitter for Pasture than for Corn and Wine, tho' it has some of both. They have good Hunting, in which those of Quality spend most of their time. 'Tis divided into 5 Districts.

Chief Place of note is Pampeluna, Capital of its District, and of the Kingdom, 32 miles South of Fontarabia. It is pretty large, and so strong, that it is reckoned the Key of Spain on that side. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Burgos, has a Sovereign Council, a fine strong Citadel, a place of Arms, and stands on the River Agra.

V. The Kingdom of ARRAGON has France and Navarre on the North, Valencia on the South, Catalonia on the East, and Old and New Castile on the West. It is 160 miles where longest from South to North, and 116 where broadest East and West. The Air is wholsome; the Valleys produce Corn and Wine, and the Mountains Game, Fowl, Gold and Iron. It is divided into several Dioceses.

Places of chief note are,

1. Saragossa, 81 miles South-East of Pampeluna, on the Ebro, over which it has a noble Stone Bridge. It is the Capital of the Kingdom, reckoned one of the finest Towns in Spain, and was formerly the Residence of their Kings, who had a Palace without the Town, which is now the Seat of an Archbishop, of a Viceroy, and a Court of Inquisition. It is the Place where the States meet, and has an University. Their Houses are finer than at Madrid. Their public Places are adorned with Piazzas, and their Streets are very large, especially that called the Holy Street, which has many stately Palaces on both sides. The chief Churches are those of St. Francis and Our Lady of Pilier. The latter is much frequented by Pilgrims, who have an Hospital here for their Entertainment. The Town has no Fortifications, but always a good Garrison.

2. Tarracona, on the River Queios, 31 miles North-West from Saragossa, is the See of a Bishop, and noted for excellent Iron, tempered by the Water of the River.

3. Calatajud, 30 miles South from Tarracona. It is remarkable for the Ruines of Roman Structures and ancient Coin found in the Neighbourhood, which abounds with Corn, Wine and Oil. It is defended by a strong Castle on a Rock of difficult Access.

4. The Diocese of Albarazin is so called from its Capital, the See of a Bishop, 51 miles South-East from Calatajud.

5. The Diocese of Tervel, is so named from its Capital, the See of a Bishop, 15 miles East from Albarazin.

6. Balbastro, 45 miles North-East from Saragossa, Capital of its Diocese, and the See of a Bishop.

7. Monçon, a Town regularly fortified, 7 miles South-East from Balbastro.

8. Huesca, 25 miles North-West from Balbastro, is Capital of its Diocese, the See of a Bishop, and an University.

9. Jaca, 33 miles North-West from Huesca, formerly the Capital of Arragon. 'Tis a small Town, the See of a Bishop, and defended by a strong Citadel.

VI. The Principality of CATALONIA has Arragon and part of Valencia on the West, part of France and Roussillon on the North, and the Mediterranean on the South and East. It is 90 miles where broadest from South to North, and 155 where longest from North-East to South-West, but narrow at both ends. The Air is healthful, and the Soil mountainous, but produces abundance of Corn, Wine, Oil, and excellent Fruit. It has Mines, some say, of Gold, Silver, Allum, Vitriol, and Salt. Here are likewise Amethysts, Agats, Chrystal, Jasper, Alabaster and Coral. It revolted from Spain to France in 1640, but was restored by the Treaty of the Pyrenees. It was the last part of Spain which held out for the present Emperor; for which it was barbarously used, and begun a new Revolt from Spain in 1719. It is divided into East and West, and subdivided into several Vigueries.

Places of Note are,

1. Barcelona, Capital of the Province and its Viguery. It lies on the Coast, Lat. 41. and an half, East Long. 2. 30. Before the late Wars it was a famous Mart, has a tolerable Road for great Ships, a strong Fort, and a Mole that runs 750 Paces into the Sea, which secures the Ships from Tempests. It has been often taken and retaken by the French and Spaniards. The French seized it with the rest of the Spanish Monarchy in 1705. The English and Dutch retook it that same Year. The French besieged it again in 1706, but were obliged to break up the Siege with Loss and Disgrace. The French and Spaniards retook it after an obstinate Siege in 1714, but broke the Capitulation, and treated the Inhabitants barbarously. It is one of the largest, handsomest, best built, and most populous Towns in Spain, is the See of a Bishop, the Seat of a Sovereign Court, of an University, and a Tribunal of Inquisition. It is well fortified, divided into Old and New by a Wall, but its chief Strength lies in Fort Montjouy, a Fortress on the top of a neighbouring Hill. Here are several magnificent Churches. The Pope is Heir to the Bishop, and has an Officer always ready to seise his Effects as soon as he dies.

2. Villa Franca, 18 miles North-West from Barcelona, a large open Town, Capital of its Viguery.

3. Monresa, 27 miles North-West from Barcelona, is Capital of its Viguery, and noted for a noble Hospital.

4. Monserrat, 5 miles South-West from Monresa, a famous Abbey on the top of a Rock, which looks as if it were half sawn thro'. It is famous for a pretended miraculous Image of the Virgin, before which there are 90 Silver Lamps always burning; and there are several Hermitages round the Rock, inhabited for most part by Solitaries of Quality.

5. Vich, 25 miles North of Barcelona in the fruitfullest part of the Country, is Capital of its Viguery, well fortified, and the See of a Bishop.

6. Girona, 25 miles North-East of Vich, is Capital of its Viguery, which is also called Lampourdan. It has been several times taken and retaken by the French and Spaniards, and is the See of a Bishop.

7. Palamos, 18 miles East from Girona, is a fortified Town with a Harbour, and has the Title of a Marquisate.

8. Ostalric, 10 miles South from Girona, a fortified Town, that has been several times taken and retaken by the French and Spaniards.

9. Roses, 19 miles North from Palamos, a well fortified Town, with a Harbour at the Mouth of a Gulph, several times taken and retaken by the French and Spaniards.

10. Castel-Follit on the Fluvia, about 30 miles North-West from Roses, a strong Place, that has several times been taken and retaken by the Spaniards and French.

11. Campredon, 16 miles North from Vich, Capital of its Viguery on the Frontiers of Roussillon.

12. Puicerda, 20 miles North-West from Compredon, Capital of its Viguery, several times taken and retaken by the French and Spaniards.

13. Urgel, or La Ceu de Urgel, 19 miles South-West from Puicerda, is the See of a Bishop, gives name to a large Valley, called the Plain of Urgel, and surrendered to the French in 1719.

14. Tarragona on the Coast, 48 miles South-West from Barcelona, is Capital of its Viguery, lies on the Front of a Hill, and has a large Harbour, but the Entrance so full of Rocks, that it admits no great Ships. It is the See of a Bishop, and one of the most considerable in Spain for Antiquity and Revenue. It has many remains of Roman Antiquities, and an University. The Wine of the adjacent Country is good, and in the neighbouring Hills they dig Salt, which tastes as if mixed with Sugar, and therefore much used by Confectioners.

15. Monblanc, 10 miles North from Tarragona.

16. Cervera, 11 miles North-West from Monblanc.

17. Terrega, 6 miles West from Cervera; and,

18. Agramont, 18 miles North-East from Terrega, are noted for nothing but being Capitals of their Vigueries.

19. Cordona, 18 miles North-East from Agramont, is noted for Salt Mines in the Neighbourhood, hard and transparent like Chrystal, thought to be inexhaustible, and yield the King 30000 Pieces of Eight per Annum.

20. Solsona, 10 miles North-East from Cordona, a small Town, and the See of a Bishop.

21. Balaguer, 22 miles North-East of Agramont, is a strong Town, and Capital of its Viguery.

22. Lerida, 14 miles South-West from Balaguer, a small but well fortified Town, with a strong Castle on the top of a neighbouring Mountain, formerly the Residence of the Kings of Arragon. It is the See of a Bishop, and Capital of a Viguery. Here is also a University.

23. Tortosa, 41 miles West from Tarragona. It is the Capital of its Viguery, the See of a Bishop, has an University, is well fortified, and has a good Trade by means of the Ebro, which abounds with Salmon and other good Fish. The adjacent Country is pleasant, abounds with Oil and Silk, and there is a noble Quarry of party-coloured Jasper near the Town.

VII. LEON has part of Gallicia and Portugal on the West, Asturias on the North, Estremadura on the South, and Old Castile on the East. It is 168 miles where longest South and North, and 85 where broadest East and West. It was formerly reckoned a Kingdom. It has little Wine, but much Corn and abundance of Turquoise Stones. It is divided into South and North.

Places of note are,

1. Leon on the Frontiers of Asturias, 50 miles South-East from Oviedo. It is an ancient Town, large, but ill-peopled. It was formerly Capital of the Kingdom. It is the See of a Bishop, has one of the noblest Cathedrals in Spain, of which the Kings are Canons; and 37 of them, with one Emperor, are buried there.

2. Astorga, 23 miles South-West from Leon, a strong but ill-peopled Town, the See of a Bishop, and has a fine Cathedral.

3. Benavente, a pleasant well-built Town, 20 miles South-East from Astorga, noted for a neighbouring Lake which abounds with Fish, has Waves like the Sea, and a Rock in the middle with a noble House belonging to its Count.

4. Villalpando, a handsom Town, 15 miles South-East of Benavente, noted for a noble Palace and Armory, which belongs to the Constable of Castille.

5. Zamora, on the Duro, 40 miles South-East from Astorga, is the See of a Bishop, and noted for Turquoise Stones found in the Neighbourhood.

6. Palentia, on the Frontiers of Old Castille, 49 miles North-East from Zamora; formerly a considerable Town, and is still the See of a Bishop.

7. Salamanca, 35 miles South-West from Zamora, a fine, large, well-built and populous Town, has a considerable Trade, is the chief University of Spain, and the See of a Bishop, one of the richest in the Kingdom. It has many Churches, Colleges and Monasteries, and a Spring in the neighbourhood that cures the Itch.

8. Cividad-Rodrigo, 47 miles South-West from Salamanca, a neat, populous, and well fortified Town, and the See of a Bishop.

VIII. OLD CASTILLE, has part of Asturias, Leon and Extremadura on the West, Biscay on the North, Navarre, part of Arragon on the East, and New Castile on the South. It is 180 miles South and North where longest, and 140 East and West where broadest, but is much contracted at both ends. It was formerly a Kingdom, and much larger than at present. It is not very fruitful in Corn and Wine, but has abundance of Pasturage, and great Flocks of Sheep, of whose Wool the fine Segovia Cloth is made. The Spanish Tongue is spoken here in its greatest Purity. It is divided into Ten Governments, and has the following Places of Note.

1. Burgos, Capital of its Government on the West side, near the Frontiers of Leon, 38 miles North-East from Palentia. It was the Residence of several Kings. It is large, populous, has a good Trade, and abundance of fine Structures, large Streets and Squares, adorned with good Fountains and Statues; but in general the Streets are dirty and ill-built. It is the See of an Archbishop, whose Cathedral is a Master-piece of Gothic Architecture, and so large, that it has 5 Congregations at a time, without disturbing one another. St. Austin's Convent here is noted for that called the Holy Crucifix, upon an Altar in a large Chappel, where are always above 100 Lamps of Gold and Silver burning before it, and 60 Silver Candlesticks as high as the tallest Man, and so heavy that one can't lift them. They stand on the Ground on both sides the Altar. They have others of pure Gold upon it, with two Crosses of the same Metal, enriched with precious Stones and Pearl, and Crowns adorned with Diamonds hang over the Altar. The Crucifix upon it is as large as the Life, covered with three Curtains embroidered with Pearls and Precious Stones. It is seldom shewn but to People of Quality; and when the Curtains are opened, every one falls on their Knees. It is exquisitely carved, and the Carnation Colour exceeding natural. Some pretend it was made by Nicodemus, and the Monks do confidently say it came from Heaven. The Chappel is hung round with Gold Tapestry. The Jesuits and Dominicans have fine Colleges, and here are other rich Abbeys and Convents, particularly one for 150 Nuns, who must all be of noble Extraction. The Constable of Castille has a stately Palace here. The Piazza or chief Market-place, where they keep their Bull-Feasts, is spacious, and the Houses round it supported with stately Pillars. There's a strong Castle at the upper end of the Town, and a Fountain in the Neighbourhood that cures Fluxes. Here's a Royal Hospital endow'd with 80000 Livres per Annum. The great Bridge over the River Arlenza is a noble Structure very long and broad, and leads to a Meadow, where there is a pleasant Walk well-shaded with Trees.

2. Miranda de l' Ebro, 40 miles North-East from Burgos, a handsome Town with a spacious Market-place, a curious Fountain in the middle, and a strong Castle on the top of a neighbouring Mountain, from whence flows a Spring so large, that it turns several Water-Mills.

3. Valladolid, on the Frontiers of Leon and the River Duro, 52 miles South-West from Burgos, is Capital of its Government, the See of a Bishop, and has an University with several fine Churches, Colleges, and large Squares. It is one of the most considerable and pleasant Towns in Spain, was the Residence and place of Birth of several of their Kings, who have a magnificent Palace and curious Gardens here.

4. Avila, 65 miles South from Valladolid, is Capital of its Government, strong by Nature and Art, and the See of a Bishop. Tostatus, one of its Bishops, had so great a Memory, that it was said, he never forgot any thing, and knew all that could be known.

5. Segovia, 35 miles North East from Avila. It is the Capital of its Government, is large, fine, well-peopled, and is call'd Laboriosa, because no Beggars or idle People are seen here, except such as are sick or past their Labour. It has a great Commerce in Cloth, Stockings, and Wool, is the See of a Bishop, has a large Market-place and a fine Castle on a Hill, which commands the Town. Here is a famous Aqueduct of Free-Stone, which has above two hundred Arches of great Height, some of them above one another. It is above 5 Leagues long, conveys Water into the City, is suppos'd to be a Roman Work, and one of the Noblest Monuments of Antiquity in Europe. Here's a Mint, where the Money is coined by a Machine turn'd by Water.

6. Siguenca, 68 miles North East from Segovia, is Capital of its Government, and the See of a Bishop, has an University, a fine College, and Arsenal, and is defended by a Castle and Walls.

7. Osma, Capital of its Government, 30 miles North-West from Siguenca, is the See of a Bishop, and has a small University.

8. Aranda, on the Duro, 29 miles North-West of Osma, is a Garrison-Town, with a Castle belonging to the King.

9. Lerma, 22 miles North of Aranda, a small Town with the Title of a Dutchy, famous for its Castle built by the Cardinal de Lerma, and reckon'd the noblest Fabric in Spain next to the Escurial. It has a Convent and large Park, with fine Walks adjoining.

10. Soria, 65 miles South-East from Lerma, Capital of its Government, noted for its extraordinary Trade in fine Wool, and a large Bridge without a River; the Duro, which ran under it, having chang'd its Course by an Earthquake.

11. Garay, 10 miles North-East from Soria. It is the Remains of the Old Numantium, which held out against 40000 Romans 14 Years.

12. Calahorra, 36 miles North-East from Soria. It is Capital of its Government, and the See of a Bishop. The Romans besieg'd it so close, that the Inhabitants eat their Wives and Children, whence came the Proverb, Fames Calagurritana.

13. Rioxa-Government has no Place of Note but St. Domingo de Calcada, 42 miles North-West of Calahorra.

SOUTH SPAIN

Contains the Five following Provinces, and some Isles.

I. NEW CASTILLE, including the Province of Estremadura now join'd to it, has Portugal on the West, Leon and Old Castille on the North, part of Aragon and Valencia on the East, and Andalusia and part of Murcia on the South. It is 320 miles where longest, from East to West, and 185 where broadest, from South to North. It was formerly a Kingdom, and the largest in Spain. The Air is good, but the Soil in many places dry, except in the Valleys. It produces abundance of Corn, Wine, Fruits, Saffron, Salt, Oil and Honey; and they have many Meadows with abundance of Cattle about Madrid, and on the Tago and Guadiana. It is divided into several Provinces.

Places of Note are,

1. Madrid, Capital of the Province of Algaria, and of all Spain. It lies in Lat. 40. 25. Lon West 3 ½. 'Tis large, well built, populous, but ill-pav'd, dirty and without Walls. There is a small River call'd Manzanares, which is dry in Summer, yet there's a fair Bridge over it. The City stands on a rising but uneven Ground, and has been the Residence of the Kings since Philip II. The Air is healthful. The City, including the Gardens and Suburbs, is about 15600 Paces in compass. The Houses are generally of Brick, many of 'em well built, the Streets regular, spacious, and some of them very noble. The Royal Palace is large, but ancient, and has nothing answerable to the Grandure of a King, besides its Furniture. It stands on the Ascent of a Hill, and has a pleasant Prospect into the Country. Most of the Rooms have no Light but what comes in by the Doors; and where there are Windows, they are very small. All the Grandure consists in two Pavilions at the Front, two large square Courts with spacious Terras-Walks rais'd upon high Arches, and adorn'd with Balluslers, fine gilt Balconies and Statues. All the chief Councils of the Nation meet here, and there are several small Galleries and Passages, by which the King enters when he pleases. The Gardens are but very indifferent. Several of the Nobility have much finer Palaces here. That call'd the Place Major is the finest Square in the City, encompass'd with stately Houses six or seven Stories high without Proportion or Order, and loaden with Balconies; from whence the People see the Bull-fighting on solemn Days. The Cathedral is a magnificent Structure, and the Altar of the Virgins Chappel with its Rails, are of massy Silver. Here is a Statue of the Virgin, which they pretend St. James brought from the Holy Land. That call'd our Lady of Atocha's Church, is a spacious Nunnery, where they sing Te Deum for Victories: Here they have another Image of the Virgin with a young Jesus, to which they ascribe Miracles; and the Chappel where it stands has 100 Lamps of Gold and Silver: The great Altar is illuminated every Sunday with 100 Wax-Candles, and adorn'd with store of Plate, as are most of their Churches. They have Walks of green Turf in them set with Flowers, and adorn'd with Fountains, from whence Water springs into Basons of Marble, Porphyry, or Silver, surrounded with Jessamin or Orange-trees planted in Boxes, among which they turn loose abundance of singing Birds, that make a harmonious noise. St. Isidore's Church is reckon'd the most magnificent in this City. The Walls are lin'd with Marble of various Colours, besides many Marble Pillars and Statues. St. Isidore's Tomb, in the middle of the Chappel, has a Marble Crown over it, embellish'd with Flowers in their natural Colours, and supported by Pillars of Porphyry, and round the outside of the Cupolo stand the Images of the Twelve Apostles. In the Church of St. Sebastian there's a rich Canopy of Shagreen, nail'd with Gold, and over it a small Steeple with Gold Bells for carrying the Host to the Sick.

Without the Town there's one of the King's Palaces, call'd Buen Retiro, on the Descent of a Hill. It consists of four great Apartments and four large Pavilions, that form a Square, with a Fountain, Flower-pots, and Cross Walks, leading to the Apartments, which are stately, adorn'd with excellent Paintings, and the Cielings and Floors are beautified with Gold and other lively Colours. Here is a spacious Theatre well contriv'd, and richly adorn'd, and a Terras-Walk, with a noble Brass Statue of Philip II. on Horseback. The Palace consists of two Squares, one for the King, and another for the Queen, with Cloysters above and below. There is a Park adjoining of a League round, with several handsome Lodges, a Canal and large Pond surrounded with Trees and Fountains, where the King diverts himself during the hot Season in Boats finely gilt and painted. Here are many Grotto's, Cataracts and shady Walks, fine Stables, and a spacious Armory. The other Palaces in the Neighbourhood are Aranjues, in an Island form'd by two Rivers, with fine Gardens and Water-Works; Casa del Campo, on the Bank of the Nançanares, very pleasant and well-contriv'd; Florida and Corzuela are also pleasant Country-Houses belonging to the King.

2. The Escurial, 12 miles North-West from Madrid, famous for a noble Monastery and a stately Church in Honour of St. Lawrence, on whose Day the Spaniards beat the French at St. Quintin. There are 200 Friers of the Order of St. Jerom in it, under a Prior nam'd by the King, and a College for young Students. It is of vast Extent, and reckon'd one of the most magnificent Structures in Europe. It has 17 Cloysters, 22 Courts, 11000 Windows, cost above 30 Millions, and was 21 Years a building. There's a Chappel with a Sepulchre for the Kings and Queens, call'd the Pantheon, because fashion'd like that at Rome. The Form of the whole Structure is a large Square; each side of which is 2630 Foot long, with a fine Tower at each Corner. The greatest part of the Architecture is of the Doric Order, with some of the Ionic, Corinthian, Composit and Tuscan. 'Tis divided into four lesser Squares, with four Gates each. The chief Entrance is thro' three Gates, with the Statue of St. Lawrence, and the Arms of Spain over them. The Front of the inner Court has six Pillars of the Doric Order, 68 Foot high, with Pedestals, and upon them the Statues of King David, Solomon, Josias, Hezekias, Jehoshaphat and Manasses, with gilt Crowns and Scepters of Brass, and Inscriptions under each, pointing at their chief Actions. There are five Arches, each 28 foot high and 14 broad, to enter the Church, which is 364 foot long, 230 broad, and 330 high to the Cross on the Top of the Cupola. The Architecture is Dorick. It has six Isles, illuminated with vast numbers of large Silver Lamps, 24 noble Arches, 50 large Windows, 39 Galleries with Silk Curtains, 12 Chappels with noble Crosses of Jasper over them, 40 Altars in their peculiar Chappels. The middle Isle has 14 large Balconies. The grand Chappel is 20 foot long, 50 broad and 100 high, and rises from the middle Isle by 12 Steps of the finest Jasper 53 foot long. The Entrance is by two Doors of Jasper, the Floor is of the same, and it has many Columns of the best polish'd Jasper of four sorts of Architecture; and the Bases and Capitals of gilt Brass. In one of the Pillars is the Box where the Host is kept: the Box is round, 16 foot high, 7 ½ in Diameter, and supported by eight Columns of Diaspare of the Colours of the Rainbow; the Workmanship of which cost 80000 Ducats: Over this Box are the Statues of the Twelve Apostles. There are ten Steps of Jasper up to the Altar, and round it Brass Statues of several Kings of Spain, and the Chapter is beautify'd with curious Paintings. Here they keep many Reliques, with 550 Pixes and Chalices of Gold, Silver, and Chrystal. In the middle of the Isle lies the Choir fronting the Chappel. It is 96 foot long, 56 broad, curiously painted and illuminated. It has two Orders of Seats of precious Wood finely carv'd, and on each side an Organ with cross Galleries. There are six other Organs in the Church, one of 'em of Silver. The Sacristy is 108 foot long, and 30 broad, and painted with the Sacred History by the best Masters. The Descent into the Pantheon is by fine Marble Steps. The Entrance is by a Gate of gilt Brass, with the Austrian Arms over it, cut in precious Stones, and richly gilt betwixt two gilt Brass Statues; one represents the Fall of Man, and the other the Resurrection. The Sepulchre is octogonal within, lin'd with curious Marble, and has Urns of Grey Marble for the Royal Corps, supported by Lions Paws of gilt Brass, and an Oval Figure of the same Metal, with the Persons Name in black Letters. An Altar of black Marble fronts the Door, and upon it a large Cross of gilt Brass, inclosed in another of black Marble, with curious Ornaments of the finest Porphyry, and Columns on each of green Marble, with Brass Bases and Capitals gilt. The Pantheon is enlighten'd by a curious Branch, and the Floor of fine Marble wrought into Figures of Stars.

The Convent has five Cloisters, the biggest of them 800 foot square, finely painted with the History of our Saviour's Life, Death, Resurrection, and Ascension. The Old Chappel has excellent Paintings and many Reliques. In the Refectory there's a Picture of our Lord's Supper brought from England during our Charles II's Exile, and pawn'd for 15000 l. Sterling.

In the Palace there's little of Note but the Paintings and Library, which is a noble Structure 200 foot long, and 36 broad. The Stalls for the Books are of Cedar and other precious Wood. It has seven Pillars of the Dorick Order. The Floor is of white and grey Marble, and and the Cieling painted with the Arts and Sciences, and the moſt celebrated Authors, with the beſt Maſters. In the middle of the Room are Tables of Jaſper, Marble, and Porphyry, with Globes and Spheres. Here are ancient Medals, fine Pictures, and Manuſcripts, as they ſay, by St. Auſtin and St. Chryſoſtom. The Gardens, Parks, Walks and Ground belonging to this ſtupendious Fabrick, are reckon'd 36 Leagues round.

2. Alcala de Henares, 12 miles Eaſt from Madrid, formerly named Complutum, noted for an Univerſity founded by Cardinal Ximenes, the ſecond for Dignity in Spain: It conſiſts of 20 Colleges, one of them for Iriſh Students, who after 7 Years Stay, are obliged to preach in ſome of the Northern Parts. The Complutenſian Polyglot was printed here, at the Charge of the ſaid Cardinal. The Great Church is a noble Structure. Here are 19 Frieries, and 10 Nunneries.

3. Toledo, 41 miles South-Weſt of Madrid, formerly the Reſidence of the Gothic and Mooriſh Kings. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, Primate of the Kingdom, who, with his Chapter, has great Privileges: He has 800000 Ducats per Annum. The Chapter conſiſts of 40 Canons, who have 1000 Crowns per Annum each. The Grand Archdeacon has 40000. There are three other Archdeacons, the firſt of whom has 15000, the ſecond 12000, the third 10000. The Dean has 20000, the Chaplain Major 13000, and 6 other Chaplains have 10000 each; ſo that it is reckon'd the richeſt Chapter in Europe. The Cathedral is a vaſt Structure, has many Chappels equal to Churches in Largeneſs. The Plate, Veſtments, and other Ornaments, are of ineſtimable Value. The City is almoſt encompaſſed by the Tagus, over which it has 2 large Bridges. Here are 38 Monaſteries of both Sexes; yet the Town does not contain above 8000 People. The Fortifications are Mooriſh. There are ſome Remains of Roman Structures; and in the Suburbs there is a large Hoſpital richly endowed, and the King and Archbiſhop have noble Palaces here. The Town is noted for making good Sword Blades, and a Manufacture of Silk.

4. Cuenca, 80 miles Eaſt of Toledo, Capital of the Sierra, a mountainous Country, and the barreneſt Part of New Caſtile. It is the See of a Biſhop, and noted for excellent Wool.

5. Cividad Real, 60 miles Eaſt of Toledo, Capital of La Mancha, the Country of the famous Don Quixote, it lies in a large and fruitful Plain, is one of the biggeſt Towns in New Caſtille, but ill peopled.

6. Calatrava, 10 miles South-Eaſt of Cividad Real, on the Guadiana, noted for its noble Defence againſt the Moors, by two Ciſtercian Monks, which gave Riſe to the Order of the Knights of Calatrava in 1158, who did afterwards great Service againſt the Infidels.

Spaniſh Eſtremadura, ſo call'd to diſtinguiſh it from a Province of the like Name in Portugal, which lies Weſt of it, was formerly a Province of itſelf, but now join'd to New Caſtille, and is the fruitfulleſt Part of it. Places of Note here are, 1. Badajos, on the Frontiers of Portugal, 10 miles Eaſt of Elvas, the See of a Biſhop, and one of the Keys of Spain. It has a ſtrong Caſtle, is well fortified, and has a Bridge of 26 Arches, over the River. The Portugueſe and Engliſh under the Earl of Galloway, who had his Hand ſhot off here, beſieged it in vain in 1705. The Governour's Palace, the Cathedral, and a fine Place of Arms, are the moſt conſiderable things in it.

7. Merida, 30 miles Eaſt of Badajos, formerly Capital of Hiſpania Luſitanica, and thought to have been built by Auguſtus. It was the See of an Archbiſhop, has a Bridge over the Guadiana of 60 Arches, the Remains of a Roman Caſtle, Aqueducts, and other Structures.

8. Alcantara, 45 miles North-Eaſt of Badajos, one of the oldeſt Towns in Spain, ſuppoſed to have been built by Trajan, and from him call'd Pons Trajanus. It gave Name to an Order of Knights now aboliſhed, is fortified, and has a noble Bridge over the Tagus, 670 Foot long, 28 broad, and 200 high. This Town was taken by the Earl of Galloway and the Confederates in 1706.

9. Truxilla, 38 miles North-Eaſt of Merida, an ancient Town, well built, inhabited by ſeveral People of Quality. It has 5 Pariſh Churches, 9 Monaſteries, is defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, and noted for the Birth of Francis Pizarro, one of the Conquerors of Peru.

10. Medellin, 25 miles South-Eaſt of Merida, on the Guadiana; it was a Roman Colony, and has a noble Stone Bridge over the River, where ſome have falſely given out, that it riſes again after running 20 miles under Ground. It is noted for the Birth of Ferdinando Cortez, one of the Diſcoverers and Conquerors of New Spain.

11. Placentia, 68 miles North-Eaſt of Alcantara, is the See of a Biſhop, Capital of its Government, and has a ſtrong Caſtle.

12. Coria, 40 miles North-Weſt of Alcantara, is an ancient Town, and alſo the See of a Biſhop. Some reckon theſe two laſt in Old Caſtille.

II. ANDALUSIA, has Eſtremadura and New Caſtille on the North, Portugal and part of the Atlantic on the Weſt, Murcia on the Eaſt, Granada and the Streights of Gibraltar on the South. The greateſt Extent South and North is 142 miles, and the greateſt Length Eaſt and Weſt 245; but it is very narrow on the Eaſt. It had formerly the Title of a Kingdom, comprehended moſt of the ancient Bætica, and was call'd Vandalicia, becauſe inhabited by the Vandals, of which the preſent Name is a Corruption. It is the beſt, moſt populous, and richeſt part of Spain. Bleau ſays, it contains 20 Cities, 200 Towns, and before the Expulſion of the Moors, had 100000 Villages. The Air is temperate in Winter, but ſo hot in Summer, that the Rivers are dried up, and Travellers ſometimes die of Thirſt. It produces more Corn and Fruit than any other Province in Spain. Their Oil is the ſweeteſt, their Wine the beſt of any in Spain, and their Horſes, call'd Gennets, are reckon'd the fineſt in Europe. Here are Mines of Silver, Copper, Lead, and Quickſilver. Here is alſo Loadſtone, and they have a great Trade in Silk, Cotton, Wax, Honey, Sugar, Salt, and Fiſh, particularly Tunnys. It is divided into Weſt, Eaſt, and Middle.

Places of Note are,

1. Seville, it lies in Lat. 37 ½. Weſt Long. 6. on the River Guadalquevir, 67 miles North-Eaſt from Cadiz. It is a very ancient Town, and was formerly one of the richeſt and nobleſt Cities in Europe, and ſo rich, that Bleau ſays, they paid the King annually 200000 Ducats, having at that time an extraordinary Trade to the Weſt Indies. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, next in Place to Rome of Toledo: He has 80000 Ducats per Annum, and 600 rich Benefices from 1000 to 2000 Ducats each per Annum, and 200 leſſer ones under him, beſides a vaſt Number of Monaſteries of both Sexes. The Chapter has 30000. The Cathedral is very high, ſupported by two Ranks of magnificent Pillars: It is 175 Paces long, and 80 broad: Round it on the Outſide are large Walks, to which one aſcends by 8 Steps, and they are bounded towards the Street by large Pillars, interlaced with an Iron Chain; ſo that People walk round the Church in the Galleries: The Veſtry is large, and abounds with rich Veſtments, laid up in curious Drawers: It is round, has a ſtately Lanthorn, ſupported by Pillars, and a noble Fountain in the middle. Here alſo they keep the Reliques and Church Plate. The Cuſtodia, in which they carry the Hoſt on ſolemn Occaſions, is of Silver curiouſly wrought, weighs 1700 and a half, and is carried by 20 Men. There are 40 Canons, 11 Pariſh Prieſts, and 200 more that officiate in private Chappels. Here is a great Hall, adorn'd with Statues and Seats for the Chapter, and another noble Apartment, where they uſually meet. The Steeple is incredibly high, beautified with many large Windows, and the Stairs ſo eaſy, that one may go up on Horſeback. It conſiſts of 3 Towers one above another, with Galleries and Balconies. The City is join'd to the Suburbs by a Timber Bridge built on Boats. The King has two Palaces here. Near the River there is a Tower call'd Golden, for the Excellency of its Architecture, and by reaſon of the Mint kept there; and near the Cathedral there is another reckon'd 246 Yards high, there being a little Tower on top of the great one, excellently painted. Here are abundance of fine Churches, Convents, Colleges, and other public Structures. They have alſo a Tribunal of Inquiſition, and a famous Univerſity, which has bred many famous Men. The great Square is very noble, has the Town-Houſe on one ſide, beautified with abundance of Statues without, the Palace of Juſtice ſtands on the other ſide, and there is a noble Fountain in the middle. Here are other Squares, adorned with Fountains, whoſe Water is convey'd to them by an ancient Aqueduct of 5 Leagues long, with fine Walls adorned with Towers and Caſements. Here is the famous Chamber of Contractation for the Indies, govern'd by 12 Conſuls, and others, for matters relating to Trade. The Alkaſal is an ancient Caſtle of incomparable Architecture, with abundance of Fountains, and fine Walks of thoſe Oranges which from hence are call'd Seville Oranges. The Palace conſiſts of ancient and modern Architecture; that built by the Moors is much the nobleſt, has a ſpacious Court with Marble Pillars of extraordinary Workmanſhip. The Great Hall, and other Apartments, are gilt, the Cielings finely painted, and on the Freeze are the Pictures of the Kings of Spain in Miniature. The Merchants Hall is a noble Structure, has many large Apartments handſomely gilt, and a Place where they walk in time of Rain. Without the City there is a large Butchery, to prevent Infection by the noiſome Smells; and there are fine Walks of Trees like a double Mall, two high Pedeſtals at the Entry, with the Statues of Harpalus and Cæſar, ſmall Canals on both ſides, and curious Fountains at each End. La Forreſt ſays, it is in the Opinion of all Travellers, the fineſt and ſtatelieſt City in Europe, and, perhaps, there is none where a Man can ſo well gratify all his Paſſions and Senſes; ſo that the Spaniards ſay, he that never ſaw Seville, never ſaw a Wonder. The Old Town, with the Ruins of an ancient Theatre, is about a League Weſt from the New Town. The Territory of this City is 20 Leagues round.

2. St. Lucar de Barrameda, which is the Title of a Marquiſate, lies at the Mouth of the River, about 52 miles South-Weſt from Seville, and ſerves it as a Port. Large Ships unload here, and leſſer ones continually ply betwixt it and Seville.

3. Xeres de la Frontera, on the River Guadaleto, 52 miles South-Weſt from Seville, and 8 South Eaſt from St. Lucar, is a Town of good Trade, and there is abundance of Corn, Wine, Oil and Fruit in the Neighbourhood.

4. St. Maria, or Port St. Mary, lies at the Mouth of the ſame River, 5 miles South from Xeres, and 11 North from Cadiz, on the other ſide the Bay. It has a good Harbour, and is noted for the Deſcent of the Engliſh and Dutch here in 1702, when they miſcarried in their Deſign upon Cadiz. Abundance of fine white Salt is exported from the Mines in the Neighbourhood.

5. Cadiz, lies in an Iſland of the ſame Name, which has a great many Salt Mines, and produces the beſt Wine in Spain. It is about 20 miles long, and 7 broad at the Eaſt end. It is ſeparated from the Continent by a ſmall Channel, over which there is a Stone Bridge 700 Paces long. The City lies near the Weſt Corner of the Iſland, within the Bay, Lat. 36 ½. Weſt Long. 26. It is one of the beſt and ſafeſt Harbours in the Ocean, and the Staple for Commodities to and from America. It is ſo ancient that ſome aſcribe the Foundation to the Carthaginians or Tyrians, and others to Hercules. It was a Roman Colony, and famous in the remoteſt Antiquity. It lies on a Plain, well fortified with Walls and Baſtions, mounted by abundance of Cannon. The Bay is 12 Leagues round, and 2 broad, defended by 5 Forts, the chief of which are, the Puntal and Fort St. Margaret, on two Points over-againſt one another, at the narroweſt Place of the Bay. Here is alſo a Caſtle built by the Moors, but now fortified after the modern way. Here is a ſmall Iſland call'd St. Sebaſtian on the Weſt Point, with a Fort to defend the Mouth of the Gulph. Fort St. Philip, on the North ſide of the Town, defends the Harbour. The Galleons for the Weſt Indies rendezvous here; and the Merchants, who are numerous and rich, have the fineſt Store-houſes in Europe. This City is one of the Keys of Spain, and inferior to few for Largeneſs, Magnificence, Number and Quality of the Inhabitants. It is the See of a Biſhop, and has many well built Churches. The Earl of Eſſex and Sir Walter Raleigh took it by Storm in 1596, when they kill'd and took 4000 Foot, and 600 Horſe, burnt the Spaniſh Indian Fleet of 40 Ships, the Cargo valued at 8 Millions of Crowns, defeated the Spaniſh Fleet of 57 Men of War, took two great Galleons with their Cargo, brought off a great deal of martial Furniture, ranſomed the Town for 5 Millions of Crowns, and 2000 Ducats, and were offered 2 Millions more not to burn the Ships, but would not accept it, becauſe they had Orders to burn all the Veſſels they could not bring off. The Loſs of the Spaniards in the whole was reckoned at 20 Millions of Ducats. The Earl offered to keep the Town and Iſland with 300 Men and 3 Months Proviſions; but it was refuſed by the other Commanders, who mightily enrich'd themſelves; whereas the Earl kept nothing for his Share but a noble Library. The Engliſh and Dutch attempted this Place in 1702, but miſcarried in the Deſign.

6. Rota,

6. Rota, a large open Town on the other ſide the Bay, 10 miles North-Eaſt from Cadiz. It was burnt by the Engliſh and Dutch in 1702.

7. Gibraltar, 51 miles South-Eaſt from Cadiz. Lat. 36. Weſt Long. 5. 40. at the Mouth of the Streights. It lies on the Deſcent of Mount Calpe, down towards the Sea, into which the Promontory runs out 2 miles. It has a good Harbour, and gives Name to the Streights that divide Africa from Europe, and are about 15 miles broad here. Mount Calpe is one of thoſe call'd Hercules Pillars, and Abyle in Africa the other. The Cape, for its Situation, Height, Proſpect, and Fortification, is reckon'd the fineſt in Europe, about half a League high, and ſtands on a Point 200 Paces long, which at a Diſtance looks like an Iſland. On the top of the Rock there is a Tower, where a Watchman gives Notice of the Approach of Ships. It is ſo ſteep towards the Sea, that it is frightful to look at. It is fortified on the ſide of the Town to the very top, from whence there is a Proſpect of 40 Leagues into the Mediterraneau. The Town ſtands at the Foot of the Rock, is large and neat, and has a Mole into the Sea on the Land ſide, but of little Uſe, becauſe of the Rocks and ſhallow Water; but there is another with a large Fort, well mounted by Cannon. The Engliſh and Dutch took this Place in 1704, and it was quitted to the Engliſh by the Treaty of Utrecht.

8. Xeres la Guadiana, on the River of that Name, 77 miles Weſt of Seville, noted for a great Trade in Wine, Raiſins, and Figs.

9. Oſſuna, 42 miles South-Eaſt of Seville, the Seat of an Univerſity, and has the Title of a Dutchy.

10. Corduba, or Cordoua, 68 miles Eaſt of Seville, once the Capital of a Kingdom, which abounds with Orchards, Vines, Olives, Oranges, Lemons, Fruits of all kind, and Corn. The Town and Suburbs are very large, mix'd with Gardens and Orchards. Here is a noble Palace, and a ſtately Bridge over the Guadalquivir. It is very ancient, and famous for the Birth of many learned Men. It is the See of a Biſhop, and had the nobleſt Moſque belonging to the Moors but Mecca; part of it is now the Cathedral. The Biſhop has a fine Palace, the King noble Stables, and the Ruins of the Palace of Almanzor, the laſt Mooriſh King, are ſtill to be ſeen. This City has a vaſt Trade in Wine, Oil, Oranges and Lemons.

11. Jaen, once Capital of a Kingdom, 58 miles Eaſt of Cordoua: It is the See of a Biſhop, large, rich, well fortified, has fine Churches and Abbies, pleaſant Fountains, is much frequented by People of Quality, and abounds with Corn, Wine, Honey, Oil, Silk and Fruit of all ſorts.

12. Alcantarilla, 22 miles South of Seville, is famous for a very high and magnificent Bridge over the Marſhes, ſuppoſed to be a Roman Structure. It is betwixt this Town and Malaga where Travellers often die by Thirſt in Summer, when the Marſhes being dried up, there is ſuch an intollerable Duſt, that they are forced to direct themſelves by a Compaſs, and to carry Liquor with them, there being neither Houſes nor Trees for ſeveral Leagues.

III. GRANADA, has Andaluſia on the Weſt and North, Murcia on the Eaſt, and the Mediterranean on the South. It is about 210 miles Eaſt and Weſt, and 65 where broadeſt, South and North, but narrow on the Weſt. The Air is temperate, and the Soil abounds with Corn, Wine, Oil, and all other Fruits. It has a conſiderable Trade in Raiſins of the Sun, Figs, Confections, and Syrups. They abound with Honey, Wax, Mulberry-trees, and excellent Silk, Pomegranates, Melons, Flax, Hemp, Cattle, Wild Fowl, and Medicinal Fountains. Jacinths are alſo found here. There is Gold in the Sands of their Rivers, and a good Pilchard Fiſhing on the Coaſt.

Places of Note are,

1. Granada, the Capital, Lat. 37. 28. Long. Weſt 3. 20. 62 miles South-Eaſt of Cordoua. It is divided into 4 Parts, and reckon'd the largeſt Town in Spain, being 4 Leagues round. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, has a noble Univerſity, and is encompaſſed with Walls that have 1030 Towers. Here is a noble Palace begun by Philip II. of wonderful Architecture; and the ancient Palace of the Mooriſh Kings is kept in good Repair: It is very magnificent, the Inſide of Moſaic Work, in Marble, Porphyry, and Jaſper: the Walls and Cielings are curiouſly gilt, and painted with Hieroglyphics and Arabian Characters; and it is capable of containing 40000 People. There is a Park adjoining, where all ſorts of Wild Beaſts are kept. The Clergy, Nobility, and rich Merchants have ſtately Houſes here. King Ferdinand and Queen Iſabel are interr'd in one of the Churches, where they have a ſumptuous Monument with an Inſcription, ſignifying, that they ſubdued the Moors, and extinguiſhed Hereſy, for which they had the Title of Catholick. Here are many ſtately Fountains, Water-works, and Gardens, and a Ciſtern made by the Romans to preſerve Rain Water from Putrefaction, which is reckon'd good againſt Fluxes, and other Diſtempers. The Town was formerly reckon'd impregnable, and had a well furniſh'd Arſenal, 6000 Houſes, 220000 People, and 23 Churches, and has ſtill a Manufacture of Silk.

2. Albama, 26 miles South-Weſt of Granada, is ſtrong by Nature, being encompaſſed with Rocks and Precipices, and noted for the beſt hot Baths in Spain. Here is a noble Hoſpital for entertaining the Poor that come to them.

3. Almunecar, on the Coaſt, 25 miles South of Albama, has a good Harbour and Garriſon, and was the Place where the Mooriſh Kings kept their Treaſure.

4. Malaga, Capital of its Dioceſs, lies on the Coaſt, 66 miles North-Eaſt of Gibraltar: It is the See of a Biſhop, who has a noble Cathedral, is well built, and has a good Harbour at the Mouth of the River Guadalaviero, defended by two ſtrong Caſtles, with a Communication betwixt them. It is well frequented, and has a Mole 570 Paces long, and 2 broad, for Security of the Ships under Protection of the Caſtles. The Trade of the Place conſiſts in excellent Wines, Raiſins, and Olives. The Town is well fortified, has a noble Arſenal, and is reckon'd one of the Bulwarks of Spain.

5. Velez Malaga, 21 miles North-Eaſt of Malaga, encompaſſed with fruitful Hills and Fields, which produce thoſe call'd Malaga Raiſins. The neighbouring Valley abounds with Villages inhabited by the Offſpring of Mooriſh Chriſtians, who have planted it ſo well with Vines, &c. that it adds much to the Trade of Malaga. It lies 7 miles North from the Sea, but has a large Storehouſe on the Coaſt, where the Product of the Country is laid up, and pays Toll to the King before Exportation. Off of this Place in 1704, the Engliſh and French Fleets engaged. The latter pretended to the Advantage, but the former certainly had it, tho' ſhort of Ammunition.

6. Antequera, 19 miles North-Eaſt of Malaga, is a large well-built City, much frequented by People of Quality, and noted for excellent Salt-Pits in the Neighbourhood.

7. Ronda, on the Frontiers of Andaluſia, 40 miles South-Weſt from Malaga, ſtrong by Nature and Art, ſtands on a high Mountain almoſt encompaſs'd by a River, to which there's a Deſcent of 400 Steps cut out of the Rock.

8. Guadix, Capital of its Dioceſe, 30 miles North-Eaſt from Granada. It lies in a ſpacious Plain, that abounds with Corn, Cattle, Wine and Fruit, and is the See of a Biſhop.

9. Almeria, Capital of its Dioceſe, lies on the Coaſt, 45 miles South-Eaſt from Guadix. It is the See of a Biſhop, has a good Harbour, and the neighbouring Country abounds with wholſome Springs, Fruit, and Oil.

IV. MURCIA has New-Caſtille on the North, Andaluſia and Granada on the Weſt, Valencia and the Gulph of Alicant on the Eaſt, and the Gulph of Carthagena on the South. It is 71 miles South and North, and as much Eaſt and Weſt, where broadeſt. The Air is wholſome, and the Soil abounds ſo with Fruits, Pulſe, Sugar-Canes, and Honey, that it is called the Garden of Spain; but it has little Corn or Wine, becauſe it ſeldom rains here.

Places of Note are,

1. Murcia, the Capital, Lat. 38. 5. Lon. Weſt 1. 10. It is the See of a Biſhop, who is alſo Biſhop of Carthagena, becauſe its Juriſdiction extends over both. The Cathedral is noted for its lofty Steeple, with a winding Stair-Caſe of Stone, ſo broad and eaſy, that a Coach and Horſes may go to the top of it. The neighbouring Country produces annually 210000 lb. Weight of Silk, has abundance of Turpentine-trees, and alſo Selenite, with which they clarifie their Wine.

2. Carthagena, on the Coaſt, 20 miles South from Murcia. It was famous in the time of the Romans, when it was ſtrong, beautiful, and had a large Juriſdiction. The Harbour was ſafe and capacious. The Territory abounds with a ſort of Broom, of which they make Cables and Ropes, and has ſo much Allom as yields annually 40000 Ducats. Here are alſo Diamonds, Amethyſts, Carbuncles, and ſome Mines of Silver and Gold. At the Mouth of the Bay lies an Iſland, noted for its great Mackarel-fiſhing.

3. Lorca, 47 miles North-Weſt of Carthagena; noted only for the See of a Biſhop.

V. VALENCIA has Arragon on the North, Catalonia on the North-Eaſt, New-Caſtille and Murcia on the Weſt, and the Mediterranean on the Eaſt. 'Tis 190 miles South and North, and 68 where broadeſt Eaſt and Weſt, but narrow at both Ends. It was formerly a Kingdom. The Air is temperate, and the Soil not fruitful in Corn, but abounds with Wine, Rice, Sugar, Mulberry-trees, Flax, Hemp, Pomgranates, Citrons, Olives, and all other ſorts of fruit. The Coaſts abound with Fiſh of ſeveral ſorts. The Mountains have ſtore of Medicinal Herbs, Madder, and white Clay, of which they make Veſſels that vie with thoſe of Italy. They have alſo ſome Veins of Gold, Plaiſter, and Lime. The whole Kingdom is reckon'd to contain 100000 Families of Mooriſh Extraction.

Places of Note are,

1. Valencia, the Capital on the Coaſt, Lat. 39. 29. Weſt Lon. 8 miles. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, the Seat of a Viceroy, has a good Univerſity, and is inhabited by many Nobility. It is large, noble and rich, and inferiour to none but Madrid for neatneſs and number of People. The Cathedral-Church, St. Jerom's Monaſtery, the Viceroy's Palace, the Town-Houſe, and five Bridges over the River Guadalajar, which runs thro' the City, are its chief Structures. It is wall'd, and the Citizens keep Guard. Their chief Trade conſiſts in Almonds. It ſubmitted with the reſt of the Kingdom to the preſent Emperor, during the Earl of Peterborough's famous Campaign in 1705, but was loſt again after the fatal Battle of Almanza, which is a little Town 50 miles South-Weſt from Valencia, on the Frontiers of this Province, but by ſome plac'd in New Caſtille, where the Earl of Galloway and the Confederates were defeated by the French and Spaniards under the Duke of Berwick in 1707.

2. Gandia, on the Coaſt, 25 miles South-Eaſt from Valencia, has the Title of a Dutchy, is noted for Sugar-Works and its Univerſity.

3. Denia, on the Coaſt, about 12 miles South-Eaſt from Gandia. It is a ſmall Town with the Title of a Marquiſate, a convenient Harbour and a ſtrong Caſtle. The neighbouring Country abounds with Corn, Wine, and Walnuts.

4. Orihuela, 30 miles South-Weſt from Alicant, is the See of a Biſhop, has an Univerſity, a fine Caſtle, and is ſtrong by Nature.

5. Alicant, on the Coaſt, 32 miles South-Weſt from Denia. It is defended by a ſtrong Caſtle on a Rock, has a good Harbour and a Mole, and is noted for a great Trade in excellent Wine, Citrons, Oranges, Soap, and Anniſeed. It was taken by the Confederate Fleet in 1706, but was afterwards retaken by the French and Spaniards. It is ſaid to contain about 40000 Communicants, has eight Convents and two Pariſh-Churches. The neighbouring Plains produce great quantities of that ſort of Broom call'd Matweed, of which they make Frails for Raiſins, Cables, Baskets, &c. which turn to a good account.

5. Segorbe, 40 miles North from Alicant. It is the See of a Biſhop, and lies in a pleaſant Valley, which abounds with Corn, Wine, and Fruit.

The ISLANDS of SPAIN.

I. YVICA lies 35 miles Eaſt from Denia, is 23 miles South and North, and 30 where longeſt from Eaſt to Weſt. It abounds with Corn, Wine, Fruit, and Salt, in which they have a great Trade. Here's abundance of Wood without any venomous Creatures, tho' the little Iſland of Formentera, which lies South of it about 5 miles, is ſo peſter'd with Serpents as not to be habitable. There are no Places of Note here but Yvica, on the South-ſide of the Iſland, which is a ſmall and Town with a good Harbour; and Porto Magno, about 16 miles North-East of it, which has likewise a Harbour.

II. MAJORCA, lies East of the Gulph of Valencia 98 miles, betwixt Latitude 39 and 40. It has the Title of a Kingdom, is 50 miles South and North, and 60 where longest East and West. The Coasts are mountainous, but the Inland Country fruitful. Here is plenty of Corn, Salt, Oil, Wine, Cattle, Cheese, Milk, Butter, Venison and Pork; of all which they export abundance. Here's store of Mirtle-trees, of which they make an excellent Scent.

Majorca, the Capital, lies on the West-side of the Island on a River near the bottom of a Bay, which is about 15 miles broad. The Harbour is safe, and defended by a Mole. The Town lies part on a Hill, and part on a Valley, is fortified with a good Wall, contains 6000 Houses besides many Gardens, has 10 Gates, and is reckon'd one of the most beautiful Cities belonging to Spain. It is an University and the See of a Bishop, who has 20000 Ducats per Annum. His Palace and the Cathedral stand on the top of a Hill, from whence there's a delicious Prospect to the Sea. The Viceroy has also a Palace here. The Inhabitants are reckon'd good Privateers, and make good Profit by their Coral-fishing and coining of Reals. Here are several other little Towns with Harbours, but otherwise inconsiderable.

III. MINORCA, lies about 26 miles North-East from Majorca, is 24 miles South-East and North-West, and 25 where broadest, but narrow at both Ends. The Coast is mountainous, and cover'd with Woods. The Inland parts vye with Majorca in Corn and Pasturage. Their chief Trade consists in Wood, black Cattle, and Mules, of which they make considerable Profit.

Places of Note are;

1. Port-Mahon, at the bottom of a Bay near the South-West end of the Island. It is well fortify'd, and accounted one of the best and largest Ports in the Mediterranean. It is guarded by Fort St. Philip, and was taken with the rest of the Island by the English under General Stanhope in 1708. He had but 2600 Men, and the Garrison consisted of 1000, provided with 100 Canon, 3000 Barrels of Powder and other Necessaries for a good Defence. This Island was confirm'd to the English by the Treaty of Utrecht.

2. Citadella, on the West-side of the Island; a fortified Place with a pretty large Harbour about 24 miles North-West from Port-Mahon.

3. St. Catherine's on the same Coast, 8 miles North from Citadella; and,

4. Port Fornelle, at the Bottom of a Bay on the North-East side of the Island, 18 miles North-West from Port-Mahon.

PORTUGAL

HAS Galicia on the North, the rest of Spain on the East, and the Atlantick on the West and South. It is 330 miles from South to North, and about 120, where broadest, East and West, including Algarva. The Government, Religion, Language, and People, are so like those of Spain, that we need not farther describe them. The Air is mild, and purg'd by Winds from the Atlantick. Most of the Soil is mountainous, especially in Algarva; so that in general it produces little Corn, but abundance of delicious Wine and excellent Fruits of the same sort as those mentioned in Spain. Here is store of Fowl, especially Partridges, and abundance of Hares. They have excellent Pasturage, and great Herds of black Cattle, Sheep, Goats and Hogs. In their Mountains are Mines of Gold, Silver, Tin, Lead, Iron, Allom, Quarreys of fine Chrystal, white Marble and Jasper, and some Rubies and Emeralds. They have store of Silk, Honey, and Wax for Consumption and Export, and good Fish of all sorts in their Rivers and Coasts. They export great Quantities of Salt from St. Ubes, and their Silver Mine at Guacaldane is said to produce yearly 178 Quinto's at 2674 Ducats per Quinto; but their chief Commerce is in what they bring home from their Colonies in Asia, Africa and America. Their chief Rivers are the Tagus, Guadiana, Duro, Minho and Mondego, most of which rise in Spain.

The King's Revenue is reckon'd by some at two Millions and 200000 Ducats per annum, and according to others at Eight Millions 900000 Livres, besides 250000, the Patrimony of the Royal Family, which is not annex'd to the Crown. The Court is very splendid and sumptuous, and has all the great Officers of State, &c. that are usual in other European Courts.

The Archbishopricks are those of Lisbon, Braga, and Evora; the Suffragans are Miranda, Leira, Oporto, Coimbra, Lamego, Visea, Elvas, Portalegre, Faro and Guarda, besides what they have in the Indies under the Archbishop of Goa, and in Brasil and Africa. The Kingdom is divided into the several Provinces of Estremadura, Alentejo, Beira, Entre Duro and Minho, Tralos Montes and Algarva.

We shall take them as they lie from North to South.

I. ENTRE-DURO and MINHO so call'd, because it lies betwixt those two Rivers. It has Galicia on the North, Beira on the South, the Atlantick on the West, and Tralos-Montes on the East. It is about 79 miles South and North, and 51 East and West, where broadest, but narrow on the South. It is the most Northerly and populous Province in the Nation. The Air and Soil are so good, that they contribute much to the Health of the Inhabitants, and make them prolifick, it being usual here for Women to bear 'till fifty Years of Age, and for one Family to have twenty-five Children, which is not common in so warm a Climate. It abounds with Wheat, Rye, Millet, Apples, and excellent Pastures, so that they have the best Meat in the Nation. They have also Plenty of Wine, though not so good as in other Provinces. The Country is so pleasant, that it seems to have a perpetual Spring, affords excellent Hunting and Hawking, is look'd upon by the Inhabitants as a Paradise, and Strabo call'd Lusitania a fortunate Soil. Bleau reckons it has 1460 Parish-Churches, 130 Monasteries, six Harbours, 200 Stone-Bridges, and above 5000 Fountains.

Places of Note are,

1. Ponte de Lima, on a River of the same Name; Lat. 41. 58. Lon. West 8. 48. It is Capital of its Territory, has a Bridge over the River, from whence 'tis nam'd, a sumptuous Palace, and lies in a fine Country.

2. Viana de Foz de Lima, at the Mouth of the River on the Coast, about 8 miles South-West from Ponte de Lima, is a fine Town, Capital of its Territory, well-built, has a good Harbour defended by a strong Castle, and is noted for a Trade in Wine.

3. Valença de Minho, upon the Minho, on the Frontiers of Galicia, 14 miles North-West from Ponte de Lima, is strong by Nature, has a Fort about a mile from the City, and here Passengers are search'd, that they may carry no more Money than is allow'd, to Spain.

4. Caminha, at the Mouth of the River, 10 miles further South-West, lies in a pleasant Valley, has a Harbour commanded by a Fort and a good Garrison.

5. Braga, 12 miles South-East from Ponte de Lima, a very ancient Town, famous in the time of the Romans for the Valour of its Inhabitants. It is the See of an Archbishop, who contends for the Primacy of Spain with the Archbishop of Toledo. He has 40000 Ducats per Annum. The Cathedral is large, and the neighbouring Territory abounds with Corn, Wine, and Cattle.

6. Guimaranes, 13 miles South-East of Braga, the Capital of its Territory, is a pleasant Town, has a Palace and other sumptuous Houses, and a Manufacture of Cloth and Thread, with an Exemption from Customs through the Kingdom.

7. Villa de Conde, at the Mouth of a River, 17 miles South-West from Braga, is defended by a good Fortress, and noted for Fishing.

8. Porto, on the North Side of the Duro, 13 miles South from Villa de Conde, is Capital of its Territory, very ancient, and suppos'd to have given Name to the Country. It has a good safe Harbour, much frequented by most Nations. The Bar is narrow, defended by Rocks and a Fort. The City is large, well-built, neatly paved, and the publick Structures fine. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Braga, who has 15000 Ducats per annum. The Inhabitants are reckon'd about 50000. They have four Parish-Churches richly adorn'd, seven Friaries, four Nunneries, and a Jesuits College. The chief Trade is in Wine, Oil, Corn, Fruit, and Provisions. A little below it, on the other side the River, there's a Noble Convent of Augustin Friars, and another of Dominican Nuns.

II. The Province of TRALOS MONTES lies East from Entre-Minho and Beira, and South from Spain. It is 112 miles South and North, and 80, where broadest, from East to West, but is very narrow on the South. It abounds with Oil, Wine, and Cattle.

Places of Note are,

1. Braganza, in the North-East Corner, near the Frontiers of Spain, 97 miles North-East from Braga. It is Capital of its Dutchy, and the Patrimony of the Royal Family, is very ancient, and lies in a fruitful Plain.

2. Miranda de Douro lies on that River, 20 miles South-East of Braganza, is Capital of its Territory, lies on a steep Rock, is defended by an ancient Castle, and is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Braga, who has 10000 Ducats per annum.

3. Villa Real, 67 miles South-West of Miranda, Capital of its Territory, a small and well built Town.

4. Torre de Moncorvo, 29 miles South-East of Villa-Real, Capital of its Territory, a well-built, populous, and trading Town.

5. Pinhel, 20 miles South of Moncorvo, Capital of its Territory, a small but very ancient City.

III. The Province of BEIRA has Entre-Minho and Tralos Montes on the North, Estremadura on the South, Spain on the East, and the Atlantick on the West. It is 127 miles, where longest, from South-East to North-West, and 112, where broadest, East and West, is a pleasant, well-water'd Country, produces Wheat, Rye, Millet, generous Wine, good Apples, store of Chesnuts, abundance of Cattle, and the best Trouts in Portugal.

Places of Note are,

1. Coimbra, on the River Mondego, 60 miles South from Porto. It is Capital of its Territory, a fine large City, the Seat of an University, where are 5000 Students, and of a Court of Inquisition, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Lisbon, who has 40000 Ducats per annum. Several Kings of Portugal have been born here, and it has been the Appanage of several of their Sons. It is divided by the River, over which there's a Bridge of 29 Arches built on another that was swallow'd up by Sand. The chief Convent is that of the Holy Cross of the Order of St. Augustin, whose Monks are all of Noble Extraction. It's Church is very large and rich, and here's abundance of Reliques brought from England when Henry VIII. dissolv'd the Monasteries. This City contains about 30000 People, and has 16 Colleges and Convents besides Parish-Churches. About 24 miles from hence lie the Fountain of Cedima, which swallows up whatever touches its Waters, as Logs, Cattle, &c.

2. Aveiro, 28 miles North-West from Coimbra, is Capital of its Territory, and has the Title of a Dutchy for the Family of Alencastro, descended from our Lancaster Family, and has a good Harbour and a fine Bridge over the River. The Citizens have particular Privileges, Plenty of Fish and Fowl. Small Vessels ride safe under their Walls. They have 4000 Boats to carry Dung for manuring the neighbouring Country. There's great ſtore of Salt made in the Neighbourhood. They have three Friaries, four Nunneries, four Pariſh-Churches, and about 16000 Inhabitants.

3. Viſeo, 43 miles Eaſt from Aveiro, Capital of its Territory, has the Title of a Dutchy, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Braga, who has 16000 Ducats per annum.

4. Lamega, on the North ſide of the Province, 32 miles North from Viſeo, Capital of its Territory, large, well-built, populous, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Braga, who has 18000 Ducats per annum.

5. Guarda, 38 miles South-Eaſt from Viſeo, Capital of its Territory, has the Title of a Dutchy, a ſtrong Caſtle, is well fortify'd, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Lisbon, who has 22000 Ducats per annum.

IV. ESTREMADURA has Beira on the North and North-Eaſt, Alentejo on the Eaſt and South, and the Atlantick on the Weſt. It is 140 miles from South to North, and 76 from Eaſt to Weſt, but is narrow on the South ſide. It abounds with Corn, Wine, Oil, Salt and Cattle, and is reckon'd the beſt Province in the Kingdom.

Places of Note are,

1. Lisbon, Capital of the Province and of the whole Kingdom. It ſtands on the North ſide of the Tagus, near its Mouth, Lat. 38. 58. Lon. Weſt 9. 25. It lies about two Leagues along the River, in form of an Amphitheatre, and incloſes ſeven Hills and Valleys. There's a Caſtle on the higheſt Hill, which commands the Town, betwixt which and the Harbour there are many ſtately Churches, Palaces, Squares with Piazzas, large and well pav'd Streets, delicious Gardens and Fountains. The King's Palace, which is adorn'd with excellent Painting, Sculpture, and Architecture, lies on the Bank of the River, and is very regular and magnificent. The River is navigable 15 or 20 miles by the greateſt Ships. The Tide flows up to the Harbour the Depth of two Fathoms, and Ships of the greateſt Burthen ride in 16 Fathom Water, where they are defended from Enemies by Towers, and from the Winds by Mountains. This Port is always frequented by an infinite number of Ships with valuable Commodities from all Parts, and there's a Fair here every Tueſday, which makes it one of the moſt trading Cities in the World. It has been the Seat of their Kings ever ſince 1147, when 'twas taken from the Moors. It is alſo the Seat of the chief Parliament of the Kingdom, and of the Court of Inquiſition, and the See of an Archbiſhop. Bleau ſays, it is ſeven Leagues round, has 22 Gates towards the River, 16 towards the Land, and 77 Towers on the Walls. It has 40 Pariſhes, and in his time had 29000 Families and 110800 Souls beſides 300 Clergymen, without reckoning Strangers, or Foreigners. He adds, that it had 20 Monaſteries with 1360 Monks, and 18 Nunneries, containing 1830 Nuns. That in their Shambles they kill'd annually 11000 Beeves, 100000 Sheep, and 15000 Goats; ſo that the Toll on Fleſh ſold in the Market was farm'd at 55000 Ducats per annum. Their Archbiſhop has for Suffragans the Biſhops of Coimbra, Leiria, and Portalegre, beſides ſeven in Africa and America, and has 40000 Ducats per annum. There are many fine Villages and Gentlemens Seats in the Neighbourhood, which abounds with Vineyards, Orchards, Orange and Limon-trees. In the hotteſt Seaſons there are conſtant Breezes from the Sea in the Evening, which very much refreſh the Air.

Antas, about ſeven Leagues North from Lisbon, is noted for a Quarry of Stones fit for Ovens, which when once heated continue hot enough for two Days to bake, but, they ſay, loſe this Quality when tranſported.

Peniche, 37 miles North from Lisbon, on the Coaſt, is noted for a noble Fiſhery and a ſtrong Fortreſs.

2. Alenquer, 28 miles North-Eaſt of Lisbon, on a River that runs into the Tagus on the North-ſide. It is the Capital of its Territory, ſmall, but handſome, and has excellent Wine in the Neighbourhood.

3. Santarena, on the Tagus, 20 miles farther North-Eaſt, is Capital of its Territory, which abounds with Olives, Wine and Wheat. It was formerly a Roman Colony, and is a pretty trading Town.

4. Tomar, Capital of its Territory, in a fruitful, pleaſant Plain, 35 miles North-Eaſt from Santaren, and the Seat of thoſe call'd the Knights of Chriſt.

5. Leiria, Capital of a fruitful Territory, 24 miles almoſt North-Weſt from Tomar, is well-fortify'd, has a ſtrong Caſtle, and is a Biſhoprick, Suffragan of Evora, who has 18000 Ducats per annum. There's a Foreſt of Pines in the Neighbourhood, 6 Leagues in Length, which furniſhes Timber for building Ships. Allobaſa, in this Territory, has a Royal Abby, whoſe Abbot has Temporal and Spiritual Juriſdiction, and above 12000 Ducats per annum.

6. Alcantara, a large open Town, a quarter of a League from Lisbon, has a Royal Palace of admirable Situation, with fine Gardens, Grotto's, Water-works, and pleaſant Walks of Orange and Limon-trees. When the King comes hither, the poorer ſort preſent their Petitions to him by the way. Betwixt this City and Caſcais, about five Leagues down the River, there are ſix Caſtles; the chief, the ſtrongeſt, and moſt magnificent is Belem, a League and half Weſt from Lisbon. At a little adjacent Town the Monks of St. Jerom have a large Monaſtery of admirable Architecture, a ſtately Church fac'd with white Marble, and three Chapels, in which are the Mauſoleums of the Kings of Portugal. Moſt of the Monks Apartments are cut out of the Rock, and in the Town there are great Warehouſes of Oranges and Limons. This Caſtle is mounted with abundance of Cannon, and there's a Fort over-againſt it on the other ſide; ſo that they command the Entrance of the Harbour. Mount Sintra, on which it lies, abounds with Fruit-Trees and Medicinal Herbs, and the adjacent Country is the Granary of Lisbon. The ſecond is St. Julian's Caſtle, at the Mouth of the River, which has commonly 70 Great Guns and 400 Men. There's another upon an Iſland in the middle of the River, which is very ſtrong by Nature.

7. Almada, a League from Lisbon, on the other ſide the River, is noted for a Caſtle and a Fountain, whoſe Water diſſolves the Stone in human Bodies.

8. Setuval, or St. Ubes, Capital of its Territory, 24 miles South-Eaſt from Lisbon, at the bottom of a Bay, where there's the beſt Harbour in the Kingdom. It drives a vaſt Trade in white Salt, which is made in the Neighbourhood.

9. Alcacer de Sel, 30 miles South-Eaſt from Setuval, on the ſame River, near its Conflux with three others, has a ſtrong Caſtle on a Rock, and a great Trade in Salt and Mats.

V. The Province of Alentejo has the Atlantick and part of Portugueſe Eſtremadura on the Weſt, the reſt of Eſtremadura on the North, the Spaniſh Eſtremadura and Andaluſia on the Eaſt, and Algarva on the South. It is 185 miles from North to South, where longeſt, and almoſt 100, where broadeſt, from Eaſt to Weſt. It is reckon'd the largeſt Province in the Kingdom, and is ſo call'd, becauſe it lies beyond the Tagus or Tejo, with reſpect to Lisbon. It produces as good Wheat as any in Europe, and is reckon'd the Granary of Portugal. It abounds alſo with choice Wine and Oil, Cattle and Apples, and has ſome Quarries of Marble.

Places of Note are,

1. Portalegre, on the Frontiers of Spaniſh Eſtremadura, Lat. 39. 10. Lon. Weſt 7. 18. Capital of its Territory, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Lisbon, who has 8000 Ducats per annum. It has a good Caſtle, and is encompaſſed with Walls adorned with twelve Towers. It was taken by the Duke of Anjou in 1704, but quitted again, as was alſo Caſtel de Vide, a ſmall Frontier Town, 10 miles to the North, ſtrong by Situation.

2. Elvas, about 18 miles South of Portalegre, Capital of a Territory on the Spaniſh Frontiers, famous for excellent Oil. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Evora, who has 10000 Ducats per annum, ſtands on a Mountain near the River Gaya, and is defended by a ſtrong Caſtle and new Works added in the laſt Century, when it held out againſt the Spaniards four Months, 'till the Portugueſe aſſembled an Army, forc'd the Trenches, and obliged them to raiſe the Siege in 1659. The French and Spaniards attempted to bombard it in 1706, but without Effect. Onguela, 12 miles North, has an impregnable Caſtle, and a Fountain that kills all Creatures that drink of it, except Frogs.

3. Eſtremos, about 28 miles Weſt of Elvas. It is fortified by an old Caſtle, and new Works. Here are ſeveral fine Structures of ſpeckled Marble, and among others a Tower built by Dionyſius, King of Portugal, which reflects the Beams of the Sun at a great diſtance, and is very beautiful to the Eye. It is noted for Quarries of Marble in its Neighbourhood, and for curious Earthen Ware of a delightful Scent. There is a Fountain near it, which dries up in the Winter, but flows ſo in Summer, as to drive a Mill not far from its Riſe, and the Water is of a petrifying Nature.

4. Avis, 20 miles North-Weſt of Eſtremos, ſtands on a Hill waſh'd by a River of its own Name. It is famous for an Order of Knights of this Name, inſtituted by Alphonſus I. after his Victory over the five Mooriſh Kings, of which Order the King of Portugal is Grand Maſter. It is defended by a Caſtle, and is the Seat of the Order.

5. Villa Vicioſa, about 14 miles South-Eaſt from Eſtremos, in a fruitful Plain, which abounds with Cattle, has Silver Mines, and Quarries of Green Stone. There is a fine Palace and Gardens here belonging to the Royal Family. It was beſieged in vain by the Spaniards in 1665, and is noted for the deciſive Victory obtained near it in the Plain of Montesclaros over the Spaniards by the Count of Schomberg, which eſtabliſhed the Crown of Portugal on the Braganza Family.

6. Evora, 30 miles South-Weſt from Eſtremos, Capital of its Territory, 6 miles South-Eaſt from Lisbon, is large, rich, and populous, and reckoned the ſecond Town of the Kingdom. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, has an Univerſity and a Court of Inquiſition. The Place was taken by Don John of Auſtria in 1663, and retaken the ſame Year by the Portugueſe after a compleat Victory over the Spaniards. It lies in a fruitful Plain, where there are Silver Mines, and is encompaſſed with woody Mountains.

7. Beia, 38 miles South of Evora, the Capital of its Territory, not large, but well fortified. It was formerly a Colony of the Romans, who adorned it with many Structures, ſome of which ſtill remain. It lies in a fruitful Plain, which produces generous Wine, has a noble Caſtle, and the Title of a Duchy. It is noted alſo for wholſome Baths, and for a Lake in the Neighbourhood which roars like a Bull at the approach of a Storm.

VI. The Kingdom of ALGARVA has Alentejo on the North, Andaluſia on the Eaſt, and the Atlantick on the South and Weſt. It is the leaſt of all the Provinces, being but 33 miles from North to South, and but 82 from Eaſt to Weſt. The chief Product is Figs, Almonds, Olives, and Grapes, which yield excellent Wine; and on the Coaſt they have ſtore of Pilchards, Tunnys, Shell-fiſh, &c.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Lagos, Capital of its Territory, Lat. 37. Lon. 9. Weſt. It is a ſmall Town with a Caſtle and a Harbour at the bottom of a little Bay, noted for Tunny-fiſhing. The Walls are built on a Rock.

2. St. Vincent, a Town on the Cape of that Name, 15 miles South-Weſt of Lagos. It is one of the moſt famous Capes in Europe, and was call'd Sacrum Promontorium by the Latins.

3. Taveira, Capital of its Diſtrict, 50 miles Eaſt from Lagos, is Capital of the Kingdom of Algarva, has a commodious Harbour, reckon'd one of the beſt in Portugal, and defended by a good Fortreſs.

4. Faro, 18 miles South-Weſt from Taveira, has a good Harbour, is noted for Tunny-fiſhing, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Evora, who has 15000 Ducats per annum.

ITALY.

ITALY, including the Dutchy of Savoy, lies betwixt Lat. 37. 45. and 46. 20. ſo that the Length from North-Eaſt to South-Weſt is about 910 Italian miles. The greateſt Breadth from the Frontiers of Savoy to thoſe of Germany, is near 400; but the greateſt Breadth in other Places is not above 185. It lies in the 5th, 6th, and 7th Climates, ſo that the longeſt Day in the North is about 15 Hours, and in the South but 14 and a half. It has part of Swiſſerland and Germany on the North, the Mediterranean on the South, part of France and the Mediterranean on the Weſt, part of Germany and the Adriatic Sea on the Eaſt.

The Air in general is very healthful, tho' in ſome Parts towards the South it is very hot. The Soil is very fertile, eſpecially in excellent Fruit of all ſorts; and in ſome Places they have Plenty of Rice, Corn, Oil, very good Wine, and abundance of Mulberries, which feed many Silk-worms, and makes the Silk one of the greateſt Manufactures of the Country. Its chief Rivers are the Po, the Adda, the Adige, the Arno, and the Tyber; and the chief Lakes are thoſe of Como, Guarda, and that call'd Major. The chief Mountains are the Alps, which ſeparate Italy from France, Savoy, Swiſſerland and Germany, and the Apennines, which run thro' the Country from North-Weſt to South-Eaſt.

Italy is poſſeſſed by many Sovereigns; the chief are, the Emperor, the Pope, the Great Duke of Tuſcany, the Duke of Savoy, the Republics of Venice and Genoa, the Dukes of Parma and Modena, and the ſmall Republic of Lucca. The Language is an Idiom of the Latin, and very ſmooth and pleaſant, eſpecially the Tuſcan. The People are generally of a middling Size, their Viſages thin, and their Complexion a little tawny. They are reckon'd witty, prudent, politic, fit for Arts, Sciences and Trade; but are charged with being given to Diſſimulation and Revenge. They are very paſſionate in their Amours, and accounted jealous even to Madneſs. They have little of the old Roman Spirit for War, tho' they are fit enough for Arms, when they apply themſelves to it, either by Land or Sea. The famous Columbus, and Americus Veſpucius, were both Italians. And even in latter Ages they have bred great Generals, as the famous Andrew Doria of Genoa, the Marquis of Spinola, the Duke Alexander of Parma, and the Count De Montecuculi. They excel in Architecture, Sculpture, and Painting. Their Women are handſome enough, witty and amorous, which makes their Husbands look ſtrictly after them, and occaſions their preferring Strangers to their own Countrymen, when they can have their Choice.

The Religion of the Country is that of the Church of Rome; and they have Courts of Inquiſition to hinder the Progreſs of any others; tho' the famous Vaudois were ſome of the earlieſt that declined Communion with that Church, and, according to ſome good Authors, were never entirely ſubject to it. Jews are tolerated in many Places. Here are more Biſhopricks than in any Country of Europe, the Kingdom of Naples alone having more than all France. The Popes have found it their Intereſt to multiply them, that they might thereby have the Aſcendant in what they call General Councils, as they had in that of Trent. Their Archbiſhops are thoſe of Rome, Piſa, Florence, Sienna, Fermo, Urbino, Ravenna, Bologna, Genoa, Turin, Milan, Aquileja, Venice, Naples, Capua, Salerno, Amalfi, Sorento, Conza, Acerenza, Tarento, Brindes, Otranto, Bari, Trani, Nazareth, Barletto, Manſredonia, Lenciano, Chieti, Benevento, Roſſano, Coſenza, St. Severino, Reggio, Palermo, Meſſina, Montreal, Cagliari, Oriſtagui and Saſſari, which contain a vaſt number of Biſhopricks, tho' ſome of theſe Metropolitans are without Suffragans. The chief Univerſities are, Bologna, Rome, Padua, Sienna, Piſa, Turin, Naples and Salerno.

Italy is commonly divided into North and South. We begin at the North, and firſt with Savoy, which, tho' not properly in Italy, we chuſe to deſcribe it here, becauſe it joins to the Principality of Piedmont in Italy, which belonging alſo to the Duke of Savoy, we think it proper to deſcribe his Dominions together.

The North Part of Italy contains the following Dominions.

I. The Dutchy of SAVOY

HAS Burgundy and the Lake of Geneva on the North, part of France on the Weſt, part of Swiſſerland and Piedmont on the Eaſt, and Dauphine on the South. It is about 102 miles South and North, and about 50 where broadeſt Eaſt and Weſt. It is reckon'd one of the principal Dutchies in Europe. The Dukes have call'd themſelves Kings of Cyprus, ſince Lewis of Savoy married the Heireſs, about 1450. The preſent Duke was made King of Sicily by the Treaty of Utrecht, but has reſinquiſh'd it to the Emperor, and has the Title of King of Sardinia.

The Air is cold, becauſe of the Mountains, which are almoſt always covered with Snow. Many of their Valleys and Hills are fertile in Corn, Wine, Fruit and Paſturage; but in other Parts it is 13 Months betwixt ſowing and reaping their Rye, and ſometimes it is entirely loſt in the Snow. Their other Corn are Oats and Peaſe. Here are large Flocks of Cattle of all ſorts; ſo that they export Hides, Fleſh, Wool, Butter and Cheeſe. They have plenty of wild and tame Beaſts and Fowl. They have a ſort of Hares that are white in Winter, and aſh-coloured in Summer. Their Lake-Fiſh are excellent, and preferred to thoſe of their Rivers. Here is abundance of Fir, Oak and Pitch Trees, Walnuts and Cheſnuts. They have Salt-pits and Fountains, and make ſtore of Powder about Mountmellian. In the Valley of Aouſt they have Sand for making Chriſtal-Glaſs. The Water of Chamberry and Annecy is reckoned ſo good for dying, that Merchants prefer the Silk dyed with it to any other. The Blood of their Mountain Goats, and the Fat of their Monkeys, are reckoned good againſt many Diſeaſes.

It is divided into ſix Parts, as follows, and they are ſubdivided into Juriſdictions call'd Mandemens or Bailiwics.

1. The Dutchy of GENEVA, which is the North-Weſt Part. The chief Town is Annecy, on the North End of a Lake of the ſame Name, Lat. 46. 3. Long. 6. 19. 27 miles South of Geneva; it is a pleaſant, well-built Town, the Seat of a Court of Juſtice, the See of a Biſhop, and the uſual Reſidence of the titular Biſhop of Geneva. It has ſeveral handſome Churches, beſides the Cathedral, and divers rich Monaſteries. Four Canals run thro' the Town from the Lake, which makes it clean. It has a Caſtle and Walls, but not ſtrong. The Lake is about 12 miles long, and 4 where broadeſt.

2. The Dutchy of CHABLAIS, lies Eaſt of the Dutchy of Geneva, along the Lake, and is divided into ſeveral Mandemens and Bailiwics. The chief Town is Thonon, on the Bank of the Lake, 25 miles Eaſt of Geneva. It is well built, inhabited by ſeveral Perſons of Quality, has 2 Monaſteries, and a Collegiate Church. The adjacent Country is fruitful, pleaſant, and has many Gentlemens Seats.

3. The Barony of FOSSIGNY, lies South of Chablais. Here is a Mountain always covered with Snow and Ice, which continuing from Age to Age, becomes like Chriſtal, poliſhes as well, and being powder'd and mix'd with Wine, is good againſt ſeveral Diſtempers. It is ſo high as to be ſeen at Lyons, tho' 40 Leagues diſtant. The chief Places are, 1. Bonneville, the Seat of a Judge, defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, 20 miles South-Eaſt of Geneva. 2. Cluſe, a ſmall, but ſtrong Town, 15 miles South-Eaſt of Bonneville. 3. Salanches, 11 miles South-Eaſt of Cluſe, the largeſt Town of the Barony, and famous for its Market.

4. The Dutchy of SAVOY PROPER, South from the Dutchy of Geneva. The chief Places are, 1. Chamberry, the Capital of the whole, Lat. 45. 35. Long. 6. about 58 miles South-Weſt of Geneva. It was formerly the Seat of the Dukes, has a Parliament, or Court of Juſtice, a Chamber of Accounts, and lies in a pleaſant Plain, ſurrounded by ſeveral Hills. The Streets are ſtreight, with Piazzas to cover the People from Rain. It depends upon the Biſhop of Grenoble. Their chief Church has a Dean and 22 Canons, who depend upon the Biſhop of Grenoble. Here is a Jeſuits College, and ſeveral Monaſteries. The Town is defended by a Caſtle, and has been ſeveral times taken by the French, ſo that it is not ſo populous, rich and ſplendid as formerly. The Inhabitants are troubled with Swellings in their Jaws, occaſioned by their Waters being mix'd with melted Snow. In the Neighbourhood are thoſe called Alpine Mice, about the ſize of a Cat, with ſhort Legs, rough Hair, Mouths and Ears like a Squirrel: their Fleſh is wholſome, and good againſt ſeveral Diſeaſes. 2. Aix, Capital of a Marquiſate on the Eaſt of the Lake of Bourget, 10 miles North-Eaſt of Chamberry, much frequented becauſe of its Mineral Waters and Hot Baths, impregnated with Allom and Sulphur. The Baths were built by the Emperor Gratian, and there are Roman Inſcriptions about the Town, which ſhew its Antiquity. 3. Montmellian, a ſmall Town, 12 miles South-Eaſt of Chamberry, noted for its ſtrong Citadel on a Rock, which was reckoned one of the moſt impregnable Places in Europe, and one of the Keys of Savoy, till demoliſhed by the French in 1705. 4. Miolans, another Fortreſs, on a ſteep Rock.

5. The County of TARANTAISE, Eaſt of the Dutchy of Savoy. The chief Town Mouſtiers, is 26 miles South-Eaſt of Montmellian: It is the See of an Archbiſhop, divided by the Iſere, over which there is a Stone Bridge. There is no Acceſs to the Town but betwixt narrow Paſſes among Brooks and Precipices.

6. The County of MAURIENNE, lies South of Tarantaiſe, is the oldeſt Title of the Houſe of Savoy: It contains 100 Pariſhes, but thinly inhabited, and for moſt part by poor People. The North Part is mountainous, but in the South they have Wine, Corn, and excellent Saffron. The chief Places are, 1. St. John de Maurienne, 21 miles South-Weſt of Mouſtiers, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Vienne in Dauphine. There are ſome Mauſoleums of the Dukes of Savoy in the Cathedral. The Town is populous and well built, but not walled. 2. Lanebourg, a Village at the Foot of Mount Cenis, noted for furniſhing Travellers with Mules and other Neceſſaries to paſs the Mountain, which is very high, and in ſome Places covered with Pines and Firs from Top to Bottom, which make the pleaſanteſt Grove that can be formed by Nature or Art. The Paſſage, tho' high, is not unpleaſant, for the Precipices are not very perpendicular: the Aſcent is 4 miles, and there is a large Plain on the top, with a Lake near the Road, where the Duke of Savoy has a Houſe for his Diverſion, and another in the Lake for his Devotion. Here is an Inn for Paſſengers, an Hoſpital for ſuch as fall ſick by the way, and a Burying-place for ſuch as die. The Deſcent is 2 miles, and there are Men, who carry Paſſengers in wooden Chairs on two Poles down the ſame.

II. The Principality of PIEDMONT

IS the chief Part of the Duke of Savoy's Dominions, and gives Title to his eldeſt Son, has part of Savoy and France on the Weſt, the Dutchy of Milan and part of the Republic of Genoa on the Eaſt, Swiſſerland on the North, and the Mediterranean on the South. It is 170 miles South and North, and 74 where broadeſt Eaſt and Weſt. The Name is derived from its Situation at the Foot of the Mountains. Tho' ſome part of it be mountainous, it is in general as fruitful and pleaſant as any part of Italy, has abundance of Corn, Wine, Fruits, Meat wild and tame, Cheeſe, Butter, Hemp, Flax and Metals, ſo that no Country of its Dimenſions yields a greater Revenue to its Prince. The Inhabitants export Corn, Cattle of all ſorts, Hemp, Rice, Cheeſe, Wine, Iron-work, Paper, Cloth and Raw Silk. It contains about 50 Earldoms, 15 Marquiſates, many rich Lordſhips, 8 Biſhopricks, 20 large Abbacies, and a vaſt number of rich Benefices. It is uſual for Gentlemen here to have from 6 to 15000 Ducats per Annum; and there is no Place in Italy where Caſtles and Villages are more frequent and large. This Country is divided as follows, (I.) Into the Dutchy of AOUST, which ſome reckon part of Savoy. It lies Eaſt of Tarantaiſe, conſiſts of 8 large Valleys, and the Inhabitants ſpeak both French and Italian. It gives Title to a younger Son of Savoy. Here are hot Baths, but of difficult Acceſs, and plenty of Coal, Lime-ſtone and Marble.

Places of Note are,

1. Aouſt, at the Conflux of the Doire and Bauteggio, 38 miles North-Eaſt of Mouſtiers: It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Mouſtiers, was a Roman Colony, and has the Remains of an Amphitheatre, and other Roman Structures, with two or three Palaces, one of them the Biſhop's. The French took it in 1704.

2. St. Remi, 49 miles North-Eaſt of Mouſtiers, a Town at the Foot of Great St. Bernard, from whence there is an Aſcent of 3 Leagues into the Valais.

3. Donas, noted for a way of above 200 Steps cut out of the Rock, by which Hannibal is ſaid to have entered Italy.

4. Bart or Barde, 10 miles North-Weſt of Ivrea, on the top of a Mountain, betwixt the Doire and Valeſa, a good Fortreſs, taken alſo by the French in 1704.

(II.) PIEDMONT PROPER, or Province of TURIN. Places of Note here are,

1. Turin, the Capital of the Principality, Lat. 44. 33. Long. 8. 5. It is one of the fineſt Cities in Italy, for the Magnificence and Regularity of its Buildings, the Beauty of its Streets and Squares, the Number and Sociableneſs of its Inhabitants, and all Commodities of Life. The Duke's Palaces are of noble Architecture, and their Apartments ſtately. Other remarkable Structures are, the Prince of Carignan's Palace, the two Convents of the Jeſuits, which are the fineſt in the City, the Chappel of what they call the Holy Handkerchief that wiped our Saviour's Face, the Convent of the Minorites, the Citadel, which is every where countermined, the Royal Square before the Duke's Palace, and that of St. Charles. Moſt of the Streets of the new Town have Piazzas on both ſides. The Cathedral and other Churches are magnificent, richly painted, gilt and adorned. The Shops are well furniſhed, and here are noble Academies for Riding, Dancing, and martial Exerciſes, provided with the beſt Maſters. The Duke's Palace is nobly painted, and he has a choice Collection of rare Manuſcripts, Medals, Vaſes, &c. The Ducheſs's Cabinet in the new Palace, and the curious Bathing-place above it are full of original Pictures in Miniature of all the Great Ladies in Europe. The City is regularly fortified after the modern way, and the Citadel excells in Strength and Beauty. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, and has an Univerſity. The Old Town is irregular, the Streets narrow and crooked, and the Houſes mean, but has a Caſtle of a Pentagone Form, with a Park 5 or 6 miles round, encompaſſed with Rivers, and has Woods, Lakes, Fountains, and all ſorts of Game. There were delightful Walks of Oaks on the Ramparts, but deſtroyed during the laſt Siege by the French. The Avenues to the City are very pleaſant, as is the Walk of Elms to the Banks of the Po, about a mile long, where lies the noble Palace of Valentin, richly furniſhed, and the Duke's fine Country-houſe La Venerie Royale, about 2 miles and a half North-Weſt of the City, is ſtately and ſumptuous. This City will be ever famous in Hiſtory for the Duke and Prince Eugene's raiſing the Siege, and defeating the French Army before it in 1706, after they had over-run his Dominions. The Invention of Oil-Cloth, and the firſt printing in Italy is owing to this City. The Ros ſolis, and other Liquors made here, are much eſteemed in France, and elſewhere.

2. Chivas, 19 miles North-Eaſt of Turin, near the Conflux of the Morgo and Po, a ſtrong Town, which made a noble Defence before it was taken by the French in 1705. Some Fiefs belonging to the Pope lie in the Neighbourhood.

3. Carignan, a ſmall City, which gives Title of Prince to a Branch of the Family, 7 miles South of Turin.

(III.) The Marquiſate and Valley of SUSA, Weſt from Turin. The only Place of Note is Suſa, the Capital, 29 miles North-Weſt of Turin, at the Foot of the Alps, on the River Doria. It is very ancient, has a Triumphal Arch in Honour of Auguſtus, and other Antiquities. It is important by its Situation, and has been ſeveral times taken by the French, who diſmantled it in 1704.

(IV.) The Province of CARMAGNOLE, lies South of Turin, and is reckoned part of Saluces, tho' out of its Boundaries. The chief Town is Carmagnole, on the Eaſt ſide of the Po, 18 miles South-Eaſt of Turin, a ſtrong Place.

(V.) The Province of the five Valleys of the VAUDOIS, lies South-Weſt from that of Suſa. It is a ſmall Country, not above 30 Piedmonteſe miles long, 50 of which make a Degree, and 13 where broadeſt, and is ſeparated from Dauphine by the Alps. It is divided, 1. Into the Valley of Pragelas or Cluſon, which lies furtheſt North. 2. That of St. Martin, South of Cluſon. 3. Perouſa, Eaſt of St. Martin. 4. Luzern, South of St. Martin. And, 5. Angrogna, betwixt Lucern and Perouſa, tho' ſome don't reckon this a diſtinct Valley. Their chief Fame is, that they are the Country of the ancient Waldenſes, now called Vaudois or Barbets. The late learned Dr. Alix has ſufficiently proved, in his Remarks upon the ancient Churches of Piedmont, that they had their Name from the Valleys they inhabited, and held the true Chriſtian Doctrine long before Peter Valdo of Lyons, who begun to appear againſt the Church of Rome about 1160. Æneas Sylvius and Reinerius, with others of their Enemies, commend them for their Piety, and particularly for their being well verſed in the Scriptures. We can't inſiſt upon the ancient Perſecutions they ſuffered under the Name of Waldenſes and Albigenſes: The curious Reader may find that at large in Mr. Fox's Book of Martyrs, Illyricus's Catalogus Teſtium Veritatis, Perrin's Hiſtory of the Old Waldenſes Leger, and Morland's Hiſtory of the Valleys, and Dr. Bray's Papal Uſurpation and Perſecution; by which it appears, that they themſelves and their Doctrine have been ſpread at times over moſt Parts of Europe.

Their laſt Perſecution was by the preſent Duke of Savoy and Lewis the Fourteenth of France, who put him upon it, particularly in 1686, when they invaded them on all ſides; but they made ſuch a noble Reſiſtance, as obliged thoſe two Powers to come to a Treaty, and feign a Peace; after which they ſurpriſed thoſe poor People, before they could reaſſemble, and killed and took above 10000 of them. The Remains gave the Duke of Savoy ſo much trouble by their brave Defence, that he offered them leave to depart, which they willingly agreed to; but of 8 or 10000 Men, Women, and Children, ſcarce one third came to Swiſſerland, the reſt having periſhed by Want and Hardſhip. About 1689, 4200 of them that had been diſperſed, aſſembled, and returned to their Country in Arms from Swiſſerland, having forced their Way through the French and Savoyard Troops; and in 1690, after the Duke had entred into the Grand Alliance, he was perſwaded by King William of Great Britain to recall the reſt, and reſtore them to their Privileges. The Duke making a ſeparate Peace with France in 1696, he baniſhed them once more; but in 1703, when he broke with France again, he recalled them, and ſince that time they have enjoyed their Liberties.

Places of Note in this Country are, the Towns which give name to the Valleys, but otherwiſe not remarkable, except Pignerol, about 22 miles South-Weſt from Turin, once ſo well fortified, that it was reckoned one of the ſtrongeſt Fortreſſes in Europe, till the French, who had taken it, reſtored it by Treaty in 1696, but demoliſhed the Fortifications.

(VI.) The Province of IVREA, North-Eaſt from Turin, has no Place of Note but Ivrea the Capital, 35 miles North-Eaſt of Turin upon the Doria Baltea. It was a Roman Colony, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Turin, noted for excellent Cheeſe, and was very ſtrong till diſmantled by the French in 1704.

(VII.) The Province of VERCEIL, North-Eaſt of Ivrea, is fruitful, but has no Place of Note, except Vercelli, or Verceil, upon the River Soſia, 51 miles North-Eaſt of Turin. It is very ancient, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan, and was made very ſtrong, becauſe of the Importance of its Situation, till taken and diſmantled by the French in 1704.

St. Ja, or Agatha, a ſmall fortified Place, lies 15 miles Weſt of it.

(VIII.) The Province of BIELE, is North of Verceil, and has only a ſmall Town its Capital, 17 miles North-Eaſt of Ivrea.

(IX.) North-Eaſt from hence lies the Province or Principality of MASSERAN, a Fief belonging to the Pope.

The chief Towns are,

1. Maſſeran, 21 miles North-Weſt of Verceil; and,

2. Creveceur, a good Town with the Title of a Marquiſate, 7 miles North of Maſſeran.

(X.) MONTFERRAT Duchy lies South of Verceil, is pleaſant, and abounds with Corn, Wine, Game, and Fruit of all ſorts. It was formerly divided into Mantuan and Savoyard Montferrat, but by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, was all given to the Duke of Savoy.

Places of Note are,

1. Caſal, on the Po, 46 miles North-Eaſt of Turin, formerly one of the ſtrongeſt Places in Europe, till diſmantled by the French, who reſtored it to the Duke of Mantua in 1695. The Town is populous and well built, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan.

2. Pont de Stura, an important Paſs on the Po, 6 miles Weſt of Caſal.

3. Trin, a fortified Town, 12 miles North-Weſt of Caſal.

4. Creſcentino, a ſmall fortified Place over-againſt Verrue, on the other ſide the Po.

5. Acqui, on the Bormio, 13 miles South-Eaſt of Aſte, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan, noted for its Mineral Waters and Baths, which are much frequented.

(XI.) The County of ASTE, lies Weſt of Montferrat, and the North Part is encloſed by it on two ſides.

The cheif Places are,

1. Aſte, the Capital near the River Tanaro, 35 miles South-Eaſt of Turin, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan, large, populous, well-built, and for the number and largeneſs of its Palaces equal to the beſt Towns in Lombardy. It is divided into three Parts, well fortified after the modern way, and defended by a Citadel and Caſtle. Its Territory abounds with Hills, Groves, ſpacious Fields, Corn and Honey.

2. Verrue, on the South ſide of the Po, 27 miles North-Eaſt of Turin. It was reckoned impregnable, and held out againſt the French in 1705, till reduced to Rubbiſh. The Governour blew up all the Fortifications but the Dungeon, to which he retired, and was at laſt forced to ſurrender with his Garriſon, Priſoners of War. There is a ſtrong Fort in the Neighbourhood, called Guerbignan.

3. Nice de la Paillé, 12 miles South-Eaſt of Aſte, a fortified Town and conſiderable Paſs.

(XII.) The Marquiſate of CEVE, South of Montferrat, 36 miles South-Eaſt of Carmagnole, has no Place of Note but Ceve on the Tanaro, its Capital, a ſmall neat Town with a Harbour on the River, defended by a ſtrong Fort on a Rock.

(XIII.) The Province of QUIERS, Eaſt of Turin. The Capital of the ſame Name lies 6 miles Eaſt of that City, formerly a very conſiderable free Town, but now decayed, and noted only for a Manufacture of Tirſhan, and a Grain for Dying, produced in the Neighbourhood.

1. Villa Nova d'Aſte, a fortified Town 16 miles Eaſt of Turin.

2. Moncalier, 4 miles South of Turin, noted for a Pleaſure-Houſe belonging to the Duke and ſeveral others of the Nobility.

(XIV.)

(XIV.) The Province of CHERASCO, South of Quiers. Cheraſco, its Capital, is 10 miles South-East of Carmagnole, is a fortified Town, with a Citadel, noted for a Treaty betwixt the Dukes of Savoy and Mantua, and for its fine Trouts taken in the Tanaro near it.

(XV.) The Province of FOSSANO, South from Cheraſco, abounds with Corn, Paſturage, and Cattle. Foſſano, the Capital on the River Ceſſo, 6 miles South-West of Cheraſco, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Turin, and defended by a good Caſtle.

(XVI.) The Province of SAVILLAN, West of Cheraſco. The Capital Savigliano, 13 miles South-West of Carmagnole, is very pleaſant, has a fine Caſtle and Monaſtery, and induſtrious Inhabitants.

(XVII.) The Marquiſate of SALUCES is West of Savillan, pleaſant and fruitful, though mountainous. The River Po riſes here at the Foot of Mount Vilo. It belonged to France, but was given to the Duke in exchange for other Lands. Saluces the Capital, 7 miles from Savigliano, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Turin. Here is a magnificent Cathedral, and an ancient Caſtle, which defends the Town.

(XVIII.) The Valleys and Principality of BARCELONETE is West of Saluces, South of Dauphine, and North of Provence and the County of Nice. It is about 30 miles East and West, and 22 South and North, has many Mountains and Valleys, but no Town of Note, except Barcelonete, 11 Piemonteſe miles South-East of Embrun in Dauphine. This Principality was quitted to France by the Treaty of Utrecht in exchange for Feneſtrelles, Oulx, &c. in the Province of the five Valleys.

(XIX.) The County of BEUIL or BOGLIO is South from Barcelonete, is about 22 miles ſquare, has no Place of Note but a Town of its own Name, a large open Burrough 10 miles North-East of Glandeves in Provence.

(XX.) The County of NICE, is South-East from Barcelonete, and East of Bevil, and Part of Provence. It is 22 French Leagues long, and 11 broad, mountainous, has little Corn, but Plenty of Wine and Oil. Here are many Places ſtrong by Nature and Art, and Paſſes ſo ſtraight, that a few Men may defend them againſt Thouſands.

Places of Note are,

1. Nice, or Nizza, on the Bank of the Mediterranean, in a pleaſant Plain at the Foot of the Alps, Lat. 43. 4. Long. 7. 24. about 4 miles West from St. Laurence in Provence, is very ancient, has the Remains of an Amphitheatre and other Roman Antiquities, is beautiful, populous, well fortified, has a ſtrong Citadel, and is reckoned one of the ſtrongeſt Places in Europe. The Houſes are high, the Streets ſtreight, the Inhabitants courteous, and fit for Arts and Arms. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, Suffragan of Embrun. It has been ſeveral times taken by the French, who demoliſhed the Fortifications in 1706. The Cathedral is neat, with a rich Chappel belonging to the Jeſuits. Here is alſo a fine Palace, beautified with Relievo's in Marble, and richly furniſhed. The Harbour was commanded by the Citadel and neighbouring Forts, but the Anchorage is not good. Here are many Houſes upon the adjacent Mountains, which form an agreeable Proſpect from the Sea.

2. Villa Franca, about 4 miles North-East of Nice, is a ſmall Town with a good Harbour and Anchorage. Ships ride ſafe under the Mountains, and are defended by two Forts and a Citadel; but it has been ſeveral times taken by the French, and laſt in 1705.

(XXI.) The County of TENDE lies East from Nice on the other ſide the Alps, and here the Appennine Mountains begin. It has no Town of Note but Tende, at the Foot of the Appennine, 28 miles North-East of Villa Franca, a ſmall Town, but defended by a ſtrong Caſtle. The Country produces good Corn, White Wine, Cattle, Honey, Manna, Agaric and Turpentine.

(XXII.) The Province of CONI, is South of Tende. It abounds with Cheſnut-Trees (among which they ſow their Corn) Vineyards, and pleaſant Meadows. Coni the Capital is 15 miles South of Savigliano, is ſmall, but well fortified, and has a ſtrong Caſtle on a neighbouring Hill.

(XXIII.) The Province of MONDOVI is East of Coni; it abounds with Wine, Corn, and Cheſnuts. Villa Nova de Mondovi, the Capital, lies near the Appennine Mountains, 7 miles East of Coni, is large, fine, well-peopled, ſtrong, defended by a noble Caſtle, and reckoned the ſecond City in Piedmont. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Turin, and has an Univerſity. They pretended to Independency, and joined with the neighbouring Country againſt the Duke in 1698, but were reduced, and the chief Revolters executed.

(XXIV.) The Principality of ONEGLIA, East of Mondovi, and incloſed by the Dominions of Genoa, above 26 miles long, and 8 broad. It abounds with Wine, Oil and Fruit. Oneglia, the Capital, lies on the Coaſt, about 40 miles East of Villa Franca, is a populous and trading Town. The French bombarded it in 1692, but it was repaired ſince.

III. The Republick of GENOA

LIES along the Coaſt of the Mediterranean, almoſt in form of a Creſcent, has the County of Nice on the West, the Dominions of Tuſcany and Republick of Lucca on the East, Milan and Parma on the North, and the Mediterranean on the South. The greateſt Extent East and West is about 117 miles, but the Breadth unequal, the greateſt North and South not being above 30. It is divided into the Weſtern and Eaſtern Coaſt. The Country is for moſt part Mountainous. The chief Product is Oranges, Limons, Fruit, and excellent Wine, but little Corn. The Want of which is ſupplied by the Iſland of Corſica, which is ſubject to them. It is again divided into the Dominions of the Republick and thoſe of other Princes incloſed by them. The Dominions of other Princes on the West Coaſt are,

I. MONACO, a Principality belonging to the Family of Grimaldi, about 10 miles long and 3 broad. Monaco the Capital is 10 miles East of Nice, a ſmall Town well fortified, defended by a Caſtle, and has a good Harbour. There are only two little Towns more belonging to it. The Prince has been under the Protection of France ſince 1641, and is Duke of Valentinois in that Country.

II. The Principality of ONEGLIA belonging to the Duke of Savoy, already deſcribed.

III. The Marquiſate of FINALE, which belonged to the Houſe of Auſtria, but was ſold to the Genoeſe by the preſent Emperor in 1713. It is about 6 miles long, and only noted for its Capital Final, 6 miles West of Noli on the ſame Coaſt. It is a little Town well built and fortified, has a ſtrong Caſtle on a neighbouring Mountain, and a ſmall Harbour with good Anchorage, and about a Mile from it is La Marine de Final, a large Town defended by two Forts.

In the Dominions of the Republick on the West Coaſt are,

1. Vintimiglia 16 miles North-East of Monaco, a neat Town with a Caſtle and Harbour, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan.

2. St. Remo, 11 Miles East of Vintimiglia has a good Harbour, and its Territory abounds ſo with Oranges, Limons and other Fruit, that it is called the Paradiſe of Italy.

3. Albenga, 20 miles North-East of St. Remo, formerly a conſiderable Town till deſtroyed by the Piſans. It has a commodious Harbour, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Genoa; but the Air is bad.

4. Noli, 15 miles North-East of Albenga on the Coaſt, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Genoa.

5. Savona, 6 miles North-East from Noli on the Coaſt, is reckoned the ſecond Town of the Republick, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan.

6. Genoa, Capital of the Republick, 28 miles North-East of Savona, Lat. 44. 16. Long. 9. It lies on the Bank of the Sea, partly in a Plain and partly on ſeveral Hills at the Foot of the Appennine. It is very ancient, encompaſſes the Harbour like an Amphitheatre, and is juſtly called Genoa the Stately, becauſe of its magnificent Buildings. It affords a delicate Proſpect from the Sea, and looks as if it were built on ſeveral Stories, becauſe of the gradual riſing of the Hills. It is divided into the Old and New Town. The Streets of the Old Town are ſo crooked and uneven, that thoſe of Quality are forced to paſs them in Litters or Calaſhes, inſtead of Coaches. The Houſes are generally 6 or 7 Stories high in the lower part, the Streets large, the Houſes magnificent, and adorned with Marble. That called the New Street has 10 Palaces, ſo ſtately and large, that they are fit to entertain Great Princes and their Retinues. Their chief Churches are 5, and very magnificent. The Revenue of the City is reckoned at 1200000 Crowns per Annum, and many of the Citizens are rich. The Palace where the Doge and ſome of the Senators reſide, is very large, and their Arſenal contains Arms for 40 or 50000 Men. They have an Academy called Gli Adormentati. The City conſiſts of 32 Pariſhes and is the See of an Archbiſhop. The Town has a double Fortification, which reaches on both ſides to the Shore. The innermoſt incloſes the Town, and the other the riſing Ground about it. The Harbour is large and deep, but much expoſed to the South-Weſt Winds. There is a little Harbour within the great one for their Galleys, and three Moles for the Security of their Ships: One of them was built after the French bombarded the City in 1684, to ſecurre them from the like Inſults; and that part of the Town which was deſtroyed by the French Bombs is rebuilt more ſtately than before. At the Mouth of the Harbour there is a Watch-Tower of extraordinary Height. and on the other ſide a Lanthorn, to direct Ships by Night. Here is a Company of Bankers who lend Money to the Public and others on good Security. The chief Suburb is St. Peter d'Arena, in which there are ſtately Buildings. This City is extremely ſubject to ſcorching Heats in Summer, which makes them build their Houſes high and the Streets narrow. Their chief Trade is in Velvets, Points, Gloves, Confections, Anchovies, and ſeveral Sorts of Fruit. The Government monopolizes the Trade of Wine and Corn, ſo that the Taverns and Inns muſt buy their Wine from the Cellar of the State, and the Bakers buy their Corn from their Granary. The Trade of this City is much decayed, ſo that the Generality of the Citizens are poor.

The Eaſtern Coaſt is alſo divided into the Dominions of the Republick, and thoſe incloſed by them. The chief Places of the former are,

1. Rapallo on the Gulph of the ſame Name, 22 miles South-East of Genoa, noted for the excellent Oil produced in its Territory.

2. Seſtri, a pretty Town on a Cape, 10 miles South-East from Rapallo.

3. Porto-Fino on the Gulph of Rapallo, 13 miles South-East of Genoa, is a large Town defended by a Caſtle on a Rock, and has a well-frequented Harbour.

4. Spezza, or La Specia, a large Town at the bottom of a Gulph of the ſame Name, 30 miles South-East from Rapallo.

5. Porto Venere, 25 miles South-East of Rapallo, noted for a good Harbour on the Weſt ſide of the Gulph of La Specia, defended by a Fort.

The other Dominions on this Coaſt are,

1. The Marquiſate of Brugnetto, ſo named from its Capital, 28 miles South-East of Rapallo. It is a Fief of the Empire, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Genoa.

2. Torriglia, a ſmall Town with the Title of a Marquiſate, is alſo a Fief of the Empire.

3. Vergagne, a ſmall Town well fortified with a ſtrong Caſtle, has the Title of a County, and depends alſo on the Empire.

The Iſland of CORSICA belonging to the Genoeſe, we chuſe to deſcribe it here with the reſt of their Dominions. It lies 65 miles South from their Coaſt, and 60 West from that of Florence, betwixt Lat. 41. and 43. and Long. 9. and 10. It is 110 miles South and North, and 45 where broadeſt East and West. It is every where of difficult acceſs, and encompaſſed with ſteep Rocks. The Inland Parts are alſo Mountainous, except toward Tuscany, where it is more Plain, and produces good Corn and Fruit. Their other Product is excellent Wine, Oil, Figs, Rosin, and Honey, but the latter somewhat bitter, because the Bees feed upon Box, which abounds here. They have Mines of Allum, Iron, Salt-Pits, abundance of Chrystal, and a sort of Precious Stone peculiar to this Island, named Catochites, which is clammy like Gum. The Air is not very wholsom, and much of their Soil is sandy and rocky. They have sprightly Horses, and abundance of Sheep and Black Cattle, large hunting Dogs, and an Animal called Mufflers, peculiar to this Island and Sardinia. It resembles a Hart in Colour and Size, has Horns like a Ram, so hard and firm, that they throw themselves down from the Rocks upon them without receiving any Hurt. These Creatures are very swift, and prove very good Meat. The Inhabitants are ignorant, fierce, clownish, idle, and revengeful, but good Soldiers, and were so noted for Robbery, that the Pirates named Corsairs were so denominated from them.

Places of Note are,

1. Bastia, the Capital, near the North-East Corner of the Island, Lat. 42. 35. Long. 8. It is the Seat of the Viceroy, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Genoa, has a good Harbour and a strong Citadel.

2. Nebio, 5 miles West from Bastia, formerly considerable, but now only the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Genoa.

3. Calvi, a small Town on the West side of the Island, upon a Gulph of the same Name, 36 miles South-West of Bastia. It is the Residence of the Bishop of Sagona, Suffragan of Pisa, and has a strong Citadel.

4. Sagona lies 28 miles South-West from it, but is ruinous.

5. Corte, in the Center of the Island, 30 miles South-East from Calvi, has a strong Castle on a Rock of difficult access, and is the Residence of the Bishop of Alteria, which lies East of it, but deserted because of its bad Air.

6. Ajazzo, on a Gulph of the same Name in the West side of the Island, 31 miles South-West from Corte, is pretty populous, has a good Harbour defended by a Fortress, and is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Pisa.

6. Porto Vecchio, a large Town near the South-East Corner of the Island, 36 miles South-East from Ajazzo, is a large Town with a good Harbour.

7. Bonifacio on the South Point of the Island, 16 miles South of Porto Vecchio. It is the best Town in the Country, has a tolerable Trade and a safe Harbour.

8. Cupraja, or Caprea Island, 23 miles North-East of Corsica, is 18 miles round, and has a Town and Castle to curb the Pyrates, which abound in these Seas.

IV. The Dutchy of MILAN

HAS the Dominions of Genoa on the South, Swisserland on the North, Piedmont on the West, and the Dominions of Venice and Duchy of Parma on the East. It is very irregular in its Form. The greatest Length from South to North is 120 miles, and the greatest Breadth from East to West is 100, but it is much indented both ways. It had formerly Dukes of its own, who made a great Figure in History, and has been subject to many Revolutions of Government. It belongs now to the Emperor, and is one of the finest, most fruitful and populous Duchies in Europe. Its annual Revenue is computed at 4 Millions of Livres. It abounds with Corn, Wine, Flax, Rice, Fruit and Cattle, and has many Rivers, of which the Po, the Tesin, Adda, and Sessia are the chief. It is divided into the following Territories,

I. MILANESE PROPER. Places of Note are,

1. Milan, the Capital, Lat. 45. 22. Long. 9. 15. It is very ancient, lies in a pleasant Plain watered by the River Aulon, with several other Rivers and Canals; one of them is 20 miles long, supplied with Water from the Adda, and another from the River Tesin, which contribute much to its Strength and Trade. It is 10 miles round, and one of the most magnificent, populous, and trading Towns in Europe. Bleau makes it the largest in Italy next to Rome. It is of a round form, divided into 6 Wards, is said to contain 300000 Inhabitants, has 11 Collegiate Churches, 200 others, 71 Parishes, 120 Schools, 30 Colleges of Regular Monks, 8 of Regular Clerks, 36 of Nuns, and 32 for Discipline, which with others amount to 238. The Suburbs are large, some of them equal to great Towns, and well fortified. This Town has undergone above 40 Sieges, been taken above 22 times, and 3 or 4 times ruined, particularly in 1662, by the Emperor Frederick I. who razed and sowed it with Salt, because they carried his Empress through the Town on an Ass, with her Face towards the Tail, which they made her hold in her Hand. It is inhabited by many Persons of Quality, who have sumptuous Palaces; and 100 Gentlemens Coaches have been seen at one Church at a time. The Houses in general are stately, the Squares large and fine, the Streets broad and neat, and it has Artists and Tradesmen enough to serve all Italy. The Citadel is a regular Hexagon, well fortified, reckoned one of the strongest and largest in Europe. It resembles a City, has many Palaces, Streets, Markets and Alleys. The Ditches are filled with deep Rivers, and faced on each side with Brick. The Magazine in the Duke's Palace which lies in the City, is so well stored with Arms as becomes the greatest Prince. Here are many Inscriptions and other Monuments of Antiquity. Their Academy is very ancient; and Virgil is supposed to have studied here. The City has 10 Gates, and the other most remarkable Structures are, 1. The Cathedral belonging to their Archbishop. It is 250 Cubits long, 130 broad, and of a proportionable Height; and, according to some Authors, they have been at work upon it above 300 Years, but 'tis not yet finished, nor is ever like to be, because the Priests delay it on purpose to get Legacies and Gifts from the People. The Workmanship is preferred to that of St. Peter at Rome, though it is much less. It has 160 Marble Pillars valued at 10000 Crowns each. It is built of unpolished Marble; and, according to the Plan, is to have 1400 Marble Statues as large as the Life. That Part where Mass is said according to the Rites of St. Ambrose, is noted for extraordinary Paintings; among others, that of St. Bartholomew flead alive, for which Lewis XIV. offered 500000 Livres, but was refused. The Ambrosian Library here is reckoned to contain 14000 Manuscripts, and 72000 printed Books. Adjoining to this is the Academy of Painting, where there are many curious Pieces, and other Rarities, 2. The Hospital for those infected with the Plague is so magnificent, as might serve the greatest Prince for a Palace. It is a Square, and has 4 Galleries with 92 Chambers each, so contrived, that the Sick from their several Apartments see the Mass at the Altar in the middle of the Square, under a Dome supported by 4 Columns. The Revenue is 50000 Crowns per Annum, and 4000 Sick and Poor are maintained in it. 3. The Town-House. 4. The Palace of the Archbishop, who is always to be a Cardinal. 5. The Closet of Rarities, which belonged to a late Canon of the Cathedral, are worth a Traveller's View. The chief Trade of the Town is in Lace, Embroidery, and Works of Steel and Chrystal, in which they are very expert.

II. The PAVESAN, South of Milan, abounds so with Corn and Fruit, that it is called the Garden of the Milanese. Pavia, the Capital, is 28 miles South of Milan on the Tesin, over which there is a fine Bridge. The Situation is pleasant. It is the See of a Bishop, who depends immediately on the Pope, and is reckoned one of the richest in Italy. Over-against the Cathedral is a Brass Statue on Horseback said to be that of Antoninus Pius. It has never recovered its ancient State, since taken and sacked by the French in 1527, out of Revenge for the Defeat of their King Francis I. who was taken near it in 1525. It has an ancient University, some Colleges, and other Publick Buildings.

III. The LODESAN, South-East of Milan, abounds with Pasturage and Cattle, and is noted for excellent Cheese. Lodi, the Capital, on the Adda, is 22 miles South-East of Milan, large, well-built and fortified, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Milan.

IV. The CREMONESE, East from Lodesan, has Plenty of Corn, Wine, Fruit and Flax. Cremona, the Capital, is 26 miles South-East of Lodi, on the North side of the Po. There is a Canal from it which runs thro' the City, fills its Ditches, and forms a Communication with the Oglio. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Milan. The Cathedral is a noble Structure, besides which there is a Collegiate Church and 3 Monasteries. The City is large and well built, the Streets wide and streight, the Air good, and the Situation pleasant; and they have an University, but the Town is neither rich nor populous. It is noted for a noble Exploit of Prince Eugene of Savoy in 1702, when he surprized it by Night, and carried off the Mareschal de Villeroy Prisoner, though the French Garrison was much more numerous than Prince Eugene's Troops.

V. COMASCO, or the COMESAN, lies North of Milan. Como, the Capital, is 15 miles North of Milan, at the South-End of the Lake of that Name. It is considerable, strong and populous, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Aquileja. The Lake is 30 miles long, 3 broad, and divided into two Branches at the South End. It abounds with Fish, especially Trouts. The River Adda runs through it. The Banks in some Places are covered with Woods, and afford good Hunting. There is a Fountain near it, which, Pliny says, ebbs and flows three times a day.

2. Bellona, a small Town of good Trade near the Lake, North-East of Como.

3. Fort de Fiente, 48 miles North-East of Como, a Fortress where the Adda falls into the Lake.

VI. The County of ANGHIERA, South-West of Milan, noted for excellent Wine. Anghiera, the Capital, is 30 miles South-West of Milan, near the Lake Major, or Logarno, anciently called Lacus Verbanus. It is about 40 miles long, and 7 broad, has several Islands, receives many Streams, besides the River Tesin that runs quite through it, and abounds with good Fish of several sorts.

2. Ugogna, Capital of the Ugognese, a small Town with a strong Castle, 36 miles North-West of Anghiera.

3. Arena, a small strong Town, 10 miles North-West of Anghiera on the other side the Lake.

VII. The VALLIES OF SESSIA, West of Anghiera are 9 or 10 in number, but no Place of Note except San Majolo, a small but well fortified Town.

VIII. The NOVARESE, betwixt Milan and Piedmont. Novara the Capital, 28 miles West of Milan, is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Milan, remarkable for Sieges and Battles in the Neighbourhood, and for the Birth of Peter Lombard, called Master of the Sentences.

IX. VIGERANES, or VIGENAVASCO, South-East of the Novarese. The Capital Vigerano or Vigevano, is 25 miles South-West of Milan, near the Tesin, is very pleasant, has a strong Castle on a Rock, and is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Milan.

X. The LOUMELINE, South from Vigenavasco. Valencia, or Valenza, the Capital, is 25 miles West of Pavia, a small Town, but well fortified, taken and retaken several times in the late Wars.

XI. The ALEXANDRIN, South of the Loumeline. Alexandria, the Capital, is 28 miles South-West of Pavia, on the Frontiers of Montferrat. It was called Alexandria de la Paglia, (i. e. of Straw) by Emperor Frederic, in contempt of Pope Alexander III. in whose Honour it was built. It has sustained many Sieges, is divided by the River Tanaro, enjoys many Privileges granted by Popes, and is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Milan.

XII. The TORTONESE, East from the Alexandrin. The Capital, Tortona, 15 miles East of Alexandria, is ancient, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Milan, and defended by a strong Castle.

XIII. The Territory of BOBBIO, South of the Pavesan. The Capital, Bobbio, lies in a pleasant Plain, 32 miles South-East of Pavia, and is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Genoa.

V. The Dominions of VENICE in ITALY

ARE 180 miles East and West, and about 90 where broadeſt South and North, but the Breadth very unequal, being much indented in the middle by the Dioceſe of Trent. The Revenues of this Country are computed at 8 Millions and 240000 Ducats per Annum. It is divided into the following Provinces or Juriſdictions.

I. BERGAMASCO, which lies East of Milan, is 45 miles South and North, and 30 East and West. It has Plenty of Corn, Wine, Cheſnuts, Iron, and Quarries for Mill-ſtones. Bergamo, the Capital, is 27 miles North-East of Milan, well fortified, has a Caſtle on a Mountain, which commands the neighbouring Height, and has a Proſpect for 30 miles into the Milaneſe. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Milan, has many fine Houſes and Streets, and furniſhes moſt of Italy with Boatmen. The Inhabitants are troubled with Swellings in their Jaws, occaſioned by bad Water. It is as large as Milan, but nothing ſo populous. It has five Suburbs, from whence they aſcend to the City by Stairs.

II. CREMASCO, South of Bergamaſco, is 15 miles South and North, and 7 East and West. Crema, the Capital, lies 25 miles South-East of Bergamo, a ſtrong Town, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Bologna, but not large nor neat.

III. The BRESCIAN, East of Bergamaſco, has Plenty of Corn, Wine, and Iron Mines, is 70 miles South and North, and 35 East and West. Breſcia, the Capital, is 22 miles North-East of Crema, on the Rivers Mela and Garzo, which run through it. It is a large, ſtrong, populous, trading Town, defended by a Caſtle on a Rock, has many fine Churches, Palaces, Squares, and large Streets well paved, and kept clean by the Streams which run through them. It is the See of a Biſhop, who has the Title of a Duke, Marquis, and Count, and is Suffragan of Milan. In the Cathedral they pretend to have Conſtantine's Oriflame, which, they ſay, is a Blue Croſs of unknown Matter. The Inhabitants are rich, well clad, and ingenious. Here are many noble Families, ſaid to be deſcended from the ancient Romans. The Palace of Juſtice is very ſtately, and over-againſt it a Portico 500 Paces long, full of Armourers Shops. The Fire-Arms made here are eſteemed all over Italy.

2. Chiari, 12 miles West of Breſcia, a ſmall but ſtrong Town, noted for withſtanding the French in 1702, and for a Victory obtained near it by the Imperialiſts over the French and Spaniards.

IV. The VERONESE, East of the Breſcian, 80 miles South and North, and 32 East and West. It has Plenty of Wine, Corn, Fruit, and Cattle, Oil, Wool, Silk, and Marble Quarries of ſeveral Colours. The Adige and Lake of Garda ſupply them with good Fiſh. Verona, the Capital, is 40 miles South-East of Breſcia, a very ancient Town, lies pleaſantly on the Adda, which runs through it, and has four ſtately Stone Bridges. It is commanded by two Caſtles, but the other Fortifications neglected. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja; and beſides the Cathedral has ſeveral fine Churches. An Iſland in the middle of the City, is the beſt inhabited part. The Streets are narrow and ill kept, the Houſes low and unequal, and their Balconies loaded with Flower-Pots. Here are ſeveral magnificent Tombs of their ancient Lords the Scaligers; but the moſt remarkable Monument of Antiquity is a noble Amphitheatre built in honour of Auguſtus. The Cabinet of Rarities belonging to Count Maſcardo is worth a Traveller's View.

2. Peſchier, 14 miles North of Verona, a ſmall City well fortified on the River Menze that comes out of the Lake de Garda.

3. Garda, 20 miles North-West of Verona, on the East ſide of the Lake, to which it gives Name, is alſo a fortified Town. The Lake is 35 miles South and North, and in ſome Places 14 miles broad. The Venetians brought their Gallies hither from the Adriatic, and defeated the Milaneſe in a Naval Fight. It abounds with Eels, Trouts, and other Fiſh, particularly one named Carpione, that can ſcarce live any where elſe.

V. The PADUAN, East of the Veroneſe, 35 miles South and North, and 28 East and West, is reckoned one of the beſt Countries in Italy. Padua, the Capital, lies 32 miles South-East of Verona. It is very ancient. Livy, who was born here, ſays, it was built 430 Years before Rome. It is reckoned the Mother of Venice, is regularly fortified, about 8 miles round, has much waſte Ground and many empty Houſes, the Inhabitants are reckoned about 40000. Moſt of the Streets have Piazzas, which make them dark and narrow. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja, and the Seat of a Podeſta, or Governour, ſent from Venice, mentioned by old Authors as a very rich Town; and ſome think it has had a Communication with the Sea, becauſe Maſts and Anchors are often found when they dig for Wells. This Place was famous for the Study of Phyſic; but the Univerſity is ſo much decayed now, that there is but one College of ten made uſe of. The moſt remarkable Structures are, 1. The Town-Hall 256 Foot long and 86 broad, of curious Architecture. 2. That which they call the Tomb of Antenor the Trojan, their Founder. 3. The Mons Pietatis, where they have a Stock of 40000 Crowns for the Poor, who borrow on Pawns. If the Sum be ſmall, they pay no Intereſt; if large, they pay 5 per Cent. The Stock is always kept entire, and the Profits divided among the Poor. 4. The Cathedral, which has 100000 Crowns per Annum, with their other Churches and Monaſteries, are magnificent, particularly the Church of their Patron St. Anthony, where, they ſay, are his Reliques. It has 6 Cupolas covered with Lead, and his Chappel is very rich and noble, ſupported by 12 Marble Pillars, with a Legend of his Miracles betwixt them. The Church and Convent of the Black Friers vies with moſt in Europe, and has a large Square before it, where thoſe of Quality make a Tour with their Coaches in the Evening. 6. The Ruines of a noble Amphitheatre, which Dr. Brown thinks the World can't match. The Palace of Juſtice, where there is a Monument of Livy, and his Head of Marble, with an Inſcription. Here is a pleaſant Proſpect from the Walls of the City into a Plain Country, reſerved for Corn, no Trees are ſuffered to be planted within ſome Miles of the Walls; and the Neighbourhood has good Hunting, Fiſhing, and Fowling. There is a Communication betwixt this City and Venice by the River Brent, on which lies Ponte Molino, where they have 30 Mills together, and there is a noble well contrived Sluice to keep in the Water, and make Flaſhes for the Veſſels that trade upon the River. At Abano, 4 miles South-West of the City, are hot medicinal Fountains, with others of the ſame nature in the Neighbourhood; and at St. Bartholomew's, 11 miles from Padua, there is a vaſt number which flow from a Rock by winding Streams.

2. Eſte, Eſt, or Ateſta, an ancient Town 9 miles South-West of Padua, which gives name to the illuſtrious Family of Modena, and others in Italy.

VI. The VINCENTIN, betwixt the Paduan and Veroneſe, is 40 miles South and North, and 33 East and West, and ſo fruitful, that it is called the Garden of Venice. It abounds with Wild Fowl, Cattle, Mulberry-Trees and Silk, Deer, Goats, Boars, Corn, Butter, Cheeſe and Wool, and their Wine is reckoned the beſt in Italy. Here are alſo Mines of Silver, Quickſilver, Copper, Lead, Iron, Vitriol and Sulphur, Quarries of Marble, and ſeveral other Stones, and excellent White Potters Clay. It has 122 large Villages, reſembling Towns, 14 Rivers, and 5 Lakes that abound with Fiſh. Vicenza, or Vincenza, the Capital, is 10 miles North-West from Padua, ſaid to be one of the oldeſt Towns in Europe. It is encompaſſed by an old Wall, and lies betwixt ſeveral ſmall Rivers. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja. The Cathedral, the Biſhop's Palace, and the Town-houſe are noble. Here are alſo the Ruins of a Theatre, an Amphitheatre, and Triumphal Arch. It is about four miles round, was formerly much ſtronger, and might be made impregnable. It is divided into 15 Wards and 15 Pariſhes, has 29 Monaſteries of both Sexes, 11 Hoſpitals, and 6 Oratories. Their chief Magiſtrates are three Noble Venetians, and the Government is much like that of Venice.

2. Maraſtica, 10 miles East, is a very good Fortreſs.

VII. The POLESIN DE ROVIGO, lies South of the Paduan, is 20 miles South and North, 50 East and West, and abounds with Corn, Paſturage and Cattle. The Capital, Rovigo, 13 miles South-West of Padua, is a ſmall, but ſtrong well built Town, ill peopled and dirty, though the See of the Biſhop of Adria, Suffragan of Rome.

VIII. The Marquiſate of TREVISANA, lies North from the Paduan. It is fruitful in Corn and Wine, and the chief Trade is in Maſts for Ships, and Fire-wood.

Places of Note are,

1. Trevigio, or Treviſa, the Capital, on the River Sile, 30 miles North-East from Padua, and 22 North-West of Venice. It is rich, well built, divided by the River which fills its Ditches, and makes it almoſt impregnable.

2. Ceneda, 15 miles North-East of Treviſa, a ſmall but populous Town, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja.

3. Saravalle, 2 miles North-East from it, is a very pleaſant Town, the uſual Reſidence of the Biſhop, and the adjacent Country abounds with good Wine, Oil, Fowl, Fiſh, Game, Lakes and Woods.

IX. The FELTRIN, reckoned Part of the Marquiſate, lies North from it on the Borders of Trent. It produces Corn, Wine, and Iron Mines, of which the Inhabitants make great Profit. Feltre, the Capital, is 18 miles North-West from Treviſa, an ancient Town, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja, noted for Julius Cæſar's ſtaying here ſome time, and making the following Diſtich upon it:

Feltria perpetuo nivium damnata rigore,
Atque mihi poſthac haud adeunda, vale.

importing, that he would never come near it more, becauſe the Country was always covered with Snow.

X. The BELLUNESE, reckoned alſo part of the Marquiſate, lies North of the Feltrin. The Capital is Belluno, 9 miles North-East of Feltre. It is ſmall, but populous, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja.

XI. The CADORIN lies North from the Belluneſe, is a ſmall Country, and noted becauſe the Inhabitants are exempted from all Taxes, on account of their Fidelity to the Venetians in the 15th Century. The Capital is Pieve di Cadore, 18 miles North of Belluno.

XIII. FRIULI lies East from the Belluneſe and Caderin, is 52 miles South and North, 45 East and West, including that part of it poſſeſſed by the Houſe of Auſtria. It produces Wine, Corn, Fruit, Iron Mines and Silk. Places belonging to the Venetians here are,

1. Palma Nova, on the Frontiers of Carniola, 10 miles West from Goritz, thought to be the largeſt regular Fortification in Europe, and the great Bulwark of the Venetian State on this ſide. It has a ſexangular Piazza in the Center, from whence there is a Proſpect of the 3 Gates and 6 Streets; and in the middle of the great Bridge croſs the River, which runs by the Town, there is a Draw-bridge ſo artfully made, that a Centinel by touching a ſmall Piece of Iron with his Foot, can draw it as he ſees occaſion. The Venetians have cut a large Canal from this Town to the Sea, by which it may be ſupplied on all occaſions. They have made it the ſtronger, becauſe it was the Road by which the Huns and Turks formerly made Incurſions into their Dominions.

2. Udina, about 17 miles North from Palma Nova, is the largeſt and beſt peopled Town of the Country, contains about 15000 People, but is ſhort of Palma Nova for Strength and Beauty.

3. Gradiſca, a ſmall, but ſtrong Town, 6 miles South-West from Goritz, built in the 15th Century to ſtop the Incurſions of the Turks.

4. Pont a Fel, or Ponteba Veneta, lies on the Frontiers of Carinthia, 13 miles North from Udina. It has a Bridge over the River Fela, the middle of which is the Boundary betwixt that Country and the Venetian Territories; and there is another Town of the ſame name on the North ſide of the Bridge, which belongs to the Emperor. The Venetian Town is very well fortified.

5. Grada, a ſmall Town in an Iſland on the Coaſt, by ſome called New Aquileja, was the Seat of the Patriarch over the neighbouring Iſles, who aſſumed the Title of Patriarch of Aquileja, till it was removed to Venice;

Venice; ſo that it is now only the See of a Suffragan. Others mention Porto Gruaro in this Country, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja. Many of the former Inhabitants of that Place are removed hither.

XIII. The Duchy of VENICE lies from the Mouth of the Liſonzo to that of the Adige, and contains all the Iſles in the Lakes or Marſhes of Venice and the Maran, and all that Quarter towards the Gulph, from Carvaxera to Grada, and ſeveral Iſles about the City. It is about 80 miles long, but the Breadth unequal.

Venice, the Capital, lies Lat. 45. 22. Long. 12. 50. about 32 miles Eaſt from Padua. It ſtands upon Iſlands, commonly ſaid to be 72, but Miſſon and other late Travellers make them 200. The Bridges over the Canals are reckoned 450, and the Gondola's, or plying Boats for Paſſengers, from 10000 to 15000, there being ſcarce a Street to which there is not a Paſſage by Water. The Buildings are generally lofty and beautiful eſpecially on the Grand Canal, over which the Bridge called Rialto exceeds all the reſt, is built of white Marble, and conſiſts of one Arch 95 foot long and 24 high. It has two Rows of Shops and ſmall Houſes covered with Lead. It is founded on 10000 Piles of Wood, which are ſaid to have coſt 250000 Ducats. This Canal runs through the middle of the City, and among the Houſes upon it, there are 200 fit for Princes. The Streets are generally narrow and crooked, but well pav'd and very clean. Some make the Inhabitants 300000; but Miſſon ſays, not above 140000, the number being much leſſened ſince the Decay of their Trade by the Diſcovery of the Paſſage to the Eaſt Indies by the Cape of Good Hope, before which it was the Mart for all Eaſt India Commodities ſpent in Europe. Some make it 8 miles round, but Miſſon only 5. They have 72 Pariſhes, 54 Monaſteries of Men, 25 of Women, 18 Chappels, 18 Hoſpitals, 53 Squares, 124 Markets, 140 Palaces, 160 Public Fountains, but few of them good, ſo that they ſave Rain-Water in their Ciſterns, or bring freſh Water from the Continent. They have 27 Public Clocks, 114 Towers with Bells, 66 Courts of Juſtice, 56 Statues of Braſs, 10 of Horſes, and 10 Gates of the ſame Metal. The Palaces of the Nobility are not ſpacious but handſome, well contrived, and founded on Piles of Wood. The moſt remarkable Places are, 1. The Square of St. Mark, the Glory of the City. It is very large, encompaſſed with magnificent Houſes, and forms a ſort of Croſs. The leſſer Square looks to the Sea, is 280 Paces long, and 100 broad. The Key is flanked with large hewn Stone, and has ſeveral Stairs. Here are 2 very high Columns of Marble of one piece, 60 Paces diſtant, and upon one ſtands the winged Lion of St. Mark, made of Braſs, and upon the other the Statue of St. Theodorus their firſt Patron. Betwixt thoſe Columns and the Key lies a Galley always ready armed. The Ducal Palace lies towards the Eaſt ſide, with one Wing of the new Inns of Court, which is a magnificent Structure of two Rows of Pillars and Arches above one another, and Balluſtres with Statues on the top. The other part of this noble Structure incloſes one ſide of the great Square. Another part joined to the curious Porch of St. Geminien's Church, makes the other end. The old Inns of Court makes the third ſide, and has a Library with rare Greek Manuſcripts. The Portal of St. Mark's Church, with the contiguous Palace, makes the fourth ſide. Under the Inns of Court are Piazzas with many rich Shops. Over-againſt the Portal of St. Mark's Church are 2 Pedeſtals of Braſs, on which 3 high Maſts are fixed for the Standards of the Republic on ſolemn occaſions. One place of this Square is called the Broglio, where the Nobility meet every day and cabal about Elections; for though all be done by Ballot, they make their Parties, but in ſuch modeſt and covert Terms, as elude the Law. The Palace of St. Mark is a large ſquare Structure, has one Front to the Sea, and another to the Square; both have two Galleries one over another, with Marble Arches of fine ancient Architecture. The third Front over-againſt that which looks to the Square is of modern Architecture, with 2 rows of Pillars and Arches one above another, has 6 great Gates of noble Workmanſhip; the chief Gate, which joins to St. Mark's Church, is of ancient Architecture, adorned with many Figures. The Palace is very magnificent, and has many noble Apartments for the Doge and the ſeveral Councils and Courts, a ſmall Arſenal with Arms for 1000 Men, the Fire-Arms ready charged, and the Swords and Pikes ſo ordered, that by pulling a String they fall down in order, ready to be taken up for the Security of the Doge and Senate, in caſe of any Plot or Surprize. The Treaſure is kept here in great Iron Cheſts under 3 Locks and Keys, committed to 3 Procurators, and muſt not be opened unleſs all be preſent, on pain of Death. The Furniture and Painting of the Palace are anſwerable to its Magnificence. The Church of St. Mark is an ancient, ſolid, large Structure, which has 5 Domes covered with Lead. The Front has 5 great Gates, with many Columns of Porphyry and fine Marble; and over all there is a Gallery with Balluſtres along the Front. Over the chief Gates are 4 Pedeſtals, with ſtately Horſes of Gilt Braſs, of incomparable Workmanſhip, ſuppoſed to be thoſe uſed by Nero to put in the Chariot of the Sun, when he triumphed over the Parthians. The Moſaic Work, and other Paintings of the Church, are very fine. There is a rich Treaſury here, part of which belongs to the Republic and part to the Church. That of the Church conſiſts of Reliques, Precious Stones, Veſſels and Crowns. It is held ſacred, and the Keys are kept by a Procurator of St. Mark. They pretend to have the Body and the Original Goſpel of that Evangeliſt. Here are alſo 12 Golden Corſlets, and 12 Golden Crowns of great Weight, all adorned with Precious Stones; 6 great Rubies, the largeſt of which is 6 Ounces; the Crown or Cap worn by the Doge at his Inauguration, is ſet with Jewels and Pearls of unknown Value. Here are many other things of vaſt Price, which we cannot inſiſt upon. St. Mark's Steeple is one of the greateſt Ornaments of the City; it ſtands by itſelf, is ſquare, built of Bricks, and 25 Foot broad on each ſide: It is 180 Foot high to the great Marble Corniſh, from whence the Town may be ſeen: From the Bells to the top of the Steeple it is 160 Foot more, ſupported by Columns, which have another Corniſh and Pyramid over them, covered with Plates of gilt Copper. On the top of all, there is an Angel of the ſame Metal 3 Fathom high, with his Wings extended and pointing to the Comer from whence the Wind comes. The Walls of the Steeple are double, and betwixt them is a winding Paſſage, by which one goes eaſily up to the Bells without Stairs. From this Steeple there is a noble Proſpect of the City, Gulph and Iſlands. In ſhort, the Situation of this City is the moſt extraordinary of any in the World. All the outer Houſes being founded on Piles in the Water, it looks like a City riſing out of the Sea. The Spires of the Churches are ſeen 30 miles, and the nearer one comes, the more raviſhing is the Proſpect; for the leſſer Iſlands, which are all built, look like ſo many floating Towns. The City is not fortified, but ſo ſtrong by Situation, that they reckon it impregnable. It is 5 miles from the Continent, and the Entries of the Canals are ſo defended by Forts, that no great Ships can come nearer than the Harbour of Malamocco, 3 miles from the City, and the ſmall Inlets for leſſer Veſſels, beſides being guarded by Forts are ſo difficult, that none but their own Pilots dare venture upon them. It is defended from the Sea by a Land-Bank of 40 miles, called the Lido, which ſeparates the Gulph from their Canals, and lies 5 miles from the City. It has 6 or 7 Inlets, or ſmall Harbours, 2 of them only capable of Veſſels of Burden. The Town is divided into 6 Quarters, being 3 on each ſide the great Canal, and the People divided into 2 Factions, the Caſtellani and Nicolotti, from 2 of the Quarters; and once a Year they fight a Battle with their Fiſts, which raiſes ſuch an Animoſity betwixt the two parts of the City, as one would think it impoſſible for them to live in Union, eſpecially ſince the Nobles take part with the Mob of their reſpective Quarters, and ſometimes lay aſide their Gowns and take a ſhare in the Scuffle. They make it only a Diverſion, but the common People carry their Reſentment ſo high, that they won't marry with one another. When they fight, matters are ſo diſpoſed, that they may engage with equal Numbers and Advantage upon the Bridge. They meet in the middle; the firſt Ranks begin with Boxing, and are ſo preſs'd by thoſe behind, that they climb over one another's Backs to get at their Enemies, which occaſions many on both ſides to be thrown over the Bridge, where Boats are ready in the Canal to ſave them. Lives are ſometimes loſt in this ridiculous Scuffle, which would end in a general Uproar, but that the Council of Ten take care to prevent it in time. They that beat the other off the Bridge, are the Victors, rewarded by thoſe of their Quarter with Wine and Money, and make Public Rejoicings for ſeveral Days; whereas the conquered Party are aſhamed to be ſeen, and frequently ſhut out by their Wives, who call them Cowards. The Senate countenances this Cuſtom, that they may be ſure of one of the Parties in caſe of any Tumult or Inſurrection; and the Quarter of the Nicolotti, which abounds with Fiſhermen, Watermen, and the like, who are beſt at Boxing, generally carry the Victory. We can not inſiſt upon their Carnivals and other Diverſions, in which they exceed all other Italians. The Jews have a particular Quarter and a Synagogue allowed them, and are diſtinguiſhed from the reſt by Scarlet Hats faced with Silk. The Air here is ſharp in Winter, becauſe it lies near the Alps, and is good in the main, though their Seaſons be inconſtant, for the People are generally of a good Complexion, and not troubled with Coughs in Winter. They are well ſupplied with Proviſions from the Country by their Canals, where their Tides are regular twice a Day, though they are ſcarce ſo regular any where in the Mediterranean, or at the Mouth of the Gulph. The chief Trade of the City is in Treacle, Paper, Salt, Turpentine, Point, Silks, Currants, Looking-glaſſes, Drinking glaſſes, and Soap; and 'tis much advanced by the Fall of the greateſt Rivers of Italy into their Gulph, as appears by the Map. The Sand and Earth which the Rivers have carried down, have filled up 5 miles of the Lagunes; for ancient Authors ſay, that Venice lay formerly 10 miles from the Continent.

It is reckoned the ancienteſt Republick in Europe, and their Senators accounted as good Politicians as any in the World. Their Doge, who is their Prince and Mouth, repreſents a King in Habit and State, but has ſcarce the Shadow of his Power. He is choſen by Ballot, and all Public Tranſactions are in his Name. The Great Council conſiſts of 600 Nobles, who muſt prove their Deſcent, and that they are above 20 Years of Age. They are ſummoned by the Counſellors of the Seignory to the great Hall of St. Mark's Palace, and muſt bring no Fire-Arms with them on pain of Death. The Gates are kept ſhut, and they are guarded by the Workmen of the Arſenal, commanded by the Procurators of St. Mark. When any Poſts are vacant, the Council chuſes 36 of their own number to fill them. The College conſiſts of 26, viz. the Doge, his 6 Counſellors, 3 of the chief Criminal Judges, 6 Grand Sages, 5 from Terra Firma, and 5 of the Orders. Here the Doge appears in his great Majeſty, for they repreſent the Body of the State, and give Audience to Ambaſſadors, &c. This Council has Power to ſummon the Senate, from whom they receive their Orders.

The Senate has the Sovereign Authority, determine War and Peace, appoint Ambaſſadors, &c. and conſiſt of 120 choſen by Ballot annually on the Great Council. They chuſe the College, and examine their Reſolves. Nothing is treated of in the Senate till it has paſſed the College, ſo that the Senate has only a deliberative Vote.

The Council of Ten enquires after Criminals, and is ſo much hated by the Nobles, that they have ſeveral times attempted to aboliſh it, but without Effect; for their Politicians reckon this Council the chief Corner-ſtone of the State, and a conſtant Watch for preſerving their Liberty. They are choſen annually by the Great Council, and chuſe 3 of their number every Month, to receive Informations and Accuſations from Spies, &c. and communicate them to their Collegues, who, if they believe the Witneſſes, put the Accuſed in Priſon, and accuſe them to the Great Council, without allowing them any Defence. If the Three diſagree among themſelves, they muſt have recourſe to the Council of Ten; but if they agree, they may put the Doge himſelf to Death without acquainting the Senate. They have People to keep an Account of all the Actions of the Nobles and other great Families, frequently uſe People ſeverely, without letting them know what they are accuſed of; and if any body ſpeak ill of the Government, they run the riſque of being put into a Sack and drowned.

The Counſellors of the Doge can do without him, what he can not do without them. They conſult what is to be propoſed to the Senate or Great Council, may call them on extraordinary Occaſions, and, when the Doge is ill, the oldeſt Counſellor takes his Place.

The 6 Grand Sages are choſen out of the wiſeſt Men in the Republic. They direct all that is to be treated in the Senate, and may aſſemble them when diſpatch is required. Three of them and of the Doge's Counſellors are only changed at a time, that matters may not be truſted to them who want Experience. They preſide a Week about, and the Preſident receives Petitions and Memorials, and propoſes Things to the Senate. The 5 Sages of the Terra Firma, are choſen from among thoſe who have acquired Experience in Public Poſts. The 5 Sages of the Orders, Orders, are young Men admitted to the College to gain Experience, have no Vote, but may ſtand up uncovered and propoſe their Opinion. We have not room to inſiſt on further Particulars, as the ſeveral Degrees of their Nobility, the Procurators of St. Mark, Knights, &c. nor on their Eccleſiaſtical and Military Government; but the main of it ſeems to be wiſely contrived, though in ſome part very arbitrary. They keep the Clergy out of all Councils and Publick Offices, leſt their Dependence on the Pope ſhould make them betray the Secrets of the State; and for the like reaſon their Nobility are not allowed to converſe privately with Ambaſſadors or their Servants; and their Clergy and Court of Inquiſition are kept in an entire Dependance on the State.

The Arſenal is one of the moſt glorious Things here. It is 2 miles round, ſeparated from the City by a Canal, incloſed with Walls, and ſtrongly guarded. The Gallies and other Veſſels are kept here with great Care; and in their Magazine are 20000 Canon of all ſizes, Arms and Rigging for 100 Gallies, and 10000 Men. They can ſpeedily put to Sea 40 Gallies and 10 Galleaſſes. The Arſenal has 3 great Squares that communicate with one another, is governed by three Nobles who reſide there, and are changed once in three Years. The Workmen imployed here are ſubject to a Maſter-Workman, called the Great Admiral, who by his Merit acquires the Honour to govern the great Veſſel called the Bucentaur, when the Doge performs the Ceremony of Marrying the Sea, by throwing in a Gold Ring, a Cuſtom they have obſerved ſince Pope Alexander III. gave them the Title of Lords of the Adriatic, when their Fleet defeated that of Emperor Frederic II.

One of the great Blemiſhes of the City and Government is, their allowing of Courteſans as publickly as at Rome; and it is ſo far from being thought a Crime, that the Nobles protect them; and Mothers get Concubines for their Sons, to prevent their being poxed by Common Women, or endangered by Amours with the Wives and Daughters of ſuch as would reſent it. Nor are their Clergy or married Men aſhamed of the Practice. This occaſions a conſtant Jealouſie, ſo that Ladies of Quality ſeldom go abroad without two grave Matrons; and their Daughters are kept in Monaſteries, never ſeen abroad but in Diſguiſe, and their Suitors are ſcarce allowed to ſee them till the Day of Marriage.

2. Murano, about 3 miles North-Eaſt of Venice, upon one of the largeſt and beſt peopled Iſlands, is about 3 miles round, and noted for making the beſt Venice Glaſſes.

3. Torcella, on an Iſland of the ſame Name, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Venice, and 7 miles North from it.

4. Caorle, in an Iſland of the ſame Name, is alſo the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Venice, and about 18 miles North-Eaſt of it.

5. Chiozza, a Town with a good Harbour, 14 miles South-Eaſt of Venice, and the See of a Biſhop, one of its Suffragans.

6. Brondelo, a large Town in an Iſland of the ſame Name, 17 miles South-Eaſt of Venice.

XIV. ISTRIA lies on the other ſide the Gulph, oppoſite to the Duchy of Venice. It is divided betwixt the Houſe of Auſtria and the Republic, about 50 miles where longeſt and broadeſt. In ſome Places they have Wine but no Corn. Their chief Trade is in Cattle and Salt. Places of Note belonging to the Venetians here are,

1. Capo d'Iſtria, a little Town on a ſmall Iſland in the Gulph of Trieſte, about 65 miles North-Eaſt of Venice. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja, and the Seat of the Venetian Governour. It is defended by a Caſtle, ſtrong by Situation, and of difficult acceſs, when the Drawbridge, by which it communicates with the Continent, is drawn up.

2. Cita Nuova, about 20 miles South-Eaſt of Capo d'Iſtria, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja, and has a Harbour; but ill inhabited, becauſe of its bad Air.

3. Parenzo, 26 miles Eaſt of Capo d'Iſtria, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja, has a good Harbour; but the Air being bad, it is inhabited chiefly by Watermen, who are very expert in the Gulph, and particularly in the Lagunes of Venice.

4. Oſero, or Orſera, 30 miles North-Eaſt of Capo d'Iſtria, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Zara in Dalmatia, gives name to a neighbouring Iſland, encompaſſed with inacceſſible Rocks.

5. Pola, 44 miles South of Capo d'Iſtria, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Aquileja, and the Seat of a Venetian Governour, who reſides in the Citadel. It has a Bay and good Harbour, was a Roman Colony, and has the Remains of an Amphitheatre and Triumphal Arch.

VI. The Duchies of PARMA and PLAISANCE, or PIACENZA,

LIE Eaſt from Milan, South from the Cremoneſe, North from Genoa, and Weſt from Mantua and Modena. They are 57 miles Eaſt and Weſt, and 42 where broadeſt South and North. They abound with good Wine, Fruit, Cattle, the beſt Cheeſe in Italy, Cheſnuts, Roots without Stems or Plants, called Tubera Terræ, which are diſcovered by Pigs, and reckoned provocative. Here are alſo Mines of Copper and Silver, and fine Wool. Parma was made a Duchy by Pope Paul III. for his Natural Son Peter-Lewis Farneſe, in 1540; ſo that the Duke is a Vaſſal of the See of Rome, and pays it 10000 Crowns per annum. The Revenue is about 600000 Crowns, and he is reckoned able to raiſe 5000 Men.

Places of Note are,

1. Parma, on a River of the ſame Name, 28 miles South-Eaſt from Cremona. It was a Roman Colony, made ſubject to the See of Rome by Pope Julius II. is pleaſant, the Houſes low, and the Streets large and ſtreight. There are 3 Bridges betwixt the City and Suburbs. It is well fortified, the Duke's Palace noble, richly furniſhed and painted, and has fine Gardens, Grotto's, Water-works and Stables. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Bologna. The Cathedral is ſtately, and ſeveral of their Churches very ſumptuous. Here is an Univerſity and a large College, called that of the Nobles, where Scholars of all Nations may take their Trials for the Order of Malta. Here is alſo an Academy of Wits, called Innominati, becauſe they would rather be Learned than accounted ſo. The City is 3 miles round, has a ſtrong Citadel, many of their Palaces are ſumptuous. Here is a Theatre, which exceeds thoſe of Paris and Venice. It is ſo contrived, that the leaſt Whiſper may be heard thro' the whole. The Benches are raiſed in form of an Amphitheatre, and they can fill the Pit with Water 3 foot deep, in which they place little gilt Boats, that with Illuminations make a very pretty Shew.

2. Plaiſance, 27 miles North-Weſt of Parma, is Capital of its Duchy, which includes the little Dominions of Buſſetto and Landi. It is a very ancient City, 5 miles round, and has many ſtately Houſes and Squares, in one of which are the Brazen Statues of the famous Alexander Prince of Parma, who was General and Governour of the Netherlands for Philip II. of Spain, and of his Son and Heir Prince Ranuccio, who was impriſoned in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, and condemned to die, for wearing forbidden Arms, but reſcued by the Intrigue of his Uncle the Cardinal Farneſe. The Town is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Bologna, has an ancient Caſtle, and a ſtrong Citadel and Univerſity, but is ill-inhabited, and has little Trade.

3. Borgo St. Donino, Capital of the Marquiſate of Buſſetto, 18 miles South-Eaſt from Plaiſance, is the See of Biſhop, Suffragan of Bologna, and has nothing remarkable in it but a large Street and a College.

4. Buſſetto, which gives name to the Marquiſate, a ſmall but pleaſant City, 8 miles North of Borgo St. Donino.

5. Bardi, in the Dominion of Landi, 22 miles South-Weſt of Parma, a ſmall well fortified Town with a good Caſtle, where the Prince ſometimes reſides.

VII. The Duchy of MANTUA

HAS the Dominions of Venice on the North and Weſt, the Cremoneſe and Parmeſan on the Weſt, the Modeneſe on the South, and the Ferrareſe on the Eaſt. The Form is very irregular, being much indented by the neighbouring Dominions. It is 48 miles South Eaſt and North-Weſt, and 40 where broadeſt Eaſt and Weſt. It abounds with Corn, Paſturage, and Cattle, and in ſome Places with Wine and Fruit, and is divided into ſeveral Diſtricts, under the names of Duchies, Counties and Principalities. It had formerly Dukes of its own, but being a Fief of the Empire, and the laſt Duke proſcribed for his Adherence to France, it is now under the Emperor.

Places of Note are,

1. Mantua, the Capital, 17 miles South of Verona, in the middle of a Lake or Marſh, formed by the River Mincio, which makes the Air unwholſom in Summer. It is ſaid to be more ancient than Rome, has a conſiderable Trade by the River Mincio, and communicates with the neighbouring Country through the Marſhes, by a Cauſeway of 300 Paces towards Cremona on the South-Weſt ſide, and by two others on the North ſide of 5 or 600 Paces, with Draw-bridges and Forts at the End of each. It is encompaſſed by a Wall, and defended by a ſtrong Citadel. The Lake is 5 miles long, and one of the Bridges called Pont de Molini, becauſe it has 12 Mills in its Arches. The Streets are ſpacious, ſtreight, and well kept. The Town is 4 miles round, but not populous in proportion. It has 8 Gates, 3 Suburbs, 18 Pariſh-Churches, and 40 Convents. Many of their Churches are ſtately, the Town-houſe noble, the Duke's Palace large and commodious, contains 550 Rooms, has a noble Hall of Antiquities, and a Cabinet of Curioſities, both well furniſhed. The Palace was extraordinary rich, till plundered by the Imperialiſts in 1630. Here are many other Palaces belonging to Noblemen, who were once ſo numerous, that they had 600 Coaches in the City. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Rome, and noted for the Birth of the Poets Virgil and Taſſus. There are ſeveral noble Country Seats, which belong to the Duke in the Neighbourhood, with fine Stables, Gardens, Water-works, &c.

2. Goito, 11 miles North-Weſt of Mantua, a fortified Town, frequently taken and retaken in the laſt Wars.

3. Luzara, 15 miles South from Mantua, famous for a Battle in 1702, betwixt Prince Eugene and the French under the Duke of Anjou, now King of Spain. Both ſides pretended to the Victory, though Prince Eugene certainly carried it.

4. Guaſtalla, 18 miles South-Weſt of Mantua, gives Title of Duke to a Branch of the Family, and has a fine Palace.

5. Novellara, 10 miles South-Eaſt from Guaſtalla, is Capital of its County, which gives Title to a Branch of the Family, and has a fine Caſtle, where the Prince reſides.

6. Sabioneta, Capital of its Duchy, 18 miles South-Weſt of Mantua, gave Title of Duke to a Branch of the Family, and is a ſtrong Town with a good Caſtle.

7. Bozolo, 20 miles South-Weſt from Mantua, is a large Town with a Caſtle, the Reſidence of its Prince, a Branch of the Family, and is Capital of the Principality.

8. Caſtiglione delle Stivere, 20 miles North-Weſt of Mantua, Capital of its Principality, is ſmall, but ſtrong, well peopled, and has a beautiful ſtrong Caſtle, the Reſidence of its Prince, who is alſo a Branch of the Family.

9. Solferino, 4 miles North-Eaſt from Caſtiglione, a large Town with a fine Caſtle, the Reſidence of its Prince, another Branch of the Family.

Borgoforte and Oſtiglia, both on the Po, the former 9 miles South from Mantua, and the latter 22 South-Eaſt, are fortified Towns that were ſeveral times taken during the late Wars.

VIII. The MODENESE

INCLUDES the Duchies of Modena, Mirandola and Reggio, with the Principalities of Correggio, Carpi, and Marquiſate of Scandiano. It is altogether 60 miles South and North, and 35 Eaſt and Weſt, where broadeſt. The Duke is a Feudatory of the Empire, to which he pays 4000 Crowns per annum; and the Revenues of Modena and Mirandola are computed at 380000 Crowns per annum. The Country abounds with Corn, Wine, Oil, Figs, and all ſorts of other Fruit, and is in general very pleaſant.

Places of Note are,

1. Modena, 43 miles South-Eaſt of Mantua, is an ancient Town, was a Roman Colony, and has ſuffered much by ancient and modern Wars. It lies in a fruitful, pleaſant Plain, is the Seat of the Duke, who has a neat Palace, well adorned and furniſhed. Here is a noble Cabinet of Curioſities, and a ſtrong Citadel. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Bologna, but is neither rich nor populous. There are Piazzas on each ſide the Street, but dirty and ill kept. The Family is very ancient, deſcended from that of Brunſwic, and has frequently matched into the greateſt Families of Europe. Our late King James the Second's Queen was a Daughter of this Family.

2. Baſtia, a fortified Town in an Iſland of the Panaro, 10 miles North-Eaſt of Modena.

3. Finale di Modena, another little well fortified Town on an Iſland of the ſame River, 19 miles North-Eaſt of Modena.

4. Mirandola had formerly Dukes of its own, that made a great Figure in Hiſtory; particularly Johannes Picus, and his Son Johannes Franciſcus, were noted for Learning. The Town lies 21 miles North-Eaſt of Modena. It is Capital of its Duchy, has ſuffered much by War, and particularly in the laſt with the French when they took it, but at length quitted it. The adjacent Country abounds with Corn and Wine.

5. Concordia, South from Mirandola, a fortified Town, and Capital of its County.

6. Reggio, 26 miles North-Weſt of Modena, Capital of its Duchy, lies in a fine Country. It is handſome, populous, has fine Churches, Convents, Palaces, and a ſtrong Citadel. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Bologna, and has a good Trade in Spurs, Works of Ivory and Wood, Shrines, Agnus Dei's, &c.

7. Bercello, 27 miles North-Weſt from Reggio on the Po. It is a ſtrong Town, and was taken and retaken by the French and Imperialiſts in the laſt Wars.

8. Carpi, Capital of its Principality, 9 miles North-Weſt of Modena, is very ſtrong, has a good Citadel, an independent Collegiate Church, and was taken and retaken by the French and Germans in the late Wars.

9. St. Martin d'Eſt, 20 miles North-Weſt from Modena, is a pleaſant Town with a Caſtle, the Reſidence of a Prince, who is a Branch of the Family of Modena.

10. Scandiano, and, 11. Correggio, are of little Note, but for giving Names to their reſpective Diſtricts.

SOUTH ITALY.

IT contains the reſt of this Country, and is divided into the following Dominions.

I. The Great Duchy of TUSCANY, or FLORENCE,

HAS Genoa on the North-Weſt, Parma, Modena, Bologna, and Romagna on the North, others of the Pope's Dominions on the Eaſt, and the Mediterranean on the South. Its greateſt Extent from South-Eaſt to North-Weſt is 142 miles, and the greateſt Breadth Eaſt and Weſt 86; but it includes other petty Dominions, of which in their Place. Some part of the Country is mountainous, where there are Mines of Copper, Iron, Silver, and Allum, Quarries of fine Marble, Alabaſter, and Porphyry. In other Places it abounds with pleaſant Hills and Valleys, which produce Plenty of Wine, Oranges, Limons, Olives, and other Fruits, and ſtore of Corn and Graſs. It has alſo Mineral Waters, good againſt many Diſtempers. The chief Commodities of the Country, beſides thoſe already mentioned, are Wool, Flax, Saffron, Serges, Woollen Cloth, Silks, Tapeſtries, Gilt Leather, Earthen Ware, and Perfumes.

Places of Note are,

1. Florence, Capital of its Duchy, which comprehends moſt of North Tuſcany. The Town is 50 miles from Modena, Lat. 43. 42. Long. 11. 31. It is very ancient, and has undergone many Changes by Foreign and Civil Wars. It came under the Family of Medicis about 1410, who are now Hereditary Dukes. The Great Duke's Revenue is reckoned at 2 Millions of Crowns, and his Treaſury is ſaid to be very rich, ſo that he is able to raiſe 40000 Foot, 3000 Horſe, and to equip 2 Galleaſſes, 12 Galleys, and 20 Men of War upon occaſion. His Court is very ſplendid, becauſe of his numerous Train of Nobles, Officers, &c. but his Government is arbitrary, which would ſoon make the Country poor, only that he and his Nobles encourage Trade and Traffick themſelves. Moſt of the Gentlemen ſell their own Wines by retail through a Hole in the Wall of their Cellars, at which their Servants receive the Flasks and Money. There are ſome hundred Acres of Vineyards within the Walls of the City, which is very pleaſant, and lies at the beginning of a great Plain, which is bounded on all ſides by charming Hills, that riſe up inſenſibly to the higheſt parts of the Appennine Mountains; and among thoſe Hills are ſo many fine Villages, Gentlemens Seats, Gardens, Groves, and Woods of Olives, that they reſemble the Elyſian Fields of the Poets. It is reckoned 6 or 7 miles round, has 44 Pariſhes, 56 Nunneries, 24 Convents, of Monks, and 37 Hoſpitals. One of them for 900 Orphans, has 70000 Crowns per annum Revenue. Some reckon 152 Churches, 18 Halls belonging to Merchants, 72 Courts for Juſtice of all ſorts, 17 Palaces, 4 Bridges, 7 Public Fountains, 160 Public Statues, 6 Columns, and 2 Pyramids. The Inhabitants are reckoned from 80 to 100000. The chief Strength is in 3 Caſtles, one of which has Arms for 30000 Men. The Streets are neatly paved, and the Palaces reckoned the neateſt in Italy. The Duke's Palace is very magnificent. There is a Loadſtone at the great Gate, ſaid to weigh 5000 Pounds. Several of the Galleries and other Rooms are full of ancient and modern Curioſities. Thoſe of moſt value are kept in an Octogonal Room 24 Foot in Diameter, and covered with an arched Dome, the inſide of which is overlaid with Mother of Pearl. The Floor is paved with Marble of ſeveral Colours and fine Workmanſhip, the Walls hung with Velvet beautified with coſtly Ornaments, and the Windows are of Chryſtal. We cannot inſiſt on Particulars, but, among other things kept here, are the famous Diamond of Florence, that weighs 113 Carats, and is valued at 150000 Crowns, with a vaſt Collection of Precious Stones, admirably well wrought, and a vaſt number of Antique Pieces, with choice Pictures and Statues. The Gallery of the old Palace is a ſtately Pile, adorned with the Pictures and Statues of his own Family, and others of the greateſt Princes in Europe. His Armoury is large, filled with foreign Armour of great Value. Among others, a Fowling-Piece with a Barrel of Gold, a Piſtol with 5 Barrels, ſo ſhort as to be put into a Hat and diſcharged at once, on pretence of ſaluting an Enemy; another with 18 Barrels, for defending a Room. Here are 5 Cabinets full of Curioſities, among which are Veſſels of Precious Stones, valued at 200000 Crowns; an Ebony Cabinet with ancient Medals, valued at 500000 Crowns; a Table inlaid with Precious Stones, reſembling Birds, Flowers, &c. in their native Colours; worth 100000; and a great ſquare Room full of Gold and Silver Plate ſet with Precious Stones. There is a long Gallery from the Old Palace to the New, which runs over the River and the tops of ſeveral Houſes. The Duke's Gardens are extraordinary fine, but we can't inſiſt upon them. His Library is reckoned one of the beſt in Europe, and his Stables noble, well ſtored with fine Horſes, and near them a Garden with Dens for Wild Beaſts. Here is alſo an Univerſity and an Academy called La Cruſca, who by their famous Dictionary, which coſt them 40 Years in compoſing, have much enriched and refined their Language, which is now reckoned the pureſt in Italy. It is the See of an Archbiſhop. The Cathedral is 490 Foot long, and 380 high to the top of the Croſs on the Globe. It is covered on the outſide with poliſhed Marble of diverſe Colours, chequered, and paved in the ſame manner within, and adorned with fine Paintings of all ſorts. In ſhort, it is one of the moſt exquiſite pieces of Architecture in the World, and the Cupola for Height and Compaſs exceeds all in Italy but St. Peter's. The Church of St. Laurence has the Tombs of the Duke's Family, and a Chappel which, when finiſhed, will be one of the moſt rich and ſtately in the World. They have been above 70 Years at work upon it. It is Octogon; the Roof a ſpacious Cupola, with Niches in the ſides for the Statues of the Great Dukes. The inſide is covered with Jaſper, Agat, Lapis Lazuli, &c. wrought into various Figures, which make a glorious appearance. Here is alſo a Library, famous for ancient Latin and Greek Manuſcripts. The Florentines are reckoned witty, brave and frugal, but ridiculouſly jealous. Machiavel, Boccace, Americus, Veſpucius, and other Great Men, were born here. Among others, the famous Johannes Picus de Mirandola and Jerom Savonarola, both of them great Enemies to the Corruptions of the Church of Rome, and the latter endowed with a Prophetical Spirit, by which he foretold the Reformation and many Calamities, which ſoon after fell upon Italy. Here is a good Trade in Taffetas and other Silk Stuffs.

2. Treſoli, 3 miles North from Florence, formerly a great City, and famous for the Reſidence of the Augurs, but now only remarkable for being the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Florence, and ſome Remains of Antiquity.

3. Piſtoria, or Piſtoi, 20 miles North-Weſt of Florence, a well-built Town, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Florence.

4. Prato, 10 miles North-Weſt of Florence, one of the ſtrongeſt Forteſſes in Italy, and very pleaſant, has alſo a Cathedral, but the See united to Piſtoria.

5. Poggio Imperiale, 18 miles South of Florence, one of the Great Duke's fineſt Seats, and noted for the curious Cloſet and Oratory of Charles the Fifth's Natural Daughter, who was Ducheſs of Florence.

6. Emproli, 7. St. Miniato, 8. Colle, 9. Monte Pulciano, 10. Cortone, and, 11. Borgo St. Sepulchro, in this Duchy, are only noted for being the Sees of Biſhops, Suffragans of Florence. Cortone is pleaſant, well-built, and ſuppoſed to be older than Rome.

12. Pietra Mala, a Village 25 miles North of Florence, noted for an extraordinary Phænomenon, viz. a clear Flame that riſes up from a ſtony Way near it, without any viſible opening in the Ground.

13. Arezzo, or Aretium, 37 miles South-Eaſt of Florence, is well built, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Florence, noted for the Birth of the Poet Aretin, called the Scourge of Princes, becauſe of his Satyrs; and of Guido the Muſician, a Benedictine, who invented the Muſical Notes Ut, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La.

1. The PISAN lies upon the Coaſt, South-Weſt of Florence, is one of the beſt Countries in Tuſcany, and has a great Trade in Cork, of which there is an entire Foreſt betwixt it and Leghorn.

Places of Note are,

1. Piſa, the Capital, upon the River Arno, near the Coaſt, 40 miles South-Weſt of Florence. It is very ancient, and ſo large that it is reckoned the ſecond in Tuſcany. The Streets are broad, ſtreight, well pav'd, and the Houſes generally well built; but the neighbourhood of Leghorn has drawn away moſt of its Inhabitants and Trade, and many removed to avoid the Duke's arbitrary Power. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, who is Primate of Corſica, has an Univerſity, and is the Reſidence of the Knights of the Pope and Martyr St. Stephen, the only Order in Tuſcany. The Cathedral is very ſtately, has Gates of Braſs, with the Hiſtory of our Redemption curiouſly engraven upon them. The Baptiſtery is 180 Foot round, the Church is lined with Marble, ſupported by 70 Pillars of the ſame, the Walls hung with red Velvet, the Roof richly gilt, the Altars very ſtately and finely painted, and on each ſide of the great one are Inſcriptions, with an Account of the great Victories and Exploits of the Citizens. Near the Church there is a round Steeple with 153 Steps, that inclines 15 Foot on one ſide, which ſome aſcribe to Art, and others to the ſinking of the Foundation. Near this Steeple lies the Campo Santo, or Burying-place, which is an oblong Square filled with Earth brought from Jeruſalem; and, they ſay, it conſumes a Corpſe in 48 Hours. It is incloſed, and has a broad Portico well painted, and under it a Decree of the City, ordering the Citizens to wear Mourning a Year for the Death of Julius Caſar. Here is an Aqueduct which conveys the Water by 5000 Arches into the Town from Hills 5 miles diſtant. The Water is ſo good, that it is carried in Flasks to Florence. The neighbouring Country has ſtore of Corn and Wine.

2. Leghorn, 12 miles South from Piſa, on the Coaſt. The old Town, Liburnus, was famous for building thoſe ſwift Ships, called by the Romans, Liburnicæ Naves. The new Town is encompaſſed with handſome Fortifications. The Houſes are of equal Height, and moſt of them painted on the outſide. It is frequented by Merchants of all Nations, becauſe a free Port, and drives a conſiderable Trade, eſpecially by its Bank. The chief Commodities here are, Cotton, Silk, Allum, Roman Anniſeed, Coffee, Drugs, Levant Goods, Oil and Wine. The Cuſtoms of the Port and City are one of the chief Branches of the Duke's Revenue. The Air was formerly unwholſome, but is much better ſince the Marſhes were drained by a Canal of 14 miles, cut from hence to Piſa, which carries Boats of great Burden. There is a large Piazza in the City, with a noble Statue of Duke Ferdinand I. The Harbour is noble, and within the great one is a leſſer for the Galleys. The firſt is ſecured by a Mole, has a Lanthorn with 7 Lights, and is defended by a Caſtle, near which lies the Tower for Gunpowder in the Sea. The Greeks have a Church, and the Jews, who are 5000, have a Synagogue here.

3. Volterra,

3. Volterra, 20 miles South-East of Leghorn, a very ancient City, and one of the first Roman Colonies in Hetruria, now only noted for the See of a Bishop, Suffragan to Rome. The adjacent Country is fruitful, abounds with Mineral Waters, and Quarries of fine Stone.

4. Sixteen miles North-West from hence lie the Aquæ Volaterranæ, now called I Bagni al Morbo, near the Town of Mont Cerbero; they are small Lakes of a vast Depth, from whence Water continually bubbles up 8 Foot deep, and falls down again with great Noise. It issues forth such Steams of Sulphur, as, Bleau says, kills Birds that fly over them; and when Meat is cast into them, it is thrown up again in a trice with the Flesh boiled off from the Bones.

5. Citta del Sole is a pretty strong Town, and Capital of that called Romagna Floremina, 40 miles North-East of Florence.

6. Pont Remuli, Capital of the Val de Magra Florentina, most of which belongs to the Great Duke as a Fief of the Empire. It has a good Castle, and is well fortified.

7. Pietra Sancta, Capital of its Lordship, 25 miles North-West from Lucca, is a small Town, well built, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Pisa.

II. The Duchy of SIENNA lies South from Florence, and East from Pisa.
Places of Note are,

1. Sienna, the Capital, 45 miles South-East of Leghorn, and 30 South from Florence. It is very ancient, but the Situation incommodious, because it stands on high and low Ground. The Air is good, the Houses well built, the Streets neat, the Water excellent, and the Tuscan Language is taught and spoke here in Perfection, which makes the Town much frequented. It was the Head of a Republic for several Ages, is the third City of Tuscany, the See of an Archbishop, whose Cathedral is stately, of ancient Architecture, and faced with Marble within and without. The Roof Azure sprinkled with Stars, and the Pavement of Mosaic Work, with several Histories of the Old Testament. Here are the Images of all the Sybils, with their Characters and Prophecies, and a Series of the Popes. The Monasteries of the Dominicans and the Cordeliers, with the Palaces and Fountains of this City, are very magnificent. Here is a Place made in fashion of a Shell, that can easily be filled with Water from Fountains, to represent Naval Fights. The Houses round it are uniform, with Piazzas under them. Here is an Academy with a Jesuits College, and a Citadel built on a Hill, besides 15 or 20 square Towers for Defence of the City.

2. Massa, Grossetto, Monte Alcino, Pienza, Foana, or Sovana, and Chiousi, are only noted for being the Sees of Bishops in this Duchy, Suffragans of Sienna.

The Territories belonging to others within the Country of Tuscany are,

I. The Republic of LUCCA. It lies in the North Part, East from Genoa, is 25 miles South and North, and 27 East and West, and is under the Emperor's Protection.
Places of Note are,

1. Lucca, the Capital, 10 miles North-West from Pisa. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Pisa, but exempted from his Jurisdiction. It lies in a pleasant Plain, near the River Serchio, encompassed with rich and well inhabited Hills. It is 3 miles round, fine, populous, adorned with stately Churches and Palaces, and has a great Trade in Silks, Silk Stuffs, and Olives, which are much esteemed. The Fortifications are regular, well lined, and have 12 Bastions. The Government is purely Aristocratical. Their chief Magistrate, called Gonfalonier, or Standard-Bearer, assumes the Title of Prince, but they call him only His Excellency. He is changed every two Months, and has 240 Nobles under him, who are divided into two parts, and govern by turns half a Year about. He lives in the Public Palace with his 9 Counsellors, has a Table at the Public Charge, and after 6 Years is capable of being chose again. The Publick Revenues are 100000 Crowns per annum, and 'tis said they can raise 15000 Foot and 3000 Horse, and that on pressing Occasions they can arm 30000 Men. They have a considerable quantity of Arms in their Arsenal for so small a State, kept in very good Order. A great many of their chief Families removed to Geneva upon the Reformation. They have only two or three more large Towns, one of them called Via Reggio, 10 miles West from Lucca, with a convenient Harbour, defended by a Tower.

II. The State DELLI PRÆSIDII lies betwixt the Siennese and the Mediterranean, is about 27 miles East and West, and 15 South and North. The Spaniards reserved this part by Treaty in 1554.
Places of Note are,

1. Orbitello, 50 miles South-East from Sienna. It lies in a Lake near the Sea, with which it communicates, and is so well fortified, that it has been frequently besieged in vain.

2. Porto Hercole, a large Town with a Harbour on the Mediterranean, 6 miles South-East from Orbitello, defended by a good Castle.

3. Porto Sancto Stephani, another Town with a Harbour and Fortress built on a Height, 10 miles West of Porto Hercole.

4. Talamone, a small Town, with a Harbour naturally fortified by Mountains, which defend its Avenues from Leghorn.

III. The Principality of PIOMBINO lies along the Coast betwixt the Siennese and Pisan. It is 20 miles long, and 10 where broadest, but most of it narrow, being indented with a large Bay. Piombino, the Capital, is a strong Fortress with a Harbour, 47 miles South-East from Leghorn. It is subject to its own Prince, but the Spaniards reserved a right of keeping a Garrison here.

IV. The Domain of the House of CIBO lies East from Genoa, is about 10 miles long, and 10 broad. The Family of Cibo is ancient, and has produced very Great Men, though their Dominions are small.
Places of Note here are,

1. Massa, Capital of its Duchy, 21 miles North-East of Piombino, a small Town well built, defended by a good Citadel, and adorned with a fine Palace, where the Prince resides.

2. Carara, Capital of its Principality, 5 miles North-West from Massa, at the Foot of the Mountains whence the White Marble is dug that is so much esteemed all over Europe.

V. The Marquisat DE FOS DI NUOVO lies North-West from Massa, is of small extent, belongs to the ancient Family of Malespina, and has a Town of its own name 8 miles North from Cazara, small, but populous, and defended by an ancient Castle.

VI. We come next to those on the Coast of Tuscany, where we have, 1. Gorgona, 36 miles West of the Coast of Tuscany; it belongs to the Duke, is about 10 miles round, and has a small Town defended by a Fort. 2. Elba, which lies 10 miles West of the Coast, betwixt it and Corsica is 20 miles long, and 8 where broadest, but much indented by Bays. 'Tis about 40 miles round, and has many Iron Mines.
The chief Places are,

1. Porto-Longone, on the South-East side of the Island, a small Town with a good Harbour, defended by a strong Fortress on a Rock, where the King of Spain has a Garrison, tho' the Place belongs to the Prince of Piombino.

2. Porto-Ferrajo in a Bay on the North-West side of the Island, has a good Harbour and a strong Citadel, where the Duke of Tuscany, who holds it in Fee of the Crown of Spain, has a strong Garrison.

3. Pianosa Island lies South-West from Elba 11 miles, belongs to the Duke of Tuscany, but is of little Note.

4. Giglio, 45 miles South-East of Pianosa, and 6 West from Porto Hercole; the Coast of Tuscany is 25 miles round, and subject in Spirituals to the Abbot of Trefontana, near Rome.

II. The Dominions of the POPE

HAVE those of Venice on the North; Mantua, Modena and Tuscany on the North-West; Naples on the East and South-East; the Mediterranean on the South-West, and the Adriatic on the North-East. They are much indented by the neighbouring Dominions, so that the Form of them is irregular. The greatest Extent from South-East to North-West, is about 240 miles, but the breadth very unequal, the greatest from East to West being about 92. They are divided as follows.

I. The FERRARESE, which lies South from the Paduan, and East from the Bolognese along the Adriatic. It is 64 miles East and West, 50 miles where broadest, but in other Places not above 15. It has plenty of Corn, Flax and Hemp, but is low and marshy, and suffers frequently by the Inundations of some Branches of the Po that run thro' it.
Places of Note are,

1. Ferrara, an ancient City, 31 miles South-East of Padua. It was one of the most considerable in Italy, while possess'd by the Princes of Este, but is much decay'd since it fell under the Pope; so that though it be large and handsome, it is ill Peopled, and has more Houses than Inhabitants. The Churches and Palaces are still magnificent, particularly that of the ancient Dukes where the Pope's Legat resides. Here is a strong Citadel built to curb the Inhabitants, but the other Fortifications were much neglected till the last Wars in Italy. It is a Bishop's See, Suffragan of Rome, has a stately Cathedral and an University formerly of Reputation, but now reduced to a College of Jesuits. Here are no other Places of Note but Commachio, 30 miles South-East from Ferrara, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna, and Capital of its District, to which the House of Este lays claim. The Air is unwholsome for want of draining the Marshes, so that it is inhabited only by a few Fishermen.

II. The BOLOGNESE lies betwixt Modena, Ferrara and Romagna, is 40 miles East and West, and 24 South and North.
Places of Note are,

1. Bologna the Capital, 23 miles South-West of Ferrara, an ancient City, formerly a Roman Colony, and afterwards Capital of a Republic. It is the second Town of the Ecclesiastic State, one of the largest, best Peopled, and finest in Italy. Is it surnam'd the Fat, because of its fruitful Territory, which abounds with Corn, Wine and Wax; has been govern'd by a Cardinal Legat sent from the Pope since 1409. and they are allow'd an Envoy at Rome. Their University was formerly one of the most considerable in Europe, and was established in 423. This Town is the See of an Archbishop, who has the Title of a Prince of the Empire. The Houses are for the most part of Stones and Brick plaister'd over. The Streets pretty streight. The Senate-House is one of the noblest and neatest in Christendom. Here are many fine Palaces and private Houses, with noble Squares, excellent Fountains and high Towers: That of Asinelli is 376 foot high. This Town is noted for the best Sausages in Europe, Soap, Lace, Crapes and Silks. They have 400 Mills for their Manufactures, and make considerable Profit by selling their little Dogs. The Cathedral is noted for the Tombs of Cardinals and other great Prelates, and has a noble Library second to few in Europe. They pretend to a Manuscript of the Bible, writ in white Skins by the Prophet Esdras, so far as his own time. Their largest Church is that of St. Petronius, in the Pavement of which is Cassini's Meridian Line drawn in Copper, 220 foot long. Here are several other stately Churches and Monasteries. The Pope's Palace in the middle of the Town is very noble and richly furnished: the Front of the Square has a Gallery with Marble Balluster the whole length of it; and over them a curious Brass Statue of Pope Paul V. of a gigantic size. The Streets have Piazza's on both sides, and the City is so large, that it gave convenient Entertainment to the Emperor Charles V. with all the Princes and Ambassadors that attended him, with the Pope and 15 Cardinals, when the Emperor was Crown'd here in 1529. This City lies at the foot of the Appennine Hills, which on the South side are covered with Olives, Vines, Figs and other Fruit-trees of all sorts. On the other side it is encompass'd with pleasant Fields that abound with Corn, Flax, Hemp, &c. and fine rows of Trees, especially Mulberries, which feed multitudes of Silk-Worms. The shining Bononia Stones are found in a Hill 3 miles from the City.

2. Bentivoglio. 10 miles North-East of Bologna, noted for giving the Title to one of the ancientest Families in Italy, and for the Cruelty of Pope Julius II. in 1509. who commanded all the Houses of its Lord, John Bentivoglio, to be demolish'd, and several of his Children to be murder'd, when he chased him from the City.

3. Fort Urban, 10 miles West from Bologna, a Fortress built by Pope Urban VIII. for defence of the Ecclesiastical State on that side.

III. Romagna, or Romandiola, East of the Bolognese, is 75 miles East and West, 40 South and North, very pleasant, and abounds with Corn, Wine, Oil, Figs, other Fruit-trees of all sorts; fine Woods, Hills, Meadows, Springs and Salt-Mines, which are its chief Riches.

Places of Note are,

1. Ravenna the Capital, 31 miles South-East of Bologna. It is so ancient, that some ascribe its Foundation to Tubal. It was the best Harbour the Romans had on the Adriatic; and tho' the Sea be now retir'd 3 miles from it, the Iron Rings to which the Ships were fasten'd, and the Ruins of a Watch-Tower and Beacon still continue. It was the Residence of several Emperors and their Exarchs, or Lieutenants, but has never recover'd its Lustre since taken and sack'd by the French in 1512. So that it is ill Peopled, the Houses mean, and their Churches ruinous. It is the See of an Archbishop, the Cathedral noble, and its Nave supported by 56 Pillars of Grecian Marble. Here are 6 other fine Churches, and in that of St. Vitalis there is a Pillar scarce to be match'd any where else, because it seems to contain all manner of precious Stones. In the great Square are several Columns and Statues. The Plains from which the Sea has retir'd, are now among the fruitfullest in Italy.

2. Cervia, 11 miles South-East from Ravenna, in a marshy Ground, with many Salt-Pits and Eeles, of which the Inhabitants make great Profit. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna, but ill Peopled, because of the bad Air.

3. Rimini the old Ariminum, 7 miles South-East of Cervia, a Roman Colony, much beautified by Augustus, who built their Bridge and Triumphal Arch, Amphitheatre and Pharo's, the Remains of which are still to be seen. The Town is decayed since the ruin of their Harbour, and the retiring of the Sea. There are still some fine Houses, Palaces and Churches, and 2 Squares, in one of them a Marble Pedestal, with an Inscription signifying, That Cæsar harangued his Soldiers here; and in the other a Marble Fountain of curious Workmanship. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna, and noted for a Council called by Constantius, which favour'd the Arians. The neighbouring Plains abound with Corn, Wine, Olives, Figs, &c.

4. Sarcina, 18 miles South of Cervia, noted for the birth of Plautus, when it was a considerable City, but now a mean Village, tho' the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna.

5. Cesena, 5 miles South-West of Rimini, is the like, and defended by a Castle on a Hill. Mr. Lassels says, that near this Town he saw a Stone with an Inscription containing the Decree of the Roman Senate, forbidding any Officer or Soldier to pass the Rubicon without their Consent on pain of Treason; a sufficient Proof that the River Pisatello in the neighbourhood is the ancient Rubicon.

6. Bertinoro, 18 miles South-West of Cesena, the ancient Forum Trueminorum, is the See of a Bishop, defended by a Citadel on a pleasant Hill that abounds with Vines.

7. Forli, the old Forum Livii, 10 miles South-West of Ravenna, is a handsome Town, in a fruitful and pleasant Plain, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna.

8. Faenza, the old Faventia, 14 miles South-West of Ravenna. It suffered much by old and modern Wars, but is still a handsome Town, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna, and has a good Trade in Earthen-Ware and whitening Thread. The Neighbourhood abounds with millions of little Flies, that shine by Night like Glow-Worms, with a Light in their Tails; they are thought to be Pliny's Cicindelæ, and Aristotle's Lampuridæ.

9. Imola, Forum Cornelii, 9 miles North-West of Faenza, an ancient, populous and pleasant Town, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Ravenna.

IV. The Dutchy of Urbino lies South-East of Ravenna, is 66 miles East and West, and 55 South and North; had formerly Dukes of its own, Pope Urban VIII. bought it of the last for 100000 Ducats. It is unwholsome and barren, except of good Figs with which it abounds.

Places of Note are,

1. Urbino, 40 miles South-East of Ravenna, is the See of an Archbishop, and noted for the Birth of the famous Painter Raphael, and of Polidore Virgil, who wrote the English History. It is small, but very populous, has many fine Houses, and a noble Palace where their Dukes resided. The Pretender to the British Crown stayed here some time in 1718.

2. Urbanea. 3. Cagli. 4. Fossombrone, in this Dutchy, are only noted for being Sees of Bishops, Suffragans of Urbino.

5. Fano, 16 miles North-East of Urbino, on the Coast of the Adriatic, had its Name from a Temple of Fortune, built in Remembrance of the Victory which the Romans gain'd over Asdrubal, when they killed 50000 Carthaginians. Here is a Triumphal Arch still entire.

6. St. Leo, Capital of the County of Montefeltre, a strong Fortress on a high Mountain, 30 miles West of Urbino. 7. Penna de Billi, a large Town. 8. Gubio or Eugubium. And, 9. Senegaglia, Capital of its Vicariat, a Port Town well fortified and built; are the Sees of Bishops, Suffragans of Urbino.

10. Citta de Castra, Capital of its County, well fortified and peopled, is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome.

11. Pesaro, Capital of its Lordship, 29 miles North-East from Urbino, on the Coast of the Adriatic, is the largest Town in the Dutchy of Urbino, well built, and one of the most flourishing belonging to the See of Rome. It is well fortified after the old Fashion; has a Bridge over the River Faglia, handsome Houses, and is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Urbino, who has a magnificent Cathedral and Palace; Provisions are cheap here, but the Air bad in Summer, and very dangerous in July and August.

V. The Republick of St. Marino, North from Urbino, is about 10 miles round. It has been a free State since A. C. 600. St. Marino the Capital, 12 miles North of Urbino, is a small City on a steep Mountain, very strong by Situation, there being a dreadful Precipice on one side, defended by 3 Towers; and on the other there are 2 Ascents from the Suburbs to the City, one of them winding, by which a Coach may come to the Gates, the other very steep. The Streets are narrow and the Houses mean. They have 2 Monasteries within the Walls, one in the Suburb, and another of the Servites, a mile from the Town, which has its own Bishop. The Government is by a Council of Forty five, 15 of them Gentlemen, 15 Tradesmen, and 15 Countrymen. They continue for Life, and are supplied by others chosen of the same Rank. They elect two Consuls every half Year, and two thirds of the Votes carry the Choice. They have 9 Villages, 4 or 5 Castles, 8 Corn-Mills, and 2 Powder-Mills in their Jurisdiction. They are under Protection of the Pope. Their Arms are 3 Towers on a Mountain, with this Motto, Libertas Perpetua, Perpetual Liberty. They have a weekly Market in the Suburb at the Foot of the Hill, where 5000 Hogs are sometimes sold in a day. They have 4 annual Fairs, where many Herds of Cattle are sold, and they demand only 6 d. per Drove, be it great or small, to the great disgust of neighbouring Princes, whose Customs are thereby much lessened. They have no Black Cattle, but abundance of Sheep and Goats, and Muscatella Wine. They muster their Troops at St. Bartholomew Fair, which are 1500, and the whole Inhabitants of the Republic 7000.

VI. The Perusin, South of Urbino, is 30 miles East and West, and 28 South and North, abounds with good Corn and Wine.

Places of Note are,

1. Perusa, the Capital, 39 miles South-West of Urbino, is ancient, suffered much in the War betwixt Augustus and Mark Anthony, and afterwards. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, and has a well-frequented University. It always affected a Republican Government, till Pope Paul III. built a Citadel to curb the Inhabitants.

2. Lake Thrasimene, or Plestina, now the Lake of Perusa, 7 miles West of the Town, famous for Hannibal's Victory over the Romans near it, A. U. C. 537. It is 7 miles long, 7 broad, abounds with excellent Fish, that yield the People great Profit, and has Castiglione del Lago, a pretty Town, 14 miles West of Perusa, and another called Possignano, 11 miles North-West from them, on its Banks.

VII. The Orvietan, South and South-West of the Perusin, 30 miles East and West, and 24 South and North, is pleasant, and abounds with Corn and Wine.

Places of Note are,

1. Orvieto, a large City on a high Hill, 30 miles South of Perusa, near the Faglia, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, has one of the finest Cathedrals in Italy, is naturally strong, being surrounded by high Rocks, and famous for its Antidote against Poyson, from hence called Orvietan.

2. Bagnarea, 5 miles East, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome.

3. Aquapendente, so called by reason of the Waters that flow from a Mountain on which it stands, and run into the Paglia. It is the See of a Bishop removed from Castro, destroyed by Pope Innocent X. and large, but neither rich nor populous. A mile below it there is a fine Bridge over the Paglia, called Ponte Gregoriano.

VIII. Castro Duchy, South of the Orvietan, is about 9 miles South and North, and 6 East and West. Pope Innocent X. took it from the Duke of Parma.

Places of Note are,

1. Castro, a strong Town, till ruined by that Pope in 1649, because they killed the Bishop he sent them.

2. Castle Farnese, 2 miles North-East, a small Town, so named from the Family of Farnese, formerly Princes of the Country.

3. Tuscanella, formerly a great City that gave name to Tuscany, now a ruinous Village.

4. Montalto, a small Town with a Harbour, on the River Flora, that falls into the Mediterranean 3 miles below it.

IX. Ombria, Umbria, or the Duchy of Spoletto, North-East from Castro, is 65 miles East and West, and 47 North and South. It is divided into Marshes, Hills and Plains. The Product is Corn, Wine, Oil, Figs, and other Fruit. The People are reckoned the most Warlike in Italy.

Places of Note are,

1. Spoletto, 27 miles South-East of Perusa, an ancient and formerly a considerable Town. It has the Remains of some old Roman Structures, was formerly a Republic, has now a Governour from the Pope, is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, but has nothing remarkable except the Cathedral, a strong Castle, and an old Aqueduct.

2. Foligne, or Fuligno, 16 miles North-East of Spoletto, a rich, populous and trading Town. The Traffic is chiefly in Cloth, and Lace of Gold and Silver, and Silk Manufactures.

3. Assisio, or Asino, 15 miles North-West of Fuligne, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, and noted for the Corpse of St. Francis, the Founder of the Franciscans, which is kept here, but the Pope forbids it to be shewn to any body.

4. Narni, 15 miles West from Spoletto, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, but ill peopled, noted for an Arch of 170 Foot wide near it, being one of the four which made a Communication betwixt the Mountain of Spoletto, and another of the same Height in the way to Perusa, supposed to have been the Work of Augustus.

5. Cesis, Ceſi, or Cesium, 8 miles North-East from Narni, noted for a Cataract in the River Velino in the Neighbourhood, which, Athanasius Kircher says, is the most famous in Italy. It falls like a Bow from Rocks 300 Foot high into a deep Whirl-pool, with such a Noise as stuns those near it, and is heard in a calm Night at 5 miles distance. The Waters are dashed against the Rocks with so much Force, that they form a continual Shower, and, when the Sun shines, a constant Rainbow. The Water is of a petrifying Quality. He thinks it has some Communication with Mons Æolius near it, which he describes thus. It lies betwixt the Castle of St. Gemini and Terni, is a Chain of Hills 8 miles long, East and West, formed by huge Rocks, wonderfully placed above one another. From the Crannies of these Mountains issue vehement Gusts of Wind, especially in Summer, when the Inhabitants bring those Winds by Canals into their Cellars to cool their Wines, and preserve their Fruit, and those of Quality have them so contrived, that they let in what quantity of Wind they please. The Winds blow only in the Summer Months, 4 Hours before Noon, and 4 Hours after, and are more or less strong, according to the Heat of the Day. The Surface of the Rocks is full of Holes and Chinks, into which if any thing be thrown, it makes a great Noise.

Noiſe. If any light thing be applied to the Mouths of thoſe Holes in Winter, it is drawn in inſtead of being blown out, and with the moſt Force when the Cold is ſtrongeſt. The Quality of the Air is ſo far from hurting the People which ſtay in thoſe Caverns, as is common to other cold Air, that it contributes to their Health; and in Summer thoſe Rocks contract ſuch a Heat by the Sun, and reflect it ſo ſtrongly into the neighbouring Valleys, that it is as hot there as under the Torrid Zone, and both Men and Cattle retire to the Houſes in the Heat of the Day.

6. Terni, the old Interamnis, is 9 miles North-East of Narni. It was a Roman Colony with great Privileges, and there is an Inſcription upon their Bridge, ſhewing, that it was built by Pompey the Great. It is a pleaſant, well-built, populous Town, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Rome, and has a great Trade in Oil.

7. Rieti, 23 miles East from Narni, is a populous trading Town, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Rome.

8. Nocera, 16 miles North from Spoletto.

9. Todi, 10 miles South-West of it, and 10. Amelia, 10 miles South-East of Todi, are Sees of Biſhops, Suffragans of Rome.

X. The Marquiſate of ANCONA lies South-East from Urbino, and East of Ombria to the Coaſt of the Adriatic, is 70 miles East and West, and 50 South and North.

Places of Note are,

1. Ancona, the Capital, on the Bank of the Adriatic, 50 miles East of Urbino. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Rome, has the Remains of a Triumphal Arch of White Marble, built by Trajan, at the end of the Mole, which forms a good large Harbour, but the Entry is dangerous. Here is a Citadel which commands the Town and Harbour, but their Trade is quite ruined ſince the Town was uſurped by Pope Clement VII. in 1552, on pretence of defending it againſt the Turks.

2. Loretto, on the ſame Coaſt, 16 miles South-East of Ancona, is a ſmall well-fortified City, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Rome. It is chiefly noted for that called the Chappel of our Lady, to which Papiſts go in Pilgrimage from all Parts of Europe. The Legend of its being brought by Angels from the Holy Land, firſt to Dalmatia, and from thence to the Place where it now ſtands, is ſo well known and ſo ridiculous, that we ſhall not inſiſt upon it, only that this Fable has brought immenſe Riches to the Place, by the continual Recourſe of Pilgrims, and the rich Preſents made to it by Princes and other Papiſts of Quality. It ſtands in the middle of a ſpacious Church, and is incloſed in a Caſe of White Marble, at half a Foot diſtance from the Houſe. This Caſe is ſurrounded with 2 Rows of White Marble Statues, by the beſt Maſters. We cannot inſiſt on the Particulars of the rich Preſents, &c. here, which are ſurpriſing, but cannot omit taking notice of that made by the late King James the IId's Queen, which conſiſts of an Angel of Gold with a Heart in its Hand of the Bigneſs of an Egg, ſet all over with Diamonds of great Value. Miſſon ſays, it was ſhewed him and his Company by an Engliſh Jeſuit, in Febr. 1688, who told him, that as ſoon as ſhe preſented it, ſhe conceived, and was then big with Child of a Son. The Inhabitants live chiefly by making and ſelling Medals, Roſaries, Conſecrated Beads, Images, and other things of that kind. This Place has a ſtately Church, large Revenues, Cheſts full of Money, and an Arſenal.

3. Fermo, on the ſame Coaſt, 13 miles South-East of Loretto, is large, populous, and the See of an Archbiſhop, whoſe Suffragans in this Marquiſate are Ripa-Tronzone, Montalto, Tolentino, and St. Severino, only noted as being Epiſcopal Sees.

4. Oſimo, 5. Aſcoli, 6. Camerino, and, 7. Jeſi, are alſo the Sees of Biſhops here, Suffragans of Rome, but noted for little elſe.

XI. The Patrimony of St. PETER lies South of the Orvietan and Umbria, is one of the leaſt of the Pope's Territories, being but 42 miles East and West, and 32 North and South, but abounds with Corn, Wine, and Allum. Umbria, the Duchy of Caſtro, and the Marquiſate of Ancona, &c. already deſcribed, are by ſome reckoned Parts of it, but wrong; for they were no Parts of it anciently. It is now divided into the Patrimony of St. Peter properly ſo called, the Duchy of Bracciano, and the State of Ronciglione, and ſome add, the Province of Sabina.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Viterbo, 13 miles South-West from Orvieto. It is Capital of the Country, and the See of a Biſhop, who depends immediately on the Pope. The Town is pretty large, incloſed with a Stone Wall, has ſeveral Palaces, and 8 or 10 ſquare old Towers, built as Places of Security during the Factions of the Guelphs and Gibellines. It ſtands at the Foot of Mount Cyminus, that abounds with Vines, Corn, Streams and Fountains of freſh and medicinal Waters: among others, the Aquæ Cajæ, ſo much commended by the Ancients. Several Popes have reſided here, and there are many ancient Inſcriptions and Writings, but their Truth is queſtioned, becauſe of the noted Impoſtor called Annius de Viterbo, who forged ſeveral and lodged them among Ruins, where he afterwards employed People to dig them up. There are two Medicinal Fountains in the Town, and near it lie the Ruines of the ancient Tarquinia, and upon a neighbouring Hill is Caſtle Soriano, built by Pope Nicholas III. and reckoned the ſtrongeſt in Italy.

2. Monteſiaſcone, 28 miles North-West of Viterbo, the ancient Mons Faliſcorum, is the See of a Biſhop, who depends immediately on the Pope, and famous for excellent Muſcatella Wine. In the Church of St. Flavian near this Place, Miſſon ſays, there is a remarkable Inſcription on the Tomb of a German Abbot or Biſhop, who, travelling to Rome, ſent his Servant always beforehand to ſee at what Inn he could find the beſt Wine, and ordered him where he found it to write the Word E S T over the Door with Chalk. The Servant liking the Wine he found at an Inn here, wrote three Eſts over the Door; upon which his Maſter drank ſo much, that he died ſuddenly, and the following Lines were writ upon his Tomb by his Servant, as it is ſuppoſed:

Johannes de Fuc Dominus meus mortuus Eſt.

That is, By drinking too much Eſt, my Maſter John de Fuc is dead. This Place is alſo noted for the Marriage of the Pretender to the Britiſh Crown in 1719, with Princeſs Clementina Sobieski, Daughter to Prince James Sobieski, Son to John, late King of Poland, on which account her Father fell under the Emperor's Diſpleaſure, and was ordered to depart Sileſia.

3. Orta, and, 4. Sutri, in this Country, are the Sees of Biſhops, Suffragans of Rome, but of little Note elſe.

5. Civita Vecchia, built on the Ruines of Centum Cellæ, near the Mouth of the River Mignione, 20 miles West from Rome. It has a good Harbour capable of a numerous Fleet, and is the common Station of the Pope's Galleys. It has an ancient Caſtle, and was fortified by Pope Urban VIII. Innocent XII. made it a free Port in 1696, but the Air is ſo bad, that it is never like to be conſiderable.

6. Bracciano, 11 miles North-West from Rome, is Capital of its Duchy, and gave Title of Duke to the Urſini, one of the four chief Roman Families, divided into ſeveral Branches. It lies upon a Hill near a Lake of the ſame Name, 4 miles long and 4 broad. A little farther West of the ſame Lake are the famous Baths called by the Ancients Stigliane Thermæ.

7. Ronciglione, lies on the West ſide of the Tiber, 22 miles North-East of Rome. It is Capital of that State which belonged to the Duke of Parma till 1649, when Pope Innocent X. ſeiſed it by Force. It has a good Trade, and is one of the richeſt Towns in St. Peter's Patrimony.

8. Magliane, on the East ſide of the Tiber, 25 miles North-East of Rome, is Capital of the Province of Sabina, the Country of the ancient Sabines, 25 miles long and 20 broad, and fruitful in Wine and Oil. The Town is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Rome, and always conferred on one of the oldeſt Cardinals.

XI. CAMPAGNA DI ROMA lies on the East ſide of the Tiber, and reaches to the Frontiers of Naples. This Province is governed by the Pope himſelf, but the reſt by Legats. It is 70 miles where longeſt South and North, and 47 where broadeſt East and West, but contracted at both Ends.

Places of Note are,

1. Rome, Capital of the Province and of all Italy. It lies in Lat. 41. 52. Lon. 13. We cannot inſiſt on its ancient Hiſtory and State, but refer to the many Authors who have writ upon it with Hyperbole enough, as appears by a Book publiſhed here not many Years ago by Monſieur de Souligny, a French Gentleman, entitled, Old Rome and London compared; wherein he undertook to prove, that London exceeds it in Extent, People, Riches, and many other things. Monſieur Danet's Dictionary gives a very particular Account of its ancient State and Government, to which we refer. Dr. Burnet, Mr. Ray, Mr. Laſſels, Mr. Miſſon, and the Atlas Hiſtorique, have given large Accounts of it, and from them we ſhall give the following brief Deſcription. It is 13 miles round, but does not ſeem ſo populous as Milan, Venice, or Naples, and has a deal of waſte Ground within the Walls. The Parts that were moſt inhabited anciently being now turned to Gardens or Vineyards, of which ſome are half a mile in compaſs. So much of its ancient and preſent State will appear by our Map, that it ſaves us the Trouble of being very particular. The Inhabitants are reckoned 120000, beſides Strangers, who are very numerous. It is generally well built, the Streets ſtraight and beautified with many Palaces, Monaſteries and Churches, about 300 in all. The Atlas Hiſtorique reckons the principal Churches 21, the Palaces 118, the Colleges 10, curious Gardens 18, the Ruines of ancient Palaces 8, Squares 26, Places where ancient Monuments ſtood 182, and all the remarkable Places 312. Dr. Burnet ſays, the Tarpeian Rock is now ſo low that one might eaſily leap over it, and the Shape of the Ground has not been ſo much altered on one ſide as to make us think it much changed on the other. For Severus's Triumphal Arch at the Foot of the Hill is not now buried above 2 Foot within Ground; and the vaſt Amphitheatre of Titus not ſunk above 3 Foot under the Level. In the Capitol there are many noble Remains of Antiquity, but none more glorious, uſeful or valuable than the Tables of their Conſuls upon the Walls, and the Inſcription on the Columna Roſtrata in the time of the firſt Punic War. From this Place all along the Sacred Way there are ſuch Remains of Temples, Triumphal Arches, Porticoes, &c. as raiſe a vaſt Idea of what that Republic anciently was. From the Height of the Convents of Araceli, there is a full view of Rome. The vaſtneſs of their Magnificence and Luxury is to be perceived by the prodigious Amphitheatre of Titus, made for 85000 Spectators, by the great Extent of the Circus Maximus, by the Vaults where were the Waters that ſupplied the Baths of Titus and Dioclefian, and by the Baths themſelves, which are about half a mile in compaſs, have vaſt Rooms for the Bathers to ſwim in, and great Marble Pillars, all of one Stone beautifully ſpeckled. Their Temples and Porticoes are amazing, eſpecially the Rotunda, where the Fabric without, which is only Brick, looks as mean as the Architecture is bold; for though it riſes up in a Vault, yet at the top there is an Open of 30 Foot Diameter, which is the only Window of the Church, and fills it with Light. The Pillars of the Portico are the nobleſt in Rome, and the higheſt and biggeſt that can be ſeen any where, all of one Stone. The Numbers of ancient Pillars with which not only many of the Churches, but even private Houſes, are adorned, give a great Idea of the Expenſiveneſs of the Old Romans in their Buildings, ſince moſt of them were brought from Greece. Many of theſe Pillars are of Porphyry, Jaſper, and Granate Marble, but the greateſt number of White. Other Antiquities taken notice of by the Doctor are, the 2 Horſes in Mount Cavallo, the 2 in the Capitol, the Braſs Horſe that is ſaid to have carried Marcus Aurelius, the Remains of Nero's Coloſſus. The Temple of Bacchus, which is the moſt entire of all the ancient Temples; the Great Temple of Peace, thoſe of the Sun and Moon, that of Romulus and Remus, and the Arches of Severus, Titus and Conſtantine. But what exceeds all the reſt are, the many great Aqueducts brought from all Quarters at a vaſt Diſtance, ſome of them 37 miles long; which ſhews, that the Republick muſt have been vaſtly rich and induſtrious. Many Statues, Pillars, and other Antiquities of great Value have been dug up in Rome within theſe laſt 200 Years, ſince Pope Leo X. encouraged it.

The number of the Palaces is great, and every one has enough to command a Traveller's Attention; and the like is to be ſaid of their Churches and Convents, and Chappels, Obelisks, and Water-works. The Doctor ſays, thoſe of the Aldobrandine Palace exceeded all that he ſaw in France for Magnificence; that the Mixture of Wind with the Water, and the Thunders and Storms that they make, is admirable. The Doctor obſerves, that in the Gallery of the Engliſh Jeſuits he did not meet with the Picture of Garnet, among others of their Martyrs. He ſuppoſes, they did not put it up, becauſe his Name and Crime were ſo well known; yet they had that of Oldcorn, who was as clearly convicted of the Powder-Plot as he, though not ſo much taken Notice of in Hiſtory. The moſt remarkable Structures now are, The Cathedral of St. Peter and the Vatican. The firſt is reckoned the nobleſt of its kind in the World; the harmony and proportion of the Architecture is admirable; the great variety of fine gilt emboſs'd Work, rare Pictures, Statues of Braſs and Marble, ſtrike the Beholders with Admiration. It was built by Conſtantine the Great, and 100 years in repairing, from the time of Pope Julius II. who began it, to Paul V. who finiſhed it. The adorning of St. Peter's Choir alone coſt 107551 Roman Crowns. The length of the Church within is 594 foot, the length of the Croſs, North and South, 438; the height of the Cupola to the top of the Croſs 432, the circumference of the Cupola without 620, the diameter within 143, and the diameter of the Ball, on which the Croſs ſtands, is 8. The Portico is a large Plain, encompaſſed with a circular Piazza. Mr. Laſſels ſays it is capable of 200000 Men. The Piazza conſiſts of 4 rows of great Stone Pillars, ſo cloſe, that at a diſtance they reſemble a Grove of large Trees. From this Area there is an Aſcent to the lofty Porch by 24 Marble Steps, the whole breadth of the Front. There is an Obelisk in the middle that was brought from Egypt, dedicated to Auguſtus and Tiberius, taken out of Nero's Circus, and placed here. It conſiſts of one Stone of ſpeckled Marble, without Hieroglyphicks, and with the Baſe is 108 foot high. It is ſupported by 4 Braſs Lyons gilt; on the top is a brazen Croſs upon 3 Mountains, with a Star over them, and there is a large Fountain on each ſide. The Frontiſpiece of the Church has 5 Gates, and as many Inlets to the Porch. The Gates on each ſide have large round Pillars of Stone, 24 foot round and 86 high. Theſe ſupport the Architrave, over which is the Balcony where the Pope is Crown'd, and from whence he bleſſes the People at Eaſter. And over the Balcony there are Rails, with the Statues of our Saviour and his 12 Apoſtles. The Porch is ſupported with a great number of Marble Pillars; is 299 foot long, 154 high, and 44 broad. Oppoſite to the 5 Gates of the Porch are the 5 of the Church, one of them called the Holy Gate, becauſe opened only in the year of Jubilee; the reſt are opened every day. The two chief ones cover'd with Braſs are 13 foot wide, and 45 high. They are curiouſly engraven with ſeveral Pieces of Hiſtory. The Pope's Bulls are fix'd upon themwhen publiſhed. The Roof of the Church is vaulted and divided into great Squares, and each Square almoſt fill'd with a gilt Roſe. It is ſupported by ſquare Stone Pillars 105 foot in compaſs, and 40 diſtant from one another. The Cupola is 170 Paces round, curiouſly painted in Moſaic, repreſenting the Heavens. It is ſupported by 4 large Pillaſters 120 foot round, each having Stairs within, and large Sacriſties for keeping Relicks. Under the Center of the Cupola ſtands the high Altar of St. Peter, over which there is a ſtately Canopy of Braſs, wrought about the Edge, with Vallances, and a Fringe of the ſame Metal gilt. It is ſupported by 4 Braſs Pillars of a Serpentine Form, wreath'd about with Vines of Braſs, and little Angels climbing on the Branches. The Pillars are 50 foot high, and weigh 25000 pound each. On the Corners of the Canopy are 4 large Angels of Braſs gilt; and on the middle a Globe of Braſs, with a Croſs of the ſame Metal on the top, all gilt. There are 26 Chapels in the inſide of the Church, each of which has ſomething remarkable. From the time they began to repair it, to 1654, it had coſt 40 Millions of Crowns. The moſt famous Architects and other Artiſts in the World were employ'd in it, and ſtrove to outvy one another. There is about 20000 l. per annum allowed for the Maintainance of it.

The Palace of the Vatican lies conveniently for the Pope near St. Peter's Church, but loſes much of its luſtre and proſpect by its Neighbourhood. It is not an entire regular Structure, but a Compoſition of many beautiful Pieces, and contains 125000 Rooms. The Belvedre belonging to it is ſo called, becauſe of its delightful Proſpect, and abounds with excellent Paintings. In the Hall where the Pope gives Audience to Ambaſſadors, Miſſon ſays, There are Pictures repreſenting and approving the barbarous Murder of the great French Admiral Coligny, and the Maſſacre of the French Proteſtants, upon which Pope Gregory XIII. ordered Medals to be ſtruck with his own Name; on the Face, and on the Reverſe, an Angel with a Croſs in one Hand, and a Sword with which he ſeems to thruſt in the other; and this Inſcription under it, Ugonottorum Strages, 1572. i. e. The Deſtruction of the Hugonots. The Library here owes much of its Increaſe to that of Heydelberg, which was carried from thence by the Spaniards and Imperialiſts. It receivd alſo a conſiderable Addition by that of the Duke of Urban, though not comparable to that of Heydelberg for Pieces of Antiquity. Dr. Burnet ſays, the Collection of Books here is ſo great, that it fills a Man's Eye. There is firſt a great Hall, and at the End of it 2 Galleries of a vaſt length on both ſides. The Heydelberg Library ſtands by it ſelf, and fills one ſide of the Gallery, as the Duke of Urban's does the other. Authors differ as to the number of Books and Manuſcripts. The Quarto Manuſcript of Virgil appears by the Gothic Letters and the Miniature, not to be ſo ancient as pretended; and the German Tranſlation of the Bible, aſcrib'd to Luther, appears by an extravagant Prayer in the ſame Character, to be a Counterfeit. Here are Manuſcripts of Henry VIII. againſt Luther; and a Volume of Letters which he wrote to Anna Bullen. The Arſenal of the Vatican contains Arms for 20000 Horſe, and as ſome ſay, for 40000 Foot.

There are 11 Obelisks in this City; that of St. John de Lateran is the greateſt, being 112 Foot high, 9 and half broad one way, and 9 the other. The moſt remarkable of the Columns now remaining, are thoſe of Trajan and Antonine: That of Trajan is of white Marble, and 140 foot high, including the Baſe. It is compoſed of 24 intire Stones, encompaſſed round with a Helical Area, in form of a Screw, which contains the Hiſtory of his War againſt the Dacians; has 192 Stairs within, by which one goes to the top, and 42 ſmall Windows. The Column of Antonine is much like it, 175 foot high, has 206 ſteps within, and 56 ſmall Windows. They have more Statues in their Palaces and Gardens, than in all Europe beſides. The Statue of Paſquin ſtands in the Center of Rome, where 3 or 4 Streets meets; ſo that thoſe who fix Libels upon it have a conveniency to make an eaſy Eſcape. The Anſwers are affix'd to another Statue near the Capitol, call'd Morforio. The Caſtle of St. Angelo has 4 Baſtions, call'd after the 4 Evangeliſts, and a little Arſenal, in which is kept the Pope's Triple Crown, and the prohibited Arms taken from ſuch as wore them.

The chief Commodities here are the beſt Viol and Lute-ſtrings in Europe, perfum'd Gloves, Combs made of Buffler's Horns; Women's Fans, Vitriol and Eſſences; and here are the beſt Maſters for Muſick, Pictures and Statues in Europe. The Seats and Gardens without the Town are full of curious Statues. Dr. Burnet mentions the Via Appia, and Via Flaminia the moſt famous Roads to Rome, mentioned in ancient Hiſtory. The former leads towards Naples, as a Cauſeway made for Foot-Paſſengers, 30 miles in extent, and 12 foot broad, all made of huge Stones, moſt of them blue; and generally a foot and half large every way. It has laſted above 18 Centuries, and is in moſt Places for ſeveral miles together, as intire as when it was firſt made. The Doctor remark'd, that the Way was level with the Earth on both ſides, and wonders that the weight thoſe Stones carry, ſhould not in ſo long a time have ſunk them under Ground; only he ſuppoſes that they were anciently raiſed a little above the level of the Ground, and that a courſe of ſo many Ages has brought them to an equality. The Via Flaminia is of the ſame nature, though not ſo entire, and leads towards Tuſcany.

The Doctor adds, That the People are generally civil to Strangers, becauſe moſt of their Subſiſtence depends upon it; ſo that a Stranger, unleſs he be very imprudent, is in no danger of the Inquiſition here. Their general Converſation is about News; for though they have none printed, all the Tranſlations of Europe are to be heard in the Cardinal's Anti-Chambers, with many Speculations upon them; for the Roman Clergy in all Nations are more large and particular in their Letters to ſuch as they correſpond with, than any other ſort of Men. He adds, concerning the Catacombs which furniſh the Papiſts with ſo many pretended Relicks of Saints, that many of the Inſcriptions found in them are more Gothic than Roman; and ſo many of thoſe Inſcriptions relate to Fables, that it is plain they are the Inventions of the Monks of latter Ages, and that the Relicks found there are no other than the Bones of the Pagan Romans, and thoſe too of the meaneſt ſort, as appears by two Paſſages of Feſtus Pompeius, who calls thoſe Places Puticuli, becauſe the Bodies of the Slaves were laid to rot there, without any further care about them; and that the Perſons who carried them thither, were call'd Veſpæ and Veſpillones, becauſe they carried the Corps thither in the Evening, the deceaſed being too poor for any Funeral Pomp.

Other Places of Note in Campagnia di Roma, are,

1. Caſtle Gondolpho, 18 miles South-Eaſt of Rome; near a Lake of the ſame Name is a Summer-Houſe belonging to the Pope, where he ſpends ſome time in Spring and Autumn, and was offered by the preſent Pope, in 1719. for the Pretender to the Britiſh Crown to reſide in.

2. Albano, 10 miles South-Eaſt from Rome, the Remains of the ancient Alba Longa, noted for excellent Wine, and the Ruins of an old Mauſoleum, thought to be that of Aſcanius; is the See of a Biſhop who depends on the Pope, and muſt be one of the 6 oldeſt Cardinals.

3. Valletri, the ancient Velitræ, 16 miles South-Eaſt from Rome, formerly a ſtrong Town, and the Birth-place of Auguſtus and his Predeceſſors It is handſome, well inhabited, and is the See of a Biſhop, who is alſo Biſhop of Oſtia, and uſually Dean of the Cardinals.

4. Tivoli, the old Tibur, 20 miles North-Eaſt from Rome, upon a high Hill, reckoned the moſt beautiful Situation in Italy. The Hill is covered with Olives for 5 or 6 miles; and from hence there is a Proſpect of Rome, and the neighbouring Country. It is the See of a Biſhop who depends on the Pope, and has many Remains of Antiquity. Mr. Ray ſays, That within 5 miles of it lies the Sulphur River, which is blue and of a nauſeous ſmell. The Channel in which it runs is incruſted with a whitiſh kind of friable Matter, formed in many Places like Sugar-plums, called the Confections of Tivoli. Here are many fine Palaces, particularly one belonging to the Duke of Modena, and reſerved for the Cardinals of his Family. The Gardens are reckoned the fineſt in Italy, and have a famous Caſcade near the Den of the Sybil, which was called Tiburtina. The Water is let into the Gardens from the Aino through a Rock cut on purpoſe. Here is a noble Repreſentation of old Rome in Perſpective, delicious Groves of green Trees in the middle of Winter, cool Groves and Grotto's in Summer, and artificial Repreſentations of all ſorts of Birds chirping upon Trees with their natural Notes, Organs which play by Water-works, and a Girandola of Dragons ſpouting up Water in a terrible manner.

5. Paleſtrina, 10 miles South-Eaſt of Tivoli, near the Ruins of the ancient Præneſte, famous for its Temple of Fortune, where the Sortes Præneſtinæ were kept. The Ruins of ſeveral old Works and Subterraneous Paſſages, through which C. Marius attempted to Eſcape, when Beſieg'd by Sylla's Lieutenants, are ſtill to be ſeen here. It is the See of a Biſhop who depends on the Pope, and is uſually one of the oldeſt Cardinals.

6. Freſcati, 10 miles Eaſt from Rome, the Remains of the ancient Tuſculum. Here is a noble Proſpect of the Seats of Cardinals and other great Men; and it is the See of a Biſhop who depends on the Pope, and is uſually one of the 6 old Cardinals. Near this Place lies the Villa Aldobrandina, called the Belvedre of Freſcati, pleaſantly ſituate on the ſide of a Hill, with fine Gardens and Water-works, by which Organs and other Muſical Inſtruments play very harmoniouſly; and of the ſame Water-works is form'd a Girandola, which perfectly imitates Thunder, Hail, Rain and Miſt.

7. Terracina, 53 miles South-Eaſt of Rome, the ancient Anxur. It has the Remains of many ancient Buildings; had a good Harbour and Medicinal Fountains; but is now ill inhabited, becauſe of the bad Air of the neighbouring Marſhes. It is the See of a Biſhop, united to that of Piperno, and depends immediately on the Pope. Within 3 miles of this Town there is an ancient Wall, which is the Boundary betwixt Naples and the Eccleſiaſtic State

7. Nettuno on the Coaſt, 32 miles North-Weſt of Terracina, formerly a good Harbour, but now almoſt deſerted, becauſe of the bad Air of the Palus Pontina.

9. Oſtia, at the Mouth of the Tiber on the Eaſt ſide, 10 miles South from Rome; a famous Harbour in the time of the Romans; but now ill inhabited, becauſe of the bad Air. It is the See of a Biſhop, united to that of Velitræ, and always given to the Deacon of the Cardinals, who Crowns the Pope, and is next to him in Dignity.

Other Towns in this Diſtrict are, 1. Anagni, 35 miles Eaſt from Rome. 2. Ferentini, 30 miles South-Eaſt. Alatri, 50 miles Eaſt. 3. Veroli, 8 miles Eaſt of Alatri, formerly conſiderable Towns, but now ruinous, ruinous, and noted only for being the Sees of Biſhops. 4. Colonna, 12 miles Eaſt from Rome, noted for giving Name and Title to that ancient Family which has produced many great Men, who claim to be Conſtables of Rome, and have had many Controverſies with the Popes for adhering to the Emperor's Intereſt. It is divided into ſeveral Branches, who have the Titles of Dukes and Princes.

III. The Kingdom of NAPLES.

HAS the Eccleſiaſtical State on the Weſt and North-Weſt, the Gulph of Venice on the North-Eaſt, the Mediterranean on the South-Weſt and South-Eaſt, and is divided from Sicily by a narrow Strait on the South-Weſt Corner. It is about 360 miles from South-Eaſt to North-Weſt where longeſt, but it is much indented by the Dominions of the Church on the North-Weſt, and by the Gulph of Taranto, &c. on the South-Eaſt. The greateſt breadth from South-Weſt to North-Eaſt is about 170 miles, but 'tis alſo much indented that way by ſeveral Bays. It is the largeſt Dominion in Italy, and divided into ſeveral Principalities and Provinces, of which in their Place. The Air in general is very good, and the Country ſo plentiful of Corn, Wine and excellent Fruits of all ſorts, that other Italians who envy them, call it a Paradiſe inhabited by Devils; for they charge the Inhabitants with Ignorance, Lazyneſs, Diſſimulation and Uncleanneſs. But others ſay they are very brave, generous, bountiful and civil to thoſe who hit their Humour. Beſides the Commodities above-mentioned, it produces Flax, Hemp, Annice-Seed, Iron, Steel, Allum, Manna much eſteemed, Almonds, and other Nuts, Figs, Oranges, Citrons, Honey and Wax. It has undergone many Changes of Government, having been poſſeſs'd by the Goths, Lombards, Greeks, Saracens, French and Spaniards, but is now ſubject to the Emperor, and govern'd by a Viceroy. The Revenue is reckoned 3 Millions of Ducats per Annum. Some ſay they are able to raiſe 150000 Foot, and 100000 Horſe, including all who are able to bear Arms. It contains 148 Cities and large Towns, 1500 Boroughs, 20 Archbiſhopricks, 28 Biſhopricks, 10 Principalities, 23 Duchies, 30 Marquiſates, 54 Earldoms, and 1000 Baronies, 400 of them ancient, and the number of People is reckoned at 2 Millions. It is divided as follows;

I. TERRA DI LAVORO, has the Dominions of the Church on the Weſt. It is the Old Campania Felix, ſo called, becauſe of its good Air and Soil, which produces all Neceſſaries, and bears the ſame Flowers twice a year. The upper Part is ſandy, the lower Part fat; has two Crops of Corn a year, beſides one of Millet. The Length is 200 miles along the Mediterranean, including thoſe called Principato Citerior and Ulterior, or North and South, and above 70 where broadeſt.

Places of Note are,

1. Naples, the Capital of the Kingdom, Lat. 40. 57. Long. 14. 50. 110 miles South-Eaſt of Rome. It was the ancient Parthenope, lies on the Gulph of its own Name, at the End of a delicious Plain, near the Foot of charming Hills. La Forreſt thinks it exceeds all the Towns in Europe; and that there is no City in the World ſo beautiful throughout, for the fine Structures are not mix'd with mean ones, as elſewhere, but all the Houſes are high, almoſt uniform, and have Platforms, where the Inhabitants take the Air in the Evening. The Streets are large, ſtraight, and pav'd with hewn Stone: It is reckoned 9 miles within the Walls, and 18 including the Suburbs. But Dr. Burnet thinks it is not above half ſo big as Paris or London, yet ſays it is much more Beautiful than either, being full of Palaces and great Buildings. It is divided into 29 Wards; the Convents are reckoned 121 for Monks, and 59 for Nuns, which in all are ſaid to contain 12421 Perſons. Their Churches are reckoned 300, and there is ſcarce one that has not ſomething worth the Curioſity of the ableſt Artiſts of all ſorts. The number of Inhabitants is not certainly known, but very great. The Viceroy's Palace ſtands in a great Square. The Front is regular, adorn'd with 3 Orders of Architecture. It has a noble Stair-Caſe, and is richly furniſhed with Pictures and Statues, among which are ſome Egyptian Idols of Touch-ſtone, highly valued. Here are many large handſome Squares, with Fountains of an extraordinary ſize and beauty. The Architecture, Painting and Sculpture of their Churches are done by the ableſt Maſters, and they are adorn'd with Jaſper, Marble, Porphyry and Moſaic Work of all ſorts. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, whoſe Metropolitan Church of St. Januarius, is noted among other things, for ſome of the Blood of that Saint kept in a Viol, where they pretend it flows annually at a certain Seaſon, and the Zealots reckon it a Miracle. The Wealth of their Churches and Monaſteries, ſays Dr. Burnet, paſſes Imagination; for it is computed that the Churchmen are poſſeſs'd of 4 Parts in 5 of the whole Kingdom, and no Perſon of Note dies without leaving ſome conſiderable Legacy to a Church or Convent. Their Annunciata he reckons the greateſt and richeſt Hoſpital in the World. Its Revenues are reckoned 400000 Crowns per annum. The Plate of the Churches of Naples is reckoned at 8 Millions of Crowns. The Jeſuits are the great Merchants here. Their Wine-Cellar holds above 1000 Hogſheads, and they have the beſt, which they ſell by Retail, as do the Minims. The Jeſuits have 7 Convents here, all very rich. The Town is well ſupply'd with daily Markets for all Proviſions. Their Wine is reckoned the beſt in Europe, and their Fiſh and Fleſh extream good. It is ſcarce ever cold in Winter, and there is a freſh Air from the Sea and Mountains in Summer. Their Catacombs far exceed thoſe of Rome: They conſiſt of vaſt long Galleries 3 Stories above one another, cut out of the Rock, each Gallery 20 foot broad, and 15 high, beſides Galleries going off on all hands without number. The great Labour and Expence in cutting them out, and the vaſt quantities of Rubbiſh that muſt have been carried from them, and viſible to every body, ſufficiently proves that they could not be the Work of the poor primitive Chriſtians. Here is alſo an Univerſity. The Harbour is noble, and well frequented with Ships from moſt Parts of Europe, but their Trade is much decay'd; for the Inhabitants don't underſtand either to be their own Merchants or Carriers, ſo that the Engliſh generally carry away the Profit of it, eſpecially of their Oil, of which our Manufactures of Wool and Soap, beſides what is ſpent otherwiſe, conſume annually ſome thouſand Tons. Their Silk Trade is much diminiſhed by the Lazineſs of the Inhabitants; ſo that beſides their Wine and Oil, their Commerce at preſent conſiſts chiefly in Soap, Snuff, Stockings, and Silk Waſtecoats. The Harbour is defended by a Mole that runs half a mile into the Sea, and towards the End there is a Light-Houſe of a vaſt Height. The Town, beſides its Walls, is defended by the 3 Caſtles of St. Elmo, Del Ovo, and the New Caſtle. Their Academy called Studii Nuovi, the School for riding the Great Horſe, their Arſenal and Magazine for the Gallies, are worth a Traveller's View. Moſt of their Antiquities are ruined, but there are ſome Remains of an Amphitheatre and other Fragments. The Convent of the Chartreuſe, which lies on a Hill, is very magnificent, and the Friers Apartments fit for the greateſt Prince. Every Frier has a Chamber, a Cloſet, a Library, and a little Garden. Here they have the famous Crucifix of Michael Angelo, done from the Life, as they ſay, he having crucified a Peaſant on purpoſe. From hence there is a delightful Proſpect of the City and adjoining Country, the Sea, and ſeveral Iſlands, and the Seats of Perſons of Quality. The Viceroy's Court is always filled with Princes, Dukes, and other Nobles, and a Nuncio from Rome generally attends him. This City has ſuffered much by Eruptions from Mount Veſſuvius, particularly in 1688, when one third of it was deſtroyed; and it ſuffered much alſo in 1701. Here is a vaſt Granary, with Corn to ſerve the City for ſeveral Years on occaſion, and the Bakers are obliged to buy 25000 Buſhels out of it every Month.

Other Places of Note are,

1. Pauſylipus, a Promontory 4 miles and a half South-Weſt. The Aſcent to it is difficult, on which Account a Paſſage of 400 Paces long is cut through the Mountain up to it through the Rock, &c. and named the Cave of Puzzoli, becauſe it leads to that place. It is betwixt 30 and 40 Foot high, and 20 broad. It has no Light but what it receives at both Ends, and from a Hole in the Middle over an Oratory hewn out of the Rock. Strabo mentions many other Lights, but Earthquakes and Time have filled them up. Paſſengers and Carriages that go to and fro are obliged to call continually, leſt they run againſt one another. This Promontory has many Gentlemens Pleaſure-Houſes upon it, and abounds with Wine. At the Entrance of the Cave there is a ruinous Pyramid, called Virgil's Tomb, but his Urn and Inſcription are not now to be ſeen.

2. A little beyond this Mountain, 5 miles Weſt of Naples, is Lake Agnano, between 2 little Hills; it was formerly Lucullus's Fiſh-pond, but now a Receptacle for Serpents and Frogs. There are 2 remarkable Caves on its Banks, one called Grotto del Cane, becauſe its Exhalations choak Dogs in a Moment when put into it. It is about 10 Foot long, 4 and an half broad, and 3 high. The Experiment hath been tried on Condemned Criminals, who being pulled out immediately by a Rope, and thrown into the Lake which is 20 Paces diſtant, recover in a Moment, and ſome have come out without any Hurt; ſo that it ſeems not to be equally peſtilential at all Times and to all Perſons. The Exhalations immediately extinguiſh any Light. The ſecond is a Cave of ſeveral vaulted Cells, which ſend forth hot Vapours and an ill Smell. They immediately put one into a Sweat, and are ſaid to be a preſent Remedy againſt the Gout, Convulſions, the Iliac Paſſion, inward Ulcers, and the Venereal Diſeaſe. Water heated with the Vapours have the ſame Effect.

3. On the Weſt ſide of the Hills betwixt the Lake and Puzzoli, there are others which ſmoak perpetually, and betwixt them a Valley called Sulfatara, becauſe vaſt Quantities of Sulphur are continually forced out of the Clefts by ſubterranean Fires. There is a Noiſe under Ground in ſome places reſembling that of violent Flames, and in others boiling Water. Some Bigots call it the Seat of Purgatory, and tell ſtrange Stories of Apparitions about it. Naturaliſts think, the Fire is fed by a conſtant Bitumen, and the Force of the Fire is abated by Steams under Ground, for it differs from all other Fire, being fluid, and can neither be quenched by Water nor kindled with Sulphur or Tow, and extinguiſhes any other Light; ſo that it ſeems rather a fiery Water than proper Fire; and a Man falling into one of theſe Clefts, the Fleſh was boiled off his Bones in a little time. In 1535, an Earthquake carried a great Quantity of Earth 3 miles from hence, overwhelmed a Town, and raiſed that called Mont Novo, which is 400 Fathom perpendicular, and 3000 round. The Channel which went from the Bay to Lake Averno, was ſtopped by this Eruption, and the Lake is now freſh, and cured of its poiſonous Quality. It is 18 Fathom deep, and on the ſide of it is the amazing Cave, where the Sybil is ſaid to have given out her Prophecies. It is hewn out of a hard Rock, is 700 Foot long, 20 broad, and 18 high. From the End of this there is a narrow Paſſage 3 Foot broad, 200 long, and 7 high, to a little Apartment by a ſloping Deſcent. It has 3 little Rooms, in one of which are ſome Reſts of old Moſaic, a Spring, and a Bath; and from this there is another Cave 3 miles long to Cuma, (of which ancient and impregnable Town there is nothing left but Ruines) but the Paſſage is choaked up. The Marks of the Chizzels appear plain, ſo that it muſt have been a Work of many Hands and much Time. Dr. Burnet thinks it to have been the Contrivance of the Prieſts that managed the Impoſture.

4. Puzzoli, the old Puteoli, 8 miles South-Weſt of Naples, once a famous City and Harbour, the Staple of Corn and other Goods from Egypt, and a Roman Colony. Here are the Remains of Cauſeways and great Foundations in the Neighbourhood; Temples, Amphitheatres, &c. The Emperors and Noble Romans had many Country Seats about this City, and the Bay was built all over. It is now inconſiderable, but is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Naples. The nobleſt Remains here are ſome of the Pillars and Arches that ſupported Caligula's Bridge of 3600 Paces acroſs the Bay to Baia: The furtheſt Pillar on the ſide of Puzzoli, is in 7 Fathom and an half of Water, and thoſe on the other ſide ſaid to be in Water 20 Fathom deep. Cornelians, Agats, Jaſpers, Amethyſts, and Stones engraved with ſeveral Figures, are ſometimes caſt aſhore here by the Sea in a Storm; which are Monuments of the former Riches and Splendour of the Place.

5. Dr. Burnet ſays, the marvellous Fiſh-pond here, which ſome aſcribe to Lucullus, is a great Baſon wrought like a huge Temple, 500 Foot long and 220 broad, upon 48 great Pillars hewn out of the Rock, laid over with four Cruſts of old Plaiſter, as hard as Stone. It had an Entrance at each End by forty Stone Steps. This by ſome is aſcribed to Nero, and by others to Agrippa.

6. About a quarter of a mile further, there is a noble Portico of Brick Pillars before a great many Rooms hewed out of the Rock: They are ſaid to be 100, from whence the Cave had the Name of Centum Cameræ.

This

This is also ascribed to Nero, who, 'tis thought, kept his Prisoners here.

7. Baia, the ancient Baiæ, 8 miles West of Puzzoli, once the most pleasant and magnificent Place of the World for Temples, Schools, and Country Seats, according to Horace and Martial, with stately Structures over the Baths, but infamous for Uncleanness and Luxury. The Place is now ruinous, and full of Briars, Thorns, Serpents, &c. and is become a small Village. The Baths are still much frequented, being impregnated with Sulphur, Allum, Salt, Nitre, Bitumen, &c. and are good against many Distempers. Some of them are boiling hot. Near them are Galleries hewed out of the Rock, and faced with a Building with Places like Bedsteads in the Walls, where the People lay their Beds, and come regularly out of their Sweats.

8. Two miles from Baia are the Ruines of Misenum, and of the Seats of many Noble Romans, and near them the Acheron, Acheruſa Palus, and the Avernus of the Poets. There was a Communication under Ground betwixt Acheron and Avernus, which was stopped up by the Earthquake abovementioned. About a mile from Baia is that delightful Plain, called the Elysian Fields, betwixt the Sea and the stinking Marsh of Acheron, now called Lago della Colluccia.

9. Capri, or Capræ, an Island at the Entry of the Gulph of Naples, 12 miles round, with a little Town of its own Name, where Tiberius staid the latter part of his Reign, that he might follow his lewd Practises with the more Liberty. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Massa, and has about 1500 People, exempted from Taxes, because they are an Out guard against Pirates. They subsist chiefly by selling Quails, which abound here.

10. Ischia an Island on the other side the Gulph, small, but populous and strong, by its Situation on a Rock, joined to the Island by a Mole, at the end of which lies the Suburb Celsa.

11. Mount Vesuvius, 8 miles South-East of Naples, famous for its Vulcano, which has for many Ages thrown out Fire, Smoak, Sulphur, Stones, and Heaps of burnt Earth, which proceeds from the vast quantities of Bitumen, Allum, Sulphur, &c. under Ground along the Coast; and as the Matter increases or decreases, the Eruptions are more or less. Pliny the Naturalist was destroyed by an Eruption, when he went from the Roman Fleet to view it. The Mount is alone in the middle of a Plain, which with others in its Neighbourhood, are fructified by its Ashes. The first 4 miles along the Coast from Naples abounds with Villages, but the rest is full of loose Stones calcined, Heaps of burnt Earth, and Channels of Sulphur and Bitumen. On the East side of the Mountain are abundance of Vines, from whence come those noble Wines called Græco Malateste, or Lachrymæ Christi. The top is covered with burnt Rocks, and in the middle of the Summit is a large round Gulph, from whence Smoak formerly issued, and afterwards large Firs and other Trees grew on its Banks, the lower parts being filled with Rocks and Trunks of Trees, but a new Eruption blew all up and raised a new Mountain in the middle of the Gulph. Misson, who viewed it, says, one may go 100 Paces down from the Brim of the first Gulph, which is a Mile in Diameter, and that there is a rugged Way of 300 Paces betwixt it and the new Mountain, which is a quarter of a mile high, of difficult Ascent, full of smoaking Chinks, and has a Gulph on the top 100 Paces broad, which issues a Cloud of Smoak. It is exactly perpendicular, except on one side, where his Guide led him down 60 Paces sloaping to the Brink of the Pit; they threw down Stones, some of which stopped after one or two Rebounds, but others made a Noise for a long time, so that it must be rugged within. There are 12 or 13 dreadful Eruptions taken notice of from our Saviour's Birth to 1631, when the Sea retired several times by the Violence of the Shock, Ships were left dry, many Villages were overturned, 30000 People and vast numbers of Cattle destroyed, and Naples was like to have been burnt by Streams of Fire that ran from the Mountain to the Sea. Seven more great Eruptions have happened since that Time.

12. Capua, 15 miles North of Naples, near the Ruines of the ancient Capua, in a delightful Plain, is only noted for the See of an Archbishop. Its Suffragans are, 1. Calvi; 2. Carinola; 3. Sessa; 4. Aquino, the Birthplace of Thomas Aquinas; 5. Venafro; 6. Alisi; 7. Ajazze; 8. Caserta; 9. Trano, a well-built and populous Town.

13. Sorrento, on the East side of the Bay, 18 miles South-East of Naples, a Port Town with a good Trade, and the See of an Archbishop. Massa, 3 miles South-West, is one of its Suffragans, and Vico, 7 miles further North-East, a second.

14. Gaeta, on a Gulph and Promontory of its Name, 40 miles North-West of Naples, is well fortified, of difficult access, and has the best Harbour in the Kingdom. It is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, has a stately Cathedral with a lofty Steeple, and the Monument of the Duke of Bourbon, Constable of France, who was killed at the Siege of Rome, Anno 1527, in the Service of Emperor Charles V. Fundi, 11 miles North-West of Gaeta, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome. Sora, 20 miles North-West of Aquino, the like, and the Birth-place of Cardinal Baronius. Aversa, 10 miles South-West of Capua, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Naples, yet exempted from his Jurisdiction, is pretty populous and rich. Nola, 20 miles North-East of Naples, one of its Suffragans, and noted for the Death of Augustus.

In the PRINCIPATO CITERIOR, or South Principality, which lies South East of Naples Proper, are the following Places of Note:

1. Salerno, the See of an Archbishop, 28 miles South-East of Naples. It has an Harbour, lies near the Ruines of old Salernum, has an University noted for the Study of Physic, is well peopled and defended by a good Castle, and gave Title to the Eldest Sons of the Kings of Naples. Its Suffragans in this Country are, 1. Sarno; 2. Campagno, united to Satriano; 3. Marsico Novo; 4. Policastro; 5. Acerno; 6. Capaccio; 7. Nocera; 8. Lusco, in the further Principality.

2. Amalfi, 15 miles West on the same Coast, is the See of an Archbishop, has a good Harbour, and is noted for the Birth of Flavius Blondus, or Gioia, who is said to have invented the Seaman's Compass about 1300. Its Suffragans are, 1. Scala; 2. Lettere; 3. Minori.

3. Cava, 3 miles North-West of Salerno, is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, whose Jurisdiction is confined to this small City.

In the PRINCIPATO ULTERIOR, or North Principality, which lies North-East of Naples, are the following Places of Note:

1. Benevento, 35 miles North-East of Naples, the See of an Archbishop, an ancient and formerly famous City, with the Title of a Duchy, but now almost ruined; yet its Archbishop has the largest Revenues of any in the Kingdom, but Naples. His Suffragans are, 1. Ariano, a small well-peopled City, 11 miles North-East of Benevento; 2. Trevico; 3. St. Agatha di Goti; 4. Monte Morano; 5. Avellino, united with Friceiti; 6. Volturara.

2. Cauza, 30 miles South-East of Benevento, the See of an Archbishop, but ruinous. His Suffragans are, 1. Cedogna; 2. St. Angelo de Lombardy, united to Bisaccia.

3. Monte Verde, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Nazareth.

II. ABRUZZO has the Dominions of the Church on the North-West, Naples Proper on the South-West, lies along the Gulph of Venice, and is divided into Hither and Further, or North and South, as may be seen by the Map. Including the County of Molisa, it is about 105 miles North-West and South-East, and 60 where broadest, produces Corn, Wine, Oil, Saffron, and has much Snow in Winter.

Places of Note in North Abruzzo are,

1. Aquila, Lat. 42. 40. Long. 14. 10. above 120 miles North-West of Naples. It lies upon the River Pescara at the Foot of the Appennine Mountains. It is noted chiefly for its Antiquity, and for being the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome.

2. Teramo, 23 miles North-East of Aquila, is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Chieti, and gives Title to a Prince.

3. Atri, 24 miles North-East of Teramo, and 3 miles from the Adriatic, is the See of a Bishop, united to that of Penna, and Suffragan of Rome, gives Title of Duke to the Family of Aquaviva, and was the Birth-place of the Emperor Hadrian.

4. Civita di Penna, 17 miles South-West from Atri, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Chieti, but exempted from that Archbishop's Jurisdiction, and belongs to the Duke of Parma.

Places of chief Note in South Abruzzo are,

1. Civita di Chieti, 9 miles South-West from Pescara on the Gulph, and 35 miles North of Naples. It is the Capital of the Province, an Archbishoprick, and the Seat of the Governour. It is large and populous.

2. Ortona à Mare, on the Coast, 20 miles East of Chieti. It is an old City with a good Harbour, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Chieti.

3. Lanciano, 15 miles South-East from Chieti, a large, populous Town, the See of an Archbishop, and noted for its great Fairs, frequented by People on both sides the Gulph.

4 Sulmona, 37 miles South-West of Lanciano, is the Capital of a Principality belonging to the Borghese Family, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, and the Birth-place of Ovid.

MOLISA, a Country in the East Part of Abruzzo, about 67 miles from North to South, and 55 where broadest from East to West. It abounds with Corn, Wine, Saffron, Wild Fowl and Silk-Worms.

Places of Note are,

1. Molisa, 43 miles South-East of Lanciano, a fortified but decaying Town.

2. Isernia, 32 miles West, a large populous Town, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Capua.

Trivento, Guardia, Alferez, Larina and Bocano in this Country, are only noted for Bishops Sees, Suffragans of Benevento.

III. PUGLIA, or APULIA, lies South-East from Abruzzo, along the Gulph of Venice, above 240 miles, and contains the three Provinces called Capitanata, Terra di Bari, and Terra d'Otranto.

CAPITANATA has Molisa on the West, the Gulph on the North, Terra di Bari and Basilicata on the East and North-East, and the Appennine Mountains on the South. It is 95 miles where longest from East to West, and 90 where broadest from North to South. It is a dry sandy Country, yet abounds with Corn and Cattle.

Places of Note are,

1. Lucera, above 30 miles South of the Adriatic Coast, is a pretty Town, noted for a great Manufactory of Cloth.

2. Mont St. Angelo, 46 miles East of Lucera on the top of Mount Garganus, is populous, much frequented by Pilgrims, and has a fine Church dedicated to St. Michael.

3. Manfredonia, 8 miles South of Mont St. Angelo, near the bottom of a Gulph in the Adriatic, is an Archbishop's See, and was a fine Town till plundered by the Turks in 1620, but it is pretty well recovered, and has a Castle with other tolerable Fortifications.

4. Troia, 53 miles South-West of Manfredonia, is a neat little City; the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Rome, with the Title of a Principality. Biesle, Termine, San Severo and Bovino, are little Towns in this Country, noted only for the Sees of Bishops, of which Biesle is Suffragan to Manfredonia, Termine and Bovino to Benevento, and San Severo to Rome.

TERRA DI BARI on the same Gulph, betwixt Capitanata on the West, and Terra d'Otranto on the East; is above 80 miles long East and West, and 23 where broadest from North to South. It abounds with Corn, Wine, Saffron, and Fruits, but is infested with the most dangerous Tarantula's in Italy, and in many Places wants Water.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Bari, the Capital, about 5 miles from the Gulph of Venice, near Lat. 41. and Long. 18. 40. It is one of the ancientest Towns in the Kingdom, lies in a pleasant Country, is an Archbishop's See, tolerably well built, has a good Trade, and is pretty strong.

2. Biseglia, on the same Coast, 15 miles West, is the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Trani, and has a good Trade.

3. Trani, the See of an Archbishop, 5 miles farther West, had a good Harbour, till ruined by the Venetians. It has an ancient Castle, and other Fortifications.

4. Barletta, 10 miles North-West from Trani, is one of those four Places called the Castles of Italy, and the Residence of the Archbishop of Nazareth.

5. Monopoli, 27 miles South-East from Bari on the same Coast, is the See of a Bishop, who depends immediately on the Pope. The Town is neat, and, though small, makes up the whole Diocese.

The

The other Towns in this Country, viz. Giovinazzo and Molfetta on the Coaſt, North-Weſt of Bari, and Andria, Bitteto, Converſano and Polignano within Land, are Biſhops Sees, Suffragans of Bari. Andria, noted for its Earthen Ware, is Suffragan to Trani.

TERRA D'OTRANTO, or the Province of LECCA, lies in the South-East Corner of Italy. It is 116 miles from North-Weſt to South-East, and 35 from North to South where broadeſt, but it is much contracted at both Ends. It has Terra di Bari on the Weſt, Baſilicata and the Gulph of Otranto on the South, and the Gulph of Venice on the North-East. Its chief Product is Olives, Figs, and other Fruit, the Air and Soil are generally good, except in ſome Places of the Coaſt, where the latter is Marſhy, and the former ſubject to Thunder.

Places of Note are,

1. Oria, or Orto, 15 miles South-Weſt of Brindiſi, a large, populous Town, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Tarentum, defended by an ancient Caſtle on a Rock.

2. Brindiſi, Long. 20. Lat. 40. ½. has one of the beſt Harbours on the Gulph of Venice, which is formed by Nature, and defended by ſeveral Forts, beſides three Caſtles on a ſmall Iſland at the Entry. It is ancient, well built, ſtrong, large and populous, the See of an Archbiſhop, and noted for the Death of Virgil.

3. Lecice, 9 miles South-Weſt of Brindiſi, reckoned the chief Town of the Province, the moſt populous of any in the Kingdom, except Naples, the Seat of a Governour, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Otranto. It is a large Town, and has a good Trade ſince the Decay of Otranto.

4. Taranto, at the End of a Gulph of its own Name, 11 miles South-Weſt of Lecice. It was anciently famous, but now ſmall, and ill-inhabited ſince the Harbour was choaked up by the Venetians and Spaniards. It furniſhes a great deal of fine Wool. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, and has the Title of a Principality. It is defended by a Fort. La Forreſt ſays, that the Tarantula's which abound in the Neighbourhood have their Name from hence.

5. Otranto, on the Coaſt, 46 miles Eaſt from Taranto. It had a good Harbour, till deſtroyed by the Venetians in the beginning of the 16th Century. It is ſtill a conſiderable Paſſage from Italy to Greece, is well fortified, defended by a Citadel on a ſteep Rock, and is one of the richeſt Archbiſhopricks in the Kingdom.

6. Gallipoli, 23 miles South-Weſt of Otranto, near the Gulph of Taranto, one of the beſt Towns in Naples, built on a ſteep Rock, encompaſſed by the Sea, and joined to the Continent by a Stone Bridge, defended by a Caſtle, which makes it almoſt impregnable. The Harbour was choaked up by the Venetians in the beginning of the 16th Century. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Otranto.

The other Towns here are,

Oſtuni, a Biſhop's See on the Coaſt, 23 miles North-Weſt of Brindiſi, of which it is a Suffragan.

Nardo, a ſmall neat City, 6 miles North-Weſt of Gallipoli, and the See of a Biſhop that depends on Rome.

Aleſſano, 9 miles South-Eaſt from Gallipoli, has the Title of a Duchy, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Otranto.

St. Mary de Leuca, a ſmall City, the See of a Biſhop, near Cape St. Mary on the Coaſt, 20 miles South of Otranto and Matera, an inland Town, formerly an Archbiſhoprick, but now united to that of Cirenza.

IV. CALABRIA is bounded by Apulia on the North, the Ionian Sea on the South and Eaſt, and by the Mediterranean and the two Principalities on the Weſt. It is almoſt 200 miles from North to South, and above 190 in the North Part, where broadeſt, from Eaſt to Weſt. It is divided into Baſilicata, and North and South Calabria, or Calabria Citerior and Ulterior.

BASILICATA is 190 miles from Eaſt to Weſt, and 65 from North to South where broadeſt. It has Capitanata on the North-Weſt. Terra di Bari on the North, Calabria Citerior on the South, Terra d'Otranto and the Gulph of Tarentum on the Eaſt and South-Eaſt, and the Principalities Citerior and Ulterior on the Weſt. The Country is mountainous, yet produces Corn, Wine, Oil, Saffron, Cotton, Honey and Wax. The chief Place of Note is Cirenza, Carcenza, or Acerenza, almoſt 60 miles North-Weſt of the Gulph of Taranto, Capital of the Country, and an Archbiſhop's See, but in a decaying condition. The Biſhopricks which are its Suffragans in this Country, are Venoſa, which ſome think to be the Birth-place of the Poet Horace; Laviello, Tricaricco, which was formerly a neat City, but almoſt deſtroyed by an Earthquake in 1694; Monte Piloſo, Potenza, and Turſis. Melfi is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan to Rome, and Mura is a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to Conza.

CALABRIA CITERIOR, or North Calabria, has that part of the Mediterranean on the Weſt, which lies betwixt the Gulphs of Policaſtro and Euſemia, the Gulph of Taranto on the Eaſt, Baſilicata on the North, and Calabria Ulterior on the South. It is 78 miles from the Weſt Sea to the Eaſt, and almoſt 60 from North to South, where broadeſt. The chief Product is Corn, Wine, Oil, Sugar, Honey, Wax, Manna, artificial and natural Salt, Figs, Limons, other Fruits of all ſorts, Gold, Silver, Wool, Cotton, Silk, Flax, Saffron, and Steel. It is well watered by Rivers, has pleaſant Fountains both of hot and cold Water, fine Paſtures and Valleys that abound with Cattle, large Woods, and fruitful Hills, but it is ſubject to Earthquakes.

Places of Note are,

1. Coſenza, above 13 miles North of the Gulph of Euſemia. It is reckoned the Capital of both Calabria's, and one of the chief Towns in the Kingdom. It is an Archbiſhop's See, and defended by a Caſtle, from whence there is a fine Proſpect of the neighbouring Country. It is a large handſome, well-built City, though frequently damaged by Earthquakes, and almoſt ruined by one in 1638.

2. Roſſano, is another Archbiſhoprick, almoſt 60 miles South of the former. It is a large neat Town, built on a Rock 3 miles from the Gulph of Taranto, has the Title of a Principality, and its Territory produces Pepper.

3. Biſigano, 18 miles South-Weſt of Roſſano, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan to that Town, and defended by a good Fortreſs.

4. Caſſano is the See of a Biſhop, who holds immediately of the Pope.

5. Amantea is an ancient neat City on the Mediterranean, above 30 miles North-Weſt of St. Euphemia, and has a fine Caſtle belonging to the Prince of Biſſignano.

The other Towns of any Note are, Corenza, Strongoli, Umbriatico, and Cariati Nuova, all Biſhopricks, Suffragans to St. Severina.

CALABRIA ULTERIOR, or South Calabria, is encompaſſed by the Sea, except on the North, where it joins to North Calabria, and is parted from Sicily on the South-Weſt by the Streights of Meſſina. It is 100 miles from North to South, and the ſame from Eaſt to Weſt on the North ſide where it is broadeſt. Produces excellent Manna, Honey, good Fruits, and ſprightly Horſes.

Places of Note are,

1. St. Severina, 30 miles South-Eaſt of Roſſano, the See of an Archbiſhop.

2. Rheggio, near the South-Weſt Corner of the Kingdom, upon the Straits of Meſſina, Lat. 38. 5. Long. 17. 6. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, pretty well inhabited, and the chief Thorowfare from Italy to Sicily, where the Streight is about 12 miles broad. Betwixt Cape Sughio, 17 miles North of this City, and Meſſina, lie the famous Gulphs of Charybdis and Scylla, of which Athanaſius Kircher and others give the following Deſcription. Kircher having viewed it, ſays, he ſounded the Straits in the narroweſt Place, where it is 2783 Geometrical Paces broad. He found it in ſome Places 30, in ſome 50, in ſome 100, and in others 200 Foot deep. In ſome places he found broken Rocks, and in others a continued Ridge at the botton of the Water betwixt Sicily and Calabria. The Conflict of the Waves is moſt violent between Scylla in the Straits on the Coaſt of Calabria, and Charybdis on the oppoſite Coaſt of Sicily. The Sea here is not fathomable by the longeſt Line. The Waves in theſe Whirlpools ſometimes riſe up, while others fall down with great Noiſe, ſo that it is terrible to thoſe who ſee it, even at a great diſtance Thoſe Whirlpools ſwallow whatever comes near them, and, according to Saluſt and Strabo, throw it up again on the Shore of Taormina in Sicily. The Waves rage with moſt Violence when the Winds blow into the Straits from the Ionian or Tuſcan Seas, and even when the Sea is calm on the Surface, there is always a Swelling within, and the Waves do ſo riſe and fall according to the Increaſe and Decreaſe of the Moon, that Mariners know the Time of the Currents by that and the Station of the Moon, though covered by Clouds; ſo that ſuch as are accuſtomed to paſs this Place, do it as ſafely as any where elſe, by following the Courſe of the Currents, and avoiding thoſe which are contrary to their intended Voyage; but Strangers are in danger, if they have not Pilots of the Country. He has ſeen large Ships with full Sails detained in one Place for many Hours, as if they had been nailed to the Ground, but got off again by the Change of the Currents and Skill of Pilots.

Scylla lies near the Cape, formerly called Cenys, now Scyglio, 17 miles off Reggio. It continually ebbs and flows with great Waves; and flows with ſo much Violence, that if any Ships be in it, they are certainly daſhed againſt the Rocks. The Ebb is not ſo violent; but if Mariners don't take Care and obſerve the Current, they are certainly carried to Charybdis. Which makes good the Saying of the Poets:

Antra Charybdis adit, qui vult evadere Scyllam;
Incidit in Scyllam, qui vult vitare Charybdin.

He thinks, that Scylla communicates by ſubterranean Paſſages with the Tuſcan or ſome other Sea. He himſelf and Mariners obſerve, that in the Bay of Cujacius, at the Promontory Vaticanium within the Bay, which is concave, every day, eſpecially with an Eaſt Wind, when Scylla flows, the Sea bubbles up continually, but when it ebbs with a North Eaſt Wind, it is toſſed about like Whirlpools, which, he thinks, explains the Tides both of the Tuſcan Sea and of theſe Straits; for when the Tide comes in by the Straits of Cadiz, it communicates its Force to the Mediterranean, and to all the Firths and Tides in it, and particularly to this; and when it ebbs, thoſe Tides decreaſe in like manner.

Other Places in this Country are, Bova, Girace, Squillace, Cantazaro, Nicaſtro, Mileto, and Nicotera, noted only for being Sees of Biſhops, Suffragans of Rheggio: and Belcaſtro, Iſola, and Cotrona, Sees of Biſhops, Suffragans of St. Severina.

IV. The Principal ISLANDS belonging to ITALY.

I. SARDINIA Kingdom and Iſland

LIES 6 miles South of Corſica, is 170 miles South and North, and 80 Eaſt and Weſt where broadeſt. It was a long time poſſeſſed by Spain, but left to the Emperor by the 30th Article of the Treaty of Baden in 1714; notwithſtanding which, the preſent King of Spain invaded and ſeiſed it in 1718. It is now, according to the Quadruple Alliance, given to the Duke of Savoy, with the Title of King in Exchange for that of Sicily.

The Soil is ſo fruitful in Corn, that ſome Years they have exported a Million of Buſhels. It abounds alſo with Wine, Oil, Cattle, and Wild Beaſts, but none ravenous, nor have they any venemous Creatures. Their Horſes are leſs, but nimbler than thoſe of Italy. The Inhabitants are accounted rude, lazy, and uncivil to Strangers.

Places of Note are,

1. Cagliari, or Callari, at the bottom of a Bay near the South-Eaſt part of the Iſland, Lat. 31. 50. Long. 9. 35. It is large, handſome, populous, has a good Trade, is the See of an Archbiſhop, the Reſidence of a Viceroy, the Seat of an Univerſity, and defended by a ſtrong Citadel, beſides other Fortifications lately added by the Spaniards.

2. Oriſtagni, at the bottom of a Bay on the Weſt ſide of the Iſland, 42 miles North-Weſt of Cagliari, is the See of an Archbiſhop, is well built, and has the Title of a Marquiſate.

3. Villa d'Igleſia, toward the South-Weſt Corner of the Iſland, 35 miles North-Weſt of Cagliari, of whoſe See it is Suffragan, and defended by a good Caſtle.

4. Saſſari, near the North-Weſt Corner of the Iſland, 53 miles North of Oriſtagni, is an Archbiſhop's See, a neat large Town, and defended by a ſtrong Caſtle.

5. Caſtel Aragoneſe, a ſmall well fortified Town, 20 miles North-Eaſt from Saſſari, to which it is Suffragan, and has a good Harbour.

6. Algeri, and 7. Boza, on the Weſt Coaſt, are Sees of Biſhops, Suffragans of Saſſari.

There are ſeveral ſmall Iſlands, which lie upon the Coaſt of Sardinia. The chief of them are, 1. St. Peter, 6 or 7 miles Weſt from the South-Weſt Coaſt, 25 miles round, has a good Harbour and populous Villages. 2. St. Antiochus lies South-Eaſt from St. Peter, is larger, has ſeveral Villages and Bays with good Anchorage.

II. The Iſles of LIPARI

LIE in the Tuſcan Sea, off of the Coaſts of Sicily and Naples, and are reckoned to belong to the latter Kingdom. They are about 12, and have their Name from the biggeſt, which lies in the middle. It has a Town of the ſame name, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Meſſina, well built and fortified. The Ancients called them Æoliæ and Vulcaniæ, becauſe the Poets fancied that Æolus, King of the Winds, had his Seat, and Vulcan his Forge here. That next to Sicily is called Vulcano, becauſe of its burning Mountain. The reſt are ſo little inhabited, that they are not worth inſiſting upon.

III. The Iſland and Kingdom of SICILY

IS ſeparated from the Kingdom of Naples by a narrow Strait, called the Faro of Meſſina. It is 140 miles from Eaſt to Weſt, where longeſt, but much contracted towards the Weſt End, and near 120 where broadeſt South and North, but contracted at the South End. It was given to the Duke of Savoy with the Title of King by the Treaty of Utrecht; but it was invaded by the preſent King of Spain in 1718, upon which the Duke did by the Treaty of Quadruple Alliance, quit his Title to the Emperor in exchange for Sardinia. It has ſince been the Seat of a vigorous War, but the Spaniards were drove out of all Places of Note by the Imperialiſts in November 1719, except Palermo. The Air is good and healthful, and the Soil ſo fruitful that it is called the Granary of Italy. Their chief Product is Corn, Wine, Fruit, Sugar, Honey, Wax, Oil, Silk, Saffron and other Drugs. It has Mines of Gold, Silver, Salt, &c. Here are likewiſe Agats, Emeralds, Jaſper, Porphyry and good Coral. It is divided into the Vallies of Mazara, Ætmone and Inoto.

I. The Valley of MAZARA is the Weſt part of the Kingdom, reckoned about 75 miles South and North, and 90 Eaſt and Weſt.

Places of Note are,

1. Palermo, the old Panormus, reckoned the Capital of the Kingdom. It is in Lat. 38. 10. Long. 13. 38. on the North ſide of the Iſland, near the bottom of a Bay. It was the uſual Reſidence of the Spaniſh Viceroy, is the See of an Archbiſhop, and inhabited by many of the Nobility. It is large, the Houſes magnificent, the Streets beautiful, and well provided with Fountains. The Harbour is ſafe and large, and defended by a ſtrong Caſtle.

2. Montreal, 6 miles South-Weſt of Palermo, is the See of a Biſhop, has a magnificent and rich Church, and ſeveral ſtately Houſes, but the Town is ſmall.

3. Mazara, which gives name to the Valley, lies on the South-Weſt Point of the Iſland, 57 miles South-Weſt from Palermo. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of that Town, is large, neat, ſtrong, and has a good Harbour and Trade.

4. Gergenti, the old Agrigentum, 58 miles from Mazara to the South-Eaſt, on the ſame Coaſt, one of the ancienteſt Towns in the Iſland, is neat and ſtrong, and has a Fort on the North ſide, to which there is but one Paſſage. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Palermo, and was the Reſidence of the Tyrant Phalaris, in whoſe Reign Perillus invented the Brazen Bull to torment Men, and was the firſt tortured by it himſelf.

5. Marſala on the Weſt ſide of the Iſland, 9 miles Weſt of Mazara. It was anciently called Lilybæum, and had an excellent Harbour, which was ſpoiled by Charles V. to prevent its being uſed by the Turks.

6. Trapani, the old Drepanum, famous in ancient Hiſtory for its Harbour and Fortifications, but now in Ruines.

7. Caſtle à Mare, at the bottom of a Bay, 25 miles South-Weſt of Palermo, is noted for a good Harbour.

II. The Valley of DEMONA is the North Eaſt part of the Iſland, 70 miles South and North, and 120 Eaſt and Weſt.

Places of Note are,

1. Meſſina, on a Bay near the North-Eaſt Corner of the Iſland, Lat. 38. 10. Long. 15. 55. 15 miles North-Weſt from Reggio in Naples, and about 105 miles Eaſt from Palermo, with which it diſputes Precedency. It is famous in ancient Hiſtory, has undergone many Changes, was extraordinary well fortified, and defended by a ſtrong Citadel, and the Caſtle of St. Salvador. The Spaniards took it, after an obſtinate Siege, from the Savoyards and Germans in 1718, but the latter recovered it after another obſtinate Siege in 1719. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, is large, neat, populous, the private Houſes fine, and the public Buildings (eſpecially the Viceroy's Palace and the Arſenal) magnificent. The Harbour is reckoned one of the beſt in the Mediterranean, and was much frequented becauſe of their Trade in Corn and Silk.

2. Melazzo, on a Bay, 18 miles North-Weſt of Meſſina, is a ſtrong, large Town with a good Harbour. The Germans held it out in 1719 againſt the Spaniards, and forced them to retire from before it.

3. Patti, 32 miles Weſt of Meſſina, a ſmall populous Town with a good Harbour, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Meſſina.

4. Ceſaledi, or Ceſalu, 46 miles South-Weſt of Patti, on the Eaſt ſide of a Cape of its own Name, is a neat City of good Trade, with a ſafe Harbour, defended by a Caſtle, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Meſſina.

5. Catanea, at the bottom of a Gulph of its own Name, on the Eaſt ſide of the Iſland, 57 miles South-Weſt of Meſſina, formerly a ſtrong and conſiderable Town with a good Harbour, but almoſt ruined by the Eruptions of Mount Ætna, and is now only noted for the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Montreal.

6. Mount Ætna, alias Monte Gibello, lies 22 miles North-Weſt of Catanea, but the Foot of it about 15. Fazellus, in his Account of Sicily, reckons the Circumference of the Mountain 100 miles, and ſays, there are two Ways up to it, the ſhorter 20, and the longer 30 miles from Catanea. This Aſcent is divided into three Parts. That which begins from the Foot of the Mountain at the Shore, to the Abbey of St. Nicholas is 12 miles, and filled with Towns and Villages; and on the Weſt and South are many large Villages, called the Vineyards of Catanea. All this part is filled with burnt Stones thrown out from the Mountain, which being diſſolved by Time and Rain, make the Ground very fruitful. The Aſcent above this is very pleaſant, abounds with Vines and other Fruit-Trees of all ſorts, large Corn Fields, and Paſtures, ſo fat, that they often bleed the Cattle which feed on them, leſt they burſt. The middle Region from the Abbey upwards is 10 miles, and filled with black Stones thrown out of the Mountain, which the Inhabitants uſe for Mill-ſtones. Above them are Woods of Fir, Beech and Pines, which ſeem to reach the Skie, and to be almoſt unpaſſable. In ſome Places there are Clefts from which iſſues Smoak, and many little Hills with Vorago's on the top ſurrounded with Trees. Above theſe there's another Aſcent of more than 12 miles, covered with Snow in Winter, and a continual Froſt in Summer, though the top of the Mountain continually ſends out Flames and Smoak. Next to this there is a Valley from whence riſes a high Mountain called the Aſs's Back. There is a winding Aſcent on the Right of it for 2 miles, when they come to another on the left, called the Corn Mountain. Betwixt theſe there is a Valley without Water. From this there is an Aſcent to another Hill, where the Cold is ſo exceſſive by Night, that ſcarce either Man or Beaſt is able to endure it. Under the Summit there is a little Valley with a ſmall Lake formed by melted Snow. The Summit is about half a mile high, but the Way ſo ſandy and rugged, that it took Fazelus and his Company 2 Hours time. From hence they ſaw the Sun riſe a great way below them, and had a fine View of all Sicily, with the neighbouring Parts of Italy. Then walking through a ſandy Plain, they found many Clefts that iſſued Smoak, then they came to the great Vorago, which is about 4 miles round, but grows narrower as it aſcends. They crept to the Brink during the Intervals of the Smoak, perceived it to be rugged within, and the Sides incruſted with Sulphur. The Noiſe of the Flames within ſometimes reſembled the boiling of a great Caldron, and at others made ſuch a Noiſe in the Caverns as filled them with Terror, and made them repent their Raſhneſs. Sometimes there iſſued pure Flame, and at others a thick Smoak with Aſhes. He obſerves, that the continual Eruptions have made great Changes in this Mountain ſince the Time of Strabo, Pliny, and other Ancients, who give an Account of it. Sometimes Streams of Fire run down from the Mountain, and at others great Quantities of burning Stones. In 1537, the top of the Mountain fell into the Gulph, which made the Vorago broader.

6. Taormina, a ſmall well fortified Town on the Coaſt, about 28 miles South-Weſt of Meſſina.

7. La Scaletta, another ſmall fortified Town on the Coaſt, 17 miles North-Eaſt of Taormina.

8. Caſtel Chieſo, a Fort 2 miles South of Taormina.

9. Lingua Groſſa, a ſmall fortified Town, 8 miles Eaſt from Tarmina.

III. The Valley of NOTO lies South from that of Demona, is 75 miles South and North, and 130 Eaſt and Weſt.

Places of Note are,

1. Noto, which is a fortified Town, about 14 miles North-Weſt of Cape Paſſaro in the South-Eaſt Corner of the Iſland. It is large and populous, ſtands on the top of a Mountain, encompaſſed with high Rocks; and there is another called New Noto, 4 miles South-Eaſt of the former, alſo a fortified Place.

2. Cape Paſſaro, which is remarkable for the Defeat of the Spaniſh Fleet near it by Sir George Byng with an Engliſh Squadron in 1718, which ſo diſconcerted the Spaniſh Meaſures, that it defeated their Deſigns upon Naples and other Parts of Italy, ſubject to the Emperor, and broke their Naval Power, which Cardinal Alberoni had reſtored to a ſurpriſing degree.

3. Syracuſa, on the ſame Coaſt, 25 miles North-Eaſt from Cape Paſſaro, anciently a great City, reckoned above 22 miles round. It held out a Siege of 3 Years againſt the Romans in the firſt Punic War, by the ſingular Art of the famous Mathematician Archimedes, who was killed after the Town was ſtormed, by a barbarous Soldier, to the great Regret of the Roman General Marcellus, who gave Orders to ſave him. It had begun to retrieve part of its ancient Luſtre, but was almoſt ruined by a terrible Earthquake in 1693. The Conveniency of its two Harbours on both ſides the Peninſula Ortygra, encouraged the Inhabitants to rebuild it. The Town is ſo ſtrong by its Situation, that it is reckoned impregnable, being acceſſible only by one Gate on the Neck of the Iſthmus; ſo that the Spaniards did not attempt it in the preſent War.

4. Auguſta, 17 miles North of Syracuſa, on a Peninſula. It was very ſtrong, and inhabited by the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem, after they were drove out of Rhodes by the Turks, till 1530, that the Emperor Charles V. gave the Knights the Iſle of Malta. It was deſtroyed by the Eruption of Mount Ætna in 1693, but may probably be rebuilt by the Emperor, becauſe of its ſafe and large Harbour.

IV. The Iſland of MALTA.

IT was formerly part of the Kingdom of Sicily, from which it is divided by a dangerous Sea of about 60 miles. It lies betwixt Lat. 35. 45. and 36. and betwixt Long. 13. 26. and 44 min. It is 24 miles where longeſt, and 16 where broadeſt, but much indented by Bays. It is debated, whether it be Melita where St. Paul was caſt on Shore. The Inhabitants pretend to ſhew the Cave where he ſtaid, and alledge, that no venemous Creature will live in the Iſland ſince his throwing off the Viper into the Fire, which faſtened upon his Hand; and they reckon the Earth of the Cave a ſoveraign Antidote againſt Poiſon. But ſeveral Learned Men reckon it was Melita in Illyricum where he was Shipwrecked.

The Air is clear, but very hot, ſo that there is no walking abroad when the Sun ſhines; and the Inhabitants are much infeſted with Muſkettoes by Night. The People are brown, and ſaid to be very revengeful. Their Women are handſome, familiar, and cover their Faces with thin Mantles. The People are ſeldom troubled with any Diſtemper but but Head-aches and ſore Eyes, live to a great Age, and always mix Ice with their Wine, which is very good. Their other Product is Oil, Figs, Cummin and Anniſeed, of which they export much, Indigo, a Carnation Dye, Roſes, Honey, Melons, and good Fruit of other ſorts. The Iſland is low, and the Soil ſoft and chalky. Here is ſtore of wild Fowl and Birds of Prey, particularly Falcons, of which the Grand Maſter makes annually a Preſent to the Viceroy of Sicily, in token of Homage.

The Order of Malta conſiſts of three Eſtates, viz. Knights, who muſt be Noble by four Deſcents on both ſides; Chaplains, who muſt alſo be Noble, or of conſiderable Families; and Servants at Arms, who are to be of Families above the Vulgar. The Grand Maſter is choſen by the Knights, has the State of a Monarch, and the Title of Eminence, but can do nothing without the Sacred Council, compoſed of the Great Croſſes, the Conventual Bailiffs, the Grand Prior and Capitulary Bailiffs; and in this Council he has two Votes. There is another called the Compleat Council, which conſiſts of the Great Croſſes, and two of the oldeſt Knights of each of the ſeven Languages or Nations of which they are compoſed, viz. Provence, Auvergne, France, Italy, Aragon, Germany, and Caſtile; Great Britain made the eighth before the Reformation. The Inhabitants ſpeak Arabic and Italian.

Malta City lies on the North-Eaſt ſide of the Iſland, Lat. 35. 52. Long. 14. 40. upon ſeveral Iſlands, which together make a very large City. The New Town, called Valetta, lies on the ſame Neck of Land with the Caſtle of St. Elmo, was built upon the Repulſe of the Turks after 4 months Siege in 1565. and is ſo well fortified, that it is reckon'd one of the ſtrongeſt Places in the World. It conſiſts of 20 Streets, all in ſtreight Lines, but the Soil uneven, becauſe of the Rocks, which are their Pavement. The Houſes are of white Stone, more commodious than lofty, and have flat Roofs, where they lay their Beds in Summer. There are Markets every Morning, where Proviſions are ſold very cheap. They have one Gate to the Harbour, and another to the Land ſide. The Outworks take in a great Space of Ground for the Security of the Country People in caſe of Invaſions. The Town, beſides its own ſtrong Fortifications, is defended by three Caſtles of St. Elmo, St. Angelo, and Torre di Bocca. There are two Harbours, about 1500 Rods from one another, and in one of 'em an Iſland, with an Hoſpital. That part of the Town call'd Sengle, lies on a ſmall Peninſula in the great Harbour, and that named Burgo del Caſtello a Mare, on a Neck of Land in the ſame Harbour. Betwixt them is the Harbour for the Galleys, and on the Point of the Iſthmus is the Caſtle of St. Angelo, ſeparated from the Town by a Canal cut on purpoſe to make it ſtronger. Here is alſo a Suburb. There are ſeveral large Squares in the Town, and fine Palaces: The chief is that of the Grand Maſter, which fronts a Square with a noble Fountain, that ſupplies the whole Town. Here is a Magazine with Arms for 35000 Men, very well kept. The Palace has Summer and Winter Apartments, and noble Stables, well furniſhed with Horſes. The Conſervatory and Treaſury are fine Palaces, and their Inns are well built. The Hoſpital is a noble Structure, where there is a Hall for the ſick Knights, hung with Tapeſtry. They are ſerved in Plate, and attended by other Knights. Poor Travellers are entertained here, till they can get Paſſage to the Places whither they are bound, and they have Money for their Charge during the Voyage. Here are many fine Churches, the chief is that of St. John Baptiſt, their Biſhop's Cathedral, a large Structure, paved with fine Marble, and adorned with many Colours, taken from the Infidels. The Great Maſters are buried here, and have noble Tombs. There are many fine Altars and Chappels in this Church. The Jeſuits have a fine Houſe and a College; and each of the ſeven Nations have their Colleges and Halls, the Head of which is their Grand Prior, diſtinguiſhed from the reſt by a large white Croſs, embroidered with Silk, on his Breaſt, and he is always a Member of the Privy Council. Mr. Ray ſays, the Knights in his time were betwixt 3 and 4000. They wear what they pleaſe at home, but have the Habit of the Order when abroad with the Galleys; and their Rule of Precedency is the time of Admiſſion. When the Grand Maſter goes abroad, he is attended by ſome Knights and Pages; he wears a black ſhort Gown with Hanging Sleeves, and all are uncovered before him, except the Grand Croſſes.

There is a conſtant Watch on the Caſtle of St. Elmo, where they ſet up Flags according to the number of Ships that approach, their Size, and the Point from whence they come: Near it are Caves hewn out of the Rock, where they keep a Years Proviſions. It is alſo made a Priſon of State. And there is a large Square, where the Slaves are impriſoned at Night. The great Harbour, where the Galleys lie, is ſhut up at Night by an Iron Chain. And there is another for Ships that perform their Quarantine, or ſtay here but little; for it is difficult getting out of the great Harbour. Upon a Survey in 1632, the Houſes in all were reckon'd 3527, and the People 17582; but it is ſuppoſed they are much increaſed ſince.

The Old Town, called Melita, and now Citta Notabile, lies 7 miles Weſt, towards the other ſide of the Iſland, was formerly large and populous, but now has only about 565 Houſes, and 2620 People. The Grand Maſter has a Palace near it, with Gardens, Orchards, and fine Water works. The whole Iſland has about 40 large Villages, 26 Pariſh Churches, and is able to raiſe about 25000 Men. They have abundance of Springs. Their Breed of little Dogs is quite loſt, but their Cats are ſtill much eſteemed. There are abundance of petrified Shells and Fiſh-bones.

The Iſle of Gozo, lies 4 miles Weſt from hence, is about 13 miles long, and 7 broad, is well cultivated, tho' ſomething mountainous, and produces much Wheat. It has many good Fountains, and was very populous till the Turks carried off 6000 Inhabitants in 1565. It contains now about 500 Houſes, and 3000 People, is ſubject to Malta, and has a Fort on the Eaſtern Shore. The Iſle of Cominot, or Cuming, lies betwixt it and Malta, is about 5 miles round, well manured, and has a Fort over-againſt that of Gozo, for Defence of the Channel. There are ſome other ſmall Iſlands in the Neighbourhood, not worth deſcribing.

The VENETIAN Dominions on the Eaſt ſide of the Adriatic, and in the Ionian Sea and Archipelago.

I. MORLACHIA has the Gulph of Venice on the South, Croatia and Boſnia on the North, Iſtria on the Weſt, and Dalmatia on the Eaſt, is about 80 miles long, and 30 broad.

Places of Note are,

1. Zeny, or Zegna, on the Coaſt, 38 miles South-Eaſt of St. Veil in Iſtria, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Spalato, a pretty Town with a good Harbour and ſtrong Caſtle.

2. Novigrad, 21 miles South-Eaſt of Zegna, a large Town.

II. DALMATIA, anciently part of Illyricum. It abounds with Corn, Wine, Oil, and Sheep that bring forth twice per annum. The Venetians and Republic of Raguſa have the Coaſts, and the Turks the inland Parts.

Places belonging to the Venetians are,

1. Zara, on the Coaſt of the Adriatic, 55 miles South-Eaſt of Segna. It is Capital of the Venetian Dalmatia, lies in an Iſland, joined to the Continent by a Bridge, defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, and is the See of an Archbiſhop.

2. Nona, 11 miles North-Weſt of Zara, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of it, well fortified, and lies on a Cape, almoſt encompaſſed by the Sea.

3. Scardone, 35 miles South-Eaſt of Zara, a fortified Town with a ſtrong Caſtle, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Spalato.

4. Sebenico, South-Eaſt of Zara, the See of a Biſhop, its Suffragan, defended by a Caſtle on a ſteep Rock, and ſo ſtrong that the Turks could never take it.

5. Trau, a Town and Harbour in an Iſland of the ſame Name, 25 miles South-Eaſt of Sebenico. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Spalato.

6. Spalato, 15 miles Eaſt of Trau, a large, fine, ſtrong, and populous Town, with one of the beſt Harbours on the Coaſt. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, who has the beſt Revenues in Dalmatia. Mark Anthony de Dominis, Archbiſhop of this Place, came to England in the Reign of King James I. and turned Proteſtant; but his Covetouſneſs not being gratified, he turned Papiſt again, went to Rome, and was put into the Inquiſition, where he died.

7. Cliſſa, 10 miles North-Eaſt of Spalato, a Town with a ſtrong Caſtle on a Rock.

8. Ciclut, 38 miles South-Eaſt of Spalato, a ſtrong Fortreſs.

9. Caſtle Nuovo, 47 miles South-Eaſt of Raguſa, a well-fortified Town, with a ſtrong Caſtle on the ſide of a Mountain, among inacceſſible Rocks.

10. Catara, 45 miles South-Eaſt of Raguſa, the See of a Biſhop Suffragan of Bari, and defended by a ſtrong Caſtle.

11. Budua, 82 miles South-Eaſt of Catara, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Ænivari, almoſt encompaſſed by the Sea, and ſtrongly fortified.

Iſlands on this Coaſt belonging to the Venetians are,

1. Cherſo, Eaſt from Iſtria, and the ſartheſt North of the Iſlands, is 20 miles long, 11 where broadeſt, and has a Town and Harbour of the ſame Name, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Zara.

2. Oſera, joined to Cherſo by a Bridge, has a Town of its own Name, whoſe Biſhop is alſo Suffragan of Zara.

3. Veglia, or Curitta, North-Eaſt of Cherſo, is 55 miles round, and has a Town of its Name with a Harbour, defended by a Caſtle. The Biſhop is alſo Suffragan of Zara.

4. Arbe, South-Eaſt of Veglia, 15 miles long, and 8 broad, with a Town of its Name, whoſe Biſhop is Suffragan of Zara.

5. Groſſa, or Iſle Grande, 30 miles long and 6 broad, has a Town and ſtrong Caſtle of the ſame Name.

6. Carzola, or Sorzola, 6 miles Weſt of the Coaſt of Raguſa, the moſt populous of all the Dalmatian Iſlands, has a Town of its Name, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Raguſa, with ſeveral Villages and Caſtles.

7. Lezina, betwixt Corzola and the Coaſt of Dalmatia, is 50 miles long, 10 broad, and has a Town of its Name, whoſe Biſhop is Suffragan of Spalato.

There are many other leſſer Iſlands belonging to the Venetians, which we cannot inſiſt upon.

III. Iſlands belonging to the Venetians in the Ionian and Ægean Sea, or Archipelago.

(I.) CORFU, anciently CORCYRA, off of the Coaſt of Epirus, is 50 miles long, and 15 where broadeſt, one of the moſt populous Iſlands in Greece, has two Cities, near 100 Villages, and produces excellent Honey, Wax, Oil, Citrons, and other Fruits.

Places of Note are,

1. Corfu, about the middle of the Iſland, on the Eaſt ſide, in a Peninſula, and exceeding ſtrong. It has a good Harbour, a well-furniſhed Arſenal, and is the See of an Archbiſhop, who has a magnificent Cathedral; and the Greeks have likewiſe a very fine Church here.

2. Caſſope, 12 miles North-Weſt of Corfu, has a good Harbour, and conſiderable Trade. There are ſeveral other ſmall Iſlands in the Neighbourhood.

(II.) ST. MOURA, 10 miles Eaſt of Corfu, and 1 from the Coaſt of Achaia, about 22 miles long, 15 broad, and very populous. It has a Town of the ſame Name, joined to the Continent by a Bridge, which conveys Water into the Town. It is well fortified, and the See of an Archbiſhop.

(III.) CEFALONIA, 16 miles South-Eaſt of St. Moura on the ſame Coaſt, 50 miles long, and 28 broad. It is mountainous, yet abounds with Wine, Oil, Honey, Wax, Wool and Silk. It has a Town of its own Name, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Corfu, but the Inhabitants are of the Greek Church. It lies on the Weſt ſide, and has a tolerable Harbour. Here are ſeveral Places of Note, particularly Aſſo, a ſtrong Fortreſs on the top of a Mountain, 25 miles North-Weſt of Cefalonia.

IV. ITHACA

(IV.) ITHACA, the Birth-place of Ulysses, now called Little Cefalonia, becauſe it depends on the Greater, lies betwixt it and the Coaſt of Achaia, 12 miles Eaſt, is 20 miles round, and has ſome well-peopled Villages.

(V.) ZANTE, 15 miles South-Eaſt of Cefalonia, is 23 miles long, and 20 where broadeſt. It produces Muſcadine and other choice Wines. They dry moſt of their Grapes, which we call Raiſons of Zant, or Corinth. Here are alſo good Olives, and about 40 Villages.

Zante, the Capital, lies on a Mountain near a Bay on the North ſide. It has a good Harbour with a ſtrong Caſtle, where the Proveditor, a noble Venetian, reſides. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Corfu, and has ſeveral Popiſh Churches, but moſt of the People are of the Greek Church.

Places in the Archipelago belonging to the Venetians are,

1. Two Fortreſſes in the Iſle of Candie, confirmed to them by the Treaty of Carlowitz.

2. Millo, North of Candie, pays them Tribute, but the Property belongs to the Turks.

3. Tenos, now Tine, South of Andros, off of the Port of Negropont, is 35 miles round, has a Town of the ſame Name, the See of a Biſhop, who holds Communion with the See of Rome. It produces abundance of Silk and Figs, and has ſeveral fortified Places.

The Republic of RAGUSA, South-Eaſt of Leſina, is incloſed by the Venetian and Turkiſh Dalmatia, the greateſt Length Eaſt and Weſt is 75 miles, but the Breadth very unequal, being from 36 miles to 3. They pretend to be more ancient then the Venetians, who envied them, and therefore they have for ſeveral Ages put themſelves under Protection of the Turks, to whom they pay 25000 Crowns of Gold per Annum.

Places of Note are,

1. Raguſa, the Capital, on the Coaſt, 42 miles South-Eaſt of Leſina, ſuppoſed to be the ancient Epidaurus. It is the Seat of the Government, which is Ariſtocratical. Their Duke, or Governour, is changed every Month, and the Officers every 6 Weeks. The Gentry dare not lie out of Town without Leave of the Senate. Strangers are locked up at Night. The Gates are never opened till the Sun riſes, and are ſhut again when it ſets. It is the See of an Archbiſhop, very well fortified, and has a noble well-frequented Harbour, defended by a Fortreſs. It has the beſt Trade of any on the Coaſt, and though the Country be barren, the Inhabitants are rich, becauſe of their Trade and free Government. The Turks took care to preſerve their Sovereignty by the Treaty of Carlowitz.

2. Old Raguſa, 15 miles South-Eaſt of the New, is rather thought to be the ancient Epidaurus. It is a ſmall Town with a good Harbour, but of late much neglected.

3. Stagno, on an Iſthmus, 20 miles North-Weſt of Raguſa, has a good Harbour, well frequented, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Raguſa.

There are ſeveral Iſlands belonging to Raguſa; the chief of them is Meleda, Weſt from it, 25 miles long and 8 broad, with a Town of the ſame Name.

HUNGARY

HAS part of Poland on the North, the River Save on the South, part of Moravia, Auſtria, Stiria and Croatia on the Weſt; part of Poland and Tranſilvania on the Eaſt. It lies betwixt Lat. 45. 10. and 49. 20; and betwixt Long. 17 and 24. 35. in the 7th and 8th Climats; ſo that the Longeſt Day in the South is about 15 hours and a half, and in the North 15 three quarters. The greateſt Extent, South and North, is about 255 miles, and the greateſt Eaſt and Weſt, 288. The Air is temperate, but in many Places unwholſome, becauſe of the frequent Fogs occaſioned by their many Rivers, Lakes and Marſhes; and the Water of moſt of their Rivers, except the Danube, ſtinks. The Soil ſcarce yields to any in Europe in Fruitfulneſs, ſo that they have plenty of Corn, Graſs and generous Wine, and ſuch vaſt numbers of Cattle, that they export 80000 per annum to Auſtria, beſides what they do elſewhere. Here is ſtore of Veniſon and wild Fowl; and every one having the Privilege of Hunting and Fowling, their own Boors fare as well in that reſpect, as thoſe of Quality. Here are Mines of Gold, Silver and other Metals; Salt-Baths and Medicinal Springs in great numbers.

The People are well ſhaped, of a good ſize, Brave, much charg'd with Cruelty, Revenge, Pride and Inconſtancy. They have a peculiar Language, but their general one is Sclavonic, and moſt of their Gentry and Soldiery ſpeak Latin. The Reformation made a great Progreſs here, ſo that moſt of them were Calviniſts and Lutherans, mix'd with Socinians, Arians and Anabaptiſts; but ſince they came under the Houſe of Auſtria, the Proteſtants have been much oppreſs'd, and the Country in general has ſuffer'd ſo much by the Wars betwixt the Malecontents, Turks and the Germans, that it is very poor.

It is generally divided into Upper and Lower Sclavonia: Upper Hungary is divided into 34 Counties; the chief of which are as follows.

1. Tranſchin, has Poland on the North, and part of Moravia on the Weſt. The only Place of Note is Tranſchin on the Waag, Lat 49. Long. 19. 10. It ſtands on the top of a Rocky Hill, is defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, and noted for Baths in the Town and Neighbourhood, much frequented; ſome of them lie ſo near the River, that while they are ſweating in the Baths, they can reach to the cold Water.

2. Turocz, Eaſt from Tranſchin, has a Capital of the ſame Name, but of little Note. Stubna, near the Eaſt ſide of this County, is noted for hot Baths, much of the ſame degree of heat as the King's Bath in England.

3. Lipton, or Lypcze, lies Eaſt from Turocz. Its Capital is of the ſame Name; and at Libeten, 6 miles Eaſt from it, are ſome Mines of Silver and Copper.

4. Torna, lies South-Eaſt from Lipton, has a Capital of the ſame Name on a riſing Ground, well fortified, 42 miles South-Eaſt from Lypcze

5. Lepus, which ſome join with the County of Gewinar, lies North-Eaſt from Torna Leutſch, is reckoned its Capital, though ſome place it in Torna; from which it lies 24 miles North. It is a ſtrong Town: the People are Lutherans, very courteous, and have a good Trade.

6. Saros, lies Eaſt from Cepus. The Capital of the ſame Name lies 19 miles South-Eaſt of Leutſch, and is defended by a ſtrong Caſtle. Eſperies 5 miles South of Saros, is very ſtrong, and famous for deep Salt Mines in the Neighbourhood, where the Veins are ſo large, that Pieces have been found of 10000 l. weight. It is of ſeveral colours and ſhapes, ſome of a delicate Blue, others of a tranſparent Yellow, and ſome ſo clear and hard, that they carve them like Chryſtal. The Water in the Mines is ſo impregnated with Salt, that when boiled it produces a blue Salt, which the People give to their Cattle. Dr. Brown ſays there are 2 Fountains near this Mine, whoſe Water kills Birds and Beaſts, and are therefore wall'd up.

7. Ungwar, lies South-Eaſt from Saros. The Capital Ungwar is 35 miles South-Eaſt of Eſperies, and is a very ſtrong Town.

8. Preſburgh, or Poſon, lies Eaſt of Auſtria and South-Weſt from Tranſchin. Presburg, its Capital, as well as of Upper Hungary, lies on the Danube 48 miles South from Vienna. It is a pleaſant, well-built and fortified Town, with a ſtrong Citadel on the top of a Mountain, where the Crown is kept: this being the Place where their Kings are crown'd, and the States meet. It is populous, and has many Italian Merchants, who have built Houſes here after the manner of Italy. The Primate of Hungary has a ſtately Palace and fine Gardens here. It's Cathedral is poſſeſs'd by the Jeſuits. The Papiſts have ſeveral other Churches, and the Lutherans a fair one here. The Duke of Lorrain defeated the Malecontents near this Place in 1683. Tirnaw, 28 miles North-Eaſt from Presburg, is the only Univerſity in Hungary; 'twas the Reſidence of the Archbiſhop of Gran and his Chapter, while the Turks poſſeſs'd his Metropolis. It is noted for burning alive 12 Jews and 2 Jeweſſes, and for murdering a Chriſtian Infant by way of Sacrifice, upon Confeſſion that it was their Cuſtom to Sacrifice a Chriſtian once a year, and that it was then the turn of the Jews of that City. Arva, or Crowa, reckon'd Capital of a County, is 24 miles North-Eaſt of Tranſchin; a ſtrong Town, defended by a Caſtle. Count Teckley's Father dy'd here while it was beſieg'd by the Imperialiſts, and ſent off his Son in the Habit of a Peaſant.

9. Nitra, lies North-Eaſt from Presburg. The Capital Nitra, lies 48 miles North-Eaſt of Presburg, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Gran. Leopolſtat, 17 miles North-Weſt from Nitra, is a ſtrong Fortreſs, built by the Emperor Leopold, after Newhaſel was taken by the Turks. Schinta, 12 miles Weſt of Nitra, is a very ſtrong Fort. Frieſtadel on the other ſide the Waag, is a large handſome Town and Caſtle, with good Baths. Banca, 15 miles from Frieſtadel is noted for many hot Baths, whoſe Waters have a white Sediment; yet Dr. Brown ſays, they dye Silver and Copper in an inſtant as black as Ink. Schemnitz, 28 miles South-Eaſt of Nitra, is a neat City, the fineſt of all the 7 Mine Towns, ſtands on a Rocky Hill, and is defended by 3 Caſtles. The Lutherans have 3 handſome Churches here. This Place is famous for Silver Mines. Dr. Brown went down into one of them by a Ladder of 300 Steps, at the foot of which there was an Engine which pump'd up the Water by a Wheel, which mov'd ſeveral other Engines, and carried the Water up to a neighbouring Valley. They have 200 Men conſtantly at Work here, and Tubes to let Air in and out at Pleaſure, to prevent the Miners being kill'd by Damps. Theſe Mines are very rich, and ſometimes yield Gold, which they ſeparate from the Silver Oar by Aqua Fortis. The Oar is cover'd with a white Clay, which he calls Lac Lunæ; ſome of it is ſo rich, that it yields half Silver; and in other Parts they think it well if it yield 20 Ounces per hundred Weight. Chryſtals and Amethyſts are alſo found here; and near this Town there is a high perpendicular Rock, part of which is a ſhining blue, mix'd with beautiful green and yellow Spots, ſo that it looks like an entire Maſs of Lapis Lazuli finely poliſh'd. Glaſhitten, 7 miles from Schemnitz had a rich Gold Mine, which is loſt, the Inhabitants having ſtopp'd it up when they retir'd before Bethlehem Gabor, Principal of Tranſilvania. Here are excellent hot Baths, with handſome Structures over them. The Springs are tranſparent, yield Silver, have a red and green Sediment, and leave a ſtony Cruſt upon the Seats under Water. Iſenbuch, 4 miles from Glaſhitten, has 3 fine hot Baths, one of them call'd the Snakes Bath, becauſe multitudes of Snakes come into it as ſoon as 'tis fill'd. The Doctor ſays theſe Baths have a red Sediment, and petrify Timber by their Exhalations.

10. Bars, is South of Nitra. Bars the Capital is 12 miles South-Eaſt of Nitra. Barcam, in the South-Eaſt Corner of this County near the Danube, 27 miles North-Eaſt of Bars, is noted for a Victory by John Sobieſky, King of Poland, and the Duke of Lorrain, over the Turks in 1683. upon which the Town ſurrender'd.

11. Novigrad, lies Eaſt from Nitra and Bars. The Capital of the ſame Name is 15 miles Eaſt of Barcam, well fortify'd, and has a ſtrong Caſtle on a Rock, encompaſſed by a Ditch 34 foot deep, cut out of the Rock. Filleck, 22 miles North-Eaſt of Novigrad, a ſtrong Fortreſs defended by a Caſtle and ſtrong Walls, on the top of a rocky Hill, acceſſible only by a narrow Paſſage for one Man in front. It was taken from the Turks by the King of Poland in 1683. Watzeu, 11 miles South-East of Novigrad on the Danube, is a ſtrong Town, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Gran. In the middle of the River here lies the Iſle of St. Andrew, which is 8 miles long, and 3 broad.

12. Newſol and Altenſol, which ſome make 2 Counties, and others Part of Novigrad, lies North of it. Newſol the Capital lies 50 miles North of Novigrad, is a handſome Town defended by a Caſtle, and has a Church cover'd with Copper, which belongs to the Lutherans. It is reckon'd the 3d of the Mine Towns, has a good Market in Proviſions, with Silver Mines, and the beſt Copper Mines of Hungary in the neighbourhood, with Furnaces for extracting Silver from the Copper. The Inhabitants are a mix'd People, and ſpeak Hungarian, Wendiſh and German. Hermgrundt, about a mile frome hence is noted for a rich Copper Mine, which yields from 20 to 60 Pounds per hundred Weight of Oar. They produce alſo white, green, blue and red tranſparent Vitriol, and that called Berg Green us'd by Painters. Here are alſo Stones of a beautiful Green and Blue, upon ſome of which are Turquoiſes. Here are two Springs, which in 14 days time turn Iron into Copper, and the worſt ſort into better Copper than that of the Ore, which muſt be often melted before it be uſeful; whereas that made of Iron is very malleable and eaſily melted. Dr. Brown ſays, That this Mine, for the number of Paſſages and Workmen, looks like a great ſubterranean City, and that they yield the Emperor 120000 l. Sterling per annum. He mentions alſo Boinitz in this County, on the Eaſt ſide of the River Nitra, which is noted for good Baths. Altenſol, 9 miles South of Newſol is noted for Silver Mines. Here are ſeveral other Towns, whoſe Mines are ruined by Invaſions and Neglect. Cremnitz, on the Frontiers of Nitra, 7 miles North-Weſt of Altſol, and which ſome place in the County of Turocz, is reckoned the Chief of the Mine Towns. It is large, and defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, ſuppoſed to ſtand on the higheſt Mountain in Hungary. Dr. Brown ſays, it is famous for its Gold Mines, which has been work'd 900 years, and is the richeſt of the ſeven in thoſe Parts. He ſays 'tis 10 Engliſh miles long, has a Horizontal Paſſage 170 foot deep, and 800 fathom long. It has 6 perpendicular Pits, by which the Miners go up and down. One of them is 150 fathom high. They are all lin'd with Planks to prevent the Earth from falling in; moſt of the Veins run to the North-Eaſt, and the Miners direct themſelves by a Compaſs. The Gold Ore is of ſeveral Colours, of which the beſt is the white, with black ſpots. They try the Ore by waſhing it, after 'tis pounded, in a ſmall River that runs by the Town, and is divided into ſeveral artificial Channels, which run continually over the Ore, and waſhes the earthy Part from the Metalline. There have been pieces of pure Gold found here as broad as the Palm of one's Hand. They convey the Ore to the bottom of the Pit, from whence 'tis drawn up, in a little Chariot with 4 Wheels, with a Tongue of Iron at the bottom, which being fitted to a Channel of Wood cut in the middle of each Paſſage, can't alter its Courſe; ſo that a little Boy eaſily drives it before him without any Light, till he comes to the bottom of the Pit, from whence 'tis drawn up, and returns the ſame way. Theſe Chariots carry 3 or 400 Weight of Ore. Here is alſo Vitriol of ſeveral Colours; Antimony of Gold, and ſeveral ſorts of Chryſtal, ſome of them yellow, and there is abundance of Gold duſt in the Hills. Here is a Mint, where they coin Ducats and other Pieces.

13. Gomer, lies Eaſt from Novigrad, has no Place of Note but a little Town of the ſame Name, about 18 miles South-Weſt of Torna.

14. Honten, or Sag, lies South of Gomer, has no Place of Note but Agria, or Erla, which ſome place in the County of Barzod. It lies 32 miles South-Eaſt of Gomer; is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Gran, one of the ſtrongeſt and moſt regularly fortified Towns in Hungary. It has alſo a ſtrong Caſtle on a neighbouring Hill, and repuls'd the Turks ſeveral times with great Loſs. They took it at laſt, but the Imperialiſts retook it in 1685, after 3 years Blockade, wherein 10000 Turks died of Hunger, &c.

15. Barzod, lies North-Eaſt of Honten. The Capital is of the ſame Name, 28 miles North-Eaſt of Agria, but 'tis chiefly noted for Tockay, 38 miles North-Eaſt from Agria, on the River Bodrock, but ſome place it in the County of Semlyn. It is ſtrong, defended by a Citadel, and lies in a marſhy Plain, in an Iſland form'd by the Teyſſe and Bodrock. It was ſeveral times taken and retaken during the laſt Wars. It is famous for its Wine, reckoned the beſt in Hungary, much eſteem'd all over Europe, and ſold at a great Price.

16. Abavivar, lies North of Barzod, the only Town of note in Caſſovia, or Caſchaw, 15 miles South-Weſt of Eſperies; it was formerly Capital of Hungary, yet govern'd in form of a Republick. It is govern'd now by a Deputy from the Emperor, frequented by Perſons of Quality, is well built and fortify'd, has a ſtrong Citadel and Garriſon, and the beſt Arſenal in the Nation. The Air is not good, and their Wine being ting'd with Chalk, cauſes Lameneſs in the Joints; but when carried to Poland, or elſewhere, purifies itſelf, and brings them a great Trade. The People ſpeak Hungarian and German, and have Sermons by turns in both

17. Semlyn, lies Eaſt of Barzod, and has no Town but a ſmall one of its own Name, 22 miles South-Eaſt of Caſſovia.

18. Bereg, lies North-Eaſt from Semlyn, has a ſmall Town of its own Name; but the Place of chief Note is the Fortreſs of Mongatz, 32 miles Eaſt from Semlyn, one of the ſtrongeſt in Hungary. It ſtands on a Rock encompaſſed with Moraſſes, and has 3 Caſtles one above another, each of them encompaſſed by a Trench cut out of the Rock, and the higher commands the lower; Princeſs Ragotski held it out for ſeveral Years againſt the Imperialiſts, who were forc'd to turn the Siege into a Blockade. They got her at laſt to ſurrender by Artfice rather than by Force, her Husband, Count Teckly, not being in a condition to relieve her.

19. Moromarus, lies Eaſt of Bereg, has a ſtrong Town of its own Name, on the Frontiers of Tranſilvania, noted for Salt Mines in the neighbourhood, which are as hard as Marble, and Fountains that change Iron into Copper. Huſt and Sigeth in the North-Weſt Corner of this County, on the Frontiers of Bereg, are 2 ſmall Fortreſſes.

20. Ugogh, lies South from Moromarus, and has only one Town of its own Name.

21. Peſt, lies South from Novograd and Honten, on the Eaſt ſide of the Danube. It has no Place of Note but Peſt the Capital, on the other ſide of the Danube, over-againſt Buda, with which it communicates by a Bridge of Boats half a mile long. It is a large ſquare Town, and by its fair Walls and Moſques, forms a delicate Proſpect. It was recover'd by the Imperialiſts, together with Buda, in 1683.

22. Heuecz, is Eaſt from Peſt, has a Town of its own Name 32 miles Eaſt of Peſt, and another call'd Hatwan, 17 miles North Eaſt of Peſt, and by ſome reckoned in that County a ſmall fortify'd Town, recover'd by the Imperialiſts in 1683.

23. Zolnock, South from Heuecz, has a Town of its own Name near the Conflux of the Teyſſe and Zagiwa, a very ſtrong Place, almoſt encompaſs'd by the Rivers.

24. Beth, or Baia, lies South from Zolnock, on the Eaſt-ſide of the Danube, has no Place of Note but Colocza on the Eaſt-ſide of the Danube, 36 miles South-Weſt of Zolnock a fortified Town, and the See of an Archbiſhop.

25. Bodrock, South-Eaſt from Beth on the Eaſt-ſide of the Danube, betwixt that River and the Teyſſe. Places of Note are, 1. Bodrock the Capital, a fortified Town on the Eaſt-ſide of the Danube, 42 miles South-Eaſt from Colocza, and has good Paſtures in the Neighbourhood. 2. Segedin, on the Weſt-ſide of the Teyſſe, 30 miles Eaſt from Bodrock, is very ſtrong, and was taken by the Imperialiſts in 1686, after defeating the Turks who came to relieve it.

26. Chonad, lies Eaſt of Bodrock, has a Town of the ſame Name, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Colocza, 24 miles Eaſt of Segedin. Tilul by ſome reckoned in this County, and by others in Bodrock, a Fortreſs on the Weſt-ſide of the Teyſſe, 46 miles South from Segedin.

27. Czongrad, to which ſome join Orodi, lies Eaſt from Beth, and South from Bodrock and Chonad. Places of Note are, 1. Czongrad the Capital on the Eaſt ſide of the Teyſſe, 17 miles North of Segedin. 2. Giula, 30 miles Eaſt of Czongrad, a ſtrong Fortreſs in a Peninſula, form'd by the Lake Zarkad. It was taken by the Turks in 1566, but recovered by the Imperialiſts during the late War. 3. Great Waradin, lies in an Iſland of the River Kerers, 30 miles North of Giula. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Colocza, fortified with a ſtrong Caſtle on the Eaſt ſide, firm Ramparts, 5 Royal Baſtions, a regular Ditch ſupplied with Water from the River; and within it there is another Incloſure of a high Wall and Baſtions, which ſerve inſtead of a Citadel. It was taken by the Crim Tartars in 1242; after which it fell under the Princes of Tranſilvania, was taken from them by the Turks in 1660, and recover'd by the Imperialiſts in 1692.

28. Thurtur, lies Weſt of Czongrad, has beſides its Capital of the ſame Name, betwixt the Rivers Teyſſe and Kalo, St. Nicholas, a fortified Town 12 miles South from it, taken from the Turks by the Imperialiſts in 1686.

29. Bichor, which ſome call Kalo, from the River that runs through it, lies North of Thurtur. Places of Note are, 1. Debrezin, in the North ſide of the County, 35 miles North-Weſt from Great Waradin. It is a ſtrong Fortreſs, was taken by the Turks in 1684, retaken the ſame year by the Imperialiſts, and is noted for a Schola Illuſtris. 2. Bichor, which ſome place in the County of Czongrad, is a ſmall fortified Town, with a Bridge over the River Kalo, 6 miles North from Great Waradin.

30. Zathmar, lies Eaſt from Bichor. Its Capital is of the ſame Name, 51 miles North-Eaſt from Great Waradin, on the River Samos, with which 'tis in a manner encompaſſed. It was taken by the Turks in 1654, and recovered afterwards by the Tranſilvanians; Prince Ragotski, who delivered it to the Emperor in 1660, thought to have recover'd it after the death of his Father Michael Abaſſi, Prince of Tranſilvania; but thoſe who ſhould have delivered it to him were diſcovered. Count Teckly took it in 1680, but the Imperialiſts recovered it in 1682. It is reckon'd a very ſtrong Place. St. Job lies on a River, 27 miles North-Eaſt from Great Waradin, and 33 miles South-Eaſt from Zathmar, and was taken by the Imperialiſts in 1685.

LOWER HUNGARY is ſo called, becauſe all of it, except part of the County of Comorra, lies on the lower ſide of the Danube, as one comes from Germany and Poland. It is divided into 14 Counties, as follows;

1. Comorra, is Eaſt and South from that of Presburg, and the greateſt part of it on the South ſide of the Danube, and conſiſts of many Iſlands form'd by that River and others; the two chief Iſlands are the Great and Little Schutt. Places of Note are, 1. Comorra, on the Eaſt corner of an Iſland, where the Branches of the Danube and the other Rivers unite, 40 miles South Eaſt of Presburg. It is very ſtrong by Nature and Art, and was the chief Bulwark againſt the Turks, after they took Gran. It has ſeveral Caſtles, beſides Baſtions and other Fortifications, and there is a pleaſant Proſpect from hence over the neighbouring Country. 2. Newhauſel, a very ſtrong Town, 37 miles Eaſt from Presburg, ſtorm'd by the Duke of Lorrain in 1685.

2. Nuſon, South-Weſt of Comorra: Places of Note are, 1. Altenburg the Capital, 15 miles South-Eaſt from Presburg, a well fortified Town in an Iſland. 2. Mouſon, at the ſide of the Newſidler Sea, or Lake, 12 miles North-Weſt of Altenburg, and is defended by a Caſtle, and of difficult approach, becauſe of Moraſſes.

3. Sopron Edenburg, or Oedenburg, is South-Weſt of Mouſon. The only Town of Note is Edenburg, 9 miles South-Weſt of the Newſidler Sea, Capital of Lower Hungary, the Place where the States meet, and where their Kings us'd to be crown'd. Newſidler Sea, or Lake, in this County, is 26 miles long, and 9 miles broad; abounds with Fiſh, has many ſmall Towns and Villages on its Banks, particularly Neuſidle, which give it Name, and has a fine Caſtle and Market-Place. Near this Town they make Saltpetre from a black Earth, and near Alſemberg there is a middling Subſtance betwixt Clay and Stone, called Liver-Stones, naturally impreſſed with the Figures of Trees and Leaves.

4. Caſtriſirren, or Sarwar, South of Sopron, has a Capital of its own Name, at the Conflux of the Guntz and Raab, 35 miles South Eaſt from Edenburgh. 2. St. Godard on the ſame River, noted for a great Victory of the Imperialiſts over the Turks in 1664.

5. Javarin, or Raab, North-Eaſt of Sarwar. Places of Note are, 1. Javarin, or Raab, 28 miles North-Eaſt from Sarwar, in an Iſland formed by the Raab at its conflux with the Danube. It is very ſtrong by Nature and Art, has 2 Bridges over the Branches of the River, and ſeveral Antique Arms in the Magazine. 2. Thata, another fortified Town, 18 miles Eaſt of it.

6. Gran, or Strigonium, South-Eaſt of Javarin. Places of Note are, 1. Gran, or Strigonium the Capital, 35 miles Eaſt of Raab. It is a conſiderable ſiderable City, was formerly the Seat of their Kings, and is the See of an Archbiſhop, who by his Place is Primate Chancellor, and Preſident of the Council of Hungary. It is divided into Upper and Lower, and well fortified. The Lower Town commands the Danube. Here are many noble Structures, of which the Palace, the Archbiſhop's Caſtle and the Cathedral are chief. It has been the Seat of many great Actions. The Town was taken, and the Turks routed before it in 1595. by Arch-Duke Matthias, when Sir Thomas Arundel of Wardor Caſtle in Wiltſhire ſtorm'd one of the Towers, and pulled down the Turkiſh Standard, for which the Emperor made him a Count of the Empire, and King James I. made him a Baron of England, which Honours are ſtill enjoy'd by his Poſterity. The Elector of Bavaria and Duke of Lorrain defeated the Turks who came to beſiege it in 1685. The adjacent Country is fruitful, and produces generous Wine. 2. Vizegrad, on the Danube, 6 miles South-Eaſt from Gran, has 2 ſtrong Caſtles, one on a Rock, where the Crown of Hungary was formerly kept.

7. Pelyez, or the County of Buda, is South-Eaſt of Gran. Buda, or Offen, the Capital, is 30 miles South-Eaſt of Gran, and was Capital of Hungary, till the Turks took it in the 16th Century. It lies on the ſide of a Hill, that deſcends towards the Danube, which is a quarter of a League broad, and has a Bridge of Boats over to Peſt. It was large, rich, populous and very ſtrong, and had magnificent Palaces and other Structures, but it decay'd much after taken a ſecond time by the Turks in 1529. It continued in their Hands till 1686, when the Duke of Lorrain took it by Storm, after defeating the Turks that came to relieve it. The moſt ſumptuous Structures now remaining are their Inns, Moſques, Bridges and Baths; they have 8 of the latter in and about the Town, which Dr. Brown ſays are the fineſt in Europe, for large Springs and magnificent Buildings; ſome of them are both for bathing and and drinking; ſome of them ſo hot, that they can't be us'd till mix'd with cold Water, or convey'd to cool in other Baths. They have a ſulphurous ſmell, and a petrifying quality. The Emperor has new fortify'd the Town ſince it came into his Hands. There is a conſiderable Iſland below the City called Ratzemark, or St. Margaret, 23 miles long, and 8 broad, and has a Town and ſeveral Villages.

8. Alba Regalis, lies Weſt of Pelyez. The only Place of Note is Alba Regalis, alias Stul-Weiſſemberg, 30 miles South-Weſt of Buda, on the River Zarwiſſa. It is covered on one ſide by Moraſſes, and well fortified. It has 3 Cauſeways to the firm Land, and was formerly the Place where the Kings dwelt, were crown'd and buried. It is large and well built, and was ſurrendred by the Turks in 1688, after a long Blockade.

9. Veſprin, or Weſtprinienſis, lies Weſt of Alba Regalis. Places of Note are Veſprin, 11 miles Weſt of Alba Regalis, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Gran, who is Chancellor to the Queens of Hungary, and has a right to crown them. It is defended by a Fort on a neighbouring Hill. 2. Papa, which ſome place in this County, and others in Raab, 20 miles North-Weſt of Veſprin. It is ſtrong, and was ſeveral times taken and re-taken during the late Wars. 3. The Lake Balaton on the South ſide of the County, is 48 miles long, 7 or 8 broad, abounds with Fiſh, and has ſeveral Forts on its Banks, built againſt the Incurſions of the Turks. The River Zarawitza riſes from it, and falls into the Danube.

10. Saladien, or Salawar, is South-Weſt of Veſprin. It has a Town of its own Name, at the Weſt end of Lake Balaton; but the chief Place is Kaniſcha, 13 miles South-Weſt of Lake Balaton, is a ſtrong Town in the middle of a Marſh. It was ſurrendred to the Imperialiſts in 1690. for want of Proviſions, after a long Blockade, when the Turkiſh Governor told the Imperial General, That he had yielded to him the ſtrongeſt Fortreſs of the Ottoman Empire. St. Jerome was born at Strido, in this County, now a ruinous Town.

11. Sigeth, or Sigeten, is Eaſt of Salawar. The Capital Sigeth, 62 miles South-Eaſt of Kaniſcha; ſtands on an Iſland in the River Aina, has Marſhes on 3 ſides, is very well fortified, defended by a ſtrong Caſtle beyond the Iſland, and has only one Paſſage on the ſide of the firm Land, defended by 2 Baſtions. The Turks ſurrendred it in 1689. after 2 years Blockade.

12. Simigien, or Egzard, North-Eaſt of Sigeth, has only one Place of Note, called Dambe.

13. Tolnen, or Tolna, is South of Simigien. The Capital Tolna is near the Danube, noted for a Victory by the Huns over the Romans, of whom 40000 were killed. It is fortified, and was taken by the Imperialiſts in 1686.

14. Varanien, or Baranywar, is South of Zolna. The Capital is of the ſame Name. Other Places of Note are, (1.) Mohacz, or Mohatz, a ſmall Town near the Danube, 31 miles South-Eaſt of Colocza, remarkable for the Defeat and Death of Lewis II. King of Hungary, who, in 1526, with 20000 Men, engaged 300000 Turks; after which they conquer'd moſt of the Kingdom; and on the ſame Ground the Duke of Lorrain and Elector of Bavaria, in 1687, obtained a great Victory over the Prime Viſir. (2.) Funf-Kirchen, or Five Churches, 31 miles South-Eaſt of Sigeth, a ſtrong Town, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Gran. Prince Lewis of Baden recover'd it from the Turks in 1686. (3.) Darda, 8 miles North-Weſt of Eſſeck, a ſtrong Fortreſs near the Mouth of the Drave, that covers one end of the Bridge of Eſſeck, was taken by the Germans in 1697. as was Sicklos, a fortify'd Town about 20 miles Weſt of it.

SCLAVONIA

HAS Lower Hungary on the North, the River Save which divides it from Croatia, Boſnia and Servia on the South; has Stiria on the Weſt, and the Danube on the Eaſt; is 231 miles Eaſt and Weſt, and 50 where broadeſt South and North. The Name came from the Sclavi, ſuppoſed to be of Scythian Extraction. They were formerly a mighty People, as appears by the extent of their Language, which is ſpoke here, in Hungary, Turkey in Europe, Poland, Muſcovy and Bohemia. The Venetians firſt put a ſtop to their Conqueſts, and to keep them under, oblig'd them to hard Labour, from whence ſome derive our Engliſh Word Slaves.

The Air is temperate, and they have plenty of Corn, Cattle and Paſturage. The People are ſtrong and martial. Thoſe who live on the Banks of the Save, as well as the Serviane, are commonly nam'd Raſcians. As to their Religion, they are partly Romaniſts and partly Greeks. It is divided into the 6 following Counties.

I. ZAGRAB, which has Stiria on the Weſt. The only Place of Note is Zagrab, or Agram, on the Save, 50 miles South-Weſt of Kaniſcha. It is Capital of the County, populous, well fortify'd, and the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Celocza.

II. WARASDIN, lies North from Zagrab. Places of Note are, 1. Waraſdin its Capital, near an Iſland in the Drave, 20 miles South-Weſt of Kaniſcha. It is ſmall, but well fortified. 2. Coppronitz, 20 miles South-Eaſt of Waraſdin, is another ſmall City, well fortified.

III. KREISS, or HOLY CROSS, has a Capital of the ſame Name, 21 miles South-Weſt of Waraſdin.

IV. POSEGA, is the largeſt County of Sclavonia, lies South-Eaſt from Waraſdin and Zagrab. Places of Note are, 1. Poſega, or Poſon, Capital of all Sclavonia, 100 miles South-Eaſt from Zagrab, upon a River that falls into the Save, 14 miles South from it. It is well fortified, has a good Trade and Juriſdiction over 400 Villages. It was taken by the Imperialiſts in 1687. 2. Gradiſca, on the Save, 30 miles Weſt of Poſega, a ſtrong Town, taken by the Imperialiſts in 1691. 3. Verovitzia, or Werowitz, near the Drave, 45 miles North of Gradiſca, a ſtrong Town, taken by the Imperialiſts in 1684.

V. VALCON, or WALPON, lies Eaſt of Poſega, and has a Capital of the ſame Name, which ſome Place, but wrong, in Poſega, from which it lies 35 miles North-Eaſt, in an Iſland form'd by a River of the ſame Name, and is noted for being defended 3 Months by the Governour of Sclavonia's Lady againſt the Turks, who were obliged to raiſe the Siege with great Loſs. 2. Eſſeck, 45 miles North-Eaſt of Valpo, on the South ſide the Drave, and 5 miles Weſt from the Danube. It appears to have been a Roman Colony, by a fair Inſcription on one of its Gates. It is famous for its Bridge over the Branches of the Drave and Moraſſes for 5 miles. Dr. Brown ſays it had handſome Towers at each quarter of a mile, rail'd in, and ſupported by large Piles of Wood, 9 or 10 in a rank for each Arch, with Stairs to the Marſhes on both ſides. It was a beautiful and ſtupendous piece of Workmanſhip, but deſtroyed by the Imperialiſts in their late Wars with the Turks, who uſed to invade Hungary by this Bridge. The Imperialiſts took the Town in 1687. It is large and populous, well furniſhed with Inns and Shops, but the Houſes being of Wood, and the Streets plank'd, inſtead of being pav'd, 'tis very ſubject to Fire.

VI. SZEREM, or SIRMIA, lies Eaſt and South from Valkon. Places of Note are, 1. Szerem, or Sirmiſch, the ancient Sirmium, upon a River that falls into the Save, 40 miles South of Eſſeck, is an ancient Town, was the Reſidence and Birth-Place of ſeveral Roman Emperors, and famous for a Victory which Clodius, ſirnamed Gothicus, obtained here over the Goths, and other barbarous People; but 'tis now inconſiderable. 2. Carlowitz, on the Danube, 29 miles North-Eaſt of Szerem, and 32 miles South-Eaſt of Eſſeck, noted for a Peace concluded here in 1698. betwixt the Emperor, the Czar of Muſcovy, the King of Poland and the Venetians on one part, and the Turks on the other. 3. Peterwaradin, on the Danube, 3 miles South-Eaſt of Carlowitz, frequently taken and re-taken during the late Wars, and made ſtrong by the Emperor in 1691. 4. Salankemen, 6 miles South-Eaſt of Peterwaradin, near the Danube, noted for a great Victory over the Turks by Prince Lewis of Baden in 1691. and for another betwixt this Place and Peterwaradin, in 1716, by Prince Eugene. 5. Illock, 20 miles North-Weſt of Salankemen, and Semlin 16 miles South-Eaſt of it, are Places frequently mentioned in the late Wars.

CROATIA

LIES South Weſt of Sclavonia, was formerly reckoned Part of Pannonia Superior, or Illyricum, and gave Name to a large Kingdom that reach'd from the Drave to the Adriatic Sea, but Croatia now properly ſo call'd, has the Save on the North, Morlachia on the Weſt, Boſnia on the Eaſt, and Dalmatia on the South. It is about 80 miles long, and 80 broad, produces plenty of Corn, Wine, Oil and other Neceſſaries. The Inhabitants nam'd Croats, or Crabats, are hardy and brave, and their Horſe frequently made uſe of by the German Princes for Guards. Their Foot called Uskoks, are noted for their Agility. Moſt of this Country is poſſeſſed by the Emperor, and called Auſtrian Croatia.

Places of Note are,

1. Carlſtad, on a River that falls into the Save, 26 miles South-Weſt of Zagrab. It is very ſtrong, and always provided with a good Garriſon, at the Charge of thoſe of Carniola, to whom it ſerves as a Barrier againſt the Turks. It is the Seat of the Ban or Governor of Croatia.

2. Siſeg, or Siſaken, at the Conflux of another River with the Save, a ſtrong Town, remarkable for holding out againſt the Turks, and their Defeat before it in 1593. Some place it in the County of Zagrab.

3. Caſtanovitz, a ſtrong Caſtle near the River Unna, 40 miles North-Eaſt of Carlſtat, taken by the Imperialiſts in 1688. The River Unna is the Boundary on this ſide betwixt the Emperor and the Turk, by the Treaty of Paſſarowitz, in 1718.

SERVIA

HAS Hungary on the North, Greece on the South, Boſnia and Dalmatia on the Weſt, and Wallachia and Bulgaria on the Eaſt. It is 220 miles South-Eaſt and North-Weſt, but the breadth unequal, the greateſt being 140, and in other Places from 75 to 15. The Air is temperate, and the Soil ſo fruitful, that the Romans call'd it a Granary. It is pleaſant, intermix'd with Plains, Woods and Hills that produce Wine, Corn and Metals. It is well Water'd, and has excellent Horſes, but not well Cultivated. The People are charg'd with Cruelty, Robbery and Drunkenneſs. Moſt of them are Greeks, but of ſo little Religion, that they frequently ſell their Children to the Turks. A great part of this Country was yielded to the Emperor by the Treaty of Paſſarowitz.

Places

Places of Note are,

1. Belgrade, alias Greeks-Weiſſenburg, the Capital, Lat. 45. 24. Lon. 22. 35. 67 miles South-East from Eſſeck. It is Capital of the Country, lies on a Hill at the Conflux of the Save and Danube on the South ſide, and by Art and Situation one of the ſtrongeſt Cities in Europe. It is large, and well ſeated for Trade, becauſe of the Danube, Save, Drave, Theyſſe, and other navigable Rivers, that bring Goods from the neighbouring Countries. It is the chief Mart in thoſe Parts. The Merchants of Raguſa, Vienna, &c. have Factories here, and the Armenians have a Church, and the Jews a Synagogue. It has undergone many Sieges, was taken by the Turks in 1521, and continued in their hands till 1688, when the Elector of Bavaria took it by Storm. The Turks took it again in 1690, but it was retaken by Prince Eugene in 1718, after a great Victory over the Turks, who came to relieve it. The Danube, though very broad here, is ſo rapid, that its Waters do not mix with thoſe of the Save for a great way. The City, though large, is but indifferently built, and their Shops are ſmall; but they have large Bezeſtans, and two Exchanges for their chief Commodities. Here is likewiſe a ſtately Caravanſera, or Public Inn, built by a Grand Vizier, and a College for young Students.

2. Semendria, near the Danube, at the Mouth of a River which falls into it 32 miles South-East of Belgrade, is a ſtrong Town, has ſeveral times been taken by the Turks and Imperialiſts, and is now in poſſeſſion of the Emperor.

3. Vidin, or Widin, at the Mouth of the Lom, where it falls into the Danube.

TRANSILVANIA

HAS Hungary and the County of Temeſwaer on the Weſt, Part of Poland and Moldavia on the Eaſt, and part of Wallachia on the South. It was ſo called becauſe it lies beyond the Foreſts, which divide it from Hungary. The Germans call it Sibenbergen from its ſeven chief Towns. It was formerly a diſtinct Kingdom, and afterwards united to Hungary. It has been governed ſince by ſeveral Princes of its own, who ſometimes put themſelves under the Protection of the Emperor, and ſometimes under the Turks. It was reſigned by Prince Abaffi, and to the States by the Emperor in 1688; and the Turks have reſigned it ſince by the Treaties of Carlowitz and Paſſarowitz, but Prince Ragotski ſtill lays Pretenſions to it. It is 120 miles Eaſt and Weſt, and 105 South and North. The Air is temperate, but the Water, which paſſes through many Mines, is unwholſome, tho' not quite ſo bad as that of Hungary. It is apt to occaſion the Cholic and Sciatica; and their Wine, though eſteemed excellent, has ſuch a Tincture of Chalk and Sulphur, that it is ſaid to occaſion the Gout. Here is Plenty of Corn, Fruit, Wine, Honey, Wax. In their numerous Mountains they have Mines of Gold, Quickſilver, Salt, Lead, and others. Here are many Foreſts that abound with Game, ſuch as Buffaloes, Elks, Wild Goats, &c. Their Wheat is extraordinary good and plentiful, ſhoots up to a great Height, and the Blade is as thick as that of an ordinary Reed. Their Horſes are much eſteemed, and they have great Herds of Black Cattle, which ſell well in Auſtria. The Country is inhabited by Saxons, Hungarians and Siculi, who have their particular Diſtricts and Laws. The Siculi and Hungarians are for moſt part Calviniſts, and the Saxons, Lutherans; but there is a mixture of Papiſts, Greeks, Photinians, Anti-Trinitarians, and Anabaptiſts.

The Entrance into the Country is by 7 Paſſes, made by ſo many Rivers, are ſtrait, and eaſy to be defended. The firſt Paſs is on the ſide of Hungary, where the River Kercs runs into it, which winds ſo often, that it muſt be paſs'd 30 times. The Stream is violent, and ſo eaſily ſwelled, that Paſſengers are often obliged to go far about. The ſecond is that called the Iron Gate, near the Frontiers of Wallachia. The third is on the River Aluta, South-Eaſt from Hermanſtat. The fourth at Cronſtat, near the Frontiers of Moldavia. The fifth in the Country of the Siculi, near Chyck. The ſixth at Biſtricia in the North-Weſt Corner of the Country; and the ſeventh near Dees, by the River Samos: And all thoſe Paſſes are defended by Forts and Garriſons.

Their Civil Government is by Seven Judges, who have their particular Diſtricts, and over them a ſupreme Judge, choſen by the whole, and confirmed by the Prince. The Calviniſts Churches are governed by Preſbyters, and the Lutherans by Chapters, with a Dean and Superintendent; the former choſe once a Year, and the latter are continued or diſplaced at pleaſure by the Chapters who chuſe them.

The Siculi inhabit the North part of the Country, and are ſuppoſed to be deſcended of the ancient Scythians or Huns. They value themſelves upon their Antiquity, and have made ſeveral Revolts to recover their Liberty, but all in vain. They are divided into 7 independent Cantons, or Counties, but all ſubject to the general Laws.

Their Counties are,

I. MARKOZECK, at the foot of the Carpathian Mountains. The chief Towns are, 1. Markos, 50 miles North-East of Clauſenburg; and, 2. Newmarck, 37 miles North-East of Clauſenburg, a large Town, where their General Dyet meets.

II. JURGIO, East from Markos.

III. UTVARTHEL, East from Jurgio.

IV. CHYCK, North-East of Newmark.

V. KYSDI, East from Chyck.

VI. ORBAY, East of Kyſdi.

VII. CHEPSI, North-West of Cronſtat.

They have all of them Capitals of their own Names, but of no great Note.

The Saxons inhabit five Counties.

I. ATLAND, where Places of Note are,

1. Hermanſtat, Lat. 46. 38. 36 miles West from the Frontiers of Wallachia. It is reckoned Capital of Tranſilvania, was formerly the Reſidence of the Prince, lies on the River Cibin, which falls into the Aluta, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Colocza in Hungary, and the Reſidence of the Governour. It is ſurrounded with Fiſh-ponds and Pools, and very well fortified. The River is conveyed through the Streets in ſmall Channels, but the Air unwholſome, and the Inhabitants troubled with the Gout, which occaſions its being ill-inhabited, though the Courts of Juſtice, and the General Dyet of the Saxon Counties are held here. Their chief Trade is in Cloth and Mead. It is a Granary for the whole Country, and they keep Corn here many Years under Ground without Damage. The neighbouring Country is very hot in Summer and cold in Winter. They had formerly a conſiderable Trade, a College, and a good Library, but now it is much decayed by Perſecution and the Severity of the Government.

2. Saltzburg, a mile from hence, yields a conſiderable Revenue to the Prince by its Salt Mines.

3. Michelsberg, being a ſtrong Fortreſs on the top of a Hill, 15 miles South-Weſt of Hermanſtat, where the Arms and Ammunition for the whole Province are kept.

4. Hetten, 22 miles South-East of Hermanſtat, has a ſtrong Caſtle, and a conſiderable Trade in Cloth, Sickles, and Fruit.

5. Gilsburg, 5 miles from Hermanſtat, noted for Salt Mines.

6. Agnabat, 18 miles North-East of Hermanſtat, one of the chief Towns of Tranſilvania.

II. LANDVORDEMWALD, lies Weſt of Hermanſtat, and has no Town of Note but Millenbach, 22 miles Weſt of Hermanſtat.

III. BURCKLAND, lies North-East of Hermanſtat.

Places of Note are,

1. Cromſtat, or Cronſtat, 48 miles North-East of Hermanſtat on the Frontiers of Moldavia. It is ſurrounded with fair and rich Vineyards, and altogether inhabited by Saxons, whoſe Language is much the ſame with that of Lower Saxony. It is the See of a Biſhop, has a good School, the beſt Library in the Country, and a great Fair once a Year. Here lies the Foreſt of Zeidenwald, which is 10 miles long. The Country is ſo marſhy, that in many Places they travel on Planks.

2. Mergenburg, 12 miles North-Weſt, and has a good Trade.

IV. VELNLAND lies North-Weſt of Hermanſtat.

Places of Note are,

1. Segeſwar, alias Segesburg, 35 miles North of Hermanſtat, on the Front of a Hill, at the Conflux of two Rivers. It is divided into Upper and Lower, well fortified, populous, has a Manufacture of Cloth, good Vineyards, and a fine College on the neighbouring Hills.

2. Megies, or Megeſwaerd, 17 miles South-Weſt from Segeſwar, in a Plain full of noble Vineyard, from whence the neighbouring Country is called Wine-Land. It is defended by a Church, built in form of a Caſtle, on a neighbouring Hill, according to the Cuſtom of that Country, by which they make one Charge ſerve for both.

V. NESNERLAND, North-Weſt of Hermanſtat. The only Place of Note here is Neſenſtat, or Biſtries, 85 miles North-Weſt of Hermanſtat, on the River Biſtries, at the foot of the Carpathian Mountains, in a ſpacious Plain. The Town is neat, the third of the Saxon Towns of Dignity, encompaſſed with Hills, which bear good Vines, but their Water occaſions ſtrumous Swellings, Deafneſs, Dumbneſs, &c.

Rodua, 4 miles from hence, is noted for Gold Mines, and Gold is found in the Sand of the neighbouring Rivulets.

The Hungarians inhabit the ſix following Counties:

I. ALBA-JULIA, Weſt from Hermanſtat.

Places of Note are,

1. Alba-Julia, alias Weyſſenburg, 27 miles Weſt of Hermanſtat. It had its Name from Julia, Mother to Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Pius, as appears by an Inſcription in the Church of St. Michael. It was the Seat of the Kings of Dacia, and afterward of the Princes of Tranſilvania. Here is a ſplendid Palace, ſo well fortified, that it is reckoned impregnable, and a Gun ſo large, that it requires ſome Hundreds of Oxen to draw it. The City was formerly much larger. It is ſtill 2 miles broad, and lies on the Front of a Hill. It is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Colocza, and has an Univerſity.

2. Keresbania, a ſmall City, 40 miles North-Weſt, noted for a Silver Mine.

II. HUNIAD, lies South of Hermanſtat, has a Capital of the ſame Name, and Offenburg, another neat Town.

III. THORDA, or WYNBURG, has a Capital of the ſame Name, remarkable for Salt Mines, which yield the Prince a great Revenue.

IV. DOBOKA has only one ſmall Town, noted for a fine College.

V. COLOSWAR, or CLAUSENBERG County lies North-Weſt from Weiſſenburg.

Clauſenberg, the Capital, is 35 miles North-Weſt from Weiſſenburg, is large, populous, and the Place where the States of Tranſilvania meet. It is very well fortified, and inhabited by Saxons and Hungarians, who are promiſcuouſly admitted to Offices. It is a place of conſiderable Trade.

2. Broſs or Zazuaros, 16 miles South-Weſt from Weiſſenburg, is a neat City, and by an Inſcription on one of the Gates to the Emperor Trajan, appears to have been a Roman Colony.

3. Deva, 28 miles South-Weſt from Weiſſenburg, noted for excellent Wine, and defending the Paſs through the Iron Gate into the Turkiſh Dominions.

VI. ZATMAR, South from Cronſtat, the Capital. Newſtat is noted for a Gold Mine in the Neighbourhood, and lies about 4 miles South from Cronſtat. Kiver, in this County, is alſo noted for Mines of Gold and Silver.

The

The County and Province of TEMESWAER

LIES South of Upper Hungary and Tranſilvania, has Wallachia on the East, the River Teyſſe on the Weſt, and the Danube on the South. It is in part ſeparated from Tranſilvania by the Mountains of the Iron Gate, is 126 miles from East to Weſt, and about 55 where broadeſt North and South.

The chief Places are,

1. Temeſwaer, the Capital, on the River Temes, 33 miles North-East of Belgrade. It is a large ſtrong Town, and ſuppoſed to be the Temæa whither Ovid was baniſhed. It was taken by the Turks in 1552, after a vigorous Defence. They did afterwards fortify it, ſo that they thought it impregnable, and kept it till 1718, when it was taken by the Imperialiſts, and was, together with the Province, confirmed to the Emperor by the Treaty of Paſſarowitz.

2. Lippa, on the Mariſch, 20 miles North-East from Temeſwaer, a ſtrong Town, yielded to the Turks by the Treaty of Carlowitz, but given to the Emperor by that of Paſſarowitz.

3. Carenſebes, 47 miles North-East of Temeſwaer, a Town of Note near that Paſs called the Iron Gate, which leads into Tranſilvania.

4. Beche, near the Conflux of the Teyſſe and Danube, 36 miles South-East of Temeſwaer, memorable for a Victory obtained by Prince Eugene over the Turks in 1697.

TURKEY in Europe.

IT includes not only what the Grand Seignior poſſeſſes as a Sovereign, but thoſe Countries or Principalities which are under his Protection, as the Tartars, &c. So that in this ſenſe his European Dominions, including the Iſlands in the Archipelago, extend from Lat. 35. to Lat. 45. 52. which is 720 miles South and North on the East ſide, but on the Weſt ſide they are 50 miles ſhorter The Breadth is very unequal, the greateſt on the North being about 870 miles, but they contract gradually on the South, where they are very narrow, and are likewiſe much indented in the North by the Emperor's new Conqueſts. The Turkiſh Dominions then in Europe are,

I. Part of CROATIA, on the East ſide of the Unna, where the only Place of Note is Wihitz, a ſtrong Town on the East ſide of that River, 45 miles South-East of Carlſtat.

II. BOSNIA, which has Sclavonia on the North, Dalmatia on the South, Croatia on the Weſt, and Servia on the East. It is about 112 miles South and North, and 78 East and Weſt. The Air is ſharp, but the Soil produces ſome Corn, and Mines of Gold and Silver. This Country was formerly a Kingdom, till conquered by the Turks, who fleaed their laſt King alive in 1458. They ſtruggled afterwards for their Liberty, but in vain. The Imperialiſts conquered it in 1688, and reſtored it to the Turks by the Treaty of Carlowitz.

Places of Note are,

1. Caſta Novitza, a fortified Town and Caſtle on the Unna.
2. Jaicza on the Unna, formerly the Metropolis and Burial-place of their Kings. It is very well fortified, and has a ſtrong Caſtle; ſo that it is reckoned impregnable, and is the Seat of a Turkiſh Sangiack.
3. Sarajo, now the Capital of Boſnia.

III. WALLACHIA has Tranſilvania on the North, Bulgaria on the South, Servia on the Weſt, and Moldavia on the East. It is 235 miles East and Weſt, and 105 South and North, but much indented both ways. The Country is tributary, governed by a Weywood, or Prince, named by the Grand Seignior, to whom he pays 30000 Ducats per ann. Moſt of the Inhabitants are of the Greek Church, and own the Patriarch of Conſtantinople. The Air is temperate, and the Soil fruitful. Here is Plenty of Corn, Wine, Fruits of all ſorts, Wood, Paſture, Black Cattle, Sheep, and noble Horſes with Veniſon and Game. Here are alſo ſome Mines.

Places of Note are,

1. Tergovisk, or Tervis, 76 miles South-East from Hermanſtat in Tranſilvania. It is of difficult approach, and the Air unhealthful, becauſe of Moraſſes, and has little remarkable but the Weywood's fine Palace.
2. Baccovia, 40 miles North from Tergovisk, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Coloeza. The Weſt ſide of this Country belongs to the Emperor. The River Alauta, which falls into the Danube, almoſt 150 miles East of Belgrade, being the Boundary betwixt the Empires on that ſide by the Treaty of Paſſarowitz.

IV. MOLDAVIA has part of Poland on the North, Tranſilvania and Wallachia on the Weſt, and part of Bulgaria on the South. It is 245 miles South and North, but the Breadth unequal, the greateſt from East to Weſt being 145 miles. The Air is healthful. The Country abounds with Corn, excellent Wine, and their Horſes are much valued. It is governed by a Prince, called Hoſpodar, who is tributary to the Turk. In 1686 the Poles over-run it, and obliged the Inhabitants to ſubmit to the Emperor, but it was reſtored to the Turks by the Treaty of Carlowitz.

Places of Note are,

1. Jaſſi, its Capital, a conſiderable City on the River Pruth, 122 miles North-East from Hermanſtat in Tranſilvania. It was taken and almoſt ruined by the Poles in the late Wars.
2. Soczowa, 43 miles Weſt from Jaſſi, a ſtrong Place, defended by a good Caſtle.
3. Chotzyn, or Chechim, on the Neiſter, 15 miles South-Weſt of Carminiec in Poland, a ſtrong Town, the chief Magazine of the Country, and famous for a great Victory over the Turks by the King of Poland near it in 1673.

V. BULGARIA has part of Wallachia, Moldavia and Poland on the North, part of the two former on the Weſt, the Euxine Sea on the East, and Macedonia and Romagnia on the South. It is 460 miles South-Weſt and North-East, but the Breadth very unequal, being not above 40 in the middle, but widens gradually at both Ends, being 160 towards the Eaſt, and 120 on the Weſt. It abounds with Mountains and fruitful Valleys, and great Herds of Cattle, but has been ſubject to the Turks ſince the middle of the fifteenth Century. Moſt of the Inhabitants are of the Greek Church, with a mixture of Turks and Jews.

Places of Note are,

1. Sophia, the Capital, 180 miles South-East from Belgrade. It is large, well built, populous, and much frequented by Travellers, becauſe it lies on the Road betwixt Belgrade and Conſtantinople, but it is not fortified. It was anciently called Sardica, noted for a General Council, and is the Seat of the Beglerbeg of Romagnia, who has the largeſt Juriſdiction of any Turkiſh Governour in Europe.
2. Coſſuva, near the Frontiers of Servia, noted for its Plains, where Lazarus, Deſpot of Servia, at the Head of 500000 Men, the greateſt Chriſtian Army that was ever brought into the Field, was defeated and killed by Amarath the Turk, who, as he was viewing the Slain, was ſtabbed by a Chriſtian Soldier that was left for dead in the Field. The famous Hunniades was alſo defeated in the ſame Plains, after fighting three Days ſucceſsfully againſt the Turks with unequal Numbers.
3. Siliſtria, a large City, 30 miles North-East of Sophia, the Seat of a Turkiſh Governour.
4. Nicopolis on the Danube, 15 miles North of Siliſtria, noted for a great Victory by the Turks over Sigiſmund King of Hungary, in 1396, though the Turks loſt 60000 Men, and the Chriſtians but 20000.
5. Verna in this Country near the Black Sea, 150 miles South-East of Nicopolis, noted for the Defeat and Death of Ladiſlaus King of Hungary by the Turks in 1444, when the Great Turk, finding the Day like to go againſt him, pulled the League out of his Pocket that Ladiſlaus had broke at the Perſuaſion of the Pope, and appealing to Chriſt, as the Chriſtians God, againſt that Perfidiouſneſs, obtained the Victory.
6. Bender, Capital of the East part of Moldavia, called Beſſarabia, a mountainous and marſhy Country, inhabited by Budziac Tartars. It lies on the Nieſter, 18 miles East of the Frontiers of Moldavia, and 175 East of Caminieck in Poland. It is large, the Capital of the Province, is well fortified, and has a ſtrong Caſtle. The late King of Sweden fled hither, and reſided here ſome time, after he was defeated by the Czar.
7. Kilia Nova, a ſtrong Town on the moſt Northerly Branch of the Danube, 70 miles South-East of Bender.
8. Kilia Vetus, another ſtrong Town, 30 miles North-East of Kilia Nova.

In this Country the Danube falls into the Black Sea by five Mouths, according to ſome, and ſeven according to others, there being 50 miles betwixt the moſt Southerly and moſt Northerly Branches. It riſes near a Village in Swabia, called Donaw Eſchingen, and runs 1620 miles in a direct Line, but much more including the Windings. It is navigable downwards from Ulm, which is 1530 miles, but not upwards any further than Vienna, which is 1340 miles, by Veſſels of Burden, becauſe of the Rapidity of the Stream, and three Cataracts in Auſtria, that were formerly reckoned very dangerous, but now ſo well known, that ſmall Veſſels commonly paſs them downwards. The Ancients called it promiſcuouſly Iſter and Danube. It is the nobleſt and longeſt River in Europe, and of late has been remarkable for Naval Fights betwixt the Turks and Imperialiſts. The Fiſh here are larger than in other European Rivers, and it has ſome peculiar, and particularly one called Huſo, or Hauſon: it is ſomething like a Sturgeon, and ſuppoſed to come from the Euxine Sea. The Hungarians and Germans value it ſo much, that they reckon it a great Dainty, and 'tis ſcarce to be met with but at People of Quality's Tables.

VI. BUDZIAC, or OCZAKOW-TARTARY, lies North-East of Bulgaria, and inhabited by thoſe called Budziac Tartars, who are Allies to the Turks, and under their Protection. It is 180 miles East and Weſt, and 95 where broadeſt South and North.

Places of Note are,

1. Keellogrod, or Akierman, at the Mouth of the Nieſter, 105 miles East of Bender, on the Bank of the Black Sea. It is a ſtrong Fortreſs, and Capital of the Country.
2. Oczacow, 37 miles North-East, another ſtrong Town with a Turkiſh Garriſon, where the Cham ſometimes reſides.
3. Koczubi, 12 miles North-East, another ſtrong Town.
4. Carmint, near the Mouth of the Nieper, another.

VII. LITTLE TARTARY, lies North-East of Budziac. It is ſo called to diſtinguiſh it from Great Tartary, and ſometimes named Precop, or Crim Tartary, though ſome diſtinguiſh them. It is 240 miles South and North, and 177 where broadeſt East and Weſt. Some extend it as far as the River Don, and includes the Coſſacks already deſcribed. The Inhabitants deſcended from the Aſſan Tartars, and depended on him called the Great Cham, but ſet up for themſelves about 1400, and were ſubdued by the Turks in 1584, ſince which they have been Tributaries and Allies to the Grand Seignior. They are Mahometans, very barbarous, and allow Polygamy which makes their Country populous. They are governed by a Cham, who receives a Green or Purple Standard from the Porte. He has a daily Allowance from the Grand Seignior, and and Presents from other neighbouring Princes, to prevent his Incursions. He is reckoned able to raise 300000 Horse, but that is when the Grand Seignior orders the other Tributary Tartars to join him. He has few Foot, but some Janizaries the Turk allows him as a Guard when he goes to War on his Order. The North part of the Country is that properly called Little Tartary, and the South part, which is joined to it by a narrow Isthmus, is named the Crim, or Crimee, and what the Ancients called Chersonesus Taurica.

Places of Note are,

1. Precop, on the Isthmus, from whence the People are called Precop Tartars. It lies near the Ditch formed by the Tartars to defend the Chersonesus, is not well fortified, but has a strong Castle, the Seat of the Governour, who examines all Travellers, and suffers none to pass without the Cham's Leave.

2. Caffa, the ancient Theodosia, on the East side of the Crim, a large strong City upon the Shore, at the foot of a Hill, is a noble Mart inhabited by Turks, Armenians, and Greeks; the latter pay Tribute to the Grand Seignior as Lord of the Town, though the Cham's Jurisdiction reaches to the Walls. Most of the Houses are of Earth and mean, but there are two Castles, in one of which the Turkish Bassaw resides. Provisions are very cheap here, the Harbour is safe, and they have a great Trade in Fish and Caviar from the Palus Mæotis, 26 miles West of it, and also in Corn, Butter and Salt to Constantinople, &c. The Air is good, but the Soil sandy, and the Water bad.

3. Crim, 25 miles West of Caffa, gave Name to the Country, was a great City, but now small, and noted only for the Cham's Mint and Seraglio.

4. Baccasairai, 55 miles North-West of Caffa, is the Residence of the Cham, who has a magnificent Palace here, with Gardens, Orchards, Baths, &c. It consists of about 4000 Houses, and lies in a Country proper for Hunting and Fowling.

5. Arbato, on an Isthmus that runs into the Palus Mæotis, 60 miles South-East of Precop, noted for 2 Castles, and the Cham's keeping 70000 Studs here.

6. Kersa on the South-East Point of the Palus Mæotis, a Town of a thousand Houses.

VIII. GREECE, where we have,

(I.) Albania, which has Dalmatia and Servia on the North, Epirus on the South, the Venetian Gulph on the West, and Macedonia on the East. The Turks call it Arnaut, and the People Arnauts. It is about 200 miles South and North, and 170 East and West. This, together with Epirus, called formerly Lower Albania, made up the Kingdom of the famous George Castriot, alias Scanderbeg, who with a small Army opposed the whole Power of the Turks many Years, defeated them in 22 Battles, and left his Country to the Venetians, from whom the Turks took it. Most of the People are of the Greek and Roman Church. They are valiant, and their Horses so swift, that the Turks make much use of them.

Places of Note are,

1. Scutari, or Scodra, 30 miles East of Catara in Dalmatia. It was the Seat of the Kings of Illyrium, is large, lies on a Rock near a Lake, is defended by a Castle, the Seat of a Turkish Governour, has a Bishop and several Churches.

2. Dulcigno, 30 miles South-West of Scutari, has a Harbour well frequented, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Antivari. The Privateers of this Place are very troublesome to the Venetians in time of War.

3. Alessio, 30 miles South-East of Dulcigno, on a steep Hill, near the Mouth of the Drin. It has a strong Fortress, the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Durazzo, and Scanderbeg's Tomb, who died here in 1467. The Turks do so much Honour to his Memory, that they use pieces of his Tomb as Charms to animate them in War.

4. Durazzo, old Dyrrachium and Epidamnus, on the Coast, 17 miles South-West of Alessio, is the best Town of the Province, has a good Harbour, and a considerable Trade with Italy. It is large, but not well-inhabited, because of the bad Air.

5. Antivari, 12 miles West of Dulcigno, lies on a Rock, has a Harbour, and is the See of an Archbishop.

6. Croia, or Croy, 20 miles North-West of Durazzo, very strong by Situation, is the See of a Bishop, its Suffragan, and famous for the Defence of it by Scanderbeg, who forced the Turks to a shameful Retreat before it.

7. La Valona, 40 miles South of Durazzo, the See of a Bishop, is strong, and has a noble Harbour.

8. Locrida, alias Guystandel, 45 miles South-East of La Valona, the See of an Archbishop, and the Seat of a Turkish Governour.

(II.) Epirus, South from Albania, is now of small Extent to what formerly, being only 195 miles long, and 70 where broadest. It abounds with good Pasturage and Cattle.

Places of Note are,

1. Arta, or Larta, 120 miles South-East of La Valona, formerly the Seat of their Kings. It is large, populous, Capital of the Country, is the See of a Greek Archbishop, who has a noble Cathedral, and the Seat of a Turkish Governour.

2. Privesa, 30 miles South-West of Larta, raised out of the Ruines of the ancient Nicopolis, which Augustus built in memory of his Victory over Anthony at Actium. It was a Place of great Strength, till dismantled by the Venetians after the Treaty of Carlowitz.

3. Chimera, on the Coast, North-West of Larta, is very strong, has a good Harbour and Trade, and the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Patras.

4. Butrinto, on the Coast, over against the Isle of Corfu, the See of a Bishop, formerly a considerable City, but now a Fishing Village.

(III.) Macedonia, has Servia on the North, Thessaly and the Archipelago on the South, Albania and Epirus on the West, and Romagnia on the East, is 150 miles South and North, and 240 East and West, but was formerly much larger. It abounds with Corn, Pasture, Cattle, and Venison, and in some parts with Oil and Wine.

Places of Note are,

1. Salonichi, the old Thessalonica, on a Gulph of its Name. It has several Remains of Roman Structures, is the See of a Greek Archbishop, and the Seat of a Turkish Sangiac. The Walls are 4 Leagues round. 'Tis defended by a Citadel and 2 Forts, and one of the most considerable Towns in the Levant, by reason of its good Harbour and Traffick in Silk, Leather, Iron, Cotton, Wax, Honey, Wool, Corn, &c. chiefly managed by Jews, who are numerous and rich, have many Synagogues, and 2 Colleges for Education of their Youth, and those who come from other Parts. The Christians have many fine Churches and Convents, but the Turks have the Cathedral.

2. Jamniza, on the same Gulph, 30 miles South-West, built on the Ruines of Pella, the ancient Seat of their Kings, where Marbles and other Monuments of its ancient Magnificence are often found.

3. Agios Laura on Monte Santto, the ancient Mount Athos, is a famous Greek Monastery, from whence the Bishops under the Patriarch of Constantinople are always chosen. It lies 90 miles South-East of Thessalonica. This Mountain rises above the middle Region of the Air, and the Shadow in an Evening extends as far as the Isle of Lemnos, which is 60 miles. The Inhabitants frequently live 130 years, which has occasioned the Greeks to build 23 Monasteries upon it.

4. Philippi, 15 miles North of the Gulph of Contessa, has the Ruines of several Roman Structures, is much decayed, and now only noted for being the See of an Archbishop.

5. Amphipolis, 10 miles North of the same Gulph, anciently a famous City, and Capital of Macedonia, but now ruinous, and noted only for being the See of a Greek Archbishop.

6. Sidero Capsa, now Seydra, 45 miles South-East of Thessalonica, is the See of a Bishop, and noted for its Gold Mines, discover'd in the time of King Philip, and yield still a considerable Revenue to the Grand Seignior.

(IV.) Thessaly, now Janna, has Macedonia and Epirus on the North, Achaia on the South, and the Gulph of Salonichi on the East, is 190 miles East and West, and 90 South and North. The Air is good, and the Soil produces Corn, Oranges, Limons, Figs, Pomegranates, Grapes, Olives, &c. Most of the People are Christians, Comely, and Warlike.

Places of Note are,

1. Larissa, 25 miles South-West of the Gulph of Salonichi. It was the Birth-Place of Achilles, is Capital of the Country, the See of a Greek Archbishop, and inhabited by many People of Quality. The Grand Seignior has a Pallace, and sometimes resides here. It has many fine Buildings, a Stone-Bridge of 9 Arches over the River Fendus, a good Trade, and abundance of Merchants.

2. Pharsa, the ancient Pharsalia, where Cæsar defeated Pompey; is a Place of Note, and the See of a Greek Archbishop.

3. Tricala, a small but populous City, and the Seat of a Turkish Governour, 40 miles South of Larissa.

4. Janna, 55 miles South-West of Larissa, thought to be the ancient Cassiope Dolopum, a well-built City, and the See of a Greek Archbishop.

5. Scotusa, 18 miles West of Larissa, noted anciently for an Oracle, and now a Bishop's See.

6. Pagasa, now Volo, 15 miles East of Larissa, has a spacious Harbour, had a strong Fortress, and was a Magazine for the Turks, till dismantled by the Venetians in the late War.

(V.) Achaia, has Thessaly and Epirus on the North, the Morea and Archipelago on the South, the Mediterranean on the West, and Negropont on the East; is 235 miles East and West, and 70 where broadest. It is pleasant and fruitful, and anciently reckoned the chief Country of Greece.

Places of Note are,

1. Setines, the ancient Athens. It lies on a Promontory upon the Gulph of Engia, about Lat. 38 deg. 2 miles from the Sea. There are several Monuments of its ancient Grandeur, though much short of what it was formerly. The Houses stand close; the Streets are narrow; the Inhabitants are reckoned about 10000; two thirds of whom are Greeks and have many Churches and Monasteries in and about the City, which is the See of one of their Archbishops. The Turks have 5 Mosques, the chief of which is the ancient Temple of Minerva, which is a beautiful piece of Antiquity, and with the Theatre of Bacchus stands in the Citadel, which is a mile and half in length, but not strong. The Remains of an ancient Castle, supposed to be the Acropolis, appear on the top of a steep Rock, inaccessible on every side but the North-West, where there is a difficult Ascent. Many of the noble Ruines of the ancient City lye about it. Their noble Harbour is now choak'd up with Sand. The Air is good, and the neighbouring Country abounds with Wine, Oil and Pasture; and there's an Olive Wood of 6 miles long, in a Plain upon the River Cephisus.

2. Delphos, now Castri, or Salona, near the Gulph of Lepanto, is the Remains of the ancient City so famous for Apollo's Temple and Oracle. It consists now only of 200 Houses, chiefly inhabited by Christians, with 5 or 6 Churches, and the Turks have one Mosque. Near this Place lies Mount Parnassus, with its two high Tops, from whence Water runs down in abundance after Rain or Snow; and below the left Top is a plentiful Spring, suppos'd to be the Castalius Fons of the Poets. There are marble Steps up to it, and Niches for Statues cut in the Rock. The Stream of it falls down a steep Precipice into the River Plaistos. Mount Helicon lies also near this Place.

3. Lepanto lies on the same Gulph, 40 miles South-West, thought to be the Naupactus or Epactus of the Ancients. It is the best City on the Gulph, lies on the side of a Hill in 4 Stages, with a Wall betwixt each. The Harbour lies at the Foot of a Hill, is of an Oval Form, fac'd with Walls. The Entrance so narrow that a Chain may be drawn a-cross, and it is defended by a small Castle on each side, but not capable of large Ships. The Turks are so Jealous, that they allow no Christian Ship of Bulk to come higher than Patras, on the Shore of the Morea. The Trade here is in Turkey Leather, Oil, Tobacco, Rice, Barley, Wine, Oranges, Citrons and Limons. The neighbouring Valleys abound with Gardens, Vineyards, Olive-yards and Corn Fields. The Town is Populous, defended by a strong Castle, and is the See of a Greek Archbishop, but the Turks oblige him to live at Acta. This Place is famous for a great Victory near the Mouth of the Gulph, obtain'd over the Turks by Don John of Austria, who commanded the Venetian Fleet in 1571. The Venetians took this Town in 1697; but restor'd it by the Treaty of Carlowitz. Some Leagues West from hence lie the Streights of Lepanto, guarded by the Castles of Patras on the Morea, and by that of Romelia on the other side.

4. Marathon, 42 miles North-East from Athens, so famous for the great Victory obtained by Miltiades with 12000 Men, over 500000 Persians, is now only a small Village.

5. Stive, the Remains of the ancient Thebes, 48 miles North from Athens, has only 3 or 4000 Inhabitants, most of them Greeks, under an Archbishop. Nothing of its ancient Grandure now remains, but the Ruines of Cadmus's Fort, and some old Inscriptions.

(VI.) MOREA, the ancient Peloponnesus, lies South from Achaia, to which it is joyn'd by the narrow Isthmus of Corinth, which is about 16 miles long. The Morea is reckoned about 238 miles long, and 184 broad, but much indented with Bays. It is called the noblest Peninsula in Europe, because of the Courage and Virtue of its ancient Inhabitants, the power of their States, the splendour of their Cities, and the fruitfulness of their Soil, which abounds with Corn, Wine, Oil, excellent Fruits, and every thing that contributes to the Necessity or Pleasure of Life. Their Mountains, so much fam'd by the ancient Poets, abound with Game and Medicinal Plants. The famous Styx of the Poets, lies in Arcadia, on the West side of the Peninsula, is rather a Well than a River, and the Water so cold, and of so coroding a Nature, that nothing but the Hoof of a Mule is able to contain it. It runs with a Stream into the River Alpheus, as Acheron, another famous River of the Poets does. The Inhabitants are warlike and ingenious, as were their Ancestors.

Places of Note are,

1. Patras, now Badra, on the North-West Corner of the Country. It was famous in Antiquity because of its noble Harbour, and the Priviledges granted it by Augustus, &c. It is the See of a Greek Archbishop, who has 1000 Churches under his Jurisdiction. The City is large, strong, populous, and the Inhabitants are reckoned good Mariners. The Harbour is defended by a strong Castle on a Hill, under which there is a Valley well planted with Oranges, Limons, Citrons, and tall Cedars. Here is a Cypress-tree, thought to be the oldest and biggest in the World; it is 18 Foot round, and has Branches 20 Foot long. This City has been several times taken by the Turks and Venetians, but the latter lost it with all the Morea in the last War.

2. Modon, the ancient Methone, lies on Cape Sapienza, in the South-West Corner of the Peninsula, is strong, has a good Harbour and Trade.

3. Coron, 10 miles North-East of Modon, near the bottom of a Bay. It is the See of a Greek Bishop, strong, and has a safe Harbour. The adjacent Country abounds with Fruit, Oil, and Silk.

4. Navarino, 22 miles North-West of Coron, is divided into Old and New. The old Town stands on a Rock that jets out into the Sea, and both are very strong by Nature and Art. It has the best and largest Harbour in the Morea.

5. Misitra, or Misistra, on the Ruines of the ancient Lacedæmon, or Sparta, lies 46 miles East from Coron. The Ruines of its ancient Magnificence appear about the present Town, which is the See of a Bishop, and divided into four Parts. The Castle lies on the top of Mount Taygetus, and is so strong that it was never taken by Force. The Town consists of two large Streets, and several small ones acros them. The Cathedral is a noble Structure, and their Bishop's Palace magnificent. They have several other stately Churches and Monasteries. The Turks have a fine Mosque, built by fine Pieces from the ancient Ruines. Near this Town lies the Promontory anciently called Tænarum, now Cape Matapan, the most Southerly Point of the Morea, in which there are many Caves and Dens, that the Poets fancied to be the Entrance into Hell; and on the other side the Bay, lies the Promontory Malæa, dangerous for Sailors.

6 Napoli di Malvasia, lies near the South-East Point of the Peninsula, 55 miles South-East from Misistra. It is supposed to be the Epidaurus of the Ancients. It lies upon a Rock in the Sea, joined to the Continent by a wooden Bridge, is very strong, defended by a treble Wall, is accessible only on one side, and has one of the best Harbours in the Archipelago, defended by a strong Fortress, and much frequented for Malmsey Wine, which grows in the Neighbourhood. It is the See of an Archbishop, and has a Suburb inclos'd with a Rampart.

7. Czarnata, a strong Fortress, 30 miles South-West from Misistra.

8. Cheleſa, 20 miles South-East from Czarnata, a very strong Town, noted for a great Victory by the Venetians over the Turks in 1685.

9. Megalopolis, 52 miles North-West from Misistra, the ancient Metropolis of Arcadia, and the Birth-place of Polybius the Historian, now only noted for being the See of a Bishop.

10. Napoli di Romania, the ancient Nauplia, 55 miles North-East from Misistra, near a Bay of its own Name, the ancient Argolicus Sinus. It stands on a Promontory, is accessible only by a narrow stony Way betwixt a Mountain and the Shore, has a safe and spacious Harbour, defended by a strong Citadel, and the Entrance so narrow, that one Ship can only come in at a time. It is the See of an Archbishop, the most populous Town in the Morea, has 60000 Greeks, besides other Inhabitants, and is one of the best Places of Trade in the Levant.

11. Argos, 30 miles North-West of Napoli di Romania, formerly the Capital of a Kingdom, and very stately and magnificent, but has nothing remarkable now, except a Citadel, and the Palace of their Bishop.

12. Corinth lies in the middle of the Isthmus, betwixt the Gulph of Lepanto and Engia, 40 miles North from Argos. Its commodious Situation contributed much to its Trade and Riches. It was one of the most famous Cities of the East, but now ruinous, tho' of a large Extent, because the Houses stand at a considerable Distance, with Gardens of Oranges and Limons betwixt them. The Walls are about 3 miles round, and from them there is one of the finest Prospects in the World. The Castle, formerly called Acrecorinthus, stands on the top of a Rock, accessible only by one narrow and difficult Passage through two Gates. It has 6 Greek Churches, is the See of an Archbishop, and has 3 Turkish Mosques. The Fountain Pirene, where the Poets say Pegasus drank, is on the top of the Rock where the Castle stands, and there are 200 Wells or Cisterns in it. The neighbouring Country abounds with Villages, and produces Wheat, Barley, excellent Wine and Oil, and is well stor'd with Cattle. There is a Wall acros the Isthmus, which has been several times built and demolished by the Turks and Venetians.

13. Maina, a small Town with a Harbour well fortified, on the Gulph of Colochina, in the South side of the Peninsula.

14. Navarin, on the Gulph of Arcadia, on the West side of the Peninsula, a strong Town.

15. Arcadia, a strong Town with a good Harbour, betwixt Patras and Navarino.

(VII.) ROMANIA (the ancient Thracia) has Bulgaria on the North, the Archipelago and Propontis on the South, Macedonia, on the West, and the Black Sea on the East. It is 200 miles East and West, and 170 where broadest South and North. The Soil is naturally fruitful, but not cultivated by the Turks. It has Plenty of good Corn and Pasture, and some Wine, Mines of Silver, Lead and Allum. The Air is unhealthful on the Coast, where the Plague is frequent.

Places of Note are,

1. Constantinople, the ancient Byzantium, from whose Ruines it was rebuilt by Constantine the Great, who gave it the present Name. It lies on the Straits of its own Name, anciently called Bosphorus, Lat. 42. Long. 32. Constantine beautified it with the Ruines of Troy and other ancient Cities. The Situation is one of the most pleasant in the World, being on the Banks of the Sea in the form of an Amphitheatre, of which its Harbour, one of the best and safest, makes the Arena. At 2 leagues distance, it forms a beautiful Prospect from the Sea. It runs 6 miles along the Shore, from which it rises by a moderate Ascent. So that from the Sea one sees at once an infinite number of Mosques, covered with Lead, and beautified with high Domes and Turrets. What adds to the Beauty of the Prospect is, the Castle of the Seven Towers and the Serraglio, which are both very large, and have a vast number of gilt Globes and Spires; but all this Glory disappears when one enters the City, the Houses being generally of Wood, and the Streets dirty, uneven, and so narrow, that 2 loaden Horses can scarce go abreast; and the Houses jet over the Streets so much at top, that in many places one may step from one to another, which is disagreeable to the Eye, and dangerous in case of Fire, so that great numbers of them are frequently burnt down, and the Flames are not to be stopp'd till they come to some empty space. The Houses are for most part low, built of unplain'd Wood, and dawb'd over with red Paint, which is very offensive to the Eye. The close and nasty Streets, and bad Air, occasion frequent Plagues, which carry off abundance of People. The Form of the City is triangular. It is encompassed by good Walls, which are double towards the Land, and have Battlements and Towers at convenient distances. On the outside there is a shallow Ditch faced with Stone, so that 'tis in no condition to hold out a Siege. It has 22 Gates, 6 towards the Land, 11 to the Harbour, and 5 to the Sea of Marmora. The last 16 have Landing-places and Stairs. The City is about 12 miles round. The Castle of the Seven Towers is for most part used as a Prison of State. The chief Structures are, 1. The New Seraglio, a most magnificent one, of a triangular form; two sides of it are encompassed by the Straits, and the third joins to the City; 'tis 3 miles round, encompassed with a strong Wall, Watch-Towers, and constant Guards. It has many Gates both to the Sea and Land. The chief lies towards the City. Those towards the Sea are only open'd when the Sultan or Chief Grandees go out for Pleasure. The great Gate to the City is constantly guarded by Janizaries, one Company of whom lies without the Palace to give notice of any Accident. The other Gates to the Land are never opened, but when some great Men are carry'd out to Execution. Here are many stately Apartments suited to the several Seasons of the Year. Among others the Hall where Ambassadors have Audience, richly furnished with Carpets and Hangings of crimson Velvet embroidered with Pearl, and near it a small Room covered with Silver Plate, and hatch'd with Gold. These stand in a Court adorn'd with noble Fountains, and all the Apartments have fair Gardens with pleasant Walks, Marble Fountains, and all sorts of Flowers and Fruit. The Seraglio consists of 4 Courts. The first is a quarter of a Mile square, into which the Bassa's and other great Men ride. Near the Gate there's a constant Guard of 50 Men, with Shelter for Men and Horse. On the right of the Court is an Hospital, and on the left a Place for Carriages, and a Hall over it with Antique Armour for the Soldiers, when the Sultan or Visier make a solemn Entrance into the City. Within this Court is another, with a sumptuous Gate; it is beautify'd with curious Fountains and Walks, rows of Cypress and Grass-Plots rail'd in, where Deer feed and breed. It is about 300 Paces square, and none must ride here but the Grand Seignior. On both sides the Gate there's an open Gallery, where the Messengers, Foot and Horse-Guards stand in their Ranks, nobly Apparel'd when Ambassadors enter. Here are also the Kitchin and other Offices, and on the Left-side the Sultan's Stable, with 35 Horse for his own Use, and Rooms for their Furniture richly embroider'd with Jewels. There is also the Chamber where the Divan sits, with Apartments for the Officers. The Prime Visier, with the other Visiers, Judges and Bassa's administer Justice here Saturdays, Mondays and Tuesdays, and report to the Sultan, who sometimes sits at a little Window cover'd with a Lettice, where he hears and sees what passes. Ambassadors are brought hither when they make their Presentment, and come to kiss the Sultan's hanging Sleeve, which they call kissing his Hand. They are entertain'd here at Dinner by the Visier, and sit over against him. The Presents are carry'd round the second Court in the sight of the People, and then to the Sultan. The Ambassadors have Vests sent them of Cloth of Gold for themselves, and others of small Value for their Attendants. Then they are conducted to the Hall of Audience, where an Interpreter declares his Commission. The Sultan returns no Answer to Christian Ambassadors, but refers it to the Visier, and when the Ambassadors depart, they bow their Head to the Sultan, but don't take off their Hats. Behind this Court there is another for the Womens Apartments, and at the end of it a Gate to the Sultan's, where none but his Attendants must enter without leave. The Gate is kept by the Chief Chamberlain and a Company of White Eunuchs. This Court is pav'd with fine Marble of Mosaic Work, adorned with curious Fountains, and a Lake, where the Sultan has a rich Pleasure-Boat. Here is a Row of Summer Rooms on a Hill, which looks to the Sea, with a Chamber of Audience, a large Hall supported by Pillars, and a Bed-Chamber, the Walls fac'd with Stones of the finest China Metal, and the Floors cover'd with Persian Carpets of Silk and Gold. The Posts of the Bedstead are Silver, the Canopy, Bolsters, Mattresses, and Pallets, all of Cloth of Gold. The Officers of the the Houſhold have Apartments nobly furniſhed, among which are the Sultan's private Treaſury and Wardrobe, both ſtrong Buildings, with Iron Doors, ſeal'd up with his own Seal. Here are alſo Rooms for Devotion, Schools, Baths, Places to ſwim, wreſtle, ſhoot at Buts, running of Horſes, &c.

The Sultaneſſes and Concubines are kept in Apartments which reſemble a Nunnery, with Bagnio's and other Conveniences for the Sex. There are about 1200 Women old and Young about the Court. The Concubines are young beautiful Virgins, ſtole or bought from other Nations, preſented by the Grandees, and bred here after the manner of the Court, after being examined by the Mother of the Maids. They have large Rooms, where ten lodge together, and have an old Woman that lies by them with Lamps continually burning; they have Rooms to ſew and eat in, Schools to breed them in, and are allowed ſome Hours for Walking and other Recreations. When the Sultan has a mind, the Mother of the Maids picks out the handſomeſt, places them in a Row, which he Walks thro' four or five times, and throws his Handkerchief to her whom he likes. Then the old Bawd dreſſes, perfumes, and paints, and carries her to his Bed, near which there are great Wax Tapers, and Mooriſh Women ſitting by them. When he riſes in the Morning, he leaves her his Apparel with all the Money in his Pocket, and ſends her Preſents of more or leſs Value, according as he likes her. She that bears him the firſt Child is called Sultana, and if a Son, is confirmed in the Dignity with much Solemnity, has Apartments, Revenues and Servants according to her Rank, and all the reſt muſt honour her as Queen. The reſt who have Children are alſo called Sultana's, and nobly attended, but have not the Title of Queens. If the Queen's Son die, ſhe is deprived of her Dignity, and is ſucceeded by any of the other that has a Son. The Queen is attended by 40 Black Eunuchs, under a Captain. The Sultan's Daughters, Siſters and Aunts have their Apartments in the Seraglio, with Royal Attendance till they be marry'd, when he gives them to the Value of 30000 l. in Apparel, Jewels and Money, with Servants of both Sexes, and Houſes, and a daily Allowance in Money; and the Husband muſt allow them a proportionable Dowry. They muſt converſe with no Men but their Husbands, over whom they are Maſters, and wear a Dagger as a Badge of it; ſo that they often ſtab, or put them away, or take others, for the Sultan leaves them to their Will.

All the principal and ſubordinate Officers of State are bred in this Seraglio. They are generally 6 or 700 at a time, from 3 to 12 Years old, and were uſually Chriſtians Children brought from Greece, of ſuch Families as were reckoned moſt warlike; but now they mix them with Turks of promiſing Parts, or Renegado's and Noble Captive Youths. Some of 'em are bred to the Law, and others to Arms. They have four Schools to fit them for Court and Camp, and to teach them all Trades neceſſary for the Sultan's Perſon. When they come to the fourth School, they are ſeverely try'd whether they have any Inclination to Chriſtianity, and if they have not, are admitted about the Sultan's Perſon, to be ſent on Embaſſies, to execute great Criminals, to command in the Fleet and Army, or to ſerve him at Court. He has alſo in the Palace, Buffoons, Tumblers, Wreſtlers, &c. for his Diverſion. He has likewiſe Mutes, who are in great Requeſt with him, becauſe he thinks it below him to ſpeak to any familiarly; but he makes himſelf merry with them; they converſe by Nods and Signs, and tho' both deaf and dumb, ſome of them write well. We have not room to inſiſt on the farther Particulars of the Officers and Courtiers, and the Sultan's Way of eating, &c. He appears in greateſt Splendour on the firſt Day of their Beyram, when he puts on his beſt Apparel and Jewels, ſits on his Throne, and admits his Grandees and chief Servants to kiſs his Veſt. He gives and receives Preſents, and the Evening concludes with Fire-works, Illuminations, and other ſigns of Joy. It is unſafe then for any Chriſtian or Jew to be in the Streets, for the Turks will certainly do them miſchief if they don't give what Money they ask.

2. The Old Seraglio ſtands in the nobleſt Place of the City, is a quarter of a mile round, encompaſſed with high Walls, and has an Iron Gate with a Guard of white Eunuchs. This Seraglio is ſet apart for thoſe who grow old in the new one, or are ſent from thence for Crimes. They are allow'd to marry, with Conſent of the Miſtreſs of the Houſe, and to carry away what they have got, which is uſually very conſiderable, by what they ſave of the Sultan's Allowance, and the Preſents they have from him and the Baſſa's Ladies. Upon the Death of the Sultan, all his Sultana's are ſent hither, except the Queen, and are allow'd to marry with the next Sultan's Conſent.

3. The ſtately Moſque of Santa Sophia, formerly a Chriſtian Church. It is 114 Paces long, 80 broad, 80 high, ſquare without, and round within, has a Dome in the middle, of ſingular Architecture, like a ſquatted Globe. It is pav'd with fine Marble and matted. It was finely painted with Croſſes and Images in Moſaic Work, which the Turks have defaced. There are 2 Galleries round it, ſupported by 62 Pillars. It is large enough to hold 40000 People, and ſo many aſſemble here at the Turkiſh Paſſover. Here is Conſtantine the Great's Tomb, as they ſay, and a Stone on which the Holy Virgin waſh'd our Saviour's Linnen, to which the Turks pay great Reverence. It has 4 very high ſlender Steeples or Minarets, with ſeveral Balconies, from whence the Prieſts call the People to Prayers.

Here are ſeven other Royal Moſques, one of them very magnificent, built by Soliman, whoſe Coffin remains in it, richly adorned with Carpets, a Turban ſet with Herons Tops, Precious Stones, and Lamps. Here the People pray for his Soul, the Sultans always leaving a Fund for that end.

4. The great Beſeſtan, or Exchange, is a noble glorious Structure, full of Shops and Warehouſes, with the richeſt Commodities. Each Body of Merchants and Tradeſmen have diſtinct Apartments, and none muſt ſell the ſame Commodities elſewhere in the Town. This is the moſt regular part of the City; it is divided into ſeveral Streets cover'd with Planks above, under which the Merchants have Shops, with Patterns of what they ſell in their Warehouſes. It has a great round Hall in the middle, and ſeveral Gates, ſhut and well guarded by Night.

Here is another Exchange, but nothing ſo large or rich. There are ſeveral Market-places, and in one of them a Column of 170 Foot high; with Bas Reliefs, repreſenting the Battles and other Events in the Reign of the Emperor Arcadius. It is all of fine Marble, and has Stairs within.

5. The Acmeidan, 550 Paces long, and 150 broad, with an Obelisk in the middle, mark'd with Hieroglyphics. It lies betwixt the City and Suburb of Galata. Here the Turks exerciſe Archery, or make Proceſſion for Succeſs to their Arms. This was the Hyppodrome made for Horſe-courſing by one of the Greek Emperors.

Here are many other large Structures, called Hans, which look like Monaſteries. They are built of Freeſtone, with a Court and Fountain in the middle, and have Lodgings and Warehouſes for Merchants with ſtrong Walls and Gates. They have alſo Caravanſeras or Publick Inns, built in the ſame manner, but not ſo ſumptuous or commodious. They are uſed by poor Travellers and the Servants of Caravans.

Betwixt the Caſtle of the 7 Towers and the Seraglio there is a ſquare Tower, 20 Paces in the Sea, where the Emperor Juſtinian is ſaid to have impriſon'd his General Beliſarius, and obliged him to beg for Subſiſtence from Paſſengers. Near this there is a Fountain to which the Greeks aſcribe miraculous Cures on the Day of our Saviour's Transfiguration. A great many Cannon are planted here even with the Water, to defend the Entrance of the Seraglio, one of whoſe Gates is betwixt them, where none muſt enter but the Sultan and Chief Officers. Not far from hence lie Galleys and other Veſſels richly gilt and painted, for the Sultan and his Train, when he diverts himſelf on the Water; and there are ſeveral Pleaſure-Houſes on the other ſide of the Cape of Marmora, richly furniſhed and adorned with gilt Cupola's, where the Sultan diverts himſelf with his Ladies, and views the Men of War in the Harbour. He has a large Stable for 10000 Horſes and 5000 Mules, beſides leſſer ones at each of his Country Houſes.

The Harbour is form'd by Nature, and one of the loveliеſt in the World; it is ſix miles round, one over, and ſo deep every where, that Ships ride ſafe, and may lay their Heads aſhore. It lies ſo conveniently, that the City is conſtantly ſupplied either from Aſia, Europe, or Africa; for when the Winds hinder Ships from the Mediterranean, it brings them from the Black Sea, and vice verſa.

The chief Suburbs are, 1. Galata, ſeparated from the City by the Harbour, where there are Boats that carry People at eaſy Rates. In the Way to it by Land there is a great Village, an Arſenal, with Arms for 6000 Seamen, and 120 Docks for building Ships. Here the Admiral has a Houſe, and many thouſands of the Sultan's Slaves are kept in a miſerable State. Galata is large and well built, is inhabited chiefly by Greeks and Weſtern Chriſtians, who have 5 Monaſteries and 5 Churches. Here is one of the beſt Fiſh-Markets in the World. The Greeks keep many Taverns here, much frequented by Turks from the City, who are very inſolent and dangerous when drunk.

2. Pera, is ſeparated from Galata by Burying-places. It is large, has ſtately Houſes, and is inhabited chiefly by Greeks of Quality and Chriſtian Ambaſſadors; for none but thoſe of the Emperor, King of Poland, and Republick of Raguſa are allowed to reſide in Conſtantinople.

3. Trophania, over-againſt the Seraglio on the right ſide, is the place where they caſt their Guns. The Houſes of thoſe three Suburbs being upon an Aſcent from the Sea, look like an Amphitheatre, and form a pleaſant Proſpect.

4. Scudaret, or Scutari, on the Aſian ſide, where the Straits are but a mile over, is a large Town, where the Grand Seignior has a ſtately Seraglio and fine Gardens. From the top of a Hill near it, there is the fineſt Proſpect in the World; for the City and Suburbs, the Boſphorus and Propontis, with the adjacent Country on both ſides, appear all to the Eye at once. Taking in all thoſe Suburbs, Conſtantinople is one of the largeſt Cities in the World, and has near twice the Circumference of London. Beſides being the Seat of the Government, 'tis that of their Mufti, or High Prieſt, and of a Greek and Armenian Patriarch.

The Propontis, or Sea of Marmora, lies South-Weſt of the City, is about 155 miles long, and 100 where broadeſt, it communicates with the Black Sea by a narrow Strait, and with the Archipelago by another, and is ſo encompaſſed by Land, that it reſembles a Lake. The Climate is ſo temperate, that it occaſion'd the building of many great Cities on both ſides, in ancient times.

Places of Note upon the European ſide are,

1. Selwera, or Selimberi, 30 miles Weſt of Conſtantinople, a large trading Town, with a good Harbour.

2. Rudiſto, 60 miles North of Gallipoli, has a good Trade and Harbour, ſeveral Moſques and Greek Churches, and two Jewiſh Synagogues.

3. Gallipoli, on the Strait of that Name, defended by a Caſtle, the Reſidence of a Baſſa. It is 6 miles round, has an Arſenal, and about 20000 People, two thirds Turks, and one third Chriſtians and Jews. Here are two Bays for Galleys, and one for Ships of Burthen. It forms a good Proſpect by the Steeples of its Moſques and the Cupola's of the Beſeſtans; but the Houſes are mean. Moſt of the Greeks here ſell Rack and Brandy, and have their Doors ſo low, that one muſt creep in at them, becauſe the Turks when drunk would otherwiſe ride in, and do them miſchief.

4. Seſtos, on an Iſthmus, 29 miles South-Weſt of Gallipoli, by ſome reckoned the old Seſtos, and noted for one of the Caſtles named Dardanelli, that give Name to the Straits. The Caſtle is triangular, has 3 Towers cover'd with Lead, 2 Baſtions, and 20 large Guns. Here all Ships that come from Conſtantinople are ſearched for contraband Goods and fugitive Slaves. The other Caſtle on the Aſian ſide is by ſome thought the old Abydos, and is much of the ſame Nature; but Spon and Wheeler ſay, they are not thoſe ancient Places, nor called by the ſame Name, but were built by Mahomet II. that in Europe is called the old Caſtle of Romelia, and is made a Priſon of State, and that in Aſia the old Caſtle of Natolia; that neither of them are conſiderable, but the Helleſpont not being above two miles broad here, Ships cannot eaſily paſs them without leave. They think it was no ſuch extraordinary thing as the Ancients make it for Xerxes to lay a Bridge of Boats over this Strait.

Other Towns of Note in Romania are,

1. Adrianople, 135 miles North-Weſt of Conſtantinople, and next it in Dignity. It was the old Oreſta, but had the preſent Name from Emperor Adrian, who rebuilt it. The Air is good, the Situation pleaſant, in a fruitful Plain, and it has a good Trade. The Turks took it in 1362, and made it the Seat of their Empire, till they took Conſtantinople in 1543. Here are many fine Houſes, and a ſtately Palace belonging to the Sultan, who ſometimes reſides here. It was the See of an Archbiſhop, under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople.

2. Trajanople, 40 miles South-East of Adrianople, had its Name from Emperor Trajan, who repair'd it. It was the See of an Archbishop, but now a small Town.

3. Philippopoli, 80 miles West of Adrianople, is a large City, the See of an Archbishop, but not fortified.

4. Aspirosa, near the Archipelago, 70 miles South-West of Adrianople. It is the See of a Greek Bishop, and has a good Harbour.

The ISLANDS of GREECE subject to the Turks.

I. CANDIE, or CRETE, South-East of the Morea, is 500 miles round, the largest and most famous of all the Greek Islands. The Air is good, the Soil fat, tho' mountainous. It produces store of Wine, Oil, Corn, Oranges, Limons, Figs, and other delicious Fruits, Sugar and Salt. It abounds with fine Pastures, Laurel, Myrtle, and other curious Evergreens. Here are no wild Beasts nor large Rivers, but many Streams. The Country is infested with Tarantula's. It was taken from the Venetians by the Turks in 1669, all but two Fortresses.

Places of Note are,

1. Candie, the old Matium, at the bottom of a Bay on the North side, about Lat. 35. 4. It is very large, the See of a Greek Archbishop, and so strong, that it held out a Siege of 24 Years against the Turks, and did not surrender till 4 parts of the City were demolished, all the Venetian Inhabitants but 5 were dead, and no Greeks or Jews left, but 30 decrepid Persons, who with the Remains of the Garrison, made up 4000, and obtained honourable Terms.

2. Spina Longa, on a Cape, 55 miles East of Candie, a Fortress with a good Harbour belonging to the Venetians.

3. Retino, 51 miles South-West of Candie, the See of a Bishop, its Suffragan, has a good Harbour, and is defended by a strong Castle.

4. Suda, 27 miles North-West of Retino, a strong Fortress with a good Harbour.

5. Canea, or Cydon, 50 miles North-West of Candie, a large, strong, well-built Town, with a good Harbour.

6. Garabusa, a small strong Town, 40 miles North-West of Canea, taken from the Venetians in 1697.

7. Setia, or Cyteum, a small well-fortified Town, with a good Harbour, 25 miles South-East of Spina Longa.

II. CERIGO, anciently CYTHERA, North-West of Candie, and South-East of the Morea. It was the Country of Venus and Helena, is 60 miles round, has a Town of the same Name on the North side, which has a good Harbour and Fortress, and is the See of a Greek Bishop.

III. MILLO, MILO, or MELOS, 60 miles North from Candie. It is about 70 miles round, has a mixture of Mountains and Plains, abounds with excellent Wine and Figs, Sulphur, which is much esteem'd, Salt and Mineral Waters, has a Town of the same Name, which contains 5000 People, is pretty well built, but very nasty. Here is a Greek and Latin Bishop, tho' most of the Inhabitants are Greeks. The Revenues arise from Customs, Salt-pits, and Mill-stones, and the People are miserably oppressed by the Turks. This Island is much infested by Corsairs, to whom the Women are very free of their Favours.

IV. ARGENTIRE, anciently CIMOLUS, 28 miles East from Millo, is 20 miles round, has one little Town and a Village, inhabited by about 500 Women and 7 or 8 Priests. They live on the Product of the Island, and what they receive from Merchants and Pyrates, who chuse what Women they please. The Women keep the Girls, and when the Boys are 12 Years of Age, give them to the first Ship that arrives. The Island had its Name from a Silver Mine formerly discovered here. Their chief Manufacture is Cotton Stockings, and the Terra Cimolia, which serves for Soap.

V. SIPHANTO, about 40 miles round, 10 miles East from Millo, famous anciently for its Mines of Gold and Silver, and has now Plenty of Lead; but the Inhabitants don't work at 'em themselves, nor care that others should. The People are Greeks, but ignorant and lewd.

VI. PHAROS, 40 miles North-East from Siphanto, has a good Town of the same Name, on the West side, with a commodious Harbour. It is 50 miles round, produces excellent Wine and Quarries of fine Marble, easy to polish, of which the Inhabitants make a great Profit. It contains 1500 Families, is well cultivated, has abundance of Cattle, Corn, Figs, and Cotton, in which they trade. Here are also many Monuments of Antiquity.

VII. NAXIA, or NAXUS, 8 miles North-East of Pharos, is about 90 miles round, and has such Plenty of excellent Wine, that it was anciently dedicated to Bacchus. Here is Plenty of choice Marble, Salt, and Fish. The Air is reckoned very good for old People. It abounds with Orange, Olive, Limon, Cedar, Citron, Pomegranate, Fig, Mastic, and Mulberry-Trees. Their Trade is in Barley, Wine, Figs, Cotton, Silk, Flax, Cheese, Salt, Cattle, Emeralds, and Oil. Here is a Greek and Latin Archbishop, and a Society of Jesuits; but the Greeks and Latins here are irreconcilable. The Ruines of a Temple of Bacchus are still to be seen here.

VIII. AMORGOS, 30 miles South-East of Naxia, is about 36 miles round, and is noted for a Plant called Lichen, made use of by Dyers. It has also Plenty of Oil, Corn and Wine. The Inhabitants are of the Greek Church. Their Firing is Mastic and Cedar.

IX. DELOS, 30 miles North-West of Naxia. There are two, called the Greater and Lesser, separated by a narrow Canal. They are famous in Antiquity, and have still many Noble Monuments, as the Ruines of Apollo's Temple, &c. with several Inscriptions: The larger is now desert, but has excellent Pasture, where the Inhabitants of the neighbouring Islands breed abundance of Cattle.

X. MYCONE, 15 miles North-East of Delos, is 36 miles round, has a good Harbour, produces the best Sailors in the Archipelago, and has above 500 Seafaring Men, with many trading Vessels. The chief Trade consists in Hides, especially of Goats, and Wine. Here is but one Town, containing about 3000 People; but the Men using the Sea much, the Women are four times their Number. Most of them are Greeks, and some of them are Papists.

XI. ANDROS, 15 miles East of Negropont, is 120 miles round, very fruitful, and one of the most populous of the Cyclades. It has a Town of the same Name upon a Rock, near a Bay on the South side, and a good Harbour defended by a Fortress. Here are many noble Ruines, which shew it to have been formerly a great City. The Inhabitants are Greeks, and about 4000. Their chief Commodity is Silk, Wine, Oil, Barley, Oranges, Limons, Mulberries, Jujebs, Pomegranates, and Figs. A Turkish Cadi resides in the Castle, and the Greek Bishop in the Town. Here are several Ports, and some Monasteries.

XII. THERMIA lies South from Andros, has a Town of the same Name, and another, which together contain 6000 People. Most of them are of the Greek Church, and have a Bishop, who has a large Revenue. The Soil is good, well cultivated, has Plenty of Barley, Wine, and Figs, Honey, Wax, Silk, Wool and Cotton, abounds with Provisions and Partridges. The Island had its Name from its Baths, which proceed from Iron Mines. Here are the Remains of several ancient Towns, which shew them to have been formerly very considerable.

XIII. ENGIA, in a Gulph of the same Name, Lat. 37. 41. Lon. 24. 12. The Soil is fruitful, and here is a Town and Harbour of the same Name. This was the Birth-place of Æacus, whom the Poets feigned Judge of Hell.

XIV. NEGROPONT, the ancient Eubœa, lies on the East side of Achaia, now called Libadia, from which it is separated by a narrow Channel, called the Straits of Negropont. It is the largest Island in the Archipelago, is 85 miles long, and 22 where broadest. The Tides of the Euripus here are very regular, for they ebb and flow sometimes from 10 to 14 times in a Day, and at other times are as regular as elsewhere. The Islands abound with Corn, Wine, Fruit, and Cattle. Here is excellent Marble, and the Stone Amianthos, or Asbestos, of which incombustible Cloth is made.

Places of Note are,

1. Negropont, now Egripos, on the West side of the Island, about the middle, where the Strait is narrowest, Lat. 38. $\frac{1}{2}$ Lon. 24. $\frac{1}{2}$. supposed to be the ancient Chalcis. It has Communication with the Continent by a Stone Bridge, and there is a Castle in the middle of the Channel. It is one of the strongest Towns and best Harbours in the Levant. The Walls are about 2 miles round, but it has large Suburbs, where the Greeks and their Archbishop live, for the Turks suffer none but themselves and the Jews to live in the City. The Christians here are 15000, and have several Churches besides the Cathedral. The Turks have 4 Mosques. It is the Seat of the Turkish Governour of Achaia, who is Admiral of those Seas, and has a Squadron of Gallies always in the Harbour.

2. Caristo, on the South-East part of the Island, a strong and populous City, the See of a Greek Bishop, Suffragan of Negropont.

XV. SCIRO, 18 miles East from Negropont, is 8 miles round, has great Flocks of Goats, store of Wine and Cotton, and a small Town of the same Name, the See of a Greek Bishop, Suffragan of Athens, is defended by a strong Castle, and has a good Harbour.

XVI. STALIMENE, the ancient Lemnos, off of the East Point of Macedonia, 60 miles North-East of Negropont, is about 100 miles round, and has Plenty of excellent Wine. The chief Town of the same Name is on the West side of the Island. It is small, but rich, strong, has a good Harbour, and is the See of a Greek Archbishop. The Terra Lemnia, or Sigillata, found in the Neighbourhood, yields the Grand Seignior a great Revenue. It is good against many Distempers, as Loss of Blood, Poison, and Infection. The Greeks gather it, and put it up in Bags, which are sealed with the Prince's Seal when transported.

XVII. LEMBO, or IMBROS, 10 miles North-East from Stalimene, has a Town of the same Name, and a safe Harbour, defended by a Castle.

XVIII. TASSO, or TASSUS, 50 miles North-West of Imbros, in the Gulph of Contessa, has a Town with a good Harbour on the North Coast, and several Castles.

ENGLAND,

HAS Scotland on the North, the Britiſh Channel on the South, St. George's Channel, or the Iriſh Sea, on the Weſt; the North Sea, or German Ocean, on the Eaſt; and the Straits of Dover, which ſeparate it from France, on the S. E. It lies betwixt N. Lat. 49. 55. & 55. 47 ½. and betwixt Long. W. from London 6. and E. from London 1. 50. The greateſt Length S. and N. from the Shore of the Iſle of Purbeck to Berwick, is 320 computed, and 381 meaſured Miles; and the greateſt Breadth, from the Land's-End in Cornwall to the N. Foreland of Kent, is 305 computed, and 358 meaſur'd Miles; and from St. Davids in Wales to Leoſtaff in Suffolk, is 280 computed m. But the Breadth is not equal; for it contracts gradually towards the Borders of Scotland, where, from Boulneſs on Solway Frith to Berwick on Tweed, 'tis about 72. It lies in the 8th, 9th, and 10th Climates; ſo that the longeſt Day in the S. is about 16 ½ Hours, and in the N. 17 H. 20 M. The Air is temperate, and not commonly ſubject to Extremes of Heat or Cold; and the Soil in moſt Parts is ſo fruitful, that it was antiently called the Granary of the Weſtern World, and ſtill ſupplies many of its Neighbours with Corn. The Air is frequently cloudy, and in Winter variable, but for the moſt part rainy or foggy. 'Tis obſerv'd that the Rain is more gentle in England than on the Continent, which makes the Fields look verdant for moſt part of the Year. After Rains, we have commonly Weſt Winds, which purify the Air, and dry the Soil. The E. Winds are reckon'd not ſo wholeſome in the Spring, tho for the moſt part dry. The N. and N. W. eſpecially the latter, commonly bring fair Weather, and the S. W. S. and S. E. as often Rain.

For the Product, we refer to the particular Counties, which we ſhall deſcribe after Camden's Method, according to the Edition of Dr. Gibſon, now Biſhop of Lincoln. The Counties, including thoſe of Wales, are fifty two. For the Medicinal Herbs and Plants in each County, we refer the Curious to Camden; for their Virtues not being deſcrib'd, the Uſe of 'em is only known to Phyſicians and Botaniſts.

I. CORNWALL,

IS the Weſtermoſt Part of England, runs out into the Sea in form of a Peninſula, has part of the Atlantick on the W. the Britiſh Channel on the S. Briſtol Channel on the N. and Devonſhire on the E. from which it is divided by the R. Tamar. The Length from E. to W. is 70 m. and the greateſt Breadth on the Borders of Devon 40. but unequal in the other Parts, being much indented by the Sea. It lies in the Dioceſe of Exeter, is reckon'd to contain 960000 Acres, is divided into 9 Hundreds, 161 Pariſhes, and has 27 Market-Towns, of which 21 ſend Members to Parliament; ſo that this County ſends 44 in all. Here are 6 Caſtles, 9 Parks, and 32 Bridges. The Houſes are reckon'd 25374, and the People 126000. The chief Rivers are, Tamar, which riſes near Hartland, in the N. Side of the County, runs a-croſs it, and falls into the Sea at Plymouth; and the Camel, which falls into the Briſtol Channel at Padſtow.

It lies betwixt Lat. 49. 55. & 51. 5. and W. Long. 4. 25. & 6. The Soil is for the moſt part mountainous, thin, and rocky underneath; yet the Valleys have plenty of Graſs, and the Coaſts have ſtore of Corn. The middle Part is full of Heaths, mix'd with a ſpiry Graſs, on which young Cattel feed. Here are Quarries of Freeſtone and Slate, and ſeveral ſorts of Marble, with others proper for building, which yield the Inhabitants conſiderable Profit. Diamonds naturally cut and poliſh'd, but dark and ſoft, are ſometimes found here; as are alſo Pearls, Agats, and white Coral, but of no great Value. 'Tis moſt famous for its Tin Mines, in which is ſometimes found Gold and Silver, but in very ſmall Quantities. The King or Duke have the Right of Pre-emtion of the Tin; which, when tried, is ſtamp'd with the Dutchy Stamp, and the Price fix'd. The Tinners are govern'd by a Lord Warden and Parliaments, or Stannary Courts; but there lies an Appeal to the King and Council. Here's alſo a Mineral call'd Mundick, which of late begins to rival the Tin in Value and Profit, and yields good Copper. 'Tis dangerous to the Workmen, becauſe of unwholeſome Steams; but the Water in which 'tis waſh'd before it is burnt, is an immediate Cure for Wounds; but when burnt, is poiſonous. The Air of the County is good, but ſubject to violent Storms of Wind. Their Spring is more backward than in other Parts, their Fruit later, and their Corn ſcarce fit for the Barn till near Michaelmas. The Inhabitants are in general ſtrong and vigorous; and ſome of them have liv'd to 130. Their native Language differs from the Welch only in Dialect, but is now almoſt worn out. Here are tame Cattel of all ſorts. Their Black Cattel are ſmall, but their Fleſh ſweet. Their Horſes are low, but ſerviceable. They have alſo abundance of Mules. Their Sheep, formerly ſmall, and their Wool coarſe, are ſo much improv'd ſince the manuring of the Country, that they equal their Neighbours both in Size and Wool, and are much ſweeter Meat. The Gentlemens Parks are well ſtock'd with Fallow Deer; but they have no red ones of their own Breed. Some Gentlemen ſuffer their Black Cattel to run wild in their Woods and Waſtes, where they hunt and kill them as Deer. Here are many Otters, Badgers, Martins, and Foxes, in the Cliffs. The Sea and Rivers abound with all the uſual ſorts of Fiſh; but their chief are Pilchards, of which they make great Profit. There are Multitudes of Sea and Land-Fowl; and Barnacles are ſaid to breed under Water, hanging by the Bill to the Sides of ſuch Ships as have been long at Sea. Here are all the common Fruits and Herbs, tho not ſo plentiful as in other Counties. They have good Grapes, with many medicinal and fragrant Herbs, ſuch as Marjoram, Roſemary, &c. that grow wild in the Cliffs. Here are alſo medicinal Waters near Penzance and Bodmyn; and there are 8 Charity Schools in the County.

The Iſlands of Scilly, thought to be the antient Caſſiterides, belong to this County, lie 26 m. W. from the Land's-end, and are in Number 140. St. Mary is the largeſt and moſt fruitful, is about 6 m. where longeſt, and 3 where broadeſt. It has a good Harbour, defended by a Caſtle. Some of them ſtand high, and bear good Corn; and others ſerve for Paſturage: But moſt of 'em are Rocks cover'd with Water at high Tide; and others abound with Rabbits and Water-Fowl, as Cranes, Herons, Swans, &c. They yield ſome ſmall Parcels of Lead, Tin, and Skins, which the Inhabitants barter for Neceſſaries. Their chief Food is Milk, Fiſh, and Fleſh.

Places of Note in this County are,

1. The Promontory, called the Land's-End. 'Tis ſuppos'd to have reach'd antiently farther W. In the Rocks, at low Water, there appear Veins of Lead and Copper.

2. St. Buriens, 5 m. E. from the Land's-end, a Pariſh Church with an independent Deanery, held in Commendam by the Biſhop of Exeter; but the ſpiritual Juriſdiction lies in themſelves, with an Appeal to the King. The Pariſhes of Sennan and St. Leven are under its Juriſdiction. In the Church here there's a Tomb of an antique Form, and an Inſcription round its Edges: The Characters ſeem to be a Mixture of Roman and Gothick; but none of our Antiquaries can read them.

3. Biſcaw-Wonne, near St. Buriens, where 19 large Stones ſtand upright in a Circle 12 Foot from one another, and in the middle, one larger and higher than the reſt. Some take it to be a Tropiy for a Victory, and others a ſepulchral Monument. This Place gives Name to the antient Family of Boſcawen.

4. Penzance, 5 m. N. E. of St. Buriens, a ſmall Town, with a M. on Thurſdays, and a good Trade. In the Neighbourhood lies that call'd St. Ambroſe's Stone, being a great Rock upon ſome leſſer, and ſo equally poized, that a Touch with one's Finger would make it ſhake, but could not be mov'd out of its place till 'twas undermined in Oliver's Time. In this Pariſh is Madren's Well, famous for curing Lameneſs and other Diſtempers, by drinking and bathing.

5. Mount's-Bay, ſo called from a high Rock in it nam'd St. Michael's Mount. 'Twas fortified, had a Chappel, and was ſometimes uſed as a Priſon of State, and Place of Retreat to the Corniſh Gentry in War. 'Tis encompaſs'd by the Sea when the Tide is in. At the Bottom of this Mount, in the Memory of our Fathers, ſome that were digging for Tin found the Heads of Spears, Battel-Axes, and Swords of Copper. This Bay lies S. of Penzance, and is a ſafe Harbour againſt S. and S. E. Winds. In the Rocks along this Coaſt build the Corniſh Choughs, with red Bills and Feet: They are very thieviſh when tame, and ſometimes ſet Houſes on fire.

6. Mouſehole, a little Market-Town on the Bay.

7. Market-Jew, 4 m. E. of Penzance, has a Market on Thurſdays, and an ill Harbour.

8. Godolcan, now Godolphin, 4 m. E. of Market-Jew, a Hill famous for Tin Mines, and giving Name to the antient and noble Family of Godolphin, that were Lords of it in the Conqueror's Time.

9. Helſton, 10 m. S. E. of Market-Jew, and 234 W. from London. It was incorporated by K. John, and ratified and enlarg'd in ſundry Reigns, particularly by Q. Eliz. and K. Char. I. by the Name of Mayor and Commonalty. It conſiſts of the Mayor, who is always Juſtice next Year, and 4 Aldermen, who elect as many Common-Council-Men as generally make their Number 12. It has ſent 2 Members to Parliament ſince the 23 Ed. I. and they are elected by a Majority of the Freemen. It has the Privilege of ſtamping Tin, pays no Toll, but only in London, a Quit-Rent of 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. to the Crown; and the Townſmen can't be impleaded out of the Bor. It has alſo a Right to keep a Quarter-Seſſions. Here's a large Church with a high Steeple, that ſerves as a Sea-Mark, a ſpacious Market-Houſe, a Guildhall, and 4 Streets well ſupply'd with Water. It has a Market on Saturdays, and 5 Fairs, viz. Saturd. before Midlent, Whitmonday, July 9. Aug. 29. and Oct. 28. A little below it the Sea forms a famous Lake nam'd Loopool, 2 m. long, and 5 about; which has a ſort of Trouts larger and better than thoſe bred in freſh Water. Here's a Bank of Sand that hinders its being a Harbour. 'Tis ſometimes broke by Tempeſts, when the Waves make a terrible Noiſe. At a ſmall Diſtance are the Remains of a Camp, form'd by great Stones heap'd together without Mortar, like the Britiſh Fortifications deſcribed by Tacitus. It lies in a Peninſula that has many Villages, at one of which, nam'd Conſtanton, 30 Years ago, was dug up a Buff Bag full of ſmall Silver Coins of the Kings Arthur and Canutus. The Lizard is the moſt S. Point of this Peninſula.

10. Falmouth, 7 m. S. E. of Helſton, noted for a large excellent Harbour, ſafe againſt all Winds by its Creeks. At the Entry there's a high Rock with the Caſtle of Pendennis, one of the largeſt in England, which has always a Gariſon. Falmouth is a Corporation, has a Market on Thurſdays, and an annual Fair, with a Cuſtom-Houſe, a Collector, and other Officers. It gives Title of Viſc. to the Duke of Northumberland.

11. St. Maws is an antient Bor. ſituate within the Harbour of Falmouth, and is oppoſite to it. It has a Caſtle well mounted with Guns, drives a good Trade in Fiſh, is governed by a Portreeve choſe annually by a Jury at the Lord of the Manor's Court, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. who are elected by the Freemen and Freeholders within the Bor. and has a great Market or Fair on the Friday after St. Luke's Day.

12. Tregony, 9 m. N. E. of Falmouth, a ſmall Town, with a Market on Saturdays, and an annual Fair on Shrove-Tueſday, May 3. July 25. Sept. 2. and Nov. 6. It ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. in the Reign of Ed. I. but no more till the Reign of Q. Eliz. when it was ſummon'd with the other Boroughs of Cornwall. 'Twas incorporated by James I. in 1620. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, and 8 capital Burgeſſes; trades chiefly in making Serges, and its Memb. are choſe by the Majority of Burghers who are Houſe-keepers.

13. Grampound, 4 m N. of Tregony, and 214 W. of London, is a Bor. by Preſcription, and of great Antiquity. It has a Mayor, Recorder, 8 other Magiſtrates, and a Town-Clerk. The Mayor is annually choſen out of the 8 Magiſtrates, the Sund. before Michaelmas, by the Mayor, the other Magiſtrates, and Freemen. Here are 2 annual Courts; one a Month after Eaſter, and the other a Month after Michaelmas. It has ſent Memb. to Parl. ſince the 6 Ed. VI. They are choſen by the Mayor, Magiſtrates, and Freemen. Here's a Market on Tueſdays, and 2 Fairs, on Jan. 18. and June 11. for Bullocks, Horſes, &c. It holds of the Dutchy at a Fee-Farm Rent of 10 l. 11 s. 4 d. has a Chappel of Eaſe within the Town, and a Pariſh-Church a quarter of a m. from it.

14. Truro, 4 m. W. of Tregony, and 220 from London. 'Tis very antient, and one of the beſt built Towns in Cornwall. 'Tis almoſt encompaſs'd with 2 Streams that run into Falmouth Haven, after joining at the End of the Town, where there's a ſpacious Key for Veſſels of about 100 Ton. The Trade is in Tin and Copper Ore. 'Tis the uſual Place where the Ld Warden holds his Parl. for ſtamping Tin. 'Twas incorporated by K. John, and afterwards by Q. Eliz. They have a Mayor, Recorder, and 24 capital Burgeſſes. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 23 Ed. I. who are elected by a Majority of the Corporation. Their Mayor is Mayor alſo of Falmouth; and they have the Keyage of Goods loaden and unloaden there. The Town is large, and had a very good Trade till the Increaſe of Falmouth. It has capacious Churches, a Market on Wedneſdays and Saturdays, and 4 Fairs, viz. Nov. 19. Dec. 8. the Wedneſd. after Midlent-Sunday, and the Wedneſday in Whitſun-Week. It gives Title of Baron to the E. of Radnor, and is the Place where the Weſtern Seſſions are held.

15. Redruth is a Market-Town, 8 m. W. of this Place, with a Harbour.

16. St. Michael, 17 m. N. of Truro, and 210 W. of London, one of the oldeſt Bor. in the County by Preſcription, and formerly conſiderable, but now a mean Village. The High Lord holds a Court about Michaelmas, when the Portreeve is choſen out of the 5 Under Lords, who have Lands here. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince the 6 Ed. VI. They are choſen by the Lords of the Bor. and ſuch Inhabitants as pay to Church and Poor, who are not now above 26. Here's a Fair on St. Francis's Day, but of ſmall Account.

17. Penryn, 4 m. S. W. of Truro, and 228 W. of London, is large, well built, and ſo mix'd with Gardens and Orchards, that it looks as if it ſtood in a Wood. 'Tis well water'd by Rivulets, and has an Arm of the Sea on each ſide, with a good Cuſtom-Houſe and Key, to which Veſſels of 100 Ton come up. The chief Trade is in Pilchard-Fiſhing. 'Twas an antient Bor. by Preſcription, and has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 1 Mary, choſen by thoſe who pay Scot and Lot. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, Portreeve, 11 Magiſtrates, and 12 Aſſiſtants, according to their Charter in 18 Jam. I. Here are the Remains of a ſtately Collegiate Church for 12 Prebends. It has Markets on Wedneſdays and Saturdays, and Fairs on May 1. July 7. and Dec. 21.

18. Fowey, 6 m. N. E. of Grampound, and 204 W. of London, is rich, populous, and has a good Trade in ſeveral ſorts of Merchandize, eſpecially in Fiſh. The Harbour is commodious, capable of the largeſt Ships, and commanded by 2 Caſtles. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcription, has ſent two Memb. to Parl. ſince 13 Eliz. elected by all that pay Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Portreeve. 'Twas incorporated by K. Char. II. has a Mayor, Recorder, Portreeve, 8 Aldermen, and a Town-Clerk. Here's a Market on Saturdays, and Fairs on Shrove-Tueſday, May-Day, and Sept. 16.

19. Leſtwithiel, 7 m. N. of Fowey, and 199 S.W. from London. 'Tis well built, and ſituate on an eaſy Deſcent, among Hills, in a good Soil, water'd with a freſh R. called Tay, abounding with Fiſh, which brought up ſmall Veſſels from Fowey till it was choak'd with Sand. It was the Place where the Dukes of Cornwall uſed to hold their Exchequer, and other Courts of Judicature, and where the Aſſizes were originally kept, and the Knights of the Shire elected. The Ld Warden of the Stannaries has a Court, Priſon, and Officers here for ſtamping of Tin. The County Weights and Meaſures are alſo kept here; and it has the Anchorage and Buſhelage of Coals, Salt, &c. in the Port of Fowey. It was incorporated ſoon after the Conqueſt by Robert E. of Cardigan, and ratified in ſundry ſucceeding Reigns, particularly by Jam. I. by the Style of Mayor and Burgeſſes. The Corporation conſiſts of a Mayor, Recorder, 6 Aldermen, and 17 Common-Council-Men; has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 23 Edw. I. who are choſe by the Majority of the Corporation; and its chief Trade is the Woollen Manufacture. It has a Market on Fridays, and 3 Fairs yearly, viz. June 29. Aug. 24. and Nov. 2.

20. Leskard, 6 m. S.E. of Leſtwithiel, and 186 S.W. from London. 'Tis a very antient Bor. and was formerly called Legis, from the Roman Gariſon there. It has the Remains of a Caſtle and Palace, the antient Reſidence of the Earls and Dukes of Cornwall, and ſeveral other Marks of Antiquity. It was firſt incorporated by Edmund E. of Cornwall, afterwards by Richard, ſecond Son to K. John, ſtiled K. of the Romans; but the greateſt Privileges were granted by the Black Prince. It has had ſeveral Charters ſince, particularly one by Q. Eliz. who granted them a Mayor, Recorder, 8 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, &c. It has ſent Memb. to Parl. ſince 23 Edw. I. who are choſen by the 9 capital Burgeſſes (of whom one is always Mayor) and their 15 Aſſiſtants, with about 100 other ſworn Freemen. The Town is large and populous, ſtands on a Hill, and has a good Trade, eſpecially in Yarn, Boots, Shoes, and other Leathern Wares, with which it ſupplies all the neighbour Towns; a conſiderable Market on Saturd. beſides 3 great ones on Shrove-Mond. Midlent-Mond. and on the Mond. after St. Nicholas's Day; and 3 Fairs a Year, viz. on Aſcenſion-Day, Aug. 15. and Sept. 21. This is one of the Towns for Coinage of Tin, has a handſome Town-Hall, and a fine Clock on the top with four Dials, a large Church, an eminent Free-School, and a curious Conduit which ſerves the Streets about the Market-Place with Water. The Town is encompaſs'd with Woods and Commons, that feed Multitudes of Sheep, and are much us'd for Horſe-Races; and in the Neighbourhood there's a noble Seat and Park belonging to the Earl of Radnor.

21. Bodmyn, 5 m. N. of Leſtwithiel, and 196 W. from London. It lies in Trugg Hundred in the middle of the County, within 4 m. of either the Britiſh or the Briſtol Channel; is a very antient Bor. by Preſcription, has had many Charters, but was incorporated anew by Q. Eliz. by the Stile of Mayor and Capital Burgeſſes. It has a Mayor, Town-Clerk, 10 Aldermen, and 24 Common-Council-Men, who elect the Memb. to Parl. whom they have ſent ſince 23 Edw. I. The Mayor, Town-Clerk, and laſt preceding Mayor are always Juſtices of the Peace. This was formerly a Biſhop's See, the remains of whoſe Palace, and of a famous Priory and Friary here, are ſtill to be ſeen. The Town is near a m. long, pleaſantly ſituate between 2 Hills, and in an Air ſo wholeſome, that the Inhabitants generally live to a great Age. 'Tis the only Staple Town for the County; has a Market on Saturd. plentifully ſupply'd with Corn, Beef, Mutton, and other Proviſion, beſides 3 great Markets, on the Saturd. after Jan. 6. the Saturd. in Midlent, and the Eve of Palm-Sund. and 3 Fairs a Year, viz. on St. Paul's Day, the Wedneſd. before Whitſuntide, and Dec. 6. The Place is noted alſo for ſtamping of Tin, and for certain Stones near it, call'd Wring-Cheeſe; and the Hurlers, ſuppos'd to be the Trophies, or rather the Funeral-Monuments of the antient Britons.

22. Portpigham, alias Weſtlooe, ſo called from the River Looe on which it ſtands, 3 m. S. E. of Fowey, and 194 W. from London. It was incorporated 16 Eliz. by the Stile of Mayor and Burgeſſes; conſiſts of a Mayor and 12 principal Burgeſſes, and is divided from Eaſtlooe by a Bridge of 15 Arches over the River, which is navigable for Ships of 100 Ton. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince the 6 Edw. VI. who are elected by a Majority of the Freemen. Here are about 100 Houſes, but no Church, ſo that the People go to Worſhip, and bury their Dead in the Pariſh of Talland, a m. diſtant. It has a Market on Saturd. and had 2 Fairs a Year, but now only one, which is a very conſiderable one, on St. Mark's Day.

23. Eaſtlooe, on the other ſide the R. was a Bor. by Preſcription long before it was ſo by Charter, which was granted 29 Eliz. by the Stile of Mayor and free Burgeſſes. It conſiſts of a Mayor and 8 chief Burgeſſes, or Council of the ſaid Bor. The chief Trade is fiſhing for Pilchards. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 13 Eliz. has about 200 Houſes, with a ſmall Battery of 4 Guns, and a Chappel of Eaſe. It has a Market on Saturd. and 2 Fairs a Year, at Candlemas and Michaelmas. It lies in that call'd the Weſt-Hundred of Cornwal, within a m. of the Britiſh Channel.

24. Saltaſh, 4 m. E. of St. Germans, and 184 W. from London. It ſtands pleaſantly on a riſing Hill, near the R. Tamar, about a League from Plymouth-Dock. 'Tis one of the moſt antient Bor. in the County, was incorporated by Reginald E. of Cornwal, by the Name of Mayor and free Burgeſſes; and has a Mayor, Recorder and ſix Aldermen. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 6 Edw. I. and they are elected by the Inhabitants who have Land of Inheritance within the Bor. This Town enjoys ſeveral Royalties, holds an Admiralty-Court, has a yearly Rent from all Boats and Barges belonging to it, Anchorage for Ships, dragging of Oyſters, a Coroners Inqueſt, Arreſts, &c. Here is a Market-Houſe, Town-Hall, and Free-School, and a Church, which is only a Chappel of Eaſe to the Pariſh of St. Stephen in which it ſtands. The Town lies in that call'd Eaſt Hundred, contains near 200 Families; and its three principal Streets lie ſo much on the Deſcent of a ſteep Hill, that every Shower of Rain waſhes down all the Filth. The Inhabitants trade much in Malt and Beer. Their Market is on Tueſd. and Saturdays, and their yearly Fairs on Candlemas and St. James's Day. There is a Paſſage from hence to Devonſhire by a Ferry, which is call'd the Crimble, and very dangerous when the Wind is high.

25. Callington, about 9 m. N. of Saltaſh, is a Bor. by Preſcription, and has ſince 27 Eliz. ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. that are elected by the Freeholders and thoſe who pay Scot and Lot. It has about 150 Houſes pretty well built, and is ſituate in a fruitful Country. The Mayor is choſe by a Jury at the Ld of the Manor's Court. The chief Trade here is the Woollen Manufacture. It has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair on April 23. Sept. 8. and Nov. 1.

26. St. Germans, 4 m. from Leskard in the Hundred of Eaſt. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 5 Eliz. but conſiſts now only of a few Fiſhermens Cottages; yet it is govern'd by a Portreeve and 40 Cenſors, who chuſe him at Michaelmas. It has a large handſome Church, and is the biggeſt Pariſh in the County, about 20 m. round, and contains 10 Hamlets. The Town is mean, and ſtands upon an uneven Rock; has a ſmall Market on Frid. and Fairs on May 24, and and Auguſt 1. It ſubſiſts chiefly by fiſhing in Tiddiford R. All the Houſholders that have liv'd a Year in the Bor. have a Vote for Parliament-Men here, who are return'd by the Portreeve.

27. St. Ives, 7 m. N.E. of Penzance; a neat Town, and the People wealthy by Shipping, and the Pilchard Trade. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 4 & 5 Philip & Mary, elected by thoſe who pay Scot and Lot. It was incorporated by K. Char. I. in 1641. when he granted them 4 Fairs per Annum, a Market on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and a Grammar-School, of which the Bp of Exeter and the Mayor and Capital Burgeſſes are Governors. The D. of Bolton is Lord of the Manor, and the Town pays him a Quit-rent. There are Copper-Mines in the Neighbourhood, and Streaks of a Metal like it are ſeen in the Cliffs of the Rocks. Not far from hence lies Trerice, the Seat of the Ld Arundel of Trerice, whoſe Anceſtors came in with the Conqueror.

28. St. Colombs, a little Town 5 m. N.E. of St. Michaels. It has a Market on Saturd. and 2 Fairs a Year. The Ld Arundel of Wardor is Ld of the Manor, has a Burial-Place in the Church here, and a Seat near this Place, call'd Lan-Heron. Not far from hence there is an old Daniſh Rampart on the top of a Hill, and a Cauſey leading up to it.

29. Padſtow, 6 m. N.E. from St. Colombs; a ſmall Corporation, with a Market on Saturd. and annual Fairs, and a ſmall Harbour convenient for Trade with Ireland, the Paſſage being only 24 Hours eaſy ſail. The antient Family of Prideaux has a ſtately Manſion-houſe like a Caſtle here.

30. Wodbridge, 4 m. S.E. from Padſtow; remarkable for its Bridge over the R. Tamar, the largeſt in the County. It has 17 Arches, ſome of them founded on Wool-Packs becauſe of Quickſands under them. 'Twas built by a Vicar of the Place call'd Lovebone, to prevent the Danger of paſſing the Channel by Ferry-Boats. This Town has a Market and annual Fair.

31. Camelford, 12 m. N.E. of Padſtow, and 188 W. from London, lies on the R. Camel, is a ſmall but antient Bor. by Preſcription ſuppoſed to have been incorporated firſt by Q. Eliz. and afterwards by K. Char. II. by the Stile of Mayor and Capital Burgeſſes, (who are 6, whereof one is annually choſe Mayor) a Recorder, and Town Clerk. It has ſent two Memb. to Parl. ſince 6 Edw. VI. who are elected by the Burgeſſes and Freemen. It has a Market on Frid. granted by Richard E. of Cornwall, by whom ſome ſay it was made a Bor. and annual Fairs on the firſt Frid. after March 10. May 15. July 7. and Aug. 26. It has the Tolls of both Market and Fairs.

32. Boſcaſtel, 3 m. N. of Camelford; a ſmall Town with a Market on Thurſd. an annual Fair, and a Harbour.

33. Boſſiney, alias Travena, in Tintagel, 2 m. S.W. from the former, is a ſmall but very antient Bor. by Preſcription, near the Briſtol Channel. 'Tis noted for the Birth-Place of K. Arthur, and the Remains of his Caſtle. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor annually choſe by a Jury out of the ſworn Freemen. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 6 Edw. IV. who are elected by the Freemen having Land of Inheritance within the Bor. It has a conſiderable Fair for Cattel on Oct. 8.

34. Stratton, 12 m. N.E. of Boſcaſtel; a ſmall Town with a Market on Tueſd. and an annual Fair. 'Tis chiefly noted for Gardens and Garlick, and has a Harbour.

35. Launceſton, 10 m. S.E. of Camelford, and 176 S.W. from London; is the chief Town of the County, including the 2 Towns of Dunhivid and Newport. It was incorporated by K. John, and their Privileges ratify'd and inlarg'd in ſucceeding Reigns, particularly by Q. Mary, by the Stile of a Mayor and Commonalty; and conſiſts of a Mayor, Recorder, 8 Aldermen, and Common-Council at Diſcretion. 'Twas made a Bor. by Richard E. of Cornwall; was antiently wall'd, and had a ſtrong Caſtle, built immediately after the Conqueſt by William E. of Moriton, but now gone to ruin; as alſo a Collegiate-Church, converted by Reginald E. of Cornwall into a Priory of Regular Canons. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ever ſince 23 Edw. I. and has been the Aſſize-Town for ſeveral hundred Years, as well as the Place for electing the Knights of the Shire. It has a Church with a handſome high Tower, and a fine Statue of Mary Magdalen, to whom it is dedicated. The Town ſtands on the Deſcent of a Hill, is populous, drives a good Trade, and has a Market on Thurſd. and Saturd. and 4 Fairs a Year, viz. at Whitſuntide, Midſummer, Catherine-tide, and St. Leonard's. The Town lies on the S. ſide of a ſmall R. call'd Kenſey, 2 m. from its fall into the Tamar.

36. Newport, adjoining to it, being part of the King's Demeſnes, claimed the Right of ſending Memb. to Parl. in 6 Edw. VI. ſince which time they have ſent 2. 'Tis a Bor. by Preſcription, and allow'd to be one of the antienteſt in the County. It ſtands on the ſide of a Hill, oppoſite to Launceſton. The Memb. are elected by thoſe who pay Scot and Lot, or have Lands of Inheritance in the Bor. and are return'd by two Viewers yearly choſe by a Jury at the Ld of the Manor's Court. It has a Market on Saturd. and 3 Fairs, viz. on May-Day, St. Margaret, and Holy-Rood-Day.

II. DEVONSHIRE,

HAS Cornwal on the W. Somerſetſhire and Dorſetſhire on the E. the Briſtol Channel on the N. and Britiſh Channel on the S. 'Tis 63 m. S. and N. and 50, where broadeſt, E. and W. but unequal both ways. 'Twas formerly cover'd with Heath and Coppice, but is now ſo well cultivated by Sea-Sand, Marl, Lime, and Turf-Aſhes, that it produces all Neceſſaries, except in the mountainous and rocky Parts, where there are Mines of Silver, Tin, Lead, Iron, and Copper, with ſome mixture of Gold and Diamonds. That there were Mines of Silver and Gold, appears by the Grants of Edward I. and III. for working them. The chief Mines are now thoſe of Tin. The Eaſtern Parts are Chalky, and good for Sheep and Corn; but in thoſe Places where the Soil is a red Marl 'tis bad for Cattel, tho it fructifies barren Ground, but the blue Marl makes excellent Paſture. This County is well water'd, and has convenient Ports on both ſides, where there is plenty of Fiſh, but chiefly of Herrings and Pilchards, which yield great Profit. Here are alſo Chalybeat Fountains, and one particularly near Mary-Church, which ebbs and flows ſeveral times in an Hour; it is as clear as Chryſtal, very cold in Summer, and never freezes in Winter. Here is plenty of all common Fruits, and they export great quantities of Syder, which is reckon'd more ſpirituous and ſtrong than that of Herefordſhire, eſpecially that about Southam, which is ſtronger than white Wine. 'Tis computed they ſend 10000 Hogſheads in a Year to London, eſpecially when French Wine is ſcarce. Here are many medicinal Herbs, on which we can't inſiſt. The Inhabitants are reckon'd ſtrong and brave; the meaner Sort capable of all Fatigue by Sea and Land; the Traders Ingenious and Induſtrious; the Gentry Generous and Hoſpitable, and very careful of the Education of their Children. The Inhabitants are derived from the antient Britons and Saxons. It lies in the Dioceſe of Exeter, has 33 Hundreds, 394 Pariſhes, 1920000 Acres, 56310 Houſes, 337860 People, and ſends 26 Memb. to Parl.

Places of Note are,

1. Hartland, on a Point of the North-Coaſt, 8 m. N. from Stratton in Cornwal. It is the Capital of its Hundred, has a Harbour, and a Market on Saturdays, and annual Fairs.

2. Biddiford, 10 m. E. of Hartland, an antient Port and Corporation, has a conſiderable Trade by its Harbour to the Weſt-Indies, and has leſſen'd that of Barnſtaple. Here is a Collector and other Cuſtom-Houſe Officers, a Market on Tueſd. and annual Fairs. The Magiſtrates can arreſt for any Sum whatever. The E. of Bath is Lord of the Town. It has a remarkable Bridge over the Cokuhat or Towridge, thought to exceed all in England for number, length, and height of Arches; it was founded by the Family of Greenville, and is ſo high, that a Ship of 50 or 60 Ton may ſail thro ſome of its Arches. At North Tawton near this Place there is a Pit out of which ſometimes ſprings a little Brook, which the People count ominous.

3. Barnſtaple, 7 m. N.E. of Biddiford, an antient Bor. incorporated before the Conqueſt; but the Haven being ſpoil'd, moſt of the Trade is now remov'd to Biddiford, tho it has ſtill ſome Merchants. 'Twas formerly wall'd, had the Privileges of a City, and had 40 Burgeſſes within the Walls, and 9 without. It is well built, populous, the Streets clean and well pav'd, and has a noble ſtrong Bridge of Stone of 16 Arches over the Taw, built by one Stampford a Citizen of London. It gives Title to one of the four Archdeacons of Exeter, and has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 23 Edward I. It has 2 Charity Schools, one for 50 Boys, and another for 30 Girls, maintain'd by 100 l. annual Subſcription. The famous Bp Jewell had his Education in this Place. This Bor. had many Privileges from K. Henry I. and K. John, and was long govern'd by a Mayor and 2 Bailiffs; but Q. Mary granted it a Mayor, High-Steward, 2 Aldermen, a Recorder, Deputy-Recorder, and 24 Burgeſſes. Its chief Trade is the Woollen Manufacture. It has a Market on Frid. for Corn, all ſorts of Cattel, Wool, Yarn, and Proviſions. It has a Fair Sept. 8. which laſts 4 Days, and enjoys the ſame Privileges as London, of being Toll free.

4. Ilfarcomb, upon the Coaſt, 8 m. N.W. of Barnſtaple, noted for a ſafe Harbour, and Lights for Direction of Sailors. It has one Street a m. long from the Church to the Harbour. 'Tis a Prebend of the Church of Sarum, where Mr. Camden, tho a Layman, was Prebendary.

5. Comb-Martin, 4 m. E. of Ilfarcomb, noted for ſtore of good Hemp, and formerly for Silver Mines, which were lately re-open'd. It has a Harbour for ſmall Veſſels, a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair on Whit-Monday.

6. South-Moulton, 6 m. S.E. of Barnſtaple, Capital of its Hundred, is a Corporation, has a Market on Saturd. and an annual Fair.

7. Bampton, 5 m. N.E. from Tiverton, Capital of its Hundred, has a Market on Saturd. and 2 annual Fairs.

8. Torrington, 5 m. S.E. of Biddiford; an antient rich Bor. with a good Trade to Ireland, &c. has a Market on Saturd. with 3 annual Fairs; a large Church, and Power of keeping Seſſions within themſelves. The Gentlemen of the Country and the Magiſtrates uſually keep the petty Seſſions and other Meetings here.

9. Holdſworthy, 10 m. S.W. of Torrington; a ſmall Town with a Market on Saturd. On the R. Tamar, is Sheepwaſh a Market-Town 7 m. E. from it.

10. Hatherly, 9 m. S.E. of Holdſworthy, a ſmall Town with a Market on Frid. and an annual Fair.

11. Chimleigh, 9 m. N.E. of Hatherly, a ſmall Town with a Market on Thurſd.

12. Tiverton, 21 m. E. of Hatherly, and 136 m. from London; lies between the Rs. Ex and Leman, over which it has a fair Stone-Bridge. 'Tis an antient Bor. noted for a great Serge and Cloth Manufacture; has a Market on Mond. for Kerſeys, for other Commodities on Tueſd. and Saturd. and 2 annual Fairs on the Tueſd. fortnight after Whitſuntide and Michaelmas. It ſuffer'd much twice by Fire, upon which K. James I. incorporated the Town in 1615. with the Privilege of ſending 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Majority of the Corporation. It is large and populous, has a ſpacious Church, with a noble Free School founded by Peter Blundel a wealthy Clothier of this Bor. who gave 2000 l. for purchaſing Lands to maintain 6 Scholars at Oxford and Cambridge, to be elected from this School. They are now 8, and plac'd at Baliol College in Oxford, and Sidney in Cambridge. 'Tis a large Pile, with convenient Apartments for Maſter and Uſher. The Town is govern'd by a Mayor, 12 principal Burgeſſes, and 12 Aſſiſtants.

13. Columpton, 4 m. S.E. of Tiverton, has a Market on Saturd. with annual Fairs, and a handſome Church.

14. Crediton, 6 m. N.W. of Exeter, has a Market on Saturd. and an annual Fair, with a large handſome Church

15. Bere, 6 m. N.W. another ſmall Town which has a Market on Thurſd. and an annual Fair, and a Court for the Dutchy of Lancaſter.

16. Bradninch is a ſmall Market-Town 2 m. S.W.

17. Exeter, on the navigable R. Ex, 10 m. S.E. from Crediton, 150 computed, and 172 meaſured m. W. from London, Lat. 50. 42. Lon. 3. 39. 'Twas a very antient City of the Britons, call'd Monkton, becauſe of the great Number of Monks; and reputed one of their Capital Cities. It had its preſent Name from Athelſtan, who ſubdu'd and fortify'd it. 'Tis a m. $\frac{1}{4}$ round, with large Suburbs, 6 Gates, and 4 principal Streets which meet in the Center, nam'd Carfox, from the old French or Norman Word Quatre voix, which divides the City into four Quarters. It ſtands on a Hill. 'Tis well-water'd by Springs from the Out-parts, convey'd by Lead-Pipes: the two chief Conduits are in the Cathedral-Church Yard, and in the middle of the Town. It has 19 Churches, beſides Chappels, and the Cathedral in the E. part of the City, which is a magnificent Structure dedicated to St. Peter. It was near 400 Years building by its ſucceſſive Biſhops and others, yet is as uniform as if it had been built at one time by one Man. It has two very fair Towers with fine Rings of Bells, and in the Choir there is a ſtately Epiſcopal Throne of curious Workmanſhip. The Cathedral is well adorn'd with the Tombs and Monuments of Perſons of Quality; and the Organ is reckon'd the biggeſt in England. The Biſhop's Palace adjoins to the Church, and has a Paſſage into it. The Dean and Chapter have fair Houſes in the Cloſe, where there are other Churches. The Dean, Chancellor, and Treaſurer are the Dignitaries, and there are 4 Archdeacons, with a Sub-dean; the Prebends have handſome Incomes, but the Reſidentiaries moſt. Here were many Religious Houſes, which we can't inſiſt upon. At the upper End of the City ſtands the old Caſtle of Rugemont, which commands the Town, and has a pleaſant Proſpect of the Sea. 'Tis thought to have been the Seat of the Weſt-Saxon Kings, and belongs now to the Prince of Wales, but is ruinous, except that Part where the Aſſizes, Quarter-Seſſions, and County-Court are kept.

This City was antiently well inhabited, and eſpecially by Clothiers and Weavers of Broad-Cloth for Spain and Portugal; but afterwards Merchants, Serge-Makers, and Kerſey-Clothiers ſettled here, with all ſorts of Tradeſmen and Mechanicks: And 'tis now moſt noted for the Serge Manufacture. It has a Market on Wedneſd. and Frid. in Winter, and every Day in Summer. In the S. Gate are 2 common Priſons, and a Compter for Debtors. There's a Work-Houſe in the Suburbs for Vagrants, and ſeveral Alms-Houſes. Ships came formerly up to the very Walls of the City: But on a Quarrel with the Citizens, the Harbour was ſpoiled by Hugh Courtney E. of Devon, who thereupon advanc'd the Trade of his Manor of Topſham. But the City ſtill preſerv'd its Intereſt in the Duties upon Ships; and have cleared the Dam, ſo that great Lighters come up to the Key. This City has been ſubject to ſeveral Revolutions, which we can't inſiſt on. It has been antiently noted for a Mint, and coined Money in the Time of K. Will. III.

It was governed by four Portreeves in the Time of the Saxons and Danes; but was incorporated by K. John, made a County by K. Hen. VIII. and has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 23 Edw. I. who are elected by the Freemen and Freeholders. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, Recorder, 24 Aldermen, 4 Bailiffs, a Town-Clerk, and 14 Common-Council-Men, who are aſſiſted by the Officers of the ſeveral Companies, into which the City is divided. It has five Fairs a Year, viz. on Aſh-Wedneſday, Whit-Monday, St. Mary Magdalen's Day, Aug 1. and St. Nicholas's Day. The Motto of this City is Semper Fidelis, having been loyal to the Crown in the midſt of ſeveral Rebellions. It has 15 Pariſhes within the Walls and Suburbs. Edward the Confeſſor made this the Biſhop's See for Devonſhire and Cornwall in 1049, when it was removed hither from Crediton. It had once ſo large a Patrimony, that Bp Voiſey, alias Harman, found the Church in 1523, at his coming here, poſſeſs'd of 22 great Manors, and 14 Manſion-Houſes richly furniſh'd; of which he left not above 7 or 8 of the worſt Manors, let out in long Leaſes, and charg'd with Penſions, and but 2 Houſes, bare and naked. Of 604 Pariſhes, which this Dioceſe contains in the 2 Counties, there are no leſs than 230 Impropriations. The Biſhoprick was once valued at above 1500 l. in the King's Books, but now 'tis reduc'd to 500 l. yet the Clergy's Tenths riſe to 1200 l. 15 s. 2 d. This City was formerly dignified with giving the Title of Duke, then of Marquiſs, and now of Earl to the Family of Cecyl, deſcended from the famous Ld Burghley, Ld High Treaſurer in Q. Eliz. and K. Jam. I's Time.

15. Topſham, about 4 m. S. E. from Exeter, a ſmall Town, with a Market on Saturdays, and 2 annual Fairs. It ſerves in a manner for a Port to Exeter.

16. Sidmouth, 9 m. E. of Topſham, has a Harbour and Market.

17. Cullitон, 7 m. N. E. from Sidmouth, has alſo a Market on Thurſd.

18. Honiton, 15 m. N. E. from Exeter, and 156 W. of London, on the R. Otter in Axminſter Hundred. 'Tis a large Town and Thoroughfare from the E. to the W. Country, and well ſeated both for Corn and Paſture. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcription, and has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 28 Edw. I. in which it ſuffer'd ſome Interruption, but was reſtor'd to its Privileges in 16 Char. I. 'Tis govern'd by a Portreeve choſe annually, who returns the Memb. that are elected by the Inhabitants paying Scot and Lot, who are about 100 Voters. The Portreeve is choſe by a Jury of the Manor, return'd by a Bailiff and other Officers of the Bor. and ſworn by the Steward of the Manor. It has a Market on Saturd. and a Fair on July 20.

19. Axminſter, 7 m. E. of Honiton, has a Market on Saturday.

20. Okehampton, 20 m. N. W. of Exeter, and 160 Weſt of London. 'Tis a conſiderable Town in Liſton Hundred, and has a Market on Saturd. 'Twas incorporated by Jam. I. and ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. in 28 Edw. I. After which there was an Interruption till 16 Char. I. 'Tis a Bor. by Preſcription, govern'd by 8 principal Burgeſſes and 8 Aſſiſtants, a Mayor, Recorder, Juſtice, and Town-Clerk. The Old Mayor nominates 2 of the principal Burgeſſes in a Common-Council for a new Mayor, who is elected by the aforeſaid Burgeſſes and their Aſſiſtants on Mond. after Michaelmas-Day. The Memb. of Parl. are choſe by the Freemen and Freeholders, whether in or out of the Bor. The chief Trade here is making of Serges. It has 6 Fairs per Annum, viz. Alm. 3. St. L. 25. the firſt Tueſd. in Sept. the ſecond in March, the firſt Wednesday in October, and the ſecond after Midſummer.

21. Liſton, a Market-Town, 11 m. S. W. of Oakhampton. Saturday is its Market-Day.

22. Taviſtock, 27 m. S. W. of Exeter, and 166 W. of London, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, conſiſting of a Portreeve, and 100 Freeholders living in and having Lands of Inheritance in the Bor. The D. of Bedford, to whoſe Son this Bor. gives the Title of Marquiſs, is Lord of the Manor, and his Steward holds the Court-Leet and Baron at Michaelmas and Lady-Day. At the firſt 24 Freeholders chuſe the Portreeve, who is return'd by the Steward. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 23 Ed. I. elected by the Majority of Freeholders, and return'd by the Portreeve. The Bor. is Capital of its Hundred, and has the Right of ſtamping Tin, and a Stannary-Court once a Month. 'Tis large, well built, and has a handſome Church. It has a conſiderable Market on Frid. and 4 annual Fairs, viz. Aug. 29. and Sept. 29. for Cattle, Horſes, &c. St. Andrew's and St. Mark's Days for Sheep. 'Tis furniſh'd with Plenty of Fiſh from the R. Tavoy, on which it is pleaſantly ſituated, and had formerly a ſtately Abbey.

23. Chaſford, 14 m. N. E. is a Market-Town.

24. Boralſton, or Bear-Alſton, 3 m. S. W. of Taviſtock, and 186 W. of London, is a ſmall, but antient Bor. by Preſcription, which has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 27 Eliz. 'Tis govern'd by a Portreeve and Burgageteneers, who vote for the Memb. if they pay 3 d. Rent to the chief Lord, who is the E. of Stamford.

25. Plymouth, 12 m. S. of Taviſtock, and 186 W. of London, an antient Town of Fiſhermen, now grown up to the ſize of a conſiderable City by the Conveniency of its Harbour, one of the largeſt and ſafeſt in England, well defended by a Fort on the Iſle of St. Nicholas, and by a Baſtion, Caſtle, and Royal Citadel, which together are mounted by 253 Guns, beſides a Chain in Time of War. It has alſo 2 Docks, made in the Reign of K. Will. III. with a Baſon, Dwelling-Houſes, Stow-Houſes, Rope-Houſe, and all other Requiſites for an Arſenal; which has much enrich'd the Town, being now a Rendevous for Men of War, as well as Merchant-Ships. 'Tis the largeſt Town in the County, populous, and has a conſiderable Trade to the Weſt-Indies and the Straits. There's a good Pilchard-Fiſhing on the Coaſt. 'Tis noted for the Birth of the famous Sir Francis Drake, Sir John and Sir Richard Hawkins, the greateſt Sailors of their Age. It lies at the Mouth of the R. Plym, has a Cuſtom-Houſe, is well ſupplied with Water, and has 2 Churches, one of 400 l. the other 200 l. per Ann. large Markets on Mond. Thurſd. and Saturd. 2 ſecure Harbours capable of 1000 Sail, and has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 26 Edw. I. after which there was an Interruption till it was incorporated in 20 Hen. VI. They are choſe by the Freemen and Freeholders. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, and Recorder, who are Juſtices of the Peace and the Quorum, 12 Magiſtrates, 3 of whom are alſo Juſtices, and 24 Common-Council-Men. 'Tis one of the chief Magazines of the Kingdom, and gives Title of Earl to one of K. Char. II. natural Sons.

26. Plympton, 4 m. S. E. from Plymouth, and 180 W. of London, has been a Bor. by Preſcription, and was very conſiderable before the Riſe of Plymouth. 'Twas made a Bor. 13 Edw. II. and again incorporated by Q. Eliz. It has ſeveral Marks of Antiquity, particularly the Remains of an old Caſtle, antiently the Reſidence of the Earls of Devon, and Barons of Plympton. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Bailiff, 8 Aldermen, a Recorder, and Town-Clerk. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by a Majority of the Freemen, and return'd by the Mayor and Bailiff. 'Tis a populous Town, has a Guildhall upon Stone Pillars, under which is the Corn-Market on Saturd. and it has 6 annual Fairs, viz. on Valentine's-Day, Lady-Day, Holy Thurſday, Midſummer-Day, Lammas-Day, and St. Luke's-Day. But one of theſe Fairs is kept at Underwood, a neighbouring Village.

27. Brent, 12 m. E. of Plympton, has a Market on Saturday.

28. Medbery, 8 m. S. E. from Plympton, has a Market on Thurſd. and 2 annual Fairs much frequented. 'Tis noted for a Multitude of antient Houſes, and the Fruitfulneſs of the adjacent Country.

29. Kingsbridge, 6 m. S. E. of Medbery, a pretty Town, with a Harbour, and a Market on Saturd. and a Free-School. In Dodbrook, which joins to it, there's a Market on Wedneſd. and a particular Cuſtom of paying Tithes to the Parſon in White Ale. It has a Harbour for Boats.

30. Dartmouth, 6 m. S. E. from Kingsbridge, and 164 W. of London, a Bor. and Corporation, with a commodious Harbour defended by 2 Caſtles. 'Twas the moſt conſiderable for Trade, except Exeter, till Plymouth got much of its Commerce. It has 3 Churches, and 2 Markets a Week, but no Fairs. It has a Cuſtom-Houſe; and has ſent Memb. to Parl. under the Name of Clifton-Dartmouth-Hardneſs, ſince 26 Edw. I. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, High Steward, 12 Magiſtrates, and 12 Common-Council-Men. The Officers annually choſe, are the Mayor, 2 Bailiffs, and a Coroner. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by all the Free Burgeſſes, or Freemen. It was a Bor. by Preſcription long before it was incorporated by K. Edw. III. and their Privileges were confirm'd by ſucceeding Kings, eſpecially by K. Rich. II. who being ſore preſs'd in a War againſt France, this Town fitted out Ships with Stores, &c. at their own Expence, which arrived ſeaſonably to the King's Relief, who thereupon gave 'em a new Charter. K. Ch. II. gave it the Title of a Barony, and Q. Anne that of an Earldom. The R. Dart runs into the Harbour, which is much frequented.

31. Totneſs, 8 m. N. W. of Dartmouth, and 160 W. of London. 'Twas a Bor. by Preſcription, and the moſt antient in the County. 'Twas incorporated by Charter in 7 John, with many Privileges. The Corporation conſiſts of 14 Maſters and Counſellors, whereof one is yearly on St. Matthew's Day elected Mayor, who with the Recorder and laſt preceding Mayor are Juſtices of the Peace. There are 20 Burgeſſes, or Common-Council-Men, and ſome few Freemen, elected by the Mayor and Maſters, the Majority of whom elect the 2 Memb. of Parl. which this Bor. has ſent ſince 23 Edw. I. Here is a ſpacious Church with a high Tower, a Town-Hall, and a School-Houſe; but its antient Fame is much diminiſh'd. Its chief Trade is the Woollen Manufacture. Its Markets are Tueſd. and Saturd. and its Fairs May 1. Aug. 15. and Oct. 28. The Remains of its antient Walls are ſtill to be ſeen.

32. Aſhburton lies in Tingbridge Hundred, about half-way between Exeter and Plymouth, 160 m. W. from London. 'Tis a very antient Bor. by Preſcription, lies among Hills, and is noted for being one of the four Stannaries of Devon, its Mines of Tin and Copper, and its Serge Manufacture. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. who are elected by the Majority of Freeholders, and return'd by the Portreeve, who is yearly choſen at the Courts Leet and Baron of the Lords of the Manor. The Election was diſcontinued for many Years, but reſtor'd by the Intereſt of Sir John Northcot Bar. of this County ſoon after the Reſtoration of K. Char. II. Here is a Market on Tueſd. and Saturd. the firſt only for Wool and Yarn, and 4 Fairs, viz. the firſt Thurſd. in March and June, and the Feſtivals of St. Lawrence and St. Martin.

33. Newton,

33. Newton, 6 m. S. E. from Aſhburton, has a Market on Wedneſd.
34. Chudleigh, 4 m. N. E. of Newton, has a Market on Saturd.
35. Morton, 10 m. S. W. of Exeter, a ſmall Town on the Skirts of Dartmore, which is a mountainous Part of the Country, 20 m. long, and 14 broad, affords Paſture all Summer to almoſt 100000 Sheep, and a proportionable Number of other Cattel, with great Quantities of Turf for Firing.

36. Torbay lies 12 m. N. E. of Dartmouth. 'Tis about 12 m. in Circuit, and has its Name from an adjoining Village. 'Tis memorable for the Landing of the late K. William, of Glorious Memory, on Nov. 5. 1688. Arthur Herbert, a Branch of the Family of the Ld Herbert of Cherbury, being Admiral of that Fleet which brought the Prince over, was for that and other Services created Bar. of Torbay, and E. of Torrington; who dying without Iſſue, the Honour fell with him. This Place is the uſual Rendevouz of the Royal Navy when we have War with France. Near the E. ſide of this Bay lies Crokemor, a high Hill, on the top of which the Court of Parl. for the Stannaries of Cornwall is held.

37. Lundy Iſle lies about 50 m. N. W. from the N. W. Point of this County, and is reckon'd to belong to it. 'Tis 5 m. long, and 2 broad, encompaſs'd with inacceſſible Rocks, and has only one ſmall Entrance, where 2 Men can ſcarce go a-breaſt. It had a Fort and a Chappel; but both now in Ruins. It has Paſturage, Fowl, and Samphire.

III. DORSETSHIRE,

HAS Devonſhire on the W. the Britiſh Channel on the S. part of Wiltſhire and Somerſetſhire on the N. and part of Hampſhire on the E. It lies in the Dioceſe of Briſtol, is 50 m. long, and 25 broad; is divided into 34 Hundreds, 248 Pariſhes, has 22 Market-Towns, 9 Bor. 6 Caſtles, and contains about 772000 Acres of Land, 21940 Houſes, and 131640 Inhabitants, and ſends 20 Memb. to Parl. The Succeſſors of Egbert, our firſt Saxon Monarch, admiring the Pleaſantneſs of this Shire, choſe it for their Reſidence, and had vaſt large Palaces here; which Faſhion the Gentry ſtill continue, their Houſes being like Princes Palaces. It gives Title of Duke, as it did formerly of Earl, to the Family of Cranfield Sackville.

The Air of this County is generally good and wholeſome. In the hilly Parts 'tis ſharp, but mild near the Coaſts. The Soil is for the moſt part fruitful, tho ſandy; and in the N. and E. Parts it abounds with Wood, Paſture, green Hills, and fruitful Valleys. Its Rs. the chief of which are the Stour and the Frome, abound with Trouts, Tench, Eels, Crawfiſh, &c. and they have Herrings, Soles, Plaiſe, Lobſters, and Thornback on the Coaſt. Their Rocks abound with the wholeſomeſt of Pickles, Samphire, and Eringo-Roots. The Downs and Hills are cover'd with great Flocks of large Sheep, whoſe Fleſh and Wool is very fine; and their Valleys with Black Cattel. Here is plenty of Corn, Flax, and Hemp, the common Herbs, Fowls, and Birds, and all Neceſſaries for Life; therefore the County is well ſtocked with Gentry. Beſides Timber, here are various ſorts of white, reddiſh, and greyiſh Stones for Building, and others, which are more ſoft, for Plaiſter of Paris; and many ſorts of uſeful Earths, eſpecially Tobacco-Pipe Clay, which is dug about Pool and Wareham, and ſent as far as Cheſter and London.

This County contains the Deaneries of Bridport, Dorcheſter, Whitchurch, Pimpern, and Shaſton; and the Archdeacon of Dorſet has the Juriſdiction of the whole Dioceſe in Church Matters.

Places of Note are,

1. Lime Regis, 18 m. E. from Exeter, and 124 m. W. of London. 'Tis a famous Sea-Port and Bor. and has a Market on Saturd. A ſmall R. runs thro the middle. 'Tis difficult of Acceſs, and ſtands on a high ſteep Rock. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, Town-Clerk, and 15 capital Burgeſſes, 2 of which are Juſtices of the Peace. When the Mayor has ſerved out his Year, he is a Juſtice of Peace for 3 Years, and both Juſtice and Coroner the laſt. Here are wealthy Merchants, who have fine Houſes. The Harbour is defended by a Fort, and has a Peer, which lies $\frac{1}{4}$ m. from the Town, which has ſcarce its equal in England, and requires great Coſt to maintain it. Here is a Cuſtom-Houſe; and the Cuſtoms collected here have amounted ſometimes to 16000 l. a Year, by their Trade to the Weſt Indies. That Part of the Town next the Sea is ſo low, that at ſome Tides the Houſes are waſh'd 10 or 12 Foot high. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince 1300. The Election is in the capital Burgeſſes, Freemen, and Freeholders in the Bor. who 'tis reckon'd are at leaſt 200; and the Return is in the Mayor and Burgeſſes.

2. Bridport, 6 m. S. E. from Lime, and 114 W. from London, at a little diſtance from the Shore, between 2 ſmall Rs. 'Tis a Bor. and has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ever ſince the Reign of K. Edw. I. elected by the Majority of the Pot-Wallers, viz. the Bailiffs, Burgeſſes, and Commonalty. It has a Market on Saturd. and is govern'd by 2 Bailiffs, a Recorder, and certain capital Burgeſſes. The adjacent Country is famous for the beſt Hemp, and the Town for breeding the beſt Artiſts in Ropes, Cables, and Nets; ſo that in the Time of Hen. VIII. it was order'd, that kind of Tackle for Shipping ſhould be made no where elſe. It was an antient Bor. by Preſcription, incorporated by Hen. VII. and afterwards by Q. Eliz. and K. Char. II. and is a Hundred of it ſelf. The Government is in 2 Bailiffs, choſe yearly by the Burgeſſes, who with the Bailiffs are 15, and have Power to chuſe a Recorder and Town-Clerk, who with the ſaid Bailiffs and their Predeceſſors are to be Juſtices of the Peace. The Town ſtands in a low dirty Soil, and conſiſts principally of 2 Streets; the one from E. to W. in the great W. Road, which is the chief Support of its Trade, but is very uneven, and ill pav'd, tho broad; and the other from N. to S. in which ſtands the Church. The Houſes are reckon'd 280. The Corporation is poor, and the Buildings ruinous, which is imputed to the choaking up of its Harbour by the Tides, and to the decay of their once flouriſhing Hemp Manufacture. N. E. from hence, near Winford Eagle, ſome Years ago, in digging up old Burrows, or Trenches, they found a Place like an Oven, curiouſly carv'd round. At firſt opening, the Diggers could not endure the Heat; but at laſt, opening it further, they found an Urn full of Bones, and ſeveral more Urns, but not in Ovens.

3. Bemiſter lies 10 m. N. of Bridport, is Capital of its Hundred, and a Market-Town; as is alſo Everſhot, 6 m. to the N. E.

4. Abbotsbury, 7 m. S. E. from Bridport, on the Coaſt, with a Port, has a ſmall Market on Thurſd.

5. Portland, 4 m. S. E. from Weymouth, formerly an Iſland, but now join'd to the Continent. 'Tis ſcarce 7 m. round, and is encompaſs'd by a Ridge of Rocks; ſo that the Sides are high, and the Middle low. 'Tis thinly inhabited. Here's plenty of Corn and Paſture; but for want of Fuel, they are forc'd to burn dry'd Cow-Dung. The antient Inhabitants were fam'd for the beſt Slingers in England. There's a Church on the E. ſide of the Iſland. The Rocks about it make it inacceſſible, except on the N. ſide, where 'tis defended by a Caſtle, built by K. Hen. VIII. and well fortified. There's another on the oppoſite Shore, call'd Sandford Caſtle; and both of 'em command the Road call'd Portland-Race, becauſe of the ſtrong Current here. The Iſland abounds with Quarries of excellent durable Stone, with which the Churches, &c. of London have been chiefly rebuilt ſince the Fire, to the great Advantage of the Iſland. It gives Title of Duke to his Grace Henry D. of Portland.

6. Weymouth and Melcomb Regis, on the ſame Coaſt, 4 m. N. W. of Portland, and 132 m. W. from London, were formerly 2 diſtinct Bor. that often quarrel'd about their Privileges, which were therefore taken away by K. Hen. VI. and his Parl. and reſtor'd by Q. Eliz. on Condition that they ſhould make but one Corporation, and enjoy their Privileges in common; which has caus'd both to flouriſh. They are join'd by a Bridge of 17 Arches. They lie on the Banks of the R. Wey, which at its Entrance into the Sea at Portland forms a convenient Harbour for both Towns. 'Tis the beſt frequented in the County, and defended by Sandford and Portland Caſtles abovementioned. The Town is large, has fair Buildings, is full of good Mariners, and before the War, had a great Trade to France and the Weſt Indies, which has ſince decay'd; but revives again, and the Merchants fitted out 20 Ships for Newfoundland laſt Seaſon. Here are 2 good Markets on Tueſd. and Frid. The Government is by a Mayor, Recorder, 2 Bailiffs, and 24 capital Burgeſſes, beſides the Aldermen and Council. Melcomb is the biggeſt Town, has 4 broad Streets, a good Market-Place, Yards for Goods, a Town-Hall, and a Church, which Weymouth wants. The latter gives Title of Viſcount to the Right Honourable Thomas Thynne Ld Viſc. Weymouth. The Freemen of each Corporation vote for 4 Burgeſſes to repreſent them in Parl. tho they are return'd as 2 for each, and the leaſt Freeholder has a Vote, tho he be not an Inhabitant. Melcomb Regis has a Fair on June 16, 17, 18. In King Ed. III's Reign it flouriſhed ſo, that it was appointed a Staple; but in the next Reign 'twas impoveriſh'd, and almoſt deſtroy'd by the French. It ſent Memb. to Parl. in the Time of Edw. I. as Weymouth did in the Reign of Edw. II.

7. Dorcheſter, 7 m. N. from Weymouth, and 100 W. from London, is the head Town of the Shire, and ſtands on the Banks of the R. Frome. 'Tis pretty large, has wide Streets, and ſtands on a riſing Ground, which opens at the S. and W. Ends into ſweet Fields and ſpacious Downs. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Bailiffs, capital Burgeſſes, and Common-Council-Men. The Corporation conſiſts of 16, 5 of whom are Juſtices of Peace, including the Mayor, who is always of the Quorum. The Common-Council annually chuſes a Governor, and holds a diſtinct Court, aſſiſted by 5 of the capital Burgeſſes, and determines all Matters belonging to the Privileges of Freemen. In 1613 an accidental Fire burnt Houſes and Goods valu'd at 200000 l. but no body periſh'd by it. Here are 3 fair Streets, neatly pav'd, with regular Buildings, 3 Pariſh-Churches, the Town-Hall, Shire-Hall, and County-Goal. Here's a famous Free-School, and ſeveral Alms-Houſes. The chief Trade is in Serges. 'Twas an antient Bor. by Preſcription, incorporated by Hen. VI. and afterwards by Jam. I. This is the Place for the Aſſizes, Quarter-Seſſions, and Election of Memb. of Parl. Here are good Inns, and a plentiful Market on Wedneſd. Frid. and Saturd. and Fairs Feb. 2. Trinity-Mond. Midſummer and S. James's-Days. The three laſt noted for ſelling Sheep. The Town is famous for Cakes, and ſome of the beſt Malt Liquor in the Kingdom. It gave Title of Marq. to the preſent D. of Kingſton. It has ſent Memb. to Parl. ever ſince the Reign of K. Edw. I. The Right of Election is in all the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot. Here are ſeveral Monuments of Antiquity, as an old Roman Camp call'd Maiden Caſtle, and an Amphitheatre call'd the Mambrey.

8. Wareham, 20 m. E. from Dorcheſter. 'Tis a ſtrong Town by Situation, fortified on the E. and W. Sides by thick high earthen Walls, and on the N. and S. by the Rs. Frome and Piddle. It was formerly reckon'd the largeſt Town in Dorſetſhire; but by Fire, and the Loſs of its Haven, occaſion'd by the Retreat of the Sea, 'tis now almoſt ruin'd. Great part of the E. and W. ſides are turn'd into Gardens, which bear plenty of Garlick. Some Marks are ſtill left of its antient Grandeur, as 8 Churches out of 17; but they are all fine Cures, except 3, which are ſupplied by one Miniſter. Its 2 chief Streets croſs each other, and are meanly built. 'Twas an antient Bor. by Preſcription, but incorporated by Q. Anne. The Tower of St. Mary's is its chief Ornament. The Trade of the Town is remov'd to Pool. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 6 capital Burgeſſes, 12 Common-Council-Men, and a Town-Clerk. The Mayor, Recorder, and preceding Mayor are Juſtices, the 2 firſt of the Quorum, and hold their own Seſſions. It has 3 Fairs, viz. on April 6. June 24. and Aug. 31. The Election of Parl. Men is in the Freeholders, and all the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot; and the Mayor is the Returning Officer. It firſt ſent Memb. in the Time of Edw. I. The Inhabitants ſay this Town roſe out of the Ruins of Stowborough, a ſmall Village in the Suburbs, which was govern'd till lately by a Mayor, but now by a Bailiff. The chief Trade here is in Tobacco-Pipe Clay. 'Tis encompaſs'd by a prodigious Quadrangular Trench.

9. Purbeck, commonly call'd an Iſland, but is only a Peninſula at moſt; for tho 'tis encompaſs'd, except on the W. by the Sea, yet there's no R. that cuts it quite from the Continent. 'Tis about 10 m. long, and 6 broad, and contains 2 Hundreds. The Soil in the S. Parts, bordering on the River Frome and the Bay, into which it runs, is fruitful; but the other parts are full of Heath and Foreſts, where there is plenty of Deer, and a ſort of Marble known by the name of Purbeck-Stone, and many other ſorts of good Stone for Building.

10. Corfe-Caſtle, in the middle of the Iſle of Purbeck, 6 m. S. from Wareham, and 90 S. W. of London. It takes its Name from a Caſtle built by K. Edgar, who endow'd the Town with ſeveral Privileges. It ſtands below the Caſtle upon a conſiderable Riſe, and contains 100 Houſes. It has a large and lofty Pariſh-Church cover'd with Lead. It is a Royal Peculiar, not liable to any Epiſcopal Viſitation or Juriſdiction, and has a Chappel of Eaſe about a m. from the Town. It was a Bor. by Preſcription, but firſt incorporated by Q. Eliz. and afterwards by K. Char. II. with the Stile of Mayor and Barons, 9 in number, with the ſame Privileges as the Cinque-Ports, and many others, as an Exemption from Toll, Arreſts, Suit or Service without their Bor. The Mayor is choſen at the Lord of the Manor's Court-Leet, and with the preceding Mayor is a Juſtice of Peace, can hold Seſſions, chuſe Coroners during Life, Counſellors, Ale-Taſters, &c. K. Char. II. gave it thoſe Privileges becauſe of the noble Defence the Caſtle made for him. Mr. Banks Ld of the Manor, is by Inheritance Ld Lieutenant of the Iſle of Purbeck, has Power to appoint all Officers, to determine all Actions by his Bailiffs and Deputies, has all Shipwrecks in the Iſle, and a Freedom from the Court of Admiralty. It firſt ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. in the Reign of Q. Eliz. they are choſe by the Mayor, Barons, Freeholders, and Leſſees, who pay to the Church and Poor; and return'd by the Mayor and other Barons. The Mark. is on Thurſd. and they have Fairs on May-day and St. Luke's day.

11. Pool, 5 m. N. E. from Wareham, and 90 S. W. from London; is a ſmall Town ſurrounded by Water but on the N. where it joins the Continent by a Neck of Land that was fortify'd, but now neglected. 'Tis a County of it ſelf, handſomely built, has Markets on Mond. and Thurſd. and 2 Fairs, of 8 Days each, which begin on St. Philip and All-Souls day. The Town has a Trade with France and the Weſt-Indies, in which they employ 200 Ships, ſo that it is rich and populous. The Arm of the Sea which almoſt ſurrounds it, is call'd Luxford-Lake, and ebbs and flows 4 times in 24 Hours. Here is plenty of good Fiſh, and large Oyſters much eſteem'd; with a Collector and other Officers of the Cuſtoms. There's an embattell'd Gate of Stone at the Entrance, a Key, and a fair Town-houſe. 'Tis an antient Bor. and Corporat. ſent Memb. to Parl. in 15 Edw. III. but diſcontinu'd till 31 Hen. VI. who gave it large Privileges, which were confirm'd by Edw. IV. and they had a new Charter from Q. Eliz. who made it a County. They have a Mayor, Bailiffs, Burgeſſes, and Community. The Magiſtrates after paſſing the Chair, are call'd Aldermen, and are uſually 12: Out of them are annually choſen 3 Juſtices, the Mayor and Recorder being the Quorum. Here is alſo a Sheriff, a Coroner, Water-Bailiff, and Town-Clerk. The Mayor is Admiral within the Liberty, and with the Bailiffs and Burgeſſes within and without, chuſes the Members of Parliament.

12. Winburnminſter, 8 m. S. of Cranborn; a large, populous Town, with a well-frequented Market on Fridays; and on Good-Friday a Market begins here for Cattel, which laſts 7 Weeks. It was a Station for one of the Roman Legions, and famous in the time of the Saxons. Badbury-hill 2 m. diſtant is entrenched with a triple Ditch, and thought to have been a Summer-Station for a Roman Legion, becauſe Roman Coins, Urns, &c. have been dug up here, and that there's a Ditch from hence to old Sarum. King Ethelred is bury'd in the Church of Winburn, under a Marble Tomb lately repaired, with a Latin Inſcription, ſignifying, Here lies the Body of St. Ethelred, K. of the Weſt-Saxons, a Martyr, who fell by the Hands of the Pagan Danes, the 23d of April, in the Year of our Lord 872.

13. Cranborn, 8 m. N. of Winburnminſter, a pleaſant well-water'd T. with a Mark. on Wedneſd. It gives Title of Viſc. to the E. of Salisbury.

14. Bere, 9 m. S. W. of Winburn, a ſmall T. with a Market on Wedneſd.

15. Milton-Abbey, 4 m. W. of Bere; a ſmall Town with a Market on Mond. noted chiefly for its Abby built by K. Athelſtan, to atone for taking away his Brother's Life and Crown.

16. Blandford, 5 m. N. E. from Milton; a flouriſhing Bor. and Mark. Town on the Banks of the Stour, is well built, and has many Gentlemens Seats in the Neighbourhood, occaſion'd by the pleaſant adjoining Downs. It has a very good Market on Saturd. is noted for Straw-work and Bone-Lace, but chiefly for giving Title of Marq. to the D. of Marlborough. It formerly ſent Members to Parliament, and is one of the moſt conſiderable Towns in the County for good Houſes and Concourſe of Gentry. 'Tis a Thorow-fare for Exeter, and the Quarter-Seſſions are held here once a Year.

17. Shaftesbury, 9 m. N. from Blandford, and 88 from London. 'Tis a great Thorow-fare and Poſt-Road, and vies with any Town in the County for Antiquity. 'Tis ſuppoſed to have been built by K. Alfred in 880. was very populous, and had 10 Churches, beſides a famous Monaſtery, but has now only 3 handſom Churches. It lies upon a Hill, has a fine Proſpect, and a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Palm-Saturd. Midſummer-day, and St. Martin's. It had 2 Mints before the Conqueſt, was incorporated by Q. Elizabeth, and again by K. Charles II. tho the Inhabitants ſay they were a Corporation before. It has ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. ſince the 23d. of Edw. I. It was ill ſupply'd with Water, till Mr. Benſon, their late Memb. of Parl. furniſh'd it by Engines: Before this they were oblig'd to fetch it on Horſes Backs, or in Pails upon the People's Backs, from the Pariſh of Melcomb, for which they made an annual Acknowledgment to the Lord of the Manor, by the Mayor and Burgeſſes carrying a rich Garland to a Green, half a m. below the Hill, where they preſented it with a raw Calves-Head, and a pair of Gloves to his Steward, who diſtributed 12 Penny-Loaves and 3 Doz. of Beer among the People; after which the Garland or Prize Beſom, which was ſometimes adorned with Plate to the Value of 1500 l. borrow'd from the neighbouring Gentry, was carry'd back to the Town with great Joy. 'Tis alſo noted for giving Title of E. in K. Ch. 2d's Reign to that great Patriot and Stateſman, Sir Anth. Aſhley Cooper, whoſe Poſterity ſtill enjoy it, and have a noble Seat at Winburn St. Giles's in this County. The Town is govern'd by a Mayor and 12 Aldermen, and the Parl. Men are choſe by thoſe who pay Scot and Lot.

18. Sherburn, 14 m. S. W. of Shaftesbury, and 118 ¼ meaſur'd m. W. from London. It ſtands on the ſide of a Hill in a pleaſant Country; is antient, large, has good Markets on Tueſd. and Saturd. for Cattel and Proviſions, and is much frequented, being a Thorow-fare from London to Exeter and Plymouth. It had formerly a good Trade in Cloth, which being decay'd, the People apply themſelves to making Buttons and Haberdaſhery-Ware. It was formerly a Biſhop's See, but transfer'd in the 11th Century firſt to Sunning, and then to Sarum; was ſometime the retiring Place of William the Conqueror and his Succeſſors, and has a ſtrong Caſtle. It had formerly 3 Pariſh-Churches, and now but one, which is very magnificent, and the Workmanſhip curious within and without. Here is alſo a Free-School and a fine Alms-Houſe. There are many Gentlemens Seats in the Neighbourhood. The Inhabitants here are reckon'd at 20000, tho the Town is not ſo large as Winburnminſter. The Church is a ſtately Building: In it, at the Entrance from the Port, 'tis ſaid that Ethelbald and Ethelbert, both Kings of England 200 Years before the Conqueſt, lie interr'd; and here is a Monument of John Digby E. of Briſtol, who dy'd in 1698, ſo ſumptuous, that 'tis ſaid to have coſt 1500 l. Tho this Town never ſent Repreſentatives to Parliament, it ſent them once to a Council, by a particular Summons in the Time of Edw. I.

19. Sturminſter, 7 m. W. from Shaftesbury, has a Market on Thurſd. and is noted for the Remains of an antient Caſtle near it, call'd Newton, formerly the Seat of the Weſt-Saxon Kings; as alſo a fair Stone-Bridge over the Stour.

20. Stalbridge, a Market-Town, 7 m. N. E. of Sherburn.

21. Hermitage, a ſmall Village in the Neighbourhood, but remarkable for a ſtrange Accident that happen'd here in 1585. when a large Piece of Ground was by an Earthquake or ſubterranean Wind, carry'd 40 Rod from its place, leaving a great Pit behind it, and retaining the Trees and Hedges about it entire.

22. Wickhampton, a ſmall Town with a Market on Mond. and an annual Fair on Aſſumption-day; 6 m. ¼ N. E. of Blandford.

23. Haſtebury, 6 m. W. of Blandford; has a Market on Mondays, and a free Warren.

24. Frampton, 4 m. N. W. of Dorcheſter; where there's a Bridge over the River; has a Market on Thurſdays.

25. Cerne, 5 m. N. E. from Frampton, noted formerly for a noble Abby, ſtands in a Champain Country, and has a Market on Thurſd.

IV. SOMERSETSHIRE,

AS Devonſhire on the W. Glouceſterſhire and part of Wiltſhire on the E. Briſtol-Channel on the N. and part of Devonſhire and Dorſetſhire on the S. 'Tis 45 m. where longeſt E. & W. and 46 where broadeſt S. & N. It lies in the Dioceſe of Bath and Wells, is ſaid to contain 107500 Acres, and 44686 Houſes, and ſends 18 Members to Parliament. It abounds with Corn and Paſture, and the common Fruits; is very pleaſant in Summer, but the Roads are deep in Winter; whence the Proverb, that this County is Bad for the Rider but good for the Abider. It has Mines of Lead, Copper, Lapis Calaminaris, Chryſtal that comes near Diamonds, and Woad for Dyers. The chief Manufactures are Broad Cloth, Serges, and Druggits. Their black Cattel are as large as thoſe in Lancaſhire, and at Cheddar in this County they make the beſt and largeſt Cheeſes in England, reckon'd as good as Parmeſan, and made by the Milk of the whole Pariſh. This County is divided into 42 Hundreds, 385 Pariſhes, and has 36 Market Towns, of which 8 are Boroughs that ſend Members to Parliament. Its chief Rivers are the Severn, Avon, Frome, Parrot, Tor and Tone. It formerly gave Title of E. and now of D. to the Family of Seymour, deſcended from Edw. Seymour D. of Somerſet, and Uncle to Edw. VI. This County is populous, and pretty well furniſh'd with Harbours. Some derive the Name from its mild Air, as if they would ſay, a Summer-Country, tho it be very moiſt and wet in Winter; but Camden derives it from Somerton, which was antiently the County-Town. Lowthorp in his Abridgment of the Philoſophical Tranſactions, Vol. II. takes notice of a freezing Rain that fell here in 1672. that the like has not been mention'd in any Engliſh Chronicle. What made it the more remarkable, was, that tho the Branches of the Trees were ſo loaded with this icy Rain, that they broke off with great Noiſe, there was no Ice to be ſeen in Rivers or Ponds. A Gentleman who gave this Account ſays, that the Sprig of an Aſh-Tree cover'd with this icy Rain, brought to him at his Table, weigh'd 16 lb. notwithſtanding the Ice which had been melted off it by the Hands that brought it; and that when the Ice was quite melted off, the Sprig weigh'd but ¼ of a Pound: ſo that the Orchards thro the Country were exceedingly damag'd, and the Roads made unpaſſable by the Branches of Trees that broke off by the extraordinary Weight of the Ice. This violent Froſt was ſucceeded by glowing Heats, which caus'd an exceſſive Sweating, Day and Night, among the Inhabitants, and the Buſhes and Flowers to appear as forward as in April and May; and an Apple-Tree had Apples perfectly form'd as big as one's Finger's end before New-years-tide.

Places of Note are,

1. Minehead, on the Briſtol-Channel, about 3 m. N. E. from Barnſtaple, and 132 W. from London. 'Tis govern'd by 2 Conſtables choſen annually at Mr. Luttrel's, the Lord of the Manor's Court-Leet, and ſends two Members to Parliament, choſen by a Majority of the Pot-Walloons. It has a Peer capable of Ships of the greateſt Burden, a Market on Wedneſday, and a Fair on Whit-Tueſday.

2. Porlock, 4 m. W. of Minehead, is a Market-Town and Harbour.

3. Dulverton, 10 m. S. of Porlock, has a Market on Saturday, and annual Fairs.

4. Dunſtar-Caſtle, 2 m. S. of Minehead; the antient Reſidence of the Mohuns. It has a Market on Fridays, and a Harbour.

5. Watchet, a Town with a ſmall Harbour, about 7 m. S. E. of Minehead, and a Market on Saturdays.

6. Stowey, 5 m. E. of Watchet, has a Market on Tueſd. and a Port.

7. Bridge-

7. Bridgewater, on the Parret, 10 m. S. E. of Watchet, a large Town and Port, with a Custom-House and proper Officers, who have also the Inspection of the Port of Watchet. 'Tis a large populous Town, a Bor. and Corporat. and has given Title of E. to the Family of Egerton since the Reign of Jam. I. It had the first Charter from K. John, and was made a Mayor-Town by Hen. IV. They are govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Bailiffs, and 24 Common-Councilmen. The Mayor, Recorder, and 2 Aldermen are Justices of the Peace. Here is also a Receiver, 2 Bailiffs, a Town-Clerk, 2 Serjeants at Mace, and a Water-Bailiff. The Freemen are free in all Ports of England but London, and in Ireland but Dublin. The Sheriff of the County can't send any Process into the Bor. Here is a Market on Thursd. for all sorts of Provision, and Fairs the 1st Thursd. in Lent, June 24, Sept. 21, and Dec. 29. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. chosen by the Inhabitants that pay Scot and Lot.

8. Taunton-Dean, 6 m. S. W. of Bridgewater, 120 m. W. of London, is a fine large Borough and Corporation, of great Antiquity. It has a noble Bridge over the Tone, which is navigable there by Barges. 'Tis one of the best Towns in the County, has spacious Streets, 2 Parish-Churches, and is well inhabited, especially by Clothiers, who drive a mighty Trade in Serges. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has Markets on Wednesdays and Saturdays. 'Twas formerly govern'd by 2 Constables, 2 Portreeves, 2 Bailiffs, and other Officers; but by their last Charter from K. Char. II. it was incorporated into a Borough of 24 Burgesses, out of which are chosen annually a Mayor, 2 Aldermen, a Recorder, Town-Clerk, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Pot-Walloons, i. e. all who boil their own Pots and are Parishioners; the Number is about 700. Here is a Market on Wednesd. and Fairs on the 17th of June and 7th of July; the latter holds 7 days.

9. Wellington, 5 m. S. W. of Taunton, on the same River, has a Market on Thursdays.

10. Ilminster, 7 m. S. E. of Taunton, has a Market on Saturdays.

11. Chard, 4 m. S. E. of Ilminster, and 115 from London; a very antient Borough, incorporated by Bp Joceline, the Remains of whose Palace are still here. He gave 52 Acres of Ground to build upon, with Liberty for any to settle here, except Turks or Jews. They are govern'd by a Portreeve and Burgesses. 'Tis well built, has a considerable Trade in the Woollen Manufacture, a Market on Mond. and Fairs on the 3d of May, St. James's day, and Nov. 3. The Assizes are sometimes kept here.

12. Wivelscomb, 5 m. N. W. of Wellington, has a Market on Tuesd.

13. Stokegomer, near 5 m. N. E. of Wivelscomb, has a Market.

14. North Petherton, 5 m. N. E. of Taunton, has a Market; as has also South Petherton, 4 m. N. E. from Ilminster, on Thursday.

15. Crookhorn, 5 m. S. E. of Ilminster; has a Market on Saturdays.

16. Langport, 6 m. N. E. of Ilminster; has a well-frequented Market on Saturdays.

17. Yeovil, 6 m. N. E. of Crookhorn; has a Market on Fridays.

18. Ilchester, 4 m. N. W. of Yeovil, and 104 S. W. from London; has a Market on Wednesd. It was an antient fortify'd Roman Town, is govern'd by 2 Bailiffs, who with the Burgesses elect the Members of Parl. The County-Jail is here, and the County-Court and the Sessions are held in this Place once a Year. Roman Coins are sometimes dug up here; and at Cammelet N. E. from it, there is a Hill a m. round at top, with 4 Trenches, and within each an Earthen-Wall; and on the Top an Area of 20 Acres with the Foundations of Walls, which seems to have been a Roman Work, because of the Coins found here.

19. Somerton, 3 m. N. W. from Ilchester; has a Market on Mond. and is supposed to have given Name to the County, it being antiently the Shire-Town.

20. Bishops Lidiard, a Market-Town 5 m. E.

21. Glastenbury, 6 m. N. of Somerton, had its Name from an antient and famous Abby which stood in the Island call'd Avalon. The Foundation is by some ascrib'd to Joseph of Arimathea. The Curious may read Archbp Usher's Antiquities concerning this Place, and Dr. Reeves's Arguments, proving that St. Patrick was neither the Irish Apostle, nor Author of the Antiquities of this Town; and they that have a Taste for such things, may enquire into the Truth of the Walnut-Tree here, which was said never to bud before St. Barnabas day, when it shot out Leaves, but is now cut down; and likewise about the Hawthorn-Tree, which buds on Christmas-day, and as Dr. Gibson says, has been cut down many Years; but there are others from Branches of it in several parts of the Country. For the Inscription on K. Arthur's Tomb, and other Monuments of Antiquity, we refer to Camden. The Island in which this Abby stood is form'd by the meeting of 3 Rivers, and call'd Gedney or Godney-Moor, which some would have to signify God's Island; tho the word Moor or Mere rather signifies a Pool. The Town of Glastenbury has a Market on Tuesdays.

22. North Currey, 12 m. S. W. has a Market on Tuesd. and Saturd.

23. Mendip-Hills lie N. & N. E. from Glastenbury, and run a great way both in Length and Breadth; they are famous for Lead-Mines, and free for any Englishman to work in, except he steal the Oar or Tools of any of his Neighbours; in which Case their Law or Custom of Punishment is thus: They shut up the guilty Person in a Hut which they encompass with dry Fern, Furzes, &c. and set Fire to it; if he be able to break out a Passage, he may, but must never come to the Hills any more. On Broadwell Down and other Places in the Neighbourhood, about the West-end of the Hills, there is plenty of Lapis Calaminaris found near the Surface of the Ground, which being calcin'd and mix'd with Copper, makes Brass. Here are also Veins of yellow Oker, and Magnesia or Mangonesse. In those Hills is that call'd Okey or Wokey-Hole, of which the Inhabitants tell many Fables. There is a narrow Entrance into a large Vault, the Roof of which is so high that it is not to be discover'd by the Light of Candles; which some ascribe to the thickness of the Air. After clambering over several rough Passages among moist Rocks, one comes to a clear cold Stream; and in several Places of the Cave, the Water petrifies as it drops, and hangs down like Icicles. Towards the N. part of those Hills lies Chue Magna, or Bishops Chew, where they dig up a red Bolus which is distributed all over England for marking of Sheep, &c. and Apothecaries sometimes use it instead of Bolus Armenus. A m. E. from hence on the S. side of the River Chue, lies Stanton-Drew, where there is a Monument of Stones like the Stone-henge on Salisbury-Plain, but not altogether so big. Two Miles S. from hence near Stowy, there is a large Spring that never dries; and the Stream which comes from it covers every thing it meets in its way with a stony Crust; and what is remarkable, it has not this effect in the Fountain it self, nor within 20 Yards of it; but about 40 or 50 from the Fountain, where there is a small Cataract as high as a Man's Head, it crusts every thing with Stone, and makes the sides of the Bank look like a hard Rock.

24. Milburn-Port, 6 ½ m. N. E. of Yeovil, and 98 W. from London, is a Bor. of great Antiquity, has 9 Capital Burgesses, 2 of which govern in their Turns annually, and keep Courts 3 times a Year. The two in Power are call'd Bailiffs, and name 2 Sub-bailiffs, who are sworn by the Steward, and are the returning Officers. There are 9 Commonalty's Stewards, out of which 2 are chosen to keep the Corporation-Seal, and with the 2 Bailiffs return the 2 Memb. of Parl. who are elected by the Inhabitants paying Scot and Lot, in number about 50. Here are two Fairs annually, on the 5th of June and 20th of Oct.

25. Wincaunton, 11 m. N. E. of Ilchester, has a Market on Wednesd.

26. Castle-Carey, 4 m. N. W. of Wincaunton, is a small Market-Town.

27. Bruton, 3 m. N. E. of Castle-Carey, has a Market on Saturdays.

28. Shipton-Mallet, 6 m. N. W. of Bruton, is a large Town with a Market on Fridays.

29. Wells, 6 m. N. W. of Shipton-Mallet, and 96 W. from London: 'Tis a very antient City, and is suppos'd to have deriv'd its Name from the Wells which spring up in all parts of it. 'Tis thought to have been founded by K. Ina, who built a Church and a College here in honour of St. Andrew, which were richly endow'd afterwards by K. Kennowolf and others of his Successors. There is a Charter of that King, dated in 766, by which he gives a parcel of Ground to the Apostle St. Andrew, consisting of 11 Mansions near the R. Welwe, towards the increase of the Monastery situate near the great Fountain Wielea. We cannot insist upon its Antiquities, but Camden says it might in his time justly challenge the Preeminence in this County for Number of People and stately Buildings; but 'tis since much decay'd by the increase of Bath. The Bishop's Palace is very splendid, looks like a Castle towards the S. and is fortify'd with Walls and a Ditch. The Prebendaries Houses on the other side are exceeding neat. There are 27 Prebends, 19 Petty-Canons, a Dean, a Precentor, a Chancellor, and 3 Archdeacons belonging to this Cathedral, which is exceeding beautiful, and has a very fine Frontispiece towards the West, which is an entire Pile of Statues curiously wrought, and of great Antiquity. The Cloisters adjoining are also very fair and spacious. It was first made a free Bor. in the time of K. Hen. II. which was ratify'd by K. John, and afterwards by Q. Eliz. in the 31st of her Reign. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Masters, and Common-Council; and its 2 Memb. of Parl. are elected by a Majority of the Mayor, Masters, and Burgesses. They have Markets on Wednesd. and Saturd. and Fairs on the 3d of May, 24th of June, Oct. 11 & 14, and Nov. 27 & 30. Their chief Trade consists in knitting of Stockings and Bone-Lace.

30. Cheddar, a little W. from hence, famous for excellent Cheese, so large, that some of them require 2 Men to set them on the Table. Above this Village there's a Gap with a narrow Passage between very high Rocks, call'd Cheddar-Cliffs, and at the foot of them a great Spring, which in a quarter of a Mile turns 12 Mills.

31. Frome-Selwood, 12 m. S. E. of Wells, is a very great Town almost at the Edge of Wiltshire, and reckon'd one of the most populous in the W. of England, so that for number of Inhabitants 'tis equal to Bath and Wells together. 'Tis very famous for the Manufacture of broad and narrow Woollen-Cloths, in which it employs thousands of the Poor, both Old and Young, so that Girls of 7 or 8 Years of Age are able to earn half a Crown per Week in a time of good Trade. The Town is Capital of a Hundred, govern'd by a Bailiff; and tho as large as most Corporations in England, had but one Parish Church till about 1715, when a Church was built and endow'd in the Woodlands not far from this Town, at the Expence of Thomas Ld Vis. Weymouth. A River of the same name rises near it, which abounds with good Fish; and after driving several Mills, falls into the Avon a little E. of Bath. This Town increases every Day in Buildings, so that within these 10 Years past near 2000 Houses have been built on new Foundations. Here are two Market-places, the upper for Corn, Meat, and other Provisions, and the lower for Cattel. It has a well-frequented Market on Wednesd. and Saturd. and 2 Fairs a Year, viz. at Catherine-tide and on St. Matthias's Day. This Town is noted for rare, fine, stale Beer, which they keep to a great Age, and is not only esteemed by the common People, but many of the Gentry prefer it to the best French or Port-Wines. In the Neighbourhood there is a neat Castle with 4 round Turrets call'd Nonney de la Mere, which belong'd to the Family of Powlet, but now to —— Whitchurch Esq;

32. Philips-Norton, 4 m. N. from Frome; has a Market on Thursd. and a Fair on May-day.

33. Bath, 6 m. N. of Philips-Norton, and 97 W. from London. 'Tis a very antient City, and has several Inscriptions and Monuments of Antiquity, for which we refer to Camden and Dr. Gibson's Additions. 'Tis famous for its Waters, which perform great Cures by drinking and bathing. In hot Weather they cast a Scum which the Guides cleanse off. The Cross Bath has 16 Arches of Stone for Seats, and lies 58 ½ Feet from the hot Bath; and the King's Bath has 28 Stone-Benches for the People to sit on; and there's another adjoining to it call'd the Queen's Bath, which is only for the Women, who have also their Female-Guides. 'Tis said to be united to the See of Wells in the Reign of Hen. I. but Authors are not agreed about it, and think they were not united till about 1336. and at last the Chapters were fully united in the Reign of Hen. VIII. There were hot Disputes betwixt the Monks of Bath, and the Canons of Wells, about the Election of the Bishop, which were compromis'd about 1133, by Bp Robert, who divided the Revenues of his Church among so many Prebendaries, and settled a Dean and Subdean. The Church was afterwards augmented, a neat College built for the Vicars and Singing-men, and the Bishop's Palace wall'd in. One of the Bishops built a beautiful Gate, and 12 stately Stone-houses of the same height near it in the Market-place, where there is a Market-house supported by 7 Pillars, and a curious Arch built by one of the Bishops and Deans. 'Tis now call'd the Cross, and a fair Market-house has been lately built betwixt it and the Gate, which leads to the Palace. There is an Hoſpital near the Croſs-Bath and Hot-Bath, built by one of the Biſhops for poor ſick People. This City gives Title of E. to the Family of Granville. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, and 10 Aldermen, out of whom is annually choſe a Mayor and 2 Juſtices. They have alſo a Town-Clerk and a Common-Council of 20 Citizens, out of which are choſe yearly a Chamberlain and 2 Bailiffs or Sheriffs; they have alſo two High-Conſtables, 2 Serjeants at Mace, and other inferior Officers. Here are 3 Pariſh Churches, beſides the Cathedral; Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on the 3d of Feb. and St. Peter's Day. This City ſends two Memb. to Parl. Over Bathſton, a neighbouring Village, lies Baden-Hill; there is the Monument of an antient Camp, where K. Arthur defeated the Saxons. The neighbouring Soil is ſo ſtony, that when plough'd, it looks like a Cauſey, yet produces as good Wheat as any in England.

34. Pensford, 7 m. W. of Bath, has a Market on Tueſd.

35. Wrinton, 9 m. N. W. of Pensford, has alſo a Market on Tueſdays.

36. Keynſham, 11 m. E. from Wrinton, has a Market on Thurſdays. Snake-ſtones of ſeveral ſizes are frequently found in the Quarries here; and at Briſtleton betwixt it and Briſtol, there are Coal-Mines, cover'd with a Shell call'd Wark, which being ſplit, has the Figure of Fern-Leaves, as if they had been ingrav'd.

37. Briſtol, 5 m. N.W. from Keynſham, 94 computed, and 114½ meaſur'd m. from London. 'Tis a very antient City, and was famous both in the Britiſh and Saxon Times. It lies partly in Somerſetſhire, and partly in Glouceſterſhire, but does not properly belong to either, being a County of it ſelf. The R. Avon, which ſeparates the 2 Counties, runs thro it, over which there's a noble Stone Bridge, with Houſes on both ſides, like that of London; and there are Goutes, or ſubterraneous Caverns, which carry off the Filth of the City into the R. by reaſon of which they make uſe of Sledges inſtead of Carts, leſt the Wheels ſhould ſhake thoſe Vaults. The City is ſo well furniſh'd with all Neceſſaries, and ſo populous, and drives ſo great a foreign and domeſtick Trade, that 'tis next to London for Commerce. The Avon ſwells ſo much by the Tides when the Moon deſcends from the Meridian, and paſſes the oppoſite Place, that Ships upon the Shallows are bore up 11 or 12 Fathoms; and on St. David's Day the Water overflows the Streets below the Bridge, that being the grand Spring-Tide. The City is very large, and beſides the Cathedral, has 17 Pariſh-Churches, and a Chappel. The moſt beautiful, is the Church of St. Mary Ratcliff without the Walls, to which there's a ſtately Aſcent by a great many Steps. 'Tis ſo large, the Workmanſhip ſo exquiſite, the Roof ſo artificially vaulted with Stone, and the Tower ſo high, that 'tis reckon'd to ſurpaſs any Pariſh-Church in England. Here are 2 Images of the Founder William Canninges; one in the Habit of a Magiſtrate, for he was 5 times Mayor; and the other in a Clergyman's Habit, for in his latter Days he took Orders, and was Dean of the College which he founded at Weſtbury. Near it is the Temple-Church, whoſe Tower, as Camden ſays, in his Time ſhook as often as the Bells rung, ſo as to be quite parted from the reſt of the Building, made a Chink from top to bottom, and grew narrower or broader as the Bell mov'd. St. Stephen's Church has alſo a ſtately Tower of curious Workmanſhip, built by a Merchant. A River call'd Frome defends the Walls on one ſide, and runs into the Avon below Briſtol, where it makes a good Station for Ships, and a Creek convenient for loading and unloading Goods, which they call the Key. Under this, betwixt the Conflux of Avon and Frome, is the Marſh, planted with fine Walks of Trees, and encompaſs'd lately with ſtately Houſes, which form a beautiful Square. At Frome-Gate there's a Bridge over the R. by which one aſcends obliquely to College-Hill, from whence there's a pleaſant Proſpect of the City and Harbour. On the top of it there's a large Green, ſhaded in the middle with Rows of Trees, among which there's a Pulpit of Stone, and a Chappel where, they ſay, Jordan, Companion to St. Auſtin the Engliſh Apoſtle, was buried. 'Tis now made a Free-School. This Place, beſides private Houſes, is beautified on all ſides with publick and ſtately Buildings: On one ſide there's a Collegiate Church, now converted into an Hoſpital for Orphans. On the other ſide are 2 Churches dedicated to St. Auſtin: The one a ſmall Pariſh-Church; and the other the Cathedral, adorn'd by K. Hen. VIII. with a Dean and 6 Prebendaries, when he made this Place a Biſhop's See, which has this City and the County of Dorſet for its Dioceſe. The College-Gate is curiouſly built, and has a Latin Inſcription, importing that K. Hen. II. and Ld Robert, the Son of Harding Son to the K. of Denmark, were the Founders of this Monaſtery. This Harding was an Alderman of Briſtol, and his Son married the Daughter of the Ld de Berkley, from whence his Poſterity had the Title of Barons of Berkley. The other remarkable Structures, which add much to the Beauty of this City, are the Croſs and the Tolſel, which ſerves the Merchants for an Exchange, where they meet free from the Injuries of Weather. Here are alſo ſeveral Hoſpitals for the Poor. The Caſtle, once a Place of Strength, was demoliſhed during the late Civil Wars, and is now built into Streets. The R. Avon, about the Vernal Equinox, furniſhes this City with a Diſh hardly to be met with elſewhere. They are a ſort of ſmall Eels, call'd Elvers, of a black Colour, and ſcarce ſo big as a Gooſe-Quill. They skim them up in Multitudes with ſmall Nets, and order them ſo, that they ſlip off their black Skins. The Meat then looks very white, and is made up into little Cakes, which they fry, and eat. On both ſides the R. as it runs from the City into the Severn-Sea, or Channel, there are high Rocks: That call'd St. Vincent's, on the E. ſide, is ſo full of Stones, like Diamonds, that one may gather them by Buſhels. They are naturally four or ſix corner'd, and as tranſparent as true Diamonds; but not ſo hard. The other Rock, on the Weſtern Bank, abounds alſo with them. They are contain'd in Shells of a hollow reddiſh Flint. Under St. Vincent's Rock, there's a medicinal Well. This City has given Title of Earl to the Family of Digby ſince the Reign of K. James I. It has Markets on Wedneſd. Thurſd. and Saturd. for Proviſions and Cattel, and 2 annual Fairs much frequented. The Government is in the Mayor and Common-Council; the Magiſtracy in the Mayor, Recorder, and 11 other Aldermen. Here are alſo 2 Sheriffs. This City ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

WILTSHIRE,

HAS Somerſetſhire on the W. Glouceſterſhire on the N. and N. W. Dorſetſhire and part of Hampſhire on the S. Barkſhire and part of Hampſhire on the E. is 45 m. where longeſt from S. to N. and 33 where broadeſt from E. to W. It ſends 34 Memb. to Parl. has 304 Pariſhes, and 29 Hundreds. Camden ſays, this County is renown'd for the Valour of its Natives, who, as John of Saliſbury ſays, with thoſe of Cornwall and Devonſhire, did on account of their Bravery challenge the Honour in thoſe Days of being the reſerved Body in the Engliſh Armies. 'Tis alſo very fruitful, and affords a delightful Proſpect by its pleaſant Variety. Some derive the Name from Wilton, once its Capital, or the R. Willey, on which it ſtands. It has given Title of Earl to ſeveral Families, and is now one of thoſe belonging to the Duke of Bolton. It lies in the Dioceſe of Salisbury, is reckon'd to contain 876000 Acres, 27093 Houſes, 29 Hundreds, 304 Pariſhes, and 22 Market-Towns. The N. Parts riſe up into pleaſant Hills, are finely wooded, and water'd with clear Rs. The S. Parts are more level, and yield plenty of Graſs and Corn: So that 'tis commonly ſaid, If an Ox were left to his Choice, he would chuſe the N. and if a Sheep were left to his, he would chuſe the S. and that Men would chuſe to live betwixt both, that they might ſhare in the Pleaſures of the Plain, and the Wealth of the good Soil. No County exceeds it in making white Cloth; and Saliſbury Plains are reckon'd the fineſt in Europe. Its chief Rs. are the Iſis, Kennet, Willey, Madder, and the 2 Avons. Dr. Gibſon, in his Notes on Camden, takes notice of a vulgar Error, as if the Thames had its Name from a Conjunction of the Thame and Iſis, and proves by antient Hiſtorians and Records, that the Name Iſis ſeldom occurs in any Charter or antient Hiſtory; and that 'tis call'd Thames, or Tems, long before it comes near Thame. For the Particulars, we refer to him.

Places of Note are,

1. Malmsbury, near the N. W. Corner of the County, 11 m. E. from Sudbury in Glouceſterſhire, and 74 W. from London. 'Tis very antient, and has gone by ſeveral other Names; for which we refer to Camden. It was noted for a famous Abbey, that exceeded all in the County, of which William of Malmsbury the Hiſtorian was Monk. Its Abbot us'd to ſit in Parliament as a Peer. Camden derives the Name from Maidulfus, an Iriſh Scotſman, a great Scholar, and very devout, who firſt liv'd here as an Hermit, afterwards ſet up a School, and founded a Monaſtery here, whence it was call'd Maidulphusburg, and by Contraction Malmsburg. 'Twas afterwards call'd Aldhelmsburg from Aldelmus, one of his Scholars, who finiſh'd the Monaſtery, was canoniz'd, and a Fair was kept on his Feſtival. There are ſeveral Memorials of him in the Place and Neighbourhood; for which we refer to the Notes on Camden. 'Tis an antient Bor. being firſt incorporated by Edw. the 24th K. of the W. Saxons, about 916, and again by his Son K. Athelſtan about 939, and confirm'd by ſeveral of their Succeſſors. Their laſt Charter was by K. Will. III. The Corporation conſiſts of an Alderman, 12 capital Burgeſſes, 24 Aſſiſtants, Landholders, and Commoners; but the Memb. of Parl. are elected by the Alderman and the capital Burgeſſes. 'Tis a neat Town, has a conſiderable Trade in Cloth, a Market on Saturdays, and Fairs on March 17, April 17, May 25, July 25, and Oct. 17. 'Tis almoſt encompaſs'd by the R. Avon, over which it has 6 Bridges. As to the Altar-Monument in the Church, ſaid to be K. Athelſtan's, Dr. Gibſon thinks it not to be ſo antient as others pretend, and ſuppoſes it to have been ſet up ſince the Reformation.

2. Cricklade, 10 m. E. of Malmsbury, and 65 W. from London. 'Tis an antient Town, but Dr. Gibſon queſtions whether ever a Greek School was ſettled here before the Univerſity of Oxford was founded; from whence ſome would derive the Name. It ſtands on a riſing Ground, ſurrounded with pleaſant Meadows and Hills at a Diſtance, which form a delightful Proſpect. The Thames begins to be navigable here. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcription. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by all the Inhabitants that are Freeholders, Leaſeholders, or have a Leaſe of a Houſe for 3 Years; and they are return'd by the Bailiff, who is choſe annually. Here is a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on the 3d Thurſd. in April, Sept. 21. & Dec. 11. Here are 2 Pariſh-Churches.

3. Highworth, 5 m. E. from Cricklade, has a Market on Wedneſdays.

4. Wotton-Baſſet, 8 m. S. E. of Malmsbury, and 70 W. from London. It belong'd to the noble Family of the Baſſets, and was the Seat of Edmund de Langley D. of York, Son to Edw. III. The adjacent Country was formerly cover'd with Wood, where now lies Breden-Foreſt; and ſome think the Avon here was the Boundary betwixt the Weſt-Saxon and Mercian Kingdoms, but Dr. Gibſon thinks otherwiſe. 'Tis a neat Town, has a good Trade in Cloth, is a Bor. by Preſcription and Charter. The Corporation conſiſts of a Mayor, 2 Aldermen, 12 Capital Burgeſſes, and about 100 Burgage-holders. The E. of Rocheſter is Ld of the Manor. The Mayor is annually choſen the Friday before Michaelmas out of the 12 Capital Burgeſſes, by a Majority of the Mayor, Aldermen, and ſaid Burgeſſes. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by the like Majority, join'd by the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot. Here is a Market on Tueſdays, and Fairs on April 23, Nov. 2, and Dec. 8.

5. Swindon, 4 m. E. from Wotton-Baſſet, has a Market on Mond.

6. Chippenham, 9 m. S. of Malmsbury, and 77 W. from London; noted in the Saxon Hiſtories as one of the chief Weſt-Saxon Towns. 'Tis ſaid to have been one of the Seats of the Weſt-Saxon Kings; is pretty large, populous, has a conſiderable Trade in Cloth, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, and was incorporated by Q. Mary, by the Stile of Bailiff and Burgeſſes, conſiſting of 13. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by a Majority of the Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Bailiff. Here is a Market on Saturd. and Fairs May 6, June 11, Oct. 18, and Nov. 30.

7. Bradford, 7 m. S. W. of Chippenham, has a Market on Mondays, and drives a conſiderable Trade in Cloth.

8. Calne, 11 m. N. E. of Bradford, and 72 W. from London; is antient, has a neat Church, and is noted for a Synod during the Contention tention betwixt the Monks and Secular Prieſts about the Celibacy of the Clergy, in 977. In the heat of the Diſpute, the Convocation-Houſe, where the Eſtates of the Kingdom were met, fell on a ſudden, by which ſome were kill'd and many bruis'd; and Dunſtan alone, Preſident of the Synod and of the Monks Party, eſcap'd unhurt, which was look'd upon as a Miracle to confirm the Cauſe of the Monks: but Huntington and Brompton aſcribe the Fall of the Houſe to a Judgment upon the Nobility for betraying and murdering their late K. Edw. In this Town was one of the Palaces of the Weſt-Saxon Kings; and 'tis ſuppos'd to have been a Roman Colony, becauſe their Coins have been often found in the Neighbourhood. The Town is ſmall, but well built, populous, has a handſome Church, and a conſiderable Trade in Cloth. It was made a Bor. by Richard E. of Cornwal. It has 2 Guild-Stewards annually choſen out of the Burgeſſes, who are without Limitation. Memb. of Parl. were antiently elected by the Burgeſſes only, but by a late Deciſion of the H. of Commons, they are to be elected by thoſe who have a Right of Commonage, and ſworn at Ogborne-Court, belonging to the Honour of Wallingford-Caſtle, and part of the Dutchy of Cornwal. Here is a Market on Tueſdays, and a Fair on the 25th of April.

9. Marlborough, 10 m. E. of Calne, and 62 W. of London. 'Tis very antient, and has a Caſtle ſuppos'd to be of Roman Structure, becauſe of their Coins found in ſhaping the Mount, now belonging to the D. of Somerſet, which was contriv'd out of the Keep of the Caſtle. It ſtands pleaſantly near the Downs, on the Deſcent of a Hill, water'd by the R. Kennet, famous for Trouts and Crawfiſh. 'Tis pretty large and populous. It was firſt incorporated by K. John, and their Privileges confirm'd in other Reigns, by the Stile of Mayor and Burgeſſes, who are without Limitation, and elect Memb. of Parl. The Mayor for the time elects two Juſtices out of the Common-Council, who are alſo an uncertain number, and have Power to make what By-Laws they pleaſe for the better Government of the Corporation, which holds Pleas for any Sum, and is free from Toll. The Ld Bruce is chief Ld of the Town. Here is a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on St. Peter's Day, July 20. Aug. 15. and on St. Martin's Day. It formerly gave Title of E. to the L. Ley, and ſince to John Ld Churchill, to whom it now gives Title of Duke. The Town has often ſuffer'd by Fire. It has a Foreſt and Chace in its Neighbourhood.

10. Auburn, 6 m. N. E. of Marlborough, has a Market on Tueſd. and gives Name to the Chace above-mention'd, which lies W. of it.

11. Trowbridge, 4 m. S. of Bradford, has a Market on Saturd. and drives a great Trade in fine Broad-Cloth. It gives Title of Baron to the D. of Somerſet.

12. Devizes, 8 m. E. of Trowbridge, and 72 W. from London. 'Tis very antient; and on Rundway-Hill, that over-looks the Town, are the Remains of a Roman Camp. Authors differ about the time of building the Caſtle, which was reckon'd the ſtrongeſt in England. Some aſcribe it to K. Alfred, and others to Roger Bp of Salisbury. The Government of it was look'd upon to be ſo honourable a Poſt, that the greateſt Lords accepted it. Part of it remain'd during the Civil Wars, but 'tis now totally demoliſh'd. The Town is much the largeſt in the County, populous and well built. It has a great Trade in Cloth, Druggits, and Wool-ſtapling. 'Twas firſt incorporated by Maud the Empreſs, and laſt by Char. I. The Government is in the Mayor, Recorder, and Common-Council, diſtinguiſh'd by the Name of chief Burgeſſes, Counſellors, and chief Burgeſſes of the Common-Council, in number 36, who elect the Mayor. The Free Burgeſſes are elected by the Mayor and Common Council, without Number. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. Here's a great Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Candlemas-Day, Holy Thurſd. Thurſd. in Trinity-Week, Midſummer-Day, Auguſt 29. St. Matthew's Day, and Oct. 9. Here are three Churches, 2 in the Bor. and one without.

13. Great Bedwin, 18 m. S. E. of Marlborough, and 58 W. from London. It is very antient, and is ſaid to have been the Reſidence of K. Offa, who built two Caſtles here, the Ruins of which are ſtill to be ſeen. 'Tis a Bor. by Preſcription, govern'd by a Portreeve, who is choſe by a Jury at a Court-Leet held yearly by the Steward of the Ld Bruce, who is Lord of the Bor. The Portreeve chuſes a Bailiff and other Officers. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by the Majority of about 100 Freeholders and Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Portreeve. Here is a Market on Tueſd. and Fairs on St. George's Day, and July 15.

14. Weſtbury, 4 m. S. of Trowbridge, and 80 W. from London. The E. of Abingdon is Ld of the Manor. 'Twas firſt incorporated by Hen. IV. and ſince by Hen. VI. by the Name of Mayor and Capital Burgeſſes. The Government is in the Mayor, Recorder, and 12 Aldermen. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. lies in an open Country joining to Salisbury-Plain, and had once as large Privileges as Briſtol. The chief Trade is in making coarſe Broad-Cloth. It has a good Church, a Peculiar to that of Sarum; a Market on Frid. and Fairs on St. George's Day, Whit-monday, and Sept. 13. each for 3 Days. On a high Hill near this Place, there are Marks of ſome old Encampments.

15. Lavington, commonly call'd Market-Lavington, 8 m. E. of Weſtbury, and 4 S. of the Devizes, has a great Corn-Market on Wedneſd. The E. of Abingdon is Lord of the Manor, and has a noble Seat at W. Lavington in the Neighbourhood.

16. Warminſter, 3 m. S. of Weſtbury, has a great Corn-Market on Saturdays. There are the Remains of 2 old Camps in the Neighbourhood. The chief Trade of the Town is Clothing and Malt; and near it is Longleat, a noble Seat belonging to the Ld Viſc. Weymouth.

17. Heytesbury, 3 m. E. of Warminſter, and 80 W. from London. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcription, in an open Country, on the R. Willey, ſometime the Seat of the Empreſs Maud. It has a Collegiate Church, with 4 Prebendaries, a Free-School, and an Hoſpital well endow'd by the Hungerfords, formerly Lords of the Manor. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by a Majority of the Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Bailiff, who is put in and out at pleaſure, by Mr. Aſhe, Lord of the Bor. It has no Market, but 2 Fairs, on May 3, and Sept. 14.

18. Ambresbury, 15 m. E. of Warminſter, has a Market on Fridays. 'Tis ſuppos'd to derive the Name from K. Ambroſius, a Briton, who was ſlain near this Place. The Britiſh Hiſtory ſays, ſome antient Kings are bury'd here, and that there was a Monaſtery of 300 Monks in the Town, founded by Ambroſius, to pray for the Souls of thoſe that were ſlain by the Treachery of Hengiſt. Alfrith, a Wife to K. Edgar, retir'd hither to expiate her murdering her Son-in-law K. Edward, and endow'd a ſtately Nunnery, to which Q. Eleanor, Wife to K. Hen. II. retir'd from the World. Dr. Gibſon ſays, Quinever, Wife to the Victorious K. Arthur, was bury'd here, according to ſome, and that her Tomb was found not long ago with this Inſcription on the Wall in Maſſy-Gold Letters, R. G. K. C. 600. But the Antiquity of it, he thinks very ſuſpicious, becauſe ſeveral good Hiſtorians affirm, ſhe was bury'd at Glaſtenbury. It enjoy'd great Privileges at the time of the Conqueſt. The Abbeſs and 30 Nuns were expell'd from hence in 1177. for their Incontinence, and others put in their Place. It recover'd its Reputation afterwards, when Mary, Daughter to Edw. I. and 13 Noblemens Daughters, were admitted Nuns here in 1285. Near this Place lies Everley, formerly the Seat of K. Ina, by which is the higheſt Hill in Wiltſhire, call'd Suthbury-Hill, on which are the Remains of vaſt Fortifications; and at Eſtcourt in the Neighbourhood, near a Roman Cauſey, ſome Urns were dug up in 1693.

19. Stone-henge on Salisbury-Plain, 2 m. W. of Ambersbury, and 6 N. W. of Salisbury. Authors are divided about the Occaſion of this Monument, which is reckon'd one of the Wonders of the Kingdom. How ſuch Stones ſhould come thither, ſince the adjacent Country wants common Stones for Building, is matter of Surprize; and ſome therefore think them to be artificial Stones, made up of Sand, and cemented by a glutinous Matter. But Dr. Gibſon thinks it to be natural, wherein he agrees with Mr. Jones. The Doctor offers ſeveral Arguments to prove that it is not a Roman Monument, nor a Place of Chriſtian Sepulture, becauſe pieces of burnt Bones are frequently found here, and that Sacrifices and burning of the Dead grew out of uſe where Chriſtianity was receiv'd; and that it is not a Daniſh Monument, becauſe it is mention'd by Nennius 200 Years almoſt before they had any conſiderable footing in the Iſland. He therefore thinks it more probable to be a Britiſh Monument for ſome Victory, becauſe there are ſome like it both in Scotland and Wales, where the Romans and Danes never came. We refer the Curious to the Doctor's Notes on Camden for further Particulars; and ſhall give his Deſcription of it as follows: It ſtands on a riſing Ground encompaſs'd with a deep Trench about 30 foot broad; it has 3 Entrances from the Plain, the chief of which is towards the N. E. and at each of them on the outſide of the Trench are rais'd 2 huge Stones Gatewiſe, parallel to which on the inſide are 2 leſſer ones: After paſſing the Ditch, we aſcend 35 Yards before we come to the Work itſelf, which conſiſts of 4 Circles of Stones, and the outermoſt Circle is 100 Foot Diameter. The Stones of it are 4 Yards high, 2 broad, and 1 thick. Two Yards and a half within this great Circle is a Range of leſſer Stones. Three Yards further is the chief Part of the Work, which Mr. Jones calls the Cell. 'Tis of an irregular Figure, made up of 2 Rows of Stones. The outermoſt conſiſts of great upright ones, 20 Foot high, 2 Yards broad, and one thick; theſe are coupled at Top by large tranſom Stones like Architraves, 7 Foot long, and 3 ½ thick. Within this lies another Row of pyramidal Stones above 6 Foot high. In the innermoſt Part there was a Stone not much above the Surface of the Earth, 4 Foot broad, and 16 Foot long. Upon the whole, the Doctor thinks it to have been built by the Britons, after the Romans came in, and to be a rude Imitation of ſome of their Structures.

20. Ludgerſhall, 8 m. N. E. of Ambersbury, and 59 W. from London, is a very antient Bor. by Preſcription, and was the Reſidence of ſeveral Kings, as appears by ſome Precepts in the Exchequer to the High Sheriff of Wilts, to lay in Proviſions againſt the King's coming to his Caſtle there. K. John reſided here during part of the Barons Wars. 'Tis now a ſmall Place in a delightful Country and healthy Air. 'Tis govern'd by a Bailiff annually choſen at the Court-Leet of General Webb, who is Lord of the Manor. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſe by the Majority of the Freeholders; has a Market on Wedneſd. and Fairs on St. James's Day and Sept. 8.

21. Mere, 7 m. S. of Warminſter, has a Market on Tueſd. and is a great Staple for Wool.

22. Hindon, 5 m. E. of Mere, and 80 W. of London, is a Bor. by Preſcription. The Memb. of Parl. are choſe by a Majority of the Inhabitants paying Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Bailiff, who is, during Life, under the Bp of Wincheſter. 'Tis a ſmall but pleaſant Town, encompaſs'd with fine Downs. Here's a Church, or rather Chappel of Eaſe to Eaſt-Knoyles, a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on the Monday before Whitſun-tide, and on St. Luke's Day. Warder-Caſtle, 3 m. S. of Hindon, gives Title to the Ld Arundel of Warder, whoſe Predeceſſor was made E. by K. Jam. I. and a Count of the Empire by the Emp. Rodolph II. for his extraordinary Valour at the taking Gran in Hungary from the Turks, when he took their Standard with his own Hand.

23. Wilton, 11 m. E. from Hindon, and 72 W. from London, a Bor. by Preſcription, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, Town-Clerk, Mayor's Serjeants, and the King's Bailiff. The Burgeſſes are not confin'd to a ſet Number, and have all Votes for Memb. of Parl. Here's a ſmall Market on Wedneſd. and Fairs on April 25. Sept. 1. and Nov. 2. for all manner of Cattel, eſpecially Sheep, and other Commodities. It was formerly the chief Town of the County, was a Biſhop's See, and very populous in the Saxon Times, and had an antient Nunnery built by Editha, Wife to St. Edward. The chief Decay of the Town was occaſion'd by the Biſhop of Salisbury's turning the Road into the Weſtern Counties from it. The E. of Pembroke has a ſtately Houſe built from the Ruins of the Abbey. 'Tis the Place where the Sheriffs keep their Courts; and the Knights of the Shire are elected here.

24. Old Sarum, 2 m. N. E. of Wilton, and 70 W. from London. 'Tis a Place of Antiquity, and by the Ruins of the Walls appears to have been ſtrong, and ¼ a m. round. 'Tis now reduc'd to a mean Village, and only noted for ſending 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by 10 Electors who have Lands adjoining to it, and are ſtiled Burgeſſes and Freeholders.

25. New Sarum, or Salisbury, 5 m. S. E. of Wilton, and 70 W. from London. 'Twas the antient Sorbiodunum, and grew conſiderable upon the removal of the Inhabitants from Old Sarum for want of Water, &c. and its being too much expos'd to Winds. Soon after their Removal,

Richard Poor their Biſhop laid the Foundation of the great Church in Salisbury in 1220, having recommended to all Prieſts in his Dioceſe to put dying Perſons in mind of contributing towards it. 'Tis a very ſtately Pile, ſtrong-built, with double-croſs Iſles; and has ſuch a venerable Grandeur, as amazes Spectators. 'Twas 43 Years a building, and dedicated in 1258, K. Hen. III. being preſent. 'Tis ſaid to have as many Gates as Months in the Year, as many Windows as Days, and as many Pillars and Pilaſters as Hours. The Tower and Steeple is from the Floor of the Church 410 foot high. On the S. ſide of the Church is the Cloiſter, as large, and of as fine Workmanſhip as any in England. It has a Dean, a Chanter, a Chancellor, a Treaſurer, and had 55 Prebends, now reduc'd to 41, beſides 4 annex'd to the Dignities of the Biſhop, Dean, Chanter, and Treaſurer. The Biſhop has a ſtately Palace adjoining to the Cloiſter. Some of the Prebendaries are Canons Reſident, and have very good Houſes near the Church, inclos'd by a Wall a-part from the Town. Here's a Library built and furniſh'd by the famous Biſhop Jewel; and a Chapter-Houſe of a large Octogonal Figure, ſupported by a ſmall Marble Pillar in the middle; and a College built and endow'd by Bp Ward, for 10 Miniſters Widows. In that Part of the Suburbs call'd Harnham, there was a College for Scholars, who retir'd thither upon ſome Diſturbance at Oxford, ſtudied Univerſity Learning here, and upon a Teſtimonial from their Chancellor, receiv'd their Degrees at Oxford: But this is now diſus'd. Beyond this lies Harnham-Bridge, a ſtately Structure, the building of which brought the great Weſtern Road this Way, and occaſion'd the Decay of Wilton. It is reckon'd the ſecond City in this Part of England, is very ſpacious, has one of the beſt Market-Places in England, well furniſh'd with Neceſſaries; and every Street is ſupplied with a Stream of Water. The Town ſtands pleaſantly in a Vale on the R. Avon. It is populous, has 3 Pariſh-Churches, beſides the Cathedral; was incorporated firſt by K. James, and laſt by Q. Anne, by the Stile of Mayor and Commonalty; and conſiſts of a Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, Deputy-Recorder, and 24 Aldermen, 10 of whom are Juſtices, beſides the preceding Mayor; and they have a Common-Council of 30 Memb. The 2 Parl. Men are elected by the Corporation only. The chief Trade is Linſeys and Flannels. Here are Markets on Tueſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on Twelfth-tide, Lady-Day, Whitſun-tide, and Michaelmas. This City has given Title of Earl to many Families, and to that of the Cecills ſince the Reign of K. James I.

26. Downeton, 4 m. S. of Salisbury, and 72 W. from London, lies in a pleaſant Plain, is water'd by the Avon, and has been a Bor. by Preſcription almoſt ſince the Conqueſt, and famous for being the Summer Seat of Beauvois E. of Southampton, ſo much celebrated by Poets for his Valour. The Mayor is annually choſe at the Court-Leet of Sir James Aſhe Ld of the Manor, under the Biſhop of Wincheſter. The Memb. of Parl. are choſe by the Freeholders. Here's a ſmall Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on April 12. and St. Matthew's Day.

There are ſo many Monuments of Battels and Encampments in this County, that we can't take notice of all: But Dr. Gibſon ſays, that at Silbury there's the largeſt and moſt uniform Burrow perhaps in England, ſuppos'd to be the Place where Ceol King of the W. Saxons was kill'd. About ½ a m. from hence is Aubury, a Monument more conſiderable in it ſelf than known to the World, a Village of the ſame Name being built within it, and out of its Stones. 'Tis encompaſs'd with a Rampart as high and large as that at Wincheſter. On the N. W. ſide of the County, betwixt it and Glouceſterſhire, there's the Remains of a Trench call'd Wanſdike, which ſome think was a Boundary betwixt the Dominions of the W. Saxons and Mercians: But Dr. Gibſon thinks it to have been a Rampart againſt the Britons. The Rampire and Graff are very large, and the former lies on the South-ſide. There are ſeveral others of leſs Note ſtill viſible on the Plains, eſpecially about Stonehenge.

VI. BERKSHIRE,

HAS Wiltſhire on the W. part of Oxfordſhire, Buckinghamſhire, Middleſex, and Surrey on the E. part of Oxfordſhire on the N. and Hampſhire on the S. The greateſt Length E. and W. is about 40 m. and the greateſt Breadth S. and N. 25; but very unequal, being much indented with Oxfordſhire. Authors differ ſo much about the Origin of the Name, that 'tis not worth inſiſting on: Whether it come from a Saxon Word, ſignifying Box-Wood, or from the Saxons holding their Aſſemblies under a bare Oak. The Commodities of this County are Wheat, Flower, Barley, Malt, in which few Shires exceed it, Oak, and other Wood, Cattel, wild Fowl, and Cloth, tho not ſo remarkable for the latter as formerly, when Reading and Newbury drove the greateſt Clothing Trade in England. The fruitfulleſt Part of the County is what lies on the Thames and Kennet, and in the Vale of Whitehorſe, ſo call'd from the Shape of a Horſe on the ſide of a Chalky Hill, ſuppos'd to have been made there in the Time of the Saxons, who had the White Horſe for their Arms. The People have a Cuſtom about Midſummer to go and weed the Ground, to keep the Horſe in Shape and Colour, and then end the Day in Merriment. In ſhort, 'tis one of the pleaſanteſt Counties in England. The Air is generally healthful. The W. Parts abound with Wood; and the Thames contributes much to its Trade, by conveying the Commodities to London; which makes the Lands here bear a high Price, ſo that few Proprietors care to part with 'em. 'Tis reckon'd to contain 527000 Acres, 16906 Houſes, 12 Market-Towns, 20 Hundreds, and 140 Pariſhes. It ſends 9 Memb. to Parl. lies in the Dioceſe of Sarum, and has given Title of E. to a Branch of the Family of Howard ſince the Reign of K. Jam. I.

Places of Note, are,

1. Farringdon, in the N. W. Part, 4 m. N. E. from Highworth in Wiltſhire, and 56 W. from London, near the Owſe. It was antiently fortified; but now chiefly noted for its well frequented Market on Tueſd. 'Tis pleaſantly ſituate, and has Fairs on Feb. 2. Aug. 24. and Oct. 18. Here's a large handſome Church.

2. Abingdon, 10 m. E. from Farringdon, and 46 W. from London. The Thames is navigable here by Barges. It is very antient, and is the Town for all publick Buſineſs in the County. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Bertie, deſcended from the E. of Lindſey. 'Tis handſome, and well built, had one of the fineſt and richeſt Abbeys in England, and was antiently famous for Synods held here. It increas'd much by the building of Burford and Culham Bridges, which brought the great W. Country Road thro this Town. Here's one of the fineſt Market-Houſes in England, built on lofty Pillars, with a large Hall above for the Aſſizes, and a large Market-Place, which is conſiderable for Barley. Great Quantities of Malt are made here, and ſent to London. 'Tis pretty large, govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, Recorder, 2 Bailiffs, 12 principal Burgeſſes, and a Town-Clerk. Here are Markets on Mond. and Frid. for Corn and Cattel; and Fairs on the firſt Mond. in Lent, St. Mark's Day, June 9. St. James's Day, Sept. 8. and St. Andrew's Day. It has 2 Churches, a beautiful Croſs, and ſends 1 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Mayor, Bailiffs, and 9 Aldermen. 'Twas made a Bor. and Corporation by Q. Mary. Here's a Free-School, a Charity-School, and 2 Alms-Houſes.

3. Wantage, 7 m. S. W. of Abingdon, was formerly a Royal Ville, and the Birth-Place of K. Alfred. It has a Market on Saturdays, and Fairs on July 7. and Oct. 6.

4. Wallingford, 10 m. E. of Wantage, and 38 W. of London. 'Tis a very antient Town, was a Bor. in Edw. the Confeſſor's Time, wall'd, and has a ſtrong Caſtle. 'Twas formerly reckon'd impregnable, and had 14 Pariſh-Churches. Some Roman Coins have been found in this Place; by which 'tis ſuppos'd to have been the Seat of a King in their Times. It lies in a fruitful Soil upon the Thames, navigable here by Barges, and over it a ſtately Stone Bridge 303 Yards long, with 19 Arches, and 4 Draw-bridges. 'Twas incorporated firſt by K. H. II. and laſt by K Char. II. and is govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, Recorder, 5 Aldermen, Juſtices, a Town-Clerk, 2 Bailiffs, a Chamberlain, and 18 Aſſiſtants. 'Tis pretty large, populous, well built, has 2 Churches, Markets on Tueſd. and Frid. and Fairs on the Thurſd. before Eaſter, June 24. Sept. 28. and Dec. 6. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſe by the Mayor, Burgeſſes, and Commonalty, being about 150. It has a well built Town-Hall, where the Aſſizes are ſometimes held, and Quarter-Seſſions for the Bor. which is a diſtinct Juriſdiction within it ſelf.

5. Langborn, 4 m. S. W. of Wantage, has its Name from a little R. that riſes near it, which, contrary to other Rs. is higheſt in Summer, and almoſt dry in Winter. There are 2 Langborns, Upper and Lower; the latter is biggeſt, has a Market on Frid. and 3 Fairs, on May 1. Whitmonday, and Sept. 21.

6. Eaſt Ilſley, 7 m. E. from Langborn, has a Market on Wedneſd.

7. Hungerford, 6 m. S. of Langborn, in a mooriſh Situation on the R. Kennet, which is fam'd for Pike, Eels, Dace, Trouts, and Crawfiſh. It has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair on Aug. 10. The Conſtable of the Town, choſe annually, is Lord of the Manor, which is held immediately of the Crown. They have a Horn here that holds about a Quart, which, by an Inſcription on it, appears to have been given by John of Gaunt, together with a Grant of the Rial Fiſhing, as they call it, in a certain Part of the R. This Town is a great Thoroughfare, lying in the Road between London and Bath, Briſtol, and other Places in the W. by which it chiefly ſubſiſts.

8. Newbury, 7 m. Eaſt of Hungerford. It aroſe out of the Ruins of the antient Spinæ, now call'd Speenham-Land a ſmall Village about a m. N. W. part of which reaches as far as the new Town, and has ſeveral Inns of good Accommodation. Newbury is a Place of ſome Antiquity, ſeated in a fruitful Plain on the R. Kennet, and was noted for its Clothing Trade, now diminiſh'd. The famous Jack of Newbury was the greateſt Clothier in England in the Reign of Hen. VIII. kept 100 Looms in his Houſe, and march'd with 100 of his own Men, arm'd and cloth'd at his own Charge, againſt the Scots at Flodden. The Streets are ſpacious; and here's a large Market-Place, with a Guildhall. The Town is govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, Recorder, Aldermen, and capital Burgeſſes. The Market is kept on Thurſd. and well ſtor'd with Corn, and other Commodities. It has Fairs on June 24. Aug. 24. Nov. 30. the firſt Mond. in Lent, and Aſcenſion-Day. The Town is very pleaſant, and has all ſorts of Proviſions and Neceſſaries very cheap. Here's a Charity-School for forty Boys. The Town gives Title of Baron to the D. of Southampton. The Inhabitants preſerve great Numbers of Trouts, Eels, and the beſt Crawfiſh, in Trunks in running Streams.

9. Reading, 13 m. N. E. of Newbury, and 32 W. from London. It exceeds all the other Towns in this County, for the Neatneſs of its Streets, the Fineneſs of its Buildings, its Wealth, and Reputation in the Manufacture of Cloth. It ſtands on the R. Kennet, where it falls into the R. Thames, and has ſeveral Bridges over them. K. Hen. I. founded a magnificent Abbey here, in which himſelf was interr'd, with his Daughter Maud, who was not only a King's Daughter, but a King's Wife, and a King's Mother. This Abbey is now converted into a Royal Seat, with a very fine Stable adjoining for the King's Horſes. The Kennet is navigable to this Place, by Barges of 110 Ton; and 'tis deſign'd to be made ſo to Newbury. This Town is reckon'd the largeſt and moſt conſiderable in the County. The chief Trade of late is in Malt, that of Cloth being much diminiſh'd. Parliaments were held here formerly. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, 12 Aldermen, and as many Burgeſſes, or Aſſiſtants. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. who are elected by the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgeſſes, and Commonalty, making together about 600 Electors. Here was formerly a ſtrong Caſtle, but demoliſh'd by Hen. I. It has 3 Pariſh-Churches. The Market is on Saturd. and their Fairs on May 2. July 25. and Sept. 21. Here's an Hoſpital founded and liberally endow'd by Archbp. Laud, Son of a Clothier in this Town. The County-Aſſizes are uſually kept here.

10. Ockingham, 5 m. S. E. of Reading, has a Market on Tueſdays, and Fairs on June 11, and Aug. 29. It has ſome Trade in Clothing and Silk Stockings. 'Tis pretty large, has a fair Market-Houſe, is the chief Town in Windſor-Foreſt, and is govern'd by an Alderman, Recorder, and Capital Burgeſſes. It gave Title of Baron to the late Prince George of Denmark.

11. Wind-

11. Windſor, 9 m. N.E. of Ockingham, and 20 W. of London. The R. Thames is navigable hither by Barges. It is call'd Windleſhore in Edw. the Confeſſor's Charter, wherein he gave it to the Monks of Weſtminſter; but William the Norman re-annex'd it to the Crown, and gave them Wokendune and Ferings in exchange. It has ſince that time been a Royal Seat, than which none can have a more pleaſant Situation. It ſtands on a high Hill, which riſes with a gentle Aſcent, and has an admirable Proſpect of the R. and the Country round it. The Front over-looks a large Valley, chequer'd with Corn-Fields, Meadows, and Groves; and behind it are many Hills, cover'd with Woods, as if Nature had fram'd it for a Place of Hunting. This occaſion'd many Kings to chuſe it as a Place of Retreat in Summer. The Victorious K. Edw. III. who conquer'd France, was born here; he new built the Caſtle from the Ground, and made it as big as a little City, ſtrengthened it with Ditches and ſquare Stone Towers, and had John K. of France and David K. of Scots Priſoners here at once. Here he alſo inſtituted the Noble Order of the Garter, to encourage Military Men, under the Protection of St. George, a Cappadocian Knight, who was reckon'd the Patron of England. Yet Camden ſays, that W. Dethick, Garter-King at Arms, ſhew'd him a Book of the firſt Inſtitution of this Order, wherein 'tis aſcrib'd to K. Rich. I. in his War againſt the Turks and Saracens, while he beſieg'd Cyprus and Acon. They alledge he was mov'd to it by an Apparition of St. George; upon which he faſten'd to the Legs of ſome of his choſen Knights a piece of Leather, whereby he put them in mind of the future Glory he promiſed them, in caſe they conquer'd: So that it would ſeem Edw. III. did only revive and improve the Order. Some ſay the Badge of the Garter was given, becauſe it was the Word in the Battel of Creſſy, wherein he prov'd victorious over the French. Others ſay, it was from that King's taking up the Garter of the Counteſs of Salisbury, a beautiful Lady, who dropt it as ſhe was dancing; and that the King, ſeeing his Nobles laugh at it, told them, the Time ſhould ſpeedily come when the greateſt Honour imaginable ſhould be paid to that Garter; and that when he inſtituted the Order, he made that Motto, Hony Soit qui mal y penſe, Evil to him who Evil thinks, to be embroider'd upon it in Letters of Gold. This is the common Opinion: but our beſt Hiſtorians agree, it was upon his Victory at Creſſy above-mention'd, that he broke the Power of France; and that the meaning of the Motto is, 'May he be aſham'd that thinks 'ill either of the Order it ſelf, or of his Title to the Crown of France;' which occaſion'd the Inſtitution. The Knights have at no time exceeded 26, and among theſe have been 8 Emperors, 47 Kings and Queens, including thoſe of England, and above 60 other Princes, for the moſt part Sovereigns; which has made it the moſt Noble Order of Knighthood in the World. The Caſtle has been enlarg'd and beautify'd by many of his Succeſſors, and particularly Char. II. who laid out great Sums in the Repair and Furniture of this Palace, adorn'd it with a noble Magazine of Arms, and beautify'd the Lodgings by curious Paintings and other Improvements, which were continued by Jam. II. and Will. III. and perform'd by that famous Maſter of Painting, Varrio, a Neapolitan; ſo that the Lodgings, for State, Beauty, and Convenience, are as fine as any in Europe, and larger and higher than thoſe of Verſailles. The Caſtle conſiſts of two ſquare Courts, with a Tower betwixt them. The inner Square is the Royal Palace, and has a very fine Statue of Charles II. on Horſe-back. Round this Square on the out-ſide, is a noble Terraſs-Walk fac'd with Free-ſtone, from whence there is a fine Proſpect of the neighbouring Country. The Entrance to the Royal Apartment is through a Veſtibulo ſupported by Pillars, with antique Buſto's in the Niches. From hence lie the great Stairs to the Apartments; and on the other ſide are the Stairs to St. George's Hall. The Domes of both Stair-Caſes are painted. At the Heads of thoſe Stairs are Guard-Halls, embelliſh'd with Arms of ſeveral ſorts, artfully diſpos'd into Figures. We cannot inſiſt on the particulars of the Pictures and other noble Paintings in the ſeveral Rooms, but they are all Maſter-pieces of their kind. St. George's Hall is very broad and long, and one of the fineſt Rooms in the World. Here the Knights are entertain'd at their Inſtallation. The Hiſtory-Paintings on the Cieling and Walls are admirable. At the upper-end is the Picture of Will. III. on a Throne 10 Steps high, and above it St. George killing a Dragon. From the Hall one enters the Chappel, which is admirably painted with the Hiſtory of the New Teſtament on the Ceiling and Walls. The Tower betwixt the inner and outer Court is high, built after the manner of an Amphitheatre, and has noble Apartments for the Governour or Conſtable. On the Top of this Tower the Standard is erected when the Court or Conſtable is here. The lower or outer Court is as broad as the other, but much larger. Here ſtands the Chappel of the Order dedicated to St. George, a ſtately Gothick Structure, and on one ſide of it the Houſes of the Dean and Canons. Here are the Bodies of ſeveral Kings entomb'd; and the Roof is adorn'd with the Arms of the firſt Sovereign and 25 Companions; and in the Choir are 26 Seats or Stalls for the Knights, with the Banner of their Arms above each; and on the S. ſide of the Choir is an Oratory for Prayers twice a Day. Here are ſeveral Monuments of great Men; and the Altar-piece in the Chappel is a noble Piece, repreſenting the Lord's Supper. At the W. end are the ſinging Mens Houſes, with a Garden to each. This Square is ſurrounded by a high Wall and Towers; and at each Entrance of the Square, there is a ſtone Bridge and a Gate; and at the bottom of this Square is the Library. K. Edw. III. founded the College for a Cuſtos, 12 Secular Canons, 13 Prieſts, 4 Clerks, 6 Choriſters, 26 Alms-Knights, and other Officers, to the Honour of St. George and Edw. the Confeſſor; and they were afterwards incorporated by the Name of the Dean and Canons of the free Chappel of St. George. The poor Knights are now but 18, with an annual Allowance, and a little Cell for each round the Square. They wear a Caſſock of red Cloth with a purple Mantle, and St. George's Croſs on their left Shoulder. Their Stalls are in the middle of the Choir, below thoſe of the Knights of the Order; and they are oblig'd by their Rules to go twice a Day to Church to pray for the Sovereign and Knights Companions. We refer to Mr. Aſhmole for the Habit, Enſigns, Officers, Qualifications, and the manner of naming and inſtalling the Knights of the Order.

The Town of Windſor has ſince the Conqueror's time belong'd to the Crown. It conſiſts of ſeveral Streets about the Caſtle, but the chief one looks to the S. adorn'd with handſome Houſes and a Town-Hall. The Increaſe of this Town is owing to the Caſtle, as is the Decay of Old Windſor, from which, by way of Diſtinction, this is call'd New. 'Twas made a free Bor. by Edw. I. who granted it great Privileges by his Charter in the 5th of his Reign. The Corporation conſiſts of a Mayor, High-Steward, Under-Steward, 10 Aldermen, whereof the Mayor is one; 3 Benchers or Aſſiſtants, 2 Bailiffs, a Town-Clerk, and 15 younger Brethren. It ſends two Memb. to Parl. who are elected by the Inhabitants at large, about 300 in Number; and the Indenture is executed by the Sheriff on one part, and by the Mayor and Inhabitants on the other. Here's a Market on Saturd. for Corn, Cattel, &c. and Fairs on Eaſter-Tueſd. for Wool and Leather, and on Midſummer-Day, and Oct. 13. for Cattel and other Commodities. The Freemen here are exempted from all Tolls of Bridges, Markets, and Fairs. The Manor or Honour of Windſor has Juriſdiction over many Lordſhips, as the Dean and Canons have over ſeveral Peculiars. The Manor of the Bor. was leaſed to the Corporation by Jam. I. on paying a Quit-Rent of 4 l. 4 s. 5 d. to the Crown. There is a noble Family of this Sirname, who derive their Origin from a Caſtellan or Conſtable of this Caſtle in the Reign of Will. I. 'Tis divided into the Branches of the E. of Plymouth and Ld Montjoy. Here is a little Palace near the little Park, in which the late Queen delighted. This Park is about 3 m. round, and has pleaſant ſhady Walks. Next to this is the great Park, 14 m. round, and ſtock'd with all manner of Game for the Sovereign's Diverſion.

The reſt of Berkſhire S. from Windſor abounds with Woods and Groves, and is commonly call'd Windſor-Foreſt. 'Tis well ſtock'd every where with Game, and one of the largeſt in England.

12. Maidenhead, 5 m. N.W. of Windſor, has a large Wooden-Bridge over the Thames, is a great Thorow-fare in the Bath-Road, and full of Inns. It has a Market on Wedneſd. The Thames is navigable here by Barges. Some derive the Name from the Head of one of the 11000 Virgins martyr'd with St. Urſula; which Father Sirmond, the Jeſuit, owns to be a Fable occaſion'd by the Ignorance of the Monks, and ſays, that in an antient MS. Martyrology he found Urſula & Undecimilla VV.MM. i.e. Urſula and Undecimilla, Virgins and Martyrs: So that thro Ignorance they made Undecimilla, the Name of one Virgin, 11000. This Town was incorporated by Edw. III. and they had a new Charter from Jam. II. incorporating them by the Name of Mayor and Aldermen, with Liberty to chuſe a High-Steward and a Steward; ſo that they are govern'd by a High-Steward, a Mayor, a Steward, and 10 Aldermen. The Mayor, Steward, and the Mayor of the preceding Year, are Juſtices of the Peace. The Mayor is Clerk of the Market, Coroner, and Judge of the Court, which he is oblig'd to hold once in 3 Weeks, and oftner by adjournment. He holds a Seſſion twice a Year, and with the Aldermen has Power to make By-Laws for the Corporation. He and they chuſe 2 Serjeants, who bear the Mace; and out of the 10 Aldermen are yearly choſe 2 Bridge-Maſters to take care of the Bridge; for the Maintenance of which, the Corporation has the Tolls allow'd them both over and under the Bridge, and 3 Trees per Ann. out of Windſor-Foreſt. Here's a Jail for Debtors and Felons, a Market on Wedneſd. and Fairs on Whit-Wedneſd. St. Mary Magdalen's Day, and on St. Thomas Apoſtle. Here's an Alms-Houſe for 8 poor Men and their Wives, and a Chappel peculiar to the Corporation; the Miniſter being choſe by the Inhabitants in a Common-Hall, and being not oblig'd to attend the Biſhop's Viſitation.

VII. HAMPSHIRE,

HAS Wiltſhire and Dorſetſhire on the W. Surrey and Suſſex on the E. Berkſhire on the N. and the Iſle of Wight and the Sea on the S. The Form is irregular, being indented by the neighbouring Counties. Including the Iſle of Wight, 'tis 57 m. S. and N. and the greateſt Breadth E. and W. is about 52. It abounds with Corn, Wood, and Paſture: And tho much of their arable Land be ſtony, the Stones are thought to contribute to its Fertility, by keeping the Soil warm, and protecting the tender Blade from blaſting Winds; ſo that the Land ſells here for 25 or 26 Years Purchaſe. The Air in moſt Parts is healthful; and even that by the Creeks of the Sea, and on the Borders of Suſſex, is better than the Hundreds of Eſſex, and the Coaſt of Kent. 'Tis well water'd with Rivers and Brooks; and here's plenty of Freſh-water and Sea Fiſh, particularly Lobſters, Soals, and Flounders, as good as any in England. Here's ſtore of Black Cattel; and it excels moſt Counties in Sheep, Hogs, and Bees. They have great Flocks of Sheep on the Downs, which are excellent Meat, and yield plenty of Wool; tho their Clothing Trade is not ſo good as formerly. Their Hogs make the beſt Bacon in England, being fed in the Foreſts during the Acorn Seaſon, ſo that it comes little ſhort of that of Weſtphalia. Their Bees yield ſtore of Honey of different Natures, according to the Variety of the Soil. That collected from the Heath is the worſt; but that gather'd in the Champain Country is twice the Value, and yields about 10 l. per Barrel. The Wax of both ſorts is equally good. The Foreſts in this County furniſh Oak for Men of War and Merchant-Ships.

This County lies in the Dioceſe of Winchеſter, is divided into 19 Hundreds, and 253 Pariſhes, contains one City, 20 Market-Towns, 1312500 Acres, 9 Foreſts, 29 Parks, 162350 People, and ſends 26 Memb. to Parl.

Places of Note, are,

1. Kingſclere, 5 m. S. from Newbury in Berkſhire, formerly a Seat of the Saxon Kings, has a well frequented Market on Tueſd. and an annual Fair.

2. Whitchurch, 6 m. S.W. of Kingſclere, and 53 W. from London. 'Tis a ſmall Town, but well ſituate and water'd. The chief Trade is in Shalloons and Serges. It has been a Bor. Time out of mind. The Mayor is annually choſe at a Court-Leet, held by the Dean and Chapter of Winchеſter, who are Lords of the Manor. The Memb. of Parl.

Parl. are elected by a Majority of the antient Freeholders. Here's a Market on Frid. and Fairs on the third Thurſd. in June, and ſecond Thurſd. in October.

3. Baſingſtoke, 10 m. N. E. of Whitchurch, has a good Market on Wedneſd. for Corn, and a Fair on Michaelmas-Day. Here's a great Trade in Malt, and 'tis a noted Thoroughfare from London to the W. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 7 Aldermen, 7 Burgeſſes, &c. Here's a neighbouring Brook that abounds with Trouts; and a curious Chappel built by the firſt Ld Sands, with the Hiſtory of the Apoſtles, Prophets, and Diſciples, curiouſly deſcrib'd on the Roof. The firſt Vines in England are ſaid to have been planted here, in the Time of the Emperor Probus. Baſing, a large Seat belonging to the D. of Bolton, lies in the Neighbourhood; but having ſuffer'd much in the Civil Wars, is not ſo noble and magnificent as formerly. From part of the Ruins, the late Duke built another at Hawkwood Park, about a m. diſtant, which is very ſtately; and he has another noble Seat at Abbot's-Stone, within ſight of the other two.

4. Andover, 6 m. S. W. of Whitchurch, and 58 W. from London. It ſtands on the R. Ande in an open Country, is populous, well built, has one Church, a good Trade in Malt and Shalloons, was incorporated ſoon after the Conqueſt, and afterwards by Q. Eliz. The Corporation conſiſts of a Bailiff, a High Steward, Recorder, and 20 approv'd Men, out of whom are choſen 2 Juſtices, and 12 capital Burgeſſes. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Majority of the Corporation. Here's a good Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Frid. the third Week of Lent, on May-Day, and on Sept. 28. at Way-Hill, which is one of the greateſt in England, eſpecially for Sheep, Hops, and Cheeſe. Here's a Free-School and Hoſpital. This Town gives Title of Viſcount to the Family of Berkſhire. On Quarle Hills, in the Neighbourhood, are the Remains of old Encampments.

5. Odiham, 5 m. S. E. of Baſingſtoke, has a Market on Saturd. It had formerly a Royal Palace, and ſtrong Caſtle, and was a Free Borough.

6. Alton, 5 m. S. of Odiham, has a Market on Saturd.

7. Stockbridge, 6 m. S. of Andover, and 59 m. W. from London, is govern'd by a Bailiff, Conſtable, and Serjeant. All that pay to the Church and Poor in the Town, have a Vote in electing the 2 Memb. of Parl. Here's a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Holy Thurſday, St. Peter's and St. Luke's Days, for all ſorts of Cattel, eſpecially Sheep, &c. 'Tis a great Thorowfare, and depends chiefly on its Inns, which are very convenient.

8. Alresford, 8 m. S. W. of Alton, has a great Market on Thurſd. eſpecially for Sheep, and all ſorts of Proviſion, and Fairs on Holy Thurſday and Midſummer-Day. It has a handſome Market-Houſe, and is well built.

9. Winchester, 7 m. S. E. from Stockbridge, and 53 W. from London. 'Tis a very antient City, and was the Metrop. of the antient Belgæ. 'Tis thought the Roman Emperors had their Imperial Weaving Shops here, where Clothes were made for the Emperor and Army, Sails, Linen, and other Neceſſaries. Some think the Emperor had a Procurator here to take care of his Dogs, thoſe of Britain being highly eſteem'd; ſo that the Gauls us'd them for Soldiers, and the Romans bred them up for Sports in their Amphitheatre, and for Hunting. They pretend to ſhew Arthur's Round Table in the Town-Hall; but it plainly appears to have been of a later Date, and is probably one of thoſe at which the Combatants ſat during the Tournaments, to prevent Diſputes about Precedency. There are Ruins of ſome Roman Structures near the Cathedral, and the Remains of one of their Camps in the Neighbourhood. This Town was the Reſidence of the W. Saxon Kings, adorn'd with many magnificent Churches, and dignified with an Epiſcopal See. It has been remarkable for the Marriage and Birth of ſeveral Kings; and Parliaments were frequently held here. It was taken and retaken during the Civil Wars. The Houſes have a venerable Air of Antiquity. The Streets are broad and clean, and the Situation healthful and pleaſant, in a Valley betwixt 2 very ſteep Hills. It is wall'd, has 6 Gates, is a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ round, but has much waſt Ground within the Walls. Here was antiently a ſtrong Caſtle; but 'tis ſo decay'd, that 'tis ſcarce big enough for the Aſſizes, which are held here. K. Char. II. began a Palace on its Ruins, and deſign'd it ſhould be very magnificent, but never finiſh'd it. The S. ſide of it is 216 Foot, and the W. ſide 326. It was ſettled on the late Pr. George of Denmark, in caſe he had out-liv'd Q. Anne. Of 52 Pariſh-Churches that were here formerly, 9 only remain. The Cathedral was founded by Kenel-Walch K. of the W. Saxons, but much improv'd by his Succeſſors and the Biſhops of the See. It has been dedicated to ſeveral Patrons, but laſt to the Holy Trinity. 'Tis 345 Foot long, and 97 broad. The Front is as old as the Saxon Times. 'Tis of large ſquare Black Marble, ſupported by a plain Stone Pedeſtal, and the Sides ſet off with Bas Reliefs, repreſenting the Miracles of ſome Saints. The Biſhop's Throne has a Mitre, and the Arms of the See on the Pediment, and is ſupported by Fluted Columns of the Corinthian Order. The Seats of the Dean and Prebendaries are antient, adorn'd with Spire-Wood gilded, before them an Eagle with expanded Wings on a Pedeſtal of Braſs. The Aſcent to the Altar is by Marble Steps, and the Pavement curiouſly inlaid with Marble of different Colours, and the Altar-Piece is curiouſly carv'd. The great E. Window is remarkable for fine painted Glaſs, and the Pictures of ſome Saints and Biſhops. Several Saxon Kings were buried here; and the Tomb of William Rufus, with many other ſumptuous Monuments of Noblemen, are ſtill to be ſeen here. The Biſhop's fine Palace was deſtroy'd during the Civil Wars; but there's a handſome Structure built for him ſince. Here's a College in the Cathedral Church-Yard, well endow'd for 10 Miniſters Widows. In the Suburbs there's a neat College, built by Biſhop William of Wickham, for a Seminary to New College in Oxford, with Revenues for one Warden, 10 Fellows, 2 Maſters, 70 Scholars, 3 Chaplains, 3 Clerks, 1 Organiſt, 16 Choriſters, &c. and near it a fair Hoſpital. The City is water'd by the R. Itching. It was incorporated by Q. Eliz. and is govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, Recorder, and Aldermen without Limitation, out of whom are choſen 6 Juſtices. Here are 2 Coroners, 2 Bailiffs, 24 Common-Council-Men, and a Town-Clerk. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are choſe by the Freemen. Here are Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on the firſt Mond. in Lent, St. Swithin's Day, Oct. 13. St. Mary Magdalen's, and St. Giles's.

10. Rumſey, 10 m. S. W. of Wincheſter, has a good Market on Saturd. is an antient Town, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 6 Aldermen, and 12 Burgeſſes. Here are many Clothiers, and Fairs on Eaſter Monday, Aug. 15. and St. Simon and Jude's Day. Barges come up to the Town.

11. Redbridge, 3 m. N. W. of Southampton, is a thriving Town, Men of War and Merchant-Ships being built here.

12. Waltham, 7 m. S. E. of Wincheſter, has a weekly Market, and Barges come up to it.

13. Peterſfield, 13 m. N. E. of Waltham, and 45 S. W. of London, is a ſmall well-built Town, in a low fruitful Soil, ſurrounded with Hills. It had Charters ſoon after the Conqueſt, and ſome as low as Q. Eliz. but thro the Remiſneſs of the Mayor and Commonalty, the Family of the Hamboroughs, Lords of the Manor, have got all their Privileges, and at their Court the Mayor is annually choſen. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl, choſen by the Majority of the Freeholders within and without the Bor. Here's a Chappel of Eaſe, a Market on Saturdays, and Fairs on St. Peter's and St. Andrew's Days. 'Tis a Thorow-fare to Portſmouth, and gave Title of Baroneſs to the Dutcheſs of that Name.

14. Fording-Bridge, 14 m. W. of Southampton, has a weekly Market, and a Fair on Aug. 28. Barges come up to it by the Avon.

15. Southampton, 14 m. E. of Fording-Bridge, and 63 m. S. W. of London, is the chief Town of the County, and gives Name to it. The Town lies betwixt the Rs. Teſe and Itching, ſuppoſed to be the old Roman Clauſentium, becauſe of the Ruins of Walls and Trenches, and Roman Coins found in the Neighbourhood. The Daniſh Kings often reſorted hither. 'Twas here where Canute K. of Denmark order'd his Chair to be ſet on the Shore as the Tide was coming in, and forbad it to approach him, or wet the Feet and Clothes of its Lord and Maſter: He ſat till he was wet, and then roſe up, and gave a juſt Rebuke to his Courtiers for their blaſphemous Flattery in alledging that his Power was more than human. 'Twas a flouriſhing Town in the time of the Normans, was burnt by the French in the Reign of Edw. III. but rebuilt in a more convenient Place, and ſtrongly fortified by a Caſtle, &c. It has been remarkable for many Events that we have not room to mention, and had a conſiderable Trade, which is much decay'd by War, &c. ſo that the Merchants great Houſes are now ruinous; yet it has ſtill ſome foreign Trade, a Collector, and other Cuſtom-Houſe Officers. The Streets are ſpacious, and there's one of $\frac{1}{4}$ of a Mile that leads to the Dock where Ships of conſiderable Burden may ride. 'Tis a Town and County of itſelf, was incorporated firſt by Hen. II. confirm'd by K. John, made a Town and County by Hen. VI. and laſt by Char. I. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, 9 Juſtices, 2 Bailiffs, 24 Common-Council-Men, and as many Burgeſſes. The Mayor is Admiral of the Liberties from South-Sea Caſtle to that of Hurſt. This Town has the ſole Right of importing ſweet Wines, holds Courts upon Life and Death, is independent of the Ld Lieut. of the County, is encompaſs'd with a Wall and Towers about 2 m. round, has 5 Churches, Markets on Tueſd. Thurſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on the Tueſd. before Shrove-Tueſd. Trinity-Mond. St. Mark's Day, and the Tueſd. after St. Andrew's Day. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Burgeſſes, and all that pay to the Church and Poor. Proviſions are plentiful and cheap here. The Aſſizes are uſually kept in this Place. This Place has given Title of Earl to many Families ſince 860. among whom was Beauvois in the Norman times, againſt whom he aſſembled an Army in Glamorganſhire, but was defeated. He was of great Courage, Conduct, and Strength, which gave occaſion to the Romance that bears his Name: His Sword is ſaid to be ſtill preſerv'd in Arundel-Caſtle. It now gives Title of Duke to one of K. Char. IId's Natural Sons by the Dutcheſs of Cleveland.

16. Fareham, 4 m. S. E. of Southampton, a little Town with a weekly Market, and an annual Fair. It gave Title of Counteſs to the Dutcheſs of Portſmouth. Buſtleton, a neighbouring Village, has a Yard for building Men of War, and other Ships.

17. Havant, 7 m. E. of Fareham, a ſmall Market Town, with an annual Fair. Off this Place lie Haling and Thorny, 2 Iſlands, with a Pariſh-Church each. Salt is made of the Sea-Water in ſeveral Places along this Shore.

18. Portſmouth, 5 m. S. of Fareham, and 60 S. W. from London, lies in an Iſland called Portſea, 14 m. round at high Water. 'Tis encompaſs'd by the Sea, and is join'd to the Continent by a Bridge. Port-Peris, where Veſpaſian is ſaid firſt to have arrived, lay at the upper end of the Creek; but the Sea retiring from it, the Inhabitants withdrew to this Iſland, and occaſion'd the building of Portſmouth, which is now become very populous and ſtrong. We can't take notice of the many remarkable things that have been tranſacted here; and can only obſerve, that for ſome Ages this has been the Place of general rendezvous for our Fleets at Spithead, which is near it, when in War againſt France; and that it was burnt by the French in the time of Rich. II. but was ſoon after rebuilt, and ſet out ſeveral Ships of War, which very much annoy'd the French, beat them at Sea, enter'd the Seine, and burnt many of their Ships: after which the Fortifications were enlarg'd by Edw. IV. Hen. VII. Hen. VIII. and Q. Eliz. ſo that 'tis now one of the beſt fortify'd Towns in England, and of the greateſt conſequence, being furniſhed with both wet and dry Docks, Storehouſes, and all Neceſſaries for building, repairing, rigging, and fitting out Men of War, with ſuitable Accommodations for a Commiſſioner and other Officers to look after the Navy Royal; ſo that 'tis a Nurſery for Seamen, one of the chief Magazines of the Kingdom, and a Town of great Trade; tho' the Air be not reckon'd extraordinary, and that 'tis not well ſupply'd with freſh Water. It was incorporated ſoon after the Conqueſt, and its Privileges confirm'd in following Reigns, but laſt by K. Char. I. by the Stile of Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes. 'Tis large, well-built, the Streets ſpacious and regular; but its chief Beauty conſiſts in the Magnificence of its Fortifications, Harbour, Docks, Yards, Office of Ordnance, Victualling-Office, with all other Conveniences for the Navy Royal. Over againſt it ſtands Goſport, a pretty large Town independent of it. There are Markets in Portſmouth on Tueſd. Thurſd. and Saturd. and a free Mart, which begins on St. Peter's Day, and holds 15 Days. Here's a beautiful Church, and ſeveral Chappels. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. that are elected by the Corporation and Burgeſſes, who are without Limitation. At Goſport there's a Market on Saturd. This Town gives Title of Dutchess to a French Woman, Madam Louise de Querovaille, who was one of K. Char. IId's Mistresses. About 1 m. ½ S. E. of the Town lies South-Sea Castle, on the Coast.

19. Ringwood, 16 m. S. W. of Southampton, and 4 S. of Fordingbridge. 'Tis an antient Town, and was formerly considerable, but now of little Note, except being Capital of its Hundred, with a Market on Wednes. for Corn and Cattle, and an annual Fair. Barges come up to the Place by the R. Avon. The late D. of Monmouth was taken near this Place after his Defeat at Sedgmore.

20. Christchurch, 7 m. S. of Ringwood, and 88 S. W. from London. It had its Name from a Church of Prebendaries, built in the Time of the Saxons. Here was formerly a strong Castle. 'Tis pretty large and populous, lies pleasantly betwixt the Rs. Azon and Stour, and had its first Privileges from Baldwin E. of Devon, whose Portraiture is now the Town-Seal. 'Tis incorporated by the Name of Mayor, Burgesses, and Commonalty, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by a Majority of Burgesses within and without the Bor. It has a Harbour for Ships, a Market on Mond. and Fairs on the Thursd. sevennight after Whitsuntide, and Oct. 6. The chief Trade is in making Silk Stockings and Gloves.

21. Lymington, 8 m. E. from Christchurch, and 80 S. W. from London, stands pleasantly on a Hill in a healthful Air, has a fine Prospect, and a good Harbour for Ships of 2 or 300 Tons. 'Twas a Bor. by Prescription soon after the Conquest, and has a Mayor annually chosen at the Court Leet of —— Buckley Esq. The Burgesses within and without the Bor. are without Limitation, and of equal Authority. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are elected by them, and return'd by the Mayor. This Town is famous for Salt, reputed the best in England, the Customs of which generally amount to 40000 l. per Annum. It us'd to serve all the W. of England with it; but has been rivall'd by the Town of Leverpool, which sends it cheaper up the Severn.

22. New Forest lies on the E. side of the R. Avon, in the S. W. Corner of this County, and was call'd so in the Time of William the Norman, who turn'd it into a Forest, having to that end destroy'd many pretty Towns and Villages, and 36 Churches. The Ground thus laid waste, is by Camden computed to be 30 m. round, and others make it 50. The Pretence was to save the King's Game, and make it a Place of Hunting; but some alledge that he had a more political View, which was, To lay the Country open, for bringing in more Normans, in case of new Insurrections against him in England. Historians observe that his Son William Rufus was kill'd here by the glancing of an Arrow shot by Sir Walter Tyrrel, as the K. was pursuing a Deer. His second Son Richard was gored to death by a Hart, or poison'd by a pestilential Blast, as hunting in this Forest: And his Grandson Henry was kill'd by the Bough of a Tree, as pursuing his Game in the same Place. These Things they look upon as just Judgments on William the Norman's Posterity, for demolishing so many Churches, &c. On the Ruins of Malwood Castle, which lies in the N. part of the Forest, betwixt Fording-Bridge and Redbridge, there are a great many Oaks, and among them one on which Sir Walter Tyrrel's Arrow is said to have glanc'd. This Oak is reported to bud on Christmas Day, and to wither before Night. K. Char. II. order'd it to be inclos'd by Pales. There are nine Walks in this Forest, which have each a Keeper. It has 2 Rangers, a Bow-Bearer, and Ld Warden. The latter is his Grace the D. of Bolton.

This large Tract of Ground lay open and unguarded for many Ages, which expos'd the Country to Invasions; therefore K. Hen. VII. built some Castles for its Security.

(1.) Hurst Castle, on a muddy Beach that runs into the Sea 1 m. ½, where the Passage is narrowest to the Isle of Wight: it commands the Sea on both Sides; but at low Water, the Ouze stinks, and the Place being 2 or 3 Miles from fresh Water, and cold and foggy, the Garison is often chang'd.

(2.) Calshot, or Caldshore Castle, 13 m. N. E. of it, on the Corner of the Bay that runs up to Southampton. Here's always a Garison, which, with the Castles of St. Andrew and Netly, on the other side the Bay, guard this Part of the Coast.

The Isle of Wight belongs to this County, from which 'tis separated by a narrow rapid Channel. Authors differ about the present Name: But as the Britons call'd it Guith, and the Roman Vecta, and that the Saxons usually turn'd V into W, the Name seems easy to be accounted for. 'Tis almost of an oval Figure, about 20 m. long, and 12 where broadest in the Middle, but contracted at both Ends. 'Tis almost encompass'd by Rocks, which make the Access dangerous, especially on the Side towards France; and where it lies open to the S. E. is fortified by Stakes drove into the Ground, and Castles on the Shore. 'Tis so fruitful, as to yield Corn for Export. It abounds with Rabbits, Hares, Partridges, and Pheasants. The Sea and Rivers are well stock'd with Fish; and here's a Forest and 2 Parks with plenty of Deer. There's a long Ridge of Hills thro the Middle, which feed abundance of Sheep with excellent Wool, next in esteem to that of Lemster and Cotteswold. Here are also good Pastures and Meadows for Black Cattel. The Sea breaks in so far on the N. side, as almost divides it into 2 Parts; that on the W. called Freshwater, and the E. part Binbridge Isle. The Number of People is reckon'd about 25000, and of these 4000 are fighting Men, well disciplin'd and arm'd, divided into 11 Parts, and commanded by proper Officers. Here are also Beacons and Centinels, to give notice of the Approach of Enemies; and in case of an Invasion, they are to be assisted by 3000 of the Hampshire and 2000 of the Wiltshire Militia. It has 52 Parishes, and belongs to the Diocese of Winchester. The Air is healthful, and the People live long. It had formerly petty Kings, and afterwards Lords of its own; but has been annexed to the Crown since Edw. I's Time, and the Governor is always a Person of Rank.

Places of Note are,

1. Sharpnore Castle, 2 m. from that of Hurst, with a small Garison.

2. Yarmouth, in the N.W. Corner of the Island, 2 m. ½ S. E. from Hurst Castle, and 75 S. W. of London; an antient Bor. by Prescription, and incorporated by Jam. I. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, and 12 capital Burgesses. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. chosen by the Mayor, capital Burgesses, and Burgesses at large within and without. It has a neat Church, Markets on Wednesd. and Saturd. and a Fair on St. James's Day. Here's a Harbour for Ships, a Castle, and Garison.

3. Newtown, alias Frankville, 4 m. ½ E. of Yarmouth, and 53 S. W. of London; antiently a flourishing Town, now a mean Village, noted only for sending 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Mayor, and a Majority of the Burgesses who enjoy Borough-Lands. They are about 14 Country Gentlemen, who annually chuse a Mayor, and have lately built a handsome Hall. Here's a Fair 3 Days before St. James's.

4. Newport, alias Medena, 9 m. S. E. of Yarmouth, and 72 S. W. of London. The Bay which comes up to this Town, and the R. that falls into it here, divide the Island into 2 Parts, from hence call'd E. and W. Medena. 'Tis large and populous, and has a Key where small Ships lie; but great ones unload at Cowes. 'Tis an antient Town, had its first Privileges from Richard de Rivers E. of Devon, then Ld of the Isle, and was incorporated by Jam. I. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, and Common-Council, or 24 chief Burgesses, who chuse the 2 Memb. of Parl. The Town is well built. Here are Markets on Wednesd. and Saturd. the latter very considerable; and a Fair at Whitsuntide for 3 Days. Carisbrook Castle, a little S. of the Town, is the antientest Castle in the Island, and had many Knights-Fees belonging to it. 'Twas very magnificent, and the usual Residence of the Governor of the Island. Here K. Char. I. was kept Prisoner 13 Months, and brought from thence to his Tryal after Oliver had broke up the Parl. who voted the King's Cooncessions, a sufficient Ground for a Treaty with him, which had been negotiated unsuccessfully at Newport. A Garison is always kept here. The adjoining Village was formerly a considerable Town.

5. East and West Cowes, 3 m. N. of Newport, over-against one another, on the Sides of the Bay or R. are pretty Towns, and have the best Trade in the Island. Several Merchants live here, who furnish Merchants, or Masters of Ships bound outward or inward, with Money for Bills in London. Ships also unload Goods here for Newport; and our Vessels from the West Indies, bound to Hamburgh, &c. use to unload and pay their Customs, and then load again, that they might be entitled to the Drawbacks. Here were 2 Castles built by Hen. VIII. that at East Cowes is neglected, but there's a Garison kept still at West Cowes.

6. St. Helen's Road, where our Men of War usually ride, lies on the East side of the Island, 8 m. ÷ E. of Newport.

7. Brading, 5 m. ½ S. E. from Newport, has a weekly Market, and a Harbour for small Vessels.

8. Sandoun Castle and Bay, 1 m. ½ S. E. of Brading. 'Tis one of the strongest Castles in the Island, and has a Garison.

The following Islands of Alderney, Guernsey, Jersey, and Sark, belonged formerly to the Dutchy of Normandy, and are all that is now left of that Dutchy to our Crown. Q. Eliz. annexed them to the See of Winchester; therefore we think it proper to describe them here.

(1.) Alderney, or Aurigny, lies off of Cape la Hogue in Normandy, about 4 Leagues W. 'Tis about 8 m. round, and the S. Shore has high Cliffs. The Strait betwixt it and Cape la Hogue is call'd Raz Blanchart, or the Race of Alderney. The Air is healthy, and it has good Pastures and Corn-Fields; but the Inhabitants are poor, occasion'd by their parting their Lands into small Parcels among their Children by Gavelkind. It has a Town of the same Name about the middle, with a Parish-Church, and 80 Families. There is a Harbour nam'd Crabbic, at some m. distance. On the E. side there's an antient Fort, with a Dwelling-house, belonging to the Chamberlains, Q. Eliz. having granted the Fee-farm Rent of this Isle to Sir Leonard Chamberlain of Sherburn in Yorkshire, because he recover'd it from the French: and near the Fort there's a Warren for Rabbets. N. W. of this Island there's a Ridge of high Rocks, very dangerous to Sailors, where the Sons of K. Hen. I. were cast away, as sailing to Normandy. From one of those Rocks there gushes a fine Spring of fresh Water, to the great Benefit of the Island.

(2.) Guernsey lies about 6 Leagues S. W. of Alderney, and 11 W. from the Coast of Normandy. 'Tis about 13 m. ½ from S. W. to N. E. and 12 ½ where broadest E. and W. The Air is healthful, and the Soil fruitful, but not well cultivated, because most of the richest Inhabitants apply themselves to Merchandize, and leave the manuring of the Ground to Servants. It produces Corn and Cattel enough for their own Use; and no venomous Creature will live in this Island. The neighbouring Sea abounds with Fish, and in the N. W. Part there's a Lake about a m. round, with excellent Carps. This Island is naturally fortified by a Ridge of Rocks; one of them, call'd Smyris, hard and sharp, and affords Emeralds, with which Lapidaries polish Jewels, and Glasiers cut Glass. Here's a pretty good Haven and a Bay on the S. side, capable of large Ships. Here are 10 Parish-Churches, conformable to the Church of England. Here's a little Market-Town call'd St. Peter's, with a good Magazine, and throng'd with French Merchants, especially in Time of War, because the Kings of England granted this Island a sort of perpetual Truce. Here's a Court of Justice; and the Harbour is defended by 2 Castles, one of them nam'd Cornet, on a Rock, encompass'd by the Sea when the Tide is in. The Governor generally dwells here, and suffers no French Man or Woman to enter it. Alderney and Sark are both under his Jurisdiction. Here are many Gardens and Orchards; so that their common Drink is Cyder. Every Man tills and incloses his own Land, which adds to the Beauty and Strength of the Island. The Inhabitants speak French, but reckon themselves Englishmen. The common Fuel is Sea-Wreck, their own Product, or Sea-Coal from England. There are several little Islands about it, and those call'd Little and Great Sark lie E. from it. The Great one is almost impregnable by Nature, having but one Passage, that can easily be defended, a Church, and 48 Families.

(3.) Jersey lies 9 Leagues S. E. of Guernsey, and 7 W. of the Coast of Normandy. 'Twas antiently called Cæsarea, is about 12 m. E. and W. and 7 where broadest, but indented every where by Bays. Here's a noble Castle begun by Q. Eliz. and finish'd by Char. I. where the Governor usually resides. K. Char. II. added some Outworks to it. The Island is naturally defended by Rocks and Quicksands. The Soil is fruitful, but the Cultivation of Corn neglected, the Inhabitants chiefly applying themselves to Navigation, the Stocking Manufacture, and planting of Orchards, which furnish them with excellent Cyder. Their Grounds are inclos'd with Banks of Earth, from 6 to 10 Foot high, and of a proportionable Breadth. They improve their Lands with Sea-Wreck, which they burn to Ashes, and being plough'd in, very much much fructify the Soil: It serves them also for Fuel. Here are many Springs and Brooks, and a Fountain of excellent Mineral-Waters. Their Cattel are small, but their Flesh sweet and tender, and their Horses are fitter for Labour than the Saddle. Hares and Rabbits abound here, with all sorts of Sea and Land Fowl, particularly Barnacles, which breed in rotten Wood tos'd long in the Sea. They have Partridges with red Feet, with Eyes like a Pheasant, and Feathers of various Colours, which make them very beautiful; and the Flesh is like that of our grey Partridges. All sorts of Sea-fish are common, and much cheaper than in England. There are also some peculiar, as the Ormer or Auris Marina, shap'd like a Man's Ear; 'tis a Lump of white Pulp, sweet and luscious. Here's one call'd the Base, of which Cart-loads are drawn up at a time; another call'd Urase in Shape and Taste like a Carp, of which they have a very large sort at St. Owen, the only Pond in the Island. Here are Congers at all Seasons, some of which weigh from 40 to 50 l. Here are Multitudes of Toads, Lizards, and Moles. The former 2 are never known to do any hurt, and the Moles are reckon'd as advantageous to the Fruit-trees as they are hurtful to the Corn-fields. The Air is wholesom, and the People long-liv'd, being seldom troubled with Distempers, but Fevers or Agues in March and September. The Cold is not so sharp as in other Places of the same Lat. the Air being qualify'd by the salt Breezes from the Sea; but they have sometimes Storms of Westwind. The middle Part of the Island is somewhat Mountainous, but feeds their Sheep, which bear excellent Wool. The Valleys are well water'd with Brooks and planted with Orchards, which yield them good Cyder. Here are 12 Parishes, and the chief Town is St. Helier or Hillary, neat and well built, upon a Bay in the S. side of the Island. 'Tis inhabited by Merchants and Tradesmen, is the Seat of the Court of Justice, and has a good Market on Saturd. St. Aubin or Albans, on the other side the same Bay, is the next in note, and has the best Harbour in the Island, so that Merchants meet here on Mond. about Matters of Trade and Navigation. The lesser Towns and Villages are very thick, and have many Gentlemens Seats. The Houses are all of Stone, and well built. The Inhabitants are near 20000, and their Language is French. They had a considerable Trade, and many Ships; but suffer'd much by the St. Maloe's Privateers in the late Wars. On the East side there's a strong Castle on a steep Rock, call'd Mont Orgueil, or the Proud Mount, where the Governour formerly resided, but now dwells in the new Castle. He represents the King, from whom he has a Commission, takes Charge of the Castles and military Affairs, and sits in the Court of Judicature when any thing passes relating to the Crown. The Bailiff is next under him, has the chief Administration of Justice, and acts by Patent from the King: So that in Courts of Judicature he takes place of the Governour. He can do nothing but in conjunction with the 12 Jurats, who are sworn Officers of the Crown. In case of an Inequality of Votes, he must follow the Majority; but if they be equal, he has the casting Vote. The Court is compos'd of other Officers, as the King's Attorney and Sollicitor, the Sheriff, two under Sheriffs, the Clerk, and 6 Advocates at the Bar, with an Usher to keep Order. They take Cognizance of all Pleas, except Treason and some extraordinary Cases, reserv'd to the King and Privy-Council to be determin'd according to the Laws of the Island. Church Affairs are manag'd by a Dean, or Commissary from the Bp of Winchester. There are other small Islands in the Neighbourhood, some of which serve for Pasture, and one of them has a handsome Church.

VIII. SURREY,

AS Hampshire and part of Berkshire on the W. part of Bucks and Middlesex on the N. Kent on the E. and Sussex on the S. It lies in the Dioceses of Winchester, is 36 m. from E. to W. and 25 where broadest from S. to N. It contains 592000 Acres, 34218 Houses, 13 Hundreds, is divided into 140 Parishes, has 9 Market-Towns, and sends 14 Memb. to Parl. The Name is deriv'd from a Saxon Word which signifies S. of the R. The fruitfullest Part lies upon the R. It has plenty of Corn and Hay, and is mix'd with Woods and Fields, which make it very pleasant. In some Places there are long Ridges of Hills or Downs, with many Parks well stor'd with Deer, and its Rivers abound with Fish. The Air is healthful and pleasant, which occasion'd our Princes to build several Palaces here. It gives Title of E. to the Family of Norfolk.

Places of Note are,

1. Chertsey, 6 m. S. E. of Windsor, was formerly the Seat of one of the Saxon Kings, noted for a Monastery, and the Burial-place of K. Hen. VI. who was cut off by the Family of York, till Hen. VII. remov'd his Corpse to Windsor. It is a Market-Town, and Barges come up to it by the Thames, over which it has a Bridge. About 3 m. E. lay Oatlands, a Country-Seat belonging to the Crown, now in ruins. Near this Place Julius Cæsar passed the Thames at Coway-Stakes.

2. Kingston, about 7 m. E. of Chertsey. It lies upon the Thames, over which it has a large Wooden-Bridge with many Arches, and has a good Market for Corn, &c. on Saturd. The R. is navigable here by Barges. The Assizes for the County are often held here. It had formerly a streng Castle, the Residence of the Saxon Kings, and was the Place where they were crown'd, from whence it took the Name. At Comb-Nevil. &c. in the Neighbourhood, several Roman Coins, Urns, &c. have been found. About 2 m. N. E. lies Wimbledon, a noble Seat belonging to the D. of Leeds.

3. Croydon, 9 m. S. E. of Kingston, has a Market on Saturd. and a Fair in Oct. The Archbp of Canterbury has a Palace here, and there's a Free-School and Hospital founded by Archbp Whitgift. 'Tis also noted for its Church-Steeple. Near this Place lie Banstead-Downs, famous for Horse-Races and good Mutton.

4. Beddington, a m. W. of it, with a noble Seat that belongs to the Carews, with fine Orchards and Gardens, and particularly Orange-Trees, being the first that were brought into England by one of that Family, and have grown there above 100 Years, planted in an open Ground, under a moveable Covert during the Winter-Months.

5. Ewel, 6 m. S. W. of Croydon, has a Market on Thursd. E. of this stood Nonsuch, a noble Palace belonging to the Crown, now in ruins, but has still a fine Park.

6. Epsom, a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. W. from Ewel, much frequented by the Gentry, especially of London, in Summer-time, for its Mineral-Waters, which were discover'd in 1618, by a Country-man, as digging for Water for his Cattel in dry Weather. They have an aluminous Taste, were used at first outwardly for healing Sores, but are now taken inwardly for several Diseases; and there's a Salt extracted from them much us'd by Apothecaries. The Place is very delightful, has a good Air, and Accommodations for those that drink the Waters; so that 'tis of late much improv'd.

7. Richmond, 3 m. N. from Kingston, was famous for a Royal Palace, now demolish'd, and built into other Houses. 'Tis a very pleasant Town, and much frequented on account of its medicinal Wells, which have very much improv'd the Town, so that it has now many fine Houses. It is also noted for a noble Royal Park, and Seats of the Nobility in the Neighbourhood. There are many Gentlemens Seats upon the Thames; with large Villages betwixt this Place and London, as Ham, Putney, Wandsworth, Battersey, Clapham, &c. which we can't insist upon.

8. Dulwich, 3 m. S. from Southwark, noted for a pretty College and a fair Chappel, for 6 poor Men and 6 poor Women, and a School for 12 poor Children, erected by W. Allen, who had been a Comedian in the Time of Jam. I. Near it are medicinal Springs, call'd Sidenham-Wells; and there are others at Stretham, 3 m. S. W. both resorted to in the proper Seasons.

9. Farnham, on the Borders of Wiltshire, 6 m. W. of Guilford, has a good Market for Corn on Thursd. and a Castle belonging to the Bp of Winchester. Barges come up the River Wey to it.

10. Guilford on the Wye, 6 m. E. of Farnham, and 25 S. W. of London, antiently a Royal Village belonging to the Saxon Kings, who had a Palace here. Godwin E. of Kent treacherously seiz'd at this Place Alfred the true Saxon Heir of the Crown, who came hither from Normandy to demand his Right; but Godwin, contrary to promise, surpriz'd him by Night, murder'd most of his Retinue, and deliver'd up the Prince to Harold the Dane, who put out his Eyes, and kept him in Prison till he dy'd. This Town had once a great Clothing Trade. George Abbot, Archbp of Canterbury, his Brothers, Robert Bp of Sarum, and Sir Maurice Abbot, Ld Mayor of London, were Sons of a Clothier here. George built and endow'd a fine Hospital, and is bury'd in Trinity Church here. There's a good free School in this Place, founded by K. Edw. VI. This Town gave Title of E. to the late D. of Lauderdale, as it does now to the Family of North, descended from the Ld Keeper North, to whom Char. II. gave that Dignity. Here are 3 Churches, many good Inns, and the R. is navigable by Barges which carry great Quantities of Corn, Wood, and Timber to London. It is a very antient Corporation and Borough; they had their first Charter from Hen. I. and the second from Hen. VII. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, 7 Magistrates, and 16 Bailiffs. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are elected by the Freemen and Freeholders, paying Scot and Lot, Inhabitants within the Bor. who are about 200. Here's a Market on Saturd. the greatest in England for Wheat, and Fairs on April 23. and Nov. 11. The Assizes for the County are sometimes held here.

About 2 m. E. is Clandon-Place, a noble Seat of the Ld Onslow. on the Edge of Clandon-Down, from whence there's a pleasant Prospect into 10 Counties. And at Pirford on the Wye, is another belonging to Denzil Onslow, a Branch of the Family, with a pleasant Park, many Royalties, Fishponds, and a fine Decoy.

11. Albury, 6 m. S. E. of Guilford, a noble Seat, the Delight of the famous Antiquary, Thomas E. of Arundel. His Grandson, Henry D. of Norfolk, begun a magnificent Pile here, cut a Canal, planted spacious Gardens and Vineyards, adorn'd with Fountains, Grotto's, &c. and perforated a great Hill, large enough for a Coach to pass at one end above a Furlong, and leading into a pleasant Valley. 'Twas intended for a Way up to the House, but that was prevented by a Rock at the S. End. 'Tis inclosed with a Park, and much improv'd by the late Sollicitor-General Finch, who purchas'd it.

12. Chilworth, not far from thence, the Seat of —— Randyll, Esq; owner of the most considerable Powder-Works and best Hop-Gardens in England.

13. Hasilmere, 11 m. S. W. of Guilford, on the Borders of Sussex, 36 m. S. W. of London, is an antient Bor. by Prescription, consisting of a Bailiff and Burgageteners. It lies at the Entry of a rich Valley, extending to the S. Downs, cover'd with Timber; has a plentiful Market on Saturd. and 2 Fairs annually. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Bailiff and a Majority of the Burgageteners, who are about 50.

14. Godalmin, 3 m. N. E. of Hasilmere, has a Market on Saturdays.

15. Darking, 9 m. S. E. of Guilford, has a Market on Thursdays. There are the Remains of a large Camp in this Parish, near the Road to Arundel, double trench'd and deep, and containing about 10 Acres of Ground.

16. Deepden betwixt Darking and Beechworth, is remarkable for its Situation by uniform Risings about it, that resemble a Roman Theatre: 'tis oval, open at the N. end, and is ingeniously form'd into Vineyards and other Plantations, both in the Area and on the sides of the surrounding Hills, with many Grotto's beneath the Terrasses that lead to the Top, whence there's a Prospect of near 30 m. outright. 'Twas contriv'd by the Hon. Char. Howard, Uncle to the D. of Norfolk, and Ld of the Manor.

17. The Swallow, a Place under White-hill, or Box-hill, because cover'd with Box-trees, a little N. of Darking, is so call'd because the R. Mole sinks here, runs under Ground above 2 Miles, and rises up again; so that the Inhabitants of this Place may boast as the Spaniards do of their Guadiana, that they have a Bridge which feeds several Flocks of Sheep. Where the R. rises again, it spreads so wide as to require a Bridge of a great many Arches, and a stately Fabrick, partly of Stone and Tiles, laid flat upon one another.

18. Wotton, about 2 m. S.W. of Darking, is the Seat of the antient Family of the Evelings, among gentle Streams, Meadows, and ſmall Riſings cover'd with Wood, which with the Gardens, Fountains, and other Ornaments, make it one of the moſt agreeable Places in England. In opening the Ground near a Vault in the Church-yard here, belonging to the Family, in order to enlarge it, a Skeleton was found of 9 Foot 3 Inches long; which as ſoon as taken out of the Coffin, fell all to pieces.

19. Lith-Hill riſes gradually 2 or 3 m. S. and has a Declivity on the other ſide of almoſt 8 m. From hence in a clear Day, one may ſee all Surrey, part of Hampſhire, Barkſhire, Oxfordſhire, Buckinghamſhire, Hartfordſhire, Middleſex, Kent, and Eſſex, and as 'tis believ'd, ſays Dr. Gibſon, Wiltſhire: So that he thinks the whole Circumference of the Proſpect to be 200 Miles; and that there is not the like in England, if in Europe. But 'tis not much taken notice of, becauſe it riſes ſo inſenſibly, and is quite out of any Road. From the ſide of it a great part of the Brow is fallen down into a Delf of Stones; and the bare Ground being red, is plainly ſeen at 40 m. diſtance.

20. Rygate, 5 m. S. E. of Darking, and 20 S. of London, in the Vale of Holmeſdale, with Hills on each ſide, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. return'd by the Bailiff, who is elected annually at a Court-Leet. It has a Market on Tueſd. and Fairs at Whitſuntide, St. James's and Holy-Croſs Days. Here's great Variety of Soil, ſandy, ſtony, and chalky, and abundance of Fullers-Clay, and no leſs Variety of medicinal Plants and Herbs. On the E. ſide are the Ruins of Holmes-Caſtle, and under it a wonderful ſubterranean Vault of arched Stone, cut out with great Labour.

21. Blechingly, 5 m. ½ E. of Rygate, and 20 S. of London; an antient Bor. by Preſcription, but now very ſmall. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by a Majority of the Freeholders, and return'd by the Bailiff, who is choſen annually at the Ld of the Manor's Court. It has no Market, but Fairs on St. Barnaby's Day, and Nov. 2. It ſtands upon a Hill on one ſide of Holmeſdale, and has a fine Proſpect as far as the South-Downs.

22. Gatton, 1 m. E. of Blechingly, and 18 S. of London; formerly a large Town, now a mean Village, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Inhabitants, who are about 15, and return'd by the Conſtable, who is annually choſen at the Ld of the Manor's Court. It has neither Market nor Fair.

Southwark and Lambeth are in this County; but as they are now commonly reckon'd Parts of London, we ſhall deſcribe them with that City.

IX. SUSSEX,

HAS Hampſhire on the W. Surrey and Kent on the N. the Britiſh Channel on the S. and Kent on the N. E. The Name ſignifies the Country of the South-Saxons. 'Tis 19 m. where broadeſt S. & N. and 70 where longeſt E. & W. divided into 6 Rapes, and ſubdivided into 65 Hundreds and 312 Pariſhes. It has 18 Market-Towns, 12 of which are Bor. and ſend Memb. to Parl. beſides 4 of the Cinque-Ports here, which ſend 2 each. It is ſaid to contain 1140000 Acres, and but 21537 Houſes, having been a long time over-grown with Woods appropriated to the Feeding of Deer and Hogs, and has ſtill much Wood in the N. parts. The Sea Coaſts have high green Downs of a chalky Soil, and very fruitful, but have few Ports, becauſe of Shelves, Sands, and Rocks. The middle Part is chequer'd with Paſtures, Corn-fields, and Groves. There are abundance of Iron-Works, which have conſum'd much of their Wood, and by turning much of their Meadow-ground into Ponds for Flaſhes to drive their Iron-Mills, have damag'd their Paſtures; ſo that 'tis a queſtion, whether they gain or loſe by their Iron-Works, tho they make abundance of Iron-Guns, &c. They had alſo Glaſs-Works, which are now laid aſide. Here are Powder-Mills near Haſtings, where they make as good Gun-Powder as any in England; and abundance of Charcoal is made where they have their Iron-Works. A Suſſex Carp, an Arundel Mullet, an Amerley Trout, a Chicheſter Lobſter, and the Wheat-Ear, a Bird in this County, are admir'd. This County gave Title of E. to the Family of Ratcliff, and upon the Failure of their Iſſue, to that of the Savills, who ſucceeded. The Honour was conferr'd on Thomas Lennard Ld Dacres of Gilſland, in 1674. upon his marrying a natural Daughter of Char. II. by the Dutcheſs of Cleveland. This County lies in the Dioceſs of Chicheſter.

Places of Note are,

1. Horſham, 10 m. S. from Rygate in Surry: and 35 S. W. from London, one of the largeſt Towns in the County. It ſtands in a fruitful Soil, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, govern'd by Bailiffs, who are annually choſe at the Court-Leet of the D. of Norfolk, by a Jury, who return 4 to the Steward, and he makes choice of 2 for the enſuing Year. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Bailiffs and Burgage-holders within and without the Bor. and return'd by the Bailiffs. 'Tis chiefly remarkable for a fine parochial Church, a Free-School well endow'd, a ſtone Quarry which yields plenty of Stones either for Tiling or Flooring, and a prodigious Quantity of Poultry, which it ſends to other Parts. Here's a Market on Saturd. granted by K. John, a Fair on July 7, for 9 Days, on Mond. before Whitſun-tide, and Nov. 16. The Town has alſo a Patent for a Monthly Market or Fair.

2. Eaſt-Grinſted, 12 m. E. of Horſham, and 35 S. W. from London, is a Bor. by Preſcription of great Antiquity. It conſiſts of a Bailiff and about 35 Burgage-holders. The Bailiff is choſe annually at the Court of the E. of Dorſet, who is Lord of the Borough, by the Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Steward. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are alſo choſe by the Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Bailiff. The Aſſizes are held here. They have a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on July 2, and Nov. 30, the latter conſiderable for Welch Runts and other Cattel, and fat Hogs. The Town has alſo a Patent for a Monthly Market.

3. Midhurſt, 17 m. S. W. of Shoreham and 42 S. W. from London, is a very antient Bor. by Preſcription, ſtands upon a Hill ſurrounded with others, and is water'd by the R. Arun, near which there's a noble Palace belonging to the Ld Viſc. Montague, Ld of the Bor. at whoſe Court the Bailiff is annually choſe by a Jury. Its 2 Memb. of Parl. are choſe by a Majority of the Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Bailiff. Here's a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on March 25. Whit-Tueſd. Oct. 18, and St. Margaret's Day.

4. Petworth, 5 m. E. of Midhurſt, has a Market on Saturd. belong'd formerly to the Percys E. of Northumberland, and is chiefly noted for a noble Seat of the D. of Somerſet, who marry'd the Heireſs of that Family.

5. Chicheſter, 10 m. S. of Midhurſt, and 50 S. W. of London, derives its Name from a Saxon Prince its Founder, who made it the chief Seat of the Saxon Kings. It lies in a pleaſant Valley, is well and regularly built, and conſiſts chiefly of 4 large Streets which center at the Market-Croſs, has been incorporated time out of Mind, but had its laſt Charter from James I. and II. by the Stile of Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens, without Limitation. 'Tis a City and County of itſelf, and ſends two Memb. to Parl. elected by thoſe who pay to Church and Poor. Their chief Manufactures are Malting and making Needles. Here are Markets on Wedneſd. Frid. and Saturd. well frequented; and a Fair every Wedneſd. fortnight for Cattel, one of the greateſt in England, and other Fairs April 23. Whit-Mond. St. James's Day, Michaelmas Day, and 9 Days after. Here are 6 Churches, beſides the Cathedral, and a Harbour for Ships. Here's a Dean, a Chanter, a Chancellor, a Treaſurer, 2 Archdeacons, and 30 Prebendaries. The Town is wall'd about in a circular Form, and is encompaſs'd by the R. Lavant, except on the N. ſide. The Courſe of this R. is very unaccountable, being ſometimes quite dry, and at other times, even in the middle of Summer, runs with a violent Stream. The Cathedral is not large, but neat, and has a very high Stone-Spire. On the S. ſide the Hiſtory of its Foundation is curiouſly painted, with the Pictures of the Kings, and on the other ſide are thoſe of the Biſhops of this Place and Selſey, from whence the See was remov'd hither in the Reign of Will. I. who ordain'd that Biſhops Sees ſhould be remov'd from little Towns to thoſe of greater Reſort. The Biſhop's Palace and the Prebendaries Houſes lie near the Cathedral, as did that of the Dean, who now has none.

6. Selſey, formerly the Biſhop's See, lies in a Peninſula, 5 m. S. of Chicheſter, and had its name from Seals which abound there. 'Tis now famous for good Lobſters and Cockles. This City formerly gave Title of E. to thoſe of Arundel, and now to Char. Fitzroy, one of K. Char. II. natural Sons. There are ſeveral old Camps in the Neighbourhood, ſuppos'd to be Roman and Daniſh.

7. Arundel, 8 m. E. of Chicheſter, and 50 S. W. from London. It has this peculiar Privilege, that the Name, State, and Dignity of an Earl is annex'd to the Caſtle-Honour and Lordſhip of Arundel by Act of Parl. 7 Hen. VI. This Title was formerly enjoy'd by the Fitz-Alans, but is now in the Family of Howard, and gives Title to the D. of Norfolk's eldeſt Son. There are ſeveral Monuments of thoſe antient Earls in the Church, which we can't inſiſt upon. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcription, by the Stile of Mayor and Burgeſſes. The Charter was ratify'd and enlarg'd by Q. Eliz. It ſtands pleaſantly on the Deſcent of a Hill, and is water'd by the R. Arun, navigable by Barges, from whence ſome derive the Name, and others from Beauvoiſe of Southampton's ſwift Horſe, call'd in old French, Arundel; Hirundel in that Language ſignifying a Swallow. Dr. Gibſon ſays, the true Name of the R. was antiently Haultrey, in Latin Alta Ripa. Here is a Caſtle, ſometimes the Reſidence of its antient Earls, the Dukes of Norfolk; and a Collegiate-Church, now made Parochial. The Mayor is annually elected at a Court-Leet, of which he is afterwards Judge. 'Tis held every 3 Weeks. He appoints proper Officers to collect Peckage, Stallage, &c. Ale-taſters, Carnifars. No Sheriff or Bailiff can execute a Writ within the Bor. without his leave, and he has the Authority of a Juſtice of Peace, tho he ſeldom acts. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are choſe by thoſe who pay Scot and Lot. Here are Markets on Thurſd. and Saturd. and Fairs May 3, Aug. 10, Sept. 14, and Dec. 6.

8. Terring, 6 m. E. of Arundel, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships.

9. Steyning, 5 m. N. of Terring, and 45 S. W. from London, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, with the Stile of Conſtable and Burgeſſes. The Conſtable is annually choſe at the D. of Norfolk's Court-Leet by a Jury. Memb. of Parl. are elected by thoſe who pay to Church and Poor, and return'd by the Conſtable. It was formerly a Town and County of it ſelf, and had other great Privileges. Here is a handſome Church, ſomewhat Collegiate, a Market on Tueſd. and Fairs on May 19, Sept. 8, and Michaelmas-Day.

10. New-Shoreham, 4 m. S. E. of Steyning, and 46 S. W. of London, is a Bor. by Preſcription of great Antiquity, by the Stile of Conſtables and Inhabitants. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by all who pay Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Conſtables. It ſtands commodiouſly on the Shore, has a good Harbour, and a Dock for building Men of War and Merchant-Ships. It had a Collegiate-Church, now made Parochial, lately beautify'd by the Inhabitanrs, of whom it is obſerv'd there's not one who receives Alms.

11. Cuckfield, 12 m. N. E. of Shoreham, has a Market on Tueſd.

12. Helmſton, 5 m. S. E. of Shoreham, on the Coaſt, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for Ships.

13. Lewes, 6 m. N. E. of Helmſton, and 50 S. from London, is a very antient Bor. by Preſcription, by the Stile of Conſtables and Inhabitants. It is pleaſant and healthy, ſtands on a riſing Ground, among other Hills, is water'd by the R. Owſe, large, populous, well built, and inhabited by Gentry and Tradeſmen, and has a Harbour for Ships. It was wall'd before the Conqueſt, and had a Caſtle and Priory. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by thoſe who pay Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Conſtables, who are annually choſe at a Court-Leet held alternately by the D. of Norfolk, E. of Dorſet, and Ld Abergavenny. It has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs April 23, Whit-Tueſd. and St. Matthew's Day.

14. Bramber, 1 m. S. E. of Steyning, and 45 S. W. of London, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, with the Stile of Conſtables and Inhabitants.

tants. 'Tis water'd by a ſmall R. formerly navigable by Ships of Burden. Here are the Remains of a fine Caſtle, Bridge, and other publick Buildings, now in decay. The Conſtables are choſe annually at a Court-Leet of the D. of Norfolk, by a Jury. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by the Inhabitants, who pay to Church and Poor. Here is one Church, but no Fair or Market.

15. Hayſham, 10 m. E. from Lewes, has a Weekly-market, and a Harbour for Barges.

16. Eaſtborne, 6 m. S. of Hayſham, has a Weekly-market, and a Harbour for Ships. Near this lies Pevenſey-Haven, where William the Norman landed, and the Point call'd Beachy, reckon'd the higheſt in the S. of England. Pevenſey-Marſh is ſuppos'd to have been formerly over-flow'd by the Sea.

17. Battle, 8 m. N. E. of Hayſham, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for Barges, It had the Name from the Victory that William the Norman obtain'd over the Engliſh, upon which he erected an Abby here, about which the Town was afterwards built; and he made it a Place of Sanctuary. Moſt of the great Families in England derive themſelves from the Roll of thoſe Perſons of Note that came over with the Conqueror, which was kept in this Abby; but the Annotator on Camden obſerves, that the Monks grew ſo corrupt in latter times, that they inſerted the Names of their Benefactors in that Roll, and likewiſe of thoſe who by Favour or Fortune were advanc'd to Honours.

18. Haſtings, 6 m. S. E. of Battle, and 54 S. E. of London. As this is the firſt and chief of the Cinque Ports, 'tis proper to give an Account of their Inſtitution, as Camden exhibites it from the Record in the Exchequer. Haſtings, with its Members, ought to find 21 Ships at the King's Summons, and there ought to be in every Ship 21 Men, able, fitly qualified, well arm'd, and well furniſh'd for the King's Service; yet ſo as that Summons be made thereof on the King's Behalf 40 Days before. And when the aforeſaid Ships and Men therein are come to the Place of Rendevouz whereunto they were ſummon'd, they ſhall abide there in the King's Service for 15 Days at their own proper Coſt and Charges: And if the K. ſhall have further need of their Service after the 15 Days aforeſaid, or will have them ſtay there any longer, thoſe Ships with the Men therein, while they remain there, ſhall be in the King's Service, at the King's Coſts and Charges, ſo long as the K. pleaſes. The Maſter of each Ship ſhall have 6 d. a Day, and the Conſtable 6 d. a Day, and every one of the reſt 3 d. a Day. Camden is of Opinion, that the Warden of the Cinque Ports was ſet up by William the Norman, in Imitation of the Roman Comes Litoris Saxonici, whom they appointed for the Defence of the Coaſt againſt the Saxon Piracies. They were at firſt but five, viz. Haſtings, Dover, Hithe, Romney, and Sandwich, to which Winchelſea and Rye are annex'd as principal, and ſome other little Towns as Members only. And becauſe they are oblig'd to ſerve in the Wars by Sea, they enjoy many large Immunities; as, Exemption from paying of Subſidies, from Wardſhip of their Children, as to Body; from being ſued in any Courts without their own Boroughs; and ſuch of their Inhabitants as have the Name of Barons, at the Coronation of the Kings and Queens, ſupport the Canopy, and for that Day have their Tables ſpread and furniſh'd at the King's Right Hand; and the Ld Warden, who is always one of the Nobility, has within his Juriſdiction, in ſeveral Caſes, Authority of Admiral, Chancellor, and other Privileges. The Memb. ſent to Parl. from thoſe Towns have the Title of Barons, and are 16 in Number. This Town had its Charters from Edw. the Confeſſor, Will. I. and II. Hen. II. Rich. I. Hen. III. Edw. I. and Char. II. by which they are exempted from Toll, and have Power to hold Courts of Judicature on Life and Death. 'Tis incorporated by the Stile of Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty; and ſends 2 Members to Parl. choſen by the Mayor, Jurats, and Freemen. Here are 2 Churches, Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on Tueſd. and Wedneſd. in Whitſun-Week, and Nov. 23. and 24. To this Town belong, as Members, Pevenſey, Seaforth, Bulliver, Heath, Hidney, Beaksburn, and Granger. Here's a Harbour, but not good, tho the Nation has been at a great deal of Charge about it firſt and laſt. There's a good Fiſhing on the Coaſt, and London is ſupply'd with much Fiſh from hence. This Town gives Name to the Noble Family of Haſtings, Earls of Huntingdon.

19. Winchelſea, 7 m. N. of Haſtings, and 60 m. S. E. of London, upon the Coaſt. 'Twas built out of the Ruins of another Town of the ſame Name in Edw. I's Time, is one of the Cinque Ports, and had formerly ſeveral Churches, but has only one now, which was the Chancel of the largeſt Church. It had 2 Markets, which are diſcontinued; but it has a conſiderable Fair on May 3. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty. It gives Title of Earl to Heneage Finch.

20. Seaford, 8 m. S. E. of Lewes, and 50 S. of London, is a Cinque Port, united to that of Haſtings by Hen. VIII. who incorporated the ſame in the 35th of his Reign by the Stile of Bailiffs and Commonalty of the Town, Pariſh, and Bor. of Seaford. The Bailiff is choſen on Michaelmas-Day; and by himſelf or Deputy, holds a Court every 15 Days, to hear and determine according to the Laws of England, and the Cuſtoms of the Cinque Ports. 'Tis no Market-Town, but has a Fair on St. James's Day.

21. Rye, 2 m. N. E. of Winchelſea, and 60 S. E. of London, upon a Rock, at the Mouth of the Rother, in a ſort of Peninſula, has a very delightful Proſpect to the Sea. 'Twas formerly a wall'd Town, and had a commodious Harbour, which might be made ſo again. 'Tis populous, well built, and has one of largeſt Pariſh-Churches in England. 'Tis incorporated by the Name of Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty, who with the Freemen, elect the 2 Memb. of Parl. 'Tis a Cinque-Port; and Temterden belongs to it as a Member. Here's a Market on Saturd. and a Fair Aug. 10.

X. KENT,

HAS Surrey on the W. part of Suſſex on the S. W. and S. the Thames, which divides it from Middleſex and Eſſex, on the N. except a ſmall Piece of Ground over-againſt Woolwich; the Sea on the S. Dover Straits on the S. E. and the Downs on the E. It lies in the Dioceſſes of Canterbury and Rocheſter, is 60 m. where longeſt E. and W. and 31 where broadeſt S. and N. 'Tis reckon'd to contain 1248000 Acres, is divided into 5 Lathes, ſubdivided into 68 Hundreds, 408 Pariſhes, has 30 conſiderable Towns, 39242 Houſes, and 215600 People. It ſends 10 Memb. to Parl. beſides 8 for the 4 Cinque Ports in it. 'Tis divided into 3 Parts, according to the different Soil and Climate, viz. the Downs, where they are ſaid to have Health without Wealth; the Marſhy Parts, which have Wealth without Health; and the Middle, that has both Health and Wealth. This County lying much upon the Sea, the Air is almoſt as warm as that of Cornwall, and often purified by S. and S. W. Winds, and the Beach not ſo ouzy as in Eſſex; the Marſhy Parts are wholeſomer, yet ſubject to that call'd the Kentiſh Ague. The County in general abounds with Corn, Paſtures, and Woods of Oak, Beech, and Cheſtnut, the latter not common in other Counties. The Kentiſh Cherries and Pepins are famous, of which here are many large Orchards. The Cattel of all ſorts are reckon'd larger than in neighbouring Counties. Here are ſeveral Parks of Fallow Deer, and Warrens of greyiſh Rabbits. The Thames, the Medway, Darent, Stoure, and other leſſer Rs. together with the Sea, furniſh 'em with plenty of Fiſh, tho ſome other Counties are better ſupply'd that way. They have good large Oyſters about Feverſham and Eaſt Swale. Here are Iron Mines, Quarries of Stone for Paving, and Pits of Marl and Chalk; and upon the Cliffs near Folkſtone, are found Stones of ſtrange Shapes and Figures, reſembling Muſcles, Almonds, ſtreak'd like Cockle-Shells, Skrews, Cocks-Spurs, tranſparent Quills, Snakes, &c. Among the Chalky Hills, betwixt this Place and Dover, a Cataract, which is ſuppos'd to run a great way under Ground, falls from the Cliffs; and along 'em is abundance of Samphire, which makes a wholeſome Sallade.

The Gentry are numerous and rich, becauſe they have a great Vent for their Product, by Sea and navigable Rivers; but the Families are not thought ſo antient as elſewhere, becauſe, being ſo near London, Courtiers, Merchants, and Lawyers, frequently purchaſe Eſtates in this County. The Yeomanry is the richeſt in England, and hold by Gavelkind at an invariable Rent, which, ſome ſay, was one of the Conditions they obtain'd from William the Norman, before they would ſubmit; and they were antiently ſo noted for Valour, that the Front of the Battel was allow'd them.

Authors differ as to the Etymology of the Name; but Camden's Conjecture ſeems moſt probable, that it came from an old Gauliſh or Celtick Word, ſignifying a Corner, or Peninſula. The Romans call'd it Cantium, which probably they had from the old Gaulick Word Canton, that ſignifies a Corner; for in their Time they found the Inhabitants did in moſt Things reſemble the Gauls, of whom 'tis probable they were deſcended. This County has given the Title of Earl to many Families, particularly to the Greys, ſince the Reign of Edw. IV. and now gives 'em Title of Duke.

Places of Note are,

1. Deptford, about 3 m. ¼ S. E. of London-Bridge, a large Village, noted for a Dock and Storehouſes, to build and repair Men of War, where Officers and Workmen continually reſide for that end. Here's alſo a College, incorporated by K. Hen. VIII. and call'd Trinity-Houſe, for the Increaſe and Augmentation of Ships and Mariners, and a handſome Church newly built.

2. Greenwich, a m. E. of Deptford, a large Village, very antient, and noted for a Royal Seat ſince the Time of Humphrey D. of Glouceſter, who firſt built the Palace. 'Twas much enlarg'd by Hen. VII. and finiſh'd by Hen. VIII. 'Tis famous for the Birth of Q. Mary and Q. Eliz. and the Death of Edw. VI. Here was a Tower, or Caſtle, on the Hill above, but demoliſh'd, and a Royal Obſervatory built in its Place by Char. II. and furniſh'd with all ſorts of Mathematical and Aſtronomical Inſtruments, and a deep dry Well, to obſerve the Stars in the Day-time. 'Tis now call'd Flamſtead's Houſe, becauſe the late Learned Mr. Flamſtead, the King's Mathematician dwelt there, and very much improv'd the Science of Aſtronomy. There's only one Part of the antient Palace left. K. Char. II. began another, which coſt him 36000 l. but did not live to finiſh it; and K. William gave it towards an Hoſpital for Seamen, when diſabled by Age, Wounds, or other Accidents in the Service of the Crown; and likewiſe for the Widows and Children of ſuch, or of thoſe that loſt their Lives in its Service. He alſo gave 9 Acres of Ground, and 2000 l. per Ann. towards finiſhing the ſame, and appointed Commiſſioners to receive the Charitable Contributions of the Subjects towards it, and likewiſe to frame Rules for its Government. The late Queen did alſo advance it. So that for the Situation, Spaciouſneſs, and Fineneſs of the Structure, and commodious Apartments, it ſurpaſſes any thing of that kind in Europe. The Number of Penſioners here is about 300; each 100 is allow'd 6 Nurſes, who are Seamens Widows, and have 6 l. per Ann. and thoſe that attend the Infirmary have 2 s. per Week more. The Penſioners, beſides their Commons, have 1 s. per Week for Spending-Money, the common Warrant-Officers have 1 s. 6 d. and the Governor and other Officers large Salaries. Henry Howard E. of Northampton built alſo an Hoſpital here, which he endow'd for the Maintenance of a Governor and 20 poor Men. Mr. Lambard, Author of the Perambulation of Kent, built another for the Relief of divers poor Perſons, which he call'd Queen Elizabeth's College for the Poor. This Village now gives Title of Duke to the D. of Argyle. The Royal Park in the Neighbourhood is very pleaſant, well ſtock'd with Deer, and from the Hills in it there's a fine Proſpect of the River, London, and the adjacent Country; which forms one of the moſt pleaſant and glorious Landskips that, perhaps, is to be ſeen any where. Black-Heath, behind the Park, has been the Scene of ſeveral Actions with Rebels, and the Rendevouz for the Royal Army. There are ſeveral Gentlemens Seats on the Borders of that Heath, and an Hoſpital for decay'd Merchants, built by Sir John Mordaunt. Upon the ſmall R. Ravensburn, which runs into the Thames near Greenwich, there are the Remains of a large Fortification, near 2 m. in Compaſs, ſuppos'd to have been a Roman Encampment, or the Ruins of the old Noviomagus.

3. Woolwich,

3. Woolwich, 3 m. N. E. of Greenwich, has a Market on Fridays, is a large Town, and is reckon'd the Mother-Dock for the Royal Navy, ſome of our oldeſt and greateſt Men of War having been built here. In this Place are kept Magazines of Cannon, Bombs, Mortars, and other warlike Stores, for the Royal Navy, a Dock, a Rope-Yard, a Foundery, and proper Officers conſtantly reſiding here upon that Account.

4. Dartford, 7 m. S. E. of Woolwich, has a good Market on Saturd. for Corn, and a Fair on July 22. It has a Pariſh-Church, a Harbour for Barges, and gives Title of Viſcount to the E. of Jerſey.

5. Graveſend, 6 m. S. E. of Dartford, and 20 E. from London. 'Tis an Incorporation, govern'd by a Mayor and Jurats, and has Markets well frequented on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and a Fair on Oct. 13. which laſts 7 Days. This Place and the neighbouring Coaſt having been liable to Enemies in Time of War, Hen. VIII. rais'd 2 Platforms at Graveſend and Milton, and 2 more at Tilbury, &c. over-againſt them on the Eſſex Shore, which command the R.

6. Eltham, 2 m. ½ S. of Woolwich, formerly the Reſidence of our Kings, and particularly of Edw. II. who had a Son born here call'd John of Eltham. The Statutes, by which the King's Houſe is ſtill govern'd, were made here; but the Place was afterwards neglected, the Air not being reckon'd healthful, becauſe of a Moat which ſurrounded the Palace.

7. Bromley, 4 m. S. from Eltham, and 10 S. E. of London, has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Feb. 3. and July 25. The Bp of Rocheſter has a Palace and a Park here. Dr. John Warner, Bp of Rocheſter, erected a College here for 20 poor Widows, with an Allowance of 20 l. per Ann. to each, and 50 l. per Ann. to their Chaplain.

8. Cray, 5 m. S. E. of Bromley, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair on Candlemas-Day.

9. Wrotham, 7 m. S. E. of Cray has a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair on April 23.

10. Malling, 5 m. E. of Wrotham, has a Market on Saturd.

11. Rocheſter, 9 m. N. E. from Malling, and 27 S. E. from London. 'Tis a very antient City, call'd by Antonin, Durobriæ. It lies on the E. ſide of the Medway in a Valley, and has undergone many Viciſſitudes by War, Fire, &c. 'Tis the See of a Biſhop, who is commonly Dean of Weſtminſter. A Dean and 6 Prebendaries belong to the Cathedral, beſides which there's only one Pariſh Church. The Caſtle was built by William the Norman, and here's a ſtately Stone-Bridge over the River, of 21 Arches, and there are Lands ſettled by Act of Parl. for maintaining it. This City has been incorporated time out of Mind. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, and 12 Aldermen, of whom the Mayor is one, 12 Common-Council-men, a Town-Clerk, 3 Serjeants at Mace, and a Water-Bailiff. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a Market on Frid. and Fairs on May 13, & Nov. 30. It has given Title of E. to ſeveral Families, and laſt to a Branch of the Family of Hide, deſcended from the E. of Clarendon.

On the other ſide the Bridge lies Chatham, in form of a Suburb. It was built in the Reign of K. Char. II. after the firſt Dutch-War, and is now famous for being the Station of the Royal Navy. The Dock, and Upnor-Caſtle for Defence of it, were begun by Q. Eliz. but improv'd by her Succeſſors, who have added new Docks and Store-houſes, with Forts at Gillingham, Cockham-Wood, the Swomp, &c. So that 'tis one of the compleateſt Arſenals in Europe. Here are 2 Commiſſioners, with other Officers to take care of the Navy, the Store-houſes, Rope-Yard, &c. Here's a Fair on Sept. 8. and a handſome Pariſh-Church. Here's alſo a ſort of Treaſury for Seamen wounded in the Service of the Crown, commonly call'd, The Cheſt of Chatham, whence they have annual Allowances. This Place gives Title of an Engliſh Baron to the D. of Argyle. Gillingham in the Neighbourhood, has part of the Dock in that Pariſh.

12. Milton, 10 m. E. of Rocheſter, has a Market on Saturd. an annual Fair, and a Port for Barges, and had formerly a Royal Palace.

13. Sheppey-Iſland, 7 m. E. from Rocheſter, and 45 S. E. from London, form'd by the R. Medway, which divides its Streams at the W. end of it, one of them running into the Mouth of the Thames, and the other into the Sea; the one call'd W. Swale, and the other E. Swale. The Name is ſuppos'd to be deriv'd from the numbers of Sheep formerly kept here. 'Tis 21 m. round, and has plenty of Corn, but wants Wood. Places of Note here, are, 1. Queenborough, built by K. Edw. III. and call'd ſo in honour of his Queen. It lies on the W. ſide of the Iſland, on the Bank of the Medway. He made it a Corporation, by the Name of the Mayor and Jurats, who are 4, a Conſtable, a Town-Serjeant, and a Land and Water-Bailiff, who at the time of their Election were to take the Oath of Allegiance before the Conſtable of the Caſtle; which he built, but is ſince demoliſh'd. The chief Trade is in Fiſhing; and tho the Town be poor, it ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. It has Markets on Mond. and Thurſd. and Fairs on St. James's Day, and March 24. 2. Sheerneſs, 2 m. N. E. from the Town, on the Point of the Iſland, is a ſtrong Fortification built by K. Char. II. inſtead of the demoliſh'd Caſtle, with good Apartments for the Governor, the Officers of the Ordnance, Navy, and Gariſon.

14. Sittingburn, 1 m. S. of Milton, once a Mayor and Market-Town, now only noted for a Thorow-fare betwixt London and Canterbury, a Fair on Whit-Mond. that laſts 3 Days, and another on Michaelmas-Day.

15. Feverſham, 7 m. S. E. from Milton, and 44 S. E. from London, has a Market on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on St. Valentine's and Lammas Days, each of which continues 10 Days after. 'Tis incorporated by the Name of Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty, and is a Member of the Town and Port of Dover. It is populous and flouriſhing, by reaſon of its Situation in one of the fruitfulleſt Parts of Kent, and the Conveniency of a Creek for Shipping.

16. Canterbury, 8 m. E. of Feverſham, and 52 S. E. of London. 'Tis the chief City of the County, and the Metropolitan See of all England. 'Twas antiently call'd Durovernum and Dorobernia, and had the preſent Name from the Saxons, ſignifying the chief Town of the Kentiſh-men. Some pretend it was built 903 Years before our Saviour's Incarnation; but however that be, it appears that the Romans were here, from the mention of it in Antonin's Itinerary, and that Roman Coins are frequently dug up in moſt parts of the City; and there are alſo the Remains of a double Military-Way, and great Roman Cauſeys leading from hence to Dover and Lyme. It was Capital of the Saxon Kingdom of Kent; and when Auſtin the Monk came hither from Pope Gregory I. to convert the Saxons, K. Ethelbert becoming a Chriſtian, gave him his Palace, and the Royalty of the City and its Territories; after which the Archiepiſcopal See was mov'd hither from London, as ſome ſay by Authority of Parliament, becauſe St. Auſtin liv'd, and was buried here. This City has undergone many Viciſſitudes by Wars and Fire. 'Tis a County of itſelf. The Corporation conſiſts of a Mayor, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, a Sheriff, 24 Common-Council-men, a Mace-Bearer, a Sword-Bearer, and 4 Serjeants at Mace. It has, beſides the Cathedral, 14 Pariſh-Churches, 2 Charity-Schools, and 7 Hoſpitals. Here are Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs July 7, Sept. 29, and Dec. 29. each holding 9 Days. The ſtaple Commodity here is Hops. 'Tis divided into 6 Wards, nam'd from their different Gates. Here was a Mint in the Saxon, Daniſh, and Norman times, and formerly a Royal Exchange. A Court is held every Mond. in the Guild-Hall, for Civil and Criminal Cauſes, and another every other Tueſday about the Government of the City. Here's a ſtately Conduit erected by Bp Abbot, a Jail for Criminals, an Hoſpital nam'd Bridewell, for a Houſe of Correction, and entertaining a certain Number of poor Townſmens Children. The Cathedral, as ſome ſay, was begun by Lucius, the firſt Chriſtian King of the Britons, and enlarg'd by Auſtin and his Followers, but deſtroy'd ſeveral times by War and Fire, and rebuilt by the Archbiſhops and Monks, the Pope having allow'd all the Offerings made at Tho. Becket's Shrine towards it. It had 37 Altars before the Reformation. Here are abundance of funeral Monuments of Kings, Princes, Archbiſhops, and other great Perſons. Under the Cathedral the Walloons have been allow'd a Place of Worſhip in their own way, ſince Edw. VI. who granted it by Letters Patents to John Alaſco a Poliſh Nobleman, and a zealous Proteſtant. Archbiſhop Laud deſign'd to have depriv'd them of that Privilege, but was diſappointed by the Wars that follow'd betwixt K. Char. I. and the Parl. and they are ſtill continu'd. Moſt of the Congregation are now French. Eraſmus, who was an Eye-witneſs, ſays, that in his time, Archbp Becket's Shrine and Tomb ſhone with rare and large Jewels, and in the whole Church appear'd a Profuſeneſs above that of Kings. Dugdale in his Monaſticon ſays, that at the Diſſolution of the Monaſtery, the Plate and Jewels belonging to this Tomb fill'd two great Cheſts, each of which requir'd 8 Men to carry them out of the Church. K. Hen. VIII. diſpers'd all this Wealth, and drove out the Monks, inſtead of whom he plac'd a Dean, an Archdeacon, 12 Prebendaries, and 6 Preachers. The foreign Proteſtants, who were allow'd to ſettle here by Q. Eliz. brought along with them into this Kingdom the Art of weaving Silk, which is now arriv'd to that Perfection, that the Silks wove at Canterbury equal, if not exceed any foreign Silks; and being much eſteem'd by our Merchants, great Quantities of 'em are ſent to London. The Walloons and French Refugees here make a numerous Congregation.

17. Thanet-Iſle lies N. E. from Canterbury. 'Tis call'd an Iſland, becauſe it runs out E. into the Sea, and is divided from the reſt of the County on the W. by the R. Wantſom. 'Tis about 9 m. long, as many broad, and encompaſs'd with the Sea on the N. E. & S. This was the firſt Place given to the Saxons by Vortigern the Britiſh King, when he ſent for them to aſſiſt againſt the Scots and Picts; and here it was the Danes began their Ravages on England. It has given Title of E. to the antient Family of the Tuftons ſince 1628. The only Place of note in it is Margat, on the N. ſide of the Promontory, call'd the North-Foreland, where there's a good Bay for Ships, and where Paſſengers from Holland frequently put in, when the Wind does not ſerve to carry them up the Thames. 'Tis chiefly inhabited by Mariners and Fiſhermen, and lies 15 m. N. E. from Canterbury. 2. St. John's, a Member of the Town and Port of Dover, adjoins to it. 3. St. Peter's, another Member of the Town and Port of Dover, lies 2 m. S. E. and has Fairs on Lady-Day, and June 29.

18. Sandwich, one of the Cinque-Ports, 10 m. S. E. from Canterbury, and 62 S. E. from London. It lies pleaſantly near the Mouth of the R. Stower, is well furniſh'd with Gardens and Water, was formerly one of the chief Ports in England, built out of the Ruins of Stonar and Richborow, and encompaſs'd with Walls. 'Tis ſuppos'd to lie near the Portus Rutupenſis or Statio Rutupiæ, where the Romans firſt landed in England, and from whence they uſually ſail'd to the Continent. It has ſuffer'd much by the Wars with the Danes, &c. 'Tis incorporated by the Stile of Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by all the Freemen. Its chief Trade is in Shipping and Malting. Here are 3 Churches, 3 Hoſpitals, a Free-School, a Cuſtom-Houſe and Key, Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and a Fair on Nov. 23. Members belonging to it, are Forditch, Deal, Warmar, Ramſgate, Stonar, Sar, and Brightlingſey. It has given Title of E. to a Branch of the Family of Montague ſince the 19 James I.

19. Deal, 3 m. ½ S. E. of Sandwich. Julius Cæſar is ſuppos'd to have landed here when repuls'd at Dover. Hen. VIII. built the Caſtle here for Defence of the Coaſt, and another at Sandown a little N. of it. 'Tis now become pretty conſiderable by furniſhing Neceſſaries to our Men of War when they lie in the Downs, which are betwixt it and Godwin-Sands, and the uſual Place where our Men of War ride. Warmar-Caſtle lies S. of Deal-Caſtle.

20. Dover, Antonin's Dubris, 6 m. S. W. of Deal, and 64 S. E. from London. 'Tis one of the Cinque-Ports, and lies under a Ridge of Hills ſomewhat like a Semicircle. 'Twas formerly wall'd, and the Paſſage from thence to France being neareſt, viz. but 30 m. there was a Law that none ſhould take Shipping for the Continent but here. 'Tis large, populous, and noted for its Tide-Harbour, and the fine Vault, known by the Name of Mr. Watſon's Cellar. 'Tis the uſual Station of our Packet-Boats for France. 'Tis incorporated by the Stile of Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Freemen. It has Markets on Wedneſd and Saturd. and Fairs on St. Bartholomew's, and St. Martin's Days. Members belonging to it, are Folkſtone, Feverſham, St. John's, St. Peter's, Birchington, Kingſdown, and Ringſwold. The Courts of Chancery, Admiralty, &c. relating to the Cinque-Ports, are kept here, as alſo a Cuſtom-Houſe and Victualling-Office. It has 2 Churches; but the chief Glory is its Caſtle, on a neighbouring Hill, formerly eſteem'd the Key of England. 'Tis ſaid to have been founded by Julius Cæſar, and its Church by K. Lucius. 'Tis the uſual Reſidence of the Conſtable and Ld Warden of the Cinque-Ports. This T. gives Title of D. to the D. of Queensbury in Scotland.

21. Weſtram, 11 m. S. W. of Wrotham, has a Market on Wedneſday.

22. Sevennoke, 5 m. E. of Weſtram, has a Market on Saturd. Fairs on June 29. and Dec. 6. and has an Hoſpital and School for teaching poor Children, and maintaining poor old People, built and endow'd by Sir William Sevennoke Lord Mayor of London, who being a Foundling, and maintain'd by ſome charitable Perſons in this Place, thought fit to reward the Town thus.

23. Maidſtone, 15 m. E. of Sevennoke, and 30 S. E. from London, is the County Town, where the Aſſizes are held. 'Tis an antient Town, was govern'd by a Portreeve till the Time of Edw. VI. who made it a Mayor Town. But Q. Mary depriv'd it of its Privileges, becauſe they adher'd to Sir Thomas Wyat. Q. Eliz. incorporated it again by the Name of the Mayor, Jurats, and Commoners. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 12 Jurats, and 24 Commoners, with other Sub-Officers. The chief Trade is Hops and Thred. Here's a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Feb. 2. May-Day, June 9. and Oct. 6. each holding 2 Days. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The R. Medway is navigable here by Barges. This Town gives Title of Baron to the E. of Winchelſea.

24. Lenham, 9 m. S. E. from Maidſtone, has a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair on May 26.

25. Wye, 10 m. E. of Lenham, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for Barges on the Stower.

26. Elham, 8 m. E. from Wye, has a Market on Mond.

27. Tunbridge, 6 m. S. of Sevennoke, and 28 S. E. from London, meaſur'd m. 29 ½. The Name is from 5 Stone-Bridges over the Streams of the Medway. It had formerly a ſtrong Caſtle; and the Church has the Monuments of ſeveral great Men. It has a Free-School, a Market on Frid. and Fairs on Aſh-Wedneſday, Midſummer-Day, and St. Luke's Day. 'Tis much frequented by a great Concourſe of People, who come to drink the Chalybeate Waters, which are noted for curing many Diſtempers. The Wells are 4 or 5 m. S. of the Town, moſt of 'em in this Pariſh, and others in that of Speldhurſt. A great Number of Houſes for Lodgings, and Shops, are built about 'em, with a fair Chappel for Worſhip.

28. Goudhurſt, 13 m. S. E. of Tunbridge, has a Market on Wedneſd.

29. Cranbrook, 4 m. S. of Goudhurſt, has a Market on Saturd. and had formerly a good Trade in making Cloth.

30. Tenterden, 7 m. E. of Cranbrook, has a Market on Frid. and was formerly noted for making of Cloth.

31. Appledore, 5 m. E. of Tenterden, has a weekly Market, and Barges come up to it. Over-againſt this Town lies Oxney Iſland, form'd by the Branches of the Rother. 'Tis 9 m. round, and abounds with Graſs, which feeds abundance of Oxen.

32. Rumney, 6 m. S. E. of Appledore, and 68 S. E. of London. 'Tis call'd New Rumney, to diſtinguiſh it from the old one that lies a little S. W. of it, and was a large Town with 5 Churches, a Priory, and Hoſpital, but now has only one handſome Church left. New Rumney is one of the Cinque Ports, has a Harbour for Ships, a clean and healthful Situation, upon a high gravelly Hill, near the middle of the Marſh, is compactly built, and well inhabited. The chief Trade of the Inhabitants is by grazing Cattel in the neighbouring Marſh. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty, who with the Freemen elect 2 Memb. of Parl. Here's a Market on Saturd. and a Fair on April 10. The Members of it as a Cinque Port, are Lidd, Old Rumney, Dangemarſh, Oſwardſtone, and Broomhill. Camden ſays, the Marſh is 14 m. long, and 8 broad, has 2 Towns, 19 Pariſhes, and 44200 Acres of Land, which feed Multitudes of Cattel ſent hither from other Parts to fatten. He ſuppoſes it to have been formerly cover'd with the Sea, which retir'd from hence as it gain'd on other Parts of the Coaſt.

33. Lydd, 3 m. S. of Rumney, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour.

34. Hithe, on the Coaſt, 11 m. N. E. of Appledore, and 60 S. E. of London. 'Tis ſuppos'd that this, or Lime near it, is the antient Portus Lemanis. It is one of the Cinque Ports, and has W. Hithe as a Member. 'Twas a Bailiff Town till Q. Eliz. incorporated it by the Name of Mayor, Jurats, and Commonalty, who with the Freemen chuſe the 2 Memb. of Parl. 'Tis remarkable for its Pariſh-Church, and a Pile of dry Bones, 28 Foot long, 8 high, and 8 broad, thought to have been gather'd up in ſome Field of Battel near it. Here's a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on St. Peter's Day, and Nov. 20.

35. Folkſtone, 4 m. N. E. of Hithe, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for ſmall Ships.

XI. GLOCESTERSHIRE,

THAS part of Monmouthſhire and Herefordſhire on the W. part of Warwickſhire, Oxfordſhire, and Barkſhire on the E. part of Worceſterſhire and Warwickſhire on the N. and part of Somerſetſhire and Wiltſhire on the S. 'Tis about 52 m. where longeſt from S. E. to N. W. and 38 where broadeſt E. & W. It contains by computation 800000 Acres, 162350 People, 26764 Houſes, is divided into 30 Hundreds, 280 Pariſhes, has 26 Market-Towns, 1 Caſtle, 2 Foreſts, and 19 Parks. It ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. and lies in the Dioceſs of Gloceſter.

'Tis a pleaſant and fertile Country, and produces all manner of Corn and Fruit. William of Malmsbury ſays, in his time it yielded a hundred-fold, but that muſt be underſtood of ſome Parts near Gloceſter, or other great Market-Towns. He alſo mentions its Wine, not much inferior to the French; which ſome underſtand of its Cyder: or if there were Vineyards then, they are now diſus'd; which Camden aſcribes to the Peoples Sloth, tho 'tis more probable that they found their Orchards turn to better Account. Here are ſtill ſome Places near Tewksbury, &c. which bear the Name of Vineyards. The fruitfulleſt Parts are the Valleys on the Severn, &c. where the Air is very temperate. Coteſwold, or the Hilly Part, that borders on Warwickſhire, Oxfordſhire, and Berkſhire, is not very fertile, and ſo much expos'd to Winds and Cold, that they are ſaid to have 8 Months Winter; but then they feed ſuch Multitudes of Sheep with fine Wool, ſo much valued, that the working it into Cloth enriches the County, it being computed that 50000 Cloths are annually made here, which amount to 500000 l. In the Vale they make great Profit of their Cheeſe, which is reckon'd as good as any in England, and by many preferr'd to Cheſhire, becauſe of its Mildneſs. The Foreſt of Dean, in the moſt weſterly Part, not only abounds with Paſture and Corn, where free from Wood, but yields plenty of the beſt Oaks in England for the Royal Navy: But the Iron Mines, and the Mills for working them, have conſum'd much of the Wood. Here's plenty of Cattel, Game, Fowl, Fiſh, Coal, Quarries of Free-Stone, and, in ſhort, of all Things neceſſary for Subſiſtance and Pleaſure. The Water of the R. Stroud is famous for dying Scarlet. The Elvers, the Briſtol Diamonds, and hot medicinal Wells near Briſtol, are alſo reckon'd to this County. There are alſo medicinal Springs in the Pariſh of Puckle, Siſton, and Standiſh Park. There is a petrifying Spring near Tetbury; and in Badminton Fields are Cylindrical Stones and Bullets, almoſt as big as Cannon-Balls; and on the Hills about Aldely are Stones reſembling Serpentine Stones and Scallops, curiouſly figur'd.

The principal Rivers are,

The Severn, which riſes in Plinlymmon Hills in Montgomeryſhire, and running thro Shropſhire and Worceſterſhire 70 m. enters this County, and runs thro it 40 m. in a direct Line, about 70 including Turnings and Windings, and is navigable 50 m. above this County, as far as Shrewsbury. In ſome Places 'tis 2 or 3 m. broad. 'Tis remarkable for a violent Tide call'd the Hygra, or Boar, which does not come in gradually as in other Rivers, but rolls in with an Head 2, 3, or 4 Foot high carrying every thing before it, and overflowing its Banks. The Tides here are largeſt one Year at the Full Moon, and next at the Change; and one Year the Night-Tides are largeſt, and another the Day-Tides. The Stream being rapid, makes the Waters muddy; ſo that 'tis not very fruitful in Fiſh, yet is pretty well ſtock'd with Salmon, and is famous for Lampreys.

Places of Note are,

1. Cambden, near the N. E. Corner of the County, incorporated in 3 James I. 'Tis govern'd by 2 Bailiffs, 12 Burgeſſes, and a Steward, who have Authority to chuſe 12 inferior Burgeſſes, and Power to try Actions not exceeding 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Here's a Market on Wedneſd. noted for Stockings, and Fairs on St. Andrew's Day, Aſh-Wedneſday, St. George's, and St. James's Days. The Benefit of the 2 firſt belongs to the Town, and of the 2 laſt to the Lord of the Manor. Here's a handſome Church, and the Vicar has 150*l. per Ann.*

2. Moreton Hindmarſh, 4 m. S. E. of Cambden, a ſmall Town, with a weekly Market.

3. Tewksbury, 13 m. S. W. of Cambden, and 79 N. W. of London, a large, antient, and populous Bor. which had its firſt Privileges in the Reign of Edw. II. confirm'd by ſeveral ſucceeding Kings, and laſt by Jam. I. who incorporated them anew. 'Tis govern'd by 24 Burgeſſes, 2 of them are choſen Bailiffs yearly, who with 2 others are the ruling Magiſtrates, and have Juriſdiction within the Bor. excluſive of the Juſtices of Peace for the County. They have ſince Q. Elizabeth's Time ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by all the Freeholders and Freemen, now about 500. Here are Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs Feb. 24. May 3. June 11. Aug. 24. and Sept. 29. beſides the firſt Wedneſday in Sept. for Cheeſe. Here's a good Clothing Trade; and 'tis famous for its Muſtard-Balls. Here's a Free-School, an Hoſpital, and a large noble Church, with the Monuments of ſeveral great Men. It gives Title of Baron to the E. of Eſſex. Ships come hither up the Severn.

4. Winchcomb, 7 m. S. E. of Tewksbury, has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs April 25. and July 17. 'Twas formerly a Bor. and County of it ſelf, and has a large handſome Church.

5. Gloceſter, 11 m. S. W. of Winchcomb, 82 common, and 101 meaſur'd m. N. W. of London. 'Tis an antient fair City, Capital of the County, was a Roman Colony, ſtands on a riſing Ground, with a Deſcent on every ſide, which makes it clean and healthful. The Houſes are beautiful, and 'tis adorn'd with many Towers and Spires. It lies on a Branch of the Severn, where Ships come up to it. K. John made it a Bor. in the Firſt of his Reign. 'Tis govern'd by a High Steward, who is generally a Nobleman, a Mayor, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, out of whom the Mayor is elected, a Town-Clerk, 2 Sheriffs, 26 Common-Council-Men, a Sword-Bearer, and 4 Serjeants at Mace. Here are 11 Pariſhes; but having ſuffer'd much by the Civil Wars, there are only 5 Churches left, beſides the Cathedral. The Markets are on Wedneſd. Frid. and Saturd. Fairs on Mar. 25. June 24. Sept. 29. and Nov. 17. for all ſorts of Cattel and other Commodities, and the latter chiefly for fat Hogs. Here are 12 incorporated Companies for the Management of Trade, which was conſiderable till leſſen'd by the Neighbourhood of Briſtol. Making of Pins is now one of their chief Manufactures. Here's a fair Stone-Bridge over the R. and a Key and Wharf, with a Cuſtom-Houſe, and proper Officers. The Walls were demoliſh'd by K. Char. II. becauſe it held out againſt his Father. The Caſtle is much decay'd: Part of it is leaſed out by the Crown, and the reſt ſerves for a Priſon, one of the beſt in England. The Cathedral is antient, magnificent, of good Workmanſhip, and has the Tombs of Edw. II. and Robert D. of Normandy, Son to the Conqueror. The Whiſpering-Place in this Church was formerly reckon'd a Wonder; but ceaſes now to be ſo, ſince there's the like in the Cupulo of St. Paul's, London, where a Perſon laying his Ear to the Wall on one ſide, may hear diſtinctly what one whiſpers on the other. K. Hen. VIII. erected this Biſhoprick upon ſuppreſſing the Abbey of St. Peter, and placed here a Dean and 6 Prebends. There are 12 Chappels in the Cathedral, with the Arms and Monuments of many great Perſons. There are ſeveral charitable Gifts beſtow'd on this City, for lending Money to Merchants and Tradeſmen that want it, ſome without Intereſt, and ſome with very little. This City has given Title of Duke to many of the Royal Family, the laſt was William, the only Son of Prince George of Denmark and Princeſs Anne, the late Queen.

6. Alney Iſle, in the R. over-againſt this City, ſuppos'd by ſome to be the Place where Edmund Ironſide and Canute the Dane fought a ſingle Combat, Combat, to decide the Fate of the Kingdom; and the Iſſue being dubious, they agreed to divide it. But Dr. Gibſon thinks it to be that call'd Alney betwixt Oversbridge and Moyſemore.

7. Newent, 17 m. N. W. of Gloceſter, on the other ſide the R. has a Market on Frid. and Boats come up the R. to it. Here are Fairs on the Wedneſd. before Eaſter and Whitſuntide, on the Virgin's Nativity, and Sept. 8. Here are divers Alms-Houſes, and a handſome Church with ſeveral Monuments.

8. Dean, alias Michael Dean, 5 m. S. of Newent, has a Market on Mond. and Fairs on Michaelmas-Day and Eaſter-Mond. The Town had formerly a good Trade in Cloth; but making Pins is their chief Buſineſs now. Here's a good Church with a handſome Spire. This Town gives Name to the Foreſt, formerly 20 m. long, and 10 broad, and containing 30000 Acres, but now much leſs. Great Quantities are ſtill incloſ'd to preſerve Timber for the Navy; and in the middle of it there's a large ſtrong Building, call'd the Speech-Houſe, where the K. has a Swainmote Court, to preſerve the Vert and Veniſon. The Judges are the Verderers, choſen by all the Freeholders of the County. In the hilly Parts are many Iron Mines, with Furnaces for melting the Iron; and here the Miners have a Court at the ruinous Caſtle of St. Brewlais, held by a Steward, whom the Conſtable of the Foreſt appoints. Juries of Miners are return'd to judge betwixt Miner and Miner, according to their particular Laws, to prevent incroaching on one another. When the Miners are ſworn, they touch the Bible with a Stick, that they may not defile it with their unclean Hands, and they wear a particular Cap when they give Evidence; and the Caſtle, of which the D. of Beaufort is Conſtable, is a Priſon for the Miners.

9. Newnham, 3 m. S. of Dean, has a Market on Frid. and Fairs on St. Barnabas, and Luke's Days.

10. Colford, 6 m. W. of Newnham, has a handſome Market-Houſe, a Market on Frid. and Fairs on June 9. and Nov. 20.

11. Chiltenham, 8 m. S. E. of Gloceſter, has a conſiderable Trade in Malt, a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on St. James's Day, July 28. and Holy Thurſday. It has a handſome Church with a high Spire, and ſeveral Monuments for Perſons of Note.

12. Stow on the Would, 11 m. E. of Chiltenham, has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on May 1, and Oct. 13. for Hops, Cheeſe, and Sheep, of which 20000 have been ſold at a time. Here's a large Church with ſeveral Monuments and a high Tower.

13. North-Leche, 7 m. S. W. of Stow, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair on St. Peter's Day, and is govern'd by a Bailiff and 2 Conſtables.

14. Painſwick, 11 m. W. of North-Leche, and 4 S. of Gloceſter, has a Market on Tueſd. and Fairs on Whit-Tueſd. and Sept. 8. a large handſome Church with a neat Spire, and ſeveral Monuments.

15. Stanley St. Leonard's, 9 m. S. W. of Painſwick, has a good Church, a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on July 15, and Nov. 6.

16. Stroud, 4 m. E. of Stanley, has a Market on Frid. Fairs on May 1, and Aug. 10. a handſome Church with a high Spire, and ſeveral Monuments. 'Tis famous for dying Scarlet, the Water of the Stroud being noted for that end; and has rich Clothiers, ſome of whom make 1000 Cloths per Ann. Here's a Free-School for poor Children.

17. Berkeley, 7 m. S. W. of Stanley, an antient Bor. tho it ſends no Memb. to Parl. The Mayor and Aldermen are ſworn at the Court-Leet of the Ld Berkeley. Here's a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair on May 3. a handſome large Church, with ſtately Monuments belonging to the Family of Berkeley, as does the ſtrong Caſtle adjoining. The Room here is ſtill to be ſeen where K. Edw. II. was barbarouſly murdered by John Ld Maltravers and Tho. Gournay, to whom the Ld Berkley was commanded to deliver up the Caſtle, becauſe he was well-affected to the King, who was impriſon'd here by the Queen and her Faction. Adam Bp of Hereford perſuaded thoſe Men to the Murder by this ambiguous Sentence without Comma's; Edvardum occidere nolite timere bonum eſt, i. e. Don't fear to kill Edward, 'tis a good thing: which was his true meaning; tho not being pointed, it might be render'd, Don't kill Edward, 'tis good to fear. The Manor is one of the largeſt in England, and has near 30 Pariſhes depending upon it. The Abbeſs of the Nunnery here was formerly Lady of the Manor, till Goodwin E. of Kent got it by a vile Trick, as follows: He had a beautiful Youth to his Nephew, whom he left here on pretence of being taken ſuddenly ill, and inſtructed him to debauch the Abbeſs, and as many of the Nuns as he could, which he ſoon effected by his Beauty and Preſents; and having got the Abbeſs and ſeveral of the Nuns with Child, his Uncle complain'd of the Nuns to the devout K. Edward, as if they had expoſed themſelves to all Comers; and many of them, upon a legal Inquiſition, being found with Child, their Lands were ſeized and given to the Earl: but he did not long enjoy them, for part was ſwallow'd up by an Inundation; his leud Nephew kill'd himſelf by exceſs of Venery, and the Earl's Family was not long after rooted out. This Town gives Title and Sirname to the Family of Berkeley, which is ſcarce to be parallel'd in Nobility of Extraction by any Subject, being deſcended from the Kings of Denmark, the Dukes of Normandy, the Kings of France and England, the Family of Saxony, the Kings of Leinſter in Ireland, and ſome of the chief Grandees in Spain; ſo that they quarter in their Arms the Coats of 20 Noble Families, and have been Barons ever ſince K. Hen. II.

18. Durſley, 5 m. E. of Berkley. 'Tis a Corporation govern'd by a Bailiff and 4 Conſtables. 'Tis noted chiefly for Clothing. It has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on St. Mark's Day, April 25, St. Clement's Day, and Nov. 23. It gives Title of Viſc. to the E. of Berkeley.

19. Minching-Hampton, 8 m. E. of Durſley, has a handſome Church, with ſeveral Monuments, a Market on Tueſd. and Fairs on Oct. 18. and the Mond. after Trinity.

20. Cirenceſter, 8 m. E. of Hampton, and 67 W. from London, on the R. Churn. 'Tis the largeſt and oldeſt Town in the County, was a fortify'd City in the time of the Britons, and an eminent Station of the Romans, as appears by the Ruins of Walls and Streets in the adjoining Meadows, many Roman Coins, chequer'd Pavements, and Inſcriptions in Marble, which are often found upon digging. The Barons gariſon'd the Caſtle here in their Wars againſt K. Hen. III. who demoliſh'd it. Hen. IV. gave the Town a Charter and ſeveral Privileges, becauſe the Bailiff and Townſmen ſlew ſome noble Men who had taken up Arms for K. Richard, and retir'd hither for ſhelter. Q. Eliz. gave them another, by which the Corporation is to conſiſt of a Steward and Bailiff, who return the 2 Memb. to Parl. that are choſe by 6 or 700 Electors, who are all Houſekeepers. Here's a Market on Mond. for Corn, Cattel, and other Proviſion, and another on Frid. for Wool, reckon'd one of the greateſt in England. It has 5 Fairs a Year, viz. 3 for all ſorts of Commodities, and 2 for Cloth, on the Week before Palm-Sund. and that before St. Bartholomew's; and the other 3 are on Eaſter-Tueſd. the Feaſt of Thomas Becket, and St. Simon and Jude. This is a Poſt-Town, and has a Stage-Coach which goes to London. Two of the Roman Conſular-Ways croſs each other here. Some Years ago there were diſcover'd by digging near this Town ſeveral Vaults, and an antient Building under ground, 50 Foot long, 40 broad, and 4 high, ſupported by 100 Brick-Pillars, curiouſly inlaid with Stones of divers Colours of Tiſſeraick-Work, ſuppos'd to have been a Roman-Bath. Here's a large beautiful Church, which has 5 Chappels adjoining to it, and ſeveral Hoſpitals and Alms-houſes.

21. Fairford, 6 m. E. of Cirenceſter, on the R. Coln, over which it has 2 fair Bridges. Here's a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on May 3, July 28, and All-Saints Day. Here's a large handſome Church, whoſe Windows are much admir'd for their painted Glaſs, repreſenting moſt of the chief Stories of the Old and New Teſtament.

22. Lechlade, 2 m. E. of Fairford, where the Lech falls into the Thames. It has a Market on Tueſd.

23. Thornbury, 7 m. S. from Berkeley, has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Aug. 15, Eaſter-Mond. the Mond. before St. Thomas's Day, and Dec. 21. 'Tis govern'd by a Cuſtomary Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and 2 Conſtables; the Aldermen being ſuch as have been Mayors before. It has a large Church in form of a Cathedral, and 4 Alms-houſes.

24. Wotton-under-edge, 7 m. E. of Thornbury, has a Market on Frid. and a Fair on Sept. 14. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor choſen at the Court-Leet of the E. of Berkeley. Here's a handſome Church, with ſome ſtately Monuments belonging to that Family, &c. a Free-School, an Alms-houſe, and ſeveral large Charities given by Perſons born here for the Uſe of the Poor.

25. Tetbury, 6 m. E. of Wotton, is very antient, was formerly wall'd, and has a Market on Wedneſ. well frequented, and a large Market-houſe for Yarn, Cheeſe, Bacon, and other Commodities. 'Tis handſomly built, and has Fairs on Aſh-Wedneſd. and July 22. The Situation is pleaſant, and 'tis govern'd by a Bailiff choſe annually. It has a large handſome Church, with Monuments of ſeveral Perſons of Note; a Free-School, and an Alms-houſe. There's a high long Bridge over the Avon, half of which is in Wiltſhire; and near the Town there is a petrifying Spring.

26. Wickware, 4 m. S. E. of Thornbury, has a Market on Mond. and Fairs on Lady-Day and July 2. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, has a handſome Stone-Bridge, a large Church, a Free-School, built and endow'd by Alex. Hoſea, a poor Boy, who ran away from his Parents here, but grew afterwards very wealthy. At Badmington, about 5 m. E. the D. of Beaufort has one of the fineſt Seats in England.

27. Chipping-Sodbury, 3 m. S. of Wickware, an antient Bor. and Corporat. conſiſting of a Mayor, 6 Aldermen, and 12 Burgeſſes. 'Tis large, a great Thorow-fare, has many good Inns, a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Aſcenſion-Day and Jan. 24. Here is a handſome Church, and a Free-School, with Gifts for putting out Apprentices and other Charitable Uſes. The Bailiffs and Burghers have Power to diſtribute 88 Cow-Paſtures to as many of the Inhabitants, and 80 Acres of Meadow, for their own Lives and thoſe of their Widows, and as they fall, to grant them again in like manner.

28. Marſhfield, 7 m. S. of Sodbury, has a Market on Tueſd. a Fair Oct. 13. a conſiderable Trade in Malt, and is famous for Cakes. It has a large Church and an Alms-houſe.

XII. OXFORDSHIRE,

HAS Gloceſterſhire on the W. Buckinghamſhire and part of Berkſhire on the E. Berkſhire on the S. and Warwickſhire and Northamptonſhire on the N. The Form is very irregular, the S. E. part running in a narrow Slip betwixt Berkſhire and Buckinghamſhire. The greateſt Length S. E. and N. W. is 41 m. and the greateſt Breadth E. and W. about 24. It lies in the Dioceſe of Oxford, is reckon'd to contain 534000 Acres, 19000 Houſes, 280 Pariſh-Churches, 14 Hundreds, 13 Market-Towns, and ſends 9 Memb. to Parl. This County is rich and fertile, and the Air healthful, the lower Parts have pleaſant Fields and Meadows, and it affords plenty of Graſs, Cattel, Corn, and Fruit, and Game for Hunting and Hawking; and its Rivers, the Iſis, Tame, Charwell, Evenlode, and Windruſh, abound with Fiſh; and Dr. Plott ſays, it has 60 other leſſer Rivers beſides Brooks. There is little Wood but in the hilly Parts, ſo that Fuel is dear.

Places of Note are,

1. Banbury, at the N. Corner of the Shire, 17 m. N. W. of Oxford, and 53 N. W. from London, on the R. Charwell, in a fertile Soil. 'Tis an antient Bor. and was incorporated a-new by his preſent Majeſty K. George, by the Stile of Mayor, Aldermen, and Capital Burgeſſes. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High Steward, Recorder, 6 Capital Burgeſſes, and 30 Aſſiſtants. It ſends one Memb. to Parl. elected by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes only. Here is a large beautiful Church, a Charity-School, and a Work-houſe for the poor, a Market on Thurſd. well frequented, and 9 Fairs, viz. Thurſd. after Twelfth-tide, the firſt Thurſd. in Lent, on Lady-Day, Holy-Thurſd. Corpus Chriſti, Aug. 1. the firſt Thurſd. after Michaelmas, St. Luke, and the Thurſd. after St. Nicholas. This Town is noted for good Cakes and Ale, and Cheeſe.

2. Deddington, 4 m. S. of Banbury, has a Market on Saturd.

3. Chip-

3. Chippingnorton, 9 m. S.W. of Deddington, has a Market on Wedneſd.

4. New-Woodſtock, 8 m. S. E. of Chippingnorton, and 51 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, 4 Aldermen, 2 Chamberlains, and 16 Common-Council-men; and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. who are choſe by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Freemen. Here's a Market on Tueſd. for Corn and other Proviſions, and Fairs on Lady-Day, Mary-Magdalen's, St. Matthew's-Day, noted for Cheeſe, and Dec. 6. for all ſorts of Cattel and other Commodities. Here was a magnificent Palace built by K. Hen. I. and a Labyrinth built by K. Hen. II. to preſerve his Concubine Roſamund Clifford from the Jealouſy of his Queen. The famous Geoffry Chaucer was born here. 'Tis now famous on account of the ſtately Palace of the D. of Marlborough at Blenheim, built at the Charge of the Publick, as a Monument of the great Victory obtain'd by his Grace over the French and Bavarians at Blenheim in Germany; and is perhaps one of the nobleſt Seats belonging to any Subject in Europe.

5. Biceſter, 6 m. N. E. of Woodſtock, has a Market on Frid.

6. Witney, 5 m. S. W. of Woodſtock, has a Market on Thurſd. and N. W. of it lies Whichwood-Foreſt, antiently larger than now, much of it being diſ-foreſted by Rich. III. and E. from hence lies a Circle of Stones call'd Rolle-Rich; but the Hiſtory of 'em is not known.

7. Burford, 5 m. S. W. of Witney, has a Market on Saturd.

8. Bampton, 5 m. S. E. of Burford, has a Market on Wedneſd. and lies on a River navigable by Boats.

9. Oxford, 10 m. S. E. from Bampton, and 47 N. W. of London. 'Tis very antient, and was a Seat of the Muſes in the Britiſh times. It lies pleaſantly at the Conflux of the Charwell and Iſis; and their antient Charters granted them the ſame Laws and Cuſtoms with the Citizens of London, and Liberty of being Toll-free all over England. It is incorporated by the Name of the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty; and the Corporation conſiſts of the Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, 4 Aldermen, 8 Aſſiſtants, 2 Bailiffs, a Town-Clerk, 2 Chamberlains, all thoſe that have born the Office of Bailiff and Chamberlain, and 24 Common-Council-men. The Mayor for the time being ſerves at the Coronation in the Buttery, and has for his Fee a large gilt Bowl and Cover. Here are Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. for all ſorts of Corn and Proviſion, and 4 annual Fairs, but not much frequented. This City is the See of a Biſhop, erected by Hen. VIII. The Chapter conſiſts of a Dean and 8 Prebendaries. It has 13 Pariſh-Churches beſides the Cathedral, is one of the largeſt Cities in England, and ſubject to the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor of the Univerſity in all Affairs of Moment, even relating to the Town; and the Vice-Chancellor annually exhibits an Oath to the Mayor and principal Citizens, and the Sheriff of the County, to maintain the Privileges of the Univerſity; and on the 10th of Sept. the Mayor and 62 of the chief Citizens pay a Penny each ſolemnly at St. Mary's Church, in lieu of a great Fine formerly impos'd upon them for an Outrage againſt the Students in Edw. III's. time. This City ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and the River is navigable by Barges. It gave Title of E. to the Family of Vere for 500 Years. Aubrey de Vere, the 20th and laſt E. of that Family, dying without Iſſue-Male, the Title, which lay dormant ſome time, was conferr'd by the late Q. Anne upon Robert Harley, the chief of an antient Family of that Name, deſcended from the Family of the Veres, which was of great Note in England before the Conqueſt.

The Univerſity of Oxford is one of the eldeſt and moſt famous in Europe; and as that of Paris was call'd the firſt, this was call'd the ſecond School of the Church; and for ſtately Colleges, rich Endowments, Numbers of learned Men, Students, and well-furniſh'd Libraries, 'tis ſcarce to be equal'd: But we can't inſiſt on Particulars. Here are 18 endow'd Colleges; the 1ſt of 'em Univerſity-College, founded by the Saxon K. Alfred, in 872. 2. Baliol, by John Baliol, Father to John K. of Scots, in 1262. 3. Merton, by Walter de Merton, Ld Chancellor of England and Bp of Rocheſter, in 1274. 4. Exeter, by Walter Stapleton Bp of Exeter, in 1316. 5. Oriel, by K. Edw. II. in 1337. 6. Queen's, by Robert Eaglesfield B. D. in 1340. 7. New, by William of Wickham, Bp of Wincheſter and Ld Chancellor of England, in 1375. 8. Lincoln, by Rich. Fleming, Bp of Lincoln, in 1420. 9. All-Souls, by Hen. Chichely, Archbp of Canterbury, in 1437. 10. Magdalen, by Will. of Wainfleet, Bp of Wincheſter and Ld High Chancellor. 11. Brazen-Noſe, by Will. Smith, Bp of Lincoln, and Rich. Sutton Eſq; in 1515. 12. Corpus Chriſti, by Rich. Fox, Bp of Wincheſter and Ld Privy-Seal, in 1516. 13. Chriſt-Church, by K. Hen. VIII. in 1540. 14. Trinity, by Sir Tho. Pope, in 1555. 15. St. John's, by Sir Tho. White, Merchant of London, in 1557. 16. Jeſus, by Q. Eliz. in 1572. 17. Wadham, by Nich. Wadham Eſq; in 1613. 18. Pembroke, by Tho. Teiſdale Eſq; and Rich. Whitwick B. D. in 1620. The Halls are 7. 1. St. Edmund's, belonging to Queen's College. 2. St. Alban's, to Merton. 3. Hart, to Exeter. 4. St. Mary, to Oriel. 5. New-Inn, to New-College. 6. Magdalen, to Magdalen. 7. Gloceſter, to St. John's.

The Students in the Colleges are liberally maintain'd out of the Revenues belonging to them. Thoſe in the Halls live in Society at their own Charge, as the Lawyers do at the Inns of Court, except a few that have Exhibitions or Penſions. Thoſe maintain'd by the Revenues of the Colleges are about 1000, and thoſe who live upon their own Charge about 2000, beſides Servants that belong to the Colleges and Halls, which have each their Statutes and Rules for Government under their reſpective Heads, with Fellows and Tutors. Here are 4 Terms in the Year for publick Exerciſes, Lectures, and Diſputations, and ſet Days and Hours, when the Profeſſors in every Faculty read their Lectures; and in ſome of the Colleges are publick Lectures for all Comers, with large Salaries for the Readers. The Magiſtrates are, 1. A Chancellor, uſually one of the Nobility, choſen by the Students in Convocation, and to continue for Life, unleſs guilty of Crimes againſt the State. 2. A High-Steward, nam'd by the Chancellor, and approv'd by the Univerſity; he is alſo for Life, is to aſſiſt the Chancellor, &c. in matters of Government, and to hear and determine Capital Cauſes according to the Laws of the Land, and to give his Judgment as to the Privileges of the Univerſity. 3. A Vice-Chancellor, who is always in Orders, and the Head of ſome College; he exerciſes the Chancellor's Power, governs the Univerſity according to her Statutes, keeps the Officers and Students to their Duty, ſees that Courts be duly call'd for determining Law-Suits, &c. and chuſes 4 Provice-Chancellors out of the Heads of Colleges to officiate in his abſence. 4. Two Proctors, who are Maſters of Arts, choſen annually by turns out of the ſeveral Colleges, to keep the Peace, puniſh diſorderly Perſons, over-ſee Weights and Meaſures, order Scholaſtick Exerciſes, and the taking of Degrees. 5. A publick Orator, who writes Letters by Order of Convocation, and harangues Princes, or other great Men who viſit the Univerſity. 6. A Keeper of the Archives, who takes care of the Charters and Records of the Univerſity's Privileges. 6. A Regiſter, who records all that paſſes in Convocation, &c. 7. Three Squire-Beadles, with Silver-Maces gilt and wrought, and 3 Yeoman-Beadles with plain Silver-Maces; they attend the Vice-Chancellor in publick, and at his Command ſeize and impriſon Delinquents, publiſh the calling of Courts of Convocation, and conduct Preachers to Church and Lecturers to the Schools. 8. A Verger, who on ſolemn Occaſions walks with the Beadles before the Vice-Chancellor with a ſilver Rod in his Hand.

Here's a ſtately Theatre, of curious Architecture, for ſcholaſtick Exerciſes, with a large Printing-Houſe under it. Adjoining to it is the Muſæum, well furniſh'd with Curioſities of Art and Nature, and Roman Antiquities. Here's alſo a Laboratory and Library, for Chymiſtry, and a large Phyſick-Garden. For other Particulars we refer to Camden and his Annotators.

10. Thame, 10 m. S. E. of Oxon, has a Market on Tueſd. and Barges come up to the Town, which is antient, and pleaſantly ſituated.

11. Watlington, 6 m. S. of Thame, has a Market on Saturd. and is a very antient Town.

12. Henly, 8 m. S. of Watlington. It lies pleaſantly on the ſide of the Thames, by which Barges come up to it, and has a Market on Thurſd.

XIII. BUCKINGHAMSHIRE,

HAS Oxfordſhire on the W. Northamptonſhire on the N. Berkſhire on the S. and Bedfordſhire, Hertfordſhire, and Middleſex on the E. 'Tis 39 m. long, and 18 in Breadth. It contains 185 Pariſhes, 7 Boroughs, 8 Hundreds, 11 Market-Towns, 15 Parks, 441000 Acres, 18390 Houſes, 111394 Souls, and ſends 14 Memb. to Parl. Its chief Rs. are, the Colne in the E. the Wickham and Amerſham on the S. E. the Thames on the S. and the Iſis and Ouſe on the N. The Air is generally good, eſpecially on the Chiltern Hills. 'Tis famous for excellent Corn and Cattel; and the biggeſt and beſt Sheep in England, whoſe Fleeces are very fine, are bred in the Vale of Ailesbury, where 'tis common to give 10 l. or more, for a Ram to breed. The Soil of the Vale, as well as of the County, is generally Marle or Chalk; ſo that 'tis dirty, but not ſo unhealthy as other low Parts of England. It abounds with good Graſs and phyſical Plants, perhaps more than any other County. The Lands on and about the Chiltern Hills are exceeding ſtony, yet they yield good Crops of Corn. 'Tis recorded, to the Honour of this County, that tho 'tis one of the leaſt in England, it had more Martyrs and Confeſſors for the Proteſtant Religion in the Reign of Hen. VIII. and Q. Mary, than all England beſides. Its chief Manufactures are Paper and Bone-lace; but ſuch is the Improvement of Paſture here, that the Inhabitants generally follow Grazing. The County is in the Dioceſe of Lincoln, is very populous, and divided into 8 Deaneries. It gives Title to John Sheffield D. of Buckinghamſhire and Normanby.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Oulney, on the W. ſide of the R. Ouſe, 7 m. S. E. from Northampton. 'Tis a ſmall Town, noted for weaving of Bone-lace, has a Market on Mond. and Fairs on March 25. and June 20.

2. Newport-Pagnel, 3 m. S. of Oulney, ſtands on the S. ſide of the R. Ouſe, over which it has 2 Bridges. 'Tis a large populous Town, and a ſort of Staple for Bone-lace, of which more is thought to be made here, than in any Town in England. It gives Title of Baron to the E. of Angleſea. It has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on April 11. June 11. and Nov. 6.

3. Stony Stratford, 5 m. S. of Newport-Pagnel, is a large well frequented Town, in the Cheſhire and Iriſh Road, and has many good Inns, and 2 Pariſh-Churches. The Buildings are of Freeſtone, which is dug up near it; and it has a Stone Bridge over the R. Ouſe. K. Edw. I. erected a Croſs in the midſt of it, in Memory of his Q. Eleanor, when ſhe was brought up this Way out of Lincolnſhire; as he did in all other Towns where the Corps reſted. It has a Market on Frid. and a Fair on July 21.

4. Buckingham, the Shire-Town, 5 m. S. W. of Stony Stratford, and 44 N. W. from London. It has 3 Stone Bridges over the R. Ouſe, which is commodious for Mills, and almoſt ſurrounds it. It ſtands in a low, but fruitful Soil. The Buildings are old; and there are the Ruins of a Caſtle, which was built on a great Mount in the middle of the Town, and divides it into 2 Parts. Here's a Town-Hall; and the Chappel founded by Becket, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, is now a Free-School. The County Goal and Court are kept here, and ſometimes the Aſſizes. 'Tis govern'd by a Bailiff and 12 Burgeſſes, who alone chuſe the 2 Memb. of Parl. Here is a Market on Saturd. and Fairs the Mond. ſevennight after Twelfth-Day, St. Mark's Day, Thurſd. in Whitſun-Week, St. Peter's Day, St. Bartholomew's, St. Matthew's, St. Simon and Jude's, and St. Matthias's.

5. Winſlow, 7 m. S. E. of Buckingham, is a ſmall Town, ſurrounded with Woods, has a Market on Thurſd, and a Fair on Aug. 10.

6. Ailesbury, 6 m. S. of Winſlow, and 33 N. W. from London, at the E. end of the Vale, near the R. Thame, is the largeſt and beſt Town in the County. It was a Royal Manor, which William the Norman parcelled out to his Favourites by this odd Tenure; That whenever he came this Way, they ſhould find Litter or Straw for his Bed and Chambers, provide him 3 Eels in Winter, and 3 Green Geeſe in Summer, beſides Herbs for his Chamber. The Ld Chief Juſtice Baldwin adorn'd this Town with many publick Edifices, and rais'd a fine Cauſey for 3 m. where the Roads were bad. Here are ſeveral fine Streets, a large beautiful Church, which is a Prebend of Lincoln, a hand-handsome Market-House in a sort of Square, and a convenient Town-House for the Assizes and Sessions, which are for the most part kept here. It stands on a Hill, and is in short, compact, neat, and populous, but the Country about it low and dirty. Here's a plentiful Market on Saturd. for all sorts of Provision. The chief Officer here is the Constable, who is put in by the Lord of the Manor, or chosen by the Inhabitants, and confirm'd by him. It was incorporated by Q. Mary. The Memb. of Parl. are elected by the Inhabitants paying Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Constable. It gives Title of E. to Thomas Bruce, and has Fairs on March 20, Palm-Saturd. June 3, and Holy-Rood-Day. The adjacent Country is so fruitful, that one Field call'd Bury-field, in the Manor of Quarendon, is let at 800 l. a Year. Winchenden, 3 m. W. of Ailesbury, is a noble Seat, with fine Gardens and the best Orangery perhaps in England, belonging to the D. of Wharton; and Hamden 6 m. S. of Ailesbury, is the Seat of that most antient and honourable Family of the Hamdens.

7. Ivingo, 6 m. E. of Ailesbury, is a small Town among Woods, with a Market on Frid. and a Fair on April 25.

8. Wendover, 3 m. S. E. from Ailesbury, and 30 N. W. from London, at the entrance of the Vale of Ailesbury, with pleasant Hills on each side. The Family of Hamden are Lords of the Manor. It has a Market on Thursd. sends 2 Memb. to Parl. chosen by the Inhabitants paying Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Constables. Its Fairs are May 1, and Sept. 29. Here's a Charity-School for 20 Boys, maintain'd by Sir Roger Hill.

9. Risborough, 3 m. S. W. of Wendover, stands upon the Hills, and has a Market on Saturdays.

10. Chesham, 6 m. E. of Risborough, has a Market on Wednesd. and belongs to the Ld Cheney.

11. Agmondesham, or Amersham, 2 m. S. W. from Chesham, and 24 N. W. from London, lies in a Vale with woody Hills on each side. It has several good Buildings, a handsome Town-Hall, a Market on Tuesd. Fairs on Whit-Mond. and Sept. 8. and, tho no Corporation, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. chose by the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Constables. Here's a Free-School, and a noble Seat and fine Gardens belonging to the Family of Drake.

12. Chipping-Wycomb, 5 m. W. of Amersham, and 27 N. W. from London. It lies in a Vale near a little River, with pleasant woody Hills on each side. 'Tis pretty populous, and well built, has good Inns, a large handsome Church, a Free-School and an Alms-House, a Corn-Market on Frid. and Fairs the Saturd. before Lent, June 24, Sept. 14, and St. Simon and Jude. 'Twas incorporated soon after the Conquest, and last by K. Char. II. by the Stile of Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses; and has a Mayor, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, and 2 Bailiffs, the Majority of which make a Council, and elect as many Burgesses as they please within and without the Bor. by whom the 2 Memb. of Parl. are elected. Sometimes the Assizes are kept here.

13. Woburn, 2 m. S. E. from Chipping-Wycomb, is a pleasant Village on the same Riv. with a noble Seat and fine Gardens, Trout Ponds, and large handsome Stables, built by the late Philip Ld Wharton, and reckon'd one of the pleasantest Seats in England. Clifton, 2 m. S. E. of Woburn, is a sumptuous Seat begun by the late D. of Buckingham, and now belongs to the E. of Orkney.

14. Great Marlow, 3 m. S. of Wycomb, and 28 N. W. from London. 'Tis a pretty large Town, pleasantly situate on the Banks of the Thames, over which it has a Bridge, and is adorn'd with a handsome Church and Town-Hall. It has a Market on Saturd. and a very great Fair which begins on St. Luke's Day, and continues several Days. It has sent Burgesses to Parl. since 1 Edw. II. Here's a School for 20 Boys to be taught and cloth'd, and maintain'd by the Family of the Borlaces.

15. Beaconfield, 8 m. N. E. of Marlow, on a high Hill, has a Market on Thursd. and several large Inns, being a great Thorow-fare betwixt London, Oxford, &c.

16. Colnbrook, on the R. Colu, 4 m. N. E. from Windsor, has a Market on Tuesd. and several large Inns.

17. Eaton, over against Windsor, with a Bridge betwixt them, noted for a beautiful College founded by Hen. VI. with a Provost, 7 Fellows, 2 Schoolmasters, 2 Conducts, an Organist, 7 Clerks, 70 King's Scholars, 10 Choristers, a Register, 12 Servants, and 25 decrepid Men, who have all a good Maintenance and Accommodations. Here's a large Hall, a Chappel, Library and School-House. The Scholars are to be made fit for the Universities, and by Election sent to King's-College in Cambridge; where they are provided for by Scholarships and Fellowships in their Turns. The Masters have 7 Assistants, because the Scholars are numerous, many of the Nobility and Gentry sending their Sons hither for Grammar-Learning.

XIV. BEDFORDSHIRE,

HAS Buckinghamshire and part of Northamptonshire on the W. part of Cambridgeshire and Hertfordshire on the E. Huntingtonshire on the N. and part of Hertfordshire on the S. The greatest Length N. and S. is about 27 m. and the greatest Breadth E. and W. 17. It is in the Dioceses of Lincoln, contains about 260000 Acres, 12179 Houses, 9 Hundreds, 116 Parishes, 10 Market-Towns, and sends 4 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis a fruitful Country, well stor'd with Corn and Cattel, especially in the N. parts upon the R. Ouse. The Air is temperate. 'Tis in general a Champain Country, intermix'd with Pasturage and Woods that abound with Deer and other Game. The S. parts are the most barren, and the chief Grain there is Barley, that makes excellent Malt. This Country is also noted for producing Woad for Dyers, the best of which yields 18 l. a Tun. In the Philosoph. Transact. Vol. 28. p. 273. there is an account given by Dr. Slare, that his Grandfather liv'd here, and at the 85th Year of his Age had a new set of Teeth, and his Hair chang'd from white to a dark Colour: He ascribes this to his frequent use of Sugar; so that he continu'd in good Health and Strength till he was 100 Years, and then dy'd of a Plethory for want of bleeding.

Places of Note are,

1. Bedford, the County-Town, 40 m. N. W. from London. 'Tis antient, divided into 2 Parts by the R. Ouse, join'd by a fair Stone-Bridge, with 2 Gates. The Magistrates are a Mayor, Recorder, 2 Bailiffs, 2 Chamberlains, and a Town-Clerk. The S. side has a Market on Tuesd. for Cattel, and the N. side one on Saturd. for Corn, &c. Here are Fairs on March 4, May 2, June 24, Aug. 1, Sept. 21, Nov. 4, & 8, and the first Tuesd. in Lent. Here are 5 Parish-Churches, and the Ouse being navigable, enriches the Town. There are several Hospitals and a Free-School, and the Assizes are always kept in this T. It has given Title of E. and D. to several Families, and gives now Title of D. to that of the Russels, who have been Lords since the 30th of Hen. VIII. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Potton, 7 m. E. of Bedford, a small T. with a Market on Saturd.

3. Bigleswade, 2 m. S. of Potton, on the R. Ives (with a Bridge over it) navigable by Boats, has a Market on Tuesd. and commodious Inns.

4. Ampthill, 6 m. S. W. of Bigleswade, pleasantly situate betwixt 2 Hills, had formerly a Royal Seat in a spacious Park at the E. end, and belongs now to the E. of Ailesbury, to whom it gives Title of Visc. Here is a Market on Thursd. and Fairs on April 23, Good-Frid. Nov. 29, St. Anne's and Corpus Christi Days. Here is also a Free-School and an Hospital.

5. Shelford, 3 m. S. W. of Bigleswade, has a Market on Frid. and a Fair on July 7.

6. Woburn, 8 m. S. W. of Shelford, has a Market on Frid. chiefly for Butter and Cheese, and Fairs on March 12, & July 2. Here is a Free-School and a Charity-School. It is chiefly noted for a Palace belonging to the D. of Bedford. Near this Place there is plenty of Fullers Earth, and another sort which turns Wood into Stone.

7. Leighton, 4 m. S. W. of Woburn, has a Market on Tuesd. for Cattel, and a Fair on Whit-Tuesd. noted for Coach and Cart-Horses.

8. Luton, 7 m. E. of Leighton, a small Town pleasantly situate, and has a great Market on Mond. noted for Barley, a large Market-House and a handsome Church.

9. Dunstable, 3 m. S. W. of Luton. 'Tis populous, consists of 4 Streets, has commodious Inns, and 4 large Ponds which are never dry, tho supply'd only with Rain-Water. The Inhabitants have dug for Springs, but could find none at 24 fathom deep. In the middle of the Town there is a Pillar adorn'd with Statues, and the Arms of England, Castile, and Ponthieu, built by Edw. I. in memory of his Q. Eleanor who dy'd here. The Market is on Wednesd. and here are Fairs on May 11, Aug. 1, and Ash-Wednesd. The Town is remarkable for a Woman that had 19 Children at 5 Births. Dr. Hakewill says, it appears from an Epitaph in the Church, that she had at 3 several Births 3 Children each, and 5 each at two others. 'Tis also noted for the Martyrdom of several of those call'd Lollards, in the Reigns of Hen. V. & VII.

XV. HERTFORDSHIRE,

HAS part of Bedfordshire and Bucks on the W. Essex on the E. Cambridgeshire on the N. and Middlesex on the S. 'Tis about 24 m. where broadest S. & N. and 30 where longest E. & W. but much indented by the neighbouring Counties. It lies in the Dioceses of London and Lincoln, is said to contain 451000 Acres, 16569 Houses, and above 95000 People. 'Tis divided into 8 Hundreds, 120 Parishes, has 18 Market-Towns, and sends 6 Memb. to Parl. The Air is temperate and healthful, and the Soil fruitful. It abounds with Corn, Cattel, Wood, Grass, and every thing that contributes to Profit or Pleasure. It yields the best Wheat and Barley, which are valued at London beyond those of other Counties. The Goodness of the Air occasion'd several of our Princes to build Palaces here, and 'tis much recommended by Physicians. 'Tis water'd by many pleasant Rivers and Brooks, which advance its Trade and Fertility, and supply the Inhabitants with variety of good Fish. Their chief R. is the Lea, which is navigable by Barges from Hertford to the Thames, into which it falls near Bow. The new R. for supply of London comes also from this County. It was begun by Sir Hugh Middleton a Goldsmith, who was ruin'd by the Undertaking, and compleated by the Mayor and Commonalty of London, who brought it from Amwell Springs to that call'd the New River-Head at Islington, from whence 'tis convey'd by Pipes to most of the Houses in the upper Part of London and Westminster, and brings in a great Revenue. Here are also medicinal Springs near Barnet, good against Hypocondriacal Distempers, Cholicks, tough Phlegm, and all sharp and hot Humours, and work chiefly by Siege. There are others at Watton, much of the same nature with those at Tunbridge, but thought to be stronger; they create Appetite, expel Gravel, sweeten the Blood, open Obstructions of the Spleen and Hypocondria, and are good against the Green-Sickness and Scurvy, and in most other Cases where Chalybeate Waters are us'd: and at Stortford there is another Spring which is good for the Eyes. Here are also some petrifying Springs which leave a stony Crust upon any thing laid in them.

Places of Note are,

1. Royston, 9 m. S. E. of Bigleswade in Bedfordshire, and 33 N. W. of London. It abounds with good Inns, has a great Market on Wednesd. for Corn, and Fairs on Ash-Wednesd. Whit-Wednesd. and July 7. It has a handsome Church, with several fine Monuments. The Rectory is of great Value, and usually conferr'd on a Person of Note, who is Lord of a Manor; and the Patronage is in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

2. Barkway, 3 m. S. E. of Royston, has a Market on Frid. and a handsome Church with several Monuments.

3. Baldock, 9 m. W. of Barkway, has a Market on Thursd. chiefly for for Corn and Malt, and Fairs Feb. 24, and July 23. Here is a large Church, and Alms-Houſes well endow'd.

4. Hitchin, 4 m. S. W. of Baldock, has a Market on Tueſd. Toll-free, for Corn and Malt, and Fairs on Eaſter-Tueſd. Whit-Tueſd, and Oct. 13. for Corn, Cattel, &c. 'Tis reckon'd the 2d Town of the County for number of Houſes and People, is divided into 3 Wards, has a fair Church, a Free-School, and ſeveral Alms-Houſes well endow'd.

5. Buntingford, 10 m. N. E. of Hitchin, is a ſmall Town with a Market on Mond. and Saturd. and Fairs on St. Peter's and St. Paul's Days, and Nov. 30, which hold 2 Days each. Here is a Free-School well endow'd, and 4 Scholarſhips belonging to it in Chriſt-College in Cambridge.

6. Stevenage, 7 m. S. W. of Buntingford, has a Market on Fridays, and Fairs on Aſcenſion-Day, St. Swithin's Day, and the Friday before Palm-Sund. Here's a handſome Church with a large Spire cover'd with Lead. The Manor belongs to the See of London. Here's a Free-School and an Hoſpital, with ſeveral Funds for Charity to the Poor.

7. Standon, 9 m. E. of Stevenage, a ſmall Town with a Market on Frid. and a Fair on Aug. 26 & 27. Here's alſo a handſome Church, and ſeveral Endowments for a School and the Poor.

8. Biſhops-Stortford, 13 m. S. E. of Stevenage, is a great Thorow-fare to Cambridge, New-Market, and St. Edmund's-Bury, has many good Inns, a Market on Thurſd. well frequented, and Fairs on Michaelmas, Aſcenſion, Corpus Chriſti, and May 27. It is noted for a flouriſhing School. Here's a handſome Church, and a high Spire cover'd with Lead. The Manor of Patmer, at the N. end of the Town, belongs to the See of London, and the Biſhop has his Courts Leet and Baron here.

9. Puckeridge, 5 m. W. of Biſhops-Stortford, has a weekly Market and an annual Fair.

10. Ware, 7 m. S. W. of Stortford, lies in a Valley on the R. Lea, by which Barges come to it, has a fair Street near a m. long, with ſeveral back Streets and Lanes, and many Inns, one of them remarkable for a great Bed, 12 Foot ſquare, which draws many Travellers to view it. Here's a handſome Church, and a Gallery for the Children that the Governors of Chriſt's Hoſpital in London put out to nurſe here. There's alſo a Free-School, and ſeveral Alms-Houſes well endow'd. Here's a Market on Tueſd. well frequented, and a Fair on Lady-Day.

11. Hertford, 2 m. W. of Ware, and 20 N. of London, lies on the R. Lea, by which it ſends weekly 5000 Quarters of Malt to London. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, 9 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, a Chamberlain, 16 Aſſiſtants, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. The Market is on Saturd. chiefly for Wheat and Wool, and the Fairs are the Saturd. fortnight before Eaſter, and the Mond. following, for all ſorts of Cattel, on St. Simon and St. Jude, the like, and June 24. chiefly for Horſes. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. who ſince the 15 Char. II. are choſen by all the Inhabitants that pay to the Church and Poor. Q. Eliz. ſometimes reſided in the Caſtle, and very much favour'd the T. ſo that the Terms were held here during the Plague then at London. Here are 2 handſome Churches with Monuments for Perſons of Note, in one of them a neat Gallery for Nurſe-Children put out by Chriſt's Church Hoſpital in London, who have erected a fair Houſe for them. Here's a Free-School, and ſeveral Funds for the Poor. This Town has given Title to many noble Families, and now gives that of E. to the D. of Somerſet's eldeſt Son.

12. Tring, 4 m. N. E. of Wendover in Buckinghamſhire, a very antient but ſmall Town with a Market on Frid. 2 Fairs per Ann. and a handſome Church, with ſeveral Monuments for Perſons of Note.

13. Berkhamſtead, 4 m. S. E. of Tring, an antient Town. The Mercian Kings reſided here in the time of the Heptarchy. 'Tis alſo remarkable for William the Norman being oblig'd to ſwear here to the Nobility, that he would preſerve the Laws of England approved by his Predeceſſors. The Manor and Honour of this Town is very extenſive, 53 adjoining Towns in this and the Counties of Bucks and Northampton, being oblig'd to pay Homage, and chuſe Conſtables here. The Market is on Mond. and they have Fairs on Shrove-Tueſd. Whit-Mond. and St. James's Day. 'Twas incorporated by K. James I. but growing poor, they have let their Government fall. In the Church there are Monuments of many Perſons of Note. Here's a Free-School well endow'd, an Alms-Houſe, and ſeveral Funds for the Poor.

14. Hemſted, 4 m. further E. has a great Market on Thurſd. for Wheat, and a Fair on Holy-Croſs Day. 'Tis govern'd by a Bailiff, and has a handſome Church, with a tall Spire.

15. Saybridgworth, 6 m. E. of Ware, has a Market on Wedneſdays, and Fairs Apr. 23, & Oct. 9. Here's a handſome Church, with Monuments for many People of Note.

16. Hodſdon, 4 m. S. of Ware, is a great Thorow-fare, has a Market on Thurſd. for Corn of all ſorts, and a Fair on St. Peter's Day.

17. Hatfield, 8 m. W. of Hodſdon, has a Market on Thurſd. 'Tis chiefly noted for a noble antient Palace belonging to the Biſhop of Ely, till bought by Q. Eliz. as antiently belonging to the Crown; but K. Jam. I. exchang'd it with the Earl of Salisbury's Anceſtors for Theobalds in this County, which was a ſtately Palace, but ruin'd in the laſt Civil Wars.

18. St. Albans, 5 m. W. of Hatfield, and 20 N. W. of London, near the Ruins of the antient Verulamium, from whence it is ſtill call'd Verulam. It was famous in the time of the Romans, and a large populous City when Julius Cæſar invaded Britain, and call'd St. Albans from an Abby built in 703, to the Memory of Albanus, the firſt Martyr of Britain, who was put to death here in the Reign of Dioclefian. It has been remarkable for many great Events, for which we refer to Camden and others. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, and 24 Aſſiſtants. Here's a Market on Saturd. reckon'd one of the greateſt in England for Wheat, and Fairs on Lady-Day, June 22, Sept. 8, & 29. It has a peculiar Power in it ſelf both for Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Government, and its Juriſdiction reaches to 15 neighbouring Pariſhes, who have a Goal and Goal-Delivery here 4 times a Year after the Quarter-Seſſions at Hertford: It conſiſts of 4 Wards, and in every Ward there's a Conſtable and 2 Church-Wardens. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of D. to Charles Beauclaire, natural Son to K. Char. II. Here are 3 Churches; that call'd St. Alban's was formerly the Cathedral of the Monaſtery, and is an antient, large, and beautiful Pile. It has many remarkable Inſcriptions and Monuments, both antient and Modern. St. Peter's and St. Michael's are alſo handſome Churches, and have fine Monuments for Perſons of Note.

19. Watford, 6 m. S. W. of St. Albans, and 15 N. W. of London, has a Market on Tueſd. for Proviſions, and Fairs on Trinity-Mond. Tueſd. and Wedneſd. and June 24. Here's a handſome Church with Inſcriptions and Monuments for ſeveral Perſons of Note, a Free-School, and ſeveral Funds for the Poor.

20. Caſhiobury, about 1 m. $\frac{1}{4}$ N. W. of Watford, ſuppos'd to have been the Reſidence of the antient Britiſh K. Caſſibelaunus, mention'd by Cæſar. The E. of Eſſex has now a noble Seat with fine Gardens and a Park, &c. here.

21. Rickmanſworth, 3 m. S. E. of Watford, an antient Town with a ſmall Market on Saturd. and Fairs on July 2, and Aug. 15. 'Tis govern'd by 2 Conſtables and 2 Headboroughs, and has a handſome Church with Monuments for ſeveral Perſons of Note.

22. Barnet, 8 m. E. of Watford, and 10 N. W. of London, ſtands on a Hill, and has a great Market on Mond. for Cattel, Corn, &c. 'Tis noted for a Victory of Edw. IV. in the Neighbourhood, over the Houſe of Lancaſter in 1468. has a Church with ſeveral Monuments for Perſons of Note, a Free-School and Alms-Houſe, and ſome other Funds for the Poor.

XVI. MIDDLESEX,

HAS Buckinghamſhire on the W. Eſſex and part of Kent on the E. Hertfordſhire on the N. and Surrey with part of Kent on the S. The Form is irregular, becauſe much indented by the neighbouring Counties. The greateſt Extent S. & N. is about 16 m. and the greateſt Length E. & W. about 20. It lies in the Dioceſs of London. It is reckon'd to contain 247000 Acres. 'Tis divided into 7 Hundreds and 186 Pariſhes, including thoſe of London, Weſtminſter, and Southwark. The Number of Inhabitants and Houſes can only be gueſs'd at, but they are prodigious, and increaſe every day; ſo that tho this be one of the leaſt Counties in England, 'tis by much the moſt conſiderable, becauſe it is the Seat of London, the Metropolis, and the Reſidence of the Government. The County in general is fruitful, and much improv'd by the Soil of London, and the Thames, beſides leſſer Rivers; and the Air is ſweet and wholeſome. It abounds with Paſture and Grain of all kinds, and the Wheat of this County is reckon'd the beſt. The Name is derived from its being the middle Kingdom of the Saxons.

Places of Note are,

1. Enfield, 10 m. N. of London. It has a Market on Saturd. Here was formerly a Royal Seat; and there's a Chace in its Neighbourhood fameus for Deer-Hunting. 'Tis much frequented in the Summer by the Citizens of London for the Air. 'Tis a neat clean Town, but the Church is ſmall.

2. Edgeworth, 9 m. N. W. from Enfield, has a Market on Thurſd. and a noble Seat in the Neighbourhood, belonging to the D. of Chandois.

3. Uxbridge, 8 m. N. W. of Edgworth, a long Town upon the River Coln, full of Inns; famous for the Treaty in 1644. between K. Char. I. and the Parl. It has a Market on Thurſd.

4. Brentford, 8 m. S. E. of Uxbridge, ſtands on the little R. Brent, where it falls into the Thames. The Town is divided into Old and New, and has a good Market on Tueſd. for Corn, &c.

5. Staines, 7 m. W. of Brentford, has a wooden Bridge over the Thames. The City of London's Juriſdiction on the River extends hither; and near this Place is Running-Mead, famous for the Aſſembly of the Barons in their Wars againſt K. John, when they brought him to Terms. Here's a Market on Frid. and ſeveral good Inns.

6. Hampton-Court, about 8 m. S. E. from Staines, and 11 m. S. W. from London. It was founded by Card. Wolſey in the pleaſanteſt Place that he could chuſe. It was a Work of great Magnificence for the time, enlarg'd and finiſh'd by K. Hen. VIII. upon the Cardinal's Eſtate being forfeited, and conſiſted of 5 large Courts of very neat and curious Structure; but the Improvements made by K. William and Q. Mary, according to the beſt Rules of Architecture, and what it has receiv'd ſince, have made it one of the beſt, moſt magnificent, and commodious Palaces in Europe; and the Furniture anſwers the Grandeur of our Sovereign, and particularly the rich Hangings and noble Paintings by the greateſt Maſters. The Gardens are alſo wonderfully improv'd by open and cloſe Walks, great Variety of Topary-Works, Green-Houſes with Stoves under them, ſo artificially contriv'd, that all foreign Plants are preſerved there in a Heat ſuitable to the Climes from whence they came. Here is alſo a famous Wilderneſs, fine Statues, Water-Works, &c. and there are 2 noble Parks adjoining, well planted, ſtock'd with Deer, and adorn'd with fine Canals, Pleaſure-Houſes, Fiſh-Ponds, and Water-Works. The Village of Hampton is much improv'd by the Palace, near which there are ſeveral very good Inns for the Accommodation of Strangers, and thoſe that follow the Court.

7. Twickenham, 3 m. N. E. of Hampton-Court, is a large handſome Village pleaſantly ſituated on the Banks of the Thames, and noted for the Houſes of many Perſons of Quality. In that call'd the Park, Mr. Johnſton, formerly Secretary of State for Scotland, has built a ſtately Houſe, and made very fine and curious Gardens, with Vine-Yards, Fiſh-Ponds, and other Improvements.

8. Thiſtleworth, above a m. N. E. of Twickenham, is alſo a pleaſant large Village upon the Bank of the Thames, with a handſome Church newly built, and fine Houſes belonging to People of Quality.

9. Sion-Houſe, a m. E. from Thiſtleworth, formerly a Monaſtery, now a noble Palace belonging to the D. of Somerſet, with ſtately Avenues, Gardens, and Walks, that yield a delightful Proſpect from the Thames and the Road which passes near the House.

10. Hammersmith, 3 m. E. of Brentford, is a large Village with many Gentlemens Seats in and about it, and W. from it lies Chiswick, a Village of the same nature.

11. Fulham, a m. ½ S. E. of Hammersmith, is also a large Village with several Gentlemens Houses, but is chiefly noted for a Palace and Gardens belonging to the Bishop of London.

12. Chelsey, 2 m. E. of Fulham, is a very large Village, has many Gentlemens Seats, but is chiefly noted for its noble College or Hospital, with fine Gardens, pleasant Walks, and convenient Apartments for old and lame Soldiers both Foot and Horse. 'Twas founded by Char. II. carry'd on by Jam. II. and finish'd by Will. III. The Front opposite to the Thames has a fine Hall on one side, a stately Chappel on the other, and a noble Pavillion betwixt them. Here's a fine Gallery facing the River, supported by stone Pillars. The 2 other sides are 4 Stories high, have 2 Galleries in each Story, and each Gallery 26 neat Bed-Chambers. Each Corner of this main Building has a fair Pavillion, one for the Governor's Lodging and Council-Chamber, and the other 3 have fair Lodgings for the Civil and Military Officers belonging to the College. In the middle of the Square there is a Brazen Statue of Char. II. on a marble Pedestal. Besides this main Structure, there are 4 large and uniform Wings, one call'd the Infirmary for the Sick, another for maim'd Officers, a third for several Officers of the House, and a fourth for the Servants; and on the West side of the House there is a noble Laundery, with other Conveniencies. The number of Pensioners maintain'd here is about 400, besides Officers. They wear red Coats lin'd with blue, perform Duty as in a Garison, and have Clothes, Diet, Lodging and Firing, and one Day's Pay in a Week for spending Money. Here's a Governor, Deputy-Governor, Treasurer, 5 Commissioners, 2 Chaplains, a Physician, a Secretary, and many other Officers, with handsome Salaries; and the Allowances in Money to the several Pensioners amount to 1269 l. 13 s. per Ann.

13. Kensington, about a m. N. from Chelsey, and about 2 m. W. from St. James's, is chiefly noted for its Royal Palace on the edge of Hide-Park. 'Tis a neat convenient House, which K. William purchas'd from the E. of Nottingham, and improv'd it to its present Grandeur. For a convenient Communication with the Palace of St. James's, he caus'd a gravell'd Coach-way to be made thro Hide-Park and St. James's Park, with Lamps on each side the Way to light Passengers in the dark Nights.

14. Acton, East and West, is a pretty Village on a Hill, 4 m. N. W. of Kensington, chiefly noted for its medicinal Waters, which are brought in great Quantities to London.

15. Harrow on the Hill, about 6 m. N. W. of Acton, stands on the highest Hill in the County, and has a Church with a high Steeple seen at a great Distance.

16. Hampstead, near 7 m. E. stands on a pleasant Hill with a Heath about it, from whence there's a charming Prospect of London and the adjacent Country. The Citizens of London resort hither much during the Summer, for Air and the Wells; as they do to Highgate, another pleasant Village on a Hill, about a m. E. from Hampstead.

17. Islington, a large and populous Village, with a Church, about half a m. N. from London. It has several Gentlemens Houses, and is much frequented by Citizens and others for the Air and its Chalybeate Waters, something like those of Tunbridge, but not so strong.

18. Hackney, with several adjacent Villages, is a large and pleasant Place, about 2 m. ¼ S. E. of London, has many Gentlemens and Citizens Houses, is reckon'd the most populous Country-Parish in England, and has more Gentlemen that keep their Coaches than any other.

19. Stepney, about a m. E. from London, is a large Village of the same nature, and very populous.

20. Bow, another Village about 3 m. E. of London, has many Gentlemens Seats, a Parish-Church, and is noted for dying Scarlet.

21. LONDON. It lies in Lat. 51. 32. and is our first Meridian. Authors differ as to its Antiquity. Some will have it to be the Trinobantum Civitas mention'd by Cæsar in his Commentaries; but the Romans understanding by Civitas a State or Government, this is reckon'd no good Authority. Yet since 'tis mention'd by Tacitus by the Name of Londinium, in the time of Nero, as a most famous Town for Commerce and number of Merchants, that Nero begun his Reign in the Year of Christ 54, and that Julius Cæsar's second Invasion was about 52 Years before our Saviour's Birth, 'tis scarce to be suppos'd that London could be built, and become so famous for greatness of Trade and number of Merchants, in so short a Space as 106 Years, considering the slow Advances of Trade in those Days. Therefore 'tis probable that 'tis much more antient than Cæsar, tho he does not expresly mention it; nor are we to wonder at that, when Tacitus says, that even in Nero's time the Trinobantes, whose Capital it undoubtedly was, had not been accustomed to bear the Roman Slavery.

The Name is very probably deriv'd by Mr. Somner from the British Words Llaun and Din, which signify a populous Place; from whence, according to the Roman Inflection, came Laundinium or Londinium: And the same will hold if it be deriv'd, as Camden thinks, from Lhong and Dinas, which in the British signify'd a Town of Ships.

'Tis certainly now one of the greatest, most populous, and trading Cities in the World, and better situate for Health and Commerce together, than any other great City in Europe, being in a fruitful and pleasant Soil, and rising with a gradual Ascent from the River. From Limehouse to the end of Tuttlestreet 'tis above 7 m. ½ long, and from the end of Blackmanstreet in Southwark, to the end of Shoreditch, it is 3 m. in Breadth; but considering the daily Additions of new Buildings, its Dimensions and the Number of Inhabitants can't well be fix'd.

The Circumference of the Walls is reckon'd 3 m. and 205 Yards; and the Acres in the Area of London, Westminster, and Southwark, were reckon'd some Years ago at 2287 and ½. Mr. Grant, Sir Will. Petty, Mr. Howel, Dr. Davenant, and Mr. King, have essay'd by political Arithmetick, at different Times and by different Mediums, to give the Number of Houses and Inhabitants within those Cities and the Bills of Mortality, for which we refer to their Works; and shall only take notice of the Doctor's, as being the last, by which he judg'd the number of People within the Bills of Mortality to be 534440, of whom he computed Males 277117, Females 257323, and fighting Men 103641. This he reckon'd near double to what Mr. Grant computed about 40 Years before; and since the Doctor writ, there are some Thousands added by Queen's, Hanover, Oxford Squares, and other new Buildings.

The Gates of the City are 11. They are so well known, that we need not insist upon them, but refer the Curious in Architecture to the Description of them, in the Introduction to the New View of London, printed in 1708, in 2 Vols.

The City is divided into 26 Wards, each of which has its Alderman. The Wards are subdivided into a great Number of Precincts, out of which are chose annually 230 Common-Council-Men, 233 Constables, 215 Scavengers, and about 1100 Watchmen. There are 97 Parishes within the Walls, and 16 in the Liberties without, besides 15 Out-Parishes in Middlesex and Surrey, and 7 in the City and Liberties of Westminster: In all 135. The Streets, Lanes, Courts, Yards, and Alleys, are reckon'd about 5000, the Squares about 20, and the Bridges 5; among which, the Bridge over the Thames, for admirable Workmanship, its vast Foundation and Dimensions, and for stately solid Houses and rich Shops, surpasses all in Europe, and therefore deserves a particular Description. 'Tis mention'd so early as 990, and was first built of Timber by the College of Priests who had the Profits of the Ferry of St. Mary Overy. It was built of Stone (a little further E.) by Peter of Colechurch, the King, and the Archbp. of Canterbury. It was 33 Years a building, and finish'd in 1209. Antiquaries think the Course of the R. was turn'd from Battersea to Rotherhith during that Time. 'Tis very stong, and consists of 19 Arches, secur'd by large Starlings. 'Tis about 1200 Foot long, and 20 in Breadth betwixt the Houses, which are 27 Foot in Depth on each side the Street, so that the whole Breadth is 74. The Breadth at the Draw-Bridge, where there are no Houses, is 40 Foot. N. from the Draw-Bridge there's a Timber House, with an Arch a-cross the Bridge, call'd the Nonsuch, said to be brought from Holland, and finish'd without one Nail in it. By an Inscription on the N. side of this Arch, it appears that this Street was enlarg'd from 12 to 20 Foot in 1675, when all the old Houses, except the stately Building by the Draw-Bridge, were pulled down, and the Arch of the great House by the Draw-Bridge, and the 3 other Arches were rais'd 2 Stories high. The Gate on the Bridge was one of the principal ones of the City long before the Conquest. The Bridge has often suffer'd by Fire, especially in 1212, when, both Ends being on fire, 3000 People perished in the Water, and by the Flames. There's a Comptroller, 2 Bridge-Masters, and Officers under them to keep it in repair, which is defray'd out of the Ground-Rents of the Houses upon it, Fines, Benefactions, &c. The Bridge-Masters are chose by the Common-Hall out of the Livery of the City. There's a noble Engine here, work'd by the Flux and Reflux of the Water, which it raises from the N. end of the Bridge to a very great Height, and serves many Parts of the City. There are also Water-Works at Broken-Wharf, and the City Conduit-Water, besides that of the New-River, to supply the Inhabitants. The other Bridges of most Note are over Fleet-Ditch, which was made for supplying the N. Parts of the City with Coals from the River, and has many large Vaults on the Sides, where they lay them up. It was finish'd in 1676, and cost above 74000 l.

A little N. of the Bridge stands that Master-piece of Building, the Monument, design'd by Sir Christopher Wren, and erected in perpetual Memory of that dreadful Fire of London by the Papists, which broke out Sept. 2. 1666. at a Baker's House in Pudding-Lane, and in 3 Days consum'd 13200 Houses, 400 Streets, 15 Wards, besides 8 others shatter'd and half burnt, St. Paul's Cathedral, 87 Parish-Churches, 6 Chappels, the Custom-House, the Royal Exchange, Guild-Hall, and many other stately Halls, several Colleges, Hospitals, Libraries, Schools, and other publick Edifices. 'Tis said there were but 8 Persons burnt. The Total of the Loss was reckon'd near 10 Millions. For the Particulars we refer to the Present State of London, and to Mr. Vincent's Book, entitled, God's Terrible Voice to the City, printed in 1671.

The Monument is a noble Column of the Dorick Order fluted, 202 Foot high from the Ground, and 15 in Diameter. The lowest Part of the Pedestal is 21 Foot square, and the Pedestal it self 40 Foot high, all of Portland Stone. Within is a large Stair-Case of Black Marble, containing 345 Steps 10 Inches ½ broad, and 6 Inches high; and a large Iron Balcony within 32 Foot of the Top, where there's a curious gilded Flame. On the N. side of the Pedestal there's a Latin Inscription, with an Account of the Desolation occasion'd by the Fire. On the S. side another, shewing the Care of K. Char. II. and the Parl. for speedy rebuilding the City with greater Magnificence and Conveniency. On the E. side there's another, with the Names of the several Ld Mayors in whose Time it was carried on. And on the W. side are finely carv'd several curious Emblems of this Tragical Event. Above these, round the Cornish of the Pedestal, are noble Enrichments of Trophy-Work, the King's Arms, the Sword, Mace, Cap of Maintenance, &c. and at each Angle a very large fierce Dragon is exquisitely carv'd in Stone. Round the Base of the Pedestal there's an Inscription, shewing, That the said Dreadful Fire was begun and carried on by the Treachery and Malice of the Popish Faction, in order to the carrying on their horrid Plot for extirpating the Protestant Religion and Old English Liberty, and the introducing Popery and Slavery. 'Twas eras'd in the Time of the late K. James, but cut again very deep in the Reign of K. William. In 1681 a Stone was set up on the Front of the House where the Fire begun, with this Inscription:

" Here, by the Permission of Heaven, Hell broke loose upon this " Protestant City from the Malicious Hearts of Barbarous Papists, by " the Hand of their Agent Hubert, who confess'd, and on the Ruins " of this Place declar'd the Fact, for which he was hang'd, viz. That " here begun that dreadful Fire, which is described and perpetuated " on and by the Neighbouring Pillar."

This Stone was also taken down, and the Inscription eras'd, in the beginning of K. James II's Reign, but was renew'd in that of K. William.

Not

Notwithstanding the vast Loss of the Citizens, they began so chearfully to rebuild, that in 4 Years they erected in the same Streets 10000 Houses, besides large Hospitals, stately Halls, and 19 fair Stone Churches: The publick Buildings are in general much more beautiful, commodious, and solid than before; the Streets are much wider and more regular; and the Dwelling-Houses, which before were low and dark, are lofty, light, uniform, and very stately; and a great Number of the Halls, Taverns, and Merchants Houses, are fit to entertain Monarchs. Of late Years several Offices are erected to insure Houses and Goods from Fire, to which belong a great Number of Watermen, and Porters, who wear the Liveries and Badges of the respective Offices, and are always ready to assist in extinguishing Fires. Among the rest, the Hand-in-Hand-Office for Houses, and the Union-Office for Goods, are establish'd on the Principle of Publick Vertue, the Directors reaping no Advantage by their Service, but what each Member has in common with them. The first of these two Offices, which was set up near 30 Years since, has paid about 40000 l. to Losses; by which means a great Number of Families have been preserv'd from Ruin.

The other chief publick Structures are as follow:

The Tower is on the Bank of the R. about 800 Yards E. from London Bridge. The White Tower was built by William the Norman in 1078, and has been much enlarg'd by additional Buildings, having been formerly the Royal Palace. In 1190, 'twas encompass'd with a strong Wall, and a Ditch in some Places 120 Foot broad. There are now so many Buildings, that it resembles a Town. Edw. IV. added the Bulwark, and the Lions-Tower, in which are kept Lions, Tygers, Leopards, &c. The Fortifications are about a m. round, and command the City and R. Here's a constant Garison, and Warders to look after the Gates and Prisoners of State.

Things of chief Note here are, 1. The White Tower, which was almost new rebuilt in 1637 and 1638. Here is a vast Magazine of Powder, Match, Swords, great Guns, &c. 2. The Jewel-House, where are kept the Crowns, Jewels, and other Regalia. 3. The Horse-Armoury, with the Figures of 15 of our Kings, since William the Conquerer, curiously represented on Horseback, richly arm'd Cap-a-pee, and some of their Horses have Armour: Six of them are represented with their Guards. Here are many Suits of Armour, one of them John of Gaunt's, 7 Foot and ½ high, and another, the Ld Kingsale's, with the Sword he took from a French General, for which he and his Posterity had the Honour of being cover'd in the King's Presence. 4. The Grand Storehouse, for the finest and largest Artillery, is a spacious Building of Brick and Stone, in which, among many others, are 6 very large Mortars, each of which carries a Bomb of 5 C. Weight; one that shoots 9 Shells at a time; an Engine for discharging many Musket-Balls at once; 20 new Brass Guns 32 C. 3 q. 14 lb. each, inscrib'd to Q. Anne and the D. of Marlborough; an Engine of small Mortars, which shoot 30 Shells at once; a Gun that discharges 7 Balls out of as many Bores; a curious Gun made for Prince Henry, the Workmanship of which cost 200 l. besides Quantities of Arms taken from foreign Enemies and Rebels. There's a vast Number of Cannon mounted on Carriages, among which are 50 Pieces of Brass, the greatest being about 7000 Weight, and carry each 63 Pound-Ball. There's a proportionable Quantity of other Materials belonging to a Train of Artillery; and on Tower-Wharf are 61 Guns in a Range fast in the Ground, which, with those from the Ramparts, are discharg'd on all publick Occasions. 5. The New Armoury is a spacious Room over this Storehouse, with a curious Arsenal of small Arms for 60000 Men, kept very clean, and beautifully dispos'd in various Figures. Here's a Church, where the D. of Monmouth and others of Note, that have been executed, lie interred. On the S. Side is a large Water-Gate for the Receipt of Vessels, under a Stone Bridge; and beyond it a Postern with a Draw-Bridge, seldom let down but to receive great Prisoners of State brought hither by Water, and therefore is called Traitors-Bridge. In the Tower are kept the Mint for coining Gold and Silver, the antient Records of the Courts of Justice at Westminster, the Originals of all Laws, all the Atchievements of this Nation in France, &c. Leagues and Treaties with Foreigners, the Records for the establishing of Ireland, the Dominion of the British Seas, the English Title to the Kingdom of France, the Foundations of Religious Houses, the Tenure of all the Lands in England, Surveys of Manors, Lands, and Inquisitions Post Mortem, Grants from the Crown, the just Establishments of all the Offices in the Nation, and the Bounds of all its Forests, with the Rights of the Inhabitants to Common or Pasture, &c. The Tower is govern'd by a Constable, or Lieutenant, who has great Power and Privileges. The Gentleman-Porter commands 40 Warders, who wait at the Gates, and admit no Strangers with their Swords. He delivers the Keys every Night to the Constable.

There are 21 Hamlets belonging to the Tower in several Parishes, whose Trained Bands, consisting of about 4000 Men, are bound, at the Command of the Constable, to come and strengthen the Garison.

For the Revenues arising from Trade, there's a noble spacious Custom-House on the N. Bank of the R. at the E. end of Thames-Street. The Architecture is handsome, and there are convenient Apartments for the Commissioners and inferior Officers. 'Tis reckon'd that the Port of London pays 2 Thirds of the Customs of all England.

The Office of Excise is in the Old Jewry, where the Commissioners and their inferior Officers take care of that Branch of the Revenue, which is so considerable, that the Excise on Malt for England alone has amounted to 700000 l. per Ann. and that for Liquors to above a Million.

The General Post-Office for Home and Foreign Letters, is kept in Lombard-Street; and that of the chief Penny-Post in Threadneedle-Street, where Letters are taken in to and from all Parts within 15 m. of London, in which Compass there are 280 Towns that take in Letters, besides 4 or 500 Receiving Houses in London, and at least 100 Messengers that give Security, and go about with Letters. These two Offices bring a considerable Revenue to the Crown.

The Navy-Office, where the whole Business of the Royal Fleet is manag'd, is a noble spacious Structure in Crutched-Friars; and that for victualling the Navy is on Tower-Hill.

The African and Old East India Companies Houses, for managing their Trade, are in Leadenhall-Street; the New East India House in Skinners-Street; the South-Sea Company's in Broad-Street; the Bank of England is at Grocers-Hall in the Poultry; and Blackwell-Hall, the only Ware-House or Market for Woollen Cloths, brought from all Parts of the Kingdom, is in Basinghall-Street. Guild-Hall, adjoining to it is the Common-Hall of the City, and for Courts of Judicature. 'Tis an antient spacious handsome Structure, was begun in 1411, and finish'd in 1431. Being much damag'd by the Fire in 1666, it was repair'd and beautified in 1669. Here are, besides the Figures of 2 great Giants, the Pictures of several Kings, Queens, and Judges, with Colours, Standards, &c. taken from the French at Ramellies. This Hall is 153 Foot long, and almost 55 Foot high, and will hold near 7000 People, who meet here to elect the Magistrates and Members of Parliament.

The Royal-Exchange in Cornhill, 203 Foot long, and 171 broad, without. The Height of the Building is 56; and the Turret has a fine Chime of Bells and Clock, the Figure of a Grashopper in polish'd Brass on the Top, and is 178 Foot high. The Length of the Exchange within is 144, and the Breadth 117 Foot. Being consum'd by Fire in 1666, it was rebuilt in 1669, with much more Splendor, by the City and the Mercers-Company for 50000 l. the first Stone being laid by K. Char. II. The Walls are Portland Stone, Rustick Work, very strong and neat. Above Stairs are 200 large Shops, full of choice Commodities, especially for Apparel, which bring in 5000 l. a Year, besides the Rents of the Ware-Houses under it for Pepper, Wine, &c. So that this Spot of Ground, which is but an Acre, is reckon'd the richest for its Bigness in the World. Here are 28 Columns with Arches, under which the Merchants walk in bad Weather. The Intercolumns of the upper Range have 24 Niches, 17 of which are filled with the Statues of Kings and Queens in their Royal Robes, with the Regalia finely gilt, except that of James II. habited like a Roman Cæsar. In the Centre is that of Char. II. also in a Roman Habit, on a Marble Pedestal 8 Foot high. In this Exchange the Merchants meet; and those of several Nations, and particular Branches of Trade, have their distinct Walks. The Area of the Piazza's is pav'd with White and Black Marble, and the rest with fine Pebble; so that 'tis the most stately and commodious Structure of its kind in Europe. The Ascent to the Shops above, is by large Stairs, on the N. and S. Sides, of Black Marble.

Leadenhall, in a Street of that Name, is an antient large Structure, purchased by the City for a common Granary: part of it is now us'd for the East-India Company's Warehouse, and other parts for selling Colchester Bays. The adjoining Market, call'd by its Name, is the greatest in Europe for Flesh and other Provisions, Wool, Leather, Green Hides, &c. Stocks-Market, is one of the chief of the City, and noted for a noble Marble Statue of Char. II. on Horseback. Besides the Markets above-mention'd, there are many Keys and Wharfs, where Vessels unload Corn, Coal, Timber, and Wood for Fuel, &c.

The 12 chief Trading Companies of the City, out of which the Ld Mayor is to be annually chosen, are the Mercers, Grocers, Drapers, Fishmongers, Goldsmiths, Skinners, Merchant-Taylors, Haberdashers, Salters, Ironmongers, Vintners, Cloth-Workers; who have each their Halls, with Apartments fit for the most part to entertain the greatest Princes.

The other Corporations are 56, viz. Dyers, Brewers, Leathersellers, Pewterers, Barber-Surgeons, Armorers, White-Bakers, Wax-Chandlers, Tallow-Chandlers, Cutlers, Girdlers, Butchers, Sadlers, Carpenters, Cordwainers, Painters, Curriers, Masons, Plummers, Innholders, Founders, Embroiderers, Poulterers, Cooks, Coopers, Tylers and Bricklayers, Bowyers, Fletchers, Blacksmiths, Joiners, Plaisterers, Weavers, Fruiterers, Scriveners, Bottle-Makers and Horners, Stationers, Marblers, Wool-Packers, Farriers, Paviers, Loriners, Brown-Bakers, Woodmongers, Upholsterers, Turners, Glasiers, Parish-Clerks, Watermen, Apothecaries, Silk-Throwers, Clock-Makers, Distillers, Frame-Work-Knitters, Coach-Makers, Glovers, Hat-Makers. Some of these are join'd in one Hall and Company, but most of them have stately Halls of their own, fit to entertain the chief Nobility. Many of those Companies, especially the 12 old ones, are very rich, and have been honour'd with having Kings, Princes, and Noblemen, Members of their Society. For their Arms, particular Statutes, and Constitutions, we refer to the New View.

The Watermens Company has no Freedom of the City, but are more particularly under the Dominion of the Ld Mayor; they have about 4000 Wherries or Boats to carry Passengers on the River; and the Lightermen who are join'd with them, have about 1400 Lighters for unloading Ships of bulky Goods.

The Number of Markets in London, Southwark, and Westminster, for Corn, Cattel, Hay, and all sorts of Provisions, are 22.

The Number of Squares in the Cities of London and Westminster are 28, many of them large and nobly built, particularly Lincolns-Inn-Fields, reckon'd the most spacious in Europe; Covent-Garden, St. James's, Soho, and Leicester Squares, are encompass'd with stately Buildings, and Hannover-Square lately begun is like to exceed them all.

The Number of Hospitals are 16, the chief of which are, 1. The Charter-House founded by Mr. Sutton a private Gentleman, for 80 poor Gentlemen, and 40 Boys bred to Learning or Trades. The Governors are 16, and for the most part are of the chief Nobility; so that as it is the noblest Foundation in Europe by a private Person, it is the best manag'd. 2. New Bedlam, a stately Hospital in Moorfields for poor Lunaticks; it exceeds all of the kind in Europe for Largeness, Magnificence, and Conveniency. 3. Christ-Church, or the Blue-Coat-Hospital near Newgate-street, founded by Edw. VI. for poor Children of both Sexes, of whom 1000 are generally maintain'd in the House or out at nurse. Most of the Boys are bred up for Trades, and some of them to Learning, for which they have very good Schools, especially for Mathematicks and Navigation; so that many great Sea-Commanders have been bred here, as well as considerable Men in other parts of Learning; and some of those put out to Trades have been Ld Mayors, &c. of the City. 4. St. Bartholomew's Hospital lies near this, and is appropriated for sick, maim'd, and wounded Poor, who are attended by able Physicians, Surgeons, Nurses, and well accommodated. There is an Hospital at Kingsland and another in Southwark which belong to this, so that many hundreds of Patients are taken care of in a Year at the Charge of this Foundation. 5. St. Thomas's Hospital in Southwark was also founded by Edw. VI. for infirm, sick, and lame Persons. 'Tis a large and stately Structure, divided into 8 Wards; and the Patients, who are some hundreds at a time, are attended tended by able Physitians, Surgeons, and Nurses at the Charge of the House. The Ld Mayor and Aldermen are the chief Governors, join'd by 250 more substantial Persons, and a Quorum sits once a Week for taking in and discharging Patients. 6. Bridewell, near Fleet-Ditch, was also founded by K. Edw. VI. for an Hospital and a House of Correction. 'Twas a Palace till given by him for this Use, to which, and the other Charitable Foundations above-mention'd, he was mov'd by a Sermon of Dr. Ridley's, then Bp of London, before him, exhorting the Rich to be merciful to the Poor; after which he sent for the Bishop, and of his own proper Motion did those charitable Works. It is a very spacious and commodious Structure, where 20 decay'd Tradesmen have Houses, and about 140 Apprentices, distinguish'd by white Hats and blue Jerkins, of whose Work they reap the Profit, by which they many times advance their own Fortunes; and the Boys when they serve their Time, have their Freedom and 10 l. each toward carrying on their Trades; so that many of them have arriv'd to be Men of Substance, and Governors of the Hospital. Another Part of this Structure is a Prison and House of Correction for disorderly Servants, Vagrants, and Strumpets, who are kept to hard Work. The President is commonly an Alderman of the City, join'd with above 330 other Governors, for the most part substantial Citizens, with proper Officers under them. They hold a Court once a Week to regulate the Affairs of the House, and see the Criminals corrected or discharg'd as the Case requires. We can't insist upon the other Hospitals, but refer to the New View for them.

The Number of the Prisons and Correction-Houses are 21. The Chief of which are, 1. Newgate, which serves both City and County for Debtors and Malefactors, but chiefly the latter. The Governor is chosen by the City, has proper Officers under him to look after the Prisoners, and a Chaplain to perform Worship. 2. Ludgate is a Prison for Debtors who are Freemen, govern'd in the same manner. 3. The Fleet is a Prison for Debtors from any part of the Kingdom, and such as speak in contempt of the Courts of Justice. 'Tis a very large Place of good Accommodations. The Rules belonging to it extend a great way, so that it is preferable to most other Prisons, and Men give Money to turn themselves over to it. 'Tis govern'd by a Warden and other Officers. 4. The Poultry and Woodstreet-Compters are also Prisons for Debtors upon Actions in the City-Courts, and such as break the Peace in the Night. They are under the Government of the City-Magistrates, Secondaries, and other Officers, and have Serjeants always attending to arrest Debtors. There is another Bridewell at Clerkenwell, and near it a Place call'd New Prison, where Criminals without the Liberties of the City are kept, till they are either discharg'd, or remov'd to the House of Correction, where they are kept to hard Labour.

There are 6 other Workhouses, the chief of which is London-Work-House in Bishopsgate-street, establish'd by Act of Parliament. The Ld Mayor, Aldermen, and 52 other Citizens chosen by the Common-Council, are incorporated to employ the Poor, and to apprehend Vagrants or sturdy Beggars, and set them at work. 'Tis a very large Structure, where poor Children are maintain'd and plac'd out Apprentices, and grown Vagrants are employ'd in beating Hemp, picking Oakam, &c. and have no more Victuals than what they can earn, unless they be sick. Physicians, Apothecaries, Nurses, and a Chaplain, with other Officers, are appointed to look after the House.

Here are many Free-Schools, the Chief of which is, 1. That of St. Paul's, a very handsome Structure, well endow'd, where 153 Children are taught gratis, and many others at moderate Rates, till they be fitted for the University, &c. 2. Merchant-Taylors School, which is also a handsome Structure, well endow'd; 100 Boys are taught gratis, 100 more for 5 s. a Quarter, and 100 for 2 s. 6 d. The next are those of the Charter-House, Christ-Church, Mercers-Chappel, and many others we can't insist on. There are also about 50 Charity-Schools in and about this City, set up of late by the Contributions of private Persons and Collections in Churches, &c. where Sermons are preach'd for that end. There are besides all these many private Schools taught by Dissenters and others. The Number of Alms-Houses in and about the City is near 500, many of them large and well endow'd, but we can't insist on Particulars. The Curious may find them in the New View.

The chief Colleges are, 1. The College of Physicians in Warwick-Lane, a stately and magnificent Structure with a Hall, a Library, and other Apartments for the Physicians. It has been establish'd by Act of Parliament and Patents since the 14 Hen. VIII. Their Privileges and Powers are very great. They consist of a President, 4 Censors, 10 Electors, and 26 Fellows. The Ld Chancellor or Keeper, the Lds Chief Justices of the King's Bench and Common-Pleas, and the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, are Visitors of the Corporation, and have Power to determine, alter, mitigate, reverse, or confirm any Matter, Cause, &c. brought before them. The Physicians have of late Years set up a Dispensary here, for preparing Medicines truly, and dispensing them to the Poor. The Fellows meet 4 times a Year, and 2 of them twice a Week for giving Advice to the Poor gratis. They have 2 other Dispensaries for the Use of the Poor, one in St. Peter's Alley in Cornhill, and another in St. Martin's Lane. The Censors have Power to supervise and govern all Physicians in London and 7 m. round; and none but such as are licens'd by them are to practice Physick in the said Compass. The College has liberty to take 6 Bodies of Malefactors executed at Tyburn, yearly, for Anatomy. 2. Gresham-College, a noble antient Structure betwixt Broadstreet and Bishopsgatestreet, founded by Sir Thomas Gresham in Q. Elizabeth's time, for Lectures in Divinity, Civil-Law, Astronomy, Gometry, Rhetorick, Physick, and Musick. The Royal Society for improving natural and experimental Philosophy used to meet here every Wednesday. They were founded by K. Char. II. in 1663. with great Privileges. They consist of a President, a Council of 20, and above 200 Fellows, with proper Officers. They have also a Power to take Bodies of Malefactors for Anatomy, to license Books in the Faculties above-mentioned, and make By-Laws, &c. The Motto under their Arms, is, Nullius in Verba. They have a Repository with many Curiosities of Art and Nature, for which we refer to the learned Dr. Grew's Account of it. What Improvements they have made, appears by their Transactions, which they print from time to time. 3. Sion-College near Cripplegate, is a large handsome Structure, with Lodgings for the President, Chambers for the Students, and a good Library, chiefly design'd for the London Clergy. 4. The College of Civilians, call'd Doctors Commons, on the S. side of St. Paul's. 'Tis a spacious and commodious Structure, where many learned Civilians reside in a Collegiate way. 'Tis the chief Place in England for Practice of the Civil-Law. Here live the Judges of the Admiralty-Court, of the Delegates, Arches, and Prerogative-Court of Canterbury, with about 33 Doctors that plead Causes, and as many Proctors who draw up the Acts and Pleadings, &c. 5. The College of Heralds near Doctors Commons, incorporated by K. Rich. III. The chief Officer is the Earl-Marshal, which is Hereditary to the Duke of Norfolk, who being a Roman Catholick, the Earl of Suffolk is his Deputy. Here are 3 Kings at Arms, 1. Garter, who attends the Instalments of Knights of the Garter, carries it to foreign Princes, orders the Solemnity at Coronations, and the Funerals of the Royal Family and Nobility. 2. Clarenceux, who orders the Funerals of those under Peers S. of Trent. 3. Norroy, who does the like N. of Trent. There are 6 Heralds, 4 Pursuivants, 3 extraordinary Officers, and 8 Proctors. The Building is neat and spacious, with convenient Apartments, a good Library, and a handsome Court-Room, where the Earl-Marshal or his Deputy hears Causes that lie in the Court of Honour, Differences about Arms, Atchievements, Titles of Honour, &c.

For the Study and Practice of the Common-Law, there are 4 Colleges or Inns of Court, viz. Inner-Temple, Middle-Temple, Greys-Inn, and Lincoln's-Inn; besides which there are 2 Inns of Serjeants, and 8 of Chancery, viz. Clifford's-Inn, Clement's-Inn, and Lion's-Inn, belonging to the Inner-Temple; New-Inn to the Middle-Temple; Staples-Inn and Bernard's-Inn to Grays-Inn; Furnivals-Inn and Thavies-Inn to Lincolns-Inn. Those who are bred to the Bar study in the Inns of Court, and Attorneys, &c. in the Inns of Chancery. The 4 Societies of the Inns of Court are reckon'd to be upwards of 1000, but the Number of the others is not certain. The Inns of Court are large stately Structures, with spacious Halls for their Commons, well furnish'd Libraries, pleasant Gardens and Walks; and many of the other Inns have the like Conveniencies. We can't insist upon the numerous Offices which belong to those Inns, but refer to the New View for further Particulars.

We have already given the Number of Churches within the Bills of Mortality. Those of the City are for the most part new built, and very stately. We cannot be particular, but refer for that to the above-mentioned Book.

St. Paul's Cathedral is the most sumptuous and magnificent Protestant Church in Europe.

The Foundation of it is ascribed to Ethelbert the Saxon, about 610. on or near the Place where formerly stood a Temple of Diana, as some Antiquaries say. Succeeding Kings granted it many Privileges and Immunities, with considerable Endowments. It has several times suffer'd much by Fire and Lightning, but was totally burnt down by the great Fire in 1666. after which it was rebuilt according to a Model form'd by Sir Christopher Wren. The first Stone was laid in 1675. and the Parliament have granted a Duty on Sea-Coal for finishing and adorning it ever since. 'Tis not easy to compute what vast Sums this Structure has cost, but by common Estimate it must exceed a Million. 'Tis built in form of a long Cross, and of fine Portland-Stone. There are 2 Ranges of 120 Pilasters each on the Outside, one above another, besides 20 Columns at the West and 4 at the East End, and those of the Portico's. The Ascent to the N. Portico is by 12 Steps of black Marble, and that of the S. Portico by 25, and over the Door-Case a Phœnix with her Wings expanded in Flames, and under it the Word Resurgam. The W. Portico is supported by 12 Columns, and 8 above them, where there is the History of St. Paul's Conversion boldly carv'd in Relievo. On the Acroteria of the W. end are to be the Figures of the 12 Apostles and those of the 4 Evangelists, and 4 Angels on a Circular Pediment over the Dials of the Clocks on the Fronts of the 2 Towers, which are adorn'd with circular Ranges of Columns. 'Tis built after the Model of St. Peter's at Rome, and rail'd handsomely round with Iron-Ballasters fix'd on a low Wall of hewn Stone. The Roof of the Choir is supported by 6 spacious Pillars, and the Roof of the Church by 2 Ranges, consisting of 20 more. The Cupola has 8, and there are 2 very large ones at the W. end, all of them adorned with Pilasters of the Corinthian and Composit Orders. The Body of the Church and Choir are divided into 3 Parts, and the Roofs of each adorned with Arches and spacious Peripheries of Enrichments admirably carv'd in Stone. There's a large cross Isle between the N. and S. Portico's, and 2 Ambulatories. The Floor of the Choir is pav'd with Marble, and that within the Altar with Porphyry finely polish'd, and laid in several Geometrical Figures. The Communion-Table is plac'd 5 Steps high. The Altar-Piece has 4 noble Pilasters finely painted and vein'd with Gold. The Enrichments and Capitals of the Pilasters are double gilt, and the Intercolumns are 21 Pannels of figur'd crimson Velvet, over them 6 Windows, and above all a Glory finely painted. The Apertures into the Choir are ascended by 3 Steps of black Marble, inclos'd by 2 Iron Folding-Doors, like that under the Organ-Gallery, exquisitely wrought into divers Figures; and there are 2 others at the W. end of the Choir that open into the Isles. The Galleries in the Choir, the Bishop's Throne, the Pulpit, the Lord Mayor's Seat, and the Stalls, are all of Wainscot finely carv'd. The Organ-Gallery and Cases are very magnificent, adorn'd with the carv'd Figures of Cupids and Fames, each near 6 foot high, enrich'd with Cherubims, Fruit, Foliage, &c. The Organ-Pipes are spacious, well gilt, and preserv'd from Dust by fine Sashes. Between the inner Roof of the Church and the outer, which is cover'd with Lead, there is a considerable Space, wherein at the E. end round the circular Sweep, is a Whispering Place, where Words spoke in the Ear, or the Motion of a Watch, may be heard at 110 foot distance.

The Dome is rais'd on 8 large Pillars, curiously adorn'd with Arches, &c. of the Corinthian Order, and many Alcoves fronted with curious Iron-work. Over the Arches at a great height, is an Entablature, and on the Cornish an Ambulatory fenc'd in with handsome Iron-work; round the Cupola above it, there is a Range of 32 Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, and every 4th Intercolumn is a Nich.

On the outside of the Dome, about 20 foot above the Roof of the Church, are 32 Columns, with Niches answering those within. These Columns have an Entablament, and above that a Gallery with Acroteria for ſpacious and ornamental Vaſes round the Cupola. Twelve foot above the Vaſes there are Pilaſters and Windows; then the Dome cover'd with Lead begins to arch, and the Arches meet about 52 foot higher in perpendicular Altitude; on the Vertex of which there's a neat Balcony, and above that a large and beautiful Lanthorn, adorn'd with Columns of the Corinthian Order, and a Ball and Croſs at Top.

The Length of this Cathedral from E. to W. including the Steps, is 570 foot, the Breadth from N. to S. including the Portico's, 311, and the Height of the Dome 340. The Church has 8 Stair-Caſes, and there's a very lofty one up to the Cupola, from the Lanthorn of which there's a full and pleaſant Proſpect of the City and adjacent Countries. The Choir was finiſh'd and open'd the 2d of Decemb. 1697. being the Thankſgiving for the Peace of Reſwick, after 9 Years War with France.

The Chapter conſiſts of a Dean and 3 Reſidentiaries. The Dignitaries are 8, and the Prebendaries 30. For the reſt, and the Revenues of this Church, we refer to the New View of London. The Biſhoprick is ſaid to have been founded in 604, and the preſent Biſhop is reckon'd the 87th.

We can't inſiſt on the many ſtately Pariſh-Churches in London; the moſt remarkable of which is St. Mary le Bow in Cheapſide. The Steeple is its chief Ornament, and reckon'd by Artiſts to exceed that of any Parochial Church in Europe for Architecture. 'Tis 225 foot high, and on the Top of the Spire there's a ſpacious Ball, and above it inſtead of a Weather-Cock, a Dragon of poliſh'd Braſs 10 foot long, with Wings ſomewhat expanded, and proportionably bulky, yet turn'd by the leaſt Wind. The Steeple of St. Brides is alſo of a great Height, and fine Architecture.

The City is govern'd by a Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council. His Lordſhip is choſe annually by the Citizens out of their own Body upon Michaelmas-Day, at Guild-Hall. All the Aldermen beneath the Chair, who have ſerv'd the Office of Sheriff, are put up, out of which the Livery-Men return 2 to the Court of Aldermen, who uſually take the ſenior Alderman. The Election being over, he is proclaim'd, and ſworn to maintain the Privileges of the City. He muſt always be free of one of the 12 Companies of Tradeſmen; and if he be of any other, he preſently removes to one of theſe. On the 29th of October following, he enters upon his Office, goes by Water to Weſtminſter in his Barge of State, accompanied by the Aldermen in their Formalities. The 12 chief Companies, and ſome others, attend him with their furr'd Gowns in their Barges, adorn'd with their Colours and Streamers, and he is ſaluted from the Shore and the Water by great Guns. The Companies land firſt, and march in Order to the Hall. The Lord Mayor and Aldermen follow with a Sword and Mace before them, walk round the Hall, and pay their Reſpects to the Courts of Juſtice, and proceed to the Court of Exchequer, where the Lord Mayor is ſworn by the Barons; then they walk round the Hall again, and invite the Judges to Dinner at Guildhall. They return in the ſame manner by Water, from whence the Livery-Men march firſt in good Order, next the Artillery-Company with Buff-Coats, &c. after them comes the Lord Mayor and Aldermen on Horſes richly capariſon'd, or in their Coaches. There were formerly Pageants for the reſpective Companies, one of them repreſenting the Lord Mayor's Trade; but of late Years they have been laid aſide. The Solemnity concludes with a ſplendid Dinner, to which not only the Judges, but many Perſons of the greateſt Rank, Officers of State, foreign Ambaſſadors, and ſometimes Kings and Queens are invited.

The Lord Mayor's Authority reaches not only over the City and part of the Suburbs, except ſome particular Places belonging to other Juriſdictions, but alſo on the Thames, from its Mouth as far as Staines-Bridge. He is the chief Judge of London, and has a Power to ſummon and impriſon. His Houſe is a Court, and his Table open to all Comers of Quality. He has many Officers under him, and the Privilege to hunt in Middleſex, Surrey, and Suſſex. On the King's Coronation-Day he claims to be chief Butler. When he rides abroad, he has always Robes of Purple or Scarlet, with a great Chain of Gold and a rich Jewel hanging to it. His Horſe is richly capariſon'd, and his Lordſhip attended by Officers walking before him and on both ſides. He proclaims Bartholomew-Fair in Smithfield, attended by the Aldermen and Sheriffs, in their Formalities. During this Fair, which formerly laſted a Fortnight, but has of late been reſtrain'd to 3 Days, that call'd Pye-Powder-Court is held by one of the Judges of the Sheriffs Courts, in or near Smithfield, for deciding all Differences and puniſhing all Offences contrary to the Proclamation. In this Court Juſtice ought to be adminiſtred between 3 Floods and Ebbs. With the ſame Attendance and Formalities, his Lordſhip rides from Guildhall to the Borough, and proclaims Southwark-Fair on Sept. 8. which laſts generally a Fortnight.

Here are 26 Aldermen next in Power and Dignity to the Lord Mayor; each has a particular Ward and number of Common-Council-Men choſe by the Houſe-Keepers on St. Thomas's Day, one of whom is his Deputy. Thoſe Aldermen that have been Lord Mayors, and the 3 Eldeſt next to them, are Juſtices of the Peace for the City. Upon the Death of an Alderman, the Lord Mayor iſſues out his Precept to the Ward to chuſe 2 ſubſtantial Citizens, and return their Names to his Lordſhip and the Court of Aldermen, who chuſe him whom they think fitteſt; and he muſt ſerve or pay 500 l. Fine. Every Alderman holds a Wardmote on St. Thomas's Day, for chuſing Common-Council-Men, Conſtables, &c.

The 2 Sheriffs of London and Middleſex are choſen at Guildhall on Midſummer-Day, by the Livery-Men, but not ſworn till Michaelmas-Eve, when they enter upon their Office, and 2 Days after are preſented to the Exchequer-Court by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen. Each Sheriff has below him an Under-Sheriff, 6 Clerks, a number of Serjeants, and every Serjeant a Yeoman, who belong either to Woodſtreet or the Poultry Compter. If one choſen Sheriff does not think fit to hold, he is fin'd 400 l. to the City, and 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. to the Miniſters of the Priſons, unleſs he ſwears he is not worth 10000 l. and if he ſerve, he is oblig'd to give Bond to the Corporation. Here is alſo a Recorder, who is an Aſſiſtant to the Lord Mayor as to the Laws and Cuſtoms of the City, delivers the Sentences of the Court of Seſſions at the Old Baily, appears among the Aldermen on publick Days in a Habit much like theirs, and takes Place before all the Aldermen below the Chair.

The Chamberlain is alſo choſen by the Livery, during Life; he is intruſted with the City-Caſh and the Orphans Money, for which he gives good Security to the Court of Aldermen, and has Auditors to examine his Accounts. He binds and turns over all the City Apprentices, and none can keep Shop or Trade without being ſworn before him. He judges of Complaints betwixt Maſters and Apprentices, and makes Apprentices free when out of their Time; and in caſe he be made free before he has ſerv'd 7 Years, fines both.

There are many Places in the Gift of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, as thoſe of the Recorder, Sword-Bearer, 4 City Counſel, a City Remembrancer, &c. that we have not room for.

The City Courts, which are held for the moſt part at Guildhall, are, 1. The Common-Council, which makes By-Laws for the City, and Strangers free on occaſion. They chuſe the Commiſſioners for the Sewers and Pavements; a Governor, Deputy-Governor, and Aſſiſtants for managing the City's Lands in Ulſter in Ireland; the Garbler, Coroner, Bailiff of Southwark, Common-Serjeant, Town-Clerk, and Common-Cryer. 2. The Ld Mayor's, which is a Court of Record, where all Actions may be enter'd and try'd as in other Courts. The Recorder is the proper Judge: And here are 4 Attorneys and 6 Serjeants at Mace, one of whom attends conſtantly at the Ld Mayor's, and the reſt at the Attorney's-Offices. 3. The Court of Aldermen is alſo a Court of Record. They appoint the Aſſize of Bread, and all Matters touching Lights, Water-Courſes, and Party-Walls; ſeal all the City Bonds and Leaſes; and annually elect the Rulers of the Watermens Company. 4. The antient Court of Huſtings, held before the Ld Mayor, Sheriffs, and Recorder; where Deeds are enroll'd, Recoveries paſs'd, Wills prov'd, Outlawries ſued out, Replevins and Writs of Error determin'd. Here are alſo elected the 4 Repreſentatives of London in Parl. by the Livery-Men of the City. 5. The 2 Sheriffs Courts, in one of which Actions are enter'd at Wood-Street Compter, the other at the Poultry. In theſe Courts are tried Actions of Debt, Caſe-Treſpaſs, Account, and Covenants broken, Attachments and Sequeſtrations; and if an Evidence cannot be in Town on the Day of Tryal, his Teſtimony is admitted in Writing. To theſe Courts belong 8 Attorneys; 2 Secondaries, who allow and return all Writs; 2 Clerks of the Papers, who draw Subpœna's; 2 Prothonotaries, who draw all the Declarations; and 8 Clerk-Sitters, who enter Actions, and take Bails. 6. The Court of Conſcience, erected by Act of Parl. in the Reign of K. Jam. I. for the Relief of poor Debtors, and of Creditors who have Debts owing them under 40 s. and cannot ſue for 'em. Here are 2 Aldermen and 4 Commoners appointed monthly by the Ld Mayor and Aldermen. 7. The Orphans Court, held by the Ld Mayor and Aldermen once a Year, or oftner, for managing the Affairs of the City-Orphans, or Children of Freemen under 21 Years of Age. The Common Serjeant takes Inventories of Freemens Eſtates, and the Common Cryer ſummons their Executors and Adminiſtrators to appear before the Court of Aldermen. The youngeſt Attorney in the Mayor's Court is Clerk of the Orphans, and regiſters all Securities for their Portions. When they come of Age, and are married with Conſent of the Court of Aldermen, their Guardians, they may receive their Portions at an Hour's Notice; for a perpetual Fund is ſettled by Parl. at 4 per Cent. per Ann. towards which the City is charg'd with the Payment of 8000 l. for ever out of its Revenues. Every trading Company has alſo a monthly Court, call'd Hallmoots, where they regulate what belongs to their Trade.

From the Civil Government we proceed to the Military. The City being by Charter a County, Corporation, and a Lieutenancy of it ſelf, the Power of Ld Lieutenant is in the Ld Mayor and Aldermen, and other principal Members of the City commiſſion'd from the King to act as his Lieutenants, and to order the City-Militia, which conſiſts of ſix Regiments of Foot, making about 9000 Men, beſides 2 Regiments of the Tower-Hamlets, and the Regiment of Southwark; and in caſe of Neceſſity, Auxiliaries are rais'd of Apprentices to the Number of 6 Regiments more, every Freeman that has 2 Apprentices being oblig'd to ſend one. The 6 Regiments of the City are diſtinguiſhed by the White, Orange, Yellow, Blue, Green, and Red, whoſe Colonels are commonly Aldermen, and appoint the inferior Officers. For a Nurſery of Commanders, there's an Artillery-Company, all choſen Men, and commanded in chief by a Leader appointed by the Sovereign. Their Privileges have been confirm'd by ſeveral Kings, eſpecially by K. William, who enter'd himſelf Member while Prince of Orange, confirm'd their Power after his Acceſſion to the Crown, and declar'd himſelf their Captain General, as K. George now is. Many of the chief Nobility and Gentry have been of this Company. They march ſometimes 7 or 800, exerciſe in the Artillery-Ground at ſet Times, and have a Court-Marſhal, conſiſting of a Preſident, Vice-Preſident, Treaſurer, Enſigns, Colonel, and 24 Aſſiſtants, beſides the Field-Officers of the 6 Regiments. They are commonly clad in Buff, and many of 'em have Head-Pieces and Corſlets of Plate.

The Eccleſiaſtical Government of this City is in the Biſhop and his Courts; but the Pariſhes of St. Mary Le Bow, Alhallows Lombard-Street, St. Mary Aldermary, St. Pancras Soper-Lane, Alhallows Bread-Street, St. John Baptiſt, St. Dunſtan's in the Eaſt, St. Mary Bothaw, St. Vedaſt, St. Dennis Back-Church, St. Michael Crooked-Lane, St. Leonard Eaſt-Cheap, and St. Michael Royal, are Peculiars, ſubject to the Juriſdiction of the Arch Bp of Canterbury.

24. SOUTHWARK, on the S. ſide of the R. is divided into 2 Parts. 1. The Borough Liberty. 2. The Clink, or Manor of Southwark. The firſt conſiſts of three Pariſhes, and moſt part of St. Saviour's belongs to the Ld Mayor's Juriſdiction, who has a Steward and Bailiff under him. It has 98 Inqueſts, 23 Conſtables, and 18 Scavengers. The Ld Mayor holds a Court every Monday at the Seſſions-Houſe in the Borough, for Cauſes within his Limits. The Clink contains part of St. Saviour's and Chriſt-Church Pariſhes, and is under the Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of Wincheſter. The Military Government of Southwark is by a Ld Lieutenant, and 11 Deputy-Lieutenants, who have under them one Regiment of 6 Companies, and 150 Men to each Company. Southwark is larger than many Cities, and has abundance of fair Structures. It elects 2 Memb. of Parl. has a Market every Day, and an annual Fair, which begins Sept. 8. and holds near a Fortnight.

One Smith, once a Silver-Smith in London, was a great Benefactor to this and other Towns in Surrey. He left off his Trade, and went a begging, by which he acquir'd a vaſt Eſtate, and left it in the Hands of Truſtees, to be divided betwixt the Market-Towns of Surrey; ſo that a yearly Revenue from 50 to 1000 l. in Money fell to the Lot of each Town.

Here's a Place call'd the Mint, where formerly Money was coin'd. 'Tis of a large Extent, conſiſting of ſeveral Streets; and the Inhabitants have of late aſſum'd to themſelves a Privilege of Protection from Arreſts for Debt; which occaſion'd ſo many Frauds and Abuſes, that an Act was made in the Reign of William III. by which, upon a legal Proceſs, the Sheriffs of London and Middleſex, the Head Bailiff of the Dutchy Liberty, and the High Sheriff of Surrey, Bailiff of Southwark, or their Deputies, may call a Poſſe Comitatus, and arreſt ſuch Perſons, and take their Goods upon Execution or Extent; and ſuch as oppoſe them are liable to the Pillory and Fines, and upon Non-Payment may be ſent to the Plantations.

In that call'd the Clink, or Manor, the Biſhop of Wincheſter keeps a Court by his Steward and Bailiff for Debt, &c. There's a Counter which ſerves as a Priſon for the Bailiwick, and another Priſon for the Clink Liberty. Beſides theſe, there's the Marſhalſea Court and Priſon on the E. ſide of the Bor. It was firſt intended for determining Cauſes between the King's Menial Servants. The Knight-Marſhal is Preſident of the Court, and his Steward, who is commonly a Serjeant at Law, Judge of it. It has its own proper Counſellors and Attorneys, and the Court is held every Frid. for Debt, Damages, and Treſpaſſes in Cauſes for 10 m. round Whitehall, excepting London. On the ſame Side there's alſo the King's-Bench Priſon. Its Rules are of a conſiderable Extent, and the Allowance is ſomewhat better than the common Priſons; for which Reaſon many Debtors remove themſelves hither by Habeas Corpus. 'Tis a proper Place of Confinement in all Caſes triable in the King's-Bench Court. The Governor is call'd Marſhal; and being a Place of Profit and Truſt, he muſt give good Security. Not far from it is White-Lion Priſon, which is a Houſe of Correction for the County.

The chief Church here is that of St. Mary Overy's, alias St. Saviour's. It is an antient, noble, and ſpacious Structure, built in form of a Cathedral, 54 Foot broad, and 269 Foot long; and is thought to be the longeſt Pariſh-Church in England. The Height within is 47 Foot, and that of the Tower and Spires 150. The Architecture is Gothick, and very well adorn'd. Here are many Monuments of Perſons of Note; and it has a ſelect Veſtry, conſiſting of 30 Inhabitants. The Tower is very high and ſtrong. There are 2 other Pariſh-Churches, which we need not inſiſt on.

Lambeth lies over-againſt Whitehall and Weſtminſter, is a large Village with a Pariſh-Church; but is chiefly noted for the Palace of the Arch Bp of Canterbury, a ſpacious, noble, and antient Structure, with a large Hall, Chappel, convenient Apartments, and fine Gardens.

WESTMINSTER, ſo call'd from the Monaſtery there, now the Abbey, which lies W. from London. 'Tis very large, and reaches from Temple-Bar to Tuttle-Fields. The only Pariſh in the City is St. Margaret's; but there are 6 more in the Liberties. 'Tis under the Juriſdiction of the Dean and Chapter, who have both Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Power: But ſince the Reformation, the Management of the Civil Part is in the Hands of Laymen choſen for that purpoſe, and confirm'd by the Dean and Chapter. The chief Officer is the High Steward, uſually a Nobleman of the firſt Rank, choſe by the Dean and Chapter, and continues during Life, unleſs he forfeit it by High Treaſon. He chuſes a Lawyer for Under-Steward, who is confirm'd by the Dean and Chapter for Life. He, with the other Magiſtrates, keep the Court-Leet; and he is commonly Chairman at the Quarter-Seſſions. Next to him is the Head Bailiff, choſen alſo by the Dean and Chapter. He is always a Lawyer, has the Power of a Sheriff, ſummons Juries, has all the Bailiffs of the City under him, ſits next the Under-Steward in Court, where he has all the Fines and Forfeitures, which make his Place very beneficial. Here is alſo a High-Conſtable, choſe by the Court-Leet. All the other Conſtables are under him; and he uſually continues long. Here are 14 Burgeſſes, 7 for the City, and 7 for the Liberties, and each of them have an Aſſiſtant. Their Office is much like that of the Aldermen of London, and each of them has a Ward under his Juriſdiction. Two of them are elected Head Burgeſſes; one for the City, and the other for the Liberties; and they take place in Court next to the Head Bailiff. This City ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſe by the Houſekeepers, and the Election is manag'd by the Head Bailiff.

St. Peter's Church, or Weſtminſter-Abbey, is a very antient and noble Structure. Some Legendaries aſcribe the Foundation to St. Peter, others to K. Lucius, and ſay, it was afterwards turn'd to a Temple of Apollo; which being deſtroy'd by an Earthquake, A. D. 600. Sebert, one of the Saxon Kings, founded this Church on its Ruins, together with the adjoining Convent. They were afterwards ruin'd by the Danes; but repair'd by K. Edgar about 958. Edward the Confeſſor finding them much decay'd, rebuilt them from the Ground, endow'd them nobly, and granted them many Immunities, with rich Ornaments, and ſtore of Plate. He order'd the Regalia alſo to be kept here. This Fabrick was taken down, and the preſent one begun by Hen. III. in 1220, and finiſh'd 50 Years after. It ſuffer'd much by Fire in 1274, and was repair'd by Edw. I. Edw. II. and the Abbots, &c. There is 2 d. on every Chaldron of Coals for keeping it in repair; and a great part of it was lately repair'd with new Work. Hen. VII. built a Chappel at the E. end, for a Sepulchre to the Royal Family. 'Twas founded in 1502, and is of ſuch admirable Workmanſhip, that Leland in his Time call'd it the Wonder of the World. Upon the Diſſolution of the Abbey, Hen. VIII. appointed it to be under a Dean and Prebendaries. It was afterwards made a Biſhop's See, continued ſo about 9 Years; but their Bp Thurleby having ſuffer'd Dilapidations, he was remov'd, and the Government continued in the Dean and Chapter till Q. Mary reſtored the Abbot and Monks. The Dean and Chapter were again reſtor'd by Q. Eliz. who alſo made it a Collegiate Church, and plac'd in it a School-Maſter and Uſher, 40 Scholars, and 12 Alms-Men, with proper Officers, &c. The Chapter conſiſts of a Dean and 12 Prebendaries. The Dean is a Juſtice of Peace, and with the Chapter exerciſes Juriſdiction not only in this City and Liberties, but in St. Martins le Grand, London.

The Walls of the Abbey are built of Stone, the Floor pav'd with Marble, Grave-Stones, &c. The Roof is Pitch, cover'd with Lead, camerated within; and that of the Nave and Croſs-Iſles is ſupported by 50 Suſſex Marble Pillars, beſides 45 Pilaſters. The Windows are 94, in an upper and lower Range. Thoſe at the 4 Ends of the Croſs are very ſpacious. The Architecture is of the antient Gothick Order, and very curious. The Length of the Cathedral within the Walls is 489 Foot, the Breadth of the W. End 66; that of the Croſs-Iſle from N. to S. 189. The Height of the middle Roof 92. The Pillars are about 12 Foot ½ diſtant from one another. The Length of the Chancel and Choir is 152, the Breadth at the W. End 36; and the adjoining Cloiſter is 135 Foot long on the E. and W. Sides, 141 on the N. and S. The Choir is pav'd with Black and White Marble lozenge-wiſe, and has 64 Stalls. At the W. End there's an Aſcent by ſeveral Steps to the Altar, which is incloſ'd with Iron-Work, and the Pavement is of fine Stone laid in various Figures. The Altar-Piece is very curious and magnificent, of fine poliſh'd Marble of ſeveral Colours. For other Particulars we refer to the New View of London. There are 12 Chappels in this Cathedral. The Windows were all of ſtained Glaſs, painted with divers Pictures, ſome of which are ſtill remaining. The Arches over the Chancel are gilt with Gold, which has laſted many Years. The Arms of Kings, Princes, and others, who contributed to the building of this Church, are under the lower Range of Windows, and about 40 in Number. The Form of the Church is a long Croſs, and the Walls without ſupported by Buttreſſes, on ſome of which are plac'd piramidal Figures. The Outſide was adorn'd with the Statues of Kings, &c. who contributed to the Structure; but moſt of 'em are now decay'd. Here were alſo the Figures of the 12 Apoſtles and others in Gothick Niches, ſome of which ſtill remain; beſides a vaſt Number of ſmall Figures carv'd in Relievo. One of the chief Ornaments of the Church is the rich Shrines, ſtately Monuments and Tombs, antient and modern, of Princes, Noblemen, and Gentlemen, curiouſly done.

Henry VII's Chappel, at the E. End of the Cathedral, is built of Stone. The Roof flattiſh, and on the outer Walls are 14 Towers: In each Tower are large Figures and Niches. Theſe Towers are curiouſly carv'd with ſmall Pannel Work, like Gothick Arches, adorn'd with Portcullices, Fleurs de Lis, &c. The Inſide is admir'd by all Travellers. It conſiſts of ſeveral Chappels. To that of St. Edward there's an Aſcent of 12 Steps, and an Entrance by three ſpacious Portals of ſolid Braſs, curiouſly adorn'd with Figures of Roſes, Portcullices, &c. The Body of the Chappel has Stalls of carv'd Wood, where the Upper Houſe of Convocation ſit. The Floor is pav'd with Marble. The Form of it is like a Cathedral: The Roof ſupported with 12 Pillars and Arches of the Gothick Order, finely carv'd. It has 27 Windows: That at the W. End is very ſpacious, and the Glaſs finely ſtained. Under the upper Range of Windows are Figures of Princes and Biſhops in Niches; and under them the Figures of Angels ſupporting the Imperial Crowns, and reſt on Fleur de Lis, Roſes, and Portcullices. The Jambs of the lower Range of Windows are adorn'd with the like Figures.

The Roof is incomparable, being of Stone neatly wrought into 16 large Circles, with ſmall ones betwixt them. The Spaces between them are fill'd with Gothick Arch'd Work, very cloſe, finely cut. The Length of this Chappel within is 99 Foot, the Breadth 66, and the Height 54. For the Particulars of the Royal Tombs, Monuments, &c. in this Chappel, we refer to the Book above-mention'd.

The Parliament-Houſe conſiſts of many large Apartments, the chief of which are, 1. That where the Lords ſit. Here's a Throne for the King, who ſits upon it in his Royal Robes, with the Crown on his Head when he paſſes Bills, or makes Speeches. On the Right Hand there's a Seat for the Prince of Wales, and on the Left one for the D. of York. There are convenient Benches for the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, according to their ſeveral Degrees, and Wool-Sacks for the Ld High Chancellor, or Keeper, and the Judges. The latter have no Vote, unleſs they be Peers, but aſſiſt in Points of Law. The Houſe is hung with Tapeſtry, being curiouſly wrought with the Hiſtory of the Spaniſh Invaſion in 1588. Near to this is the Painted Chamber, a very ſpacious Room, where the Lords and Commons, or Committees of each, commonly hold Conferences. There are other Apartments, where the King, Prince, &c. put on their Robes; with others, where the Lords do the like. And near this is the Court of Requeſts, a very ſpacious Room, where the Lords and Commons many times walk before the Houſes ſit down, and others attend, that have Buſineſs in Parliament. The Commons Houſe is a little N. from that of the Lords, and a neat commodious Room, with convenient Benches for the Members, cover'd with Green, and Galleries round it finely adorn'd, where Strangers are ſometimes allow'd to ſit, and hear Debates. There are many other Apartments belonging to the Houſe, as the Speaker's Chamber, Rooms for Committees, &c.

Weſtminſter-Hall is reckon'd the largeſt in Chriſtendom, without Pillars. 'Twas ſaid to be built by William Ruſus in 1097. The Walls are of Stone, the Windows of Gothick Order, the Floor pav'd with Stone. The greateſt Curioſity is the Roof, made of Iriſh Oak; ſo that 'tis always clean from Filth occaſion'd by Vermine. There are no Pillars to ſupport this large Roof; but that want is ſupply'd by Buttreſſes of Iriſh Oak, adorn'd with Figures of Angels, &c. In this Hall have been kept the chief Courts of Juſtice ſince the Reign of Hen. III. It was formerly made uſe of by the Kings for Feaſting, and as a Room to relieve the Poor. Along the Sides of the Hall there are Bookſellers and Milliners Shops, &c. It is ſtill made uſe of at Coronation Feaſts; and on occaſion, Scaffolds are erected in it for the Tryals of Peers in Caſe of High Treaſon; and for hanging up Trophies of Colours, &c. taken from Enemies, and 'tis now fill'd with thoſe taken from the French and Bavarians at Blenheim. It was formerly the King's Hall, belonging to the Palace, of which the Houſes of Lords and Commons, and other Buildings adjoining, were Parts; that call'd the Painted Chamber having been Edward the Confeſſor's Bed-Chamber.

This

This Hall is 228 Foot long, 66 broad, and 90 Foot high. Near it is Cotton-House, famous for the Library of Sir Robert Cotton, who made a curious Collection of Manuscripts and other rare Pieces, now purchased for the Use of the Publick.

The Royal Palaces in Westminster are, 1. Whitehall, which is pleasantly situated; but all the Royal Apartments were burnt down by an accidental Fire in 1697, except the Banqueting-House. This Palace was built by Card. Wolsey, who gave it to Hen. VIII. to recover his Favour; and from that time till it was burnt, it was the usual Residence of the Court. The Banqueting-House is a lofty spacious and noble Structure, built in the Reign of Jam. I. and contriv'd by that admirable Architect Inigo Jones. It is built of Stone, adorn'd with a lower and upper Range of Columns, the Ionick and Composit Orders. The Roof is cover'd with Lead, and the Cieling curiously painted by the famous Paul Rubens. It was design'd for the publick Reception of Ambassadors; but is now made a Chappel Royal, and the K. has noble large Cellars under it. 2. The Cockpit, an antient noble Structure near Whitehall and Westminster Gates. Here are the Council and Treasury Chambers, and the Office for the Commissioners of Trade and Plantations. It had the Name from a Cock-Pit adjoining for the Diversion of the Court. 3. St. James's Palace lies pleasantly near the Park. 'Tis an antient, and not very regular Structure, but large, and has very noble, magnificent and beautiful Rooms and Apartments. St. James's and Hide Parks, in the Neighbourhood, belong both to the Crown, have very pleasant Walks, and the latter is commonly us'd in Summer for Persons of Quality to take the Air in their Coaches. 4. Somerset-House in the Strand, built by the D. of Somerset, Uncle to Edw. VI. It now belongs to the Crown, is very large and magnificent, capacious enough for any Prince and their Retinue, has a beautiful Front towards the Thames, with a Piazza, Fountain, Walks, and Statues. 5. Savoy, not far from Somerset-House, was built in 1245 by Peter E. of Savoy, Uncle to Eleanor Wife to K. Hen. III. It afterwards belong'd to the Family of Lancaster. It was then one of the finest Manors in England, but is now old and ruinous, and chiefly made use of as a Prison for Soldiers. The French and Germans have Churches here; and most of it is let out into Tenements.

There are many Palaces and stately Houses belonging to the Nobility in Westminster, which we can't insist on, but must refer for 'em to the New View; many of them, such as Montague-House, Buckingham-House, Devonshire-House, Powis-House, Northumberland House, Scomberg's, and the D. of Marlborough's in Pall-Mall, being equal to the Palaces of Princes.

At Charing-Cross there's a very fine Statue of Brass, representing K. Char. I. in Armour on horseback. It stands on a Pedestal 17 Foot high, curiously carv'd with his Majesty's Arms, Trophy-Work, &c. For other publick Statues in and about this City, we refer to Sect. 8. of the New View of London. There are several Hospitals in Westminster, the chief of which are, 1. Grey-Coat Hospital on Tuttle-Side, for 70 Boys, and 40 Girls, who are maintain'd here, and afterwards put out Apprentices. It was erected by the Contributions of charitable Persons in 1706. 2. Green-Coat Hospital in Tuttle-Side, for the poor Fatherless Children of the Parish. 'Twas founded by K. Char. I. in 1633, and he endow'd it with 50 l. per Ann. 'Twas afterwards rebuilt, and farther endow'd by others. Adjoining to it is Bridewell, a House of Correction for punishing Vagrants, and setting them at work; and some of the Poor of Westminster are likewise employ'd here. There are also several Alms-Houses well endow'd, which we have not room to describe. Here are also many Squares, the chief of which are St. James's, Covent-Garden, Bloomsbury, Soho, Leicester-Fields, Golden-Square, &c. inhabited by the Nobility, chief Gentry, &c. Here are many large and plentiful Markets for Provisions of all sorts, as St. James's, Newport-Market, Clare-Market, the Hay-Market, Covent-Garden, and King-Street-Market in Westminster. The Mewse is a large Square near Charing-Cross for the King's Stables and Coaches. And there are three Theatres for the Diversion of People of Quality; one for Opera's in the Hay-Market, the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, and another in Lincolns-Inn-Fields for Plays: And there are several Bagnio's and Hummums for Bathing, Shaving, Cupping, &c. and several Tennis-Courts, Cock-Pits, &c.

XVII. ESSEX,

HAS Middlesex and Hertfordshire on the W. Cambridgeshire and Suffolk on the N. the German Ocean on the E. and the Thames, which divides it from Kent, on the S. 'Tis above 40 m. from E. to W. and 36 from S. to N. sends 8 Memb. to Parl. and contains 20 Hundreds, 22 Market-Towns, 415 Parishes, 46 Parks, one Forest, one Castle, 1240000 Acres, 34819 Houses, and 208800 Souls. 'Tis in the Diocese of London. Its chief Rivers are the Thames, Stour, Lea, Stort, Coln, Chalmer, Blackwater, Crouch, and Roding, besides lesser ones, all abounding with Fish.

The Air is generally temperate; but near the Sea and the Thames, among the Hundreds, is moist, and the Inhabitants subject to Agues. This County has plenty of Corn, Cattel, Wood, and Wild-Fowl. Saffron grows to Admiration in the N. Parts; where the Soil is so good in some Places, that after 3 Crops of Saffron, it yields good Barley for near 20 Years together without dunging. This County gives the Title of Earl to the Family of the Capels.

Places of Note are,

1. Walden, on the Borders of Cambridgeshire, called Saffron-Walden, because of the Plenty of Saffron in the Neighbourhood, which was first observ'd to be an English Produce in the Reign of Ed. III. Here is a plentiful Market on Saturd. and a Fair on Oct. 21. The Town is govern'd by a Mayor and 24 Aldermen, out of whom is yearly chose a Treasurer, who is the Head-Officer, and 2 Chamberlains his Assistants. It gives Title of Baron to the eldest Son of the E. of Suffolk. Audley-End on the S. side of it, is noted for the Ruins of a Palace once the largest in England, and is still the Seat of the E. of Suffolk. It lies in a fine Country for Game.

2. Haveril, 8 m. N. E. of Walden, has a Market on Wednesdays.

3. Thaxted, near the R. Don, 6 m. N. E. from Walden. It is govern'd by a Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty; has a handsome Church, a small Market on Frid. and a Fair on Lammas-Day.

4. Halsted, 8 m. E. of Thaxted, has a Market on Fridays.

5. Manningtree or Maintree, 14 m. E. of Halsted, is a small Town with a Market on Tuesd. and annual Fairs.

6. Bradfield, 2 m. S. E. of Manningtree, has a Market on Thursd.

7. Harwich, 7 m. E. of Bradfield, and 60 from London, lies near the Mouth of the Stour, and has a very safe Harbour. The Town is not large, but populous and strong, and almost encompass'd by the Sea. The Streets are pav'd mostly with a sort of Clay, which tumbling down from the Cliffs, soon turns as hard as Stone. It was first made a free Borough by K. Edward II. and K. James I. who new modell'd the Charter. The Government is by a Mayor, chose on St. Andrew's Day by the Capital-Burgesses, out of 8 Aldermen, who with 24 Capital Burgesses constitute the Corporation, and chuse 2 Memb. of Parl. Here's a Market on Frid. and 2 Fairs for 3 Days each; one begins on St. Luke's, and the other on May-Day. The Mayor has a Power to hold Admiralty-Courts for Naval Affairs, and for Return of Writs, Fines, &c. and with the preceding Mayor, any one of the 11 appointed for that purpose, may put them in Execution. Here's a good Yard with Store-houses, Cranes, Lanches, &c. for building Men of War, &c. 'Tis the Station of the Packet-Boats which pass to and from Holland with Letters and Passengers. K. William honour'd the D. of Schomberg with the Title of Marq. of Harwich. Over against Harwich stands Landger-Fort, with the Remains of an antient Fortification, and an artificial Hill, from whence there's a lovely Prospect of the Coasts of Essex and Suffolk, Harwich, and the Men of War in the Gunfleet. There are 2 or 3 Islands S. of Harwich, which breed Sea-Fowl that are delicious Meat when fat.

8. Dunmow, 6 m. S. of Thaxted, on the top of a pretty steep gravelly Hill. It has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Oct. 25. and April 28. 'Tis govern'd by 12 Headboroughs, out of whom is annually chose a Bailiff, who is the chief Officer. The Church stands near a m. from the Town, to which Little Dunmow joins on the E. Little Dunmow had antiently a Priory, with a Custom, That he who cou'd take his Oath before the Prior and Convent and the whole Town, kneeling on two picked Stones, that he has not repented him of his Marriage in a Year and a Day, and never quarrell'd with, or injur'd his Wife, should have a Gammon of Bacon. The Records of the Priory mention 3 that claim'd and receiv'd it; and the Custom going along with the Manor, we hear some have lately receiv'd it.

9. Braintree, almost 7 m. E. of Dunmow, near the R. Blackwater, has a Market on Wednesd. well furnish'd with Corn and other Provisions, a Fair which begins Sept. 21. and holds 3 Days, another the like on April 27. Great Quantities of Bays and Says are made here, which were begun by Flemings driven out of the Netherlands by the D. of Alva.

10. Witham, 5 m. S. E. of Braintree, is a neat Town, with a Market on Tuesd. a Fair on Michaelmas-Day, and a great Thorow-fare to Harwich, Suffolk, &c.

11. Coggeshal, 3 m. ½ N. E. from Witham, has a Market on Saturd. and a Fair on Tuesd. and Wednesd. in Whitsun-Week. It had formerly a great Trade in Bays and Says, and was very famous for a sort of Whites, finer than any Cloth in England. Many rais'd great Estates by this Trade, but 'tis now much diminish'd.

12. Colchester, almost 7 m. E. of Coggeshal, and 43 from London, stands on the R. Coln. 'Tis suppos'd to have been a Roman Colony, abundance of their Coins being frequently found here; and their Churches and Towers seem to have been built of Roman Bricks and Ruins. The Inhabitants boast that it was the Birth-Place of K. Lucius, the Emperor Constantine, and his Mother Helena. 'Tis so much improv'd in Trade and Buildings, that 'tis the best and most populous Town in the County. It stands pleasantly on the top of a Hill, with 2 long Streets running down to the bottom, and several Springs issuing out of it. It was formerly strong, but the Fortifications are demolished. Here are Markets on Wednesd. Frid. and Saturd. and Fairs June 24. July 12. and Oct. 9. The Buildings are fair, and Inns commodious. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, 11 Aldermen, a Recorder, Deputy-Recorder, Town-Clerk, 18 Assistants, and 18 Common-Council, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis a Liberty in it self; has 4 Wards, 8 Parishes within the Walls, and 8 without. 'Tis the most famous Place in England for Bays and Says. There's a Colony of Dutchmen planted here for the Support of the Trade, who have a Hall, and Officers to examine into the Manufacture. And 'tis said, that before the last War this Town made a Return of 30000 l. per Week for those Stuffs; but the Trade is now lessen'd. 'Tis also noted for excellent large Oysters, and candying Eringo-Roots. Here's a Corporation for maintaining the Poor, consisting of the Mayor, and Aldermen for the Time being, and 48 Guardians.

13. Hatfield-Regis, or King's-Hatfield, alias Broadoak, 6 m. S. W. of Dunmow, has a Market on Saturd. and a Fair on St. James's-Day. This Town is noted for an antient Seat call'd Barrington-Hall, belonging to the Family of the Barringtons.

14. Chipping-Ongar, 5 m. S. E. from Harlow, has a weekly Market on Saturd.

15. Chelmsford, almost 9 m. E. of Chipping-Ongar, near the Conflux of the Can and the Chelmer, has a Market on Frid. and Fairs on May 1. and Nov. 1. 'Tis a pretty large populous Town, almost in the Centre of the County, and a great Thorow-fare to and from London. The Assizes for the County are generally held here, with the General Quarter-Sessions, Petty-Sessions, and County-Courts. 'Tis likewise the Place for chusing Knights of the Shire, and of the County-Gaol. K. Edw. VI. founded and handsomely endow'd a Free-School here.

16. Malden, about 8 m. E. from Chelmsford, and 32 from London. It stands on an Eminence, was the first Roman Colony in Britain, nam'd Camalodunum, and the Royal Seat of some of the old British Kings. Q. Boadicea besieg'd, plunder'd, and burnt it, and made a great Slaughter here among the Romans, who afterwards rais'd it again. 'Twas ...

by the Danes, but rebuilt by the Saxons. 'Tis a Borough and Corporation, govern'd by 2 Bailiffs, 6 Aldermen, with 18 Headboroughs, a Steward, Recorder, 400 Commonalty, and Burgeſſes, who all vote in electing its 2 Memb. to Parl. It is a Liberty in it ſelf, has a convenient Haven on a Branch of the Sea for Ships of 400 Ton; and ſome of the Inhabitants drive a conſiderable Trade in Coal, Iron, Deals, and Corn. 'Tis pretty populous and large. It has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Sept. 8. and March 25. Here's a large Library for the Uſe of the Miniſter and Clergy of the neighbouring Hundreds, who reſide here generally, becauſe of the Unwholeſomeneſs of the Air where their Churches lie. There's alſo a Grammar-School, and a Work-Houſe, where the Poor are employ'd to weave Sackcloth. The Town gives Title of Viſcount to the E. of Eſſex; and the Pariſh is under the Juriſdiction of the Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter. A little beyond this Town begins Blackwater-Bay; 'tis famous for the Walfleet Oyſters, ſo call'd from the Shore where they lie, which is 5 m. long, and guarded by a Wall of Earth to keep out the Sea.

17. Epping, about 6 m. W. of Chipping-Ongar. 'Tis a neat Town in the Royal Foreſt of that Name, which formerly reach'd from hence to London. About a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. of the Church there's a Hamlet call'd Epping-Street, with a Market on Thurſd. and Frid. and an annual Fair. Wanſted, in this Foreſt, is noted for one of the moſt noble Seats in England, belonging to the E. of Caſtlemain.

18. Waltham-Abbey, or Holy Croſs, 3 m. S. W. from Epping, on the ſame ſide of the Foreſt. Here was antiently a famous Monaſtery. It has a ſmall Market on Tueſd. and an annual Fair.

19. Ingerſtone, a little Market-Town, about 11 m. E. of Waltham-Abbey.

20. Brentwood, or Burntwood, is another Town, 6 m. S. W. with a conſiderable Market on Thurſd. and a Fair on July 7. The Aſſizes have ſeveral Times been kept here.

21. Billericay, 4 m. E. of Brentwood, is a conſiderable Town, with a Market on Tueſd. which has plenty of Corn and other Proviſions; and a Fair on July 21.

22. Rumford, 5 m. S. W. of Burntwood, is a famous Market-Town for Hogs, Calves, and other Cattle on Tueſd. and for Corn on Wedneſd. 'Tis govern'd by a Bailiff and Wardens, who have a Power, by an antient Patent, to keep a Court every Week for the Tryal of Treaſons, Felonies, Debts, or other Actions.

23. Barking, 4 m. N. W. of Rumford, has a Market on Saturd. and an annual Fair.

24. Horndon, about 12 m. E. from Barking, a ſmall T. with a Market on Saturd. and a yearly Fair. 'Tis call'd Horndon on the Hill, to diſtinguiſh it from the Villages of E. Horndon and W. Horndon.

25. Raleigh, above 8 m. N. E. of Horndon, is a very pretty Town, with a Market on Saturd. and an annual Fair.

26. Rochford, 3 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. of Raleigh, has a Market on Thurſd. and an annual Fair. It gives Title of Earl to Frederick Son of William-Henry, the late Ld of Zuleſtein, whom K. William III. created Earl for his many Services.

27. Grayes, or Thurrock, near the Thames, 9 m. S. E. of Barking, has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on May 12. June 29. and Oct. 9.

28. Tilbury-Fort, 4 m. S. E. is a noted Fortification, with a conſtant Gariſon, over-againſt Graveſend.

XVIII. SUFFOLK,

HAS Norfolk on the N. Eſſex on the S. Cambridgeſhire on the W. and the Sea on the E. 'Tis 40 m. from E. to W. and 34 from S. to N. contains 995000 Acres, and 34442 Houſes. It lies in the Dioceſe of Norwich, is divided into 22 Hundreds, contains 575 Pariſhes, 32 Market-Towns, and ſends 14 Memb. to Parl. The Air is wholeſome, except towards the Sea. The Soil is various: That near the Sea is ſandy, and full of Heaths, yet produces plenty of Rye, Peaſe, and Hemp, and feeds great Flocks of Sheep. That call'd High Suffolk, or the Wood-Lands, abounds with Wood, and feeds abundance of Cattel. Here are above 40 Parks. The chief Rs. are the Stour, Breton, Deben, Orwell, and Blithe. The Butter of this County is much valued; but their Cheeſe, of which they make great ſtore, not ſo much. Their chief Manufactures are Woollen and Linen. This County has given Title of Marquiſs and Duke to ſeveral Families, and now gives that of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Howard.

We begin with the Boroughs.

1. Ipſwich, 60 m. N. E. of London, and 10 from Maningtree in Eſſex. They had Charters in K. John's Time. The laſt was from Charles II. E. of Framlingham, Market on Thurſd. has a Harbour for Ships. Stow, 8 m. S. of Mendleſham, Market on Thurſd. has a Trade in Stuffs. Needham, 2 m. S. E. The chief Trade is in Blue and Broad-Cloths for Ruſſia, Turky, &c. Market on Wedneſd. Near this Place is Hemmingſton, held formerly by this merry Tenure, ſays Camden, that the Proprietor was on Chriſtmas-Day to give one Leap, make one Puff with his Cheeks, and let one Fart before the King. Woodbridge, 10 m. S. E. has a Harbour and Docks for Ships, Market on W. and is neatly built upon the R. Deben. 'Tis a large well frequented Town. Lavenham, 10 m. S. W. of Stow, Market on Tueſd. Bideſton, 6 m. S. of Stow, Market on Wedneſd. Clare, on the R. Stour, 9 m. S. E. of Lavenham, Market on Frid. gives Title of Earl to the D. of Newcaſtle. Haveril, near the Head of the Stour, 6 m. W. Market on Wedneſd. Hadley, 8 m. N. E. of Sudbury, Market on Wedneſd. is a Peculiar of Canterbury, formerly noted for making Cloth: it has a fine Church. Nevland, 5 m. S. W. has a Bridge over the Stour, Market on Frid. New-Market, 10 m. W. of Edmunds-Bury, is by ſome plac'd in this Shire, and by others in that of Cambridge, in which one of its Pariſhes ſtands, Market on Thurſd. and Fair on St. Luke's Day. This Place is famous for Horſe-Races on the neighbouring Heath; which draws many of the Nobility hither about Michaelmas; and on the ſide of the Heath, near Cambridge, there's a Houſe for receiving the King.

XIX. NORFOLK,

HAS Suffolk on the S. the Sea on the N. and E. and part of Lincolnſhire and Cambridgeſhire on the W. is 50 m. where longeſt E. and W. and 30 where broadeſt S. and N. It lies in the Dioceſe of Norwich, contains 1148000 Acres, 47180 Houſes, 31 Hundreds, 660 Pariſhes, 33 Market-Towns, and 625 Villages and Country Towns. It ſends 12 Memb. to Parl. The Air in the Champain Country near the Sea is ſharp. This Part abounds with Corn, Sheep, and Rabbits. The Wood-Land is well ſtor'd with Black Cattel and Sheep, Paſturage and Corn. The Soil is various; in ſome Places fat, and in others ſandy; and the beſt is about the Towns. The Heaths where the Sheep are folded, yield plenty of Corn when ploughed. It has plenty of Wood and Water; and the principal Rivers are the Ouſe, Waveney, Yare, and Thryn. The Manufactures are Stuffs and Stockings; and the other chief Commodities are Corn, Wool, Honey, and Saffron. The Coaſt abounds with Herring and other Fiſh; and Jet and Amber are ſometimes found on the Shore. This County gives Title of Duke to the Chief of the Howards. The People are reckon'd litigious, ſays Camden; and ſome reckon 1500 Attorneys here, who cut out more Work for the Judges than any 3 other Counties.

The Boroughs are,

1. Norwich, 90 m. N. E. from London, on the R. Yare. It was a noted City before the Conqueſt. Hen. IV. made it a County of it ſelf in 1403. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, choſe out of 24 Aldermen, has 2 Sheriffs, a Recorder, and Steward, (who, with the Mayor, are Juſtices of the Quorum) and 6 Common-Council-Men. It has 12 Gates, 5 Stone Bridges over the R. which runs through it, 34 Churches within the Walls, beſides the Cathedral, Markets Wedneſd. and Saturd. and Fairs on Maundy-Thurſday, Whitſun and Trinity Eves. The chief Manufacture is Worſted Stuffs. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by all the Freemen and Freeholders of the City. 'Tis about a m. ½ long, and half ſo much broad. It yields to few in England for fair Structures, Number of People, Humanity of the Rich, and Induſtry of the Common-ſort. The chief Buildings, beſides the Churches, are the Palaces of the D. of Norfolk, the Town-Hall, the Market-Houſe, the Houſe of Correction, the Croſs, and the Hoſpital for 100 poor Men and Women. Here are the Ruins of an old Saxon Caſtle. The Cathedral, founded by its firſt Biſhop in 1096, is chiefly noted for its lofty Spire. There are 1121 Pariſhes in Norfolk and Suffolk under this See. The Town has ſuffer'd much by Fire, Peſtilence, and Rebellions, eſpecially by that of Kett a Tanner in K. Edw. VIth's Time; but the Trade was reſtor'd by Q. Eliz. ſhe having ſent part of the Flemings hither that fled from the D. of Alva's Tyranny, who ſettled a Manufacture of Says, Bays, &c. of which 'tis reckon'd 100000 l. worth is ſold here annually. The Houſes are reckon'd 7000, and the People 30000. It gives Title of Earl to the D. of Norfolk.

2. King's-Lyn, on the Ouſe, 80 m. N. E. of London. 'Twas a Bor. by Preſcription before K. John, who, becauſe it ſided with him againſt the Barons, made it a Free Bor. with large Privileges. Dr. Gibſon ſays, he did not make it a Mayor-Town, but only appointed them a Provoſt. He adds, that the Story of K. John's giving them his Sword from his Side, which is that carried before the Mayor, is a Fable; and that it was given by Hen. VIII. who, after the Town came into his Hands by Exchange with the Bp. of Norwich, call'd it King's-Lyn, whereas before 'twas Biſhop's-Lyn. He adds, from a Paper of Sir Hen. Spelman, dated Sept. 15. 1630. that Sir Henry was aſſur'd by Mr. Kenet, the Town-Clerk, that one Cook, the Sword-Bearer, did about 50 Years before get the Inſcription on the Hilt, ſignifying that 'twas given by K. John, fraudulently engraven. He does not contradict the Story of K. John's having given them a large Silver Cup with a Cover, double gilt and enamell'd, of about 80 Ounces, nor that of the 4 large Silver gilt Maces, carry'd before the Mayor; but ſays, Hen. III. made it a Mayor-Town for their ſerving him againſt the Barons. It has been honour'd with 15 Royal Charters, and is govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Under-Steward, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, and 18 Common-Council-Men. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has 2 Market-Places, where Markets are kept on Thurſd. and Sat. The Fair begins Feb. 3. and laſts 7 Days. It has 2 Churches, of which one has a very high Spire. 'Tis large, rich, and well inhabited, defended by Walls, a large Ditch, and 2 Forts, has a ſafe Harbour, and conſiderable Trade; but wanting freſh Springs, is ſupplied by Leaden Pipes, &c. from Places 2 or 3 m. diſtant. It gives Title of Baron to the Ld Townſhend. Over-againſt it, on the other ſide the R. lies that call'd the Marſhland, a ſmall marſhy Tract, with Ditches to carry off the Water. It contains about 30000 Acres, and the wideſt Part is about 10 m. over. There are 111 Bridges over the Ditches. Sir Hen. Spelman ſays, it was twice over-flow'd in his Memory; once by ſalt, and another time by freſh Water. But 'tis now fenc'd by a ſubſtantial Wall of Brick and Earth, and turns to a good Account by Corn and Paſture; ſo that the Place call'd Tilney-Smeeth feeds about 30000 Sheep. Spelman alſo takes notice, that one of the moſt conſiderable Places in this Tract is Walpole, which the Ld of the Manor formerly gave to the Church of Ely with his Son, whom he made a Monk there.

3. Caſtle-Riſing, 3 m. N. from Lyn, and 90 N. E. from London, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, has a Mayor and between 50 and 60 Burgageholders belonging to it, but now has only 5 Inhabitants; yet it retains its antient Privileges of ſending 2 Memb. to Parl. Its Fair of 15 Days, and 2 weekly Markets, now ceaſe. The Honourable —— Fielding Eſq; is Ld of the Bor. and his Steward holds a Court, at which the Mayor is ſworn, after being elected by the Burgageholders.

4. Great Yarmouth, at the Influx of the R. Yare into the Sea, 10 m. E. of Norwich, and 106 N. E. of London, is a very antient Town, govern'd by a Mayor and 18 Aldermen, of whom he is one, 36 Common-Council-Men, a Recorder, and Under-Steward. The Markets are on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and the Fair on the Frid. before Good-Friday. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſen by the Freemen at large, who are about 500. It has the beſt Harbour in the County, and a great Trade in exporting Corn, and fiſhing for Herring, &c. on their own Coaſts about Sept. and at Iſeland and other Places in the N. Seas. 'Tis pretty large, rich, well built, and fortified by Nature and Art. This Town is bound by Charter to ſend the Sheriffs of Norwich 100 Herrings baked in 24 Pyes, and from thence deliver'd to the Ld of the Manor of Eaſt Carleton, who is to convey them to the King, and give the Town a Receipt for them. The Roads which lie E. from this Town are famous for the Rendevouz of the Coal-Fleets, and others; but there are dangerous Sands in the Neighbourhood. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Paſton ſince K. Char. II's Time.

5. Thetford lies near the Border of Suffolk, 80 m. N. E. of London. 'Twas incorporated by Q. Eliz. has a Mayor, Recorder, 10 Aldermen, 20 Commonalty, a Town-Clerk, a Sword-Bearer, and Mace-Bearer. The Biſhop's See was remov'd from hence to Norwich. The Lent Aſſizes are uſually held here. The chief Manufacture is Woollen Cloth. It lies in a pleaſant open Country on the Thet and Ouſe, 2 navigable Rivers, of which the firſt runs thro it. Here are 3 Churches, 3 Markets per Week, the chief of them on Saturd. for Corn and other Proviſions. The Fairs are on May 3. Mary Magdalen's and Holy-Rood Days.

Other Market-Towns are, Burnham in the N. W. Corner. 'Tis a Harbour for Ships, and has a Market on Saturd. Snelſham, or Snetham, 7 m. S. W. of Burnham. The Market is on Frid. Walſingham, 7 m. S. E. of Burnham, Market on Frid. 'Tis noted for good Saffron in the Neighbourhood. Clay, 6 m. N. E. of Walſingham, has a Harbour for Ships, and a Market. Holt, 2 m. N. of Clay, has a Market on Saturd. Cromer, on the Coaſt, 8 m. E. of Clay, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships. Walſham, 7 m. S. E. of Cromer, Market on Thurſd. Aleſham, 6 m. S. W. of Walſham, has a Market on Saturd. and is inhabited chiefly by Knitters. Fackingham, or Fakenham, 4 m. S. of Walſingham, Market on Thurſd. Foulſham, 6 m. S. E. has a Market on Tueſd. Caſton, 9 m. N. of Norwich, Market on Tueſd. Worſted, 4 m. S. E. of Aleſham, Market on Saturd. Hikling, 6 m. E. of Worſted, has a weekly Market. Repeham, 2 m. S. W. of Caſton, Market on Saturd. is noted for its 3 Churches in one Church-Yard. Lytcham, 9 m. W. of Repeham. Seechy, 2 m. S. of Lyn, has a Market on Mond. Downham, 5 m. S. of Seechy, on the R. Ouſe, has a Market on Saturd. and a Port for Barges. Swaffham, 10 m. N. E. has a Market on Saturd. Dereham, 9 m. N. E. Market on Frid. Watton, 6 m. S. E. of Swaffham, has a Market on Wedneſd. Methwold, 7 m. S. of Downham. Hingham, 5 m. E. of Watton, has a Market on Saturd. and is call'd Little London by the Neighbours. Windham, 4 m. N. E. Market on Frid. has a Church with a high Steeple, on which Kett, the Rebel, was hang'd. Lodden, 10 m. S. E. Attleborough, 13 m. S. W. Market on Thurſd. Buckenham, 3 m. S. W. Market on Sat. had a fine ſtrong Caſtle in Camden's Time. Herling, 3 m. S. E. Market on Tueſd. Diſs, 7 m. E. a Market on Frid. Harleſton, 7 m. N. E. Market on Wedneſd.

XX. CAMBRIDGESHIRE,

HAS part of Norfolk and Suffolk on the E. part of Northamptonſhire and Huntingtonſhire on the W. part of Lincolnſhire on the N. and part of Hertfordſhire and Eſſex on the S. is about 35 m. S. and N. and 20 E. and W. lies in the Dioceſe of Ely, has 570000 Acres, 17350 Houſes, 17 Hundreds, 10 Market-Towns, and 163 Pariſh-Churches. It ſends 6 Memb. to Parl. and contains about 140000 People, 6 Rivers, 7 Bridges, and 5 Parks. It abounds with Corn, Paſture, Fiſh, wild Fowl, Cattel, and Saffron. The N. Parts, call'd the Iſle of Ely, are full of Marſhes, ſubject to be over-flow'd by the Ouſe and other Rivers, which makes them unhealthful; and they yield little Corn, but have plenty of Cattel, Fiſh, and wild Fowl. The Soil is reckon'd good or bad on the Extremes; but has been improv'd of late by draining the Fens, and planting Cinquefoil, which has brought ſome Lands from 5 s. to 30 s. an Acre.

Places of Note are,

1. Cambridge, the Capital, on the R. Cam, 44 m. N. from London. 'Tis very antient, was incorporated by Hen. I. and the Charter confirm'd by K. John. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, a Recorder, 13 Aldermen, of whom the Mayor is one, 24 Common-Council-Men, a Town-Clerk, and other inferior Officers. It has 14 Pariſh-Churches, Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. the laſt the chief, a Fair that holds a Week from Midſummer-Day, and Stourbridge Fair that begins the 8th of Sept. and holds a Fortnight, and is one of the moſt conſiderable in the Kingdom. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Cam forms ſeveral Iſlands on the W. ſide, and divides the Town into 2 Parts, which are join'd by a Bridge, beyond which are the Remains of a fine old Caſtle, whoſe Gate-Houſe ſerves for the County-Goal. The Mayor, at entring into his Office, ſwears to maintain the Privileges of the Univerſity, which alſo ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. This City has given the Title of Earl to ſeveral of the Royal Family, and others, and now gives Title of Duke to the Prince of Wales. The Town and Univerſity are both very antient; and ſome pretend that the Romans had their Schools here, and that K. Lucius founded the Univerſity: But that is generally aſcrib'd to Sigebert King of the E. Angles, about the Year 630 and 636; and he procur'd great Immunities for it from Pope Honorius I. which were confirm'd by Sergius I. The D. of Somerſet is Chancellor of the Univerſity, and the Vice-Chancellor is one of the Heads of a College, or Hall, choſe annually Nov. 3. and under him are 2 Proctors. The Houſes, Halls, and Colleges, are as follow:

(1.) Peterhouſe was founded by Hugh Balſham, Prior, and afterwards Bp. of Ely. His Succeſſors have been liberal Benefactors to it, ſo that now 1 Maſter, 22 Fellows, and 42 Scholars are maintain'd in it. 'Tis a large ſquare Building, well contriv'd, and adorn'd with Portico's. Their Chappel was begun by Dr. Matthew Wren Biſhop of Ely, about about 50 Years ago, and is ſince compleated by his Succeſſors and others.

(2.) Clare-Hall was founded by Richard Badew, who call'd it Univerſity-Hall. It was burnt down, but rebuilt and endow'd by one of the Co-heireſſes of Gilbert E. of Clare, who call'd it Clare-Hall. The Revenues are much increas'd ſince; ſo that it maintains a Maſter, 18 Fellows, and 63 Scholars. It is a beautiful Square of Free-Stone, 3 Stories high, and of the Dorick Order. It has a lofty Gate-Houſe with 2 Rows of Pillars. Another Structure adjoins to it, of which the upper Story is the Library, and the lower the Chappel. Here's a large Bridge over the R. which leads to a Meadow that belongs to the College.

(3.) Pembroke-Hall, founded in 1347, by the Counteſs of Pembroke. It maintains a Maſter, 5 Fellows, and 13 Scholars. It was enlarg'd and repair'd in the laſt Century, and had a new Chappel.

(4.) Bennet-College was erected much about the ſame Time by 2 Fraternities, or Guilds, in the Reign of Edw. III. It was nam'd from St. Benedict's Church adjoining, which belongs to it. 'Tis a large Square, has 2 Courts, and 2 Rows of Lodgings, with a Chappel and Library. It maintains a Maſter, 12 Fellows, and 40 Scholars. Dr. Matthew Parker, once its Maſter, and afterwards ABp of Canterbury, was one of its chief Benefactors. He gave Lands for maintaining 2 Fellows and 13 Scholars, built the inner Part of the Library, with 2 Chambers adjoining, gave it his own Library of valuable Books and Manuſcripts, beſides 100 choice Books, fifty of them in Manuſcript, to the Univerſity. He alſo gave the College 310 Ounces of gilt Plate, the Patronage of St. Mary Abchurch, London, and 100 l. to buy Land, for maintaining a Fire in the Hall from the Beginning of November to the End of January.

(5.) Trinity-Hall was formerly a Houſe, where Students liv'd at their own Charge, built and enlarg'd by Richard Ling, Chancellor of the Univerſity, and others. The Prior of Ely procur'd it of Edw. III. for his Monks to ſtudy in; but 'twas ſoon after purchaſed by William Bateman, Bp of Norwich, who erected it into a College for one Maſter, 3 Fellows, and 3 Scholars to ſtudy the Civil and Canon Law. It has been ſince augmented, and now maintains one Maſter, 12 Fellows, and 14 Scholars. 'Tis not regular, but has a Chappel, Library, Hall, convenient Apartments, and Gardens.

(6.) Gonville and Caius College was founded by Mr. Gonville, Rector of Terrington, in the Place where now are the Orchard and Tennis-Court of Bennet-College. He dying, left a large Sum to Bp Bateman of Norwich to finiſh and endow it. The Bp remov'd it to where it now ſtands, and call'd it Gonville-Hall. Above 200 Years after, John Caius, M. D. and Maſter of the College, repair'd and enlarg'd it one half; ſo that he is reputed a Co-founder. It now maintains 1 Maſter, 12 Fellows of the firſt Rank, 14 of the ſecond, and 74 Scholars.

(7.) King's-College, founded by K. Hen. VI. in 1441, for 1 Provoſt, 70 Fellows and Scholars, 3 Chaplains, and an Organiſt. Hen. VII. carried it on, and built the Outſide of the Chappel, which is 188 Foot long, and 40 broad. K. Hen. VIII. glaz'd the Windows, built the Seats, and pav'd it with fine Marble. It is reckon'd one of the fineſt Structures in the World for its Carving, Roof, and painted Glaſs. The College it ſelf was never finiſh'd according to the firſt Model.

(8.) Queen's-College, begun by Margaret of Anjou, Wife of Hen. VI. but not being able to finiſh it becauſe of the Civil Wars, ſhe left 200 l. per Ann. for a Maſter and 4 Fellows. And Ducket, the firſt Preſident, by Aſſiſtance from Edw. IV's Queen and others, compleated the Structure. It now maintains 1 Preſident, 19 Fellows, 12 Bible-Clerks, 4 Greek Scholars, 40 Scholars of the Houſe, and Lecturers for Hebrew, Arithmetick, and Geometry, beſides other Officers. 'Tis one of the pleaſanteſt in the Univerſity for Situation, convenient Lodgings, pleaſant Gardens, Orchards, and Walks; which made Eraſmus chuſe to ſtudy here.

(9.) Catherine-Hall, founded by Richard Woodlark, Provoſt of King's-College, in the Time of Edw. IV. and dedicated to St. Catherine. It now maintains 1 Maſter, 6 Fellows, and 30 Scholars.

(10.) Jeſus-College was firſt a Nunnery, founded by the E. of Huntingdon in 1133: But the Nuns being leud, John Alcock, Bp of Ely, obtain'd it for a College from Hen. VII. and dedicated it to Jeſus, &c. It now maintains 1 Maſter, 16 Fellows, and 31 Scholars.

(11.) Chriſt's-College, founded by Margaret Counteſs of Richmond, Mother of Hen. VII. It now maintains 1 Maſter, 15 Fellows, 50 Scholars, and 6 Servitors. It has been much adorn'd within theſe 50 Years with new Buildings.

(12.) St. John's-College, begun by the ſame Counteſs of Richmond about 19 Years after the other. She left Money to finiſh it; and at preſent it maintains 1 Maſter, 54 Fellows, and above 100 Scholars. It has always been crowded with Students; and tho 2 Courts are added to that erected at firſt, there is ſcarce room enough.

(13.) Magdalen-College was formerly a Hall for Monks to ſtudy Univerſity Learning. It now maintains 1 Maſter, 13 Fellows, and 30 Scholars.

(14.) Trinity-College was founded by Hen. VIII. in the 38th of his Reign, out of 3 other ſmall Colleges. He endow'd it for 1 Maſter, 60 Fellows, 40 Scholars, and 20 poor Scholars. Q. Mary added 20 Scholars, 10 Choriſters with their Maſter, 13 poor Scholars, 2 Subſizers, and 4 Chaplains. The Revenues and Buildings have been enlarg'd ſince; ſo that 'tis reckon'd one of the moſt beautiful, regular, and ſpacious in Europe. It has 2 large Courts, and a noble Library lately built of Free-Stone, ſupported by 2 Rows of Pillars; ſo that it is the moſt magnificent Structure of its kind to be ſeen any where. The Number of Scholars and Officers have been augmented by Benefactors, but not the Fellows. Here are 3 Royal Profeſſors, a Library-Keeper, 4 Conducts, 20 Almſmen, and other Officers, maintain'd by the Foundation.

(15.) Emanuel-College, founded by Sir Walter Mildmay, Chancellor of the Dutchy and Exchequer. It now maintains 1 Maſter, 14 Fellows, 50 Scholars, 10 poor Scholars, and the Officers of the College. It has a very neat Chappel.

(16.) Sidney-Suſſex-College, built at the Expence of Lady Francis Sidney, Widow of Thomas Ratcliffe E. of Suſſex. She left 5000 l. in Money, beſides her Goods unbequeath'd, towards it. Her Executors perform'd it; and by other Benefactions it conſiſts now of 2 Courts, and maintains 1 Maſter, 12 Fellows, and 28 Scholars, beſides the Officers and Servants of the Foundation.

The publick Schools are built in Form of a Square, with Brick and rough Stone, by ſeveral Benefactors. Every College has a Library, and moſt of 'em well ſtock'd with Books, eſpecially Trinity and St. John's. The Univerſity Library had loſt many of the Books formerly given it by Archbp. Rotheram of York, and Bp Tunſtal of Durham; but has been much increas'd ſince by thoſe of Archbps Grindal, Parker, and Bancroft, and by the Library of the late Dr. John More, Bp of Ely, which King George purchaſed for 6000 l. and gave to this Library. Every College has a Chappel for Worſhip; but the publick Sermons are preach'd at St. Mary's Church.

The chief Privileges of the Univerſity are, 1. That the Magiſtrates of the Town ſhall ſwear to maintain them; and that the Mayor ſhall weigh the Bread according to the Statute, when the Vice-Chancellor requires it. 2. That the Chancellor ſhall not be troubled for impriſoning Offenders, who he thinks deſerve it. 3. That ſuch Priſoners ſhall not be ſet free by the King's Writ. 4. That Maſters of Arts ſhall not be cited out of the Univerſity into the Court of Chriſtianity. 5. That the Chancellor may take cognizance of all Cauſes wherein Scholars are concern'd, except Maiming and Felony. 6. That the Overſight of all Victuals ſhall belong to the Chancellor. 7. That he and the Univerſity ſhall have Power to ſet Prices on Candles, licenſe all Victualling-Houſes, and inſpect Wares and Weights at Stourbridge Fair. 8. That no Action be brought by any Townſman againſt any Scholar, or Scholar's Servant, but in the Chancellor's Court. 9. That the Univerſity have Power to puniſh all Foreſtallers, Regraters, &c. 10. That they may print all ſorts of Books. 11. The Chancellor has all Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction over the Scholars and their Servants.

2. Ely, 10 m. N. of Cambridge, an antient Town, chief of the Fenny Country, call'd the Iſle of Ely. 'Twas made a Biſhop's See by Hen. I. in 1109. and the Biſhops were Count Palatines till Hen. VIII's Time. It ſtands on a riſing Ground in a ſort of an Iſland; but is unhealthful, becauſe of the Fens. The Cathedral and Biſhop's Palace are its chief Ornaments. The Town is pretty large, but not populous or beautiful. Here's a Free-School for 24 Boys, a Market on Saturd. and a Fair on Oct. 18.

3. Merſh, 13 m. N. W. has a Market on Frid. and Fairs on Mond. Tueſd. and Wedneſd. in Eaſter Week.

4. Wisbich, 8 m. N. E. has the beſt Trade of the Iſle of Ely by the Conveniency of Water-Carriage to London, whither it ſends yearly 52500 Quarters of Oats, 1000 Tun of Oil, 8000 Firkins of Butter; and furniſhes moſt of the Iſle with Commodities from London. Here's a Caſtle, which ſerves for a Priſon, a good Town-Hall, a plentiful Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Mond. before Lady-Day, Palm-Mond. and Whitſun-Eve. Here's a Harbour for Barges.

5. Soham, 4 m. N. E. of Ely, has a weekly Market, and Fairs April 28. and the Mond. before St. John's Day.

6. Caxton, 7 m. W. of Cambridge. William Caxton, the firſt Printer in England, was born here, and died in 1489. 'Tis the Stage betwixt Royſton and Huntington. The Market on Thurſd. and a Fair May 5.

7. Linton, 8 m. S. E. of Cambridge, has a Market on Thurſd.

We ſhall conclude this Shire with an Account of the Fens in the Upper and North Parts of it. In Camden's Time they were divided into Iſles by Ditches and Drains, abounded with Paſture in Summer, but in Winter and wet Seaſons were ſo overflow'd, that they look'd like a Sea; and the chief Profit they yielded were Fiſh, Fowl, Turf and Sedges for Firing, Reeds for Thatching, and Willows and Oſiers for Baskets. The Hiſtory and Deſcription of thoſe Fens was given by Sir Jonas Moore, who drew a Map of them: To which, and Sir William Dugdale's Account, we refer for Particulars. The great Level, call'd Bedford Level, contains about 300000 Acres of Fenny Ground, in the Counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge, Huntington, Northampton, and Lincoln, as ſurvey'd by Sir Jonas Moore. They appear formerly to have been dry Land, by the Ruins of Houſes, &c. in ſeveral Parts, and alſo by Malmsbury's Hiſtory; and the Alteration ſeems to have proceeded from Earthquakes, which ſtopp'd the Courſe of the Rivers. Several Attempts were made to drain them from the Time of Hen. VI. but without Succeſs, till the late Earls and Dukes of Bedford, the E. of Orford, and others, by joint Stocks carried on the Work, and have now brought them, at a vaſt Expence, to be good profitable Lands; by which Cambridge has a better Air, and Commodities cheaper; and the Country, as well as the Government, has great Advantage. This Work was encourag'd by ſeveral Acts of Parliament; and there's a Corporation appointed by a Royal Charter to take care of the Drains and Banks, and prevent their being caſt down by envious Perſons.

XXI. HUNTINGTONSHIRE,

HAS part of Northamptonſhire on the N. and W. Cambridgeſhire on the E. and Bedfordſhire on the S. The greateſt Length S. and N. is 24 m. and Breadth E. and W. 18. It is in Lincoln Dioceſe, has 240000 Acres, 8220 Houſes, and about 50000 People. 'Tis divided into 4 Hundreds and 78 Pariſhes, has 6 Market-Towns, 2 Rivers, 5 Bridges, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl.

The Air in the N. and E. Parts is not very wholeſome or pleaſant, becauſe of the many Fens and Moors. The Natives bear it well enough, and live long; but it makes Strangers ſickly. In other Parts the Air is very good. The Soil in ſome Parts yields ſtore of Corn, and Paſture in others. Here's great plenty of Water, Fowl, Fiſh, and Turf for Firing. The chief Rivers are, the Nen which bounds it on the W. and the Ouſe on the E. They abound with the common ſorts of Fiſh; but the Meers have the chief Name for Fiſh and Fowl, by catching and ſelling of which many Families are maintain'd. The Waters of the the Meers are often violently disturb'd in the calmest Weather, to the great Terror and Danger of the Fishermen, supposed to be occasion'd by Eruptions of Wind underneath. There are some medicinal Waters in this County. 'Twas antiently very woody and proper for Hunting, from whence came the Name. Some call'd it Willowshire, from its plenty of Willows. This County and Cambridgeshire have but one High-Sheriff for both, chosen in the different Counties, and different Places of them, alternately.

The chief Places of Note are,

1. Huntington, the County-Town, 50 m. N. of London. It gave Title of Earl formerly to some Princes of Scotland, who possess'd this Shire, was made a Free Bor. by K. John, had 15 Parishes, and now but 2. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and Burgesses, who elect the 2 Memb. of Parl. Its Markets are on Mond. and Saturd. and Fairs on Good-Friday, Lady-Day, July 20. and Sept. 8. It is a pretty Town, pleasantly situate on the N. side of the Ouse, over which it has a Bridge of Free-Stone. It has given Title of Earl to the Family of Hastings since the Time of Hen. VIII. 'Tis a good Place for inland Trade, populous, and well frequented, being a Thorow-fare for Travellers to and from the North. It has a Grammar-School, and is noted for the Birth of Oliver Cromwell. The Assizes and County-Goal are kept here.

2. St. Neots, or St. Needs, 6 m. S. W. of Huntington, a large well-built Town, has a good Market on Thursd. for Corn and Provisions, and Fairs on Aug. 1. Dec. 6. and Corpus-Christi-Day. Here's a large handsome Church with a fine Steeple, and a Stone Bridge over the Ouse, by which Coals are brought hither, and sold through the Country. It gives Title of Baron to the E. of Sandwich.

3. Godmanchester, a m. S. from Huntington, in the Roman Times a famous City, now a large Country Village; but so remarkable for Husbandry, that no Town in the Kingdom employs so many Ploughs. When K. James I. came through this Place from Scotland, the Inhabitants met him with 70 Teams of Horses trac'd to handsome new Ploughs. The K. ask'd the Reason; and being told they were his Majesty's Tenants, that they held their Lands by that Tenure, and always attended the Kings of England so when they pass'd through that Town, he was mightily pleas'd, bad them make good use of their Ploughs, and said he was glad to be Landlord to so many good Husbandmen in one Town. He incorporated them by the Name of 2 Bailiffs, 12 Assistants, and the Commonalty of the Bor. of Godmanchester: But 'tis no Market-Town, and sends no Memb. to Parl. tho reckon'd the biggest Town in England that has neither of those Privileges. The Inhabitants are for the most part strong and wealthy; and their Church is a Vicarage belonging to Westminster-Abbey.

4. Hinchinbrook, a m. W. of Huntington, a Village, which gives Title of Viscount to the E. of Sandwich, who has a Seat here that has one of the most magnificent Rooms in England, where K. Char. I. was honourably entertain'd when brought hither by Cornet Joyce from Holmby.

5. St. Ives, 2 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N.E. from Huntington, formerly a considerable Town, with a Mint, and fair Stone Bridge over the Ouse; but suffer'd much by Fire. It has a good Market on Mond. for fat Cattel and Provisions, and a Fair on Whit-Monday.

6. Ramsey, 6 m. N.E. of Huntington, has a Market on Frid. and an annual Fair. On the W. side of it (for every where else 'tis encompass'd with unpassable Fens) lies Ramsey-Isle, separated from the firm Land by a Causey, which is continued for 2 m. surrounded with Alders, Reeds, and Bulrushes, that in the Spring make a beautiful Show. This Island has Gardens, Corn-Fields, and rich Pastures, which in the Spring ravish the Eyes of the Spectators. The neighbouring Meers, especially that call'd Ramsey, abound with Fowl and Fish, particularly large Pikes. The Town has one of the best and cheapest Markets in England for fat Cattel and Water-Fowl. From this Place towards Peterborough, for 10 Miles, there's a Causey rais'd and pav'd with great Charge, call'd King's-Delf. Some think 'twas Canutus's Road; but Dr. Gibson thinks it to have been at first the Mark of a Ditch to drain those fenny Grounds.

7. Wittlesey-Meer, 8 m. N.W. of Huntington, is 6 m. long, and 3 broad, the Water clear, and full of Fish; yet, like the rest, is subject in calm Weather to violent Water-quakes. The Air about it is thick, foggy, and stinking; but the Plenty of Fish, Pastures, and Turf in the Neighbourhood makes an amends: And tho the Air is fatal to Strangers, the Natives bear it well enough, and live long.

8. Yaxley, 9 m. N. W. from Huntington, a neat small Town, with a Market on Tuesd.

9. Kimbolton, 6 m. S. W. from Huntington, gives Title of Lord and Viscount to the E. of Manchester, who has a noble Seat here. The Market is on Frid. and the Fairs on July 22. and Aug. 30.

XXII. NORTHAMPTONSHIRE,

HAS part of Oxford and Warwickshire on the N. part of Buckingham and Bedfordshire on the W. part of Huntington and Cambridgeshire on the S. and part of Leicester, Rutland, and Lincolnshire on the E. 'Tis about 45 m. where longest, and 20 where broadest; is in Peterborough Diocese, has about 550000 Acres; and 24808 Houses, sends 9 Memb. to Parl. has 11 Market-Towns, 20 Hundreds, and 326 Parishes. It has a healthful Air, a champain, rich, fruitful Soil, abundance of Inhabitants, and more Noblemens Seats and Parks than any other County. It abounds in Corn, Pasture, Sheep, and other Cattel, Wood, Pigeons, and Salt-Petre. Its chief Rivers are the Ouse, Weland, and the Nen: The last, with other Rivulets, often overflows the Country below Peterborough.

The Boroughs are,

1. Northampton, 55 m. N. W. from London, one of the prettiest Towns in England, on the Banks of the Nen, where it receives another small R. from the N. 'Twas burnt by the Danes, suffer'd much in the Barons Wars, and in 1675 was laid in Ashes by an accidental Fire; but soon after rebuilt much finer, and more uniform. 'Tis the Place for the County Goal and Assizes. The Walls are 2120 Paces in Compass. It is govern'd by a Mayor, 2 Bailiffs, 12 Magistrates, a Recorder, who is the E. of Northampton, a Town-Clerk, a Common-Council of 48 Burgesses, with 5 Serjeants. The 2 Members of Parliament are elected by the Freemen paying Scot and Lot. Here are 4 Parish-Churches, The Fairs are on St. George's, St. James's, St. Hugh's, and the 4 Days of our Lady; and the Markets on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays; but the last is the chief for Corn and other Provisions.

2. Peterborough, 62 m. N. W. of London, and about 28 N. E. of Northampton, on the same R. was made a City and Bishop's See by Hen. VIII. in 1541. The Dean and Chapter, which consists of 6 Prebendaries, are Lds of the Manor, and elect all the City Officers; and the E. of Exeter, who is Custos Rotulorum, nominates the Justices of the Peace. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of the Mordaunts, who are Earls both of Peterborough and Monmouth. Here is a Bridge over the Nen. The Cathedral is very magnificent: Its W. Front excells all in England for Statelines and Column-Work. The Diocese contains this and the Shire of Rutland, and has 293 Parishes, whereof 91 are impropriate. In the Choir of the Cathedral lie interr'd Catherine, Q. Dowager of Spain, divorc'd by K. Hen. VIII. and Mary Q. of Scotland. The Cloisters are fine and large, with Glass-Windows giving the History of its Founder, and the Succession of its Abbots. It has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs June 29. and Sept. 21.

3. Brackley, 52 m. N. W. of London, and 13 S. W. from Northampton, near the Head of the Ouse. 'Tis suppos'd to have been the third Bor. erected in England. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, 6 Aldermen, and 26 Burgesses. The E. of Bridgewater is Ld of the Bor. holds a Court-Leet annually, at which the Mayor is chose by the Burgesses, and return'd by the Steward. The 2 Parliament-Men are elected by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses. Here's a considerable Market on Wednesd. and 5 Fairs, the second Wednesd. in April, &c. but the greatest is on St. Andrew's Day, famous for fat Hogs, Boots, and Shoes. Here are 2 Parish-Churches, and a good Grammar-School.

4. Higham-Ferrers, 52 m. N. W. of London, and above 20 N. E. of Brackley, on the E. side of the Nen. It sends one Memb. to Parl. chose by the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgesses, and Commonalty. It has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on June 17. July 2. and Sept. 29. Here's a Free-School and an Alms-House.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Oundle, on the Nen, 9 m. N. of Higham-Ferrers, Market on Saturd. It has 2 Bridges, a fair Church, a Free-School, and Alms-House. It is noted for a Well that makes a drumming Noise sometimes, thought by the Country People to be a Forerunner of War, the Death of great Persons, or other Calamity. About 2 m. to the N. stands Fotheringhay-Castle, where Mary Q. of Scots was beheaded. 'Tis encompass'd with fine Meadows and a Park. 2. Thrapston, 5 m. S. W. of Oundle, has a Market on Tuesd. 3. Wellingborough, 4 m. S. W. of Higham-Ferrers, has a Market on Wednesd. It stands on the W. Bank of the Nen, is a large populous trading Town, with a fair Church and a Free-School. 4. Towcester, 6 m. S. of Northampton, has a fair Church, 3 Bridges, and a Market on Tuesd. 5. Daventry, or Daintry, 10 m. N. W. of Towcester, is a great Thorow-fare to and from the N. W. Counties, has a Market on Wednesd. and is govern'd by a Mayor and 12 Freemen. 6. Kettering, 15 m. N. E. of Daventry. It has a Sessions-House for the County, a Market on Frid. and a good Trade. 7. Rothwell, or Rouwell, 2 m. N. has a Market on Mond. and a noted Horse-Fair; and 5 or 6 m. W. is Naseby, of chief Note for the great Battel betwixt K. Char. I's and the Parliament's Forces in 1645. Some say this Town stands on the highest Ground in England. 8. Rockingham, 5 m. N. E. of Rothwell, on the R. Weland, gives Title of Earl to the Family of Watsons. The Market is on Thursd. 9. Cliff, or King's-Cliff, 6 m. N. E. has a Market on Tuesd. and a Park in the Neighbourhood.

XXIII. LEICESTERSHIRE,

HAS Lincolnshire and Rutlandshire on the E. Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire on the N. Warwickshire on the W. and Northamptonshire on the S. It lies in the Diocese of Lincoln, is 30 m. long, and 25 broad, contains 560000 Acres, 98700 Houses, 112212 Inhabitants, 200 Parishes, 6 Hundreds, 13 Market-Towns, 10 Parks, and sends 4 Memb. to Parl.

'Tis a very healthful pleasant Country, and well water'd by the Rs. Weland, Avon, Reek, Swift, and Soar, &c. which abound with Fish of various sorts, especially Salmon, and are convenient for exporting their Commodities, as Corn, Wood, Coal, &c. Near Lutterworth there's a petrifying Spring.

The Soil in the S. W. Parts is rich in Arable and Meadow Lands; and the People make good Cheese. The N. E. Part is mountainous, but yields plenty of Wood and Coals, and feeds a vast Number of Sheep, which bear good Wool. In the N. W. and S. E. Parts is store of Corn, particularly Beans, for their own Consumption and Export. Here's a large Mine of Coals, which they sell at good Rates. Their Cattel are pretty large.

The only Bor. in this County, that sends Memb. to Parl. is Leicester the Shire-Town, upon the R. Stour, or Soar, 80 m. N. W. from London. 'Tis the largest, best built, and most populous Town of the County, and is endow'd with the greatest Privileges. 'Twas a considerable City in the Time of the Romans. 'Tis a Corporation, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 24 Aldermen, 48 Common-Council-Men, 2 Chamberlains, &c. a Steward, Bailiff, Sollicitor, and Town-Clerk; has Markets on Wednesd. Frid. and Saturd. the last one of the best in England for Corn and Cattel; Fairs on May 1. June 24. Sept. 29. Dec. 8. and Palm-Sunday-Eve, besides other lesser ones. Here are several Gates, in one of which the Magazine is kept, and divers fair Buildings. There's an exquisite Piece of Workmanship in the high Street, in form of our Saviour's Croſs. The County Aſſizes are kept in the Caſtle. Here are 6 Pariſhes, and 5 Churches, and an Hoſpital built by Henry Plantagenet, E. of Leiceſter, ſupported by ſome Revenues of the Dutchy of Lancaſter. The moſt ſtately Structure is the new Hoſpital for poor Lazars, with a Chappel, and a Library for the Miniſters and Scholars belonging to the Town, and a Charity-School for Boys and Girls. The Freemen of this Town are exempt from Tolls in all the Markets of England. K. Rich. III. who was kill'd at Boſworth Fight, was interr'd here. This Place has given Title of Earl ever ſince the Time of the Saxons; and that Honour is now in the noble Family of Sidney.

The other Market-Towns are, 1. Aſhby de la Zouch, 13 m. N. W. from Leiceſter, a pleaſant Town, with a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Eaſter-Tueſday, Whit-Tueſday, St. Bartholomew's, and St. Simon and Jude's Days, noted for the beſt Horſes in England. Here is a handſome Pariſh-Church. It had a Caſtle, of which only 2 Towers remain. Here are ſeveral Funds for Charity, and a Free-School. Near this Town lies Col-Overton, famous for Coal-Mines. 2. Loughborough, 9 m. E. has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs Aug. 1. and Nov. 2. 'Tis a handſome pleaſant Town on the Stour, over which it has a Bridge. It gives Title of Lord to the Family of Huntington. A little S. W. of it lies Charley-Foreſt, 20 m. in Compaſs. 3. Mountſorrel, 3 m. S. E. of Loughborough, on the Stour, over which there's a Bridge, has a Market on Mond. and a Fair June 29. 4. Melton-Moubray, 8 m. E. has a Market on Tueſd. for Cattel, and Fairs on Whit-Tueſday, Tueſd. after Twelfth-Day, and Aug. 10. Here's a large handſome Church. 5. Waltham on the Would, 3 m. N. E. has a Market on Thurſd. and a Fair Sep. 8. 6. Boſworth, 8 m. N. W. of Leiceſter, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair June 24. It ſtands on a Hill, in a good Air and Soil. Three m. from hence lies Redmoor-Plain, where Hen. VII. defeated and kill'd Rich. III. In this Field Arms much larger than thoſe now us'd are found in ploughing the Land; and here's a little Mount, where Hen. VII. made a Speech, to encourage his Army before the Battel. This Place gives Title of Baron to the D. of Berwick. 7. Hinkley, 4 m. ½ S. E. has a Market on Mond. and Fairs on Aug. 15. and Monday after Twelfth-Day. Here's a large fair Church; and Cleveland, the Poet, was born here. 8. Lutterworth, 7 m. S. E. has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs Jan. 6. March 22. Aſcenſion-Day, and 3d Thurſd. after Twelfth-Day. It has a large handſome Church, of which the famous John Wickliff, the Day-Star of our Reformation, was Rector. The Church has a handſome lofty Spire. 9. Harborough, 8 m. ½ S. E. on the R. Weland, has a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair Octob. 9. for Horſes and other Cattel, and gives Title of Earl to the antient Family of Bennet Ld. Sherrard. 10. Hallaton, 5 m. ½ N. E. has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Aſcenſion-Day, Corpus-Chriſti-Day, and Oct. 28. and a handſome Church. 11. Billeſdon, 3 m. ½ N. W. has a Market on Frid. and an annual Fair.

XXIV. RUTLANDSHIRE,

HAS Leiceſterſhire on the W. and N. Lincolnſhire on the N. and E. and Northamptonſhire on the S. is 12 m. long, and 9 broad, contains about 110000 Acres, 3263 Houſes, 2 Market-Towns, 5 Hundreds, and 48 Pariſhes, and ſends only 2 Memb. to Parl. who are the Knights of the Shire. It abounds with Corn, Cattel, and Wood; and the Soil being red, the Wool of the Sheep is the ſame. This County gives Title of Duke to the Family of Manners, deſcended by the Mother's ſide from Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York. The Air is clear, temperate, and healthy.

The chief Towns are,

1. Uppingham, a neat well-built Town, with a Market on Wedneſd. an Hoſpital, and Free-School. It lies 3 m. N. of Rockingham in Northamptonſhire.

2. Oakham, 4 m. N. in the fair and rich Valley of Cathmoſs, has a Market on Saturd. a Caſtle for the Aſſizes, an Hoſpital, and a Free-School. They have a Cuſtom, when a Nobleman comes on horſe-back within its Precinct, to take a Shoe from his Horſe, or Money for it. Several Horſe-Shoes are nail'd accordingly to the Door of the Juſtice-Hall; and over the Judge's Seat, there's a Horſe-Shoe curiouſly wrought, 5 Foot ½ long, and of a proportionable Breadth.

XXV. LINCOLNSHIRE,

HAS the R. Humber and part of Yorkſhire on the N. Nottinghamſhire and Leiceſterſhire on the W. the Sea and Norfolk on the E. and Rutlandſhire, Northamptonſhire, and Cambridgeſhire on the S. 'Tis 60 m. N. and S. where longeſt, and 35 m. E. and W. where broadeſt; has 1740000 Acres, 40590 Houſes, 243540 People, 39 Market-Towns, 630 Pariſhes, 30 Hundreds and Wapentakes, 2 Caſtles, and 13 Parks, and ſends 12 Memb. to Parl. The 3 great Diviſions of it are Holland, Keſteven, and Lindſey.

The Air of the Middle and W. Parts is much more healthful than on the Coaſt; but far from being as good as that of the Inland Counties. 'Tis water'd with many large Rivers, as the Nen, Weland, Gnaſh, Wytham, Bane, Trent, Dun, and Ankam, which abound with all ſorts of common Fiſh, and wild Fowl, eſpecially the Wytham Pike, and two ſorts of Birds, which are admirable Meat, viz. Knutes and Datterels; the former ſaid to have been firſt brought out of Denmark for the Uſe of K. Canutus, and the latter a merry mimical Bird, which is taken by Candle-Light, imitates the Motions of the Fowler, and approaches towards him till he throws the Net over it. Here are ſeveral mineral Springs. The Inland Country produces Corn, the Fens Coleſeed and the richeſt Paſtures; ſo that their Cattel are bigger than in any County, except Somerſet, which took a Breed from hence about 60 Years ago, and has much improv'd their Bigneſs by their richer Paſtures. In the Fens they ſometimes dig up Trunks of Trees. Their Hunting-Hounds and Hares are noted for exceeding Swiftneſs. They have all the common Fruits, and excel Kent in Pippins. The Dioceſe of Lincoln is the greateſt for Juriſdiction of any in England, taking in the entire Counties of Lincoln, Leiceſter, Huntington, Bedford, Bucks, and part of Hertfordſhire, and having under it 6 Archdeaconries, and 1255 Pariſhes, of which 577 are Impropriations. The Churches are reckon'd this County's chief Ornament, being built all of fine poliſh'd Stone; ſo that 'tis obſerv'd, no County affords better Churches, and worſe Houſes.

The biggeſt and moſt N. Diviſion is Lindſey. It runs out into the Ocean, and has the Sea on its E. and N. Shores. The Rs. Trent and Dun ſeparate it on the W. from Yorkſhire and Nottinghamſhire, and 'tis parted from Keſteven by the Witham and Foſs-Dyke, which is 7 m. long, and was cut by K. Hen. I. between the Witham and Trent, for the Conveniency of Carriage to and from Lincoln. This Diviſion gives Title of Marquiſs, as it did formerly of Earl, to the Family of Bertie, now D. of Ancaſter, and contains 17 Hundreds, 18 Market-Towns, and 2 Bor. that ſend Memb. to Parl.

Theſe are, 1. Lincoln, the Metropolis of the Shire, a City and Biſhoprick on the R. Witham, 99 m. N. of London. 'Tis antient, very large, much reſorted to, and built on the ſide of a Hill, where the R. famous for the beſt Pikes in England, winds about towards the E. and being divided into 3 Channels, over which are ſeveral Bridges, waters the loweſt Part of it. Here are 14 Pariſh-Churches, and a ſtately Cathedral of Gothick Architecture, beautiful and lofty, with the Monuments of many great Perſons, and a Bell call'd the Great Tom, reckon'd the biggeſt in England. Hen. VIII. found in its Treaſury 2621 Ounces of Gold, and 4285 of Silver, beſides Jewels. This City is a County of it ſelf, and its Juriſdiction extends 20 m. round, which can't be equalled by any City in England. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Sword-Bearer, 12 Alderm. who are all Juſtices of the Peace, 2 Sheriffs, a Recorder, 4 Chamberl. 2 Serj. at Mace, 4 Coroners, a Town-Clerk, and above 40 Common-Council-Men. It has Markets on Tueſ. for Proviſions, which are very cheap, eſpecially Fiſh and Fowl, and on Frid. for all manner of Goods; and Fairs on June 24. Nov. 17. for all ſorts of Commodities, the firſt Frid. in Sept. which holds 3 Days for Horſes only, and on the firſt Tueſd. in April for all manner of Goods. Here are 4 Charity-Schools for 120 Children, taught by the Widows of Clergymen. This City ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Clinton. Here's an antient Caſtle, built by William the Norman to defend the City, and awe the People, it being then one of the moſt populous in England. It lies on a Hill, which over-tops the Town, is very large, has high Towers, and was in thoſe Days impregnable. The Fortifications are ruinous, and in the Centre there's a handſome modern Structure for holding the Aſſizes, &c. It ſeems to have been a Fortreſs for the Country People to retire to with their beſt Effects, and has many old Trenches, &c. on the E. ſide.

2. Great Grimsby, 22 m. N. E. of Lincoln, and 90 N. of London. This is ſaid to be the firſt or ſecond Corporation in England. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, of whom the Mayor is one, 2 Bailiffs, 12 Common-Council-Men, 2 Coroners, a Town-Clerk, and 3 Serjeants at Mace. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. that are elected by the Inhabitant-Freemen, who are about 80. The chief Trade is in Coals and Salt, brought to the Town by the Humber. It has a Market on W. and Fairs May 6. and Aug. 24. It enjoys ſeveral Immunities; as keeping of Courts, of which the Mayor keeps one on Tueſd. and the Bailiffs another on Frid. It was a Place of very great Trade before its Harbour was choak'd up. It has a handſome large Church, that looks like a Cathedral.

The other Market-Towns in this Diviſion are, 1. Barton, 14 m. N. W. from Grimsby. 'Tis a ſmall Town, with a Market on Mond. and a yearly Fair. Here's the common Ferry for paſſing over to Hull. 2. Burton, or Burton-Stather, 8 m. ½ S. W. has a Market on Mond. and a Fair on Lady-Day. It lies well for Trade, on the E. ſide of the Trent, within 4 m. of its Fall into the Humber. There's a Tract in the N. W. Part of this County call'd Axholm-Iſle, becauſe 'tis encompaſs'd by the Trent, Dun, and other Rivers. 'Tis about 10 m. long, 4 broad, and yields Alabaſter, Flax, and a ſweet Shrub, call'd Gall, and Pets. 3. Glandford-Bridge, 9 m. S. E. from Burton, on the R. Ankam, over which it has a ſtrong Bridge, has a Market on Thurſd. and a yearly Fair. 4. Kirton, 6 m. ½ S. W. of Glandford-Bridge, has a Market on Saturd. and a magnificent Church. 5. Caſtor, 9 m. N. E. from Kirton, has a Market on Saturd. and annual Fairs. 6. Binbrook, 5 m. ½ S. E. of Caſtor, has a Market on W. and a yearly Fair. Normanby, the noble Seat and Title of his Grace of Bucks, lies in the Neighbourhood. 7. Saltfleet, 10 m. N. E. has a weekly Market, and is frequented by the Gentry for Fiſh in the Summer-Seaſon. 8. Market-Raiſin, 7 m. S. W. has a good Market on Tueſd. and a yearly Fair. 9. Louth, 11 m. N. It has a conſiderable Trade in Corn and Cattel; and the Markets on the Mond. after Epiphany, Eaſter, and Whitſunday, are equal to great Fairs. Here are the Ruins of a Caſtle, a large Pariſh-Church of good Architecture, a Free-School, and an Hoſpital well endow'd.

2. Grantham, on the R. Witham, 86 m. N.W. of London, and 10 m. S.W. of Sleaford; an antient Town. The Market on Saturd. and Fairs the firſt Mond. in Lent, Holy-Thurſday, St. Peter's Day, Sept. 6. and Oct. 15. 'Tis govern'd by an Alderman, a Recorder, 12 Common Burgeſſes, a Coroner, an Eſcheator, and 12 Second-Twelve-Men, who are of the Common-Council, and 12 Conſtables to attend the Court. The Alderman and Common-Burgeſſes have Power to act as Juſtices of Peace for the Corporation and its Liberties. The Town is much reſorted to becauſe it lies in the N. Road. Here's a large Church, with a Steeple and Spire of Stone, being 275 Foot, and reckon'd one of the higheſt in England. It ſeems to ſtand awry, which is aſcrib'd to its Slenderneſs and Height. Here's alſo a good Free-School. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are choſen by the Freemen. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Auverquerque, that came over with K. William III.

3. Belvoir-Caſtle, 4 m. S.W. of Grantham, is a noble and magnificent Seat, belonging to the D. of Rutland, and has one of the fineſt Proſpects in England, over a pleaſant and fruitful Valley.

4. Folkingham, 5 m. S. of Sleaford. The Market on Thurſd. and Fairs May 1. Nov. 11. and Aſh-Wedneſday. It lies in a good Air, and has wholeſome Springs.

5. Ancaſter, 5 m. S.W. of Sleaford, gives Title of Duke to Bertie, Hereditary Ld Great Chamberlain of England, formerly E. and Marq. of Lindſey, who has alſo the Title of Baron from Eresby in this County.

6. Bourne, 8 m. S. of Folkingham, Market on Saturd. and Fairs on St. Matthias and Mark's Days. It has a Harbour for Boats, the Ruins of a Caſtle, and a medicinal Well.

7. Deeping, 5 m. S.E. of Bourne, has a ſmall Market on Thurſd. and a Fair Sept. 29. It lies in the Fenny Country, from whence it has the Name.

8. Stamford, 5 m. S.W. of Deeping, and 70 N.W. of London. 'Tis an antient Saxon Town, nam'd from a Ford over the Weland, on which it has ſeveral Bridges. 'Tis large, populous, and rich, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, Deputy-Recorder, 12 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, 24 Capital Burgeſſes, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. The Markets are on Mond. and Frid. the Fairs on the Tueſd. before Candlemas, Midlent, which holds a Fortnight, a Week before May-Day for Horſes, the ſecond Mond. after Trinity-Sunday, St. James's Day, and St. Simon and Jude's. The Memb. of Parl. are choſen by the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot. The chief Trade is in Malt. Here was formerly an Univerſity, upon ſome Controverſy at Oxford betwixt the Students of the N. and W. which occaſion'd the N. Students to ſettle here. Mr. Neal thinks it was an Univerſity long before Oxford; but diſſolv'd by the Pope about Ann. 300. becauſe they adher'd to Arius. The Students were afterwards remov'd by the King's Proclamation to Oxford; and an Oath was impos'd, That no Oxford Man ſhould afterwards profeſs at Stamford. Here are 6 Pariſh-Churches. Moſt of the Houſes are built of Free-Stone, the Streets fair and large, and the whole ſurrounded with a ſtrong Wall. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Grey of Groby. Here's a Free-School well endow'd.

The third and laſt Diviſion is Holland, ſo call'd from its low Situation; and is thought to have been recover'd out of the Sea, againſt which 'tis now defended by Banks, and well improv'd. It gives Title of Earl, jointly with that of Warwick, to a Branch of the Family of Rich. On the N. of this Diviſion lie the Waſhes, paſſable at Ebb, but over-flow'd by the Tide. Here K. John loſt his Baggage and many of his Men, by a ſudden Inundation during his War with the Barons.

The chief Town is Boſton, 7 m. N.E. of Dunnington, and 95 N. of London. It ſtands on the R. Witham, where 'tis navigable by Veſſels, and over which it has a fair high Wooden Bridge. 'Tis antient, govern'd by a Mayor, (who is Clerk of the Market, and Admiral) a Recorder, Deputy-Recorder, 12 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, 18 Common-Council, a Judge and Marſhal of the Admiralty, a Coroner, 2 Serjeants at Mace, &c. The Markets are Wedneſd. and Saturd. the Fairs Apr. 23. July 25. 3 Days each; and here's a Mart that holds from Nov. 30. 9 Days, for Cattel and all other Merchantable Goods. 'Tis one of the moſt conſiderable Towns in the County, rich, populous, and well traded and reſorted to. The Houſes are handſome. The People apply themſelves chiefly to Merchandize and Grazing. 'Twas formerly a Wool-Staple, and the Hans Merchants fix'd their Guild here. The Church is large and beautiful, and has a high Tower that ſerves as a Guide to Mariners. 'Tis reckon'd the fineſt in England, and above 280 Foot high. Mr. Fox the Martyrologiſt was born here. There are 2 conſiderable Charity-Schools in the Town.

2. Dunnington, 7 m. S.W. has a Market on Saturd. and a Port for Barges.

3. Kirkton, or Kirton, 3 m. S. of Boſton, has a Market on Saturd. an annual Fair, and a fine large Church, built in form of a Cathedral.

4. Holbech, 12 m. S. of Boſton, has a Market on Thurſd. and an annual Fair.

5. Spalding, 7 m. S.W. of Holbech, has a Market on Tueſd. and Fairs Nov. 17. and Dec. 6. Barges come up to the Town by the R. Weland. 'Tis well built, and has a good Trade, tho 'tis not far from the Waſhes.

6. Crowland, 7 m. S. of Spalding, has a ſmall Market on Saturd. and a Fair Aug. 24. It lies among Fens, and is acceſſible only on the N. and E. by narrow Cauſeys. It has 3 Streets, ſeparated from one another by Water-Courſes planted with Willows. They have a Communication by a Triangular Bridge, curiouſly built, anſwering its 3 chief Streets. The Houſes are founded on Piles of Wood. Here was formerly a noble Abbey, of which Ingulphus was Abbot, and publiſh'd its Hiſtory. The People go in little Boats to milk their Cows in the Fields, and make great Profit of their Fiſh and wild Ducks in the Fens.

XXVI. NOTTINGHAMSHIRE,

HAS Lincolnſhire on the E. Derbyſhire and part of Yorkſhire on the W. Yorkſhire on the N. and Leiceſterſhire on the S. 'Tis 40 m. long, 20 broad, lies in the Dioceſe of York, has 560000 Acres, 17554 Houſes, 168 Pariſh-Churches, and is divided into 8 Wapentakes, has 8 Market-Towns, 3 of which are Bor. and ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. The Air is wholeſome, and the Soil different, the S.E. being fruitful, and the W. Part abounds with Wood and Pit-Coal. The chief Rs. are the Trent and the Idle. Sherwood-Foreſt and the Coal-Pits ſupply the People with Fuel, as the Trent does with Fiſh. Here's plenty of Liquorice, a Stone ſofter than Alabaſter, but when burnt, makes a Plaiſter harder than that of Paris, with which they floor their upper Rooms. This County is noted for fine Ale.

The Boroughs are,

1. Nottingham, which gives Name to the County, and Title of Earl to the Family of Finch, is one of the antienteſt in England, 87 m N.W. from London. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, 6 Aldermen, 2 Coroners, 2 Sheriffs, 2 Chamberlains, 18 of the Senior Council, and 6 of the Junior Council. Here's an uncertain Number of Perſons call'd the Clothing, and above 1200 other common Burgeſſes. It ſtands on the Side of a Hill, near the Conflux of the Lin and Trent. The Name came from a Saxon Word, ſignifying Caves, which the Antients dug under ſteep Rocks towards the Lin, for Places of Retreat. The Situation is pleaſant, with large Meadows on one ſide, and Hills of eaſy Aſcent on the other. The Markets are Wedneſd. Frid. and Saturd. the Fairs on Frid. preceding the Tueſd. next after Epiphany, Feb. 24. the Thurſd. before Eaſter, and St. Matthew's Day. The Spring-Fairs are noted for good Colts, and St. Matthew's Fair for Colts and Cheeſe. The chief Manufacture is weaving of Frame-Hoſe. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. Here are 3 neat Churches, a very fine Market-Place, good Houſes, fair Streets, and the Ruins of a Caſtle on a ſteep Rock, upon which the late D. of Newcaſtle built a ſtately Fabrick in 1674. 'Tis reckon'd one of the neateſt Towns in England, and has as good a Trade as moſt Inland Towns. Here's an Alms-Houſe for 12 Poor, well endow'd. We refer to Dr. Thornton for the Antiquities of this Town and County. Some of the Caves above mention'd are cut out with great Art and Induſtry into convenient Apartments, Chimneys, Windows, &c. Many of 'em lie under the Caſtle. One of 'em is noted for the Hiſtory of Chriſt's Paſſion, cut out by David II. King of Scots, when Priſoner here; and there's another call'd Mortimer's-Hole, becauſe E. Mortimer was taken there by Order of Edw. III. and afterwards hang'd for debauching the Queen his Mother.

2. Eaſt Retford, 112 m. N.W. from London, and about 26 N.E. of Nottingham. 'Tis very antient, govern'd by 2 Bailiffs and 12 Aldermen. The Bailiffs are choſe the firſt Mond. in Auguſt, and enter on Office Sept. 29. The Market is on Saturd. and abounds with Fowl, Fiſh, and Meat. The Fairs are Aug. 12. and Sept. 21. for Black Cattel and Hogs. The Town ſtands on the Idle, which might be made navigable. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

3. Newark upon Trent, 95 m. N.W. of London, and 11 N.E. from Nottingham. 'Tis an antient Bor. govern'd by a Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and 12 Aſſiſtants. The 2 Memb. of Parl. are choſe by a Majority of the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot. The Market is Wedneſd. and Fairs May 3. Whit-Tueſday, July 22. Oct. 21. Monday before St. Andrew's Day, and Frid. before Care-Sunday. Here's one of the fineſt Pariſh-Churches in England, with a Steeple of curious Architecture. This Town gives Title of Viſcount to the D. of Kingſton, has a fair Market-Place, the Ruins of a ſtately Caſtle, and is a great Thorowfare on the N. Road.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Workſop, 7 m. S.W. of Retford, with a Market on Wedneſd. The Town is famous for excellent Liquorice. 2. Blith, another Market-Town, 3 m. N. of Workſop. 3. Tuxford, 5 m. S. of Retford, has a Market on Mond. 4. Mansfield, 10 m. S.W. has a Market on Thurſd. for Malt, &c. and is a large, well-built, and populous Town. 5. Southwell, 8 m. S.E. has a Market on Saturd. and a Collegiate-Church, and ſtands on a Rivulet that falls into the Trent. 6. Bingham, 6 m. S. has a Market on Thurſd.

XXVII. DERBYSHIRE,

HAS Nottinghamſhire on the E. part of Cheſhire and Staffordſhire on the W. Yorkſhire on the N. and Warwickſhire on the S. 'Tis 30 m. long, 25 broad, has 680000 Acres, 21155 Houſes, 6 Hundreds, 106 Pariſhes, 126900 Inhabitants, 10 Market-Towns, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. It abounds with Corn, Paſture, Wood, Quarries of Free-Stone and Marble, Mines of Coal, Lead, and Iron, has abundance of Mill-Stones, Lime, and Whet-Stones, and ſome Chryſtal and Alabaſter. The Derwent divides it into the E. and W. The S. and E. Parts of the Shire are fruitful, and abound with Gentlemens Seats and Parks. The W. Parts, about the Peak, are mountainous and barren, but abound with Mines, in which are found Azure, Spar, Alabaſtrites, Stalactites, Green and White Vitriol, and Alum call'd Trichites. The Air is generally wholeſome; but about the Peak 'tis ſubject to Winds and Rain. Great ſtore of Malt is made in this County; and 'tis famous for Pale Ale. Here's abundance of Black Cattel and Sheep; and they ſell great Numbers of Heifers, which are valued for their Milk.

The

The chief Town is Derby, which gives Name to the Shire, and is the only Town here that ſends Memb. to Parl. It ſtands on the R. Derwent, 98 m. N. W. of London, is very antient, and was a Bor. in Edward the Confeſſor's Time. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, 9 Aldermen, 14 Brothers, 14 Capital Burgeſſes, and a Town-Clerk. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Freemen and ſworn Burgeſſes, to the Number of about 700. Here are 5 Pariſh-Churches: That call'd Alhallows is the chief, and has a beautiful high Steeple, erected at the Charge of young Men and Maids, as appears by the Inſcriptions. Here are Monuments belonging to the Devonſhire Family, and others, and one for Richard Craſhaw, a poor Nailor's Son, who going to London grew very rich, and left 4000 l. to pious Uſes. The Market is on Wedneſ. Frid. and Saturd. and the Fairs on Frid. in Eaſter-Week, the Frid. after May-Day, Frid. in Whitſun-Week, Frid. before Midſummer, St. James's Day, the Day before and after, Frid. before Michaelmas, and Frid. after Epiphany. The Town is neat, large, well built, rich, and populous, has large Privileges, and is exempt from paying Toll in London, or any other Place, except Wincheſter, and a few more. It has a fair Stone Bridge over the Derwent, with an antient Chappel on it, now made a Dye-Houſe. A little River, call'd Martinbrook, on the S. Part of the Town, has 9 Bridges over it. The Trade is in Wool, Corn, and Fine Ale. The Town-Hall is a fine Structure of Free-Stone, where the Aſſizes are kept. It gives Title of Earl to the noble Family of Stanley. At Quarden, near this Town, are Springs of the ſame nature with thoſe of Tunbridge; and there are the like at Stanley.

The other Places of Note are, 1. Aſhborn, 10 m. N. W. with a Market on Saturd. 2. Wirkſworth, 6 m. N. E. is a large populous Town, and has a Market on Tueſd. 'Tis the chief Town of the Peak, and the greateſt Lead-Market in England, there being Furnaces in the Neighbourhood for melting it. A Court is kept here for the Miners, which is nam'd the Barmoot-Court, conſiſting of a Maſter and 24 Jurors, who have Power to ſet out 2 Meers of Ground 29 Yards long in a Pipe-Work, and 14 Yards ſquare in a Flat-Work, to any Perſon that has found a Vein in any Man's Ground, except Orchards and Gardens; and they appoint the Owner one Meer, and other Perquiſites, for Paſſage of Carts, Uſe of Timber, and other Conveniencies. They reſtrain all irregular Proceedings, and in few Days determine all Controverſies that happen betwixt the Miners themſelves, or the Miners and Owners of Lands. Here is a fair Church, a Free-School, and an Alms-Houſe. There's a hot and a cold Spring in the Neighbourhood ſo near together, that a Man may put both Hands in 'em at once. 3. Winſter, 4 m. N. W. 4. Bakewell, 4 m. N. W. has a Market on Mond. for Lead and Proviſions. 'Tis a large Town of only one Pariſh, but has 7 Chappels, and is a Peculiar exempt from Epiſcopal Juriſdiction. Near it is a Field, which, the Country People ſay, will either fatten or kill a Horſe in a Month's Time. 5. Cheſterfield, 9 m. E. has a Market on Saturd. and annual Fairs. 'Tis very antient, the chief Town in Scarſdale Hundred, lies between 2 Rivers, in a fruitful Soil, and is govern'd by a Mayor, or Bailiff, and Aldermen; was made a Bor. by K. John, and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Stanhope. Scarſdale, in which it lies, gives Title of Earl to the Family of Leak. 6. Bolſover, 4 m. S. E. has a Market on Frid. and is noted for making fine Tobacco-Pipes. It has a pretty Caſtle on a riſing Ground, belonging to the D. of Newcaſtle, and is a large well-built Town. 7. Dronfield, 5 m. N. of Cheſterfield, ſtands on a high Ground, and has a Market on Thurſd. 8. Tiddeſwell, 9 m. W. has a Market on Wedneſd. 'Tis noted for Wendon-Well, in the Neighbourhood, which ebbs and flows ¼ of a Yard, is a Yard broad and deep, and when it ebbs, makes a noiſe. 'Tis reckon'd one of the 7 Wonders of the Peak. Here's a fair Church, and a Free-School. 9. Chappel in Frith, 4 m. N. W. 10. The Peak-Land lies among Mountains in the N. W. Parts. Though rough and craggy, it feeds many Sheep and Black Cattel; but is chiefly remarkable for its 7 Wonders, ingeniouſly deſcrib'd by Mr. Hobbs, Dr. Leigh, and Mr. Cotton.

The firſt of 'em is Chatſworth, where the Duke of Devon has a noble and ſtately Palace, deſcrib'd thus by Dr. Leigh in his Natural Hiſtory. Like the Sun in a hazy Air, it gives Luſtre to the dusky Mountains of the Peak, and attracts Multitudes of Spectators. The Paſſage is by an eaſy Aſcent, and the Gate adorn'd with Trophies. The Hill compoſes a ſtately Square, from which, thro a Gallery, upon Stone Stairs, ſo artfully contriv'd, that they ſeem to hang in the Air, is a Proſpect of a beautiful Chappel and Hall, full of curious Paintings; the one being the Hiſtory of Caſar ſtabb'd in the Senate, and the other a Draught of the Reſurrection; both done by the famous Vario. The Chambers are noble and large, richly inlaid with the choiceſt Woods, and compoſe a ſtately Gallery, at the upper End of which is the Duke's Cloſet, finely beautified with Indian Paint, and Figures of Birds drawn by native Indians. The Gardens are pleaſant and ſtately, adorn'd with exquiſite Water-Works; as, 1. Neptune, with his Nymphs, who ſeem to ſport in the Waters, let out by a Cock in ſeveral Columns, and falling upon Sea-Weeds. 2. A Pond where Sea-Horſes continually roll. 3. A Tree of Copper, reſembling a Willow; and by the turning of a Cock, every Leaf drops Water, which repreſents a Shower. 4. A Grove of Cypreſs, and a Caſcade with 2 Sea-Nymphs at top, and Jars under their Arms, from whence Water falls upon the Caſcade, which makes a Noiſe like Cataracts. 5. At the bottom of the Caſcade, there's a Pond with an artificial Roſe, thro which, by the turning of a Cock, the Water aſcends, and hangs in the Air in the Figure of that Flower. 6. Another Pond, with Mercury pointing at the Gods, and throwing up Water. 7. The Statues of ſeveral Gladiators in very lively Poſtures. This Pile is not yet compleatly finiſh'd, tho the late D. of Devonſhire made Additions to it during 20 Years.

The 2d Wonder is the Mountain, call'd Main-Tor, near Caſtleton, under which are ſeveral Lead Mines. This Hill almoſt perpetually ſhivers down Earth and great Stones with ſuch a Noiſe, be the Air ever ſo calm, that it often frightens the Inhabitants; yet they don't obſerve the Hill to grow leſs, which is aſcrib'd to its great Breadth, that tho 'tis daily diminiſh'd, 'tis not diſcernible.

The 3d Wonder is Eden-Hole, a terrible Chaſm, 7 Yards broad, and 14 long. Its Mouth is very wide and craggy; and 'tis reckon'd bottomleſs, the Depth having never yet been found, tho often attempted. Water trickles down from its top, which preſently congeals into Icicles; and Stones when thrown in make a Noiſe like Thunder for a long time, which leſſens by degrees, till they be out of hearing.

4thly, Buxton-Wells, ſo call'd from the Town, where they riſe out of a Rock, within 8 or 9 Yards of one another. They are medicinal Springs, 8 of 'em warm, ſulphurous, and ſaline, and the 9th very cold. They are palatable, create Appetite, open Obſtructions, are good in ſcorbutick Rheumatiſms, Diſtempers of the Nerves, and moſt Diſeaſes. They are inclos'd with a fair Stone Building, and form a Bath of a temperate Heat, much frequented in Summer; and here are good Accommodations for thoſe of Quality. The Waters run thro the adjacent Meadows. Near this Place are Marble Stones, orderly diſpos'd in ſeveral Rows by mere Nature. Theſe are by ſome reckon'd another Wonder of the Peak. Caſtleton, not far from hence, has a Caſtle on the top of a ſteep Rock, but of no Uſe for Ornament or Defence.

The 5th Wonder is Tiddeſwell, already mention'd, which ebbs and flows irregularly, as the Air is ſuppos'd to puſh the Water from the ſubterranean Cavities.

6thly, Pool's-Hole, a Cave at the Foot of a large Mountain, with a very ſhallow Entrance: But thoſe that have crept in ſay, that after ſome Paces it opens to a vaſt Height, like the Roof of a large Cathedral; and in a hollow Cavern on the right Hand, call'd Pool's-Chamber, there's a conſiderable Eccho. In this Cavity are great Ridges of Stone, and many ſurprizing Repreſentations of Art and Nature, produc'd by the petrifying Water continually dropping from the Rock, as the Figures of Fret-Work, Organ and Choir-Work, of Men, Lions, Dogs, and other Animals. Here's a Column call'd Mary Q. of Scots's Pillar, becauſe ſhe went in ſo far. 'Tis as clear as Alabaſter; and beyond it there's a ſteep Aſcent for near ¼ of a m. that terminates near the Roof in an Hollow, call'd the Needle's-Point, in which when the Guide places his Candle, it looks to thoſe below like a Star in the Sky. If a Piſtol be fir'd near the Queen's-Pillar, 'tis reſounded by the Rocks as loud as a Cannon. Thoſe who go in, return by another Way, over many ſmall Currents of Water. Near this Place is a ſmall clear Brook of hot and cold Water, ſo united into one Stream, that a Man may put the Thumb and Finger into both at once.

7thly, That call'd the Devil's-Arſe, or the Peak's-Arſe, is a wide Cavern under the Hill near Caſtleton. 'Tis large at the Entry, but more contracted within. The Top is very high, and reſembles a graceful Arch, chequer'd with Stones of different Colours, and continually drops Water which petrifies. Here are ſeveral ſmall Buildings, where poor People live with Candles and Lanthorns to ſhew Strangers the Place. The Cave, after one is in a little, is dark and ſlippery, becauſe of a Current of Water under-foot; and the Rock hangs ſo low, that one is forc'd to ſtoop. Having paſs'd this Place, and a Brook that ſometimes can't be waded, the Arch opens again, and here's a ſecond Current with large Banks of Sand. Then one comes to a third Current, which is unpaſſable, and the Rock cloſes.

Other Remarkables in this County are, 1. Near Byrchover-Valley is a large Rock, with 2 totterring Stones, one of them 4 Yards high, and 12 round, and reſts on a Point ſo equally poiz'd, that one may move it with a Finger. 2. Near Brudwall, in ſinking a Lead Grove, was found a Tooth, which, tho ¼ of it was broke off, was 13 ½ Inches round, and weighed 3 ℔ 10 ℥ ¼; and, among other Pieces of Bones, a large Skull, which held 7 Pecks of Corn. Some think them to have belong'd to an Elephant, becauſe Elephants Bones are found near Caſtleton, ſuppos'd to have been brought thither by the Deluge: But Dr. Leigh thinks them to be the Luſus Naturæ of the Fluor Stalactites, caus'd by different Mixtures of bituminous, ſaline, and terrene Particles. 3. At Kedlaſton there's a Well that cures old Ulcers, and the Leproſy. 4. In ſeveral Mountains of this County are Cavities at the Bottom, call'd by the Inhabitants Swallows, becauſe Streams run into them, of which no Vent appears. Dr. Leigh thinks, that the ſubterraneous Rs. in the Peak's-Arſe, and thoſe rapid Springs that iſſue from the Mountains near Caſtleton, are form'd by them. 5. The R. Dove, which parts this County from Staffordſhire, runs for the moſt part thro a Lime-Stone, which ſo impregnates the Waters, that when they over-flow the neighbouring Meadows, they become exceeding fruitful. The Water is clear, famous for a Fiſh call'd Grailings, and Trouts as good as any in England. It ſwells ſo much ſometimes in 12 Hours, that it carries off many Sheep and other Cattle, and in as little time returns to its old Channel.

The chief Bridges of this County are, that at Burton upon Trent, which has 35 Arches; and that at Swarſton, over the ſame R. which is near a m. long, part of it being a Cauſeway.

XXVIII. WARWICKSHIRE,

HAS Derbyſhire and part of Staffordſhire on the N. Worceſterſhire on the W. Leiceſterſhire and part of Northamptonſhire on the E. and part of Gloceſterſhire and Oxfordſhire on the South. 'Tis in the Dioceſes of Worceſter, and Litchfield and Coventry, is about 35 m. long, 26 broad, has 5 Hundreds, 158 Pariſhes, 14 Market-Towns, and ſends 6 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis reckon'd to contain 670000 Acres, and 21793 Houſes. The S. Parts, call'd Feldon, have a good Air, and are fruitful in Corn and Graſs; and the Northern, call'd the Woodlands, are woody, and have Iron Mines. Avon is the chief R. The County abounds with Black and White Cattel, excellent Cheeſe, Coals and Timber.

The Parl. Towns are,

1. Warwick, the Capital, on the Avon, encompaſs'd with a fruitful Vale. Here's a beautiful ſtrong Caſtle, for many Ages the Seat of the famous Earls of Warwick, and now that of the noble Family of the Lord Brooks. 'Tis 67 m. N. W. of London, is govern'd by a Mayor, &c. has a Free-School, an Hoſpital, and 2 Churches. The Streets are ſpacious, and regularly built. The Market is on Saturd. and it has 4 annual Fairs, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and ſince James I. has given Title of Earl to the noble Family of Rich, who are alſo Earls of Holland in Lincolnſhire. It formerly gave Title of Earl to the great Family

Family of the Nevilles, and of Duke to others. Here's a fair Stone Bridge over the R. and the Bor. ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Town is founded on a Rock, from whence the Stones that built it were hewn. The Wells and Cellars are cut out of the Rock, and the Deſcent every Way keeps it clean. Here's a handſome Town-Houſe of Free-Stone, ſupported by Pillars; and near the Town lies Guy-Cliff, on the R. ſuppos'd to have been an Hermitage, and the Retreat of the famous Guy E. of Warwick after his martial Exploits. His Story is ſo obſcur'd with Fables, that we have little Certainty about him; but ſeveral of the ſucceeding Earls call'd their Sons by his Name: Guy de Beauchamp built a Chappel and noble Tower, and ſet up a gigantick Statue to his Memory; and his Sword and other Accoutrements are ſtill ſhewn in the Caſtle, where was formerly a Suit of Arras Hangings, repreſenting his great Actions. In the Church of St. Mary's there are Monuments of ſeveral of the Earls, and others of Quality.

2. Coventry, 8 m. N. E. of Warwick, and 74 N. W. of London; an antient City, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 10 Aldermen, who are Juſtices of the Peace; the Mayor, Recorder, and 2 of the eldeſt Aldermen being of the Quorum. They have alſo 2 Sheriffs, being a County within it ſelf, a Steward, Coroner, 2 Chamberlains, 2 Wardens, and other Officers. The chief Trade is the Woollen Manufacture. Here are 3 Churches, and 3 Markets per Week, the chief on Frid. for Cattel, Proviſions, &c. They have 2 great Fairs; one begins the Frid. after Whitſunday, and holds a Fortnight, and the other is Oct. 21. The Croſs here is one of the moſt beautiful in England. The Town ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. This City is commodiouſly ſituated, large, and neat. It has 2 Churches of good Architecture. 'Twas formerly a Biſhop's See; but it return'd to Litchfield in Staffordſhire, on condition that the Biſhop ſhould take the Title of both. 'Twas well wall'd, and very ſtrong, but diſmantled by Order of K. Char. II. becauſe it held out againſt his Father; ſo that the Gates are only left, by the Beauty and Strength of which we may judge of the other Fortifications. Leofrick, one of their antient Earls, who died the 13th of Edw. the Confeſſor, oppreſſed them with heavy Taxes; but remitted the ſame on his Lady Godiva's riding thro the Town naked. In Memory of which they ſet up his Picture and hers in the Windows of Trinity Church, with this Inſcription; I Lurick, for the Love of thee, do ſet Coventry Toll-free. They have ſtill an annual Cavalcade on this Account, repreſenting Godiva ſo riding thro the Town; and 'tis uſual for the Warwickſhire Gentlemen, at their annual Feaſt in London, to repreſent her in the ſame manner, with Guy Earl of Warwick on horſeback, arm'd Cap-a-pee, before the Cavalcade. This City now gives Title of Earl to the noble Family of Coventry.

Other Market-Towns here are, 1. Shipſton, in the S. Part. It has a Trade in Cloth, and a Market on Wedneſd. for Sheep. 2. Kyneton, 6 m. N. E. the Market on Tueſd. for Black Cattel. In the Neighbourhood lies Edge-Hill, from whence there's a delicious Proſpect over the neighbouring Valley; but 'tis chiefly remarkable for the firſt Battel fought there betwixt K. Char. I. and the Parliament, in 1642, when the Victory was claim'd by both. Dr. Gibſon obſerves, that our Hiſtorians generally reckon the Slain 5 or 6000; but Mr. Fiſher, Vicar of Kyneton, being appointed by the E. of Eſſex, the Parliament's General, to make a Survey, found them not much above 1300. The Valley is call'd that of Red-Horſe, becauſe the Country People cut out the Shape of a Horſe on the Side of the Hill upon a red Soil; and a neighbouring Freeholder is oblig'd by his Tenure to keep it clean. 3. Southam, 6 m. N. E. of Kyneton, the Market on Mond. well frequented. 4. Stratford, 6 m. S. W. of Warwick, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for Barges on the Avon, over which it has a Stone Bridge of 14 Arches. 5. Aulceſter, 6 m. W. the Market on Tueſd. for Corn. Roman Coins, &c. have been dug up here. 6. Henley, 5 m. N. E. the Market on Mond. 7. Taleſhill, 12 m. N. E. 8. Birmingham, 6 m. W. the Market on Thurſd. 'Tis large, populous, and divided into Upper and Lower. The laſt is watry. The Upper has handſome Buildings. It gave Name and Origin to the Earls of Louth in Ireland, and is one of the moſt noted Towns in England for Hard-Ware, or curious Works in Iron and Steel; ſo that here's a continual Noiſe of Hammers, Anvils, Files, &c. 9. Sutton-Colfield, 4 m. N. the Market on Mond. 10. Poleſworth, 7 m. N. E. has a Market, and a well-endow'd Free-School. 11. Atherſton, 5 m. S. the Market on Tueſd. 12. Nuneaton, 7 m. N. E. of Coventry, the Market on Saturd. Their chief Trade is in Woollen Cloth. 13. Rugby, on the Avon, 6 m. N. E. of Southam, the Market on Saturd. chiefly for Meat.

Other Places of Note in this County are, (1.) Compton, about 5 m. S. W. of Kyneton, in a Valley, which gave Name and Title to the noble Family of Compton, made Lords in 1572 by Q. Eliz. and ſince Earls of Northampton. (2.) Worm-Leighton, about 5 m. E. of Kyneton, famous for its rich Paſtures for Sheep, but more for giving Title of Lord to the antient noble Family of the Spencers in K. Jam. I's Time, created Earls of Sunderland by K. Char. I. (3.) Shugbury, about 2 m. S. E. of Southam, gave Name to an antient Family, who took the Aſtroites, or Star-Stones, often ploughed up in the Fields there, for their Coat of Arms. (4.) Leamington, about 3 m. N. E. of Southam, noted for a Salt Spring. (5.) Newenham Regis, about 3 m. N. W. of Rugby, noted for medicinal Springs, that ſeem to flow thro Alum Mines. They are diuretick, good for green Wounds; drank with Salt, laxative, and with Sugar, reſtringent.

XXIX. WORCESTERSHIRE,

HAS Warwickſhire and part of Gloceſterſhire on the E. Staffordſhire on the N. Gloceſterſhire on the S. Herefordſhire and part of Shropſhire on the W. 'Tis 35 m. long, and 25 broad; is in the Dioceſe of Worceſter, has 7 Hundreds, 152 Pariſhes, and 12 Market-Towns; ſends 9 Memb. to Parl. contains about 540000 Acres, and 20634 Houſes. The Air is wholeſome. The County abounds with Corn, Paſture, Cattel, Fiſh, and Fruit, and has ſeveral Salt Springs. The principal Rivers are the Severn, Avon, Solway, Stour, &c. Their chief Fruit is Pears, which they plant in their Hedges and Fields. They make great ſtore of Perry, which is a healthful Liquor. Here's alſo plenty of Cyder and Hops; with many Parks, and ſome Foreſts.

The Boroughs are,

1. Worceſter, the Capital, 86 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis a City and County, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 6 Aldermen, 24 Common-Council-Men, out of which the Mayor and Aldermen are choſen. The chief Trade is in Cloth and Gloves. Here are 10 Pariſh-Churches, beſides the Cathedral. 'Twas made a Biſhop's See in 679, being taken out of the Dioceſe of Litchfield. K. John lies here in a Tomb of White Marble; and Prince Henry, eldeſt Son of Hen. VIII. in one of Jet. The Town is ſuppos'd to have been founded by the Romans, who call'd it Branonium; and there's a Tower on the fair Bridge over the Severn, thought to have been built by them. The City is large, rich, populous, pleaſant, and well built. The Cathedral is a magnificent Structure. K. Hen. VIII. expell'd the Monks, and plac'd a Dean and Prebendaries in their room. He alſo founded a Grammar-School here. This City was burnt by the Danes, and ſuffer'd much in the Wars betwixt Stephen and Q. Maud, as it did in 1651, when Oliver defeated K. Char. II. here. It had formerly a Caſtle, now ruin'd. The Town is wall'd, has 3 Gates, and ſeveral Towers. It gives Title of Marquiſs to the D. of Beaufort, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Droitwich, 5 m. S. of Worceſter, and 88 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis an antient Town, govern'd by a Bailiff and Burgeſſes. The Bailiff is a Juſtice of Peace, and of the Quorum, and a Juſtice the Year after; and the Recorder is alſo a Juſtice. The Town ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Market is on Frid. and the Fairs on St. Thomas's Day, Good-Friday, and St. Simon and Jude's. This Town is chiefly noted for its Salt Springs, which yield excellent white Salt. The Springs are now reduc'd to 3. The Brine is ſtrong, and boil'd in Houſes built on purpoſe. This Commodity makes the Town rich.

3. Eveſham, 12 m. S. of Worceſter, and 74 W. of London, is govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 7 Aldermen, 12 Capital Burgeſſes, and a Chamberlain; which make up the Common-Council. The Mayor and 4 of the Aldermen are Juſtices of the Peace of Oyer and Terminer, and of Goal-Delivery, for all Offences in the Corporation, except High Treaſon. The chief Trade is in Woollen Stockings. The Markets on Mond. and Frid. and the Fairs Feb. 2. Mond. after Eaſter Week, Whit-Monday, and Sept. 10. Here are 3 Pariſh-Churches. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has a Harbour for Barges on the Avon. It gave Title of Baron to the late Ld Sommers.

4. Bewdley, 8 m. N. W. of Droitwich, and 92 from London. 'Tis antient, and govern'd by a Bailiff, Recorder, Deputy-Recorder, and 12 Capital Burgeſſes. Market on Thursd. 5. Ellesmere, 6 m. N. W. Market on Tuesd. gives Title of Baron to the E. of Bridgewater. 6. Oswestry, 6 m. S. W. has a Market on Mond. had a strong Ditch, Wall, and Castle, and drives a good Trade in Welch Cottons. 7. Wellington, 7 m. N. E. of Shrewsbury, Market on Thursd. 8 Newport, 5 m. N. E. gives Name to the noble Family of Bradford, and Title of Lord to the eldest Son. 9. Shefnell, 5 m. S. 10. Church-Stretton, 10 m. S. W. of Shrewsbury, has a Market on Thursd. 11. Clebury, 10 m. S. of Bridgenorth, Market on Wednesd.

Other Places of Note in this County are, (1.) Clehill, noted for excellent Barley, and some Veins of Iron. It lies 6 m. S. W. of Bridgenorth. 2. Pitchford, noted for a Well, on which floats a liquid Bitumen, which the Inhabitants skim off, and use instead of Pitch. Some think 'tis good against the Falling-Sickness and Wounds.

XXXII. CHESHIRE,

HAS Lancashire and part of Yorkshire on the N. Shropshire on the S. part of Derbyshire and Staffordshire on the E. the Irish Sea and part of Flintshire and Denbighshire on the W. 'Tis 45 m. long, and 25 broad; but much indented both Ways It has 7 Hundreds, 87 Parishes, 12 Market-Towns, sends 4 Memb. to Parl. contains 72000 Acres, 24054 Houses, and about 125000 Inhabitants. The Air is clear, the Soil fruitful for the most part in Corn and Grass; the latter so sweet, that no County in England affords such good Cheese. The common Firing is Turf from their Heaths and Mosses. In the latter are found long and streight Fir-Trees, 6 Foot under Ground, buried there as some think by Noah's Flood. The common People split and use them for Candles. Here are many Meers, Lakes, and Pools, which, with the Rivers Dee, Weaver, and Mersey, afford Carps, Trouts, Tench, Bream, Eels, &c. and they have plenty of Fowl, Sheep, and Goats. The chief Commodities are Cheese, Salt, and Mill-Stones, almost as good as the French. There's a Spring near Stalo-Bridge, ſo remarkable for its Perſpiration, that its Water, cork'd up cloſe in a Glaſs-Bottle, will force its way thro the Pores. Here are more Parks than in moſt other Counties, every Gentleman of Note, almoſt, having one. Here are alſo ſeveral Foreſts, of which thoſe of De la Mere and Macclesfield are the chief. It was a County Palatine before the Conqueſt; and afterwards ſettled by William the Norman, who gave the Count as abſolute Power as he himſelf had in the reſt of the Kingdom. It was ſometime poſſeſs'd by Branches of the Royal Family of Scotland. But the Power of theſe Counts, which was thought neceſſary at firſt to keep the neighbouring Welch in awe, grew ſo formidable, that Hen. VIII. made this and the other Palatinates ſubject to the Crown; but left this County the Determination of all Cauſes within it ſelf, as to Lands, Tenements, Contracts, and Crimes, except High-Treaſon.

The only Borough here, which ſends Memb. to Parl. is Cheſter. 'Tis Capital of the County, and lies 140 m. N.W. of London. It was made a Corporation and County by Hen. VII. and is govern'd by a Mayor, 24 Aldermen, 2 Sheriffs, and 40 Common-Council-Men. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Markets are on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and their Fairs begin on Midſummer and Michaelmas Days, and continue each a Week, or more, for all ſorts of Merchandize. It lies near the Mouth of the Dee, over which it has a fair Stone Bridge of 8 Arches, and a Gate at each End. Many fabulous Things are ſaid of its Antiquity; but 'tis ſuppos'd to have been founded by the Romans, who quarter'd the Legion Victrix here, as appears by Inſcriptions on ſeveral Altars dug up in and about it. It was famous in the Saxon and Norman Times, was made very ſtrong, and held out for K. Char. I. againſt the Parl. It has 9 Pariſh-Churches, beſides the Cathedral, which was founded by a Saxon Earl; and ſoon after the Conqueſt, the Biſhop's See was tranſlated hither from Litchfield, but afterwards remov'd. Hen. VIII. made it again a Biſhop's See. The Cathedral, with the Biſhop's Palace and the Prebendaries Houſes, ſtand on the N. ſide. Here's a noble Caſtle, with a Tower, aſcrib'd to Julius Caſar, and a ſtately Hall, where the Palatine-Court and Aſſizes are held twice a Year. It has commodious Apartments for lodging the Judges, a Hall for the Prince's Exchequer-Court, Offices for the Records, &c. and a Priſon for the County. The City is ſquare, has Walls, Towers, and Battlements, 4 Gates, and 3 Poſterns, and is 2 m. round. The Streets are for the moſt part fair and beautiful, and have Shops and Piazza's on each ſide, where People may walk dry in time of Rain thro the whole City. 'Tis the uſual Place where People embark to and from Ireland, with which it has moſt of its Trade. Its Commerce has ſuffer'd much by Banks of Sands caſt up in the R. the great Veſſels land at the Key, 6 m. diſtant, and ſend up their Cargo by ſmall Barks. The Tobacco-Pipes made here, are reckon'd the beſt in England. None but the King's eldeſt Son is now allow'd the Title of Earl of Cheſter.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Frodeſham, 7 m. N. E. It has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Harbour for Ships on Merſey R. 2. Northwich, 7 m. S. E. upon the R. Wever, is famous for Salt-Pits, and has a Market on Frid. a Grammar-School well endow'd, and Fairs on St. Nicholas and Mary Magdalen's Days. 3. Middlewich, 4 m. S. E. has likewiſe Salt-Pits, and a Market on Tueſd. 'Tis a large Town, governed by Burgeſſes, and has a fair Church with Monuments of Perſons of Note. The Fairs are on Aſcenſion and St. Luke's Days. 4. Altrincham, 9 m. N. E. of Northwich, has a Market on Tueſd. a Fair on St. James's Day, and is govern'd by a Mayor. 5. Stockport, 6 m. S. E. a Market on Frid. 6. Knotsford, 8 m. S. W. has a Market on Saturd. and Fairs on Whit-Tueſday, June 29. and Oct. 23. 'Tis divided into Upper and Lower, has a Town-Houſe, where the Seſſions are kept, and a Chappel. The E. of Bridgewater is Ld of the Manor. 7. Macclesfield, a large fair Town, 8 m. S. E. from Knotsford, Market on Mond. and Fairs on Barnabas and All-Souls Days. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, and has great Privileges. The chief Trade is in making Buttons. Here's a Free-School, a fair Church with a high Spire, and a College adjoining, with Monuments for Perſons of Note. In this Church there was an Oratory belonging to the E. of Rivers, where are 2 Braſs Plates, on one of which there's a Promiſe of 26000 Years and 26 Days Pardon for ſaying 5 Pater-noſters, and 5 Ave's. 8. Congleton, a large noted Town, 7 m. S. W. is govern'd by a Mayor, and 6 Aldermen, has 2 Churches, a good Market on Saturd. and Fairs on May-Day and July 2. The chief Manufacture is Gloves, Purſes, and Points. 9. Sandbach, 5 m. W. the Market on Thurſd. and Fairs on Eaſter-Tueſday and Wedneſday, and Thurſd. and Frid. before Chriſtmas. It vies for Ale with Derby, has a fair Stone Church, and 2 Stone-Croſſes in the Market-Place engraven with Images, and the Hiſtories of Chriſt's Paſſion. 10. Nantwich, 7 m. S. W. has a Market for Corn and Cattle on Sat. and a Fair on St. Bartholomew's. 'Tis a great Thorow-fare to Ireland, and has a conſiderable Trade in Cheeſe and Salt, reckon'd the beſt in England. The Graſs of the adjoining Fields is ſo ſweet, that their Cheeſe excels all the reſt in Cheſhire. 'Tis well built, has ſeveral Gentlemens Seats, and a large beautiful Church, like a Cathedral. The Salt-Works here are reckon'd as antient as the Time of the Romans. 11. Malpas, 9 m. W. has a Market on Mond. a Fair on Dec. 8. a ſtately Church with 2 Rectors, a Grammar-School, and an Hoſpital. It gives Title of Viſcount to the E. of Cholmondeley. Giraldus Cambrenſis tells the following punning Story as to the Name of this Place; That a Jew in his Time travelling towards Shrewsbury with the Archdeacon of this Town, whoſe Name was Peché, and the Dean, who was call'd Devil; and hearing the Archdeacon ſay, that his Archdeaconry began at Ill-Street, and reach'd as far as Malpas, he told them pleaſantly, That it would be a Wonder if he got ſafe out of the Country, becauſe Sin (for ſo the French Word Peché ſignifies) was Archdeacon, the Devil was Dean, the Archdeaconry began at Ill-Street, and ended at Malpas, which in French ſignifies an Ill Step.

Other Places of Note here are, (1.) Halton, 2 m. N. E. of Frodeſham, on a high Hill, with an antient Caſtle. 'Tis a conſiderable Member of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, and has a large Juriſdiction round it, call'd the Honour of Halton. Here's a Court of Record, a Priſon; and once a year the Officers of the Dutchy of Lancaſter keep a Court in the Caſtle, where every 14 Days another is held to determine Cauſes within their Juriſdiction; but Felons and Thieves receive their Sentence at Cheſter. Here's a ſmall Market on Saturd. and a Fair on Lady-Day.

(2.) The R. Dee, in this Country, was in a manner ador'd by the Britons, who drank of it before they engag'd in Battle. It riſes in N. Wales, and after running 55 m. falls into the Sea below Cheſter. It abounds with all ſorts of Fiſh, eſpecially Salmon and Trouts. 'Tis 2 m. broad at the New Key near Cheſter, and 4 at the Mouth; and has this Peculiar, that it ſwells by a S. W. Wind, tho the Weather be fair: and thoſe boiſterous Winds often remove the Quick-Sands, with which this R. abounds, and by conſequence alter the Channel.

XXXIII. HEREFORDSHIRE,

HAS Shropſhire on the N. Monmouthſhire and Gloceſterſhire on the S. Radnor and Brecknockſhires on the W. Worceſterſhire and part of Gloceſterſhire on the E. It lies in the Dioceſe of Hereford, (which includes alſo part of Shropſhire, and contains 313 Pariſhes.) 'Tis 35 m. long, and 30 broad; but much indented. It has 11 Hundreds, 9 Market-Towns, 176 Pariſhes, 2 Foreſts, 8 Parks, 660000 Acres, 15000 Houſes, about 95600 People, and ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. It being a Frontier County againſt the Welch, it had 28 Forts and Caſtles, moſt of them now in Ruins. The Air is healthful; and the People commonly live ſo long, that Serjeant Hoskins, of this County, having entertain'd K. James I. at his Houſe, gave his Majeſty the Diverſion of a Maurice-Dance by 10 Old Men and Women, who made up together 1000 Years. A Tempeſt of Hail fell in this County in June, 1697, many of the Stones being 9 Inches round; ſo that they kill'd the Poultry, deſtroy'd the Corn and Graſs, with many Fruit-Trees, and hurt abundance of Men and Cattel. The Wheat and Barley are ſo extraordinary, that the Lempſter Bread and Weobley Ale are thought to exceed all in England; as does alſo their Wooll, call'd Lempſter Oar, becauſe moſt of it is ſold there. This Shire abounds with Apples which make the beſt Cyder in England, and is the general Drink of the County. It excites Appetite, ſtrengthens Digeſtion, is good againſt the Gravel and Stone, and the beſt, made of Pippins, is excellent againſt Conſumptions, and us'd as a Vehicle for Medicines. The chief Rivers are, the Monnow, Wye, Lug, and Frome, whoſe Water is excellent, and they abound with Salmon, eſpecially the Wye, that are always in Seaſon. There are medicinal Springs upon Malvern-Hill for ſore Eyes, Cancers, and other Diſtempers; and about 2 m. from thence another, call'd Holy-Well, which, beſides its healing Qualities, removes Sunburning and Freckles. It flows thro a light Sand, and is full of metalline Particles, that ſhine like the fineſt Silver. There's another of the ſame Name and Qualities at 2 m. diſtance, and excellent for ſore Eyes and malignant Ulcers. Here are Marble Quarries, near Snod-Hill, as good as any in England. The Hogs make excellent fat red Bacon; which is aſcrib'd to their feeding on Apples, Cabbages, and Colworts.

The Boroughs are,

1. Hereford, the Capital, 130 m. N. W. of London. It is very antient, and thought to be of Saxon Original, founded by K. Edward the Elder; but ſuffer'd ſo much by the Wars betwixt the Saxons and Britons, that at the Norman Invaſion 'twas almoſt in Ruins. They rebuilt it, and erected a Caſtle, which, Leland ſays, in his Time, was the faireſt, largeſt, and ſtrongeſt in England; but 'tis now in Ruins. 'Twas ſeveral Times taken and retaken by K. Char. I. and the Parliament. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, High-Steward, Deputy-Steward, and Town-Clerk. The Common-Council conſiſts of 31. The Mayor and 6 Aldermen are part of their Number, and Juſtices of the Peace; and have a Sword-Bearer and 4 Serjeants at Mace. The Market is on Wedneſd. Frid. and Saturd. for Corn, Proviſions, and Cattel; and the Fairs on Tueſd. after Candlemas, Eaſter-Wedneſday, June 20. and Oct. 9. each of them holding 3 Days. It had 6 Churches, beſides the Cathedral, and has now but 4, 2 being demoliſh'd in the Civil Wars. The Cathedral was deſtroy'd by the Welch in 1060; but rebuilt, ſome ſay, in the Conqueror's Reign, and others, in that of Henry I. It is a beautiful magnificent Structure, and has the Monuments of antient Prelates, &c. There belong to it the Biſhop, the Dean, the Chancellor, 6 Canons, 27 Prebendaries, a Chanter, a Treaſurer, and 12 Vicars Choral, with Deacons, Choriſters, &c. The Biſhop's Caſtle, and the Cloſe with the Dignitaries Houſes, and the College of the Vicars and Choriſters, who live in an Academical Way; are pleaſantly ſituate, but the Buildings mean. The City is pretty large, but the Houſes old, and the People few, having no other Manufacture but Gloves. The Aſſizes, Quarter-Seſſions, County-Courts, &c. are held here. Over the Wye is a fair Stone-Bridge of 8 Arches. This Town formerly gave Title of Viſcount to the Family of Devereux, a Branch of that Family who were Earls of Eſſex.

2. Weobly, 7 m. N.W. and 108 from London, is an antient Bor. by Preſcription, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Inhabitants who pay Scot and Lot, and return'd by the Conſtables. The Market is on Tueſd. and Fairs on Aſcenſion-Day, and Tueſd. 3 Weeks after. The Town is chiefly noted for fine Ale.

3. Leominſter, or Lempſter, 5 m. N. E. and 103 N.W. from London, was incorporated by Q. Mary; is govern'd by a Bailiff, High-Steward, Recorder, 25 Capital Burgeſſes, and the Town-Clerk. The Bailiff is elected out of the 25 Burgeſſes. They ſend 2 Memb. to Parl. Their chief Commodity is Cloth and Gloves. The Market is on Frid. for Cattel, and all Manner of Proviſions; and the Fairs on Feb. 2. Tueſd. after Midlent-Sunday, May 2. June 29. Aug. 24. and Oct. 28. all noted for Black Cattel and Horſes. The Town is large, a great Thorow-fare to and from London, and the Houſes tolerably built. It has ſeveral Bridges over the Lug. Its Trade of Wool is leſſen'd, ſince, on a Petition from Hereford and Worceſter, they were oblig'd to change their Market from Thurſd. to Frid. It has a large old Church, and gives Title of Baron to the Family of Farmer.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Kyneton, 8 m. W. of Lempſter. It has a good Market on Wedneſd. an annual Fair, a Free-School, and its chief Trade is in narrow Cloths. 2. Pembridge, 4 m. S.E. has a ſmall Market on Tuesd. and an annual Fair for Horses. 3. Bramyard, 8 m. S. E. of Lempster, has a Market on Mond. and Fairs on Lady-Day and May 25. 4. Lidbury, 10 m. S. E. of Hereford, a fine well-built Town, noted for a Trade in Cloth. It has a good Market on Tuesd. and Fairs May 1. and Sept. 21. Here is a Hospital well endow'd, and a Person of Note is generally at the Head of it. 5. Ross, 8 m. S. W. of Lidbury, a well-built populous Town, has a good Market on Thursd. for Cattel and Provisions, and Fairs on Ascension-Day, Corpus-Christi-Day, July 20. and St. Andrew's Day.

XXXIV. RADNORSHIRE,

HAS Herefordshire on the E. part of Montgomery and Shropshire on the N. Brecknock on the S. and Cardigan on the W. 'Tis of an irregular Form, and about 90 m. in Compass. It lies in the Diocese of Hereford, has 6 Hundreds, 52 Parishes, 5 Market-Towns, 310000 Acres, and 3158 Houses. The E. and S. Parts are well cultivated; but elsewhere 'tis so mountainous, that it can hardly be manur'd. 'Tis well stor'd with Woods, small Rivers and Lakes. Here are the Ruins of many Castles. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

The only Town that has that Privilege is New Radnor, 115 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Prescription. Q. Eliz. in the 4th of her Reign, granted them a Charter with large Privileges, and likewise the Manor which contains 11 large Townships to the Capital Council, which consists of 25 Persons and a Recorder, out of whom are annually chose a Bailiff and 2 Aldermen. The Memb. of Parl. is chosen by the Capital and Common Burgesses that are sworn and pay Scot and Lot within the several Out-Boroughs of Rayader, Kavenllees, Kunklas, and Knighton. The Market is on Tuesd. and the Fairs on Trinity-Tuesday, Aug. 3. and Oct. 18. It gives Title of Earl to the Ld Roberts.

Other Market-Towns are, Rayader-Gwy, 10 m. N. W. the Market on Wednesd. 2. Knighton, 10 m. N. E. the Market on Thursd. 3. Teigen, 4 m. E. from Radnor, Market on Saturd. 'Tis large, well built, and the Seat of the County Assizes.

XXXV. BRECKNOCKSHIRE,

HAS Radnorshire on the N. and N.E. Herefordshire, and part of Monmouthshire on the E. part of Cardigan and Caermarthenshire on the W. Glamorganshire, and part of Monmouth on the S. The Welch derive the Name from one of their antient Princes. 'Tis about 106 m. round, has 6 Hundreds, 61 Parishes, 3 Market-Towns, 620000 Acres, and 5934 Houses. It lies in the Diocese of Llandaff; and is divided into barren Mountains and fruitful Valleys. The chief Commodities are Corn, Cattel, Fish, and some Otter-Fur. Giraldus Cambrensis, who was Archdeacon of it, says, in his Time, it had plenty of Woods, Pasture, and wild Deer; and mentions a Mountain call'd Arthur's Chair, with 2 Peaks on the top, and between them a Fountain that had Trouts, tho no Water ran from it. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

Brecknock, the Capital, is 13 m. W. of Hereford, and 122 N. W. of London. 'Tis govern'd by 2 Bailiffs, 2 Recorder, 15 Aldermen, 2 Chamberlains, 2 Constables, a Town-Clerk, and 2 Serjeants. The Parliament-Man is chose by the Bailiffs, Recorder, Aldermen, and Burgesses. It has a good Trade in Clothing, 3 Churches, one of them Collegiate, Markets Wednesd. and Saturd. Fairs June 24. Aug. 25. and Nov. 29. It gave Title of Earl to the Family of Ormond. 'Tis well built, was formerly strong, and has the Ruins of a magnificent Castle.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Built, 10 m. N. of Brecknock, Market on Mond. and Saturd. for Stockings, Cattel, and other Provisions. It lies pleasantly in a Wood on the Banks of the R. Wye. 2. Crickhowel, 8 m. S. E. Market on Thursd. The Marquis of Worcester has a Castle here.

XXXVI. MONMOUTHSHIRE,

HAS Herefordshire on the N. and N. E. Glocestershire on the E. Glamorganshire on the W. and Brecknockshire on the N. W. 'Tis 24 m. long, and 18 broad. 'Tis divided into 6 Hundreds, 127 Parishes, and 8 Market-Towns, all in the Diocese of Llandaff. It contains 340000 Acres, and 6490 Houses. It was formerly part of Wales, but now reckon'd to England. The People speak both Languages. It has many Woods, Hills, and fruitful Valleys on its Rivers Usk, Wyse, Monnow, and Rumney. The 2 first abound with Salmon and Trouts. It sends 3 Memb. to Parl.

Monmouth, the Capital, is 12 m. S. of Hereford, and 100 N. W. of London. It lies pleasantly betwixt the Wye and Monnow, and takes Name from the latter. It has a good Bridge over each, had formerly a stately Castle, where Henry V. was born, but now in Ruins. Here's a stately Church. The Place is populous, was incorporated by Char. I. in the 19th Year of his Reign, is govern'd by 2 Bailiffs, 15 Common-Council-Men, and a Town-Clerk. It sends one Memb. to Parl. has a Harbour for Barges, a Market on Saturd. and Fairs Nov. 11. & 18. every Mond. in Lent, on Whit-Tuesday and Trinity-Monday. It formerly gave Title of Earl to the Family of Cary, and afterwards of Duke to Char. II's eldest Natural Son, beheaded by James II. for taking Arms, and claiming the Crown. It now gives Title of Earl to the Ld Mordaunt, who has since fallen to be E. of Peterborough. The D. of Beaufort has a noble Seat near it, call'd Troy.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Abergavenny, 10 m. N. W. The Name is from the R. Gavenny, which falls below it into the Usk. 'Tis a handsome Town, well built, encompass'd with a Wall, has a strong Castle, drives a great Trade in Flannel, and gives Title of Lord to a Branch of the great and antient Family of Nevil, who is the first Baron of England. 2. Pontypole, 7 m. S. has a Market on Saturd. and Iron Mills. 3. Newport, 7 m. S. of Pontypole, near the Mouth of the Usk, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships. 4. Caerleon, 2 m. N. E. on the R. Usk, where it has a Harbour for Barges. The Market is on Thursd. 'Twas formerly a strong Place, the Quarters of a Roman Legion, and in the Time of the Britons a sort of University and Archbishop's See, remov'd afterwards to St. Davids. The Houses are built of Stone, but the Fortifications ruin'd. 5. Chepstow, 11 m. N. E. near the Mouth of the Wye, over which it has a fair Bridge. It was fortify'd and defended by a large strong Castle, and is still one of the best Towns in the County. It has a Harbour for Ships, and a Market on Saturd. 6. Usk, 9 m. N. W. near a R. of its own Name, over which it has a Bridge, and a Harbour for Boats. 'Tis large, well built, has a Market on Mond. and a noble Seat near it, belonging to the Duke of Beaufort. There are many Roman Inscriptions and Antiquities in this County, for which we refer to Camden.

XXXVII. GLAMORGANSHIRE,

HAS Brecon on the N. Bristol Channel on the S. Caermarthenshire on the W. and Monmouthshire on the E. is 112 m. round, lies in the Diocese of Llandaff, has 10 Hundreds, 118 Parishes, 9 Market-Towns, 540000 Acres, and 9644 Houses. The N. Part is mountainous, but the S. so fruitful, that 'tis call'd the Garden of Wales. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has several rich Lead Mines belonging to the Family of Price, discover'd in 1690, besides others.

The chief Places are,

1. Caerdiff, the County-Town, is 123 m. N. W. of London, stands at the Mouth of the Tave, has a good Harbour, a Market on Wednesd. and Saturd. and Fairs for Cattel, Sheep, and Horses, the 2d Wednesd. in March, June 20. Sept. 8. and Nov. 30. 'Tis a very antient Corporation, and has a Court of Record every Fortnight. 'Tis incorporated by the Name of Bailiffs, Aldermen and Burgesses, the Majority of whom on Michaelmas-Day chuse the Bailiffs, who are the only Judges of the said Court, Justices of Peace in the Town, and return the Memb. of Parl. Here is one fine Church, the other being ruin'd in the Civil War. This Town was fortified, and had a Castle, where Robert, the eldest Son of William the Norman, died, after a long Imprisonment, and having his Eyes put out.

2. Llandaff, adjoining to Caerdiff, is the See of a Bishop, one of whom, call'd Dunstan, or Kitchin, did so dilapidate the Revenue in Hen. VIII's Time, that 'tis scarce able to maintain his Successors. There are 154 Parishes in the Diocese. Here's a Market on Tuesd. a Harbour for Ships.

Off of Caerdiff-Point, is an Island, call'd Barry, (which gave Title to the Viscounts Barry in Ireland,) where there's a narrow Chink, says Giraldus Cambrensis, to which if one lays his Ear, he hears a Noise like blowing of Bellows, striking of Hammers, grinding of Tools, &c. But the Additions to Camden say, this Noise is heard at Wormshead-Point, a good way further W. and is occasion'd by the Motion of the Sea under the hollow Rock of this Promontory.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Cowbridge, 8 m. W. of Llandaff, which has a Market on Tuesd. and a Harbour for Boats. Tis govern'd by Bailiffs, annually chose and sworn by the E. of Pembroke's Deputy-Constable of the adjoining Castle of St. Quintin. The Quarter-Sessions are held here the Week after Easter. A little S. W. from hence lies Newton, on the Coast, famous for a Well which ebbs at full Sea, and flows at an Ebb. 2. Bridgend, 5 m. S. W. has a Market on Tuesd. and a Harbour for Ships, with a Stone Bridge over the Ogmore. 3. Lantrissent, 8 m. N. E. has a Market on Frid. 4. Caerphilly, 5 m. S. E. has a Market on Thursd. and the Ruins of one of the largest and most magnificent Castles in England next to Windsor, and the noblest of antient Architecture now remaining in Britain. It seems to have been a Roman Work. We refer for the Particulars to Camden. 5. Neath, 11 m. N. W. of Bridgend, has a Market on Sat. and a Harbour for Ships. 6. Swansey, 6 m. W. has a Market on Wednesd. and Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships, well frequented. 7. Penrice, 9 m. S. W. has a Market on Thursd. and a Harbour for Ships. This Town lies near Wormshead-Point, in that Part of the Country call'd Gower, which was several times possess'd by the Scots, who were drove out by Force of Arms.

XXXVIII. CAER-

XXXVIII. CAERMARTHENSHIRE,

HAS Brecknock and Glamorganſhire on the E. Pembroke and Cardiganſhire on the W. Part of Cardigan and Brecknock on the N. and the Sea on the S. It lies in the Dioceſe of St. Davids, is 102 m. round, has 87 Pariſhes, 6 Hundreds, 8 Market-Towns, 700000 Acres, and 5352 Houſes. 'Tis 35 m. long, and 30 broad. 'Tis in ſome Parts mountainous, in others very fruitful, and yields plenty of Corn, Graſs, Wood, Pitcoal, and good Lead. It abounds with Cattel, and the Rs. afford Salmon. The Scots did ſome time poſſeſs Part of this Shire, and the Coaſt, till drove out by the Welch. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. Many Roman Coins, and other Antiquities, for which we refer to Camden, have been found in this Shire.

Caermarthen, the Shire-Town, on the R. Towy, about 7 m. from the Sea, and 156 N. W. of London; has a fair Stone-Bridge over the R. and a Harbour for ſmall Veſſels, with a good Key. 'Tis noted for the Birth of Merlin, by ſome reckoned a Prophet, and by others a Magician; which is aſcribed to his Knowledge in the Mathematicks. The Town was fortified, had a large Caſtle, and was the Chancery and Exchequer for S. Wales. It is very antient, large, and govern'd by a Mayor, 2 Sheriffs, 16 Aldermen, a Town-Clerk, Sword-Bearer, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. 'Tis well frequented by Gentry, has Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. for all ſorts of Proviſions, and Fairs Aug. 1. and 20. Sept. 28. and November 1. and gives Title of Marquiſs to the D. of Leeds.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Lamindovery, 20 m. N. E. of Caermarthen. It has Markets on Wedneſd. and Saturd. 2. Langadock, 4 m. S. 3. Landilover, 4 m. S. W. has a Market on Tueſd. 4. Langhern, 6 m. S. W. of Caermarthen, has a Market on Frid. and a Harbour for Veſſels. 5. Kidilly, 6 m. E. has a Market on Tueſd. and a Harbour for Veſſels. 6. Lanelly, 6 m. S. E. a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for Veſſels. 7. New-Caſtle, 12 m. N. W. of Caermarthen, has a Market on Frid.

XXXIX. PEMBROKESHIRE,

HAS Caermarthenſhire on the E. the Sea on the W. and S. and Cardiganſhire on the N. E. 'Tis in the Dioceſe of St. Davids, about 26 m. long, and 20 broad; has 7 Hundreds, 145 Pariſhes, 8 Market-Towns, and had 16 Caſtles, and 2 Block-Houſes. It contains about 420000 Acres, and 4329 Houſes. The Inhabitants ſpeak Engliſh and Welch. The Country is fruitful, abounds with Corn, and Marl to fatten the Ground, Cattle, and Coals; and particularly Culm, which is the Duſt of Pitcoal, and when mixed with a Third of Mud, or ſlimy Dirt, made up into Balls, makes a ſweet and durable Fire, with very little Smoke, tho wet. 'Tis alſo noted for excellent Falcons call'd Peregrins. It lies neareſt to Ireland of any Place in Wales. It ſends 3 Memb. to Parl. and has many Roman Antiquities, for which we refer to Camden.

The Boroughs are,

1. Pembroke, the Shire-Town, 177 m. N. W. from London. It lies near the S. Coaſt. 'Tis wall'd, has a Caſtle on a Rock, where Henry VII. was born, with a Vault that has an Eccho, which the Country-People call Woggan; is governed by a Mayor, Bailiffs, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes, who elect the Parliament-Man. It has two fair Bridges over the R. is well frequented by Gentlemen and Tradeſmen, and has a Market on Saturd. The Sea every Tide flows up a narrow Point of Milford-Haven to the Walls. This Haven is as ſpacious and ſecure as any in Europe. It contains 16 Creeks, 5 Bays, and 13 Roads, diſtinguiſhed by ſeveral Names. 'Twas here where Hen. VII. landed when he came to dethrone the Tyrant Richard, whom he kill'd at Boſworth-Field. It gives Title of Earl to the antient and noble Family of Herberts, who are alſo Earls of Montgomery.

2. Haverford-Weſt, 7 m. N. W. of Pembroke, and 176 from London. 'Tis rich, populous, lies on the Dougledy R. which falls into Milford-Haven, is antient, governed by a Mayor, Sheriff, Bailiffs, and Burgeſſes. 'Tis a Town and County of itſelf. The Mayor is Admiral, Coroner, Eſcheator, and Clerk of the Markets within its Precinct; and he, with 24 Common-Council-men manage the Affairs of the Town. The Parliament Man is choſe by the Freemen, Freeholders, and Inhabitants paying Scot and Lot. The Markets are Tueſd. Thurſd. and Saturd. The Fairs are, May-Day, July 7. Aug. 24. Jan. 2. Septem. 12. and Oct. 7. and laſt each three Days. Here are three Churches, and a large commodious Key. The Aſſizes are conſtantly held here, and hold 6 Days.

The other Market-Towns are, 1. St. Davids, 10 m. N. W. on a Promontory, the furtheſt W. of any in Wales. 'Twas formerly of good account, but now ruinous. 'Twas antiently an Arch-Biſhop's See, and had 7 Suffragans; but on a raging Plague, the See was tranſlated to Dol in Britany. It afterwards contended in the Reign of Hen. I. with the See of Canterbury, but was caſt. The Cathedral has a very high Roof; and near it the Biſhop's Palace, with very fair Houſes for the Chanter (who is next to the Biſhop, there being no Dean) the Chancellor, the Treaſurer, and 4 Arch-Deacons, who with the other 18, make up 22 Canons. Theſe Houſes are incloſed with a ſtrong and ſtately Wall. The Town is now ſo much ruined, that they have no Market. 2. Tenbey, 6 m. E. of Pembroke, has a Market Wedneſd. and Saturd. and a Harbour for Veſſels. It had formerly a Caſtle, but is now much decay'd. 3. Narbarth, 9 m. N. E. of Pembroke, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Harbour for Boats. 4. Wiſton, 5 m. N. W. has a Market on Saturd. a Caſtle, and is governed by a Mayor and Bailiffs, tho a mean Place. 5. Fiſhgard, 10 m. N. E. of St. Davids, has a Market on Frid. and a Harbour for Veſſels, and a Trade in Herrings. 6. Newport, 4 m. N. E. has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Veſſels. 7. Killgarring, 5. m. N. E. has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Harbour for Boats, with a good Salmon-Fiſhing, there is a Cataract in the River, called the Salmon's-Leap, becauſe they take their Tail in their Teeth, and ſpring over the Cataract upwards.

That Part of the County beyond Milford-Haven, is called Ros, which in the Welch ſignifies a large green Plain. It was planted by Flemings in Hen. I.'s time, to keep the Welch there in awe, who often endeavour'd to diſpoſſeſs them, but in vain. They are much addicted to Trade, have always been faithful to the Crown of England; and their Language being nearer to ours than the Welch, the latter call it Little England beyond Wales.

Off of St. Davids lies Ramſey Iſland, which had its Name from feeding Rams; and adjoining to it are other Rocks, called the Biſhop and his Clerks, which are reſorted to every April by great numbers of Birds of ſeveral ſorts. They leave the Place in Auguſt, and conſtantly come and go in the Night-time. They commonly return about Chriſtmas, ſtay only a Week; when they go off, and come no more till Breeding-time. Among them are the Puffins, and thoſe call'd Harry-Birds, which breed in Holes, like Rabbits, and are catched with Nets. Some of them breed upon bare Rocks, without any Neſt. On this Coaſt a ſort of Sea-Weed is gather'd in the Spring, and after being clean'd, is made up into Balls, which the Inhabitants call Black-Butter: Some eat it raw; and others, fry'd with Oat-meal and Butter. 'Tis reckon'd ſovereign in all Diſtempers of the Liver and Spleen, and againſt the Stone. On the ſame Coaſt is a Pool called Boſharſton-Meer, ſo deep that it could never be ſounded. It bubbles, foams, and makes ſuch a Noiſe before a Storm, as is heard above 10 m. 'Tis ſuppoſed to have a ſubterraneous Communication with the Sea.

XL. CARDIGANSHIRE,

HAS Pembroke on the S. W. Caermarthen on the S. Part of Radnor and Brecknock on the E. Part of Merioneth and Montgomery on the N. and a large Bay of the Iriſh Sea on the W. 'Tis 32 m. S. and N. and 15 E. and W. has 5 Hund. 64 Pariſhes, 4 Market-Towns, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. lies in the Dioceſe of St. Davids, has 520000 Acres, and 3163 Houſes. The N. Parts are mountainous, but have Paſtures for Cattle, and many Lakes; and the W. and S. Parts abound with Corn, Fiſh and Fowl. Here are alſo Mines of Silver, Lead, and Copper; and ſeveral Roman Anquitities.

Cardigan, the Shire-Town, lies in the S. E. Corner of the County, upon the Coaſt, 179 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis very antient, govern'd by a Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of 12. The Mayor appoints their Meeting, and preſides. Here's likewiſe a Coroner and 2 Bailiffs. The Memb. of Parl. is choſe by the Majority of the Burgeſſes of the Town, and 4 others in the County. Here's a Market on Saturd. and Fairs Feb. 2. March 25. Aug. 15. Sept. 8. and Dec. 8. The Tide flows up to the Town, where's a Harbour for Veſſels. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Brudenel, ſince 1661. is wall'd about, has a Caſtle, a fair Church, and a Stone-Bridge of ſeveral Arches over the R. Tivy.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Lanbeder, 10 m. N. E. the Market on Tueſd. 2 Tregeron, 7 m. N. E. has a Market on Thurſd. a fair Church, and is governed by a Mayor. 3. Aberiſtwith, 11 m. N. W. on the Coaſt, has a Market on Mond. and a Harbour for Ships.

XLI. MONTGOMERYSHIRE.

LIES for the moſt part in St. Aſaph Dioceſe; has Radnorſhire on the S. Part of Cardigan and Merioneth on the W. Part of that and Denbigh on the N. and Shropſhire on the E. is about 30 m. long, 22 broad; has 7 Hundreds, 47 Pariſhes, 6 Market-Towns, 560000 Acres, and 5660 Houſes. 'Tis mountainous, but has many pleaſant fruitful Valleys, eſpecially along the Severn, which riſes from Plinlymmon-Hills here. 'Twas formerly much noted for a Breed of fine Horſes. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

Montgomery, the Shire-Town, is 120 m. N. W. of London, on the Aſcent of a high rocky Hill, with a pleaſant Vale underneath. The Name came from Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Salisbury, who built the Caſtle now demoliſh'd. 'Tis govern'd by Bailiffs, Coroners, Burgeſſes, &c. ſends 1 Memb. to Parl. has a Market on Thurſd. and Fairs March 25. and May 27. It gives Title of Earl to Herbert Earl of Pembroke.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Newtoun, 6 m. S. W. It has a Market on Tueſd. and a fair Bridge over the Severn. 2. Lanydles, 8 m. S. W. has a Market on Saturd. 3. Machynleth, 12 m. N. W. has a Market on Mond. and a Harbour for Boats. 4. Welſhpool, 6 m. N. of Montgomery, has a Market on Mond. and a Harbour for Boats.

This County, with Radnor and Shropſhire beyond the Severn, with the Town of Shrewsbury, and Part of Denbighſhire and Flintſhire, was formerly called Powis-land, and given by Roderick, the laſt King of Wales, to Mervin, his youngeſt Son; and continued in his Race till Edw. I. when Owen ap Griffith, one of his Deſcendants, ſubmitted to hold in Fee-Barony of the Crown of England. The Title of Lord and Marquiſs of Powis, is now in a Branch of the Family of Herbert, Earls of Pembroke, who have a Seat here, called Powis-Caſtle.

† XLII. ME-

XLII. MERIONETHSHIRE,

HAS thoſe of Carnarvan and Denbigh on the N. Part of Cardigan and Montgomery on the S. Part of that and Denbigh on the E. and the Sea on the W. 'Tis about 36 m. long, and 28 broad; has 6 Hundreds, 37 Pariſhes, and 3 Market-Towns; is in Bangor Dioceſe, ſends 1 Memb. to Parl. has 500000 Acres, and 2590 Houſes. 'Tis very mountainous, gives riſe to the Dovy, Dee, and other leſs Rs. The chief Product is Fiſh, Fowl, Sheep, and a Manufacture of Cottons. The Nature of the Fiſh in the Lakes, and of the Herbs on the Rocks and Mountains here, is obſerv'd to be much the ſame with that of the Fiſh and Herbs in the Alps. Here are abundance of Sheep, Goats, and Black Cattel; the breeding of which, is the chief Buſineſs of the Inhabitants. And tho their principal Food is Milk-Meats, they are ſtrong, comely, and well-proportion'd. Here is no Bor. that ſends Memb. to Parl.

The Market-Towns are, 1. Dol-Gelhe, or Dolgelly, ſo called from its lying in a woody Vale. It has a Market on Tueſd. Several Roman Coins have been lately dug up in the Neighbourhood. 2. Dinas Mouth-Wey, 7 m. S. E. has a Market on Frid. 3. Harlegh, 12 m. N.W. of Dolgelly, on the Coaſt, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships. An antient Golden-Chain was found in digging a Garden near the Caſtle of this Place, ſuppoſed to have been worn by ſome Britiſh Prince. The Author of the Additions to Camden, has a learned Diſſertation about it, to whom we refer. In 1694, a ſtrange fiery Exhalation annoy'd the Neighbourhood of this Place above 8 Months, burnt ſeveral Ricks of Hay, and ſo infected the Air and Graſs, that it occaſioned a Mortality among all ſorts of Cattel. It croſs'd a Bay of the Sea from Carnarvanſhire, 8 or 9 m. broad, in ſtormy as well as calm Nights, and proceeded conſtantly to and from the ſame Place; and what Damage it did was always by night. 'Twas a blue weak Flame, and did no hurt to Men, who frequently went into it to ſave their Hay, &c. and obſerv'd that it was repelled, or extinguiſhed by any great Noiſe; as Blowing of Horns, and Firing of Guns, &c. which is ſo much the more ſtrange, ſince it croſſed the Sea in ſtormy as well as calm Weather. We refer to the Philoſophical Tranſactions, and the Additions to Camden, for a further Account of it; but can by no means agree to the Conjectures mention'd in the Additions to Camden, that it proceeded from Locuſts that were drowned or died aſhore about 2 Months before this Phœnomenon; for we never heard of any ſuch Effect upon the drowning or death of Locuſts in Aſia, &c. where they do ſo much miſchief. 4. Bala, 17 m. N. E. has a good Market on Saturd. for thoſe who live in the Mountains. It lies on the Banks of Pimble-Meer, thro which the Dee runs, and as is commonly thought, does not mix with the Lake, becauſe Salmon are found in the R. but none in the Lake. And the Fiſh called Guinead, reſembling Whitings, but of the Trout kind, are found in the Lake, but not in the R. The Lake covers 80 Acres of Ground, and is ſaid never to ſwell by Land-Floods, but Winds make it overflow its Banks. Braſs Weapons have lately been dug up in this Country, ſuppos'd to have been uſed by the old Britons.

XLIII. CARNARVANSHIRE,

HAS the Iſle of Angleſea and the Iriſh Sea on the W. the ſame Sea on the S. and N. Denbighſhire and Merioneth on the E. with Part of the latter on the S. It is in the Dioceſe of Bangor, 35 m. long, and 30 where broadeſt. It has 6 Hundreds, 68 Pariſhes, 8 Market-Towns, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has about 370000 Acres, and 2765 Houſes. The Coaſts are populous, and fruitful, eſpecially in Barley, and well ſtor'd with Fiſh. The inland Parts have ſuch high Mountains, that Camden calls them the Britiſh Alps. They are rocky, riſe in ſeveral Stages above one another, with Lakes and Valleys betwixt, have good Paſtures for Cattle, and abound with Wood and Fowl. They afforded a good Retreat to the Welch in time of War. The higheſt are thoſe called Snowden-Hills, where Snow falls in May and June, and ſoon melts; but the Winter-Snow lies from September to April, and ſome to the middle of June. There are about 60 Lakes in this mountainous Tract, whoſe Inhabitants have a Tradition that this Country was formerly poſſeſs'd by the Iriſh. Here are ſeveral antient Forts; and Braſs Weapons have been lately dug up in this Shire.

Carnarvan, the Shire-Town, 186 m. N. W. of London, has a fine Proſpect to the Sea and the Iſle of Angleſea. The Princes of Wales kept their Exchequer and other Courts of Juſtice here. The Conſtable of the Caſtle is always Mayor by Patent, is aſſiſted by 1 Alderman, 2 Bailiffs, a Town-Clerk, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. They ſend one Mem. to Parl. The Market is on Saturd. and the Fair July 23. The Town was founded by Edw. I. and is noted for the Birth of Edw. II. the firſt Prince of Wales of Engliſh Extraction. The Town is wall'd, the Caſtle beautiful, and the Inhabitants commended for their Civility. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Dormer, ſince K. Charl. I's time.

Other Places of Note are, 1. Bangor, 8 m. N. E. on the Coaſt, formerly a great Town, but now of ſmall note, except for being the See of a Biſhop, who has a mean Cathedral, and but 96 Pariſhes in his Dioceſe. The Romans paſs'd from hence to the Iſle of Angleſea. Here's a Market on Wedneſd, and a Harbour for Boats. 2. Conway, 12 m. N. E. on the Mouth of a R. It gives Title to a Lord of the ſame Name. Pearls, large and well colour'd, are found in the R. Conway, which abounds with Muſcles that yield them, and has a Harbour for Ships. 3. Krekyth, 13 m. S. of Carnarvan, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Harbour for Ships. 4. Pulhely, 6 m. W. the like. 5. Nevyn, 4 m. W. on the Coaſt, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships.

Penman-Maur, a high rocky Mountain, lies on the N. W. Coaſt, noted for a narrow Paſs betwixt the high Rocks on one ſide, and a roaring deep Sea under a ſteep Rock on the other.

XLIV. ANGLESEA,

LIES on the N. W. Coaſt of Carnarvanſhire, is a County of it ſelf, and ſeparated from the other by a narrow Sea. 'Twas antiently called Mona, and had the preſent Name from the Engliſh when they took it. The greateſt Length is 20 m. and Breadth 17. It produces the beſt Wheat in Wales, has abundance of Cattle, ſome Allum, and Mill-Stones. It appears by ſeveral Monuments, to have been poſſeſs'd by the Iriſh; and has ſeveral Roman and other Antiquities. It has 74 Pariſhes, is ſaid to have near 200000 Acres, and 1840 Houſes. Here's Plenty of Fiſh and Fowl. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Anneſly, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

The chief Town is,

Beaumaris, 184 m. N. W. of London, on the E. ſide of the Iſland. 'Twas built by Edw. I. is governed by a Mayor, Recorder, 2 Bailiffs, 21 Burgeſſes, a Town-Clerk, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. The Parliament-Man is choſe by the Majority of the Magiſtrates and Burgeſſes. The Market is on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and the Fairs Sept. 8. Decem. 8. and Aſcenſion-Day.

Newbarrow, 12 m. S. W. on the S. part of the Iſland, has a Market on Tueſd. and a Harbour for Veſſels. Holyhead, in the moſt weſterly Part of this Iſland, is the Place where People commonly embark for Ireland.

XLV. DENBIGHSHIRE,

HAS the Iriſh Sea and Part of Flintſhire on the N. Part of Merioneth and Montgomery on the S. Carnarvan on the W. and Part of Flintſhire and Shropſhire on the E. Moſt of it lies in the Dioceſe of St. Aſaph. 'Tis about 30 m. long, and 18 broad; has 12 Hundreds, 57 Pariſhes, 4 Market-Towns, about 410000 Acres, and 6398 Houſes, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The W. Parts is hilly and barren; the middle Part, upon the Cheyd, is a very fruitful Valley, where are many Gentlemen of great Eſtates. The Soil in the W. Part is improved by the Aſhes of burnt Turf, ſo that it yields ſtore of Rye. The Black Cattel, Goats, and Sheep here are numerous; and there's ſome Lead near Moinglath.

The Shire-Town is Denbigh, on the Banks of the Iſtrod, 160 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis populous, well-built, full of Glovers and Tanners, governed by 2 Aldermen, a Recorder, and 2 Bailiffs annually choſen out of 25 Burgeſſes, a Town-Clerk, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. It has 2 Churches, ſends a Memb. to Parl. was formerly walled, and had a ſtrong Caſtle, has a Market on Wedneſd. and Fairs July 7. Sept. 14. and Mond. before Lady-Day. It lies on a rocky Ground, full of Lime-ſtone, which is thought to make their Drink unwholeſom, tho clear and palatable, ſo that the Inhabitants do not live long. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Fielding, ſince 1622. Some Britons being forced from Scotland, are ſaid to have conquer'd the Country from the Saxons, by the Help of the Welch, and poſſeſſed all the Lands from Conway to Cheſter. Here are ſeveral Roman and other Antiquities; and among others are found Glaſs Amulets, which the Vulgar fancy to be Snake-Stones.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Lanroſt, 11 m. W. a Market on Tueſd. and a good Free-School. 2. Ruthyn, 5 m. N. E. of Denbigh, has a Market on Mond. the beſt in the Vale, populous, had formerly a ſtately Caſtle, and gave Title of Lord to the Family of Grey. 3. Wrexam, 10 m. S. E. has a Market on Thurſd. one of the greateſt in the County, is populous, has a neat Church, and a lofty Spire.

XLVI. FLINTSHIRE,

HAS the Iriſh Sea on the N. the R. Dee on the N. E. and Denbighſhire on the S. W. and S. E. is about 24 m. long, 8 broad, has 5 Hundreds, and 28 Pariſhes. It lies in St. Aſaph Dioceſe, has about 160000 Acres, and 3150 Houſes. It abounds with Hills and fertile Plains, which produce Wheat, Barley, Rye, and Oats. The other Commodities are ſmall Cattle, Butter, Cheeſe, Honey, Pitcoal, Lead, Mill-ſtones, and Metheglin.

1. Flint, the Shire-Town, is 150 m. N. W. of London, on the Bank of the Dee, with a ſmall Harbour. 'Tis very antient, and was incorporated by Edw. I. The Governour of the Caſtle is Mayor. He and the Burgeſſes chuſe the Parliament-Man, and the Bailiffs return him. It has no Market, but Fairs on Aug. 10, and Nov. 30. The Town gives Title of Earl to the Prince of Wales.

2. Caerwis, 5 m. W. has a Market on Tueſd. 3. St. Aſaph, 4 m. N. W. is a Biſhop's See, 159 m. N. W. of London. Kentigern, ſaid to have been Biſhop of Glaſgow in Scotland, fix'd the See, and a Monaſtery with 663 Monks about Ann. Chr. 560; and returning to Scotland, appointed one Asaph, a Devout Man, Governor, from whence the preſent Name. There are about 128 Pariſhes in the Dioceſe. The Cathedral and Town are mean, and the See poor. The Town has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Boats.

Holy-Well, about 2 m. N. E. of Caerwis, is a ſmall Town, noted for a Spring, which, the Legendaries ſay, roſe miraculouſly in memory of St. Winifred, a Chriſtian Virgin, raviſh'd and beheaded here by a Pagan Tyrant. The Papiſts hew'd a neat Chappel out of the Rock over the Well, and built a ſmall Church, with her Hiſtory painted on the Window, and of her being reſtor'd to Life by St. Beuno. They aſcribe miraculous Cures to this Well: But Giraldus Cambrenſis, who was ſuperſtitious enough, takes no notice of theſe Miracles in his Itinerary thro this Country; ſo that 'tis thought to be a Forgery of a later Date. It breaks forth indeed with a rapid Stream, and is ſuppos'd to proceed from a ſubterraneous Rivulet that runs thro a Mine of Lead, or Tobacco-Pipe Clay; becauſe after Rain it appears muddy and blueiſh.

Upon ſinking Coal-Pits in this County, as in ſeveral others, natural and curious Impreſſions of Leaves, of Capillary Plants, ſuch as Fern, &c. are found upon Slates that lie next the Coal.

'Tis alſo ſaid there was Bangor-Iſchod in this County, near Cheſter and the R. Dee, with a Monaſtery of 2400 Monks, employ'd by 100 at a time to read Prayers, and ſing Praiſes; ſo that their Devotion was continued Day and Night without Intermiſſion.

XLVII. LANCASHIRE,

HAS Weſtmorland and part of Cumberland on the N. Cheſhire on the S. the Sea on the W. and Yorkſhire on the E. is 45 m. S. and N. and 32 E. and W. It lies in Cheſter Dioceſe, has 6 Hundreds, 62 Pariſhes, 27 Market-Towns, 1150000 Acres, 40000 Houſes, 240000 People, and ſends 14 Memb. to Parl. Edw. III. made it a County Palatine in favour of his fourth Son, John of Gaunt. It has a Court, which ſits in the Dutchy Chamber at Weſtminſter, for the Revenues of the Dutchy. The chief Judge is call'd Chancellor, and he has ſeveral Officers and Lawyers under him. They have alſo a Court of Chancery, of which he is likewiſe chief Judge, and has other Lawyers and Officers under him in that reſpect. The Air is the beſt of any maritime County in England, and not ſubject to Fogs. The Women of this County are generally obſerv'd to be very handſome, and the People ſtrong and healthful, except near the Fens and Coaſts, where they have often intermitting Fevers, Scurvys, Conſumptions, and Dropſies, occaſion'd by ſulphurous Steams, eſpecially before Storms. Their Moſs-Grounds yield Turf for Fuel, and Marle to cultivate the Soil. Trees are ſometimes found in 'em, thought to have been buried by the Deluge. The level Parts have ſtore of Wheat and Barley; and at the bottom of the Hills grow excellent Oats. Here's ſtore of good Flax, Hemp, and choice Paſtures, ſo that their Black Cattel are thought the largeſt in England. They have plenty of Pit-Coal, Stone and Timber for Building, and a great Trade to the Weſt Indies, Ireland, &c. The chief Rivers are the Merſey, Ribble, and Lon, beſides many leſſer, which, with their Meers and the Sea, yield plenty of Fiſh. Here are many Chalybeate and other Mineral Springs, and one of Salt. Their Mines and Minerals are Lead, Iron, Copper, Antimony, Black-Lead, Lapis Calaminaris, a ſort of Spar that occaſions Vomiting, green Vitriol, Roch-Allum, Alcalious fix'd Salt, and Brimſtone.

The Boroughs are,

1. Lancaſter, the Shire-Town, 180 m. N. W. of London, on the R. Lon, which abounds with excellent Salmon. 'Tis ſuppos'd to be the Longovicum of the Romans, becauſe of Roman Coins and other Antiquities found there. 'Tis an antient Borough, was incorporated by K. John; and its Privileges, with ſeveral other great Immunities, have been granted and confirm'd by his Succeſſors. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 7 Aldermen, 2 Bailiffs, 12 Capital Burgeſſes, 12 Common Burgeſſes, a Town-Clerk, and 2 Serjeants at Mace. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Majority of the Freemen. The Markets are on Wedneſd. and Saturd. The Fairs are every other Wedneſd. for all ſorts of Cattel; and 3 others on April 20. June 24. and Sept. 29. It is much improv'd ſince Camden's Time, who ſays, it was then chiefly inhabited by Husbandmen; whereas now 'tis populous and thriving, has a convenient Harbour for Veſſels, a Cuſtom-Houſe, &c. The County Aſſizes are held in the Caſtle. It has given Title of Earl and Duke to many Princes of the Royal Family. There are Mineral Springs near this City. Here's one large Pariſh-Church, and a Stone Bridge of 5 Arches over the Lon. The Caſtle is fair and ſtrong, but ſmall, and ſerves for the County Goal, as well as Aſſizes. At Aſhton-Hall, 2 m. off, there's a Fountain of pleaſant ſmooth Water, noted for its agreeable Taſte and Lightneſs.

2. Preſton, 18 m. S. E. and 160 N. W. of London, is very antient, was incorporated by Hen. II. and its Privileges, with large Immunities, granted and confirm'd by ſeveral of his Succeſſors. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 7 Aldermen, 17 Common-Council-Men, or Capital Burgeſſes, and a Town Clerk. The Markets are Wedneſd. Frid. and Saturd. the latter as conſiderable as any N. of the Trent, for Corn, Fiſh, Fowl, &c. The Fairs are Aug. 14. for 8 Days, Oct. 27. for 5 Days, and March 16. for 3. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Majority of the inhabiting Burgeſſes or Freemen. 'Tis remarkable for the Defeat of D. Hamilton near it in 1648, when he came to reſcue Char. I. out of Priſon; and alſo for the Defeat of the Rebels who took Arms againſt K. George in 1716.

3. Wigan, 12 m. S. of Preſton, and 148 N. W. of London. 'Twas incorporated by Hen. I. and ſtands pleaſantly on the R. Douglas. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 2 Bailiffs, 12 Aldermen, a Sword-Bearer, and Mace-Bearer. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Free Burgeſſes. The Markets are Mond. and Frid. and the Fairs on Holy-Thurſday, June 16. and St. Luke's Day. It has a ſtately Church, one of the beſt endow'd in the County, and the Rector is Ld of the Manor. 'Tis fair, and well built, and is noted for Manufactures of Cover-Lids, Rugs, Blankets, and other Things for Bedding; as alſo for Pit-Coal and Iron-Work, &c. There are Mineral Springs near this Town. At Ancliff, 2 m. from hence, there's a Burning Well. It riſes at the bottom of a Tree, has a ſulphurous Taſte, cold, and without Smell. When Strangers come to ſee it, a Man empties the Well, upon which a ſulphurous Vapour iſſues from a Corner, makes the new Water bubble as if it boil'd; and a Candle being put to this Vapour, it preſently takes Fire, and ſpreads on the Face of the Water, and ſeems to burn like Brandy. In a calm Seaſon the Flame continues ſometimes a whole Day, and boils Eggs and Meat, tho the Water at the ſame time continues cold. The Water taken out of the Well will not burn.

4. Newton, 5 m. S. of Wigan, and 143 N. W. from London. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcription, govern'd by a Steward, Bailiff, and Burgeſſes. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Burgeſſes, and return'd by the Steward of the Ld of the Manor. It has a great Fair on Aug. 1.

5. Clithero, 12 m. N. E. of Preſton, and 176 N. W. of London, on the Ribble. 'Tis an antient Bor. by Preſcript. and has Charters from Hen. II. and others; govern'd by two Bailiffs, one call'd the Out-Bailiff, choſe out of ſuch Gentlemen as have Borough-Houſes, but don't live in the Town; and the other call'd the In-Bailiff, who lives in the Town. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by them, the Burgeſſes, and all Perſons who inhabit Borough-Houſes. The Market is on Saturd. the Fairs on Lady-Day, July 22. Nov. 11. and the firſt Sunday after Epiphany.

6. Liverpool, 14 m. S. W. of Wigan, on the Coaſt, and 150 N. W. of London. 'Tis an antient Corporation, had a Charter from K. John, and its Privileges confirm'd by ſeveral of his Succeſſors. 'Tis governed by a Mayor, a Recorder, Aldermen without Limitation, 2 Bailiffs, 40 Common-Council-Men, of whom the Mayor is one, and about 1500 Burgeſſes. It has many Privileges by Preſcription, as well as by Charter. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Freemen and Burgeſſes, and return'd by the Mayor and Bailiffs. The Markets are Wedneſd. and Saturd. and they have a Fair every Wedneſday-fortnight for all ſorts of Cattel, and 2 great Fairs on June 25. and Nov. 11. 'Tis neat and populous, is the moſt flouriſhing Port-Town in thoſe Parts, and begins to rival Briſtol. 'Tis a convenient and frequented Paſſage to Ireland; which, with their Trade to the Weſt Indies, and the ſeveral Manufactures in the adjacent Country, has very much increas'd the Number of People and Buildings; ſo that the Cuſtoms here are 10 times more than they were 28 Years ago. Here's a Collector, Comptroller, and other Officers. Many Gentlemen of the chief Families of the County have been Mayors of it. The Town is free of Cuſtoms at Briſtol in England, and Waterford and Wexford in Ireland. Here's a Town-Houſe, lately built, ſupported by Pillars and Arches of hewn Stone, with an Exchange for the Merchants under it. The Harbour and its Dock, which has Iron Flood-Gates, are defended by a Caſtle on the S. ſide, and a ſtately ſtrong Tower on the W. Here's a Free-School, a large Charity-School, 3 Churches, and a Priſon; and on the Coaſt are taken many ſorts of Fiſh, as Sea-Dogs, Ink-Fiſh, Sheath-Fiſh, &c. Here are many unuſual Birds; as the Sea-Crow, whoſe Body is blue, and Head and Wings black; and a ſort of Sea-Eagles, Sparling-Fiſhers, Cormorants, Razor-Bills, Copped Wrens, Tropick Birds, &c. In the R. Merſey there's plenty of Salmon, Cod-Fiſh, Flounders, Turbots, Plaiſe, and Smelts.

Other Market-Towns are, 1. Hawkſhead, 22 m. N. W. of Lancaſter. It has a good Trade in Cloth, and a Market on Mond. and an annual Fair. 2. Broughton, 9 m. S. W. 3. Ulverſton has a Market on Thurſday, an annual Fair, and a Harbour for Ships. 4. Cartmel, 10 m. S. E. of Broughton, has a Market on Monday, an annual Fair, and a Harbour for Boats. It lies in that part of the County call'd Fourneſs, near Kenſand, where the River Ken falls into the Ocean, where there are 2 other dangerous Sands, call'd Levenſand and Duddenſand. The Uncertainty of the Tides, which are quicker or ſlower according as the Winds blow from the Iriſh Sea, and the many Quickſands occaſion'd by rainy Weather, make them dangerous; ſo that there's a Guide on horſeback appointed at each, and paid out of the Revenue, to conduct Travellers. At Wrayſholm-Tower, near this Place, a Medicinal Spring was lately diſcover'd, and is much frequented in Summer for Cure of the Stone, Gout, Worms, Itch, &c. 5. Dalton, 4 m. S. W. from Ulverſton, ſtands in a Champaign Country, not far from the Sea, with a Market on Saturd. and an annual Fair. Here's an old Caſtle, in which are kept the Records and Debtors of the Liberty of Fourneſs.

Winander-Meer, lies on the N. E. Corner of this County, is 10 m. long, and 3 or 4 broad. It abounds with all the uſual ſorts of Fiſh, and particularly Chars, which are plentiful in one Part, but deſtroy'd by the Pikes in the other. They are about ¼ of a Yard long. The Meat is red, very delicious when potted; and great Quantities of them are ſent to London yearly. Keningſton-Meer is 4 m. W. from the former, not ſo large; but the Chars are better. Here was another, call'd Martin-Meer, but ſince drain'd, and made good Arable Land. At Rougham, in the ſame Hundred, there's a ſaline Purging Fountain; and at Roſſal there's a Water deſcends from Hagburn-Hills into the Plain, which the Sea frequently over-flows, and turns the Marle into a hard Free-Stone, which the People find better for Building than others. Here are alſo ſeveral Springs near the Manor of Fourneſs, which appear only at certain Times, and are thought to be occaſion'd by Rains, or a hazy Atmoſphere. At Kirby, in Fourneſs, there once happen'd ſuch a violent Eruption of Waters, as over-turn'd ſeveral Houſes and Rocks.

6. Garſtang, 10 m. S. of Lancaſter, has a Market on Thurſd. a Harbour for Boats, and annual Fairs. 7. Poulton, 8 m. S. W. lies near the Coaſt; has a Market on Mond. and annual Fairs. It lies near the Mouth of the Wyre, (which advances its Trade,) and is noted for a good Pearl-Fiſhing. 8. Kirkham, 6 m. S. E. near the Ribble, has a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair June 24; and there's a Free-School well endow'd, with 3 Maſters. In many Places upon this Coaſt there are great Heaps of Sand which the Inhabitants gather together, and after having lain ſome time, put into Troughs full of Holes at bottom, pour Water upon it, and boil the Lixivium into white Salt. 9. Blackborn, on the Derwent, 7 m. E. of Preſton. It has a Market on Mond. and an annual Fair. 10. Coln, ſtands on a Hill, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair June 21. Several Roman Coins have been found here.

here. 11. Burnley, 8 m. E. has a weekly Market, and a medicinal Spring, and is noted also for Roman Coins found here. 12. Haſtingden, 5 m. S. W. has a Market on Wedneſd. and annual Fairs. 13. Charley, 9 m. S. E. has a Market on Tueſd. and an annual Fair. 14. Rochdale, 7 m. S. E. of Haſtingden, has a Market on Tueſd. and a good Trade. 15. Eccleſton, 3 m. W. of Charley, has a weekly Market, and annual Fair. 16. Ormskirk, 7 m. S. W. has a Market on Tueſd. and a Fair, with a good inland Trade, and a Church, where the Earls of Derby have their Burial-Place. Here's a Bituminous Earth, from whence Oil of Amber is extracted. It preſerves raw Fleſh. The Country People work up the Earth into Candles, which burn well. Latham-Houſe, in the Neighbourhood, is the Seat of the Earls of Derby. The Counteſs maintain'd it 2 Years againſt the Parliament's Forces, who at laſt took and demoliſh'd it. In the adjacent Park there's a mineral Spring, call'd Maudlin-Well, handſomely wall'd in and cover'd. 'Tis impregnated with Sulphur, Vitriol, Okre, and a marine Salt, united with a bitter Purging Salt. It caſts up marine Shells in great Quantities, tho it be far from the Sea, or any Salt Rivers; which make it troubleſome to the Drinkers: but this has been prevented of late by laying Mill-Stones upon the Spring, which keep down the Sand and Shells. Theſe Waters have perform'd notable Cures. 17. Preſcot, 5 m. E. of Liverpool, has a Market on Tueſd. and an annual Fair. 18. Warrington, a large neat Town, 7 m. E. of Preſcot, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair July 25. 'Tis famous for Malt and good Ale, equal to that of Derby. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Booth, formerly Lords De la Mere. Here's a fair Stone Bridge over the Merſey, which leads into Cheſhire. In the R. here are catch'd Sturgeon, Greenbacks, Mullets, Soals, Sand-Eels, Lobſters, Oyſters, Shrimps, Prawns, the beſt and largeſt Cockles in England, with other Shell-Fiſh and Muſcles in ſuch abundance, that the Husbandmen on the Coaſt manure their Ground with them. At Barton, 9 m. N. E. of Warrington, there's a Salt-Spring of the ſame Nature with thoſe in Cheſhire. 'Tis thought to proceed from Salt Rocks under ground, and is ſo impregnated, that 1 Quart yields 7 or 8 Ounces of good white granulated Salt; whereas a Quart of Sea-Water does not produce above 1 Ounce and $\frac{1}{2}$. 19. Leigh, 6 m. N. E. of Warrington. 20. Bury, 10 m. N. E. of Leigh, has a Market on Thurſd. and a Fair April 23. 21. Bolton, 4 m. N. Weſt, has a Market on Mond. and Fairs June 29. and Aug. 15. Here are medicinal Waters, and a Staple for Fuſtians. 22. Mancheſter, on the Irwell, 6 m. S. of Bury. 'Tis antient, and was ſuppos'd to be Antonine's Manutium. It was a Fortreſs of note in the Roman Times, as appears by ſome Ruins and Inſcriptions. It lies on a ſtony Hill, and has noble Quarries in the Neighbourhood. It exceeds all the Towns of thoſe Parts in Buildings, Populouſneſs, and Trade. Here has been long a Manufacture of Fuſtians, call'd Mancheſter Cottons, much improv'd of late by Dying, Printing, &c. Here are other Manufactures, as Ticking, Tape, Filleting, and Linen Cloth; which enrich the Town and neighbouring Pariſhes. Here's a ſpacious large Market-Place, with a Market on Saturd. and annual Fairs. Here's a College, founded by one of the Lords De la Ware, and repair'd by Q. Eliz. who call'd it Chriſt's-College. It conſiſted of a Warden, 4 Fellows, 2 Chaplains, 4 Singing-Men, and 4 Choriſters; but they are now leſſen'd. The Collegiate Church is very magnificent, and has a famous Clock, ſhewing the Age of the Moon. Here's alſo an Hoſpital for 60 poor Boys of the Town and Pariſh, who at 14 Years of Age are put out Apprentices. Here's alſo a good Library, and a large School, where about 70 Perſons are maintain'd. Here's likewiſe a publick School well endow'd. This Town gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Montague. 23. Hornby, 7 m. N. E. of Lancaſter, on the R. Lon, has a Market, and is noted for a fine Caſtle, the Seat of Ld Monteagle, who diſcover'd the Gunpowder-Plot. There are ſeveral other medicinal Wells in this Country, beſides thoſe mention'd, as at Plumpton, Middleton, Strangeways, Larbrick, and Chorley.

XLVIII. YORKSHIRE,

HAS Lancaſhire and Weſtmorland on the W. part of Weſtmorland and the Biſhoprick of Durham on the N. the Shires of Derby, Nottingham, and Lincoln on the S. and the Sea on the E. It lies in the Dioceſe of York, is the biggeſt County in the Kingdom, about 90 m. ſquare, divided into the Weſt, Eaſt, and North Ridings, and ſome make Richmondſhire a fourth Diviſion. It contains about 3770000 Acres, 28 Hundreds, 563 Pariſhes, beſides many Chappels of Eaſe, equal to moſt Pariſh-Churches; has 46 Market-Towns, and ſends 30 Memb. to Parl. The Houſes are computed at 106151. Some Parts are mountainous and barren, but many others fruitful in Corn; and in general it abounds with Cattel, Fiſh, and Fowl. 'Tis remarkable for a Breed of fine Horſes, great Flocks of Goats and Sheep, Mines of Lead, Copper, and Coals. Dr. Fuller ſays, that for 20 m. round Pomfret, the Soil is not equall'd by any for the Goodneſs and Plenty of ſome Commodities, the whole reſembling a Garden. When Dr. Tonſtal, Biſhop of Durham, attended Hen. VIII. in his Progreſs to York, he ſhew'd him a Valley ſome m. N. of Doncaſter, which he ſaid was the richeſt he had ever ſeen in Europe; for within 10 m. of Haſlewood there were 165 Manor-Houſes of Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen of the beſt Quality, 275 Woods, ſome of them 500 Acres, 32 Parks, and 2 Chaces for Deer, 120 Rivers and Brooks, whereof 5 were navigable, and well ſtor'd with Salmon and other Fiſh, 76 Water-Mills, 25 Coal Mines, 3 Forges for making Iron, with Iron-Stone enough to employ them; and within the ſame Limits was as good Hunting, Hawking, Fiſhing, and Fowling, as in any Part of England beſides. Speed ſays, that if one Part of Yorkſhire be ſtony and barren, another is as fruitful, and richly adorn'd with Corn-Fields; if ſome Places be naked and deſtitute of Woods, others are ſhaded with fine Foreſts; and if ſome Places be miry and unpleaſant, others are as delightful and pleaſant as the Eye can wiſh. Here's abundance of Jet, Allum, Lime-Stone, Liquorice, and medicinal Waters. Their principal Manufacture is Cloth; next to which Rippon Spurs, Sheffield Blades, and Sherborn Pins, are of eſpecial Note. Stow obſerves, That the Value of 60000 l. per Ann. in Pins was imported into England; whereas by this Manufacture, great Quantities are now exported to France. No County goes beyond this for ſtately and convenient Seats of the Nobility and Gentry; nor does any exceed it in giving Titles of Honour.

The principal Rivers are the Humber, Tees, Swale, Nyd, Wharf, Are, Ouſe, Derwent, Calder, and Dun.

The Weſt Riding is bounded with the Ouſe, Lancaſhire, Derbyſhire, and Nottinghamſhire. The Eaſt Riding reaches to the Ocean, which, together with the R. Derwent, incloſes it. The North Riding is bounded by the Rivers Tees, Derwent, and the Ouſe.

The Boroughs of the Weſt Riding are,

1. York, on the Ouſe, which divides it into 2 Parts. 'Tis 150 computed, and 192 meaſur'd m. N. W. from London. 'Twas formerly call'd Eboracum, or Eburacum, Brigantium, or Civitas Brigantium. Camden thinks the Name Eburacum came from its lying on the R. Ure, now Ouſe; and that 'tis of Roman Original, becauſe the 6th Legion, call'd Victrix, ſtaid here. And it appears by old Inſcriptions and Coins that it was a Roman Colony, and afterwards a Municipium. The Emperor Severus, and Fla. Valerianus, Conſtantius Chlorus died here, and Conſtantine the Great was proclaimed Emperor here as ſoon as his Father died; and ſome are of opinion that Conſtantine was born here. This City was famous in the Time of the Saxons, Danes, and Normans, and ſuffer'd much by their Wars, and thoſe of the Scots, as it did ſeveral times by Fire. We can't inſiſt farther on its Antiquity.

It is a City and County of it ſelf, and has Juriſdiction over the Liberty of Anſty, on the W. ſide. The Archbiſhop of this City contended for Primacy with him of Canterbury, till the Controverſy was determin'd by Pope Alexander for the latter. He likewiſe claim'd a Superiority over the Biſhops of Scotland; but that was alſo determin'd againſt him. He is allow'd the Title of Primate of England, in diſtinction from the Archbp of Canterbury, who is Primate of all England, and the Archbp of York is next to him in Precedency. His Dioceſe contains the greateſt part of Yorkſhire, and all Nottinghamſhire; and the Biſhops of Durham, Carliſle, Cheſter, and Man, are his Suffragans.

The City is incorporated by the Name of Mayor and Commonalty; and the Government is an Epitome of that of the Nation: For the Ld Mayor has 12 Aldermen for his Privy-Council, 2 Sheriffs, and 24 that have been Sheriffs, who compoſe an Upper Houſe like that of the Lords; and the Recorder and City Council aſſiſt them as Judges. The Common-Council of 72 principal Inhabitants reſembles the Houſe of Commons, without whoſe Conſent none of the publick Stock can be lent or disburs'd. Here are 26 Pariſh-Churches, 2 Chappels of Eaſe, and a Cathedral, one of the nobleſt and faireſt Structures in Europe. 'Tis 524 Foot $\frac{1}{2}$ long, beſides the Buttreſſes. The E. End is 105 Foot broad; the W. End 109; the Breadth of the Croſs, from N. to S. 222; the Breadth of the Chapter-Houſe 58 $\frac{1}{2}$, the Height of it to the Canopy 86 $\frac{1}{2}$; the Height of the Body of the Minſter 99; that of the Lanthorn to the Vault 188; and the Height to the top Leads 213. The City is fair, large, rich, and populous, and is the ſecond for Dignity in England. Here are 5 Markets per Week, and 6 great Fairs for all ſorts of Cattel, beſides one for Black Cattel and Sheep every other Thurſd. It has long given Title of Duke to Princes of the Blood Royal, as it does now to His Majeſty's Brother, Prince Erneſt. It lies in a ſpacious Plain, is adorn'd with fair Buildings both publick and private, is incloſ'd with a good Wall, on which are ſeveral Turrets, and inhabited by many Gentlemen and rich Tradeſmen. This City was taken by the Parliament Army after the Defeat of K. Char. I. at Marſton-Moor. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Knaresborough, 13 m. W. on the Nyd, and 144 N. W. from London, near a Foreſt of its own Name. 'Tis govern'd by a Bailiff, who, with the Burgeſſes, elect the 2 Parliament-Men. 'Tis noted for medicinal Springs, there being a ſweet Spaw, and a ſtinking or ſulphurous Well in a Foreſt about 3 m. off, which is good againſt the Scurvy, Spleen, and Gout. Here's a Cold Bath, call'd St. Mungo's Well, about 4 m. off. The Market is on Wedneſd. The neighbouring Fields abound with Liquorice. It had a Caſtle on a Rock; and here's a dropping Well, the moſt famous in England for petrifying Wood, which is no ſooner put into it, but 'tis cruſted over with a ſtony Subſtance, and is by degrees turn'd all into Stone. The Ground upon which it drops from a ſpungy Rock, above 12 Yards long, is all turn'd into Stone; and the Water that runs from it into the Nyd, has form'd a Rock of ſome Yards in Length.

3. Aldborough, 5 m. N. E. and 150 N. W. from London, is a ſmall Town with a Market; and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſe by the Bailiff and all that pay Scot and Lot. 'Twas a large Town in the Time of the Romans, as appears by Ruins and Coins.

4. Boroughbridge, 4 m. N. of Knaresborough, and 162 N. W. of London, has the Name from a ſtately Stone-Bridge over the Ouſe. 'Tis well built, govern'd by a Bailiff, who with the Burgeſſes elect 2 Parliament Men. 'Tis a great Thorow-fare in the North Road. The Market is on Saturd. and it has 2 annual Fairs; one which begins June 11. and laſts 7 Days, and another great Fair for Cattel, &c. Their chief Manufacture is Hard Ware, of which they ſell yearly 7 or 8000 l. worth. In a Field beyond the R. are many Stones like Pyramids, which the Country People call the Devil's Bolls. They are thought to have been made up of an artificial Cement, and erected in honour of Heathen Deities, or a Roman Victory.

5. Rippon, 4 m. N. W. and 158 from London, on the Ouſe. 'Tis an antient Corporation, and was govern'd by a Wakeman and Elders before the Conqueſt. Since James I's Time, it has been govern'd by a Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and 24 Aſſiſtants. 'Tis large, pleaſant, and populous; and has a Collegiate Church with 3 lofty Spires, govern'd by a Dean and Prebends. The Market is on Thurſday; the Fairs on Thurſd. after Jan. 13. for Horſes, the firſt Week in March, Thurſd. after May-Day, Holy-Thurſd. the Thurſ. after Wilfrid's, and Nov. 2, & 11. The chief Manufacture is Spurs. It had formerly a Cloth Manufacture, but is now a Staple for Wool, which the Clothiers of Leeds, Wakefield, Halifax, &c. come to buy every Week. The Town is well inhabited, and has a Bridge over the Ouſe. The Church was famous in the Times of Popery for a ſtrait Paſſage into a Room under Ground, call'd Wilfrid's Needle, by which they try'd Womens Chaſtity, alledging that if they were chaſte, they might paſs with eaſe, but otherwiſe they could not. Bede ſays the Scots had a Monaſtery here before Wilfrid's time. Near the rich Abbey of Fountain built in ſight of this Town, there are ſome Lead-Mines. Rippon is noted for a Treaty betwixt Commiſſioners from K. Charles I. and others from the Scots, after the ſecond Rupture with that Nation.

6. Pomfret, or Pontefract, about 16 m. S. W. of York, and 128 N. W. from London. 'Twas incorporated by Rich. III. and its Privileges confirmed by ſucceeding Kings. 'Tis governed by a Mayor annually choſe by the Burgeſſes; and he returns the 2 Parliament-Men, which are choſe by the ſaid Burgeſſes. Here are the Ruins of a Caſtle deſtroy'd by the Civil Wars, where Thomas E. of Lancaſter was beheaded by Edw. II. and where Rich. II. was barbarouſly murder'd by Hunger, Cold and Torments: Here alſo Rich. III. murdered 2 of Edw. V's Uncles. In the Neighbourhood there's Plenty of Liquorice and Skirwort.

Other Places of Note in this Riding, beginning S. are, 1. Sheffield, on the Borders of Derbyſhire. It has a Market on Tueſd. ſtands on the R. Don, and is noted for making Hard-ware, and the Iron-Mines in the Neighbourhood; ſo that it has been a Staple for Knives for above 300 Years. Here was a Caſtle in which Mary Q. of Scots was once a Priſoner, but now demoliſhed. The D. of Norfolk is Lord of the Manor; and there's a ſtately Hoſpital here, well endow'd by the Talbots, Earls of Shrewsbury, of whom there are many Tombs in this Place. 2. Rotheram, 4 m. N. E. has a fine Stone-Bridge over the R. Don, a Market on Mond. and had a College founded by Rotheram Archbiſhop of York, who was born here; as was alſo the learned Dr. Sanderſon late Biſhop of Lincoln. 3. Tickhill, 6 m. E. has a Market on Saturd. and a large old Caſtle. 4. Doncaſter, 5 m. N. has a Market on Saturd. and is noted for a Manufacture of Gloves, Stockings, knit Waiſtcoats, and Petticoats. It ſtands on the R. Don, on the Road between York and London. 'Tis a large, well-built, populous Town, governed by a Mayor and Aldermen. Here's a fair Pariſh-Church, with a high Spire, and the following odd Inſcription on the Tomb of one Rob. Byrks, who gave Roſſington-Wood to the Publick.

Howe! Howe! Who is Heare?
I Robin of Doncaſtere,
And Margaret my Feare.
That I ſpent that I had,
That I gave that I have,
That I left that I loſt.

A. D. 1579. Quoth Robertus Byrks, who in this World did reign threeſcore Years and ſeven, yet liv'd not one.

This Town gives Title of Earl to a Grandſon of the late D. of Monmouth. 5. Barnſly, 11 m. N. W. the Market on Wedneſd. is well built, and noted for Hard-ware, &c. 6. Huthersfield, 11 m. N. W. 7. Wakefield, 9 m. N. E. has a Market on Thurſd. and Frid. and a Harbour for Barges. 'Tis antient, large, and neat; famous for making Cloth; and has a Stone-Bridge over the Calder, on which Edw. IV. built a neat Chappel in memory of thoſe who fell in Battel here. The adjacent Country is called the Lordſhip of Wakefield, of which there is a Seneſchal or Steward. 8. Snathe, 8 m. E. of Pomfret, has a Market on Frid. and a Harbour for Boats. 9. Thorn, 5 m. S. E. has alſo a Harbour for Boats, and Market. In the Neighbourhood are thoſe called the Levels, or Marſhes, intermix'd with Turf, Moors, Arable and Paſture Grounds; but drained of late: and upon digging the Drains, there were found Gates, Ladders, Hammers, Shoes, &c. and the Body of a Man; ſo that it ſeems to have been overflowed by ſome Inundation. In other Parts of the Drain are ſeen at low Water, the Roots of Trees, ſome ſtanding upright, others leaning Eaſtward, and ſome look as if they had been cut or burnt. Roman Coins have alſo been found in the ſame Drains. 10. Halliſax, 11 m. N. W. of Wakefield, is a large, populous, rich, well-built Town, on the ſteep Aſcent of a Hill, has a Market on Thurſd. and a great Manufacture of Cloth. 'Twas famous for a ſevere By-Law againſt Thieves taken in the Fact; according to which, they beheaded them for any thing above 13 d. ½ in Value: The Criminal was firſt brought before the Bailiff of the Town, who preſently ſummoned the Frith-Burghers, within the Towns of the Foreſt; and if found guilty, he was brought to Execution within a Week. The Ax was drawn up by a Pulley, and faſten'd with a Pin to the Side of the Scaffold: If he had ſtole a Horſe, Ox, or any other Beaſt, 'twas faſten'd by a Cord to the Pin that ſtay'd the Block; and when the Jurors held up one of their Hands, the Bailiff, or his Servant, whipp'd the Beaſt, which pulled out the Pin, and Execution was done immediately. This Town is remarkable for the Largeneſs of its Pariſh, which has 11 Chappels, and 2 of them Parochial; and they reckon 12000 Men in it. Here's a Salary fixed by one Perſon for the preaching Miniſters of the 12 Chappelries, a Free-School, a Hoſpital and a Workhouſe. This Town gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Montague. 11. Leeds, 12 m. N. E. an antient Town on the N. Side of the River Aire, over which it has a fair Bridge. 'Twas incorporated by Charl. I. under a Chief Alderman, 9 Burgeſſes, and 20 Aſſiſtants. Their firſt Alderman was Sir John Saville, afterwards Lord Saville; his Deputy John Harriſon Eſq; founded and endow'd an Hoſpital here, a Free-School, a noble Church, and built the ſtately Market-Croſs. He was born and baptized here in 1579, was twice Chief Alderman, dyed in 1656, aged 77. and is inter'd under an Altar-Tomb of black Marble in the Church which he founded. K. Charles II. incorporated this Town by the Name of a Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and 24 Aſſiſtants. This Place is noted for a great Manufacture of Woollen Cloth; has a Market on Tueſd. and Saturd. and a Harbour for Boats. It gives Title of Duke to the Family of Osborne. 12. Bradforth, 6 m. N. W. has a Market on Thurſd. and a Manufacture of Woollen Cloth. 13. Aberforth, 8 m. E. of Leeds, has a Market on Wedneſd. and is noted for Pin-making. 14. Sherborn, 4 m. S. E. has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Barges, at the Conflux of the Warf and Ouſe. 'Tis a ſmall but populous Town, has an Hoſpital and Free-School for 24 Orphans, who have each 5 l. a Year from 7 to 15 Years of Age; when they are put out Apprentices, and 4 of them, if fit, ſent to St. John's College in Cambridge. Here are good Stone-Quarries in the Neighbourhood. 15. Selby, 6 m. E. has a Market on Mond. and a Harbour for Boats. 16. Cawood, 2 m. N. W. has a weekly Market and a Harbour for Boats. 17. Tadcaſter, 6 m. N. W. has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour for Boats. 'Tis ſuppos'd to be the Roman Calcaria, which had the Name from the quantity of Lime-ſtones in the Neighbourhood. Roman Coins, and other Antiquities have been found here. It has an Hoſpital and Free-School, and a handſome Stone-Bridge over the Warf, which is ſo ſhallow and dry in Summer, that a Gentleman paſſing it then, made the following Diſtich.

Nil Tadcaſter habet Muſis vel Carmine dignum,
Præter magnificè ſtructum ſine Flumine Pontem.

But paſſing it again in Winter, he recanted in the following Lines:

Quæ Tadcaſter erat ſine Flumine, Pulvere Plena;
Nunc habet immenſum Fluvium, & pro Pulvere Lutum.

The Town gives Title of Viſcount to the Earl of Thomond in Ireland. 18. Wetherby, 4 m. N. W. has a Market on Thurſd. and a good Trade. 19. Otley, upon the R. Warf, 8 m. W. the Market on Tueſd. 20. Skipton, 11 m. N. E. Market on Saturd. 'Tis a handſome Town, ſurrounded with ſteep Precipices. It lies in the Hundred of Craven, (which gives Title of Earl to the Family of that Name) and has a Church with the Monument of George Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, the famous Sailor in Q. Elizabeth's time. His only Child, Ann Counteſs of Pembroke, Dorſet and Montgomery, was born in the Caſtle, Jan. 30. 15$\frac{52}{53}$. and dy'd March 22. 1675. She was famous for building or repairing 6 antient Caſtles, building 7 Chappels and Churches, and 2 ſtately Hoſpitals richly endow'd. 21. Gisborn, 10 m. W. 22. Settle, 6 m. N. has Market on Tueſd. 23. Ripley, has a Bridge over the Nyd, 4 m. N. E. of Knaresborough, a Market on Frid. and is noted for Liquorice. 24. Burnſal, 6 m. N. of Skipton, on the Warf, noted for a Church, and a Free-School built and endow'd by Sir William Craven, Father to the firſt Earl of Craven. This Gentleman built 4 Bridges and a Cauſeway in this County, gave 1000 l. to Chriſt's-Hoſpital in London, and the Royalties of Creek, with the Parſonage, to St. John's College in Oxford.

The Boroughs of the Eaſt Riding are,

1. Beverly, 141 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis governed by a Mayor, and 12 Aldermen; has a very handſome Parochial Church, formerly a Cathedral, and made a Sanctuary, in reſpect to John of Beverly Archbiſhop of York, who retired hither, and lived till 72 ſo devoutly, that he was reputed a Saint. Here's one Church more. The chief Trade is in Malting, Oatmeal, Tanning of Hides, and Bone-Lace. The Markets are on Wedneſd. and Saturd. and the Fairs April 30. May 4. June 24. Oct. 25. Eaſter-Week, and Rogation-Week. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Church has the Monuments of ſeveral of the Piercy's Earls of Northumberland, and their Pictures in the Glaſs; and here's an antient Table with the Pictures of St. John of Beverly, and K. Athelſtan, Founder of the Church, and betwixt then this Diſtich:

Als free make I thee,
As Heart can wiſh, or Egh can ſee.

Hence the Inhabitants of Beverley pay no Toll or Cuſtom in any Port or Town of England; which makes the Place rich. Here's a large Font of Agat-Stone. The Liberties of the Town are large, conſiſting of about 100 Towns or Parts of Towns in Holderneſs and other Parts of the Eaſt Riding; and they have a Court of Record to try Cauſes for any Sums ariſing within their Juriſdiction. Here's alſo a Free-School with 2 Fellowſhips, 6 Scholarſhips, and 3 Exhibitions in St. John's College Cambridge belonging to it. Here are alſo 6 Alms-Houſes well endow'd. The Londoners come down to their Fairs in Summer, and furniſh the Country Tradeſmen by wholeſale. The Town is a m. long, much improved of late in Building, and water'd with many Springs. About a m. E. there's a Spaw, which taken inwardly, is a great Dryer; and waſh'd with, is good againſt the King's-Evil, and all ſorts of Scabs.

2. Hull, or Kingſton upon Hull, 6 m. S. lies at the Conflux of the Hull and Humber, 133 m. N. of London. 'Twas built by Edw. I. who called it Kingſton, and gave it ſuch Privileges, that it ſoon flouriſh'd. Edw. III. incorporated it in the 5th of his Reign. It has a Mayor, and 12 Aldermen, is a Town and County of it ſelf, and holds a Court for Life and Death. The Situation of the Caſtle, and other Fortifications make it almoſt impregnable. Hen. VIII. ſometimes kept his Court here. It has 2 Churches; Markets on Tueſd. and Saturd. and a foreign Trade equal to moſt in England, the Cuſtoms being reckon'd betwixt 30 and 40000 l. per ann. Their firſt Mayor was William de la Pole, Kt. whom the King called, Dilectus Mercator, & Valectus noſter; being then one of the greateſt Merchants in England, and a Gentleman of the King's Bed-Chamber. He lent Edw. I. a great Sum of Gold during his Abode at Antwerp, for which he was made Chief-Baron of the Exchequer, a Banneret, and had the Lordſhip of Holderneſs, with other Crown-Lands: He was Father to Michael de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk. Here's an Exchange, Cuſtom-Houſe, and a Wool-Houſe now made uſe of to lay up Lead for Sale. There was a ſtrong Citadel built in 1681, which includes the Caſtle and a Blockhouſe, has convenient Apartments for the Officers, and a large Gariſon, and an Engine for making Salt-Water freſh. Here's a Free-School, and an Hoſpital called Trinity-Houſe, in which are maintained many diſtreſt Seamen and their Widows; it was founded and endow'd by Merchants. Here are 30 Seamens Widows called Siſters, with each a Chamber. It conſiſts of a Chappel, and 4 Rows of Chambers, in one of which the Brethren of the Society have their Meeting, and in another they make Sails, in which the Town drives a great Trade; and here is the Effigies of a Greenlander ſitting in his Canoe, that was taken by a Hull-Man in 1613. The poor Savage was ſo ſullen that he refus'd to eat, and dy'd in three days after he was taken. This Houſe is governed by 12 Elder-Brethren, with 6 Aſſiſtants, 2 Wardens, and 2 Stewards. They have a Power to determine termine in Sea-Affairs between Maſters and Seamen; and in Tryals at Law, their Judgment is much regarded. The Bridge over the Hull has 14 Arches, and near it is a Structure called the Greenland-Houſe, but that Trade being decay'd, 'tis made a Storehouſe for Corn and other Goods. Near it is another Hoſpital called God's-Houſe, with a Chappel, both founded by Mich. de la Pole above-mentioned, with another lately built for their better Conveniency. This Town gives Title of Duke, as it did formerly of Earl, to the Family of Pierpoint.

The Humber, which firſt takes its Name about 12 m. above this Town, is made up by the Influx of many Rs. on both ſides, was formerly called Abus Æſtuarium, but Humber by the Saxons, from whence all the Country N. of it was called Northumberland. Camden ſays 'tis the moſt ſpacious Æſtuary, and the beſt ſtor'd with Fiſh of any in England. It ebbs and flows, and at every Ebb returns its own Waters, and thoſe borrowed from the Sea, with great Rapidity and Noiſe, and no ſmall Danger to the Sailors.

North and South of Hull, a large Promontory thruſts out into the Sea, call'd Holderneſs, which gives Title of Earl to the Family of Danvers. Several Towns have been ſwallow'd up in this part of the Country by Inundations of the Sea and Rs. for which we refer to Camden.

3. Heydon, or Hedon, in Holderneſs, 6 m. E. of Hull, and 140 N. W. of London. 'Tis very antient, and governed by a Mayor, Recorder, 9 Aldermen, and 2 Bailiffs who have the Power of Sheriffs, and are Juſtices of the Peace. The Parliament-Men are choſe by a Majority of the Freemen. There's a Market on Frid. a Fair every Fortnight, and 3 other Fairs per Ann. but of little account. In this Town is a Priſon and a Court, belonging to the Viſc. Dunbar, who has the Seigniory of Holderneſs.

Other Places of Note in this Riding are, 1. Howden, 16 m. W. of Hull; it has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Boats on the R. Derwent. The Londoners have a Mart here, which begins Sept. 14. and laſts 9 Days, during which they furniſh the Country Tradeſmen with Goods by wholeſale. 'Tis liable to Damage by the Inundations of the Ouſe. The adjacent Territory is call'd Howdenſhire. 2. Patrington, 7 m. S.E. of Heydon, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships. It was a Roman Station, and has a fine Proſpect to the Sea, and over the Humber. The Harbour is not ſo good as formerly. 3. Wighton, 7 m. W. of Beverley, Market on Wedneſd. 4. Pocklington, 5 m. N. Market on Saturd. 5. Frodlingham, 14 m. E. 6. Hornſey, 6 m. S. E. has a Market, and a Harbour for Ships. 7. Kilham, 6 m. N. E. of Frodlingham, Market on Thurſd. 8. Bridlington or Burlington, 6 m. N. E. of Kilham, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships. It gives Title of Earl to the Family of Boyle, and has a pretty good Trade by Sea. The Promontory called Flamborough-Head, lies N. and E. from it. 'Tis noted for a Light-Houſe. There's an Irruption of Waters from the Earth, by ſome called Vipſeys, and by others Gipſys, which ſometimes run by this Promontory into Burlington-Bay. They break out in the Downs after great Rains, ſpout up Water to a great Height, and ſometimes flow from Rocks. The Country-People think they portend Famine. 9. Hunanby, 6 m. N. of Burlington, has a weekly Market, and a Harbour for Veſſels.

The Boroughs in the North-Riding are,

1. Scarborough, 13 m. N. W. of Burlington, and 169 from London. 'Tis very antient, and famous for its ſtrong Caſtle upon a Rock that advances into the Sea. 'Tis governed by a Bailiff and Burgeſſes, who elect the 2 Parliament-Men. Here's a great Fiſhery of Herring, Ling, Haddock, Hake, Whitings, Mackarel, and Cod-Fiſh, betwixt Aug. and Nov. of which the Dutch chiefly reap the Profit from our Neglect. They uſed formerly to obtain a Licence from the Caſtle here, which is only acceſſible by a narrow Slip of Land on the W. all the other Sides being high ſteep Rocks. On the Top there is about 18 or 20 Acres of good Meadow-Ground. The Caſtle is not ſo ſtrong as formerly, the ſtately Tower which added to its Strength, and ſerv'd as a Land-Mark to Sailors, being now demoliſhed. Here's a Fountain in the Rock which ſerves the Gariſon. The adjoining Town is not large, but well built, populous, and has a good Trade by Fiſhing, &c. but chiefly by the Reſort of People to drink the Waters of the Spaw a Quarter of a Mile S. It boils up like a Pot to the Quantity of 24 Gallon per Hour; 'tis very clear, ſomewhat blueiſh, ſmells like Ink, has a pleaſant acid Taſte, and ſprings thro Vitriol, Iron, Alum, Nitre, and Salt. 'Tis ſometimes overflow'd by Spring-Tides. The Town gives Title of Earl to the Family of Lumley. N. from hence lies Robin Hood's Bay, ſo called from a noted Captain of Highway-Men.

2. Malton, 17 m. S.E. of Scarborough, and 146 N.W. of London. 'Tis divided into Old and New, and governed by a Bailiff, who with the Burgeſſes elect the 2 Parliament-Men. The Market is on Saturd. and they have a Fair Sept. 29. for Corn, Horſes, and Country Utenſils. The Derwent that waſhes the Town, abounds with Fiſh.

3. Thirske, or Thruske, 17 m. S. W. of Malton, and 162 N. W. of London, is very antient, and governed by a Bailiff, and about 50 Burgage-holders. The E. of Derby is Ld of the Manor, and his Steward holds Courts at Lady-Day and Michaelmas; at the latter the Bailiff is choſe by a Majority of the Burgeſſes, and ſworn by the Steward. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Burgage-Holders, and return'd by the Bailiff. The Market is on Mond. and here's a Fair once a Fortnight, beſides others on Shrove-Mond. Tueſd. after Lady-Day, Tueſd. after St. Andrew's, St. James's, and St. Luke's, for Cattle of all ſorts.

4. Northallerton, 6 m. N. of Thirske, and 170 N. W. of London; is very antient, and governed by a Bailiff deputed for Life by the Bp of Durham, who is Ld of the Manor. The Bailiff, or his Deputy, preſides, and determines the Election of the 2 Parliament-Men, who are choſen by a Majority of the Burgage-holders, that are about 130. The Market is on Wedneſd, and the Fairs on Feb. 2. April 23. Aug. 24. and Sept. 21. with one every Fortnight from Chriſtmas till Apr. 23. for all ſorts of Cattle. This Town gives Title of Viſcount to the Prince of Wales.

5. Richmond, 10 m. N. W. of Northallerton, and 175 of London. 'Tis very antient, governed by a Mayor, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, and 24 Common-Council. The Mayor is choſen Jan. 13. by the Majority of 13 Companies that are Freemen of Trade. The 2 Parliament-Men are choſe by the Majority of the Burgage-holders, and return'd by the Mayor. The Market is on Saturd. and they have a Fair every Fortnight from Palm-Sund. Eve till Chriſtmas, for all ſorts of Cattle, and others on Palm-Sund. Eve, Eaſter-Tueſd. a great Fair for Horſes July 7. and Holy-Rood-Day. Here are 2 Churches. The chief Manufacture is Woollen Stockins and knit Caps. The Town gives Title of Duke to a natural Son of K. Charles II. by the Dutcheſs of Portſmouth. It lies on the R. Swale, and is Capital of its Diſtrict called Richmondſhire, which is full of Rocks and Mountains; the latter yield ſtore of Lead, Piteoal, and Copper, and the Valleys are fruitful. On the Tops of the Mountains are found Stones reſembling Cockles, and other Water-Animals. Many of them are found in Rocks and Beds of Lime-Stone, and are thought to be produced by the Heat.

Other Places of Note in the North Riding and Richmondſhire, are, 1. Pickering, 13 m. W. of Scarborough; it has a Market on Mond. belongs to the Dutchy of Lancaſter, has Juriſdiction over its Diſtrict called Pickering-Liberty, and an old Caſtle. 2. Rhydale, W from hence, a pleaſant Valley, water'd by the Rhy. 'Tis fruitful, and has 23 Pariſh Churches. 3. Kirbymoreſide, 6 m. N. W. of Pickering, has a Market on Wedneſd. 4. Hovingham, 5 m. S. a ſmall Town, with a weekly Market. 5. Helmſly, 4 m. N. W. the Market on Saturd. 6. Eſingwold, 8 m. S. W. of Hovingham. 7. Whitby, 12 m. N. W. of Scarborough, has a Market on Saturd. and a good Harbour for Ships, of which above 80 belong to the Place. In the Neighbourhood are found Stones reſembling the Wreaths of a Serpent, ſuppoſed to be the ſame which modern Naturaliſts call Cornua Ammonis; ſome think them petrified Shell-Fiſhes, and others that they are produc'd in the Earth by a Fermentation peculiar to Alum-Mines. There's abundance of Alum made in this Place, towards which they burn Sea-Wreck into Kelp all along the Coaſt, where Black Amber, or Jett, is alſo found. Mr. Camden mentions ſeveral Grounds in the Neighbourhood, upon which the Wild Geeſe fall down when they fly over them. This he aſcribes to ſome Quality in the Ground to which the Geeſe have an Antipathy. 8. Giſborough, 15 m. N.W. of Whitby, has a Market on Mond. and a Harbour for Ships. 'Twas formerly a noted Place when poſſeſſed by the Family of Bruce. It lies pleaſantly on a Bay, near the Mouth of the Tees. Camden compares it to Puteoli in Italy for Pleaſantneſs, and ſays 'tis more healthful. On the Coaſt are many Sea-Calves, and red and yellowiſh Stones that look like Braſs, and in Taſte and Smell reſemble Copperas, Nitre, and Brimſtone. Here are likewiſe other Stones reſembling Cannon-Bullets, which being broke, have ſtony Serpents without Heads wreath'd up within them. This Town was the Common Burying-place of all the Nobility in thoſe Parts. The adjacent Soil is fruitful, and abounds with Veins of Metal and Allom-Earth, of ſeveral Colours, from which the beſt ſort of Alum, and Copperas is extracted. Theſe Veins were diſcovered by Sir Tho. Chaloner in the Reign of James I. On Ownesbury or Roſeberry-Topping, a very high green Mountain in the Neighbourhood, a Fountain iſſues from a great Stone, and the Water is good for ſore Eyes. This Mountain is a Land-Mark for Sailors, and an Almanack to the Country-Men of Cleveland, the neighbouring Diſtrict, who always expect Rain when Clouds appear on its Top. 9. Yaram, 6 m. W. has a Market on Thurſd. and a Harbour. 10. Stokeſly, 6 m. S. W. of Gisborough, has a Market on Saturd. 11. Bedal. 6 m. S. W. of Northallerton, has a Market on Tueſd. 12. Midlam, 6 m. S. W. has a Clothing-Trade, and a Market on Mond. 13. Maſham, 6 m. S. E. has a Market on Tueſd. and Cloth-Manufacture. 14. Askrig, 8 m. N. W. of Midlam, has a weekly Market.

In Richmondſhire upon the Head of the River Ure, the Hills are ſo wild and ſolitary, that the People call the deep Rivulets here Hell-becks; particularly one at the Head of the Ure, has a Bridge of one Stone, and lies ſo deep under it, as ſtrikes thoſe who look down with Horror. The Ure runs thro Weneſdale, a Valley well ſtock'd with Cattle, and Lead-Mines. For the Roman Monuments in this Shire, we refer to Camden. A very curious one was preſerv'd at Nappa, the Seat of the Chief of the Metcalfs, who in Camden's time being Sheriff of the County, met the Judges, and conducted them to York with 300 Knights of his Family and Name, all clad alike.

Swaledale, is another Diviſion of this Shire, ſo called from the R. Swale, which runs thro it. It was ſacred among the antient Saxons, becauſe upon their firſt Converſion, Paulinus, Archbiſhop of York, is ſaid to have baptized above 10000 in this River on a Day. The Valley is pretty fruitful, and the neighbouring Hills abound with Lead-Mines. We refer to Camden for the Roman Inſcriptions, and other Antiquities found about Catarrick Bridge in theſe Parts.

Stanmoor, is a mountainous Tract in the N. W. of this Shire, and for the moſt part deſert, and has only one Inn in the Middle for Travellers, call'd Spittle in Stanmoor, near the Ruins of a Monument, call'd Rei, or King's Croſs, erected here formerly as a Boundary on that ſide betwixt England and Scotland.

XLIX. DURHAM,

HAS Northumberland on the N. Part of Weſtmorland and Yorkſhire on the W. the latter on the S. and S. E. and the Sea on the E. 'Tis about 35 m. long, and 30 broad; is divided into 4 Wakes, 80 Pariſhes, has 610000 Acres, 15980 Houſes, 96980 People, 16 Rs. 21 Parks, 4 Caſtles, 9 Market-Towns, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis a County-Palatine ſubject to the Biſhop, who has both a Temporal and Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction. The Dioceſe includes the County of Northumberland, and Biſhoprick of Durham, containing in all 185 Pariſhes. This County had a Parliament of its own before the time of King Henry VIII. who ſtripped the Biſhop of the eſſential Parts of his Palatine, or indeed Royal Power; yet it was not allow'd to ſend Memb. to Parl. till 1673. The Air of this Country is generally good, but ſharp on the Hills, and colder in the W. than E. Parts. The W.

Side has Iron Mines. The other Parts, encompaſs'd by the Tine, Tees, and Derwent, are fruitful in Corn and Paſture, well inhabited, and about Sunderland produce excellent Coals. Here are alſo ſome Mines of Lead and Quarries of Marble; but their main Traffick is in Coals. The Rivers and Sea ſupply the People well with Salmon and other Fiſh.

At Salt-Water Haugh, about a m. ½ from Durham, in the middle of the Were, is a Salt-Spring, which in Summer bubbles up 40 Yards in Length, and 10 in Breadth; but in Winter is loſt among the Freſhes. The ſalteſt Water iſſues from a Rock, upon the Surface of which perfect Salt is often found when the Weather is hot. The Water that flows from it is as ſalt as Brine; and tho it bears no Proportion to the freſh Water, makes the Stream brackiſh for 100 Yards below, and dyes the Stones red. This Brine, when boil'd, yields a great Quantity of Bay-Salt, not ſo palatable, but as good for any Uſes as ordinary Salt. Near this Place a medicinal Spring has been lately diſcover'd. 'Tis pretty much frequented, and reckon'd good againſt ſeveral Diſeaſes.

Places of Note are,

1. Durham, 190 m. N. W. of London. The Name is deriv'd from its Situation upon a Hill in a Peninſula, form'd by the Were. 'Tis very antient, was incorporated by Richard I. and again by Queen Elizabeth, by the Name of Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of Durham. The preſent Biſhop, who is alſo Ld Crew, obtain'd a new Charter from James II. confirming their Privileges; by which, beſides what's common to other Boroughs, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, by their Recorder and Town-Clerk, hold a Court Leet and a Court Baron, under the Stile of the Court of the Right Reverend, &c. Lord Biſhop, held before the Mayor and Recorder. The Market is on Saturd. and the Fairs on March 20. Whit-Tueſday, and St. Cuthbert's Day. They keep a Pye-Powder Court on thoſe Days, and pay 20 l. per Ann. Toll to the Biſhop or his Leſſee. They ſend 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Corporation, Citizens, and Freemen, who are about 1000. 'Tis the only Town in the County that ſends Members. The City is pretty large, defended by a Wall and Caſtle, has 2 Stone Bridges over the River, and 6 Churches, beſides the Cathedral, which is inferior to none in England for Beauty, rich Ornaments, Plate, &c. Here's a Dean, 2 Archdeacons, 12 Prebendaries, 8 Canonries, and many other Inferior Offices. The See was firſt at Lindisfarn, or Holy Iſland, in Northumberland; and the firſt Biſhops were Scots, who converted the North Saxons about 634. 'Twas remov'd to Durham about 995, and the Cathedral ſoon became much frequented, becauſe of the Relicts of St. Cuthbert, one of the Biſhops of Lindisfarn, whom theſe People reckon'd their tutelary Saint againſt the Scots; and being richly endow'd by ſeveral Kings, &c. grew to be very magnificent. 'Tis dedicated to St. Cuthbert, adorn'd with a high Tower in the middle, and 2 Spires at the W. End. In one of the Chappels is the Tomb of Venerable Bede. Many old Scots Records are kept in this Church, the Kings of Scotland having been its Benefactors. The Prebendaries have convenient Houſes in the adjoining College-Yard; and the Biſhop has his Palace in the Caſtle. The Town is well built, and much frequented by the neighbouring Gentry, becauſe of its Pleaſantneſs and Plenty of Neceſſaries.

Other Market-Towns and Places of Note here are, 1. Stockton, 13 m. S. E. 'Tis of late grown conſiderable, govern'd by a Mayor, has a Market on Saturd. a good Trade in Lead and Butter, and is famous for good Ale. The Bp of Durham is Lord of the Manor. 2. Darlington, or Darnton, 8 m. W. has a ſpacious Market-Place, where on Mond. they have a great Market for Corn, Cattel, &c. 'Tis large, is a Poſt-Town, and has a conſiderable Manufacture in Linen and the beſt Hugabacks. At Oxenhall, near this Place, are 3 Pits, call'd Hell-Kettles, full of Water. The common People tell many Fables about them, and ſay they are bottomleſs. The deepeſt of them is about 15 Fathom; and lying near the Tees, they are thought to have a Communication with it. Some aſcribe their Origin to an Earthquake. 3. Bernard's-Caſtle, 12 m. W. a ſmall Town, has a Market on Wedneſd. and a Fair June 21. The chief Trade is in Stockings and Bridles. It gives Title of Lord to the Family of Vane. 4. Awkland, 10 m. N. E. is well built, has a good Market on Tueſd. a handſome Church, and a noble Palace belonging to the Biſhop of Durham, who is Lord of the Manor. Here's an Hoſpital, and a good Stone Bridge over the Were. 5. Hartlepool, 14 m. E. is encompaſs'd by the Sea, except on the W. govern'd by a Mayor, his Brethren, and other ſubordinate Officers; has a Market on Moud. and a good Harbour, where the New-Caſtle Coal-Fleets put in when the Weather is bad. 6. Sunderland, 10 m. N. E. of Durham, is almoſt encompaſs'd by the Sea at high Water, has a good Harbour and Coal Trade, and a Market on Frid. It has given Title of Earl to the noble Family of Spencer ſince the Reign of K. Char. I. 7. Wolſingham, 9 m. W. of Durham. 8. Stanhope, 4m. N. W. of Wolſingham, has a Market on Tueſd. but is chiefly remarkable for giving Name to a noble and antient Family; and for its Park, where the Scots had well nigh ſurpriz'd Edw. III. the Ld Douglas having advanc'd ſo far into his Camp, as to cut the Cords of his Tent.

Other noted Places, not Market-Towns, are, (1.) Weremouth, which formerly had a Monaſtery, and is famous for being the Birth-Place of Bede. (2.) Gateſide, or Goat's-Head, on the S. of the Tine, over-againſt New-Caſtle, thought to be more antient than it, and a Roman Gariſon againſt the Scots and Picts. (3.) South Sheals, on the S. ſide of the Tine, over-againſt the North Sheals, noted for a Trade in Goals and Salt.

For the Roman Monuments in this Country, we refer to Camden and others.

L. WESTMORLAND,

HAS part of Yorkſhire and Durham on the E. part of Cumberland and Derbyſhire on the W. part of Lancaſhire on the S. and part of Cumberland on the N. 'Tis very much indented: The Length reckon'd 32 m. and the Breadth 24. It is partly in the Dioceſe of Carliſle, and partly in that of Cheſter; has about 510000 Acres, 6501 Houſes, 26 Pariſhes, 8 Market-Towns, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis divided into the Baronies of Kendal and Weſtmorland; and they into Conſtablewicks, but not into Hundreds, thoſe Parts having antiently paid no Subſidies, being ſufficiently charged by Border-Service againſt the Scots. The Barony of Kendal, ſo call'd from the R. Can, or Ken, is mountainous and barren, except a few Valleys; but that of Weſtmorland, ſo call'd becauſe it lies W. of the Hills that divide it from Yorkſhire, and for its low Situation, is a Champain Country, 20 m. long, and 14 broad, has much arable Land, and even their Moors and Commons, call'd Fells, are capable of being cultivated. Its chief Rivers are Eden, Lon, Ken, and Eamon. Winandermeer is alſo reckon'd to this County by ſome, as by others to Lancaſhire. The great and antient Family of Neville were Earls of Weſtmorland from 1398 to 1584, when being extinguiſh'd by the Death of Charles Neville without Heirs Male, K. James I. reviv'd the Title in 1624. by creating Francis Fane, a Deſcendant of the Nevilles, Earl; and his Poſterity ſtill enjoys the Title.

Places of Note are,

1. Appleby, 197 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis thought to be the Roman Aballaba. Hen. I. gave the Town equal Privileges with York. Hen. II. confirm'd them. In Hen. III's Time it had a Court of Exchequer. In Edw. I's Time they had a Mayor and 2 Provoſts, who ſeem to have been Sheriffs; but the Town was ruin'd by the Scots Wars, and never recover'd its antient Splendor. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 12 Aldermen, a Common-Council, and Serjeants at Mace. It has ſtill the ſame Privileges as York; and they have a Tradition, that this Town had a Mayor, while London had only a Bailiff. The Market is on Saturd. and the Fairs on Whit-Monday and June 10. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and is the only Town in the County that ſends any. The Aſſizes for the Shire are kept here.

2. Brough, 6 m. S. E. 'Tis divided into Upper and Lower, has a Caſtle, a Church, and a Market on Tueſd.

3. Kirby-Steven, on the R. Eden, 4 m. S. has a good Market on Frid. A little S. from hence lies Wharton-Hall, with a Park and Barony, that has given Title of Lord to the D. of Wharton's noble Anceſtors ſince the 35th of Hen. VIII. and further E. lies Hartley-Caſtle, the Seat of the Muſgraves, a very antient and honourable Family in this County.

4. Orton, 7 m. W. has a weekly Market; and 4 m. S. of it is Brandretty Stone, with a deep Croſs cut on each Side, thought to have been a Boundary betwixt England and Scotland.

5. Ambleſide, 17 m. S. W. has a Clothing Trade, and a Market on Wedneſd.

6. Kendal, 10 m. S. E. has a Market on Saturd. with a Harbour for Boats on the R. Ken. 'Tis populous, noted for a Woollen Manufacture, has given Title of Baron and Earl to ſeveral great Families, and lately of Duke to the third Son of the D. of York. It was incorporated by James I. by the Name of Mayor, 12 Aldermen, and 24 Burgeſſes. Here are 2 Stone Bridges over the R. beſides one of Timber, a fair Church, with 12 Chappels of Eaſe, and a Free School well endow'd, with good Exhibitions for poor Scholars in Queen's-College, Oxford.

7. Burton, 8 m. S. has a Market on Tueſd.

8. Lonſdale, on the Lon, 4 m. E. has a Market on Thurſd. a Woollen Manufacture, and gives Title of Lord to the Family of Lowther.

Milthorp, at the Mouth of the R. Ken, is the only Sea-Port in this County, Commodities being imported hither from Lancaſhire in ſmall Veſſels. At Levens, a m. N. there's a fair Stone Bridge over the Ken, and a Spring, call'd the Dropping Well, that petrifies Moſs, Wood, Leaves, &c. And at Rounthwait, in this County, there's a Spring which caſts up ſmall Pieces reſembling Silver Spangles. For the Roman Antiquities and Monuments in this Shire, we refer to Camden.

LI. CUMBERLAND,

HAS part of Scotland on the N. the Iriſh Sea on the W. part of Lancaſter and Weſtmorland on the S. and part of Durham and Northumberland on the E. 'Tis 55 m. long, and 38 broad, divided into 5 Wards, has one City, 14 Market-Towns, 58 Pariſh-Churches, beſides Chappels, 88920 Inhabitants, 14825 Houſes, and 1040000 Acres. It ſends 6 Memb. to Parl. and lies in the Dioceſes of Cheſter and Carliſle. It has moſt Roman Antiquities of any County in England; for after the Romans ſubdu'd and plac'd Gariſons in it, they built that call'd they Picts Wall, to ſecure the Inhabitants from the Scots and Picts. The Houſes of the Nobility and Gentry are generally built Caſtle-wiſe.

Tho the Air is ſharp and piercing, yet being ſhelter'd by high Hills in the North, 'tis very pleaſant and agreeable. The Plains abound with Corn, and the Mountains with Sheep and Paſture. On the Top of one of the ſoutherly Mountains, call'd Wry-Noſe, are 3 Stones, call'd Shire-Stones, which, tho within a Foot of one another, are in 3 ſeveral Counties, viz. one in this, one in Weſtmorland, and the third in Lancaſhire. In the S. Parts are rich Veins of Copper and Black Lead, Mines of Coal, Lapis Calaminaris, and ordinary Lead. Here are many Lakes, which abound with the Fiſh call'd Char, and all ſorts of wild Fowl. The Coaſts abound alſo with plenty of the beſt Fiſh. At the Mouth of the Irt, on the Coaſt near Ravenglaſs, are Pearl-Muſcles; for fiſhing which, ſome Perſons obtain'd a Patent not long ago. The Derwent is famous for Salmon.

1. Carliſle, 228 m. N. W. from London, is a Place of great Antiquity, and, as appears by Roman Monuments and Hiſtory, was one of their Gariſons. It has ſtrong Walls, a Caſtle, and a regular Citadel, becauſe it was a Frontier Gariſon againſt the Scots. It ſtands pleaſantly betwixt the Rivers Eden and Canda, over which it has Bridges. Here are 2 Pariſh Churches, beſides the Cathedral. The Markets are Wedneſd. and Saturd. and the Fairs Aug. 15. and Sept. 8. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor and 12 Aldermen, a Common-Council of 24 Capital Citizens, 2 Sheriffs, a Chamberlain, Sword-Bearer, and Mace-Bearer. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. choſen by the Freemen, who are reckon'd about 500, beſides honorary ones. The Biſhop's See was fix'd here about 1133. The Cathedral is in the middle of the City, incloſ'd by a Wall. 'Tis a noble Structure of good Architecture; but the W. End ſuffer'd much during the Civil Wars. The Town is wealthy and populous, well built, has 3 Gates, and a conſiderable Trade in Fuſtians. It gave Title of Earl to ſeveral of the Princes of Scotland, when they were poſſeſs'd of Cumberland; as it has ſince to ſome of England, and now does to a Branch of the Family of Howard.

2. Cockermouth, 20 m. S.W. of Carliſle, and 220 N.W. of London, lies at the Conflux of the Cocker and Derwent, by which 'tis almoſt encompaſs'd. 'Tis populous, well built, has a ſtrong Caſtle, and 2 Bridges over the Cocker. 'Tis govern'd by a Bailiff, choſe annually by a Jury of 16 Burghers at the D. of Somerſet's Court. He returns the 2 Parliament-Men choſe by the Inhabitants, who are about 300. It has a Harbour for Boats. The Market is on Mond. and the Fair Sept. 29. It lies betwixt 2 Hills, on one of which is the Church, and on the other the Caſtle, which belongs to the D. of Somerſet, whoſe Auditor holds a Court here. A m. diſtant lies the Ruins of Pap-Caſtle, which appears by Monuments to have been poſſeſs'd by the Romans. A large open Veſſel of green Stone was found here, curiouſly engraven with Images, and a Daniſh Inſcription upon it in Runick Characters, ſignifying that Ekard, one of their Great Men was baptiz'd here, and the reſt follow'd his Example. It is ſtill us'd as a Font in a neighbouring Church.

The other Market-Towns are, 1. Longtoun, 7 m. N. of Carliſle, near the Scots Border. It has a Market on Thurſd. a Free-School, and an Hoſpital. 2. Brampton, 8 m. S. E. has a Market on Tueſd. and an annual Fair. The E. of Carliſle is Ld of the Manor, and has a yearly Court kept here for the Barony of Gilleſland. Here's an Hoſpital well endow'd, and ſeveral Roman Monuments in the Neighbourhood. 3. Kirk-Oſwald, 13 m. S. has a Market on Thurſd. 4. Alſton-Moor, noted for its Lead Mines in the Neighbourhood, has a Market on Saturd. 5. Penrith, 7 m. S. W. of Kirk-Oſwald, is large and well built and the ſecond Town in the County for Wealth. Here's a great Market for Corn, &c. on Tueſd. and a Fair every Tueſday-Fortnight, from Whitſunday to Auguſt. Here's a large handſome Market-Houſe, adorn'd with the Figures of Bears climbing upon a Ragged Staff, being the Device of the Neviles, Earls of Warwick. It has a Royal Caſtle, and a handſome ſpacious Church, in which there's an Inſcription taking notice of a great Plague that was in this Country in 1598, of which 2500 died at Kendal, 2266 here, 1196 at Carliſle, and 2200 at Richmond, of which our Hiſtorians make no mention. In the Church-yard are 2 Pyramidal Pillars 4 Yards high, and 5 diſtant from one another; which, Tradition ſays, were ſet up for a warlike and gigantick Knight, who kill'd many wild Boars that infeſted the Country; and there are the Figures of Boars cut in Stone on each ſide his Grave. Here are ſeveral Ruins, which by the Inſcriptions appear to have been Roman Structures in the Neighbourhood; as alſo a Grotto, on the Banks of the Eden, which lately had Iron Gates, and is thought to have been a Place of Retreat in Time of War. It has a conſiderable Trade in Tanning. 6. Wigton, 8 m. S. W. of Carliſle, has a Market on Tueſd. and ſeveral Roman Monuments in the Neighbourhood. 7. Jerby, 4 m. S. W. of Wigton, has a conſiderable Market on Thurſd. and an annual Fair. 8. Holm, 5 m. W. has a weekly Market. 9. Blenner-Haſſet, 4 m. S. the ſame. 10. Whitehaven, 10 m. S. W. of Cockermouth, on the Coaſt, has a Market on Thurſd. a Harbour for Ships, and trades in Salt and Coals. The Town has been beautified, and the Harbour made more commodious of late. Here's a Cuſtom-Houſe, and a Fair on Sept. 1. 11. Egremont, 6 m. S. has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Boats. It formerly had a Caſtle, and ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. but has loſt that Privilege. It has 2 Bridges over the Broadwater, and an annual Fair. 12. Keſwick, 8 m. S. E. of Cockermouth, is a little Town, with a Market on Saturd. and inhabited by Miners, who by Water-works manage the ſmelting of the Lead, and the ſawing of Boards. Here's alſo a Work-Houſe for imploying the Poor. There are Mines of Black Lead in the Neighbourhood. 13. Ravenglaſs, 9 m. S. E. of Egremont, on the Coaſt, has a Market on Saturd. and a Harbour for Ships, with an annual Fair, and a good Fiſhery. Workington, on the E. ſide of the Derwent, and near its Mouth, is noted for a Salmon-Fiſhing, and for the Landing of Mary Q. of Scots, when ſhe fled to England after the Defeat of her Army near Glaſgow.

There are many Remains of that call'd the Picts Wall in this County. It began at the Mouth of the Tine, E. of Newcaſtle, and reach'd to the Mouth of Eden, W. of Carliſle, which is 80 m. 'Twas at firſt erected of Turf and Stakes, but afterwards built of Stone 12 Foot high, and 8 Foot deep, with Battlements and Towers at convenient Diſtances, to defend the Roman Province againſt the Scots and Picts.

The Iſle of Man being nearer this Country than to any other in England, we deſcribe it here. 'Tis 10 Leagues W. from this Coaſt, and lies almoſt at the like Diſtance from Scotland and Ireland. 'Tis 30 m. S. and N. and betwixt 8 and 10 E. and W. 'Twas long poſſeſs'd by the Scots, and antiently call'd Mona. 'Tis divided into the N. and S. Parts, which have each a Caſtle, Judge, and Vicar-General. It contains 17 Pariſhes, with their Kirks, nam'd after thoſe to whom they were formerly dedicated. Inſtead of Hundreds, here are Sheedings, each of which have a Coroner, every Pariſh a Captain, and every Fort a Conſtable. The Language of the People is old Scots or Iriſh, mix'd with ſome Latin, Greek, and Engliſh. The People are tall, ſurly, and live in poor Huts. The Gentry are courteous and affable, and imitate the Engliſh. The Lord Chief Juſtice Coke ſays, their Laws are ſuch, as are ſcarce to be found any where elſe. They chuſe Judges every Year to decide Controverſies, who are very ſpeedy in the Execution of Juſtice. They had formerly Kings of their own, who were Tributaries either to the Kings of England, Scotland, or Norway. The firſt is ſaid to have been Brother to Fergus I. King of Scotland. The Engliſh William Montacute, E. of Salisbury, took it from the Scots about 1340. He ſold it to the Ld Scroop, who forfeiting the ſame by Treaſon, Hen. IV gave it to Henry Piercy E. of Northumberland in 1399. On his Exile, about 4 Years after, it was given to William Ld Stanley, and has continued in his Succeſſors, the Earls of Derby, ever ſince, who have the Title of Lords of Man, and govern it by their Lieutenant. He has an abſolute Juriſdiction over the People and Soil, and is Landlord of the whole, except what is poſſeſs'd by a few Barons; and abating his Homage to the Crown of England, no Prince has more Authority. He makes and repeals Laws by the Advice of his Deemſters, or Judges, and 24 other Judges, call'd Keys, who muſt have his Authority to meet. He may hold Courts, hang or pardon in his own Name. His Lieutenant calls the Parliament, or any other Court, which can't ſit without his Warrant. He has all the Civil and Military Power; and whoever oppoſes or injures him, is puniſh'd as a Traytor. Here are all other Officers, Civil and Military, uſual under Princes, and they act by the Earl's Commiſſion.

Their Religion is the ſame with that of the Church of England, and the People are very reſpectful to their Clergy, who are generally born and bred in the Iſland, and have from 50 to 60 l. a Year each. They reckon they have had Biſhops ſince 360. Here's no Wood, tho formerly they had plenty. Their Fuel is Coal imported, Goſs-Heath, Ling, Broom, and a coarſe ſort of Turf. Here are ſome good Quarries, eſpecially of Lime-Stone; and of late they have found ſome Iron, Lead, and Copper. They have plenty of Sea and River Fiſh. Here are many ſmall Streams and Springs of good Water, and a Pool in the mountainous Parts of ſo vitriolick a Quality, that no Fowl can live near it. They have Fowl of ſeveral Kinds, and Hawks ſo much valued, that Sir John Stanley, the firſt K. of Man, was oblig'd by Hen. IV. in his Patent, to preſent him and his Succeſſors, on their Coronation-Day, with a Caſt of Hawks, Geeſe, Hens, Ducks, and wild Fowl. They have Cattel of all ſorts. Their Black Cattel and Horſes are ſmall and lean, but hardy. Their Sheep are fat, well taſted, and their Wool good. Here's plenty of Goats and Hogs, and a ſmall wild ſort in the Mountains, which are admirable Meat. Here are alſo Otters, Badgers, Foxes, and Hares fatter than any where elſe. There's a little Iſland at the S. Corner, call'd the Calf, which the E. of Derby has made a Park, and ſtock'd it with Fallow Deer from the larger Iſland. Here's plenty of Wheat, Barley, Rye, and Oats; and from a Hill in the middle they can ſee the 3 Nations in a clear Day. 'Tis encompaſs'd with high Rocks; and on the S. W. where it lies open to St. George's Channel, is liable to ſalt Vapours, which affect the People's Health: But in general the Air is wholeſome, and ſharp in Winter, tho their Froſts are but ſeldom and ſhort. In the N. E. there's a large Tract of Meadow, formerly over-flow'd, but now drain'd, and well improv'd; and in the S. there are good Meadows and Paſtures.

Places of Note are,

1. Ruſhin, the Capital, on the N. ſide. It has a Caſtle and Gariſon, from whence 'tis call'd Caſtletown. The Governor reſides in the Caſtle, which is a noble Piece of Antiquity. Here is a Market; and the Town is govern'd by the Officers of the Caſtle. The Biſhop's See was erected here. He was call'd Biſhop of Sodore, and his Juriſdiction extended over all the Hebrides while this Iſland was poſſeſs'd by the Scots. He was formerly reckon'd a Baron, but did not ſit in the Houſe of Peers, becauſe he held of a Subject. He is allow'd the higheſt Seat in the Lower Houſe of Convocation. Within a m. of the Town there's a good Harbour, ſecur'd by a Fort; and at the Foot of the Caſtle there's a Creek for ſmall Veſſels, but dangerous.

2. Douglaſs, on the E. ſide of the Iſle, is the moſt populous, and has the largeſt and beſt Harbour in the Iſland. 'Tis defended by a Fort, which makes it impregnable by Sea. The French and other Foreigners come hither with Bay-Salt, and buy Wool, Leather, and ſalt Beef; ſo that the Town has a good Market, and is the richeſt in the Iſland.

3. Ramſey has a good Harbour, defended by a Block-Houſe.

4. Peel, formerly Holmtown, has a Fort in a ſmall Iſland, and a Gariſon well ſupplied with Cannon. Here ſtands the antient Cathedral, the Lord's Houſe, with ſome Lodgings of the Biſhop's, and ſome other Remains of Antiquity.

5. Laxy, on the E. ſide, has alſo a large Harbour; and the Biſhop generally reſides at Balacuri, on the S. ſide.

LII. NORTHUMBERLAND,

HAS Cumberland on the W. Scotland on the N. Durham on the S. and the Sea on the E. 'Tis divided from Scotland by the R. Tweed, Cheviot Hills, and other Mountains; from Durham by the Tine, and from Cumberland by a Ridge of Hills. 'Tis about 40 m. long, 30 broad, is divided into 6 Wards, 460 Pariſhes, has 12 Market-Towns, ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. and belongs to the Dioceſe of Durham. This County alone retains the Name of all thoſe call'd the Kingdom of Northumberland, which extended from the Humber on the S. to Edinburgh Frith on the N. The Air is ſharp, and they have great Snows and nipping Froſts in Winter. The Soil is for the moſt part rough and hilly; yet in ſome Parts towards the Borders, and on the Coaſt and the R. Tine, 'tis very fruitful. It abounds more with Coals than any County in England, eſpecially about Newcaſtle. Before the Union of the Crowns the Gentlemens Houſes were more for Strength than State, becauſe of the Incurſions of the Scots; and great Parcels of Land lay neglected by the Owners, to avoid the Charge of defending them: But now they are inhabited, and the Gentlemens Seats built after the modern way. This County was divided into a great many Baronies, to cheriſh their Valour againſt the Scots, who had divided their Borders in like manner. Theſe Barons were ſuch as had a Power of Life and Death within their Baronies, and commanded in ſome Caſtle or Town; ſo that they were generally Captains of their Men in Time of War. They loſt the Name of Barons under Edw. I. when it was appropriated to ſuch as were ſummon'd by the King to Parl. This County has given Title of Earl to many Families, as it did for a long Time to that of Piercy, who deriv'd their Pedigree from Charlemain. 'Twas a very noble and warlike Family. The laſt Earl of that Name died without Male Iſſue in 1670, ſo that the Title fell. The Heireſs of that Family is now Dutcheſs of Somerſet; and K. Char. II. gave the Title of D. of Northumberland to George Fitzroy, his third Son by the Dutcheſs of Cleveland.

The Boroughs are,

1. Newcaſtle upon Tine, 202 m. N. W. of London. 'Tis very antient, was poſſeſs'd by the Scots, and ſometimes the Reſidence of their Kings before the Norman Conqueſt. Camden thinks it was the Roman Gabroſentum. The preſent Name came from a new Caſtle, built here by Robert, Son to William the Conqueror, to defend the Country againſt the Scots. It was well fortified in the Reign of Edw. I. made a County of it ſelf by Henry VI. and is now the faireſt and largeſt Town in the N. next to York. It has 6 Churches, beſides St. Nicholas the Mother-Church, and a Free-School well endow'd. The Coal Trade has ſo enrich'd and enlarg'd it, that 'tis the greateſt Emporium in the N. of England for all ſorts of Goods. The R. Tine contributes much to its Commerce, has a Multitude of Wherrys, and a ſort of Lighters nam'd Keels, that ply conſtantly betwixt the Town and Shields with Paſſengers, Coals, and other Commodities. The Town is populous, well built, govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 19 Aldermen, a Sheriff, a Town-Clerk, a Clerk of the Chambers, 2 Coroners, 8 Chamberlains, a Sword-Bearer with a Cap of Maintenance, a Water-Bailiff with a great Mace, and 7 Serjeants at Mace. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Revenues of the Corporation are betwixt 7 and 8000 l. per Ann. out of which is paid 3000 l. for charitable Uſes. Above 600000 Chaldron of Coals are ſent from hence yearly to London. The Market is on Tueſd. and Saturd. and the Fairs begin on Lammas and St. Luke's Days, and hold 10 Days each. There's a large Suburb call'd Gateſhead on the S. ſide of the R. to which it is join'd by a noble Bridge, with an Iron Gate in the middle, to part Northumberland from the County of Durham. There are Houſes upon each ſide of the Bridge, like that of London. Moſt of the Houſes of the Town are of Stone, ſome of Timber, and a few of Brick. St. Nicholas Church is built in form of a Cathedral, and has a fine Steeple of curious Architecture. The other publick Buildings of Note are the Town-Houſe, the Exchange, and the Cuſtom-Houſe. Here's a noble Key, where Ships come up as high as the Bridge, but the Coal Fleets come no higher than Shields, 7 m. below the Town. This Place gave Title of Earl to Lodowic Steward, D. of Lennox and Richmond, and afterwards of Duke to a Branch of the Family of Cavendiſh, as it does now to that of Holles. There are vaſt Numbers of Coal-Pits in the Neighbourhood, and ſome of them have burnt for many Years.

At the Mouth of the River lie South and North Shields, the Places where the Coal Fleets take in their Loading; which makes thoſe Villages populous, and brings them a good Trade. On the N. ſide lies Tinmouth-Caſtle, a large and ſtrong Fortification, well mounted with Cannon. It defends the Harbour and the Mouth of the River, where there's a Sand which lies a-croſs, call'd the Bar; and the R. is not above 7 Foot deep at low Water. Here are alſo black and dangerous Rocks; but to prevent Ships running upon them by Night, there are Light-Houſes erected and maintain'd by Trinity-Houſe in Newcaſtle; and near the Light-Houſes a Fort, nam'd Clifford's, was built in 1672, which effectually commands the Mouth of the River. Here's a noble Fiſhery of Salmon.

2. Morpeth, 12 m. N. of Newcaſtle, and 224 N. W. from London. 'Tis a very antient Bor. by Preſcription, has 2 Bailiffs, 7 Aldermen, and about 107 Free Burgeſſes. The E. of Carliſle is Ld of the Bor. and his Steward holds a Court twice a Year, one of them the Mond. after Michaelmas, when 4 Perſons are choſe and preſented to the Steward, who names 2 of them to be Bailiffs for the enſuing Year. The E. of Carliſle has lately built them a very noble Town-Houſe. The Markets are on Wedn. and Sat. the firſt reckon'd the greateſt in England for live Cattel, except Smithfield. The Fairs are on Holy-Thurſday-Eve and July 21. The Town is divided by the R. Wentsbeck, near which, on a neighbouring Hill, there was a ſtrong Caſtle. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Viſcount to the E. of Carliſle.

3. Berwick upon Tweed, 252 m. N. W. of London. It lies on the N. ſide of the R. did formerly belong to Scotland, was the Capital of the Mers ſtill call'd the Shire of Berwick, much larger than now, and of ſo great note, that it was one of the 4 Towns where the Royal Boroughs of Scotland held their Conventions. It was ſeveral times taken and retaken by the Engliſh and Scots; but ſince the Time of Edw. IV. it has been in the Hands of the Engliſh, who leſſen'd the Town to make it ſtronger; and Q. Eliz. ſo fortified it, that in her Time it was reckon'd the ſtrongeſt Place belonging to England. It had always a great Gariſon before the Union of the Crowns, was well provided with Artillery, Ammunition, and all warlike Stores. The Governor had the Title of Marſhal of Berwick, who was generally one of the chief Nobility, and Warden of the Eaſtern Borders. The Town is ſtill pretty large; the Houſes and Streets handſome; and here's a noble and beautiful Stone-Bridge of 15 Arches over the Tweed, 300 Yards long, which joins it to a large Suburb call'd Tweedmouth. Here's a handſome Town-Houſe and Exchange; and there was formerly a ſtately and noble Caſtle at the N. W. End of the Town, now in Ruins; and there's a handſome Suburb betwixt it and the Walls of the Town, call'd Caſtlegate. 'Tis govern'd by a Mayor, Recorder, 4 Bailiffs, and a Common-Council of Burgeſſes. 'Tis a Town and County of it ſelf, and its Laws are a Mixture of Scots and Engliſh. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. elected by the Burgeſſes, is a Poſt-Town, and a great Thorow-fare to Scotland. Its chief Trade is in Corn and Salmon, of which it has a noble Fiſhery, and they are reckon'd as fine as any in Britain. Here's alſo a conſiderable Manufacture of fine Stockings. The Town gives Title of D. to one of K. James II's natural Sons by Mrs. Churchill. Here's a handſome Pariſh-Church, and another in Tweedmouth. The R. Tweed and the Sea encompaſs the Town on 3 ſides. Small Ships come up to the Bridge, there being a Bar at the Mouth of the R. which makes it uncapable of large Veſſels, tho the Tide flows about 4 m. above the Town. The Boundaries belonging to it extend about 2 m. N. and N. W. which furniſh them with Corn, Hay, and Paſturage for Cattel.

Other Places of Note are, 1. Hexham, 15 m. W. of Newcaſtle. It has a Market on Tueſd. and is Capital of its Diviſion call'd Hexhamſhire. It was the Roman Axelodunum. The Saxons call'd it Hagulſtad; and 'twas a Biſhop's See in their Time, but transferr'd to Durham. It had one of the fineſt Churches in England. The E. part is ſtill a handſome Structure, and has the Tombs of ſeveral Perſons of Quality; but it ſuffer'd much during the Civil Wars. Here are ſeveral Remains of Antiquity. 2. Beltingham, 7 m. W. 3. Billingham, 11 m. N. W. of Hexham. 4. Elleſdon, 6 m. N. W. of Billingham. 5. Rothbury, 9 m. N. E. of Elleſdon: All Market-Towns. 6. Alnwick, 9 m. N. E. of Rothbury, on the R. Aln, noted for many Actions betwixt the Engliſh and Scots, by whom it was frequently taken and retaken. It has a Market on Saturd. and an antient large ſtrong Caſtle, which belong'd to the Earls of Northumberland, and is now the Place where the Aſſizes are held. 7. Wooller, about 8 m. N. W. from Alnwick, has a Market on Thurſd.

There were formerly many ſtrong Caſtles in this County, as Bamburg, Norham, Wark, &c. the Capitals of their reſpective Diviſions, which being now demoliſh'd, we need not inſiſt upon; and for the Picts Wall, and other Roman Antiquities in this County, we refer to Camden, &c. The famous Range of Mountains, call'd Cheviot-Hills, N. W. from Alnwick, ſeparate this County from Scotland, and are ſo high, eſpecially on the N. ſide, that Snow lies in ſome of the Cliffs till Midſummer. Theſe Hills ſerve alſo as a Land-Mark to Sailors; and the chief Rivers of the County, viz. the Tine, Cocket, Till, &c. flow from them.

On the Coaſt, about 8 m. S. E. of Berwick, lies Holy-Iſland, formerly Lindisfarn, and the See of a Biſhop before it was remov'd to Durham. 'Tis encompaſs'd by the Sea at high Water; but at Ebb there's a Paſſage thro the Sands to the Continent. It has a ſmall Town, with a ſtrong Fort and Harbour, which the Rebels ſeiz'd in 1715, but were ſoon diſpoſſeſs'd by a Detachment of the Gariſon and Voluntiers from Berwick. The Iſland produces ſome Corn; and Rabbits and Fiſh abound on the Coaſt. About 7 m. further S. E. lie a Knot of Rocks, call'd the Farn-Iſlands, noted for little but being dangerous to Sailors, and producing a great Number of Sea-Fowl; and one of them has the Ruins of an old Monaſtery. About 17 m. further S. E. lies Coket-Iſland, at the Mouth of the R. of that Name, where abundance of Kelp is made of burnt Sea-Weed.

PART OF IRELAND

PART OF ENGLAND

SCOTLAND,

HAS England on the S. from which 'tis divided by the Tweed; on the E. Border by Cheviot and other Hills in the middle Marches, and by the Rivers Esk and Solway on the W. Border. It has the Deucaledon Sea on the N. the Iriſh Sea on the W. and the German Ocean on the E.

Authors differ as to the Extent of this Country. Polydore Virgil makes it 480 m. long; which agrees with Cæſar and others of the Antients, who reckon'd Britain 800 m. long, of which England takes up 320. Mr. Adair, a very able Scots Geographer, makes it, in his Map prefix'd to an Edition of Buchanan in Twelves, above 520 m. from the moſt S. Part on the Border, to the moſt N. Parts of the Iſles of Schetland, including the Seas betwixt Caithneſs, Orkney, and Schetland, for which if we abate 140 m. it agrees with Cæſar's Length of the Iſland. Sir Robert Sibbald, in his Prodromus to the Natural Hiſtory of Scotland, makes it (excluſive of the Iſles) from the Mule of Galloway to Dunsby-Head in Caithneſs, 389 m. long, and from Ardermouth-Head, near the Iſle of Mule, to Buchanneſs, 198 broad; but if we take in the W. Iſles, and the Sea betwixt, 'tis 67 m. broader. It lies betwixt N. Lat. 54. 48. and 60. 50. including Schetland; and betwixt Long. W. from London, Min. 26. and Long. 8.

The Iſlands of Scotland are above 300, and ſome of them very conſiderable. They are divided into 3 Claſſes: The W. call'd Hebrides, the N. Orkney and Schetland, and the 3d thoſe which lie in the Frith of Edinburgh.

The Air in general is wholeſome, and tho colder than that of England, is for the moſt part clearer, being purify'd by more frequent and ſtronger Winds. This contributes much to the Health of the People, many of whom live to a great Age. It lies betwixt the 10th and 14th Northern Climates; ſo that the longeſt Day in the S. is about 17 Hours, and in the N. about 19. Sir Robert Sibbald ſays, the longeſt Day is commonly reckon'd about 18 Hours, 2 Min. and the ſhorteſt Night about 5 Hours, and 45 Min. on the Continent; but that in the Iſle of Sky, about the Summer Solſtice, the Night is not above an Hour ½; and in Orkney, about June, one may ſee to read all Night. Their longeſt Day there is 19 Hours; and from a Mountain in Hoy, one of thoſe Iſles, the Body of the Sun is ſeen all Night about the Summer Solſtice, as it were a little obſcur'd with a Cloud, from half an Hour paſt 11 at Night, till half an Hour paſt 1 in the Morning. The Winter is longer in Scotland, and more ſubject to Storms of Snow, and hard Froſts than in England. It continues uſually 4 Months, viz. from the middle of November to the middle of March, tho the Seaſon is not ſevere above half the Time. The Wind blows uſually from the N. in Winter, and brings Snow, eſpecially in December, January, and part of February, when they have more Snow than Rain; and when the Snow comes late, it lies till the beginning of April. Thoſe Winters that have moſt Snow and Froſt, are moſt healthful for the People and Cattel, and better for the Soil. In March and the beginning of April, Rain is more frequent, and the Wind more ſtrong, blowing for the moſt part from the E. N. E. and S. E. The Summer is very temperate from the middle of June to the middle of September, when, generally ſpeaking, the Soil is neither parch'd with Heat, nor depriv'd of neceſſary Moiſture, being water'd with much Dew, frequent Showers, and many Fountains; yet the Heat is ſufficient to ripen the Corn and Fruits. The Wind blows then for the moſt part from W. N. W. and S. W. The Autumn is variable, abounding ſometimes with continual Rains, Fogs, and tempeſtuous Winds. The beginning of Autumn frequently reſembles Summer. In this Seaſon the Wind generally blows S. and S. E. Diſeaſes reign moſt in this Seaſon and the middle of the Spring; but are neither ſo frequent nor malignant as in neighbouring Countries, becauſe the Air is more purify'd by the Winds.

The Soil is for the moſt part mountainous; but there are many Valleys, eſpecially towards the Sea, fit for Agriculture and Paſture. Thoſe Valleys are of a fat blackiſh Soil, fit for all ſorts of Corn, Fruits, and Roots. Here are higher Grounds, which bear Rye, Barley, Peaſe, Beans, Oats, Flax, and Hemp. For manuring their Land, beſides ordinary Dung, they have Talc, Marle, Sea-Ware, Tangle, and Lime. In many Places the Ground yields 16 or 18 fold, and Mr. Martin, in his Deſcription of the W. Iſlands, ſays, they have Soil there which yields 30.

The Aſpect of the Country in general varies much, and ſeems to partake of the Nature of moſt Climates. In ſome Places they have Hills almoſt perpetually cover'd with Snow. In others, the Lakes and Rivers never freeze, and the Ground ſmokes by reaſon of the Sulphur in its Bowels. In ſome Parts the Aſpect is very melancholy, with Rocks, Hills, and Lakes. In others there are fruitful Corn-Fields and lovely Paſtures; and as the Surface of the Ground varies, the Mines under it do the like. So that Scotland partakes of the Barrenneſs, as well as Fruitfulneſs both of the old and new World. Sir Robert Sibbald ſays, tho the Scots are generally upbraided both by their Neighbours and Strangers with their numerous high Mountains, 'tis for want of knowing or conſidering that many of thoſe Mountains yield Paſture for Sheep and ſmall Black Cattel, or abound with Woods and Mines. On this Occaſion, 'tis proper to obſerve what the Learned Kircher ſays, Lib. 2. Mund. Subterran. That the Mountains are the ſame to the Earth, as Bones to the Body; for ſince the Earth conſiſts of Soil of ſeveral ſorts, and produces many Species of different Things, as Minerals, and mineral Fluors, theſe Things cou'd not conſiſt together, except they were kept in by the Firmneſs of the Mountains. They alſo preſerve the Earth from Inundations by the Sea, to which, as Job expreſſes it, they are ſet as Bars. They are alſo neceſſary to further and regulate the Courſe of Fountains and Rivers, which wou'd otherwiſe ſtagnate or over-flow the Country. Mountains, he ſays, are like Dugs in the Boſom of the Earth, to ſerve as Repoſitories of Nature, to ſupply it perpetually with Moiſture, and to fructify the neighbouring Valleys. They are neceſſary to break high Winds, to produce variety of Herbs, Trees, and Plants, temper the Heat of the Sun, and make the Air wholeſome. They are the Repoſitories of Minerals, where the ſubterranean Fire matures them for Man's Uſe; beſides the pleaſant Proſpect they afford, and the uſeful Shades they give to the neighbouring Valleys. Sir Robert ſays, Scotland owes much to its Mountains; for by them the Sun hath a ſtronger Influence upon the Valleys, the Air is made more clear and healthful, and the Country is deliver'd from putrid Waters, which occaſion peſtilential Diſeaſes. It is evident they add to the Dimenſions of the Country, and afford more room for Flocks, Woods, &c. than a plain Country of the ſame Extent.

The chief Mountains here are the Grampians, which run in a Chain E. and W. from the Shire of Argyle almoſt to Aberdeen. Another remarkable Chain are thoſe of Lammermoor, which run from the Eaſtern Coaſt of the Mers a great way Weſt. Another are thoſe of Pentland, which run thro Lothian, and joining thoſe of Tweedale, go thro the Breadth of the Iſland. Cheviot-Hills make another Range, which divides the Nations, as above. There are other Ranges, which run thro Lochaber a great way N. E. and ſeveral that ſeparate betwixt Strathnaver, Sutherland, and Caithneſs; beſides many particular Mountains, remarkable for their Height, &c. which we can't inſiſt on.

The Country in general produces all Things neceſſary for the Inhabitants, and ſufficient for Exportation. All the ſorts of Corn and Fruit that grow in England are found here; and they have great ſtore of Wheat, Barley, and Oats, Beans and Peaſe, Flax and Hemp, for their own Conſumption and Exportation. Julius Scaliger, who was in Scotland, ſays, in his Exercitations 140. and 200. that there's no Bread in Europe comparable to the Scots Wheaten Bread for Whiteneſs and eaſy Digeſtion. Their Oats are the moſt univerſal Grain, reckon'd better than thoſe of England, and grow every where, particularly in thoſe Places that don't bear other Corn.

Here is alſo plenty of Herbs, Plants, and Roots, both for Food and Phyſick; for which we refer to Sir Robert Sibbald's Hiſtoria Plantarum Hortenſium in Scotia, & prodromi naturalis Hiſtoriæ Scotiæ. Par. 2. Lib. 2. In the firſt Part of his Prodromus, he gives us curious Tables of foreign Herbs and Plants, and other Things imported from foreign Parts for medicinal Uſes, with an Account of Scots Herbs and Plant of the like Virtue in oppoſite Columns; which ſhews that they are under no Neceſſity of being at much expence in foreign Drugs.

Here are the ſame ſorts of Timber as in England, which Scotland exceeds in Foreſts of Fir, eſpecially in the N. and Highlands, where the Woods afford Maſts for the greateſt Men of War, tho hard to come at in ſome Places, becauſe of Rocks and Mountains; but Induſtry and Art might ſoon overcome thoſe Difficulties, had they Encouragement for it. In moſt part of the Lowlands, eſpecially on this ſide Forth, the Country is but ill provided with Timber, occaſion'd chiefly by the long Wars betwixt the Nations, during which it was deſtroy'd here, as well as in the N. Provinces of England. But that this does not proceed from any Defect in the Soil, is evident from the handſome Plantations about Gentlemens Seats, and other Places where the Woods have been look'd after with tolerable Care; ſo that upon moderate Encouragement for Tenants to plant and incloſe, by giving them long Leaſes, &c. the Lowlands of Scotland might be as well provided with Fruit-Trees, and Timber for Building, Ornament, and Fuel, as any Part of the Iſland.

Many Places of this Nation are well provided with Coal, Timber, and Turf, for Fuel; and they export great Quantities of Coal. In other Parts, where moſt of the Land is ploughed up, they are ſtreighten'd for Fuel, and burn much Straw, with which they bake their Oat-Cakes well, and with the greateſt Expedition that Bread is perhaps prepar'd in any part of the World.

The Country in general abounds with Flocks of Sheep and Black Cattel, except in Corn-Counties, where they keep no more than are juſt neceſſary: But the Horſes and Black Cattel bred in thoſe Counties are much larger than thoſe in the mountainous Places, equal in Size to moſt of thoſe in England, and as fit for War, Saddle, or Carriage. The White and Black Cattel in the mountainous Parts are ſmall, but delicious Meat; and great Herds of them are brought annually into the Lowlands and England, where being fatted, they turn to a very good account; for they feed well upon what cannot ſubſiſt large Cattel. In the Highlands and Galloway they breed great Numbers of ſmall Horſes, which are very hardy, capable of great Fatigue, and more proper for the Saddle and other Uſes in thoſe hilly Countries than great Horſes, and much eaſier kept; ſo that ſuch Horſes as may be bought for 40 or 50 s. apiece, will tire out a large Horſe of 20, 30, or 40 l. in a Journey; and they are much coveted by the Engliſh Borderers, who buy great Numbers of them at Dumbarton Fair; and ſome Merchants who have imported them to Surinam, and other Places in the Weſt Indies, have had good Returns for them in the Commodities of thoſe Countries. And as to their ſmall Black Cattel, which are commonly ſold at 30 or 40 s. apiece, and ſometimes leſs, they yield great Profit to the Lowland and Engliſh Purchaſers, when fatted: So that Mr. Spruel, an eminent Merchant of Glaſgow, in his Account Current betwixt Scotland and England, ſays, that their Tallow is ſold ſometimes from 40 to 50 s. per Hundred at London, and 3 l. at Briſtol, beſides the Profit made of their Meat, and Hides which make good upper Leather for Shoes.

As to their ſmall-ſize Sheep, they yield great Profit to the Inhabitants by their Meat, Milk, Wool, Skins, and Lambs, of which they are more than ordinary prolifick. Great Numbers of them are annually ſold in the Lowlands and North of England, where their Meat is much eſteem'd for its Sweetneſs.

Deer are not very common in the Lowlands, except in Parks of the Nobility; but in the Mountains and Waſtes of the Highlands and Iſles there are great Herds of them, which run wild, yield good Profit to the Inhabitants by their Meat and Skins, and give agreeable Diverſion to thoſe of Quality, who go to hunt them with large Retinues. The Highlands have alſo great Flocks of Goats, which feed on rocky and inacceſſible Hills, yield good Profit to the Inhabitants by their Kids, which are excellent Meat, and by their Skins, which make fine Gloves. Their Milk is much drank by the Lowlanders againſt Conſumptions and other Decays; and the Cheeſe made of it is valued for its good Taſte; as is alſo that of the Milk of their Yews, which ſome prefer to that of Black Cattel, becauſe the Sheep eat greater Variety of Herbs in the Mountains.

The Butter of Scotland is not in general near ſo good as that of England. This does not proceed from the Nature of the Milk, but from their want of Sale and Encouragement to take care, as appears by that made in Gentlemens Houſes, and thoſe of the better ſort, where 'tis as good as that of England; and Mr. Spruel ſays, he has bought as good Butter from the W. Highlands, as that of Ireland.

'Tis a vulgar Error in England and elſewhere, to imagine that the Scots in general have an Averſion to Pork. Hogs are not bred indeed there in ſuch great Numbers as in England; but in thoſe Parts where they have Corn and other proper Food, they feed conſiderable Numbers for their own Uſe and Exportation; ſo that great Quantities of good ſalt Pork are exported annually from the N. and other Parts of Scotland; and had they Encouragement for it, they are capable of breeding greater Numbers in their Woods, &c. where they are fed very eaſily, and make excellent Meat.

As to Fowl, Scotland has not only plenty of ſuch as are common in other Countries, but many peculiar to themſelves, eſpecially in the Iſlands, where they are in ſuch Multitudes, as the Inhabitants can neither conſume nor vend. But if a Fiſhery, or other Trade, were carried on in thoſe Parts, they would yield the Inhabitants great Profit by their Eggs and Feathers, beſides what they might do by Meat. The Iſlanders uſe their Fat inſtead of Oil, and many times for Phyſick.

As to their Hemp and Flax they have very great Quantities; the former being fit for Cordage and Sail-Cloth, &c. had they Encouragement for it; and of the latter they make ſtore of coarſe and fine Linen, Holland, Cambrick, Muſlin, Callicoes, Dornick, excellent Damask, Ticking, Thred, Laces, Tape, &c. This is the chief Staple Trade for the Poor of the Nation, and they export great Quantities. Mr. Spruel ſays, he has known out of a Pound of Scots Flax, which coſt but 12 d. as much fine Yarn ſpun, as yielded the Spinners 28 s. and made into fine Muſlin yielded the Proprietors 2 l. 14 s. the Charges of Weaving and Whitening deducted: And he has known, that from one Pound of the ſame Flax, Lace-Makers have made Lace to the Value of 8 l. Sterling.

As to their Wool, they have great abundance; and tho it be not generally ſo good as that of England, yet they have ſome in Galloway, Twedale, and the North, which is very fine. The Manufactures they make of it are Broad Cloth, which they had brought to a great Perfection before the Union. They alſo make their Wool up into coarſe Cloth, Fingreens, Serges, Bays, Crapes, Temmin, Glaſgow Plads, Worſted Camlets, Shalloons, and other Stuffs. The Glaſgow Plads exceed all that ſort of Manufacture in the World, are commonly wore by Women as a ſort of Veil when they go abroad, and very ornamental for Beds, Hangings, Window-Curtains, &c. Great Quantities of a coarſer ſort are made in the Highlands, where they have been the common Wear of both Sexes for many Ages. Mr. Spruel thinks they might turn to a very good Account if carried to Africa and other hot Countries, ſince they are much more ornamental and light than what is uſually worn by the Moors. The Scots have a peculiar way of dying the Wool for thoſe Plads in grain, which the Norwich Manufacturers and others in England have endeavour'd to imitate, but come very ſhort both of the Fineneſs and Colour. The Wool is alſo work'd up into blue and grey Caps or Bonnets for Men, and into coarſe and fine Stockings. Mr. Spruel ſays, they make Worſted Stockings at Aberdeen for Women, from 10 to 30 s. a Pair. They are ſpun of a fine Wool from the Highlands, and are ſo much valued, that Mens Stockings of that ſort are ſometimes ſold at 50 s. or 3 l. a Pair.

The principal Fund of Trade, were it duly improv'd, would be their Fiſhery; and ſince ſo many Deſigns are now on foot to carry on that Trade in Great Britain, I ſhall be the larger upon it. They have abundance of Whales among the W. Iſlands, whither they purſue the Herrings, and particularly about the Iſle of Lewes, where, Buchanan ſays, in his time the Prieſts had ſometimes 20 for their Tythes; tho the Inhabitants were ſo far from being expert in the way of catching them, that they only aſſembled a great Number of Boats, and chaſed the Whales up to the Bays till they had wounded one, which running aſhore, as is uſual in thoſe Caſes, the reſt follow'd the Tract of its Blood, and run alſo aſhore, where many of them were kill'd. Mr. Martin, a Native of the Iſle of Sky, in his Deſcription of the W. Iſle ſays, that 50 young Whales have been drove aſhore in this manner at time, and were eat by the common People, who call'd them Sea-Por and found them very nouriſhing Food. He ſays, there's a large ſo of Whales on that Coaſt, call'd Galan-Whales, from a Promontory that Name, where they are generally ſeen. He adds, that 160 youn Whales run aſhore ſome Years ago upon one of thoſe Weſtern Iſlands that they likewiſe frequent the Coaſts of Orkney, where 114 ran aſhor at one time in 1691; and that it is common with the Iſlanders to ea the Young ones boil'd with Vinegar, Onions, Leeks, other Herb and Pepper. They uſe their Fat againſt the Itch, and ſalt their Li vers, which have a pleaſant Taſte, and are very nouriſhing. Th Scots Coaſts, but particularly thoſe of the Iſles, abound with Seals, ſ that the Fiſhermen have kill'd 320 at a time. The common Peopl ſalt them with the Aſhes of Sea-Ware, reckon them good Food, an uſe the Broth and Fleſh of the Young ones againſt Diſtempers o the Breaſt. They reckon them as good as Hams when ſalted, an that their Fleſh and Livers are good againſt a Diarrhæa and Dyſentery; and uſe Girdles made of their Skins againſt the Sciatica and Chin-Cough. They might make great Profit of their Oil and Skins had they Vent for them.

The principal Subject of Fiſhing is the Herrings, which ſwarm on all the Scots Coaſts, eſpecially about the W. Iſles. They come to thoſe Coaſts in April, May, and June, and continue in ſome Places till January. Thoſe of the W. Iſles are reckon'd the beſt and fatteſt, tho not ſo large as thoſe taken on the N. and E. Coaſt. A Fiſhery was attempted here by K. Char. I. in conjunction with ſome Merchants and others; and Magazines were erected for that end in Hermetra, one of the Harris Iſlands, and another at Vackſay, where the Deſign was like to have ſucceeded well, had it not been prevented by the Civil Wars, which happen'd ſoon after. The Attempt was renewed by K. Char. II. and ſucceeded well for a Time. The Fiſh then caught were reckon'd the beſt of their Kind in Europe, and bore a Price accordingly. But the Dutch War coming on, the K. withdrew his Money; which diſcourag'd the other Adventurers, who differing likewiſe among themſelves, the Deſign miſcarried. About the ſame Time ſome Dutch Families ſettled at Stornway in the Iſle of Lewes; and during the little time they ſtaid there, did mightily improve the Inhabitants in the Fiſhing Trade, in which reſpect they ſtill exceed their Neighbours. The Dutch brought them alſo a great deal of Money for their Sea and Land Fowl; ſo that when the King oblig'd the Dutch to go from thence, 'twas a great Loſs to the Country. Herrings are ſometimes bought in the Iſles from the common Fiſhermen at 6 d. per Barrel. Thirty ſix thouſand Barrels of white Herrings have been exported from Clyde to France in one Seaſon, beſides what have been exported from the N. and E. Coaſts to the Baltick and elſewhere. The Dutch own they have got a great part of their Riches by their fiſhing on the Scots Coaſt.

The chief Places for Herring-Fiſhing are, 1. Braſſa-Sound, where above 2000 Buſſes from Holland, Hamburg, and Bremen, &c. rendevouz uſually in Summer, and continue fiſhing on the Coaſt till Auguſt and September. 2. The Coaſts and Bays of the Orkney Iſlands. 3. Lochbroun in Roſſe. 4. Lewes. 5. Harris, where from Lochmaddy, a large Harbour capable of Ships of the greateſt Burden, 400 Veſſels have been loaden with Herrings in a Seaſon. 6. Sky, and the other adjacent Iſles; particularly in the Bays of Altvig, the Shoals of Herring are ſo thick, that many times they entangle the Boats. 7. The Iſles of Mull, Ila, Jurah, and others about the Coaſts of Argyle, particularly in Lochfin. 8. The Iſles of Aran, Bute, &c. in Clyde. 9. The Firth of Edinburgh, on both ſides the Coaſts, eſpecially towards Dumbar.

Cod and Ling are very plentiful in the ſame Places, eſpecially in the North and the Iſles. Their Seaſon is after that of Herring. In the Shire of Fife alone, 500 Veſſels have been employ'd in fiſhing them and Herring. The chief Places for great Cod are the Iſles of Schetland and Bara-Head, the Coaſts of Lewes and Harris, Sky and St. Kilda, or Hirt, the Iſles of Aran, Ileſay, Coll, and Cannay.

The other Sea-Fiſh that abound on the Coaſts, are, Turbat, Tusk, Thornyback, Grey-Lord, Keeling, Mackarel, Whitings, Sea-Urchin, Cat-Fiſh, Cock-Paddle, ſmall Cod, Lyth, Spirlings, Haddocks, Soles, and Flukes. In the Forth, eſpecially about Inch-Garvy, are Multitudes of ſmall Fiſh, equal almoſt to Anchovies. They have alſo Shell-Fiſh of all ſorts in the Weſtern Iſlands and elſewhere, as Lobſters, Crabs, and Oyſters, particularly in Orkney, ſo large, that they muſt be cut in 3 or 4 Pieces. In the Iſle of Sky, Spring-Tides commonly leave many Horſe-Loads of Oyſters and Muſcles on the Sand; and ſuch Multitudes of Clams and Spouts, that the People can't conſume them. Cockles, Limpets, and Wilks, are alſo very numerous, and a great Relief to the Poor in Years of Scarcity.

Pearl being the Product of Shell-Fiſh, 'tis proper here to take notice of the Scots Pearl. Mr. Spruel above-mention'd, who traded moſt that way of any Man in Scotland, ſays, he has ſometimes given 25 l. Sterling for one Scots Pearl; that he had of them as fine, clear, and more tranſparent than any Oriental Pearl; and that they are much coveted by Foreigners. He adds, that once in 20 Years there's a great Pearl-Fiſhing in Scotland; and propoſes that the People ſhould be reſtrained from taking the Pearl-Muſcles and Oyſters when young; that no Shells be taken up leſs than 3 or 4 Inches long, and 2 or 3 broad; that no Pearl be offer'd to Sale leſs than 5 Grain weight; and no Pearl-Fiſhing be allow'd oftner than once in 10 Years, unleſs to take up the Shells of the Size he mentions. This he thinks as reaſonable as to forbid deſtroying the young Fry of Salmon, ſince Pearl is far more valuable, and it would certainly advance the Pearl-Trade; whereas many Thouſands of Young are now offer'd to Sale that are good for nothing, which, did they lie their due time, might be worth from 4 to 50 Crowns apiece. The more Wrinkles there are in a Pearl-Shell, 'tis the greater ſign of their Age and Goodneſs; but the Young ones are ſmooth and barren. The Pearl-Shells are commonly found in the ſame Places with Salmon, and frequently in the Iſle of Sky, where they breed in black Muſcles; and ſome have been lately found there worth 20 l. apiece.

We come next to the Scots Salmon. They are found in moſt of their Rivers; but the greateſt Store is in the North, about Aberdeen, where they have a noble Salmon-Fiſhing in the Rivers Dee and Done; and the Magiſtrates take ſo much Care of having them well cur'd, that tho their Barrels be one Third leſs than thoſe of Berwick, they yield

10 Livres more in France. Other remarkable Places for Salmon-Fiſhing in the North, are, the Earl of Sutherland's Country, the Rivers Louth and Spynee; the Doveren at Bamf; the Rivers Neſſe, Nairn, Findorn, Loſſey, and Spey in Murray; Lochlaumond in Lenox, Lochow in Argyle, are remarkable for Salmon of an excellent Taſte; the Bay of Cromarty, near Dingwal-Caſtle; the River Clyde, Ken, and others in Galloway; and the River Tweed, &c. in the Borders. In the Iſle of Sky there are 30 ſmall Rivers that abound with Salmon; and there are ſpeckled Salmon in Harris, Northviſt, and Benbecula. Sturgeon is alſo found in ſeveral Places of the Nation.

There are many Lakes in Scotland that have plenty of Eels, Perch, and Pike; ſo that no Nation of the World has more plenty of excellent Fiſh of all ſorts.

Coral, white and red, Coraline, and Ambergreaſe, are found on the Coaſts of the Iſlands, and elſewhere; as are alſo thoſe curious Shells, call'd Wampompeag, which go in the Indies, &c. for Money. Otters are very numerous in the W. and N. Iſles.

Mr. Martin ſays, that the following precious and extraordinary Stones are found in the Iſles, viz. Marcaſites, black and white; the Lapis Ceraunius, or Cerna Amonis, of different Shapes, and with divers curious Impreſſions. They call 'em Cramp-Stones, becauſe the Water in which they are ſteep'd cures the Cramp in their Cattel. They are found in Banks of Clay on the Sea-Shore. The Velumnites, call'd by the Natives Bat-Stones, becauſe the Bats in their Horſes are cur'd by drinking the Water in which theſe Stones have been ſteep'd, grow alſo in thoſe Clay Banks, ſome 12 Inches long, and tapering towards one End. The Lapis Hecticus is a white Stone, which is very common in the Iſle of Sky. The Natives uſe it as a Remedy againſt the Dyſentery, Diarrhæa, and Conſumptions, by making it red hot in the Fire, and then quenching it with Milk, or Water, which they drink with Succeſs, and ſometimes bath their Hands and Feet in it. Moſt of the red Rocks of the Iſle Rona are of this Stone. Abundance of round Stones of ſeveral Colours are found in the Coaſts of the Iſles, particularly of Sky and Raſay. There's Aggat in the former, of different Sizes and Colours. Amethyſts are alſo found on the Coaſts of Scotland, particularly blue ones in Perthſhire, and purple ones flow down a Rivulet in the Iſle of Sky after Rains. Great Quantities of Chryſtal are found in the Rocks of the Iſle of St. Kilda, and the Iſles of Sky and Arran. Abundance of Os Sepiæ, or the Bone of Cuttel-Fiſh, is found in the Sand of the Iſle of Harris; which the Natives powder, and drink in boil'd Milk for the Diarrhæa and Dyſentery. There's plenty of Molucca Beans about all the Iſles, eſpecially Harris. The ſuperſtitious Natives uſe the white ones as Amulets, and pretend that if any Hurt is intended againſt the Perſon who wears them, they turn black. The Powder of the black Bean is drunk by the Natives in Milk or Aquavitæ for the Diarrhæa and Dyſentery. Talc, like that of Venice, abounds on the Rocks in the Iſle of Sky. There's a white and red ſort of Marl in Sky and Orkney; and they have good Potters Clay in many of the Iſles. There's Fullers Earth in the Brooks of Sky; and Corkir in the Iſle of Sky, which is a Scurf for dying Crimſon, ripens in Auguſt, and is gather'd in the Decreaſe of the Moon. And in the ſame Iſland is found Croſtil, a coarſer Scurf, of a dark Colour, which is us'd to dye a Philamote Colour. The Wampompeag, or fine Shells, which paſs in Africa and the Indies for Money, are found in great Numbers, with other curious Shells, upon the Coaſts of the Iſles. Loadſtone is found in a Hill on the N. End of the Iſle of Cannay, and Sperma Ceti on the Coaſt of Orkney, and elſewhere in the Iſles.

Gold Mines were found in Crawford-Moor in the Reign of James IV. And in James V's Time ſome rich Germans, skill'd in Mines, came over with abundance of Money, obtain'd Leave of the King to dig them, purchas'd what they dug, and carried it back with them. Part of that Gold, which was very fine, was coin'd into Bonnet-Pieces during that Reign; but whether thro Neglect, or otherwiſe, little Improvement has been made of them ſince; for Gold is ſtill found in thoſe Parts in Streams, &c. eſpecially the Ld Hopton's Lands, of which there are ſeveral Utenſils made by that Family. Azure is found in great Quantities, almoſt without any Labour. Silver Mines were alſo found in Carnpapel-Hill, 3 m. S. of Lithgow and Weſt Lothian, and ſome have been found elſewhere ſince, but no Improvement made of them. There are Copper Mines at Airthey, belonging to the Earl of Hopton, within 2 m. of Sterling, where 100 ℔ of Oar has yielded 50 of very good Copper, and a good Proportion of Silver is alſo extracted from it. There are likewiſe rich Lead Mines in that Earl's Lands in Clyſdale, Mines of Tin and Lead in Orkney, Mines of Iron at Dumfermlin in Fife, in the Iſle of Lewes, and many Hills in Scotland. Sir Robert Sibbald ſays, there is alſo Quickſilver, Antimony, Chryſocolla, and Pyrites of ſeveral ſorts. Here are alſo good Quarries of Free-Stone, and Marble of different Colours, there being Mountains of it in ſeveral Places of the North. Here are alſo Quarries of Grey and Blue Slate, and Lime-Stone in abundance.

Sir Robert Sibbald, in his Prodromus, gives the following Account of precious Stones in Scotland: 1. Diamonds. This he had from credible Perſons who have found them; and he the rather believes it, becauſe Diamonds proceed from a Juice much like that which produces Chryſtal, of which we have heard there are great Quantities in Scotland. 2. Rubies. 3. Carbuncles, in Ila and other Places, where they ſhine in the Rocks like a burning Coal. 4. Jacynths, of a Flame Colour. 5. Topazes, in the North, of a Gold Colour. 6. Bufonius Lapis, ſuppos'd to be the Toad-Stone. 7. Beryl, as clear as Chryſtal, one of which was found in Tweed. 8. Jaſper of a Blood Colour, ſome of them green, and others red and green mix'd. 9. Cornelians of a Fleſhy Colour. 10. Jet. 11. Oculus Mundi.

'Tis proper here to give an Account of the Seas, by which the Country is bounded on all Sides, but that of England. Scotland is ſo indented with Bays and Inlets of the Seas, that there's ſcarce a Houſe in it above 60 m. from one Inlet or other; which is a very great Conveniency for Trade, and particularly Fiſhing, if duly improv'd. In thoſe Seas there's a great Increaſe and Decreaſe of Water during the Tide and Ebb; and the latter is particularly remarkable, becauſe of the Declivity of the Country. The moſt obſervable Tides are, 1. In the narrow Paſſage, where Kintire, belonging to the Shire of Argyle, is join'd to Knapdale. 'Tis about a m. long, and during an Ebb, is a low Sand, thro which the Seamen draw their little Veſſels, to ſhorten their Paſſage; and which is wonderful, as the Sea flows in at one Side, it ebbs at the other, as if Providence took peculiar Care that this Iſthmus ſhould not be broke thro by the Force of the contending Waves.

There's alſo a Gulph betwixt the Iſlands Jura and Scalpa with ſuch an impetuous Current, as is not to be match'd in Britain. The Sea begins to ferment with the Tide like a boiling Pot, and increaſes gradually till it appears in many Whirlpools, which immediately ſpout up Water in ſhape of Pyramids as high as the Maſt of a ſmall Ship, and with great Noiſe; and the white Waves, occaſion'd by the Fall of the Water, run 2 Leagues before they break. The Sea continues thoſe various Motions from the beginning of the Tide till about half Flood; when it decreaſes gradually, but continues to boil till within an Hour of low Water. The ſmalleſt Fiſher-Boat may croſs the Gulph at the laſt Hour of the Flood, and the laſt of the Ebb; but 'tis fatal for any Ship to approach this Gulph when the Pyramids of Water begin to riſe.

Sir Robert Murray gives an Account, in the Tranſactions of the Royal Society, of the Tides on the Coaſt of Bernera, one of the Harris Iſlands, thus: They increaſe and decreaſe gradually, according to the Age of the Moon; ſo that about the third Day after New and Full Moon in the Weſt Iſles and Continent they are commonly at the higheſt, and at Quarter Moons at the loweſt; and the Increaſe and Decreaſe are generally in like proportion. He ſuppoſes the Increaſe of the Tides is made in the Proportion of Sines. The firſt Increaſe exceeds the loweſt in a ſmall Proportion, the next in a greater, and ſo on to the middlemoſt; whereof the Exceſs is the greateſt, diminiſhing again from that to the higheſt Spring-Tide, ſo as the Proportions before and after the middle anſwer one another: And likewiſe from the higheſt Spring to the loweſt Neap-Tide, the Decreaſe ſeems to keep the like Proportion, unleſs Wind or other Accident cauſes an Alteration. At the beginning of each Flood on the Coaſt, the Tides move faſter, but in a ſmall degree, increaſing in Swiftneſs till towards the middle of the Flood, and decreaſing from thence to the top of the high Water. 'Tis ſuppos'd that in unequal Spaces of Time, the Increaſe and Decreaſe of Swiftneſs, and conſequently the Degrees of Riſings and Fallings in the ſame unequal Spaces of Time, are perform'd according to the Proportion of Sines. The Proportion cannot hold exactly in regard to the Equalities that fall out in the Periods of the Tides, that are believ'd to follow certain Poſitions of the Moon in regard of the Equinox, which are known not to keep an exact conſtant Courſe; ſo that there not being equal Portions of Time between one New Moon and another, the Moon's Return to the ſame Meridian cannot be always perform'd in the ſame Time. And the Tides from the New Moon being not always the ſame in Number, but ſometimes 57, 58, and 59, without any certain Order or Succeſſion, is another Evidence of the Difficulty of reducing this to any great Exactneſs.

At the E. End of this Iſle there's a ſtrange Reciprocation of the Tide and Ebb; and there's another as remarkable on the W. Side of the Long Iſland. The Tides which come from the S. W. run along the Coaſt N. So that during the ordinary Courſe of the Tides the Flood runs E. in the Frith, where Bernera lies, and the Ebb W. And thus the Sea ebbs and flows orderly 4 Days before the Full and Change, and as long after, (the ordinary Spring-Tides riſing 14 or 15 Foot upright, and all the reſt proportionably, as in other Places;) but afterwards, for 4 Days before the Quarter Moons, and as long after, there is conſtantly a great and ſingular Variation; for then (a S. Moon making there a full Sea) the Courſe of the Tide being E. when it begins to flow, which is about half an Hour paſt Nine, it not only continues ſo till about half an Hour paſt Three in the Afternoon, when it is high Water, but after it begins to ebb, the Current runs on ſtill E. during the whole Ebb; ſo that it runs E. 12 Hours together, that is, from about half an Hour paſt Nine in the Morning, till about half an Hour paſt Nine at Night. But when the Night-Tide begins to flow, the Current turns, and runs W. all Night during both Flood and Ebb for 12 Hours more. Thus the Reciprocations continue Flood and Ebb till 4 Days before the Full and New Moon, and then they reſume their ordinary regular Courſe as before, running E. during the 6 Hours Flood, and W. during the 6 of Ebb.

There are other ſtrange Tides about the Orkney Iſles, which we ſhall deſcribe in their proper Place.

There are many Rivers in Scotland: The chief of which are,

1. The Forth, call'd by the Romans, Bodotria. It riſes at the Foot of Limon-Hill in Menteith, receives ſeveral other Rivers before it comes to Sterling, where it is navigable by ſmall Veſſels up to the Bridge, and by the greateſt Ships to Alloway, but 4 m. lower by Land, tho 24 by Water, occaſion'd by the pleaſant Meanders of the R. Below Alloway the Channel enlarges it ſelf ſeveral m. in Breadth, till it comes to Queen's-Ferrey, where Promontories breaking in on both Sides, the R. is reduc'd to 2 m. in Breadth, and affords a ſafe and ſhort Paſſage betwixt Lothian and Fife, unleſs in very tempeſtuous Weather. About the middle of the Paſſage there's a little Iſland call'd Inchgarvie, which had formerly a Fort or ſmall Caſtle that commanded the Paſſage, which by raiſing Forts on each Promontory might be made unpaſſable without Leave; and in the R. above it, convenient Harbours might be form'd for the largeſt Fleets, ſafe from all Attacks of Enemies or Weather. Below this Place the Forth enlarges it ſelf by degrees, and is called the Frith of Edinburgh, it being the nobleſt Inlet for great Ships in Britain, and bounded with pleaſant and fruitful Countries on both ſides, till it opens into the German Sea. The Courſe of it, from the Fountain to Dumbar, is in a direct Line 70 m. beſides Turnings and Windings, and is navigable about 55 m. Some Authors call it the Scotiſh Sea; but that Name is more proper to the Sea which lies on the E. Coaſt of Scotland. The Mouth of this Frith, from Dumbar to Fifeneſs, is 17 m. broad. It contracts at N. Berwick, whence to Earl's-Ferry in Fife 'tis but 5. It enlarges again upward as far as Leith, where 'tis about 9 m. broad to Kirkaldy, and 7 to Burnt-Iſland. This R. beſides the Conveniency it affords for Trade, abounds with Salmon and other good Fiſh; and in the Seaſon, has a noble Herring-Fiſhing on the Coaſts of Lothian and Fife.

2. Tay is the largeſt freſh-water R. in Scotland. It riſes from a Lake of its own Name in Broadalbin, receives ſeveral others on both ſides, falls into the Sea, and forms a large Firth, which, betwixt Fifeneſs and Readhead in Angus, is 16 m. broad. The Courſe of the R. from the Lake

Lake, besides Turnings and Windings, to the Mouth of its Firth, is 55 m. It is navigable by great Ships as far as Dundee, which is about 18 m. and by lesser to St. Johnstown, or Perth, which is 16 more in a direct Line, but much more by the Turnings and Windings. This R. abounds also with Salmon and other Fish. There's a Cataract near the late E. of Perth's House at Stob-Hall, which in time of Floods makes such a Noise, that 'tis heard at a great Distance.

3. Clyde is the greatest R. in the Lowlands next to the Forth, rises from a Hill in Clydsdale, and after a Course of 60 m. besides Turnings and Windings, falls into the Sea near Dumbarton, and forms a noble Firth, that comes in from the Irish Sea above 60 m. up the Country, betwixt the Mule of Galloway and Kintire. This R. has also a noble Salmon-Fishing; and in the Frith there's a great Fishery of Herring, Cod, and Ling, 'Tis navigable from the Mouth of the Frith, as high as Glasgow, which is 70 m. in a direct Line, but much more with the Turnings and Windings. Great Ships go up as high as Newport, which is the Harbour of Glasgow, about 9 m. below the City, whither Goods are brought by smaller Vessels.

4. Spey is the most considerable R. in the N. of Scotland, next to Tay. 'Tis the most rapid R. in the Nation, rises in Badenoch, and after a Course of 76 m. besides Turnings and Windings, falls into the Sea at a Place call'd Germack. The Tide flows a m. up the R. which is not navigable far, because of its rapidity. Here's a noble Salmon-Fishing; and 'tis observ'd that it swells by a W. Wind in the Heat of Summer, tho there be no Rain.

5. The Rivers Don and Dee, which both rise in the Country of Mar, are also famous for Salmon-Fishing, but navigable by Ships only at their Mouths. The Don falls into the Sea at Old Aberdeen, and the Dee at New Aberdeen.

6. Ness, which flows from a great Lake of its own Name, has also a good Salmon-Fishing; never freezes, but smokes and dissolves Ice thrown into it during the greatest Frosts; which is ascrib'd to the sulphurous Ground it runs thro. The same is observ'd of the Lake it comes from, and of Loch-Tay, and Lochern.

7. The Tweed rises from Clydsdale, and after a Course of 52 m. besides Turnings and Windings, falls into the Sea at Berwick. The Tide flows up about 4 m. This R. is also remarkable for its Salmon-Fishing. These being the chief Rivers, we shall take notice of the rest in their proper Places, as we shall also do of the chief Lakes.

This Country abounds with very good Fountains, of which some are found on the tops of the highest Hills. In the highest of the Lowmond-Hills, and on Hoy in Orkney, there's an excellent Fountain, whose Water is so clear and light, that whatever Quantites of it a Man drinks, it makes him nothing the heavier; and there's a Fountain of fresh Water on the top of the Bass-Island. In the high Rock of Dumbarton-Castle there are 2 Fountains, about 3 Foot from one another, one of which, that runs S. is very salt, and the other that runs N. very fresh and clear. Near the Castle of Slains there's a petrifying Fountain, whose Water dropping from a natural Cave turns immediately into Pyramids of Stone that are brittle, and make good Lime. There's another in Hamilton-Wood, which turns into Stones that resemble putrid Moss. At Monkton, near Edinburgh, there's one call'd the Routing-Well, because of the Noise it makes before Tempests from the Part of the Well which looks to that Quarter of the Skies where the Tempest is to rise. There's one on the W. Side of Campsey-Hills, that divide Sterlingshire from Lenox, whose Water makes People drunk. The chief Medicinal Fountains in Scotland are 2 Wells, which spring from the Top of a Rock near Moffat in Anandale. The upper Well runs thro whitish and chrystalline Stones; and the lower thro black ones, resembling Marcasites of Antimony. The Water smells like Gunpowder, and it dyes Silver black. To the Stones of the upper Well, there sticks a Matter like stinking Sulphur of Antimony, of a yellowish red Colour. The Stones of the lower Well are of the Colour of Antimony; and some of them contain a metallick Matter, that sparkles like it. Where the Stream of the lower Well runs down into a neighbouring Brook, a whitish Salt sticks to the Rock, and perhaps a nitrous Matter, which has the Diuretick Virtue of the Water. Those Waters purge by Stool and Vomit, and are very good against Cholick and Nephritick Pains, because they powerfully remove the Obstructions of the Bowels. They are outwardly applied to Ulcers, and to remove Pains in the Joints. They operate best in the driest Seasons of the Summer and Autumn, but not so well in Winter or a rainy Season. There's a Well of the same Nature at the Brink of a small R. near Loch-Mahom Church in W. Lothian; and another at Hall Yards, within 6 m. of Edinburgh. Arthrey-Well, 2 m. N. of Sterling, is us'd against outward Distempers, and flows from a Mountain, where there's a Copper Mine, with some Mixture of Gold and Silver.

There are several Fountains tinctur'd with Iron and Vitriol at Peter-Head in Aberdeenshire, good against Cholicks, Dropsys, and Nephritick Pains; and there's a Well of the like Nature near Aberdeen. At New-Mills, in the W. of Scotland, there's another of the same sort, much commended for Hypochondriack and Scorbutick Distempers. At Kinghorn in Fife, there flows from the Clifts of the Rock a very clear and cold Water, which quickly passes thro the Body, restores Appetite, is good against the Gravel and Stone, and outwardly applied, is good for itching and watry Eyes, Redness and Pimples in the Face. There flows from the same Rock a whitish viscid Liquor, that makes an excellent Cosmetick.

There are no Baths yet discover'd in Scotland; but the want of them in cold Distempers may be in part supply'd by the external Use of Moffat Waters, and of the Oil that swims on St. Catherine's Well, 2 m. from Edinburgh. 'Tis of a blackish Colour, made use of to soften the Skin, and remove Roughness or Scabs. Being warm'd, and the Part anointed with it, 'tis found to be very good against Pains proceeding from cold Causes, and restores Strength to decay'd Limbs.

There are some Lakes here of a peculiar Quality; as, 1. Loch-Myrtoo in Galloway, one Part of which freezes in the Winter, and the other never. 2. One in Strath-Errick, in the Ld Lovat's Country, which never freezes till February, and then in one Night's Time freezes all over. 3. Loch-Monar, in the Earl of Cromarty's Lands, is of the same Nature. 4. In Strath-Glass, in the Shire of Ross, there's a Lake in a high Ground betwixt the Tops of 2 Mountains, the middle of which Lake is continually frozen, notwithstanding the strong Reflections of the Sun from the Mountains, which melt the Sides of it. The Ground round it is constantly green, as if there were a perpetual Spring; and Cattel grow sooner fat by the Grass here than any where else. What makes it more remarkable is, that there are several other Lakes in the Neighbourhood of as high a Situation, but have no such Quality. 5. In Linlithgowshire there's one call'd Loughcoat, from whence a Stream runs under a neighbouring Mountain for about 200 Paces, and issues with so much Force from an Opening about 3 Foot broad, that the Stream turns a Water-Mill. 6. In Glen-Elg, which lies over-against the Isle of Sky, there's a Stream which turns Holley into greenish Stone; of which they make Moulds for Bullets, and Pots to melt Brass or other Metal.

By what has been said already, 'tis evident that Nature has been more bountiful to Scotland than her Neighbours do commonly think of or allow; and that the Nation is not without Materials for a very great Trade were it encourag'd.

For the Satisfaction of the Curious, and to undeceive such as have been impos'd upon by the Misrepresentations of envious or ignorant Authors, who have given extravagant Accounts of the intrinsick Poverty and Barrenness of Scotland, 'tis thought fit here to give a more particular Account, from Mr. Spruel abovemention'd, of their Trade, of Import and Export, and what Commodities they have to exchange for those of other Nations.

What they usually import from England is Woollen Manufacture of all sorts, Alum'd Leather, Shambe Gloves, Lead, Pewter, Tin, Iron, Brass, and Steel, both in Kind and Manufacture. They likewise import from England Black Cattel and Horses of the largest Size, Hops, Cyder, and, when their Harvest proves bad, Corn of all sorts, together with such Goods as the English import from China, Persia, and the East Indies, &c. They likewise imported Tobacco, Sugar, Indico, Cotton, and other West-India Goods from England; but since the Union, they import those Things themselves from the English Plantations.

The Commodities they import into England are Linen Cloth of all sorts, Coals, Salt, small Black Cattel, Sheep, and Horses; Salmon, Cod, Ling, Herring, and other Fish; Slates grey and blue; and Pearl: But have hitherto been very great Losers in the Balance.

From Ireland the Scots import sometimes large Black Cattel and Sheep, Wool and Woollen Manufacture, with some Corn and large Horses; in exchange for Linen Cloth, Coal, Salt, Herrings and other Fish; Oak, Oak-Bark, and Fir-Timber.

From Norway they import Fir-Timber and Deals, Tar, dried Fish, Oil, Copper, Oak, Wainscot, Pipe-Staves, Caraway-Seed, and sometimes Horses from Denmark; in exchange for Oatmeal and Malt, Woollen and Linen Manufactories, Salt, Beef, and Tallow.

From the Baltick they import Iron, Copper, Wire of both, great Guns, Mortars, Bullets, Fir, Timber, and Deals; in exchange for white and red Herrings, which balances all they bring from thence; so that they bring home Money for their Coal, Salt, Cod, Ling, Lead, Linen, Butter, Tallow, Tobacco, and Canary Wines.

From Narva and Riga the Scots import the best Hemp, Flax of all sorts, Knapple, Tar, Linseed, Firs, Pot-Ashes, and Train-Oil; in exchange for white and red Herring, Alum'd Leather, Gloves, Lamb-Skins, Lead, Woollen Manufactories, and fine and coarse Stockings.

They import from Dantzick and Poland, besides the same Commodities from the last mention'd Places, Steel-Kits, Tarred Ropes, Glass, Black Beer, Strong-Waters, White Pease, Rye, and other Corn; in exchange for White and Red Herring, Salt, Alum'd Leather, and Lamb-Skins.

From Holland they imported before the Union most of their Grocery Ware, and Materials for Dying, and Hops, which now they have chiefly from England; but still import from Holland, Silks, fine Linen, Toys, Spices, and Pickles of all sorts, Gun-Powder, Arms, Starch, Pot-Ashes, Soap, Ivory, Silk and Worsted Stuffs, Thred, Callicoes, Muslin, East-India Goods of all sorts, Oils, Drugs, Rigging for Ships, Flax, Hemp, Rosin, Linseed, Garden Seed, Trees, Statues, Marble, Books, Lime-Juice, Vinegar, White Wine, Rhenish, Brandy, Wainscot, Planks, fine Earthen Ware, and all sorts of Houshold Furniture; in exchange for Salmon, Herring, Coals, Wheat, Barley, Tallow, Butter, Eggs, Beef, Hides, coarse Woollen Cloth, Wool, Sheep-Skins, Serges, Fingrams, Bays, Plading, Woollen Stuffs, Worsted, Yarn, Stockings, Lead, Lead-Oar, Gloves, and Pearl.

From France they imported Wines, Brandy, Prunes, Chesnuts, Silks, Salt, Writing Paper, Hats, Gloves, and Toys; in exchange for Salmon, Herring, Cod, Coals, Lead, Wool, coarse Woollen Cloth, Stockings, Dog-Skins, Lamb-Skins, Deer-Skins, Fox-Skins, Otter-Skins, Fulmoets, Mertricks, &c.

From Spain they import Wine, Fruit, Oranges, Lemons, Salt, Raisins, and Cochineal; in exchange for Salmon, Cod-Fish, Linen of several sorts, coarse Woollen Cloth, Serges, Stockings, Candles, Tallow, Bees-Wax, Raw Hides, Beef, and Montrose Pistols.

From Naples they import Oil, Silk, Silk Stuffs, and Rice; in exchange for Red and White Herring, Salmon, Bars of Lead, Candles, Tanned Leather, and Calve-Skins.

From Gallipoly and Sicily they import Oils, Rice, Liquorice, and Juice of Liquorice; in exchange for the like Commodities as at Naples.

From Venice they import Brimstone, the finest Rice, Chrystal, Drinking-Glasses, Looking-Glasses, Cabinets, small Beads, Silk, and Silk Stuffs, Muscadine and Greek Wine, Currants, Roman scented Gloves, Venice Necklaces, and Sham Pearls; in exchange for Red Herring, dry Cod and Ling, Salmon, Lead, Candles, Bees-Wax, Logwood, Tann'd Leather, Calve-Skins, fine Stockings, Serges, Bays white and dyed.

From Cephalonia they import Currants, Greek Wine, and Rice; in exchange for the same Goods as at Venice; but mostly with the Money which they make of their Goods there.

From Barbary they import Rice, Figs, Raisins, Dates, Almonds, and Copper; in exchange for Gun-Locks, Arms, Lead, and Linen, and Woollen Manufactures.

From the Canaries they import Malvasia Wines, Green Wines, Red and White Vidonia, or Hard Wines, Pitch, fine preserv'd Fruits, Cor de Cidron, Sugar-Loaves, Orichalk, Sumach, and Logwood; in exchange for Red and White Herring, Linen, and Woollen Manufacture, salt Beef, Candles, Butter, and Lead.

From

From the Maderas they import Red and White Wines, Brandy, Brazil, Dyers-Ware, and other Commodities, as from the Canaries; in exchange for ſuch Commodites as they export to thoſe Iſlands.

From the Engliſh Weſt-Indies they import Sugar, Indico, Tobacco, Ginger, Cotton, Wool, Lime-Juice, and Rum; in exchange for ſalt Beef, Red and White Herrings, Wheat, Flower, Candles, Linen, and Woollen, &c. And they trade in like manner to Martineco, Surinam, and Curaſſaw.

From Ruſſia they import Pot-Aſhes, Train-Oil, Hemp, Timber, Tarred Ropes, Bees-Wax, Honey, Mead, Tar, Caviar, Rheubarb, Agarick, Musk, and Iſinglaſs; in exchange for Lead, Red and White Herrings, and other Fiſh.

From China they import China Ware, Silks, Stuffs, Fans, Cabinets, Screens, Copper, Gold, Musk, Camphire, China Root, Gallingal, and Quickſilver; in exchange for Lead, Iron, Woollen Cloth, and Stuffs.

As for Eaſt-India Commodities, they have little Product to anſwer that Trade, except Lead, fine Stuffs, Red and White Herrings, which, Mr. Spruel ſays, have been ſold for him there at ſix Pence apiece by way of Barter.

For the Product of Perſia, which, beſides the ſame with the Eaſt Indies, is Coral and Necklaces, the Scots exchange Broad-Cloth, Stuffs, and Lead.

From Guinea they import Gold Duſt and Elephants Teeth; in exchange for Linen and Woollen Manufactures, Knives, Sciſſors, ſmall Looking-Glaſſes, and other Toys, Strong-Waters, Beads, and Pewter-Diſhes. He ſuppoſes that Glaſgow Plads and Blue Bonnets might be a good Commodity there and in the Eaſt Indies.

For the Product of the Negro Coaſt, viz. Negroes, Elephants Teeth, Bees-Wax, and Gum-Arabick, they have to exchange, Wampumpeg, or fine Shells found in great Quantities on the Coaſts of the Iſles, coarſe white Linen, and Fingrams, Toys, Strong-Waters, and Pewter-Diſhes.

Mr. Spruel ſays, indeed, That he does not ſuppoſe the Product of Scotland ſufficient to trade to all thoſe Places without Money; but ſays, 'tis ſufficient to procure Money for a Trade to ſuch of thoſe Places as is neceſſary. Nor does he, on the other hand, ſuppoſe that the Scots can have nothing in thoſe Places but the Commodities of the reſpective Countries in exchange for their own; becauſe, from many of them the Scots bring home Gold and Money for their own Product.

We have been the larger on the natural Hiſtory of this Country, becauſe there are more Helps for that Part, than for its Geography, there having been nothing conſiderable done in that Nature, but ſome brief Sketches by Buchanan and Leſley, &c. in the Beginning of their Hiſtories, a ſhort Account of it by Camden, and what is in Bleau's Atlas. The latter was indeed a noble Deſign, and chiefly promoted by Sir John Scot of Scots-Tarbat, one of the Scots Judges, a Gentleman of great Learning and publick Spirit: But being undertaken in the Time of the Civil Wars, he could not complete his Informations from every Part of the Nation; ſo that tho it be much the beſt Account of Scotland, 'tis ſtill very defective. Mr. Adair, a very able Man, and Geographer for Scotland, was encourag'd by Act of Parliament to ſurvey that Country, but did not live to perform it; ſo that he only left a Survey of part of the Coaſts. Theſe being the chief Materials we have for Scotland, 'tis not to be expected that we can be ſo particular as we have been in England, tho we have taken care to get the beſt Information that the Time allotted could allow us.

'Tis needleſs to inſiſt on an Account of the People, ſince 'tis generally known that they are divided into Highlanders and Lowlanders. The former are the Poſterity of thoſe who firſt came to Scotland from Ireland, and ſtill retain the antient Language in greater Purity than the Iriſh, becauſe they were never mix'd with any other People, as the Iriſh have been. The Language in the Lowlands is the ſame with that of England, but has more of the Saxon Idiom and Pronunciation, and is now ſpoke in much the greateſt part of the Nation. The ſpreading of it in Scotland was occaſion'd, Firſt, By the Saxon Auxiliaries, frequently ſent to aſſiſt the Picts againſt the Scots, which occaſion'd many Saxons to ſettle in the Lowlands, moſt of which was then poſſeſs'd by the Picts. Secondly, By the laſt conſiderable Efforts made by the Picts, in conjunction with the Engliſh, to recover their Country, in the Reign of Donald V. of Scotland, about 855, when the Scots, who had defeated the Engliſh and Picts in Teviotdale, march'd down towards Berwick, and being too ſecure, were ſurpriz'd in their Camp by Night, the King taken, and many of the Nobles kill'd. The Engliſh improving this Victory, oblig'd Donald, for the ſake of his Liberty, to quit all the Country as far as Stirling, where they ſettled Saxon Colonies, and poſſeſs'd it till about 875, when Gregory the Great of Scotland recover'd the Country. And the Scottiſh Proprietors of the Eſtates willingly ſuffer'd the Saxon Husbandmen, &c. to continue in their Lands; which they readily agreed to becauſe England was at that Time infeſted by the Danes, and the Saxons were more willing to be under the Dominion of the Scots, who were Chriſtians, than under the Pagan Danes. Thirdly, Great Numbers of the Engliſh came into Scotland to aſſiſt King Malcolm III. againſt the Uſurper Macbeth, who being defeated, Malcolm rewarded the Engliſh with Lands in Scotland. Fourthly, A great many Engliſh came into Scotland after the Norman Conqueſt with Edgar Atheling and his Siſter Margaret, who being married by Malcolm, and proving an excellent Lady, the Engliſh became the common Language of the Court, and has ever ſince gain'd Ground upon the old Scots Language, which is now confin'd to the Highlands and Iſles, where moſt of thoſe of Note do alſo ſpeak Engliſh.

In Schetland, and ſome other of the Northern Iſlands, which were long poſſeſs'd by the Danes, they ſpeak a Dialect of the old Gothick.

We need not inſiſt on the Religion of Scotland, becauſe the Doctrine of the Eſtabliſh'd Church there is the ſame with the Doctrinal Articles of the Church of England: But their Church-Government is Preſbyterian, and they uſe none of the Engliſh Ceremonies, except in ſome Meeting-Houſes ſet up by the Epiſcopal Clergy.

In the Geography of Scotland, we ſhall not meddle with the obſolete Diviſions of this Country mention'd by Camden, but deſcribe the ſeveral Counties as they are named in the Acts of Parliament, and according to Buchanan's Method begin with thoſe on the Borders.

I. The Shire of Berwick, alias the Mers, or March.

'TWAS called the Mers, becauſe a bordering County; but in Law-Writings is nam'd the Shire of Berwick, which was its chief Town before taken by the Engliſh. This Shire is bounded by Tweed and Teviotdale on the S. by Lothian on the N. by the Sea on the E. and by Tweddale on the W. 'Tis, including that Part call'd Lauderdale, 30 Engliſh m. E. and W. and 22 where broadeſt S. and N. 'Tis very fruitful in Corn and Graſs, abounds with Sheep, Black Cattel, and Horſes; and has many Seats of Perſons of Quality, with handſome Plantations and Gardens about many of their Houſes. Thoſe Parts of it which lie on the Tweed, and the leſſer Rivers Whitewater, Blackwater, and the Eye, are the moſt fruitful and populous. Their own Fuel is chiefly Turf and Peats; but the Gentry have Coals from Northumberland. The Inhabitants were always accounted warlike, and more civiliz'd than the other Border-Counties, becauſe of the many Barons that liv'd among them. It ſends one Memb. to the Parl. of Great Britain, as it did four formerly to that of Scotland; has 2 Presbyteries, about 35 Pariſh-Churches, and is well ſupplied with Fiſh from the Sea and Rivers.

That Part of it call'd Lauderdale lies pleaſantly on both ſides the R. Lauder; has pleaſant Valleys, green Hills, ſome Woods, ſtore of Corn and Paſture. In this Part is the Regality of Thirlſtan, belonging to the E. of Lauderdale; and the Commiſſariot-Court for Teſtamentary Cauſes, &c. ſits at Lauder. That Part E. of Lauderdale, call'd Lammer-Moor, is a large Tract of Hills, about 16 m. long, and above 6 broad, which feeds Multitudes of Sheep, and many Black Cattel. It has ſeveral Gentlemens Seats, and ſmall Rivers and Woods, furniſhes Peat and Turf for Fuel, and affords good Game for Partridges, Moor-Fowls, and Plover. There's a particular Fowl in this Country call'd Dotterels, which are excellent Meat. The Earls of Hume were formerly Hereditary Sheriffs of this County; but the Office is now poſſeſs'd by the Earl of Marchmont, a Branch of that Family.

Places of chief Note are, 1. Duns, 9 m. N. W. of Berwick, and 34 S. E. of Edinburgh. It has a good Market on Wedneſd. for Corn and Cattel, and a great Fair on Trinity-Monday for Corn, Cattel, Linen Cloth, coarſe Woollen, &c. 'Tis pretty large and populous, has a handſome Caſtle and Pariſh-Church, and was formerly the Place where the Courts of Juſtice were kept for the Shire. 'Tis remarkable for the Birth of the famous Schoolman Johannes Duns-Scotus, there having been ſome of the ſame Family not long ago in the Town, if not there ſtill. It was remarkable for the Encampment of the Scots Army on a neighbouring Mountain call'd Duns-Law, when King Charles I. march'd with an Engliſh Army to the Borders, to oblige the Scots to receive the Engliſh Liturgy and Ceremonies. It is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 11 Pariſhes. And about a m. W. is Lamton, where the Chief of the Cockburns has a fine Seat, and Parks. 2. Greenlaw, 4 m. W. is a Market-Town, and the Place where the Sheriffs Courts have been kept ſince the Revolution; the Earl of Marchmont, who has a noble Seat in the Neighbourhood, having obtain'd that Privilege for them. 3. Eymouth, 5 m. N. from Berwick, and 47 S. E. of Edinburgh, has a Weekly Market, a Harbour for Ships at the Mouth of the Eye; had antiently a Fort, to be a Curb upon Berwick, and gives Title of Baron to the Duke of Marlborough. 4. Eyton, a m. further W. on the ſame R. over which it has a Bridge, is a large pleaſant Village, has a Seat belonging to the Family of Hume, and an annual Fair. 5. Coldingam, 4 m. N. of Eyton, near the Coaſt, famous for an antient Abbey of noble Architecture, the Remains of which are us'd as a Pariſh-Church. Ebba, the Lady Abbeſs, at the Time of a Daniſh Invaſion, ſlit her own Noſe, and perſuaded all her Nuns to do the like, that their Deformity might ſave them from being debauch'd by the Danes. For this ſhe was made a Saint; and a neighbouring Promontory is from her called St. Ebbſhead. It was noted for a very ſtrong Fortification, call'd Faſt-Caſtle, belonging to the Family of Hume, but now demoliſh'd. 6. Chirnſide, 4 m. S. W. of Eyton, is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 14 Pariſhes. 7. Hume-Caſtle, 5 m. S. W. of Duns, was a ſtately and ſtrong Fortification, and the chief Reſidence of the antient and noble Family of Hume, who took their Sirname from it. 'Twas demoliſh'd by the Engliſh in Oliver's Time. The chief Reſidence of that Family is now at Hirſel, near Coldſtream. 8. Coldſtream, a Market-Town, on the Bank of the Tweed, 8 m. S. W. of Berwick, noted antiently for a Monaſtery. 9. Erſiltown, on the River Leoder, is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 10 Pariſhes. 'Tis noted for the Birth of Thomas Learmont, commonly called the Rhymer, about 1290. His Prophecies were as much eſteem'd by the Vulgar Scots, as thoſe of Merlin by the Engliſh. He is ſaid to have foretold the Union of the Crowns. 10. Lauder, on River of the ſame Name, an antient Borough, and the Capital of Lauderdale. 'Tis a Market-Town, 20 m. S. E. of Edinburgh, ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with four others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. There's a ſtately Seat in the Neighbourhood, that belongs to the Earl of Lauderdale, the Chief of the antient and noble Family of Maitland. 11. Preſton, 2 m. N. from Duns, has an annual Fair, and a fine Houſe belonging to the Duke of Douglaſs, who is Lord of the Regality, and of the Foreſt of Dye. 12. Gordon, 2 m. N. W. from Hume, a large Village, with another in the Neighbourhood, called Weſt Gordon, which with the Barony give Sirname and Title of Duke to the Chief of the great and antient Family of Gordon. 13. Cockburnſpath, 8 m. N. E. from Duns, near the Coaſt, has an annual Fair, is the next Poſt-Stage to Berwick, from which 'tis 14 m. N. W. has a Gentleman's Seat with a fine Plantation, and is noted for lying betwixt 2 ſtrong Paſſes, called Eaſt and Weſt Paths, which, when fortified, were a great Annoyance to the Engliſh during their Wars with Scotland, and were like to have prov'd fatal to Oliver, had he not ſurpriz'd and defeated Charles II's Army at Dunbar; theſe Paſſes being guarded to cut off Oliver's Retreat. This Place is alſo noted for a great Herring-Fiſhing ſometimes on the Coaſt.

This Shire gave Title of Earl to the antient Family of Dumbar, who were very great Men, and Camden says, descended from Gospatrick, the famous E. of Northumberland, who retir'd into Scotland upon the Norman Conquest, and was honoured with the Castle of Dumbar, and Earldom of March, by Malcolm III. From hence his Family took the Sirname of Dumbar; and a Branch of it being possessed of the Castle and Barony of Hume, took that for Sirname. 'Twas then when that Custom began in Scotland for Gentlemen to take their Sirnames from their Estates; and hence came those Families call'd, Of that Ilk, i. e. whose Sirname and paternal Estate are the same. There are many such in Scotland, and 'tis generally looked upon as a Mark of Antiquity; but as it savour'd of Vanity, it was also attended with this Inconveniency, that it lost the Memory of the common Family from whence those Gentlemen descended, so that they came to be thought different: Thus it happen'd to the Dumbars and Humes, tho originally the same Family. In like manner it happen'd to the Gordons, Swintons, Ridpaths, Nisbets, who were likewise of the same Original: so that the Knowledge of those things must have been lost, had it not been for Tradition, and the Armorial Bearings of the Families, which shew'd them to be of the same Descent. This may serve, once for all, to account for that kind of Sirnames. Others of the like nature here, are the Cockburns, Spotswoods, Wedderburns, Blacaders, Remons, Manderstons, Polwarts, and Duns, &c. but many of 'em now decay'd. The Shire now gives Title of Earl of March to a Branch of the Family of Queensbury.

II. The Shire of Roxburgh, alias Teviotdale,

HAS the Mers and Part of Selkirk on the N. Northumberland on the E. Liddesdale, Part of Selkirk, and Annandale on the W. and Part of Northumberland and Cumberland on the S. The Name comes from the R. Teviot, which runs through it. Teviotdale, properly so called, is, according to Pont's Map, 26 m. E. and W. and 17 S. and N. Liddesdale, which belongs to its Jurisdiction, is, by his Map, 26 m. long, and 12 broad; and he makes Eusdale and Eskdale, which are likewise under its Jurisdiction, 17 m. long, and 12 broad. 'Tis called in Law-Writings, the Shire of Roxburgh, from the antient Borough of the same Name, with a noble Castle now demolish'd, and the Town reduc'd to a Village. This Shire abounds with Corn, Pasturage, Sheep, Black-Cattle, and Horses: The Cattle are large, and the Corn good. They have plenty of Free and Lime Stone, many green Mountains, and some of them of a remarkable Height. The Inhabitants have in all Ages been accounted warlike, and joining to England on dry Marches, had frequent Occasions to exercise their Valour, and with its neighbouring Shire of the Mers, could raise 10000 Horse in 24 Hours time. Here are many antient Families and Gentlemens Seats, which before the Union of the Crowns were generally built Castle-wise. The great Family of Douglass had formerly large Possessions here, and the Regality of Jedburgh Forest still belongs to the Duke. Here are some other Branches of that Family, among whom that of Cavers is Hereditary Sheriff of the County, and have in their House the Standard of the brave Ld Douglass, who was killed at the Battel of Otterburn, where he contributed most to the Victory over Piercy E. of Northumberland and his Sons, which gave occasion to the fabulous Ballad of Chevy Chace. The chief Families who have now the largest Estates in this County, are the Scots and Kers, both antient and warlike Families. The Dutch. of Buccleugh and Monmouth is chief of the Scots, has a great Estate here, and there are many other Gentlemen of that Name in the Shire. Here are 2 great Families of the Kers; the D. of Roxburgh descended from the antient and warlike Family of Cesford, and the Marq. of Lothian from the antient and valiant Family of Farniherst: They have both great Estates in this County; and here are many other Gentlemen of Note of the same Name. The Riddals, Elliots, and Turnbulls are also antient Families in this Shire. It sends 1 Memb. to Parl. but sent 4 to that of Scotland; has 2 Presbyteries, to which belong 25 Parishes, and with the Mers makes up a Provincial Synod of 6 Presbyteries and 71 Parishes.

Places of chief Note are, 1. Jedburgh, 33 m. S. E. from Edinburgh, and 25 m. S. W. of Berwick; a Royal Borough on the R. Jed, has a good Market for Corn and Cattel, and an annual Fair. It is pretty large and populous, sent formerly a Memb. to Parl. and now joins with four more in sending one. Here's a handsom Church, and Town Hall where the Sheriff keeps his Courts; but the Regality of its Forest belongs to the D. of Douglass, whose Ancestor having defeated the English here, and wreath'd them in that they might not escape, had that noble Compartiment added to their Arms, of a Pale of Wood wreath'd in. Several Persons of Quality have Seats in the Neighbourhood. 2. Kelso, on the R. Tweed, about 6 m. N. E. of Jedburgh, and 32 S. E. of Edinburgh; is a large Borough, pleasantly situate, has a very good Market, the best Trade in that part of the Country, a large square Market-Place, with handsom Houses round it, and the Remains of an antient Abbey which makes a large handsome Parish-Church. The D. of Roxburgh is Lord of the Town, in which he has a House, and a noble Seat called Fleurs, with Gardens pleasantly situate near the Banks of the Tweed. A little W. of the Town, the R. Teviot falls into the Tweed over against Kelso; and on both sides the R. there are fine Seats and Gardens of Persons of Quality, which add very much to the Delightfulness of the Town. The Ruins of the antient Castle of Roxburgh lie a m. N. W. from Kelso. 3. Hawick, 8 m. S. W. of Jedburgh, and 33 S. E. from Edinburgh, a Market on the Teviot, the Regality of which belongs to the Dutchess of Buccleugh. Here's a handsom Parish-Church and Tower. Branxholm, the antient Seat of the Family of Buccleugh, lies in the Neighbourhood. 4. Melross, 6 m. N. W. of Kelso, famous for the Ruins of one of the finest Abbeys in Britain. It was the usual Sepulchre of the great Family of Douglass. The Monks of this Abbey wrote a History of Scots and English Affairs. The Abbey being sometime in the hands of the Saxons, it occasioned not only a Diversity but Contradiction betwixt the English and Scots Manuscripts of that History. The Scots say theirs is genuine, and the English History interpolated by one who was quite ignorant of Scots Affairs; for Instances of which we refer to Dr. Nicholson's Scots Historical Library. The Town and Monastery lie on the Bank of the Tweed, and the Regality of it belongs to the E. of Haddington. 5. Dryburgh, 2 m. N. E. upon the Tweed, has also the Ruins of another stately Monastery.

The chief Place of Note in the S. W. Parts of this Shire, is the Ruins of the antient and strong Castle of Hermitage in Liddesdale.

The Armstrongs, Elliots, Irwins, Bells, Carlisles, Johnstons, Jordans, Moffats, Caruthers, Latimers, Nixons, Crosers, Littles, Thomsons, Glendunnings, and Beatisons had considerable Interest in those Parts; but the chief Proprietor now is the Family of Buccleugh, the chief of the Name of Scot.

On the Borders lie those called the Debatable Lands, formerly claimed by the Borderers of each Nation, but after the Union of the Crowns, were adjudged to the Scots by K. James VI.

In Eskdale, which lies W. from Nithisdale, and is part of the same County, is Langhom, a Market-Town and a Castle. Here are several Gentlemens Seats, one of the chief of which is Westerhall, belonging to a Branch of the antient Family of Johnstoun, 5 m. N. W. of Langhom.

III. The Shire of Selkirk, alias Ettrick-Forest.

THIS so called from the R. Ettrick; that runs through it, Pont in his Map makes it about 22 m. E. and W. and about 10 where broadest from S. to N. The County is mountainous and woody, and had formerly large Royal Forests well stocked with Deer and other Game. Here are great Flocks of Sheep and Black Cattel, and the Valleys on the Rivers produce Corn and Hay. It sent 2 Memb. to the Scots Parl. formerly, and now sends but one to that of Great Britain.

The chief Towns are, 1. Selkirk, on the Bank of the R. Ettrick, 27 m. S. E. from Edinburgh, and 15 m. N. W. from Kelso. 'Tis an antient Borough, formerly sent a Member to the Scots Parliament, and now joins with three others in sending one to that of Great Britain. It has a weekly Market, a handsom Parish-Church, is the Place where the Sheriff keeps his Courts, and the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 11 Parishes. The chief Manufacture is Shoes and Boots. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the noble Family of Hamilton. On the other side the R. lies Philiphaugh, noted for the Defeat of the Marq. of Montrose in K. Charles I's time, and for giving Title to a very antient Branch of the Family of Murray, who is the Hereditary Sheriff of this County. 2 Gallashiels, on the small R. of Galla, 23 m. S. E. of Edinburgh, about 4 m. N. E. of Selkirk, has a weekly Market for Corn and Cattel. There are several Gentlemens Seats in this County; particularly Newark, in a pleasant Valley, on the small R. Yarrow, which formerly belong'd to the Crown, but now to the Ld Elibank. The chief Families here, are the Murrays, Pringles, Scots, and Kers.

Mr. Achinson, in a Manuscript Treatise of the Metals of Scotland, says, that in Glangeber-Water, in this County, and other Places, there were Pieces of Gold found in the Shape of Birds Eyes and Eggs.

IV. Tweddale, alias the Shire of Peebles,

HAS Lothian on the N. Selkirk on the S. Mers on the E. and Clydsdale on the W. 'Tis about 28 m. where longest, and 18 where broadest. 'Tis called Tweddale, because the R. Tweed runs thro it. The Air is clear and temperate, the Soil for the most part mountainous, but yields good Pasture, most of the Hills being green; and the Valleys and Plains have Plenty of Corn and Grass. The Sheep of this Country live till 15 Years old, their Wool is extraordinary good, and their Meat excellent. The chief Product is Sheep, Black-Cattel, Wool, Milk, Cheese, and Butter. Their Fuel is Turf and Coal. In their Mountains there are many Deer; and here are Birds call'd Francolins, with white Spots, that have a delicious Taste.

The chief Mountain is Braidalb, with a Plain at Top, from whence one may see the Seas on both sides the Island. Here's Plenty of Lime-Stone, and in short of all Necessaries for Life. They are well supplied with Salmon and other Fish, by Lakes and Rivers. The chief Lakes are those called the Easter and Wester Lochs of Lowis. The R. Yarrow, and several others, run into the E. Lake; so that it abounds so much with R. Fish and Eels, that when a W. Wind blows, they come out in such Shoals into the R. Yarrow, that they sometimes overturn the People that go to catch them. Such vast Numbers are taken by Nets and Baskets, as yield the Inhabitants great Profit. There's another call'd Loch-Genen, on the Top of Genen-Mountain, which falls into Annandale from a Precipice of 250 Paces high, so that Fish are many times kill'd by the Fall. This Shire gives Title of Marquiss to a Branch of the noble and antient Family of Hay. It formerly sent 2 Memb. to Parl. and now but 1.

The only Town of Note in this County, is Peebles, 22 m. S. from Edinburgh, and about 18 m. N. W. of Selkirk. It lies pleasantly betwixt the Tweed, and a R. of its own Name, and is remarkable for 3 Churches, 3 Gates, 3 Streets, and 3 Bridges; that over the Tweed has 5 Arches. Here's a handsom Parish-Church and a weekly Market. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 17 Parishes. This Town sent a Memb. to the Scots Parl. but now joins with 3 others in sending ſending one to that of Great Britain. There are many Noblemens and Gentlemens Seats in this County, which we have not room to inſiſt upon. The chief Families are the Hays, Douglaſſes, Nisbets, Vetches, Naiſmiths, Stuarts; but the chief Proprietors formerly were the Frazers, Anceſtors by the Mother's Side to the Family of Tweddale. Simon Frazer, who defeated 3 Engliſh Armies in one Day near Roſlin in Lothian, Anno 1311. was then the greateſt Man in this Shire.

V. The Shire of Dumfries or Nithiſdale.

'TIS divided from England on the S. by the R. Esk and Solway Frith, has Teviotdale on the E. Galloway on the W. Kyle on N. W. and Clydſdale and Tweddale on the N. 'Tis divided into Annandale and Nithiſdale. The greateſt Length from N. W. to S. E. is about 35 m. and the greateſt Breadth S. and N. about 34. It ſent formerly 4 Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now but 1 to that of Great Britain.

Annandale, the E. Part of the Shire, has its Name from the River Annan, which runs thro its Middle, and falls into Solway Frith. 'Tis a Stewartry, of which the Marq. of Annandale, Chief of the antient and warlike Family of the Johnſtouns, is Hereditary Steward. It was the antient Patrimony of the Family of Bruce, and given to them by Edgar K. of Scots for their aſſiſting him againſt the Uſurper Donald VI. From this Family deſcended the famous Robert Bruce, who was K. of Scotland, whoſe Male-Iſſue failing, this Country came into other hands, and the Stewardſhip was confer'd upon the Family of Johnſtoun for their eminent Service againſt the Engliſh, and ſuch Rebels as join'd them, and for ſuppreſſing Theft in the Borders: Hence this Family took for their Device a winged Spur, to denote their Diligence, and for their Motto, Alight Thieves all, to ſignify their Authority to command them to ſurrender. This Stewartry abounds with Paſturage, has pleaſant Woods and fruitful Valleys. The Inhabitants of this and the Neighbouring Dales or Valleys, were always reckoned warlike, and, with the Engliſh Borders, were ſo much given to Incurſions upon each other, that they could ſcarce be reſtrained from it in time of Truce or Peace, nor even a good while after the Union of the two Crowns. This occaſion'd thoſe Border-Laws, of which Dr. Nicholſon publiſhed a particular Account ſome Years ago. Bp Leſley in his Hiſtory ſays that thoſe Borderers were ſo diligent and dextrous in purſuit of their Prey, that they would travel thro ſuch Waſtes and over ſuch Precipices by night, as others would ſcarce venture on by day; during which 'twas cuſtomary for them to lurk ſo that 'twas ſcarce poſſible to find them out, and recover the Booty, except by Slouth-Hounds, which follow'd them by their Scent; and when at any time apprehended, they were naturally ſo eloquent, that if they could not obtain Pardon from the Judges they would, at leaſt move them to Compaſſion. In order to reſtrain Depredations on both ſides, during a Peace or Truce, it was provided by the Border-Laws, That whoever ſtopped Slouth-Hounds, when employ'd in the Scent, ſhould be held guilty.

The chief Places of this Stewartry, are, 1. The Town and Caſtle of Annan, near the Mouth of the R. of that Name, where it falls into Solway Frith, about 22 m. N. W. of Carliſle, and 50 S. from Edinburgh. 'Tis an antient Borough, but ſuffered ſo much by the Wars with England in the Reign of Edward VI. that it has never ſince recovered. It has a weekly Market, a Harbour for Veſſels, a handſom Bridge over the R. a good Salmon-Fiſhing, and formerly ſent a Memb. to Parl. but now joins with 4 others in ſending one. About a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. W. lies Newbay Caſtle and Park, the Seat of the Marq. of Annandale. 2. Lochmaben, about 4 m. N. W. is likewiſe an antient Borough, which had a ſtrong Caſtle almoſt ſurrounded with a Lake that abounds with Fiſh, and one ſort found no where elſe. It formerly belonged to the Family of Bruce, but is much decay'd, and the Caſtle ruinous. It ſent a Memb. to Parl. but now joins with 4 others in ſending one. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 15 Pariſhes. 3. Moffat, about 21 m. N. from Annan, and 37 m. S. of Edinburgh, is remarkable for its medicinal Wells, already mentioned in the General Hiſtory of the Country, and has a weekly Market.

At a Place called Rivell, in this Stewartry, over againſt the Borders of England, the People have a way of heaping up the Sea-Sand, and boiling it, make very good Salt, but of a bitteriſh Taſte, which is ſuppoſed to proceed from Nitre. Middleby, about 5 m. N. E. of Annan, is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 12 Pariſhes.

Nithiſdale, the W. Part of the Shire, is encompaſs'd with a Ridge of Hills, has very fruitful Valleys, and abounds with Corn and Paſture. It has the Name from the R. Nith, which runs thro it, and falls into Solway Frith. This R. is remarkable for its clear Water and good Salmon and other Fiſh. Here were formerly noble Foreſts and Woods, but now much exhauſted. Pieces of natural Gold have after great Rains been found in Brooks in Robburt-Moor and Maunock-Moor, in this County. This Country gave Title of E. to the chief of the antient and noble Family of Maxwell, forfeited for taking Arms againſt K. George.

Places of chief Note are, 1. Dumfries, on the S. Side of the R. Nith, about 15 m. W. of Annan, and 57. S. W. of Edinburgh. 'Tis a large, pleaſant, and flouriſhing Town, Capital of the Shire, has 4 Gates and a good Trade, which is advanced by the Tides flowing up the R. about 6. m. and brings ſmall Veſſels to the Bridge which is built of hewn Stone, of good Architecture, and has 9 Arches, with a Gate in the Middle, that divides betwixt Nithiſdale and Galloway. There's a Harbour for Ships of the largeſt Size at Kelton, 4 m. below the Town. Here's a good Salmon-Fiſhing, a handſom Town-Houſe, an Exchange for Merchants. The Market-place is large, with a noble Croſs, and the Streets are broad. Here's a Market on Wedneſd. for Cattle, &c. the beſt in the South of Scotland, and great Fairs for Cattle, &c. on Candlemas, Rood, and Martinmas Days, which hold a Week each. Here was formerly a good woollen Manufacture, and an antient ſtately Caſtle now in Ruins. The Inhabitants are very civil, induſtrious, and have always been noted for Valour. They made a noble Stand againſt thoſe who took Arms for the Pretender, under the late Viſc. Kenmure, &c. Here's a large Church, noted for the Death of J. Cummin, Ld Badenoch, who was ſtabbed in it by K. Rob. Bruce, whoſe Rival he was, and betray'd his Secrets to K. Edw. I. of England. The Inhabitants are ſo much encreaſed in number, that they are about building another Church. The Town gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the antient Family of Crichton, is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 18 Pariſhes, and the Place where the Provincial Synod meets. It formerly ſent a Memb. to Parl. but now joins with 4 others in ſending one. That called Bridge-End, over againſt Dumfries, on the other ſide the R. is a Regality which belong'd to the Family of Nithſdale, before their Forfeiture by the late Rebellion. Beyond the Nith, about 1 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. of Dumfries, is the College of Lincluden, formerly a magnificent Collegiate Church, as appears by its Ruins and curious Architecture. The People have a Tradition that there was a ſubterranean Paſſage from the Monaſtery here, under ground, to New Abbey, 6 m. diſtant. Near this Place there's a Bridge over the R. Cluden, which is remarkable for Salmon-Fiſhing, and has ſeveral Cataracts called Salmon-Leaps, over which thoſe Fiſh ſpring againſt the Stream, by taking their Tails in their Teeth, and then unbending themſelves. Cluden Lake, in the Neighbourhood, is about a m. round, has ſeveral ſorts of Fiſh, and runs into the R. Nith. 2. Carlaverock, 4 m. S. of Dumfries, formerly a ſtrong noble Caſtle, now a Seat that belong'd to the E. of Nithſdale before his Forfeiture. 3. Tirreglis, 4 m. N. E of Dumfries, is another fine Seat which belong'd to that Family. 4. Holywood, 3 m. N. of Dumfries, noted antiently for an Abbey, the Ruins of which make a handſom Church. This was the Birth-place of the famous Aſtrologer, from hence called Johannes de Sacro Boſco. Many Gentlemen of the Name of Maxwell have Seats in this Pariſh 5. Thornhill, a Market-Town, 11 m. N. of Dumfries. 6. Glencairn, a Market-Town, 11 m. N. W. of Dumfries, and 56 S. W. of Edinburgh, gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the antient Family of Cunningham. 7. Lochyr, a Lake, 4 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. of Dumfries; 'tis 10 m. long, and 3 broad, and furniſhes the Country with Peat. A River of the ſame Name runs thro the Lake, which has fine Meadows on each ſide; and in the Channel of this R. there's an Iſland, which had formerly an impregnable Fort, and has ſtill a handſom Seat. 8. Drumlanerk, 13 m. N. E. of Dumfries, and 52 m. S. W. from Edinburgh, has a weekly Market, and gives Title of Earl to the D. of Queensbury, who has a large and ſtately Palace here, with 28 Turrets, noble Avenues, Gardens, and Terraſs-walks. It had formely a large Foreſt of Oaks, but now cut down. 9. Sanquhar, 4 m. N. W. of Drumlanerk, and 47 m. S. W. of Edinburgh, has a Caſtle and Market, and gives Title of Lord to the D. of Queensbury. 10. Penpont, on the R. Nith, 2 m. S. E. of Drumlanerk, is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 11 Pariſhes.

The 4 Presbyteries in this Shire make up the Provincial Synod of Dumfries, and have under them 54 Pariſhes. The D. of Queensbury is Hereditary Sheriff. Here are many other Gentlemens Seats in this County, which we can't inſiſt upon.

GALLOWAY,

HAS Nithſdale on the E. the Firth of Clyde, Carrick, and Part of Kyle on the N. and the Sea on the W. and S. is about 70 m. where longeſt E. and W. and 29 where broadeſt S. and N. Is divided into two Shires, called Upper and Nether. The Name is derived by ſome from the Gauls, its antient Inhabitants. According to Buchanan, it had that Name from the Iriſh who came to aſſiſt the Scots againſt the Britons and Romans, the Word in the old Scots or Iriſh ſignifying a Gaul; the antient Scots and Iriſh being originally Gauls; and the Scots Iſlanders, according to that learned Author, ſtill ſpeak the antient Gauliſh Language, with a little Variation. This Country abounds with Hills, and in moſt Places is fitter for Paſture than Corn; yet in the Valleys they have very good Corn, and their Oats in particular are much eſteemed. The Climate is healthful, and the Inhabitants generally vigorous, well-ſhap'd, and warlike, having been noted always for their Valour. They had formerly Princes of their own, who were at laſt reduced by Malcolm K. of Scotland, and contented themſelves with the Title of Lords, and ſeveral of them were Conſtables of Scotland. It now gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the great and antient Family of Stuart. The Country abounds with Sheep, which bear very good Wool, and great numbers of ſmall ſprightly Horſes, called Galloways. They have alſo great Herds of Black-Cattel, and the Seas, Rivers, and Lakes abound with Fiſh, and particularly their Lakes have abundance of Eels of an excellent Taſte. The Inhabitants catch vaſt numbers of them about the autumnal Equinox, and make great Profit of them, as they do of their Sheep, Horſes, and Black Cattle. Its principal Rivers are the Ur, Dee, Ken, Cree, and Loſſe, which all run into the Iriſh Sea, and abound with excellent Salmon, as do alſo their leſſer Rs. The Dee riſes in the N. Parts of the Country, runs thro a Lake of its own Name, and after a Courſe of about 25 m. and receiving ſeveral other Rs. falls into the Sea below Kirkudbright. This R. is moſt noted for Salmon of any in the Country. The Ken riſes near the Borders of Kyle, runs thro a Valley of its own Name, receives many ſmaller Rs. forms a great Lake called Loch Ken, and after a Courſe of about 17 m. falls into the Dee. This Lake and R. are alſo noted for a great Salmon-fiſhing. The Ur, or Or, riſes from a Lake of its own Name in the Borders of Nithſdale, is alſo noted for Salmon, and after a Courſe of 16 m. falls into the Sea. The Cree riſes on the Borders of Carrick, and after receiving ſeveral other Rs. forms a Lake of its own Name, and after a Courſe of about 16 m. falls into

Wigton

Wigton Bay. The River and Lake are alſo noted for Salmon-fiſhing. That Part of the Country W. of the R. Loſſe, is called Rine, and is a ſort of Iſthmus which joins that called the Mule of Galloway to the reſt of the Country. There is a large Bay on each ſide this Iſthmus; that on the N. Side runs about 8 m. into the Country, is about 4 m. where broadeſt, is called Loch Rian, and abounds with Herrings and other Fiſh: That on the S. Side, called the Bay of Glenluce, runs about 17 m. up into the Country, is about 12 m. broad at the Mouth, and above 6 at the N. End, has ſeveral Iſlands, and abounds with Herring and other Fiſh. Glenluce Abbey and Town, which gives Name to the Bay, lies a m. ½ N. of it, and has a weekly Market. W. from this Iſthmus, on thoſe Bays, lies that properly call'd the Rine of Galloway: 'Tis about 21 m. long, runs into the Sea in form of a Promontory, both on the N. and S. and the greateſt Breadth is about 4 m. There's a Cape at the S. End, commonly called, the Mule of Galloway, and by Ptolemy, Novantum.

VI. The Shire of Wigton, or that called Upper Galloway,

LIES betwixt the R. Cree on the E. and the Iriſh Sea on the W. and contains the Regality of Glenluce. 'Tis about 24 m. from E. to W. and 24 S. and N. but is much indented by Loch Rian and the Bay of Glenluce on the N. and S. Sides. The antient Family of Agnew has the hereditary Sheriffalty of this County.

Places of Note here are, 1. Port Patrick, 109 m. S. W. from Edinburgh, on the Coaſt of that called the Rine of Galloway, and is the uſual Place where People embark for Ireland. It has a good ſafe Harbour and a weekly Market. There are ſeveral other good Harbours on this Coaſt, as Neſſock, Port Moulin, &c. of which we have no Deſcription. 2. Dunskay-Caſtle, about a m. S. from Port Patrick, lies on a Rock which runs out into the Sea, and belongs to the Family of Adair. 3. Stranrawer, at the bottom of Lochrian, 5 m. N. E. of Port Patrick, and 105 S. W of Edinburgh. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to Parl. and now joins with three more in ſending one. It has a Harbour for Ships, a weekly Market, and is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 11 Pariſhes. There are ſeveral Caſtles and Gentlemens Seats in that Part of the County called the Rine, of which we have no Deſcription. 4. Lochrian, 4 m. N. E. of Stranrawer; a fine new Seat belonging to Col. Agnew. 5. Caſtle Kennedy, 3 m. ½ E. of Stranrawer; is a good Seat, with a fine Plantation of Trees, and a weekly Market. It lies betwixt 2 Lakes, each of which has an Iſland well planted with Trees, and ſome Houſes. 6. Glenluce, which gives Name to the neighbouring Bay, lies upon a R. that falls into it, is a Borough of Regality that belongs to the E. of Stair, has a weekly Market, and was formerly noted for a great Abbey. 7. Wigtown, the Capital of the County, lies on a Bay of its own Name, 11 m. long, and 11 m. broad at the Mouth, near the Mouth of a R. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now joins with three more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. It has a weekly Market, is the Place where the Sheriff holds his Courts, and the Seat of a Presbytery, conſiſting of 10 Pariſhes. It gives Title of Earl to the chief of the noble and antient Family of Fleming. 8. Baldun, over againſt Wigton, on the other ſide the R. is a noble Seat belonging to a Branch of the Family of Hamilton. 9. Barnbarrow-Caſtle, 2 m. ½ S. W. of Wigtown, is a fine Seat, with a good Plantation of Trees. 10. Withern, or the antient Candida Caſa, lies on the Bank of a Bay, 6 m. S. W. of Wigtown. It has a weekly Market, had formerly a noble Priory, and gave Title to the Bp of Galloway. 'Tis a Royal Borough, formerly ſent a Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now joins with three more in ſending one to that of Great Britain.

VII. The Shire or Stewartry of Kirkindbright,

IS the E. Part of this Country, and called Lower Galloway. It lies betwixt the R. Cree on the W. and Nithiſdale on the E. has the Iriſh Sea on the S. and Part of Kyle on the N. 'Tis about 20 m. from E. to W. and 27 from S. to N. The Earl of Nithſdale, Chief of the antient and noble Family of Maxwell, was formerly Hereditary Sheriff of this County, but 'tis now forfeited upon the account of his taking up Arms for the Pretender in 1715.

Places of Note here are, 1. Kirkudbright, on a Bay of its own Name upon the Iriſh Sea. It lies at the Mouth of the R. Dee, 19 m. S. W. of Dumfries, and 78 S. W. of Edinburgh; 'tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with four more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. It has a weekly Market, a good Salmon-fiſhing in the R. Dee, and is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 16 Pariſhes; and the Place where the Sheriff holds his Courts. It lies very conveniently for Trade, has a ſafe, large, and commodious Harbour, ſecur'd from Tempeſts by Roſs Iſland, which lies at the Mouth of it, and breaks the Winds and Waves. It formerly gave Title of Earl to the Chief of the antient and noble Family of the Maclellans, once the greateſt Family in Galloway, but declined in Power and Wealth by their Quarrels with the Family of Douglaſs. 2. New-Galloway, on the R. Ken, about 14 m. N. from Kirkindbright, and 76 S. W. from Edinburgh. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Member to the Scots Parl. and now joins with three more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. Here's a good weekly Market, well frequented for Corn and other Proviſions, and it has a good Salmon-fiſhing in Lochken. 3. Kenmure-Caſtle, a good antient Seat, formerly the Reſidence of the Viſcounts of that Name, a Branch of the noble Family of Gordon, from whom many Gentlemen in this Country are deſcended; but the Honour was extinguiſhed in the laſt Viſcount, executed in 1716. on Tower-Hill, on account of his taking Arms for the Pretender. 4. Lochken, in the Neighbourhood, is about 5 m. long, and in ſome Places about a m. broad. It contains ſeveral Iſlands, and abounds with Salmon and other Fiſh. 5. Treef-Caſtle, on an Iſland in the R. Dee, 6 m. N. E. from Kirkindbright. It was the ſtrongeſt Caſtle in the Country, was built by the Ld Douglaſs in the Reign of James II. of Scotland, came afterward to the E. of Nithſdale, but was demoliſh'd for his Rebellion in the Reign of K. James VI.

The Families of chief Note in Galloway, are the Maxwells, Gordons, Stuarts, Maclellans, Macdonalds, Mackullochs, Mackays, Agnews, Adairs, Kennedys and Dalrymples.

There are many Seats of Nobility and Gentry; as Glaſton and Garlis, belonging to the E. of Galloway; Caſtle-Kennedy, formerly the E. of Caſſels's, now the E. of Stair's; Lochrian, belonging to the Agnews; Garthland, to the Macdongals; Ravenſtone, to Steuart of Caſtle-Milk; Sorbie, to Brigadier Stuart, Brother to the E. of Galloway; Torr-houſe, to the Mackullochs: beſides many others that we have no account of nor room for.

VIII. The Shire of Air is divided into Carrick, Kyle, and Cunningham.

CARRICK

HAS Galloway on the S. Kyle on the N. Part of that and Galloway on the E. and the Firth of Clyde on the W. 'Tis 25 m. where broadeſt S. and N. and 32 on the Frontiers of Galloway, where 'tis longeſt E. and W. 'Tis fruitful in Corn and Paſturage, and has all neceſſary Commodities by Land and Sea. It formerly gave Title of Earl to the Family of Bruce, from whom K. Robert Bruce deſcended, and was afterwards added to the Titles of the Prince, or eldeſt Son, of Scotland.

The chief Rs. are Stincher and Girven, which have plenty of Salmon and other good Fiſh. The Country abounds with Sheep and Black-Cattel, Tame and Wild Fowl; and the Seas and Rs. ſupply them with all ſorts of Fiſh. Here are many Lakes and Woods, and abundance of Gentlemens Seats. The E. of Caſſels, Chief of the noble and antient Family of Kennedy is hereditary Bailiff of this Country, and has the ſame Power with Sheriffs elſewhere. He derives his Title from his Seat of that Name on the R. Dun, about 5 m. S. of Air.

The only Town of Note here, is, Balgeny, on the Coaſt, about 16 m. S. of Air: It has a weekly Market, and gives Title of Lord to a Branch of the Family of Hamilton, and is ſuppoſed to be Ptolemy's Berigonium, from whence it has the preſent Name. Here are ſeveral Caſtles on the Coaſt, &c. of which we have no Deſcription.

KYLE, which is properly called the Shire of Air,

HAS Carrick, part of Galloway, and Nithſdale on the S. Cunningham on the N. part of Clydſdale on the E. and the Firth of Clyde on the W. Kyle properly ſo called, is 26 m. where broadeſt N. and S. and 34 where longeſt E. and W. The Scots Hiſtorians derive its Name from Coilus, a Britiſh King, who was defeated and kill'd here by Fergus I. King of Scotland. There are many Monuments of this Battle ſtill to be ſeen here. The Field of Battle is yet nam'd Coil-Field. A neighbouring Church bears the Name of Coiltown-Kirk. A River which falls into that of Air, ſome Miles above the Town, bears the Name of Coil; and a neighbouring Lake, near which the Scots encamp'd, is call'd Lake-Fergus. A Trumpet reſembling a crooked Horn was dug up in the Field of Battle, and is ſtill kept in the Laird of Caprinton's Houſe at Coil-Field. It has a ſhrill Sound; and that Family uſes it to call together their Servants and Workmen. By the Deſcription, it appears to be one of thoſe military Inſtruments for Muſick which the Romans and other Antients call'd Lituus. The River Dun, which divides this County from Carrick on the S. W. has a Bridge in the Road to Air, conſiſting of one Arch of 90 Foot, reckon'd the largeſt in the Kingdom. This River abounds with Salmon, and other Fiſh; and the River Irwin, which divides it from Cunningham on the N. produces Salmon and other Fiſh, and has a handſome Bridge of four Arches near the Town of Irwin. The E. Side of this County is acceſſible only by two narrow Paſſes; the largeſt on Raudon River, and the leaſt at Puckenholm, paſſable only by one Man at a time. Betwixt theſe Mountains and the Moſs, or Mariſh, riſes the River of Air, which divides the Country into two Stewartries: That on the N. ſide, as far as the R. Irwin, is call'd Kyle Stewart; that on the S. ſide, as far as the River Dun, is nam'd King's-Coil. The River of Air has the longeſt Courſe of any in the Country, and after running 24 m. from E. to W. beſides many Turnings and Windings, falls into the Sea below Air. This River alſo abounds with Salmon and other Fiſh, receives many others, and is adorn'd with Woods, Caſtles, and Gentlemens Seats on its Banks, which may alſo be ſaid of all the leſſer Rivers in this Country. The Shire formerly ſent 2 Memb. to Parl. and now but one.

The Town of chief Note here is Air, near the Mouth of a River of its own Name, 64 m. S. W. of Edinburgh. It is the Capital of the Shire, which from thence has its Name; and the Sheriffalty is in the Gift of the Crown: But the Earl of Loudon, a Branch of the great and antient Family of Campbel, is Hereditary Bailiff of that properly nam'd Kyle. The Town of Air is famous for Antiquity and Privileges; and its Juriſdiction extends about 64 m. viz. from the Mouth of Clyde to the Borders of Galloway, which is the Length of the Shire, and the greateſt Breadth 36. This Town formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 others in ſending 1 to that of Great Britain; and the Shire now ſends but 1 inſtead of 2. There's a Bridge of 4 Arches over the River near the new Town, in the middle of which it drives ſeveral Mills. On the S. lies the old Town of Air, which was once call'd call'd St. John's-Town upon Air; but that Name is now obſolete. It was built by the King's Patent. It ſtands in a ſandy Plain, with pleaſant green Fields to the N. and S. 'Tis reckon'd the chief Market-Town of the W. of Scotland, except Glaſgow. It has a ſtately Church. This Town is the Seat of a Presbytery, to which belong 28 Pariſhes. A m. N. from the Town, near the Sea-Shore, there is a Lazar-Houſe, commonly call'd the King's Chappel, which King Robert de Bruce ſet apart for maintaining Lepers. The Town has a good Harbour, lies well for Trade, and is remarkable for the Birth of one of the meſt learned Schoolmen, from hence call'd Johannes Scotus Ærigena; and likewiſe for a ſevere Revenge which the famous Sir William Wallace, the Champion, and at that time Warden of Scotland, took here upon the Engliſh, who under Pretence of holding a Juſtice Eyre in Edward I's Time, after he had over-run the Nation during the Competition betwixt Bruce and Baliol for the Scots Crown, ſummon'd the neighbouring Nobility and Gentry to the Court, which was held in the large Barns belonging to the King, and hang'd them one after another, as they enter'd, thinking by this means to keep Scotland for ever under his Obedience. But Sir William came with a Body of Men that ſame Night, ſurpriz'd the Engliſh in the midſt of their Jollity, ſet the Barns on fire, and burnt all that were in them. The Ruins of the Barns are ſtill to be ſeen. This Town is alſo memorable for the Defeat of Acho, King of Norway, who in 1263, during the Reign of Alexander III. King of Scotland, brought 160 Ships to the Neighbourhood, with 20000 Men; and after plundering the adjacent Country, was routed by Alexander Stuart of Scotland, Great Grandfather to the firſt of that Family who enjoy'd the Crown. The King of Norway alſo loſt moſt of his Fleet, on board of which he fled, and by that means was forc'd to quit his Pretenſions to the W. Iſlands of Scotland, which had been granted him by Donald Bane, an Uſurper, on Promiſe of Aſſiſtance to maintain him on the Scots Throne. About 5 m. N. E. lies the Caſtle of Craigy-Wallace, the Seat of a Gentleman of the ſame Family with the famous Sir William. Here are many other Gentlemens Seats that we have not room to mention.

CUNNINGHAM,

HAS Kyle on the S. the Mouth of the Clyde on the N. the Firth of Clyde on the W. Renfrew and part of Clydſdale on the E. The Form is irregular, becauſe it runs out into narrow Points on the N. W. and S. E. where the greateſt Length is about 29 m. and the greateſt Breadth, E. and W. about 12. The Name of the Country is Daniſh or German, and ſignifies the King's Habitation. From whence Buchanan thinks it was formerly poſſeſs'd by the Danes: But others ſay it had the Name becauſe the Kings of Scotland ſometimes reſided here. The Chief of the noble and antient Family of Cunningham, Earls of Glencairn, is derived from hence, and they are probably of a nobler and higher Original than from any of thoſe concern'd in cutting off Becket, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who fled upon that account into Scotland, as Camden alledges, and therefore bear an Epiſcopal Pale in their Arms; ſince 'tis plain from their Motto, Fork over Fork; that 'tis a Fork, and not an Epiſcopal Pale.

The chief Town here is Irwin, on the Mouth of a River of the ſame Name, about 12 m. N. of Air, and 62 S. W. of Edinburgh. Here is a good Harbour for Veſſels, a handſome Stone Bridge over the River; and the Town lies convenient for Trade. It formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, but now joins with four others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. Above a m. N. lies Eglinton, the antient Seat of the noble Family of Montgomery, to whom it gives Title of Earl. They are Hereditary Bailiffs of this Country, and have another Seat at Ardroſſen-Caſtle, about 4 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. W. on the Firth of Clyde. Kilmarnock, 7 m. S. E. of Irwin, gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the noble and antient Family of Boyde. 'Tis famous for Hard-Ware. Lowdon-Caſtle lies 9 m. E. is a noble antient Seat with a Park, belonging to the Earl of Lo don, a Branch of the Family of Campbel. Bleau ſays, that the firſt of the Name being at London, was requeſted by a certain Lady to defend her Honour by a Duel; which he readily undertook: But after the Appointment, and the Judges named, ſhe prayed him to forbear, and confeſſed her Guilt. The Gentleman, though much ſurpriz'd, thought himſelf obliged in Honour not to decline the Combat; but refuſed to fight unleſs the other attack'd him. His Adverſary growing inſolent, ask'd him why he did not come on. Campbel anſwer'd, I byde my Tyme. At which the other being provok'd, call'd him Son of a Whore. At which Campbel replied immediately, You are a Lyar, and for this I'll now fight you; and ſoon after kill'd his Adverſary. From this, the Family did afterwards uſe I byde my Tyme for their Motto.

On the W. Coaſt of this Country, about 12 m. N. W. from Irwin, is Largis, an antient Town, famous for the Defeat of the Norwegians in the Neighbourhood by K. Alexander III. of Scotland. And off of this Coaſt lie two Iſlands, named Greater and Leſſer Cumra. There are many Gentlemens Seats here, which we cannot inſiſt upon.

IX. RENFREW,

HAS the R. Clyde on the N. Part of Clydſdale on the E. and Cunningham on the W. and S. 'Tis about 26 m. where longeſt from S. E. to N. W. and 12 where broadeſt E. and W. 'Tis commonly call'd the Barony, by way of eminence, becauſe it gave Title of Baron to the Prince of Scotland before the Union of the Crowns, as it does now to his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales. The Soil is more pleaſant than fruitful, yet ſufficiently abounds with all Neceſſaries; and the Air is healthful. Before the Union it ſent three Memb. to Parl. and now ſends but one. 'Tis well watered with many ſmall Rs. the chief of which are the Cart and Black-Cart, which join together before their Fall into the R. Clyde.

The County-Town is Renfrew, on a Branch of the Clyde, about 4 m. $\frac{1}{4}$ W. from Glaſgow. 'Tis a Royal Borough, formerly ſent a Memb. to Parl. and now joins with three other Towns in ſending one. The Town is ſmall, and chiefly noted for its Antiquity, and being the Place where the Sheriff holds his Courts. The Ld Semple was formerly Hereditary Sheriff for this County, but that Poſt belongs now to the E. of Eglinton. 2. Paſley, 2 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. W. of Renfrew, lies on the R. Cart, is much larger than Renfrew, and was formerly noted for a noble Abbey of the Order of Cluny, the Monks of which wrote the Hiſtory of Scotland, called the Black Book of Paſley, often refer'd to by the Scots Hiſtorians. The Original is ſuppoſed to be in the hands of the E. of Murray, and an Epitome of it in Sir Robert Sibbald's. This Town is a Borough, and the Seat of a Presbytery which contains 16 Pariſhes. It gives Title of Baron to the E. of Abercorn, a Branch of the Family of Hamilton. At the W. End of the Town there are the Remains of a large Roman Camp and Pretorium, ſuppoſed to be vaulted underneath, becauſe the Ground ſounds hollow when trod upon. Here's a Bridge over the R. Cart, and in the Neighbourhood a Seat and a Park belonging to the E. of Dundonnald. In the Lands of Newyards near this Town, there's a Fountain on a high Ground which ebbs and flows with the Tide. 3. Langſide, about 6 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. of Paſley, near the R. Cart, is noted for the Remains of a Roman Camp, and for the Defeat of Q. Mary's Army by the Proteſtant Nobility under the E. of Murray, who was Regent for her Son the young King; after which ſhe fled to England, where ſhe was at laſt beheaded by Q. Elizabeth's Order for being concerned in a Plot. That Part of the Country which lies on the Clyde, is pleaſant and fruitful, and abounds with the Seats of Noblemen and Gentlemen, moſt of whom are related to one another by Inter-Marriages. 4. Greenock, lies on the Firth of the Clyde, about 12 m. N. W. from Paſley. 'Tis a handſom well-built Town, noted for a Caſtle, and one of the beſt Roads for Ships on the Coaſt. 'Tis the chief Seat of the W. Herring-Fiſhing. There are many Noblemens and Gentlemens Seats here, of which we have no Deſcription, and can only mention the chief of them. Camden obſerves that this ſmall Shire was famous in his time for Nobility. The moſt remarkable was then the D. of Lenox, Grandfather to King James VI. His Seats were at Kruikſton, about 4 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. of Paſley; and Inch Ennen, on the Banks of the Clyde, 3 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. of Paſley; Pounzyn Caſtle, belonging to the E. of Eglinton, about 12 m. S. E. of Paſley; Finlaſton, the Seat of the E. of Glencairn; Halkhead, the Seat of the Ld Roſs; Caſtle-Semple, the Ld Semple's Seat; Cardonal, the Ld Blantyre's; and Cathcart, the Ld Cathcart's.

The Gentlemen of chief Note here are, the Stuarts, Houſtons, Maxwels, Birsbains, Wallaces, Johnſtons, Flemings, Cunninghams, Semples, Shaws, Pollocks, Porterfields, and Cochrans.

X. Clydſdale, or the Shire of Lanerk,

HAS Renfrew, Cunningham, and Kyle on the W. Sterlingſhire, Part of Lothian and Tweddale on the E. Nithiſdale and Annandale on the S. and Part of Lennox and Sterlingſhire on the N. 'Tis about 60 m. where longeſt from S. E. to N. W. but contracted at both ends; the greateſt Breadth E. and W. is about 30, and 'tis divided into the upper and nether Ward. The Name is derived from the R. Clyde, which runs thro it. This R. riſes from a Hill in the upper Ward, and falls into the Deucaledon Sea. This is the more remarkable, becauſe from the ſame Hill, or at leaſt, riſing Tract of Ground, the R. of Annan has its riſe, which runs into the Iriſh Sea; and the R. Tweed riſes from the ſame Ground, and falls into the German or rather Scots Sea, near the Mouth of the Firth. This Country is fruitful and pleaſant and very well inhabited, eſpecially near the Clyde. In ſome Places 'tis mountainous, and in others woody.

Thomas Achiſon Eſſay, Maſter of the Mint at Edinburgh in King James VIth's time, wrote a Piece, wherein he ſays that natural Gold is to be had in ſeveral Places of this Country, particularly in Crawford-Moor and Fryer-Moor. His Book is entitled, A Treatiſe on the Metals of Scotland: It is a Manuſcript in the poſſeſſion of Sir Rob. Sibbald. The Author obſerves that out of dry Minerals the like Gold has not often been ſeen or heard to be found in Chriſtendom, as that of Scotland, which he ſays was tried and reported to be worth 76000 l. Sterling per Ton. By dry Minerals he ſays he means the Sappare, the Callaminere, the Saxere and the Salinoere Stone. He adds, that commonly after great Rains 'tis found joined faſt to the Sappare-Stone, in the ſame manner as Lead-Ore and white Spar ſometimes grow together.

Cornelius, a German Lapidary, who was Superior of K. James VIth's Gold Mines, diſcover'd ſuch at Crawford-John in this Country, and in 30 Days ſent from thence to the Mint at Edinburgh, half a Stone Weight, or 8 l. Troy, of natural Gold, worth 450 l. Sterling. There's abundance of Azure likewiſe in this Country.

This County gives Title of Earl to the eldeſt Son of the Family of Hamilton, and formerly ſent 4 Memb. to Parl. but now ſends only 1. 'Tis divided into the upper and nether Wards. The upper is called the Shire of Lanerk, and the nether includes the Barony of Glaſgow. The D. of Hamilton is Hereditary Sheriff.

Places of moſt Note are, 1. Glaſgow, on the E. Side of the R. Clyde 38 m. W. of Edinburgh; 'tis a large, ſtately, well-built City, the beſt Emporium in the W. of Scotland, and for Commerce and Riches is the ſecond in the Kingdom. It lies pleaſantly near the R. over which there's a noble beautiful Stone Bridge of 8 Arches, that joins this City to the Suburbs on the other ſide the R. which is navigable up to the Town by Ships of ſmall Burden; but the City obliges Merchants to load and unload at New Port Glaſgow, near the Mouth of the R. where there's a Harbour for the biggeſt Ships, a large publick Warehouſe, and a Cuſtom-Houſe for all this Coaſt. Moſt of the City ſtands on a Plain, and 'tis in a manner four-ſquare. In the middle of the City ſtands the Tolbooth, or Town-Houſe, a magnificent Structure of hewn Stone, with noble and convenient Appartments for the Magiſtrates &c. It has a very lofty Tower, with melodious Bells, which chime every Hour. At the Tolbooth the four principal Streets croſs one another, and in a manner divide the City into four equal Parts, every one of which is adorned with publick Buildings. In the higher Part of the City ſtands the Cathedral, commonly called St. Mungos; it amazes Beholders with its ſtupendous Bigneſs, and the Artifice of its Structure. It conſiſts of 2 Churches one over the other; and the ſeveral Rows of Pillars, and exceeding high Towers, ſhew a wonderful Piece of Architecture. Beſides the Places of Worſhip, it has convenient Apartments for the meeting of the Presbytery, which conſiſts of 19 Pariſhes, and for the Provincial Synod, which conſiſts of 127. Here are 4 other Churches beſides that belonging to the Univerſity, all of them neatly built, with handſom Steeples. Near to this Church is the Caſtle, which in the time of Epiſcopacy was the Archbiſhop's Palace. 'Tis fenced in with a very high Wall of hewn Stone, and has a fine Proſpect into the City.

The Chief Glory of this City is the College or Univerſity, a very magnificent and ſtately Fabrick, conſiſting of ſeveral Courts adorned with a ſtately high Tower, and many fine Turrets. The Front towards the City is of hewn Stone, and fine Architecture. The Precincts of the Univerſity were lately enlarged by ſome Acres of Ground purchaſed for it by the King and Parliament, which Acres are now turned into pleaſant Gardens for the Health and Recreation of the Students. This Univerſity was founded April 20. 1453. by K. James II. of Scotland, according to a Bull from Pope Nicholas V. allowing it all the Privileges, Liberties, Honours, Immunities and Exemptions granted by the Apoſtolick See or others to the College of Bononia in Italy, for teaching univerſal Learning. The Ground on which it ſtands, and an adjacent Field, were given by the Family of Hamilton; and Archbiſhop Turnbul contributed much to the Expence of the Structure. K. James II. above-mentioned, by his Letters Patents exempted it from all Taxes, Watching, Warding, &c. which, with other Privileges, were ratify'd by ſucceeding Princes. The Perſons eſtabliſhed by the firſt Foundation, were, a Rector, a Dean of Faculty, a Principal or Warden, who was to teach Theology, three Philoſophy-Profeſſors; and afterwards ſome Clergymen taught the Civil and Cannon-Law here. In 1577. K. James VI. of Scotland added twelve Perſons to the Eſtabliſhment, viz. a Principal, three Profeſſors of Philoſophy, four Burſers, a Steward to furniſh their Table, a Servant for the Principal, a Janitor to look after the Gate, and a Cook. Several other Kings, Parliaments, Archbiſhops, and the City of Glaſgow itſelf, have been Benefactors to it. The E. of Dundonnald did in 1662 give 1000 l. Sterling to it for the Maintenance of poor Scholars; and one Mr. John Snell gave about 400 l. for adorning the Fabrick, and enlarging the Library, which has been much encreaſed by the Care of the Principals ſince the Revolution; and beſides many curious Books, has valuable MSS. The Archbiſhops, during Epiſcopacy, were Chancellors of this Univerſity; but that Honour is at preſent enjoy'd by the E. of Glaſgow, and the Principal acts as Vice-Chancellor. Here are ſeveral Stones with Latin Inſcriptions, that were taken out of the Roman Wall in the Neighbourhood, and are kept here in very good Order. The famous George Buchanan, the learned Camero, and other great Men, whom we want room to mention, were bred in this Univerſity. It is alſo obſerved to the Honour of this City, that they have ever ſince the Reformation been ſteady to the Proteſtant Religion, and the Liberties of their Country. In 1714. they ſent the Electoral Prince of Hanover, now Pr. of Wales, the Freedom of their City, as a Preſent, in a Gold Box, and ſince his Arrival in England preſented him with a noble and rich Sword, which was made there on purpoſe. They ſignalized their Zeal by ſending a conſiderable Body of the chief Citizens as Volunteers to ſerve the King againſt the late E. of Mar in 1715. beſide putting their own City in a Poſture of Defence. It formerly ſent a Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now joins with three others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 2. Ruglen, or Rutherglen, 2 m. ÷ S. W. of Glaſgow, gives Title of Earl to a Son of the Family of Hamilton, is a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Member to the Scots Parl. and now joins with three others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. It has a weekly Market, and lies pleaſantly on the W. Side of the R. Clyde. 3. Kilbride, a Market-Town, 2 m. S. W. of Ruglen. 4. Hamilton, near the Conflux of the Rs. Avon and Clyde, 9 m. S. E. of Glaſgow, is a Town and Palace, which gives Sirname and Title to the D. of Hamilton, the chief of that antient and illuſtrious Family. Their Origin is by ſome Hiſtorians, both Engliſh and Scots, aſcribed to Hampton, an Engliſhman of Quality, who joined Robert Bruce K. of Scots in his Wars againſt the Engliſh, and was for his Services rewarded with an Eſtate here; but the Family of Hamilton has Vouchers to prove that their Anceſtors were poſſeſſed of an Eſtate here much earlier than that time. The Town is pleaſant and well-built, and the Palace ſtately and magnificent. The Entrance to it is very noble, and the Frontiſpiece on the E. is of curious Architecture. The Court is adorned on all ſides with noble Buildings, and there are large Gardens and Orchards well furniſhed with Fruit-Trees, Parterres, Walks, Flowers, &c. The Furniture is anſwerable to the Magnificence of the Palace and Family, and there's a Park adjoining, 7 m. round, well ſtock'd with Deer and abundance of tall Oaks, Firs, Pines, &c. 'Tis handſomly wall'd in, and water'd by the R. Avon, which runs thro it. Here's a handſom Pariſh-Church in the Town, where the Family have their Sepulchre and Monuments. There's a Bridge over the R. Avon at the Entry of the Town. 5. Bothwel, about 2 m. ÷ N. W. of Hamilton, on the other ſide the R. Clyde, has the Remains of an antient Caſtle that belonged to the famous Andrew Murray, who was Viceroy or Regent of Scotland during the Minority of K. David Bruce. Here is alſo a handſom Seat, and a Pariſh-Church with ſeveral fine Monuments of the Family of Douglaſs. The Seat belonged to the E. of Forfar, a Branch of the Family of Douglaſs, now extinguiſhed by the Death of the laſt E. of Forfar, who behaved gallantly at the Battle of Dumblain; but happening to be on that Wing of the King's Army which gave way, he was taken Priſoner and mortally wounded after Quarter given. There's a Bridge over the Clyde, remarkable for the Defeat of a conſiderable Body of Presbyterians in 1679. when they took Arms to obtain Redreſs of the grievous Oppreſſions they labour'd under, but having no Perſon of Rank or Experience to command them, they were ſoon routed by the late Duke of Monmouth, who was ſent with ſome regular Troops from England to join the King's Forces againſt them. 6. Avondale, a Tract of Land on the R. Avon, with a Caſtle, 7 m. W. of Hamilton, and gives Title of to the Family of Hamilton. 7. Stravan, a Market-Town, 2 m. ÷ S. W. of Hamilton. 8. Lanerk, the head Borough of the Shire and upper Ward, 8 m. ÷ S. of Hamilton. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now joins with three more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis a Market-Town, the Seat of a Presbytery, which conſiſts of 13 Pariſhes, and gives Title of E. to the eldeſt Son of the Family of Hamilton. 9. Douglaſs Town and Caſtle, lies on a R. of the ſame Name, 5 m. ÷ W. from Lanerk, and gives Sirname and Title to the D. of Douglaſs, Chief of that antient and heroick Family, of which there have been more celebrated Generals, both at home and abroad, than of any Family in Europe that are not crown'd Heads. 10. Crawford, a Town and Caſtle 10 m. S. of Lanerk, gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the antient and noble Family of Lindſay.

XI. The Shire of Stirling,

HAS Part of Lennox and Clydſdale on the W. Part of Clackmannonſhire and the R. Forth on the E.. Menteith on the N. and Lothian on the S. Pont's Map makes it 18 m. from S. to N. and 18 where broadeſt from E. to W. The Shire abounds with Corn, Graſs, Black-Cattle, Sheep and Horſes, and is well ſupplied with Salmon and other Fiſh by the Forth and its other Rs. The Fuel is Coal and Turf. The Forth, or antient Bodotria, the moſt famous R. tho not the largeſt, in Scotland, riſes near the Foot of Mount Lomond, runs from W. to E. and after paſſing by Stirling, has ſo many Windings that it forms a delicious Proſpect from Stirling Town and Caſtle. The Turnings are ſo numerous, that tho it be but 4 m. betwixt Stirling and Alloway by Land, 'tis 24 by Water.

Places of Note here are, 1. Stirling, the Capital of the County, 25 m. W. from Edinburgh; 'tis a very handſom Town, and lies on the Front of a rocky Hill, ſo that the Situation very much reſembles that of Edinburgh, and has a pleaſant Proſpect of the neighbouring Countries on both ſides the Forth. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Scots Parl, and now joins with 4 more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. Here's a good weekly Market, and it is the Seat of a Presbytery, conſiſting of 12 Pariſhes. Here's a very handſom large Church, with a lofty Steeple of good Architecture, and near it two ſtately large Houſes, one of them belonging to the D. of Argyle, and the other belong'd to the E. of Mar. But the chief Glory of the Town is the Caſtle, which is ſo very ſtrong by Art and Nature, that it is in a manner reckoned impregnable. It was formerly the Reſidence of the Kings of Scotland, and has noble royal Apartments, with a very large Hall, in which Parliaments have been ſometimes held. The Earls of Mar, Chiefs of the antient and noble Family of Ereskin, were hereditary Governours of this Caſtle, till the late Earl was forfeited on account of his taking Arms for the Pretender. There's a noble Park adjoining to the Caſtle, that belongs to the King, has been noted for ſeveral Encampments, and particularly for that of the King's Army commanded by the D. of Argyle againſt the E. of Mar in 1715. This Town is reckoned one of the Keys of the Kingdom, becauſe it commands a Paſſage of the Forth, over which there is a ſtately Stone-Bridge here of four large Arches, with an Iron Gate in the middle. Ships come up to the Bridge at full Tide, but the Haven lies a little below it. The Town is encloſed by a Wall on one ſide, and defended by the Forth on the other. 'Tis very antient, and ſuppoſed to be Ptolemy's Vindovara, from the old Scots Name Bincbara, which ſignifies a Town on a Rock. It was one of the Boundaries of the Roman Empire in Britain; and it appears by an Inſcription on a Stone below the Caſtle, that one of the Wings of the Roman Army kept Gariſon here. A little S. E. from the Town lay the noble Abbey of Cambuskenneth, now in ruins. 2. Bannockburn, 2 m. S. from Stirling, is famous for a great Victory obtained here by Rob. Bruce K. of Scots over Edward II. of England; it being reckoned the greateſt Defeat that ever the Engliſh received. 'Tis alſo memorable for the Defeat and Death of K. James III. of Scotland, who being miſled by perverſe Council, as it is worded in the Act of Parl. and endeavouring to oppreſs the Kingdom by the Aſſiſtance of the Engliſh, the Nobility and Gentry took Arms againſt him with his eldeſt Son at their head. Here's a fine Seat which belonged to the late Sir Hugh Paterſon, forfeited on account of his taking Arms for the Pretender. 3. Dunnipace, on the R. Carron, 8 m. S. W of Stirling; it is noted for ſome Roman Monuments, and particularly two little Hills called Duni-Pacis, from whence comes the Name of the Place; and 2 m. lower there's a round Edifice of Stone, which by the Deſcription reſembles that which the Romans called the Temple of Terminus; but Buchanan thinks that theſe were rather Monuments of great Actions performed here. 4. Fakirk, or Falkirk, on the Roman Wall, 8 m. S. from Stirling. 'Tis a handſom antient Town noted for a great Victory obtained here by the Engliſh and the Scots, who joined them, over the great General Wallace, and others who commanded the Army that ſtood up for Defence of their Country. This Defeat was chiefly occaſioned by a Diviſion among the Scots about the Command of the Army juſt as they were going to engage. Some think this Place to have been the Capital of the Picts becauſe of large antient Ruins in the Neighbourhood, but others take it to be a Roman Camp. Anchors being ſometimes found in the Ground near this Town, give occaſion to believe that it has formerly been a Port, but that the Sea or the Forth did in proceſs of time retire from this Part of the Country, and gained Ground on the other ſide; ide; which is probable enough, conſidering the Marſhes about the Mouth of the neighbouring R. &c.

The great Roman Wall, which begun at Abercorn in W. Lothian, runs thro this Country, and ends near Dumbarton. Many of its Remains are ſtill to be ſeen, and abundance of Stones with Roman Inſcriptions have been taken out of its Ruins; but we have not room to inſiſt upon them, nor the Deſcription of this famous Wall, which was built by the Romans to preſerve their Province from the Invaſions of the Scots and Picts. Nor can we inſiſt upon the Controverſy among Antiquaries, whether this Wall was built by Severus or by Antoninus Pius; but it is certain that in all the Scots Hiſtories 'tis called Graham's Dyke, and that Graham in the old Scots Language is the ſame with Severus in Latin. The chief Families in this County are the Bruces, Erskins, the Livingſtons, Flemings, Elphinſtons, Murrays, Seatons, Grahams, Napers, Johnſtons, Buchanans, Dalrymples, Dalzells, Ramſeys, Hamiltons, Hopes, and Primroſes.

XII. LOTHIAN.

SOME derive the Name from Lothus, a King of the Picts, but others from the R. Leeth, which cuts it in the middle. 'Tis 35 m. in length from E. to W. and 13 where broadeſt. It has the German Ocean on the E. the Firth of Forth on the N. the R. Avon on the W. which parts it from Sterlingſhire, and Tweddale, and Part of Clydſdale and the Mers on the S. On this ſide 'tis alſo bounded by a long dry hilly Tract called Lammore-Hills, but on that ſide towards the Forth there are fine Plains which abound with all manner of Corn, Milk, Honey, Fiſhponds and Groves. There are other Hills here called Pentland, which run S. W. and N. E. thro the middle of the Country. Here are ſeveral good Rs. that abound with Fiſh. This Country is juſtly reckoned the richeſt and moſt populous Part of the Kingdom, abounds with Cattle of all ſorts, Fowl, Fiſh, and Corn, eſpecially Wheat, Coals, Salt, Game, and has many Gentlemens Seats. The Inhabitants are polite and wealthy, becauſe this Country was long the Seat of the Government. There's ſuch plenty of Herrings on the Coaſts, at the Entrance of every Autumn, eſpecially at and near Dunbar, for ſeveral Weeks, as not only furniſh the Country, but make a large Fund for Export. The Country is divided into Eaſt, Weſt, and Mid Lothian, and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Ker or Carr, deſcended from that of Farnherſt.

XIII. The Shire of Linlithgow, or Weſt-Lothian,

HAS Sterlingſhire and Clydſdale on the W. Mid-Lothian, or the Shire of Edinburgh on the E. the Firth on the N. and part of Clydſdale and Tweddale on the S. It is about 14 m. long, and 13 broad, abounds with Corn and Paſturage, Lime, Salt, and Coal; has many Gentlemens Seats, is well furniſh'd with Fiſh by the Sea and Rivers, and is in general a pleaſant Country, of which the Earl of Hopton is Hereditary Sheriff. It formerly ſent 2 Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now ſends one to that of Great Britain.

Places of chief Note here are, 1. Linlithgow, 12 m. N. W. from Edinburgh. It ſtands on a Hill, with a Lake at the bottom, that abounds with Fiſh of ſeveral ſorts. There's a Royal Palace here on a riſing Ground, which encompaſſes the Lake in form of an Amphitheatre, with a Deſcent reſembling Terras Walks. At each Corner of the Court are Towers, with Apartments, and a curious Fountain in the Middle, adorned with fine Statues. Here is alſo a ſtately Town-Houſe, and a curious Church built of hewn Stone; and there's a fine Park belonging to the Palace on the N. ſide of the Lake. It gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the noble and antient Family of Levingſton, who are Hereditary Keepers of the Caſtle, Hereditary Bailiffs of the Bailiffwick belonging to the Crown, and Hereditary Conſtables of Blackneſs-Caſtle. It formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with three others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 19 Pariſhes. 2. Torfichen, 2 m. S. W. of Linlithgow, is a Borough, which was formerly the Reſidence of the Knights of Malta, and now gives Title of Lord to the Chief of the Name of Saudilands. Betwixt this and Linlithgow, at a Place call'd Kypps, there's an Altar of great rough Stones, ſupporting one another, call'd by the vulgar Arthur's-Oven, and ſuppoſed by the Learned to be the Ruins of a Roman Temple; and on two adjacent Hills are the Marks of old Roman Camps and Sepulchres. 3. Abercorn, near the Forth, 4 m. N. E. from Linlithgow. It had a ruinous Caſtle on a Hill, which formerly belong'd to the Douglaſſes, but now to the Earl of Hopton, who has a fine Seat here. A Mile or two E. from this Caſtle, on the Banks of the Forth, begin Severus's Wall, commonly call'd Graham's-Dyke, which was carry'd from E. to W. as far as the Mouth of Clyde. There were formerly rich Silver Mines in this County, but they have not been work'd for many Years. 4. Burrowſtownneſs, on the Coaſt, above 2 m. N. E. from Linlithgow, is a Town of a conſiderable Trade, and has ſeveral Ships belonging to it. About a m. ÷ W. from this Town lies Kinneil, a noble Seat with fine Plantations belonging to the Duke of Hamilton. 5. Blackneſs, on the Coaſt, 2 m. E. from Burrowſtownneſs, is a ſtrong Caſtle which belongs to the Crown, and is often made uſe of for a Priſon of State. 6. Queen's-Ferry, on the Coaſt, about 3 m. S. E. of Blackneſs, is a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis the uſual Place where People paſs over from Lothian to Fife in Boats kept here on purpoſe, becauſe the Paſſage is little above 2 m. over. It had its Name from being the Paſſage where the Queens of Scotland uſually embark'd, when they went to their Palaces on the other ſide the Forth. About the middle of this Paſſage there's a little rocky Iſland, called Inchgarvie, on which there was formerly a Caſtle mounted with Guns, to hinder Enemies Ships of War from paſſing up the Country; but 'tis now demoliſh'd. We have not Room to deſcribe or mention the Gentlemens Seats. The chief Families in this Shire, are the Hamiltons, Levingſtons, Ereskins, Dundas's, Craigs, Dalrymples, Sharps, Baylis, Marjoribanks, Hopes, Fairholms, Auſtruthers, and Monteiths.

XIV. The Shire of Edinburgh, or Mid-Lothian,

HAS the Shire of Linlithgow on the W. the Conſtablewick or Shire of Haddington on the E. the Firth on the N. Tweddale and part of Lauderdale on the S. It abounds with Corn, Paſture, and has more Gentlemens Seats than any other Shire of the Nation, and is in general pleaſant and well cultivated. 'Tis about 15 m. from E. to W. and 12 where broadeſt from S. to N. The Sheriffalty of this County is in the Gift of the Crown. It formerly ſent four Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now ſends but one to that of Great Britain.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Edinburgh, the Metropolis of the Kingdom, and Capital of Mid-Lothian. 'Tis a City and County of it ſelf, lies in North Latitude 55. 55. above 40 Miles North-weſt from Berwick, 70 North from Carliſle, and 300 from London. It was for ſeveral Ages the Reſidence of the Kings of Scotland, and the Seat of the Parliament, as it is ſtill of the ſupreme Courts of Judicature. The principal Street is one of the nobleſt in Europe, runs E. from the Caſtle to the Palace and Park along the Ridge of a Hill, and from it, on both ſides, run a vaſt Number of Lanes, equal to Streets, down to the Lake on the N. ſide, and to another Street call'd the Cowgate on the S. ſide; from whence alſo there are many Lanes that run up the Hill on the S. towards the Univerſity, Herriots-Hoſpital, and the chief Suburbs on that ſide. The City is a large Scots Mile in Length from the Caſtle to the Palace, above half a Mile from N. to S. and three Miles in Compaſs. 'Tis for its Bigneſs as populous as any City in Europe, the Houſes being very large and lofty, eſpecially near the Parliament-Cloſe, where ſome are 14 Stories high, and in the High-Street, where they are 7 Stories; the Houſes, except in that Street, are generally too cloſe for want of room, the City having been built here originally to be protected by the Caſtle. The principal Street lies in a very healthy Air, and from the Caſtle-Hill, and the Tops of the Houſes, there's a charming Proſpect of the adjacent Country, full of Noblemens Seats, eſpecially down to Leith, and over the Firth into the populous Coaſt of Fife. It lies in a Country abounding with Proviſions and all Neceſſaries; is ſupplied with all ſorts of Merchandize by the Firth; and water'd by excellent Springs brought from the Country by Leaden Pipes, and diſtributed to the City from neat Stone Fountains. Some of the Nobility have great Houſes in the Town, built with Stone, cover'd with Slates blue or grey, and the Fronts to the Streets are generally of hewn Stone.

The chief Structures are,

(1.) The Caſtle, at the W. end of the City, where the Rock riſes to a high and large Summit. 'Tis one of the antienteſt, and ſtrongeſt both by Nature and Art, perhaps, in the World. It was formerly called the Maiden-Caſtle, becauſe the Kings of the Picts kept their Daughters here; and more antiently Alata Caſtra, or the Winged Caſtle, perhaps from its Form. 'Tis inacceſſible on the S. W. and N. the only Entrance is on the ſide of the Town, where the Rock is alſo very high; and the Entrance defended by a round Battery, Half-Moons, Ramparts, and an Outwork at the Foot of it, all well mounted with Cannon; ſo that 'tis impoſſible to take it by Storm. There's in the Caſtle a Royal Palace, an uniform ſtately Structure of hewn Stone, where the Governor reſides, and the Regalia and chief Records of State for above 2000 Years paſt have been kept, as alſo the national Magazine of Ammunition and Arms. Here's a Chappel for the Uſe of the Gariſon; and the Caſtle is furniſhed with Water from 2 Wells in the Rock: But tho the Caſtle be impregnable, it generally follows the Fate of the City. On the 13th of June, 1689, 'twas ſurrender'd to K. William by the D. of Gordon, who held it a while for the late K. James. Some of the Pretender's Friends laid a Plot, with others in the Caſtle, to betray it into his hands in 1715; but it was diſcovered in the nick of time, and a Perſon taken as laying a Ladder of Ropes, that the Plotters without might be drawn up by thoſe within. From this Caſtle there's a delightful Proſpect of the City and Country, and to the Firth or Forth, from whence 'tis ſaluted by ſuch Men of War as come to Anchor in Leith-Road.

(2.) The Palace of Holy-Rood-Houſe, ſo called, becauſe of an antient Auguſtin Monaſtery here founded by K. David I. but that being conſum'd by Fire, nothing remains now beſides the ſtately Church, in which are the Tombs of ſeveral Kings and Queens, &c. This Palace conſiſts of four Courts. The outermoſt of which is as large as the other three. The Entrance is adorned with great Pillars of hewn Stone, and has a fine Cupola over it in form of a Crown. There are four high Towers in the Front of the Palace. The Inner-Court is very ſtately, and encompaſs'd with Piazzas of fine hewn Stone, from which there are Entries to the ſeveral Apartments that are truly roval and magnificent; and the Long Gallery is very remarkable, being adorned with all the Pictures of the Scots Kings from Fergus I. The Palace is in a manner ſurrounded with lovely Gardens; and on the S. ſide lies the King's Park, which has great Variety of medicinal Plants, and an excellent Fountain, brought by Conduits to ſerve the Palace.

(3.) The Parliament-Houſe is a ſtately, large, and convenient Structure of hewn Stone, with a large ſquare pav'd Court, call'd the Parliament-Cloſe, which has a curious Statue of K. Charles II. in the middle. Over the Entrance of the Houſe the Arms of Scotland are ſet up, with Mercy and Truth for their Supporters, and this Inſcription, Stant his Felicia Regna, importing that thoſe Virtues make Kingdoms happy. In the middle of the Room where the Parliament met there's a high Throne for the Sovereign, or Commiſſioner, with Benches on each ſide for the Nobility, and Forms in the middle for the Commoners. Without the Area there's a Pulpit for the Sermons that were preach'd to the Parliament; and behind the Pulpit there's a large Partition for other Hearers. The W. ſide of the Parliament-Houſe is incloſed by the Council-Houſe, where the Town-Council aſſembles. The S. ſide is bounded by the Seſſions-Houſe, where the ſupreme Courts of Judicature are held; and in the upper part of this Edifice are the Apartments where the Lords of the Privy-Council and Exchequer met. Near the Council-Chamber ſtands the Royal Exchange, a ſtately Structure of hewn Stone, with a double Row of Shops; and there's another Exchange under it. On the N. ſide of the Cloſe ſtands the great High Church, which is now divided into 4, with a very high Steeple, of good antient Architecture, the Top whereof reſembles an imperial Crown. The Churches of this City, including the Chappel of the Caſtle, are 12, all large and magnificent, and the Miniſters 23, who, with ſome neighbouring Pariſhes, form the Presbytery of Edinburgh, conſiſting of 31 Pariſhes. They meet in the great Church, as do alſo the Provincial Synod, and the General Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland, there being an Apartment provided for that end.

(4.) Herriot's-Hoſpital ſtands on the S. ſide of the City, and is a large, beautiful, and ſtately Edifice, which was built for the Education and Entertainment of 40 Boys. Such of 'em as go to the Univerſity have each 7 l. Sterling, and 11 l. each if they go to Trades. It has Lodgings for the Officers of the Houſe and the Scholars, and large pleaſant Gardens. It was founded by K. James VI's Goldſmith, Mr. George Herriot, who left 200000 l. Scots for its Maintenance.

(5.) The College ſtands on the S. ſide of the Town, and has large Precincts, high Walls, and three Courts, encompaſs'd with neat Buildings; and there's a high Tower over the great Gate which looks to the City. The publick Schools are large and commodious. There's good Accommodation for the Students, and handſome Dwellings for the Profeſſors, with fine Gardens. It was founded in 1580 by King James VI. upon a Petition from the City. The Foundation was not perfected till 1582. The Perſons eſtabliſh'd at firſt were, a Principal, or Warden, a Profeſſor of Divinity, 4 Regents, or Maſters of Philoſophy, and a Profeſſor of Philology, called the Regent of Humanity. In 1640 the Town added a Profeſſor of Hebrew, and ſince they have added a Profeſſor of Mathematicks. The Dignity of Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor of the Univerſity is in the Magiſtrates and Town-Council. They have a very good Library, which was founded by Clement Little, one of the Commiſſaries of Edinburgh in 1635, and ſince that time 'tis much increas'd by Donatives from the Citizens and Perſons of Quality, and others, who had their Education there. The Library is neatly kept, well ſtock'd with Books, and cloiſter'd with Doors of Wire, that none can open but the Keeper, which is more commodious than multitudes of Chains, as in other publick Libraries. The Books given by the ſeveral Benefactors are kept in diſtinct Apartments, and the Donors Names ſet over them in Golden Letters. Over the Books hang the Pictures of ſeveral Princes, and moſt of the Reformers at home and abroad; and near them is kept the Skull of the famous Buchanan, ſo thin that one may perceive the Light thro it. 'Twas lodg'd there by Mr. Adamſon formerly Principal of that Univerſity, who procur'd it to be taken out of his Grave, and affix'd ſome Latin Verſes to it in Commendation of that great Author. The Original of the Bohemian Proteſt againſt the Council of Conſtance for burning John Huſſe and Jerom of Prague in 1417, with 105 Seals of the Princes of Bohemia, Moravia, and others, appended to it, is alſo kept here. It was brought from abroad by a Scots Gentleman, who procur'd it in his Travels.

The Royal Printing-Houſe, where they are chiefly employed in printing Bibles, is under the Library; at the further end of which there's a Stair-Caſe that leads to the Common-Hall, where they have their Commencements and College Entertainments. In this Place there are ſeveral Maps, Globes, Books, and Rarities; and among others a crooked Horn, cut out of a Woman's Head when 50 Years old, who liv'd 12 Years after it. Sir Robert Sibbald gives an Account and a Cut of it in his Prodromus to the Natural Hiſtory of Scotland. 'Tis ſeveral Inches long, and was cut out of her Head by a Surgeon the 4th of May, 1671. We can't inſiſt upon the many learned Men that have been bred in this Univerſity; which has ſince its Foundation been always much eſteemed for the Learning of its Profeſſors, and the Number and Quality of the Students.

(6.) The Mint-Houſe, which lies in Grays-Cloſe, near the nether Bow, has a large Court adorn'd with neat and convenient Buildings for the Overſeers and Workmen.

(7.) St. Thomas's Hoſpital ſtands near the Collegiate Church. Here decay'd Citizens and their Wives are very handſomely maintain'd, and have their Chaplain.

(8.) The Correction-Houſe ſtands over againſt the Collegiate Church, and is commonly call'd Paul's-Work. Here diſſolute People are obliged to get their Living by Manufactures of Linen, Woollen and Silk.

(9.) The College of Phyſicians, where is a noble Muſæum, commonly called Muſæum Balfourianum, from the Founder Sir Andrew Balfour M. D. It contains a vaſt Treaſure of foreign and domeſtick Curioſities both of Art and Nature; and the Deſign of it is to encourage thoſe who have a mind to ſtudy true Philoſophy. Sir Robert Sibbald M. D. made a great Augmentation to it, of which an Account was printed at Edinburgh in 12° in 1697, with the Title of Auctarium Muſ. i Balfouriani è Muſæo Sibbaldiano.

In the City there is alſo a noble Library belonging to the Gentlemen of the Law, or College of Juſtice, where Lawyers are bred.

On the N. ſide of Edinburgh there is an excellent Phyſick-Garden, with thouſands of Plants, of which Mr. James Sutherland publiſhed, in 1683, an Account, under the Title of Hortus Medicus Edinburgenſis. The Deſign of it is to furniſh Simples for the uſe of Phyſick, and to inſtruct thoſe of the Faculty in the Knowledge and Uſe of them; for which end they are diſpoſed in the moſt rational and natural Method. Sir Robert Sibbald has a curious Garden here, noted for two Stone Monuments of Antiquity, dug up in the Lands of Inglistoun, upon one whereof there's a Laurel-Crown, and on the other a Roman Securis: They are ſuppoſed to have been part of a Pillar erected in Domitian's time, when Agricola was in that Country.

The common Burial-Place of this City is Gray-Fryers Church-Yard, where are abundance of fine Monuments, ſome of which are very magnificent.

The City is encloſed with a ſort of old Roman Wall on every ſide, except the N. where 'tis ſecured by a Lake. It has 6 Gates, 2 to the E. 2 to the S. 1 to the W. and one to the N. The chief Gate is one of thoſe to the E. called the Nether-Bow, which was magnificently built in 1616. and adorned on both ſides with Towers. This is the Entrance from the Palace, and the principal Suburb called the Cannon-Gate. The other E. Gate is called the Cow-Gate, and gives Entrance to the Street of that Name. One of the S. Gates is called the Potter-row-Port, and leads to the Suburb ſo called. The other is the Society-Port, ſo called from a Society of Brewers who have a great ſquare Court near it, with ſtately Houſes and other Buildings round it. The Weſt-Port, which leads to a Suburb of that Name lies below the Caſtle. The North-Gate, which is at the lower end of the North-Lake, conſiſts of an inner and outer Gate, and gives Entrance from a Suburb called Mutters-Hill.

The City is governed by a Ld Provoſt, who has much the ſame Power with the Ld Mayor of London; 4 Bailiffs, who have the Power both of Aldermen and Sheriffs; and a Common-Council of 25 Perſons, all choſe annually; and the Provoſt, Dean of Gild and Treaſurer are to be Merchants, for if any Tradeſman be choſe to thoſe Offices, he muſt leave off his Trade, and not take it up again without Permiſſion of the Magiſtrates and Town-Council; and no Man is to be choſe Provoſt, Bailiff, Dean of Gild, or Treaſurer, without having been a Year or two a Member of the Common-Council. No Man is to continue in the Council above 2 Years at a time, except he be a Member of it by virtue of a ſuperior Office. The Bailiffs are choſe indifferently out of 12 Candidates; and none is to be elected Deacon of any of the 14 Companies, except he has been Maſter of his Trade at leaſt 2 Years, nor to continue a Deacon above 2 Years at a time. The 14 incorporated Trades are Surgeons, Goldſmiths, Skinners, Furriers, Hammermen, Wrights, Maſons, Taylors, Bakers, Butchers, Cordwainers, Weavers, Wakers i. e. Fullers, and Bonnet or Cap-Makers. The Magiſtrates are annually choſen upon the Tueſd. after Michaelmas-Day by 38 Perſons, of whom 20 are Merchants, and 18 Tradeſmen; and the ſaid Magiſtrates, with the Town-Council, are to have the entire Adminiſtration of the Government, except in ſome reſerved Caſes, in which they are to take the Advice of the 14 Deacons of Trades; ſuch as the Election of Magiſtrates, Dean of Gild, and Treaſurer, letting Leaſes, giving Bounties and Places, and other publick Matters. None of the Merchants or Traders are to have any particular Conventions, or make any By-Laws without Conſent of the Magiſtrates and Town-Council, except it be to chuſe their own Deacons at the times appointed, to make Perſons free of their Trade, or to try their Work; and one of the Commiſſioners of Parliament was alway choſen out of the Tradesmen, and the other out of the Merchants. The Auditors of the Accounts are choſen by an equal number of Merchants and Tradeſmen. The Ld Provoſt, Dean of Gild, and Treaſurer, are not to continue longer than one or two Years at a time, and the Bailiff but one Year, one Year Old Bailiff, and one Year Free of Office. The Lord Provoſt for the time being was always one of the Privy-Council. There are 16 Companys of Train'd Bands, beſides a ſtanding Company of Town-Guards. It formerly ſent 2 Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now ſends 1 to that of Great Britain.

2. Leith, the Port of Edinburgh, lies on the Firth, about a m. from the City to the N. It has its Name from a ſmall R. which falls into the Firth on the W. ſide of it, and is one of the beſt frequented Harbours in Scotland. It was noted in Q. Mary's Minority for being fortify'd, and holding out by a French Gariſon, by Authority of the Queen Dowager, a Daughter of the Houſe of Lorrain, againſt the Nobility, &c. of Scotland, who ſtood up for their Liberties and the Reformation, and were obliged to call for Q. Elizabeth's Aſſiſtance to drive out the French. In 1544. John Dudley, Viſc. Liſle, landed here with 200 Ships, waſted Edinburgh, and at his Return burnt this Town. It ſoon recover'd again, and M. DeDeſſe, General for Francis II K. of France who had marry'd Mary Q. of Scotland, fortified it regularly with a Deſign to conquer the whole Iſland; which the Engliſh foreſeeing, ſent an Army, at the Deſire of the Proteſtant States of Scotland, under the Ld Grey, which with their Aſſiſtance ſoon forced the French to return home. Moſt Part of the Town was burnt during the Siege, and all the Works were afterward demoliſhed. Oliver Cromwell built a ſtrong Fort or Cittadel here, which was demoliſhed by K. Charles about 1664. This Town is ſubject to the Juriſdiction of Edinburgh, is now a large and flouriſhing Place, and has many ſtately Houſes, eſpecially towards the Harbour, for the Security of which, there's a long Peer, which runs a good way into the Sea.

3. Muſſelburgh, or Muſcleburgh, about 4 m. S. E. of Edinburgh, near the Mouth of the River Esk. 'Tis a large Market-Town with a Harbour, and is noted for the Defeat of the Scots Army in the Neighbourhood, by the D. of Sommerſet in the Reign of K. Edward VI. that War being occaſion'd by the Popiſh and French Faction who broke the Contract of Marriage agreed on by his Father Henry VIII. betwixt Mary Q. of Scots and his Son Edward, then both very young. 'Tis alſo noted for the ignominious Flight of Hepburn E. of Bothwell, who, with Mary Q. of Scots his Wife, brought an Army hither to fight againſt thoſe who purſued him for the Murder of her former Husband K. Henry. Upon the Earl's Flight, and the Diſcontents in her Army, which was averſe to fight in the Quarrel, ſhe diſmiſs'd them, and ſurrender'd her ſelf to the Nobility of the other ſide, and was afterwards by Act of Parliament ſent Priſoner to the Caſtle of Lochlevin, as being concerned in the Murder of her Husband K. Henry.

4. Preſton,

4. Preſton Pans, and Town, on the ſame Coaſt, about a m. ½ S. E. from Muſcleburgh. The Town has a weekly Market, and the Pans are noted for a Harbour, and making great Quantities of Salt.

5. Seatoun, about ¼ of a m. N. E. of Preſton, is a Village and noble Seat, which gave Sirname to the noble and antient Family of Winton, Chief of the Seatons. The laſt Earl was forfeited for taking Arms in behalf of the Pretender.

6. Coakeny, a Village with a Harbour, ¼ of a m. N. of Seatoun.

7. Tranent, a handſome Market-Town, a m. ¼ S. of Seatoun.

8. Dalkeith, a handſome Market-Town, 5 m. S. E. of Edinburgh, near the Conflux of the 2 Rivers Esk. Here was a large antient Caſtle, which, with the Neighbouring Territory, did formerly belong to the Family of Douglaſs; but of late to the Family of Buccleugh, Chief of the antient and noble Family of Scot. This Town gives Title of Earl to the Eldeſt Son of the Family; and the Dutcheſs has built a fine Seat on part of the Scite of the Caſtle. There's a noble Park adjoining, water'd by the River Esk, and well ſtock'd with Deer. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery, containing 10 Pariſhes.

9. Newbottle, a m. ¼ S. from Dalkeith, on the River Esk, is a handſome Village, and has a noble Seat, which is the chief Reſidence of the Marq. of Lothian.

10. Dalhouſy, on the ſame River, a m. ½ S. W. from Newbottle, a handſome Village, with a fine Seat, which gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the antient and noble Family of Ramſey.

11. Roſlin, 2 m. N. W. of Dalhouſy, famous for the Remains of a Chappel, which was reckoned one of the moſt curious Pieces of Architecture in Europe. 'Twas founded in 1440, by William Sinclair, Prince of Orkney, Duke of Oldenburgh, &c. Here are the Tombs of ſeveral Great Men. This Place is alſo remarkable for three Victories obtained over the Engliſh in one Day, in 1302. There are many other Seats of Noblemen and Gentlemen in this Shire, which we can't inſiſt upon.

12. Aberlady, on the Coaſt, 3 m. E. from Tranent, is a large Village with a Harbour.

13. Pencaitland, a large Village, 3 m. ½ S. E. of Tranent.

14. Ormiſton, a m. S. from Pencaitland, a handſome Village and Seat, which gives Title to an antient and honourable Family of the Sirname of Cockburn.

XV. Eaſt Lothian, or the Shire or Conſtablewick of Haddington,

HAS the Shire of Edinburgh on the W. the River Forth on the E. and S. E. part of the Shire of Berwick on the S. and the Firth on the N. 'Tis about 13 m. from E. to W. and 10 where broadeſt S. and N. 'Tis a very pleaſant and fruitful Country, abounds with Gentlemens Seats, Corn, and Cattel, and is well ſupply'd with Fiſh by the Rivers and neighbouring Sea. It formerly ſent 4 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now but one to that of Great Britain.

Places of Note are,

1. Haddington, the Head Town of the Shire. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now joins with 4 others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis a pretty large Town, handſomely built, has a good Market, and is the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 16 Pariſhes. It was ſeiz'd and fortified by the Engliſh in the Minority of Mary Q. of Scots, and held out a long Siege, which occaſion'd conſiderable Actions in the Neighbourhood. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Hamilton. It has a very handſome Church, to which is adjoin'd the Sepulchre of the Family of Lauderdale, with very noble Tombs. Here's a handſome Bridge over the River Tine, upon which the Town is pleaſantly ſituate. There are many Gentlemens Seats in the Neighbourhood, the chief of which is Teſter, about 2 m. ½ S. the principal Reſidence of the Marq. of Tweddale, a Branch of the noble and antient Family of Hay. 'Tis a ſtately Houſe with fine Gardens, a large Park, and Plantations of Trees.

2. North-Berwick, on the Coaſt, 3 m. ½ N. E. of Haddington, is a Market-Town and Royal Borough; ſent formerly a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. There's a Harbour, and a handſome Seat in the Neighbourhood, which belongs to Sir David Dalrymple, a Son of the noble Family of Stair.

3. Tentallon, 2 m. ¼ S. E. of North Berwick, on the Coaſt, was formerly a ſtrong Caſtle, which belong'd to the Family of Douglaſs, but now ruinous.

4. Tynningham, a handſome Village, near the Mouth of the Tine, 2 m. S. E. of Tentallon. Here's a noble Seat, which is the principal Reſidence of the Earl of Haddington.

5. Belhaven, about 2 m. S. E. of Tynningham, is a Village with a handſome Seat, which gives Title of Lord to a Branch of the Family of Hamilton.

6. Dumbar, on the Coaſt, about ½ a m. S. of Belhaven, and 7 E. of Haddington. 'Tis an antient Town, and gave Sirname and Title of Earl to the great Family of Dumbar, whoſe Title is now extinguiſhed; but there are many conſiderable Gentlemen of that Sirname in Scotland, who are deſcended from it. This Town is a Royal Borough, formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. Here was formerly a ſtrong Caſtle, but now demoliſhed. This Town is the Seat of a Preſbytery, which conſiſts of 10 Pariſhes. It has a good Market, and a noble Herring-Fiſhing commonly at the Seaſon. This Town is remarkable for the Defeat of K. Charles II's Army near it, by Oliver Cromwell in 1650. There are ſeveral noble Seats in the Neighbourhood, the chief of which is Brockſmouth, which belongs to the Duke of Roxburgh; and Lochend, which belongs to Sir George Warrender.

7. Dunglaſs, 5 m. S. E. of Dumbar, a handſome Village, with a noble Seat, and Plantations of Trees, belonging to Sir James Hall. It formerly belong'd to the Earls of Hume, and was treacherouſly blown up by one Paris, an Engliſhman, in 1640, upon the News that the Scots had defeated the Engliſh commanded by the Earl of Strafford at Newburn, above Newcaſtle. The then Earl of Haddington, who was Governor of the Caſtle, with many Gentlemen of Note, were deſtroy'd by the blowing up of the Houſe. There are ſeveral Coal-Pits and Salt-Pans in the Neighbourhood. There are many other Gentlemens Seats in this Shire, that we have not room to mention.

There are ſeveral Iſlands in the Firth, the chief of which are,

1. The Baſs, a m. from the S. Shore. It riſes in a Conick Form very high, has Graſs upon the top for about 20 Sheep, and a ſmall Coney-Warren, with a Freſh-water Spring. 'Tis about a m. round, ſteep and inacceſſible on every ſide, except on the S. W. and there only acceſſible by one at a time, with the Help of a Cable or Crane to draw them up; and at the Top of this Paſſage there was an impregnable Fort, mounted with Cannon. It was ſurpriz'd after the Revolution by ſome of K. James's Party, with the Help of ſome Priſoners within; but not being able to do much hurt from it, they ſoon abandoned it. The Tide has made a great Cut in the lower Part of the Rock, almoſt from one ſide to the other. 'Tis of chief Note for thoſe called Selen or Solan Geeſe, which are not found any where elſe in theſe Seas, except about another Rock in the Firth of Clyde. They flock hither in April, ſending ſome beforehand as Scouts or Quarter-Maſters, to fix their Lodgings. The Inhabitants never diſturb them till they have built their Neſts; and then they are not to be frighted by any Noiſe whatever. They have a Crane's Neck, and a ſharp Bill as long as one's Middle-Finger, ſo firmly fixed to the Breaſt-Bone, that it can't be pluck'd from it; which Nature ſeems to have provided on purpoſe, leſt it ſhould break its Neck by ſtriking at its Prey, which it does with great Violence. They are often taken by faſtening a Herring to a Board on purpoſe; and the Bird ſtrikes its Beak through the Fiſh into the Board ſo far, that it can't draw it out again. They lay but one Egg a year, and fix it ſo dextrouſly to the Rock by one End, that if it be removed, 'tis impoſſible to fix it to the Place again. They cover it with their Foot, and ſeldom leave it till it be hatched. The Young-ones are of an Aſh Colour. The Old-ones, which are white, catch Herrings enough to feed themſelves, and to ſubſiſt the Inhabitants; and the Sticks which they bring for their Neſts ſupply them with Fuel. They taſte much of Herrings, and are fatter than any other Fowl; but the Fleſh of the Old-ones is hard, lean, and black. When they are as big as Geeſe, they are very good Meat; and they yield a conſiderable Profit not only by their Fleſh, but by their Feathers, for filling of Beds. A great Profit is made by their Young-ones, which are taken from their Neſts by a Perſon let down over the Rock with a Cable. They leave the Iſland in September; and whither they retire during the Winter, is not known.

2. May-Iſle, 8 m. N. E. of the Baſs, and 7 S. from the Coaſt of Fife. 'Tis a m. long from N. to S. and ¼ of a m. broad. It has a Freſh-water Spring, and a ſmall Lake; and in the Summer affords Paſturage for 100 Sheep, and 20 Black Cattel. The W. Side is inacceſſible, becauſe of high Rocks; but the E. Side is plain, and has 4 Landing-Places, one of which is a ſafe Harbour for Ships during a ſtrong W. Wind. Fiſh of all ſorts abound on the Coaſt of this Iſland; and here's plenty of Fowl, particularly Skarts, Dunters, Gulls, Scouts, and Kittiwakes. The latter are about the Size of a Dove, and in July preferred to a Partridge. The Scouts are ſomewhat leſs than a Duck; but their Eggs larger than thoſe of a Gooſe, and when boil'd hard, eat very well with Vinegar and Parſley. The Iſland was formerly dedicated to St. Adrian, and had a Monaſtery and Chappel, which was frequented by the Women, in Times of Popery, for the Cure of Barrenneſs, which whether the Monks had not the moſt Influence in curing, the Reader may judge. However, the Cheat obtain'd ſo far, that Wood of Largo, a noted Sea Captain, had a Charter of ſeveral Lands from K. James IV. to be ready upon a Call to attend his Majeſty and the Queen, while they viſited St. Adrian's Chappel. Here is a Light-Houſe 40 Foot high, for Direction of Ships, which allow 2 d per Ton for maintaining it.

3. Inchkeith lies higher up in the Firth, 4 m. N. E. of Leith, and 2 S. from the Coaſt of Fife. 'Tis a m. ½ long, and ½ a m. broad. The Soil is fat, produces good Graſs, and abundance of Phyſick Herbs. It has 4 Freſh-water Springs, and as many Harbours, viz. one towards every Quarter. It riſes in the Middle, and had a ſtrong Stone Fort raiſed upon it by Q. Mary. There's a Quarry of Stones here which ſends forth a ſulphurous Smell, when any of 'em are broke off; but very fit for building. There are great Shoals of Fiſh round the Coaſts of this Iſland, and abundance of Oyſters during the Winter. 'Tis obſerv'd that Horſes grow fat here in a little time.

XVI. Lenox, or the Shire of Dumbarton,

HAS Argyleſhire on the W. Menteith and Stirlingſhire on the E. the River Clyde and part of Clydſdale on the S. and on the N. it ends in a narrow Slip, that touches the Shire of Argyle. 'Tis 18 m. from N. to S. and 27 from E. to W. where longeſt. Its Bounds were larger formerly than now, eſpecially on the E. Side. That Part of it which lies upon Rivers is fruitful in Corn, and the mountainous Parts abound with Paſture, and numerous Flocks, from whence the Inhabitants reap great Profit. Its chief River is Levin, or Levinox, from whence 'tis ſuppos'd to take its Name. It runs from Lochlomond into Clyde, and abounds with excellent Salmon; and there's a noble Herring-Fiſhing in Lochlong and Lochfin, 2 Bays that break into it from the Mouth of Clyde.

The chief Mountains here are the Grampian Hills, that begin at Lochlomond, and run N. towards Aberdeen. The E. Part of the Country lies low among Rivers. The Inhabitants have Coal and Turf for Fuel. The County contains 12 Pariſhes. It formerly gave Title of Earl and Duke to a Branch of the Family of Stuart, many of whom were very great Men. The Title is now in the D. of Richmond, Natural Son to K. Charles II.

Here are ſeveral Lakes, the Chief of which is Loch-Lomund. 'Tis 24 m. from N. to S. The greateſt Breadth on the S. ſide is 8 m. from whence to the N. 'tis encompaſſed with very high Hills, and in ſome Places 'tis but 2 m. over. There are 30 Iſlands in it, 3 of which have Churches; and there are ſeveral Forts upon thoſe called Floating-Iſlands, which are only Beams faſten'd together, and cover'd with Turf, into which the Inhabitants uſed to retire in time of War. There's a ſort of Eels peculiar to this Lake, called Poans, or Pollocks, which are a very delicious Food, and gave occaſion to the Fable, that this Lake bred Fiſh without Fins. The higheſt Mountain about this Lake has its Name from it.

The chief Iſlands in it are, 1. Inche Crowny, at the N. End of the Lake. 'Tis populous and well tilled. 2. Inche Chaille, a m. to the E. which is a ſmall but fruitful Iſland, and has a Pariſh-Church. 3. Inche Merin, above 5 m. to the S. W. of the former, is near 20 Furlongs in length. 'Tis larger and more famous than any of the reſt, has good Corn and Paſture, ſeveral Houſes, and Plenty of Deer, which the Kings of Scotland uſed to come hither to hunt. 4. Na Chaſtel, is ½ a m. to the N. has an old Caſtle from whence it takes its Name, and is almoſt covered with Ivy. 5. Inche Davannan, about a ¼ of a m. from Chaſtal, is about ½ a m. long, and as much broad. 'Tis pleaſantly diverſify'd with Wood, abounds with Broom, wild Berries and Snakes, and has pleaſant Habitations, Gardens, and Fruit-Trees. It belongs to the Earl of Glencairn. The other Iſlands in this Lake are of ſo little Note, that we ſhall not mention them. This Shire formerly ſent two Members to the Parl. of Scotland, and now one to that of Great Britain.

The Town of chief Note in this Shire is Dumbarton, a Royal Borough upon the R. Leven, a m. from its Influx into the Clyde, 53 m. W. from Edinburgh, and 16 N. W. from Glaſgow. Some call it Dunbritton, or the Town of the Britons, becauſe they held it out a great while againſt the Scots, Picts, and Saxons, according to Camden. Gildas ſays, ſome of the Britons defended themſelves here in the midſt of Enemies for 300 Years after the Departure of the Romans. Bede writes, that in his time it was a very ſtrong City; but in 756. Edbert, King of Northumberland, and Oengus, King of the Picts, joining their Forces, blocked it up, and forced it to capitulate. Maximus reports, that this was a flouriſhing City for ſeveral Ages, and a noble Emporium; but now the Trade is for the moſt part removed to Glaſgow, tho it ſtill retains old Privileges. It has one of the ſtrongeſt Caſtles in Europe both by Art and Nature. It ſtands ½ a m. from the Town, at the Conflux of the Rs. at the End of a green Plain, upon a Rock which has 2 Heads, on the higheſt of which to the W. is a Watch-Tower, which has a large Proſpect on all ſides; and on the Eaſtermoſt are ſeveral Forts. The Rock is very ſteep on all ſides but towards the Clyde, where the Aſcent is more eaſy: And betwixt the two Rocks there's a ſpace of Ground incloſed which contains many Houſes, makes a ſafe Harbour for Ships under the Caſtle, and opens a Paſſage for Boats to the very Gate. The Aſcent is ſo narrow, that one Man can only go up at a time, and that with Difficulty upon Steps cut out of the Rock, which, when cut or broke off, iſſues a ſulphureous Smell. On the upper part of it there is a great Rock of Loadſtone. There are 3 Wells in the Caſtle which are never dry, beſides many Springs. As the Rs. Leven on the W. and the Clyde on the S. ſerve as Ditches to the Town, ſo on the E. there is a Plain over-flowed by the Tide, which leaves Mud behind it inſtead of Sand. This Town is the Seat of a Presbytery containing 17 Pariſhes, formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now 1 to that of Great Britain in conjunction with 3 other Boroughs. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the illuſtrious Family of Douglaſs.

The chief Families in this Shire are, the Steuarts, Campbels, Colchouns, Napers, of which Family was the famous Mathematician the Ld Marchiſtoun; Mardalans, Mac-Allans, Haldens, Semples, Ereskins, Hamiltons, and Buchanans, from which Family deſcended the famous George Buchanan, one of the greateſt Ornaments of his Age and Country for polite Literature. The D. of Montroſe is now Hereditary Sheriff of this County, which Office formerly belonged to the Family of Lennox.

XVII. The Shire of Argyle, or Innerary,

INcluding Argyle, and its Subdiviſions of Cantire, Knapdale, Cowal, and Lorn; is bounded on the W. with the Deucaledonian or Part of the Weſtern Ocean, on the N. with Lochaber, on the E. with Broadalbin, Mentieth, and Lenox, and on the S. with the Frith of Clyde and its Iſlands. 'Tis about 90 m. from the Mull of Cantire on the S. to Lochaber on the N. and, including the Iſles, is 70 where broadeſt from E. to W. The Coaſt is full of high Rocks and black Mountains covered with Heath, which feed great numbers of Black Cattle, Deer, and Wild Beaſts. Their Black Cattle generally run wild, but are excellent Meat; and their Fat boiled continues ſome Days like Oil. In this Shire are 7 great Lochs or Bays of the Sea, which with other leſſer ones abound with Fiſh of all ſorts. This County is the Seat of a Provincial Synod containing 5 Presbyteries, and 49 Pariſhes. It formerly ſent 3 Commiſſioners to the Parl. of Scotland, and now ſends 1 to that of Great Britain; and gives Title of Duke, as it did formerly of Earl and Marquiſs, to the Chief of the illuſtrious and heroick Family of Campbel, deſcended from the antient Princes of this Country, whoſe Origin is derived from one of the Kings of Ulſter in Ireland. The Chief of this Family was made an Earl by K. James II. They were for a long time Hereditary Lords Juſtices General, or Lords Chief Juſtices in Criminal Affairs for the whole Kingdom, but ſurrender'd that Office to K. Charles I. on condition of having the Hereditary Juriſdiction of Argyle and the Iſles. The Duke is Hereditary Great Maſter of the King's Houſhold in Scotland, Lord Lieutenant of the Shires of Argyle and Dumbarton, Hereditary Admiral of the Weſtern Iſles, Hereditary Sheriff of the County, and Hereditary Governour of Dunoon Caſtle. He is alſo Duke and Earl of Greenwich, and Baron of Chatham in England. This Family has had the Honour to match with the Royal Family and others of the greateſt Note in the Kingdom. They are poſſeſſed of many Royalties, and have abundance of Vaſſals, who are obliged to pay the Portions of the Daughters of the Family, when married, and are taxed towards it according to the number of their Cattle. This Country was the firſt Seat of the Scots when they landed from Ireland, and, according to Camden, had its Name Ar Gwythil from thence, which in the old Britiſh Language ſignifies the Bank or Border of Ireland; for the Britons called the Iriſh Guithil and Goathel. It abounds with Caſtles and Gentlemens Seats, moſt of which are poſſeſſed by Branches of the Family of Campbel, of whom, beſides the Duke, there are of the Nobility the Earls of Loudon, Braidalbin, and Ila, with many Gentlemen of Note. This Family has ſuffered much for their Stedfaſtneſs to the Proteſtant Religion and the Liberties of their Country for the moſt part ſince the Reformation till the Revolution.

Kintyre the moſt W. Part of the County, is a Peninſula, which runs out into the Iriſh Sea, is 37 m. in length from N. to S. and the greateſt Breadth is about 7, according to Pont's Map. This Country is fruitful, well inhabited, and planted for the moſt part by Low-Landers, brought thither by the Family of Argyle, who have taken more care to civilize their Highlands than any of the other great Chiefs of Clans. The chief antient Family here is that of Mac-Cowal, to whom the Family of Argyle is ſuperior. The chief Place in this Peninſula is Campbel-Town, about 13 m. N. from the Mull of Kintyre. 'Tis a Royal Borough, has a weekly Market, is the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 10 Pariſhes, ſent formerly a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now joins with 4 others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. It has a ſafe Harbour for Ships.

Knapdale is bounded with Kintyre on the S. Lorn on the N. Braidalbin on the N. E. the Weſtern Iſlands on the W. and Lochfyn on the E. which divides it from Cowal. 'Tis about 20 m. from N. to S. and 13 where broadeſt from E. to W. 'Tis joined to Kintyre by a Neck of Sand ſcarce a m. broad, thro which the Country People draw their ſmall Veſſels to prevent their ſailing round Kintyre. This Part of the Country is full of Lakes, in ſome of which are Iſlands with Caſtles, and in general 'tis fitter for Paſture than Corn; but that part of it which lies upon Lochow is fruitful both in Corn and Paſture.

The chief Towns here are, 1. Inverary, near the Bottom of Lochfyn, 68 m. N. W. of Edinburgh. It gives the Title of Lord to the D. of Argyle, is a Market-Town, the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 8 Pariſhes, and a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain, in conjunction with 4 others. Here's an antient large Caſtle, the chief Reſidence of the Family of Argyle. The Town held out under the E. of Ila againſt thoſe who took Arms for the Pretender in 1715.

2. Kilmore, on a R. that falls into the ſame Loch, near 8 m. to the N. W. is the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 12 Pariſhes.

Lorn reaches as far as Lochaber on the N. has Broadalbin on the E. Knapdale on the S. and the Weſtern Iſlands on the W. 'Tis above 30 Scots m. in length from N. to S. and about 9 where broadeſt from E. to W. 'Tis a plain Country, abounds with Barley, has many Lakes, and is the moſt pleaſant and fruitful Part of the Shire of Argyle. It gave Title of Lord, as it does now that of Marquiſs to the eldeſt Son of the Family of Argyle, to whom it came by Marriage with an Heireſs of a Branch of the Family of Stuarts, who were antiently Lords of Lorn. One of the moſt antient Families in this Country is the Macdowgals, who were formerly Lords of it.

The Place of chief Note here is the Caſtle of Dunſtafage, or St. Stephen's Mountain, in the W. Part of the Country, 105 m. N. W. of Edinburgh. It formerly belonged to the Kings of Scotland, many of whom were buried here. 'Tis now the D. of Argyle's, and governed by an Hereditary Captain under his Grace.

Argyle Proper has Knapdale and Cowal on the S. Lochaber on the N. Lennox, and the Grampian Hills on the E. and Lorn on the W. The chief Lochs here are thoſe of Lochfyn and Lochow. The firſt has been already deſcribed in Lennox. The latter is about 24 m. from N. to S. and one broad, and gives Title of Viſcount to the Duke of Argyle. Biſhop Leſley, who makes it almoſt as large as Lochlomond, ſays it contains 12 Iſlands, in 2 of which are Caſtles, viz. Elconel and Glenurquhart. A River runs from it into Loch-Elyf, which falls into the W. Sea over againſt the Iſle of Mull, and abounds with Salmon.

Cowal, the laſt Subdiviſion of this Shire, lies between Lochfyn on the W. the Firth of Clyde on the E. the Iſle of Bute on the S. Argyle and the Grampian Mountains on the N. and abounds with Lakes and Bays. There are many Gentlemens Seats in this Shire, of which we have no Deſcription.

The chief Place of Cowal is Denoon, formerly the Seat of the Biſhop of Argyle, and now of a Presbytery conſiſting of 8 Pariſhes.

XVIII. The Shire of Perth,

HAS Part of Argyleſhire and Lennox on the W. Lochaber on the N. W. Badenoch on the N. Mar and Angus on the E. and Fife, Clacmannan, Stirlingſhire and Part of Lennox on the S. 'Tis 73 m. from E. to W. where longeſt, and 59 from N. to S. where broadeſt. 'Tis divided into Menteith, Broadalbin, Athol, Strathern, Gowry, and Perth Proper. The whole Country abounds with Paſture and Corn, Fruit-Trees, Groves, Rivers, and Lakes.

The chief Rivers are, 1. The Tay, the largeſt in Scotland, which riſes riſes in Broadalbin, and paſſing thro a Lake of the ſame Name 15 m. long, and almoſt 6 where broadeſt, runs for near 40 m. excluſive of Windings and Turnings, into that called the Firth of Tay, receiving ſeveral leſſer Rivers in its Courſe. 2. The R. Keith, famous for its Salmon-Fiſhery. It has a Cataract nigh Blair of Dromond, which makes ſo great a Noiſe as ſtuns thoſe who are near it. Hither come at certain times of the Year great numbers of Salmon, many of which, when the R. is ſwelled, leap up the Cataract, and others are forced back by the Torrent into the Fiſhermens Nets. 3. The River Jern riſes from Locherne, a Lake 7 m. long, and 1 broad, in the mountainous Country of Stratherne, and falls into the Tay at Abernethy, after a Courſe of 34 m. from W. to E. and receives many Rivers in its Paſſage. There are 5 Presbyteries in this County, and 88 Pariſh-Churches. It had formerly 2 Biſhop's Sees, viz. Dunkel and Dunblain, 3 Monaſteries, and one Nunnery, and ſent 4 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it now does 1 to that of Great Britain. The Hereditary-Sheriff is the D. of Athol, who is alſo Lord Lieutenant of the County. Here are many Caſtles and other Seats of the Nobility, on which we cannot inſiſt.

Athol, the moſt N. Diviſion, has Badenoch on the N. Lochaber on the W. Mar and Goury on the E. and S.E. Strathern and Perth on the S. and Broadalbin on the S. W. 'Tis above 43 m. from N. W. to S. E. where longeſt, and 31 where broadeſt. Here are many Mountains, and the Valleys are full of Woods. It gives Title of Duke to the Chief of the noble and antient Family of Murray, deſcended by Marriage from the Stuarts, formerly Lords of Athol.

The Place of chief Note here is Blair-Caſtle, one of the Seats of the D. of Athol, on the R. Tilt, near its Influx into the Garry, 15. m. N. of Dunkel. At Gillicranky, near this Place, a Battle was fought after the Revolution betwixt King William's Troops commanded by General Mackey, and thoſe who took Arms for the late King James under the E. of Dundee. Both ſides pretended to the Victory, but the E. falling in the Battel, damped the Courage of his Men, and ſtopped their Progreſs.

The ſecond Diviſion is Broadalbin, which is bounded on the W. with Lochaber, Lorn, and Knapdale; on the N. with Athol, and Part of Lochaber; on the E. with Part of Athol; and on the S. with Strathern and Menteith. 'Tis above 32 Scots m. from E. to W. where longeſt, and about 13 where broadeſt from N. to S. The Name in the Highland Dialect ſignifies the higheſt Part of Scotland, and it lies among the high and craggy Grampian Mountains. This appears to have been the Country antiently called Albany, from which the Sons of the Royal Family had the Title of Duke, which is now enjoyed by his Majeſty's Brother Prince Erneſt D. of York and Albany. 'Tis chiefly inhabited by the Highlanders, a hardy warlike People, who ſtill call themſelves Albinnich from this Country, retain the antient Language and Habit, and follow much of the antient Parſimony in their way of living. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the antient and noble Family of Campbel.

The third Diviſion is Menteith, which is bounded with Broadalbin and Strathern on the N. Stirlingſhire and Part of Lenox on the S. Fife on the E. and Part of Lenox on the W. 'Tis 44 m. from E. to W. and 28 where broadeſt.

The only Place of Note in this Diviſion is Dumblain, on the W. ſide of the R. Allan, almoſt 6 m. N. of Stirling, and 33 m. N. W. of Edinburgh. It was formerly a Biſhop's See, is a Market-Town, and the Seat of a Presbytery containing 12 Pariſhes, and has a Church of excellent Workmanſhip. 'Tis noted for a Battle at Sheriffmuir in the Neighbourhood, Nov. 13. 1715. betwixt the D. of Argyle, who commanded the King's Troops, and the late E. of Mar who commanded thoſe that took Arms for the Pretender. The Left of the King's Army having given way, and the Right of the E. of Mar's being routed, both ſides pretended to the Victory; but the Conſequence proved the Victory to be gained by the Duke, tho he had not a third of the Enemy's Number. It gives the Title of Viſcount to the Duke of Leeds in England.

The Fourth Diviſion is Strathern, which has Menteith, and part of Fife on the S. Broadalbain and Athol on the N. part of Menteith on the W. and Perth on the E. 'Tis 40 m. from E. to W. and above 20 from N. to S. where broadeſt.

This Country takes Denomination from the River Ern, which runs from a Lake of the ſame Name, and after a Courſe of 35 m. thro the Country, beſides Turnings, falls into the Tay.

The chief Places here are,

1. Drummond-Caſtle, formerly the Seat of the Lord Drummond, on the Bank of the Ern.

2. Tullibardin, another Caſtle on the ſame River, the antient Seat of the Chief of the Murrays, which gives Title of Marquiſs to the Duke of Athol's eldeſt Son.

3. Duplin-Caſtle, below, on the oppoſite Bank of the ſame River, is the Seat of the Earl of Kinnoule, to whom it gives Title of Viſcount. 'Tis noted for the greateſt Defeat that ever the Scots received from the Engliſh, in Edward Baliol's Reign, whom the Engliſh came to aſſiſt: In which Battel there fell 80 of the Family of Lindſey, and ſo many of that of Hay, that it would have been quite extinguiſh'd, had not the Chief left his Lady with Child.

4. Abernethy, about 6 m. S. E. of Perth, and 24 N. of Edinburgh. It ſtands in the S. E. Corner of this Diviſion, at the Conflux of the Ern and Tay. 'Tis an antient Town, was the Metropolis of the Picts, and a Biſhop's See, till Pope Sixtus IV. removed it to St. Andrews in 1471.

Gaury, the Fifth Diviſion, lies N. of Perth, and is famous for noble Fields of Corn.

Perth Proper, the laſt Diviſion of the Shire, has Strathern on the W. Athol on the N. Gaury on the N. E. Angus on the E. and the Firth of Tay on the S. 'Tis near 20 m. from N. W. to S. E. and about 15 where broadeſt. At Ardoch, in this Country, there are the Remains of a Roman Camp; and near the Town of Perth there is a Roman Way, or Via Militaris, where ſeveral Medals, Urns, and other Monuments of Antiquity have been found. In thoſe called the Ochil Mountains, there's Lapis Calaminaris, Copper, and Lead.

Places of chief Note here are,

1. Dunkeld, the antient Caledonia, about 40 m. N. of Edinburgh, and 12 N. of Perth. It ſtands at the Foot of the Grampian Hills, on the N. ſide of the Tay. It was made a Biſhop's See by K. David, and had once a very ſtately Cathedral: But its chief Ornament now is a noble Houſe belonging to the Duke of Athol. 'Tis the beſt Market-Town of the Highlands, and the Seat of a Presbytery containing 20 Pariſhes. 'Tis alſo noted for a remarkable Defeat given to the Highlanders that took Arms for the late K. James, by the late Earl of Angus's Regiment.

2. Ruthven-Caſtle, lower down, on the ſame River, 4 m. N. W. of Perth, was the antient Seat of the Ruthvens, Earls of Gaury.

3. Scoon, on the other ſide of the Tay, about 2 m. E. from the former, and the ſame N. from Perth. Here was once a famous Monaſtery, remarkable for the Coronation of the Kings of Scotland, in that called the fatal Wooden Chair, placed over a certain Marble Stone, ſaid to be firſt brought out of Ireland by Fergus I. into Argyleſhire, and upon the Extermination of the Picts in the Neighbourhood, was removed hither by Kenneth, and afterwards to Weſtminſter by Order of Edward I. King of England. It has the following Diſtich upon it, by way of Prophecy;

Ni fallat fatum, Scoti quocunque locatum
Inveniunt lapidem, regnare tenentur ibidem.

Importing that the Scots ſhould reign wherever this Stone was found; which ſome think to have been accompliſhed by the Union of the two Crowns. This Place gives Title of Baron to the Viſcount Stormont, a Branch of the Family of Murray. Here's a noble Palace, which belongs to the Crown.

4. Perth, or St. John's-Town, a City, on the W. ſide of the Tay, 28 m. N. of Edinburgh. The Name is deriv'd from Perth, an antient Town, which in 1029 was totally ruined by an Inundation, and the preſent built in a more convenient Place by K. William of Scotland. It ſoon became ſo wealthy, that Necham, who lived in that Age, ſays, its Riches ſupported the whole Kingdom. Poſterity call'd it St. John's-Town, from a Church dedicated to St. John. During the War betwixt the Bruces and the Baliols, the Engliſh fortified it with ſtrong Works, which the Scots afterwards for the moſt part deſtroy'd. 'Tis a neat pleaſant Town betwixt two Meadows. 'Tis the ſecond Town in Scotland for Dignity, and has often been the Seat of Parliaments. Veſſels come up to it with the Tide. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 21 Pariſhes; formerly ſent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, as it does now, in conjunction with four others to that of Great Britain. It gave Title of Earl to James, the Chief of the Drummonds, ſince out-law'd for adhering to the Pretender, who gave him the Title of Duke. The late Earl of Mar retir'd hither with his broken Troops after the Battle of Sheriffmuir, made it his chief Place of Arms, caſt up ſome Fortifications; but fled from it with the Pretender on the Approach of the King's Forces, commanded by the Duke of Argyle and General Cadogan.

5. Errol, upon the Firth of Tay, 8 m. E. of Perth, is noted for giving Title of Earl to the Chief of the Hays, who were Hereditary Ld High-Conſtables of Scotland, and had a noble Seat here. This antient and illuſtrious Family deſcended from one Hay, a very ſtout Husbandman, who in the Time of K. Kenneth, in 980, when the Daniſh Invaders had routed the Scots near Perth, perceiving his Countrymen flying before the Enemy, he and his two Sons took Yokes, &c. from their Ploughs, with which they ſtopp'd their Countrymen, and upbraiding them for their Cowardice, oblig'd them to rally: Upon which the Danes, ſuppoſing freſh Succours were come, retreated, and the Scots gained the Victory. For which Exploit K. Kenneth advanced him to the Dignity of Peerage, and rewarded him with the Earldom of Errol. He had likewiſe three Bloody Yokes aſſigned him for his Coat of Arms, which is ſtill born by his Poſterity.

The chief Families in Perthſhire are the Murrays, Hays, Stuarts, Drummonds, Campbels, Grahams, Oliphants, Ruthuens, Ogilvys, Haldens, Robertſons, Rollos, Kinnairds, Blairs, Toſchohs, Meinies, Fullartons, and Roſſes.

XIX. CLACMANNANSHIRE,

HAS Fife on the E. Perthſhire on the W. and N. and Stirlingſhire on the S. 'Tis a ſmall County, about 8 m. long, and 5 broad, and is ſuppoſed to have been dignified with the Title of a County in K. Robert Bruce's Time, becauſe it was the Patrimony of that Family. It produces good Corn, Paſturage, and ſtore of Coal and Salt. The chief Town is Clacmannan, where a Branch of the Family of Bruce, who is Sheriff of the County, has a Seat, in which is ſtill kept the Sword that the Brave and Victorious K. Robert Bruce made uſe of in his Wars. There are ſeveral other Gentlemens Seats in this County that we can't inſiſt upon. The chief of them is at Alloway, on the Bank of the Forth, a ſmall Town, where the late Earl of Mar had a noble Seat, and fine Gardens.

This Shire formerly ſent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now joins with that of Kinroſs in ſending one to that of Great Britain by Turns.

XX. The Shire of Kinroſs,

IS another ſmall County, which lies N. E. from Clacmannan, betwixt Lochlevin and the Ochil-Hills. The Earl of Kincairdin is Hereditary Sheriff. Kinroſs, which gives Name to the County, is a ſmall Town, on the W. ſide of Lochleven, which is 4 m. long, and 4 broad. It abounds with Pikes, Trouts, and all ſorts of Water-Fowl. It has an Iſland with a Caſtle, and another with the Ruins of a Priory, formerly the Reſidence of ſome of the Culdees. In the other Iſland there's a Caſtle, noted for the Impriſonment of Mary Q. of Scots, by Order of the Parliament, for the Murder of her Husband, and other Crimes, as appears by the Act for her Impriſonment.

Between the Town and the Lake there's a pleaſant Plain, where there's a noble Seat belonging to a Branch of the Family of Bruce, which for the Goodneſs of the Stone, the Fineneſs of the Architecture, Gardens, and Incloſure about it, yields to few in Britain.

Culroſs is by ſome reckoned in this County, and by others in Perthſhire. It is a Market-Town and Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Member to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with four others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. It has a conſiderable Trade in Coal and Salt, has the Ruins of a noble Abbey, and near it a ſtately Houſe, which was the Seat of the E. of Kincairdin, and has noble Gardens and Terraſs-Walks. This Town is alſo noted for a Manufacture of thin Iron Plates, called Girdles, which are uſed all over the Nation for baking Oatcakes.

XXI. The Shire of Fife.

THIS above 30 m. from E. to W. and about 14 from N. to S. 'Tis bounded with Gaury and the Firth of Tay on the N. Perth and Clacmannon on the W. the Firth on the S. and the German Ocean on the E. It lies between the two Firths above mention'd, like a Peninſula. The Earl of Rothes is Hereditary Sheriff of this County. On the W. it is mountainous; but the Coaſts are plain, and abound with all ſorts of Corn. The middle Parts have Plenty of Paſture and Cattel, eſpecially Sheep, whoſe Wool is much eſteem'd, as are alſo their Black Cattel, Deer, and Goats, of whoſe Hides, &c. the Inhabitants make great Profit. Here's great Store of Salt and Coals for home Conſumption and Export. Herrings are taken in great Quantities in Auguſt and September on the Coaſt, where are many ſafe Harbours, and the Coaſt-Towns are full of Mariners. The chief Rivers are, 1. The Leven. 2. The Edin, which abound with Salmon and other Fiſh. The Country is very populous, and both Gentry and Commonalty are brave and polite. The Ochil Mountains, on the W. afford good Paſture-Ground and Fields of Corn, and have pleaſant and fruitful Valleys between them. This Shire formerly ſent 4 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now but one to that of Great Britain. No County in Scotland has ſo many Towns that ſend Members to Parliament, or is inhabited by a greater Number of the Nobility.

The chief Towns are,

1. Dumfermling, almoſt 14 m. N. W. of Edinburgh. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 20 Pariſhes, and a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, as it does now one to that of Great Britain in conjunction with 4 other Boroughs. It had formerly a famous Monaſtery, founded by David I. as the Town was by K. Malcolm III. who lies buried here, with his two Sons, and his Q. Margaret. It gave Title of Earl to a Branch of the noble Family of Seatons: 'Tis a pretty Town, and has a Royal Palace, with a pleaſant Proſpect of the neighbouring Country. It ſtands on a ſmall River, over which it has a Bridge. King Charles I. and his Siſter, Princeſs Elizabeth, Grandmother to K. George, were born here.

2. Falkland, 12 m. N. E. of Dumfermling, a pretty Town, almoſt in the Centre of the Shire, on the Back of a Chain of Hills, which divide it into 2 Parts. Here's a ſumptuous Royal Palace, with a noble Park, well ſtock'd with Deer, &c. The Duke of Athol is Hereditary Keeper of the Palace; and the Town gives Title of Viſcount to a Branch of the Engliſh Family of Cary.

3. Cowper, called Cowper of Fife, to diſtinguiſh it from Cowper in Angus. It ſtands on the River Edin, almoſt 6 m. N. E. of Falkland, 10 m. W. of St. Andrews, and 22 N. of Edinburgh. 'Tis a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it now does one to that of Great Britain in conjunction with four others. 'Tis alſo the Seat of a Presbytery containing 20 Pariſhes, and the County Town where the Sheriff holds his Courts.

4. Balmerino, on the Firth of Tay, 5 m. N. of Cowper. It gives Title of Lord to a Branch of the Family of Elphinſton.

5. Innerkythin, 3 m. S. E. of Dumfermling, and 10 S. W. of Edinburgh, lies at the bottom of a Bay in the Firth, where it has a ſafe Harbour. 'Tis a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it does now one to that of Great Britain in conjunction with 4 other Boroughs. It was formerly a Place of conſiderable Trade.

6. Abyrdour, a Market-Town on the Firth of Forth, above 3 m. E. of Innerkythin.

7. Bruntiſland, or Bruntiland, with its Caſtle, on the ſame Coaſt, almoſt 3 m. E. of Abyrdour. 'Tis a Market-Town, and Royal Borough, which fomerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain, jointly with 3 others. There's a Paſſage-Boat which goes from hence every Day to Leith.

8. Kinghorn, on the ſame Coaſt, at 2 m. E. is alſo a Market-Town, and a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain, in conjunction with 3 others. Here's a Fountain of very clear Water in a Rock upon the Shore, reckoned good againſt Diſtempers of the Eyes and Bowels.

9. Kirkaldy, almoſt 2 m. from Kinghorn, on the ſame Coaſt, where it turns N. E. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 17 Pariſhes, and is alſo a Market-Town and Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain in conjunction with 3 others. It gives Title of Baron to the Earl of Melvil, whoſe noble and antient Seat of Raith lies about a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. W. of it; and Abbots-Hall, a noble Seat belonging to the Family of Ramſay, lies $\frac{1}{2}$ a m. N. W. of Kirkaldy.

10. Dyſert, on the ſame Coaſt, almoſt 2 m. N. E. is alſo a Market-Town and Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Member to the Parl. of Scotland, as it now does to that of Great Britain jointly with 3 others. The Shore here is very ſteep, and the neighbouring Soil abounds with Bitumen, and is therefore called Carbonum Area, i. e. the Floor of Coals. It gives Title of Earl to Talmaſh, an Engliſh Family, deſcended by Marriage from the Family of Murray of Tullibardin.

11. Weems-Caſtle, about a m. to the N. E. on the ſame Coaſt. It gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the Family of Weems, who has a Seat here. There are ſeveral Places of this Name on the ſame Coaſt not above a m. or 2 from each other, as Weem-Town, Weſt-Weems, South-Weems, Weems-kirk, and Eaſter-Weems.

12. Levin, a Market-Town at the Mouth of the River of its own Name, 5 m. N. E. from Dyſert. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Leſley, now alſo Earl of Melvil; the preſent Earl being a Son of that Family, but came to be Earl of Levin by marrying the Heireſs, and upon the Death of his eldeſt Brother came alſo to be Earl of Melvil.

13. Ely, near 5 m. S. E. on the ſame Coaſt. 'Tis a little Town inhabited by Fiſhermen and Mariners. It was built of Stone in 1620. by Will. Scot Baron of Ardroſs, ſo artificially, that it might vie with the Buildings of the Romans.

14. St. Monans, a Market-Town with a Caſtle, on the ſame Coaſt, at the Foot of a Hill a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ E.

15. Pitnaweem, or Pittenween, a Market-Town, a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. E. of St. Monans, on the ſame Coaſt, is a Royal Borough which formerly ſent a Member to the Parl. of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain, jointly with 4 others.

16. Weſt-Anſterrudder, or Anſtruther-Weſter, is another Market-Town on the ſame Coaſt, near a m to the E. 'Tis alſo a Royal Borough, and formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain, jointly with 4 others.

17. Eaſt-Anſtruther, $\frac{1}{2}$ a m. to the E. is alſo a Royal Borough. From theſe Places the antient and honourable Family of Anſtruther take their Sirname.

18. Careil, or Crail, 3 m. N. E. on the ſame Coaſt. 'Tis a Market-Town, and Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, as it now does to that of Great Britain with four others.

19. St. Andrews, lies on the Coaſt of Fife, facing the German Ocean, 26 m. N. E. of Edinburgh. It was formerly the See of an Archbiſhop, Metropolitan of all Scotland. A Monaſtery was founded here by one Regulus, a Grecian Monk, about the Year 368. (from whence it had the Name of Fanum Reguli) who returning from his Travels, pretended to bring with him the Bones of St. Andrew the Apoſtle from Patros in Peloponeſus, and giving out that he had hid them here, the Church and Monaſtery were ſo richly endow'd by the Kings and Nobles, that its Revenues equalled thoſe of an Archbiſhoprick. This Town is now the Seat of a Presbytery containing 23 Pariſhes. It lies in a Plain extended from E. to W. with a pleaſant Proſpect of the German Ocean, which ſupplies it with Store of all ſorts of Fiſh. It has a Harbour towards the S. E. but not fit for large Ships. It had formerly a very ſtrong Caſtle, now demoliſhed. The Streets are wide and ſtreight, and ſome of 'em croſs one another. The Ruins of the Church of the Regular Canons of the Order of St. Auguſtin, ſhew that theſe Monks, inſtead of the Poverty they pretended to, lived in the greateſt Magnificence, their Convent being built of hewn Stone, with many Battlements and Towers, ſo that it more reſembled a Palace than a Cloiſter. There was an antient Academy here, founded by Laurence Lindoris, and Richard Corvel. The Univerſity here was founded by Bp Wardlaw in 1412, and endow'd by James I. in 1426, with ample Revenues and Privileges. Its 3 Colleges are St. Salvator's, St. Mary's, and St. Leonard's; the laſt of which was chiefly endow'd by Sir John Scot of Scots Tarbat, a great Patron of Learning, who added a Profeſſor of Philology, with a pepetual Salary, and gave many Books to the Library. St. Salvator's was founded by Bp James Kennedy, who furniſhed it with coſtly Ornaments, and endowed it with ſufficient Revenues for a Doctor, a Batchelor, and Licentiate of Divinity; 4 Profeſſors of Philoſophy, and 8 poor Scholars. The E. of Caſſels ſettled a Maintenance for a Profeſſor of Philology. It has a good Library, which was founded by Dr. Sheen. St. Leonard's College was founded by John Hepburn, Prior of St. Andrews before the Reformation, with Salaries for a Principal or Warden, 4 Profeſſors of Philoſophy, and 8 poor Scholars; and Sir John Wedderburn at his Death left it a great Collection of Books. Fordon's Manuſcript of the Scottiſh Hiſtory is in this Library. The New College was founded by Archbiſhop James Beaton, with Endowments for a Principal and Profeſſor of Divinity, and ſome Students in the ſame Faculty, no Philoſophy being taught in this College. A Profeſſor of Mathematicks has been added to this Univerſity of late Years. In the time of Epiſcopacy the Archbiſhops of this City were Chancellors of the Univerſity. The Rector is choſe yearly, and ought by the Statutes to be one of the Principals of the 3 Colleges. We cannot inſiſt upon the learned Men who have been Profeſſors, or bred here. The Cathedral of St. Andrews was reckoned the largeſt in Chriſtendom, being 7 Foot longer and 2 broader than St. Peter's at Rome, and was one of the beſt Gothick Structures in the World, for its Symmetry, Height, and fine Pillars. The chief Church here now is called the New-Church; beſides which there are 2 others, viz. St. Leonard's, adjacent to the College of that Name, and St. Salvator's, which has a lofty Steeple of hewn Stone. This City formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl of Scotland, as it does now to that of Great Britain, in conjunction junction with 4 other Royal Boroughs. Here were formerly a great many Abbeys, Priories, and Monasteries, founded chiefly by the Kings of Scotland, but after the Reformation they were annexed first to the Crown, and afterwards given to the Nobility, by whom they are possessed at this Day as Royal Fees.

We have not room to insist on the chief amilies, and their Places of Residence, in this County.

XXII. The Shire of Angus, or Forfar,

HAS the Firth of Tay on the S. the British Ocean on the E. the Merns on the N. and Perthshire on the W. 'Tis 29 m. from E. to W. where longest, and the greatest Breadth from N. to S. is 16 ÷. It abounds with Pasture, and all sorts of Corn, has large Hills, with Quarries of Free-Stone and Slate, Mines of Lead and Iron, Lakes and Rivers that abound with Salmon and other Fish, Forests with Deer and Fowl, and is adorned with many Towers and Castles. It gives Title of Earl to the D. of Douglass who is Hereditary Lord Lieutenant of the Shire, but the Sheriffalty is at the King's Disposal. It formerly sent four Members to the Parliament of Scotland, and now sends one to that of Great Britain.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Dundee, on the Firth of Tay, 32 m. ÷ N. of Edinburgh; 'tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 17 Parishes, a Market-Town, and a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now with four others sends one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis the most noted Town of the County for Strength, Situation and Trade. It has two Churches, and a safe well-frequented Harbour, excellent Buildings, and a large Hospital for decay'd Townsmen. Its Constable of the Family of Scrimger was always Standard-Bearer to the Scotish Kings. The E. of Montrose attacked it in the Civil Wars, but was vigorously repulsed by the Inhabitants, who afterwards fortify'd it with Ditches; yet General Monk took it by Storm, tho defended by 11000 Soldiers besides Inhabitants, put all that he found in Arms to the Sword, and carried off a vast Booty, it being then the richest Town in Scotland, because the Neighbourhood sent their best Effects thither for Security; and there were then 60 Sail of Ships in the Harbour, which also yielded. This Town gave Title of Viscount to Graham of Claverhouse, who commanded in Scotland for the late K. James II. at the Revolution, and was killed at the Battle of Gillicranky. Near 2 m E. on the same Coast, within sight of Dundee, is Brochtycrag, a Hill, with a ruinous Castle on it, and there's excellent Salmon-Fishing, even to its Walls.

2. Maulesburgh, on the same Coast, near 11 m. E. of Dundee. 'Tis a Burgh of Regality, and a Market-Town, and derives its Name from the antient and noble Family of Maul, afterwards Earls of Panmure.

3. Aberbrothock, or Ardbrothock, on the same Coast, 3 m. ÷ to the N. E. is a Market-Town, and a Royal Borough, that formerly sent a Memb. to the Parliament of Scotland, as it now does one to that of Great Britain in conjunction with 4 others. 'Tis also the Seat of a Presbytery containing 11 Parishes, and has a good Harbour.

4. Montrose, above 9 m. N. E. of Aberbrothock, on the same Coast, at the Mouth of the R. South-Esk. 'Tis a Market-Town, and a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, as it now does one to that of Great Britain in conjunction with four others. 'Tis a pleasant Town, with several plain Fields before it, 2 m. in length. 'Tis a Place of good Trade, and has a Harbour for Ships of considerable Burden, a Hospital for the poor Inhabitants, and is adorned with many fine Buildings. It gave Title of Earl and Marquiss formerly, as it now does that of Duke, to the Chief of the Family of Graham, and is noted for the Place where the Pretender embarked privately in 1716, with Lord Tinmouth, &c. for France.

5. Brechin, above 6 m. W. from Montrose on the same River, is the Seat of a Presbytery containing 18 Parishes, and a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, as it does now in conjunction with four others to that of Great Britain. K. David I. made it a Bishop's See. It has a stately Bridge of two Arches over the R. South-Esk, a Castle well fortify'd with Towers and built of red square Stone, and a good Market for Salmon and Cattle. The Barony of Brechin belonged to the E. of Panmure, who had the Title of Lord Brechin, and a Seat here. This Place is also memorable for a great Victory obtained near it over the Danes; and the Chief of the Family of Keith having killed the Danish General, was made Hereditary E. Marshal of Scotland on that account, which continued in the Family till the last Earl was forfeited for taking Arms for the Pretender.

6. Forfar, above 8 m. N. W. of Brechin, is a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, as it now does one to that of Great Britain, in conjunction with four others. 'Tis also a Market-Town, and the Seat of a Presbytery containing 10 Parishes. 'Tis the County-Town, and gave Title of Earl to a Branch of the noble Family of Douglass, which expired with the Death of that gallant young Lord, who signalized his Valour in Spain during the late War; but fighting for his Majesty at the Battle of Dumblain in 1715, he had the misfortune to be taken Prisoner by the Highlanders, who barbarously wounded him, after having promised him Quarter.

7. Glames, almost 4 m. N. W. of Forfar is a Market-Town, and Burgh of Barony, with a Castle belonging to the E. of Strathmore, to whom it gives Title of Lord.

8. Meegle, or Migle, stands on a Rivulet that falls into the Dean, above 5 m. W. of Glames. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 14 Parishes.

There are many Seats of the Nobility and Gentry in this Shire, but we cannot insist on them.

XXIII. Merns, or the Shire of Kincardin,

HAS Aberdeenshire on the N. Angus on the W. and S. and the Sea on the E. 'Tis about 24 m. where broadest, and near 40 where longest E. and W. It sent 2 Members to the Scots Parliament, and now sends one to that of Great Britain. This Shire is fruitful in Corn and Pasturage, and the E. Marshal was Hereditary Sheriff till forfeited.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Kincardin, the County-Town, near the R. Dee, about 17 m. W. of Aberdeen. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery consisting of 15 Parishes, and gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Bruce.

2. Fourdon or Merns, 11 m. S. E. of Kincardin, is also the Seat of a Presbytery consisting of 16 Parishes, and noted for giving Sirname to John Fourdon, Author of the Scots Chronicon, to whom the succeeding Scots Historians have been much obliged. 'Twas famous in the Popish times for the Relicks of Palladius, the first Bishop in Scotland, who was sent from Rome to confute the Pelagians.

3. Paldy-Kirk, in the Neighbourhood, derives its Name from him, and is noted for an annual Fair that lasts three Days, when great Quantities of coarse Cloth are bought up here, and exported to the Netherlands.

4. Dunother, on the Coast, 8 m. N. E. of Fourdon, a strong and magnificent Castle that was the chief Residence of the Earl Marshal, Chief of the antient and noble Family of Keith, who enjoy'd that honourable Post for their Gallantry against the Danes ever since the Reign of Malcolm II. which begun in 1010.

4. Stone-Hive, in the Neighbourhood, is a good Harbour, and noted for a Salmon-fishing which belonged to that Family.

XXIV The Shire of Aberdeen,

HAS Part of Bamf and Buchan on the N. the River Spey and Part of Badenoch on the W. Part of Angus and Merns on the S. and the German Ocean on the E. 'Tis about 49 m. where longest E. and W. and 36 where broadest S. and N. The S. Part contains Mar with its Subdivisions, from whence it was formerly called the Shire of Mar, which gave Title of Earl to the chief of the antient and noble Family of Ereskin, till forfeited by the late Earl. The Soil in general is not unfruitful if duly cultivated. The Product is Wheat, Rye, Barley, Pease, Beans, and Oats in abundance, nor do they want Roots and Herbs for Food and Physick. The mountainous Parts have Woods of Fir and Oak, Plenty of Game and good Pasturage; so that they have abundance of Sheep, Black-Cattle, Horses, and Deer. The Rivers Dee and Don, &c. are famous for Salmon-Fishing, and Herring abounds on their Coasts. In several of their Rivers are Muscles, &c. which breed Pearl. Here's plenty of tame and wild Fowl, Quarries of Stone and spotted Marble, Slate, and Lime-Stone for cultivating the Land. There's one sort of Stones call'd Elf-Arrow-Heads, peculiar to this Country; they seem to be of the nature of Flint, and are of different Shapes, most of them like the Points of Spears. They are from half an Inch to two Inches long, and from one to two Grains, thick, rough and unpolished, but thin at the edges. They are always found by chance and frequently in the Roads and other Places, where none were to be seen an Hour or two before; and sometimes they are found in the Boots and other Apparel of Travellers. They are generally found in Summer when the Sky is clear, from whence Naturalists think that they are formed in the Air by some gross Exhalations. The Air of the Country is cool, but healthful, and the Inhabitants have Peat, Turf, and Wood for Fuel. The Winter is milder than could be expected so far N. which seems a wonder to Danes, Poles, and Prussians, because in their Countries during Winter there is perpetual Frost and Snow. The Summer Rains do sometimes keep back the Harvest, but seldom spoil it. The Natives of this Country are reckoned to be of as mild a Temper, sharp Wit, and good Judgment, as any of their Neighbours; which is ascribed to their Education at Schools and Universities, and their Commerce with Foreigners. The Women here excel in making fine Linen and Stockings. Here are Springs of Allum-Water, Veins of Stone from whence Allum is boiled; and at Slains on the Coast there's a Cave from whence drops Water that soon petrifies, and makes very good Lime. This Country sent 4 Members to the Parliament of Scotland, and now sends 1 to that of Great Britain.

Places of Note are,

1. Old Aberdeen, about 80 m. N. from Edinburgh, near the Mouth of the River Don, from whence it takes its Name, which in the old Scots Language signifies a Bay on the Don, over which it has a stately Bridge of one large Arch about ÷ a m. N. of the Town. It was formerly a Bishop's See, and has a large stately Cathedral, called St. Machars, which was antiently far more magnificent, but suffered much at the Reformation, when its Leaden Roof was stripped off, and Slates put in its room, and of the Bishop's Palace not one Stone was left upon another. The chief Ornament of the old Town is the King's College on the S. side, which is a neat and stately Structure, so called from K. James IV. who was its Patron. It was founded by Bishop Elphingston about the Year 1500. The Church and Steeple are built of hewn Stone, and the Top of it resembles an Imperial Crown. Close to the Church there's a Library well furnished with Books. The Bull for this College was procured from Pope Alexander VI. in 1494. who endowed it with as ample Privileges as those of Paris and Bononia.

nia. It has a Principal, a Sub-Principal, who is also one of the Regents, 3 other Regents or Professors of Philosophy, a Professor of Humanity or Philology, a Professor of Divinity, a Doctor of Physick, a Professor of the Oriental Tongues, another of the Civil Law, and one of the Mathematicks. We cannot insist on the learned Men bred here. There was formerly a Mint in this Town, as appears by several Pieces of Coin with the Word Aberdeæ upon them kept in the Closets of the Curious. As the County has a Provincial Synod containing 8 Presbyteries, this is the Seat of one of them, containing 21 Parishes. 'Tis also a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now with four others sends one to that of Great Britain, and gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the illustrious Family of Gordon.

The new Town, on the Mouth of the River Dee, which is about a m. S. of the other, is the County Town, and the Seat of the Sheriffs Courts. Gordon says, that about the Year 890, K. Gregory being charmed with its Situation, honoured it with several Privileges and Immunities, and with a Palace, which afterwards fell to the Brethren of the Trinity. It exceeds all the Towns in the N. of Scotland for Largeness, Trade and Beauty. It stands in a wholesom Air, about a m. from the Harbour, and has a great Revenue from its Salmon-Fishing, which is divided into Shares, whereof no Man can have above one at a time. It lies upon three Hills, which have each a different Name; the Bulk of it stands upon the highest of them, and the Skirts extend into the Plain. There was formerly a Castle on one of the Hills, which being thought dangerous to the Liberty of the City, was many Years ago demolished. The River Dee runs on the S. side of the Town. A m. W. from it there's a stately Stone Bridge of 7 Arches, built by Bp Gawin Dunbar. The Tide brings up small Vessels to the Key of the Town. The Houses are neatly built, generally four Stories high, or more, and have Gardens and Orchards for the most part, which makes the City pleasant and healthful, and yields a beautiful Prospect. From a round Hill at the W. end of the City flow two Springs, one of clear Water, and another called the Spaw, because in Taste and Quality it comes very near the Spaw in Germany. 'Tis sweet to the Taste, and may be drank to a great Quantity without any harm; but is not fit for Washing, Brewing, or boiling Victuals. Dr. William Barclay wrote a Treatise of it, to which the Curious are referred. There's a Church of good Architecture in the High-street, built of Free-stone, which formerly belonged to the Franciscan Friars, and was afterwards turned into a College called Marshal's, because founded by George Keith Earl Marshal in 1593. The City has added many Buildings to it at their own Charge. In this College there's a Principal or Regent, always presented by the Earl Marshal before the Forfeiture of the last Earl; four Professors of Philosophy, a Professor of Divinity, and another of Mathematicks, erected by Dr. Lyddel, and there was lately added a Professor of Physick. It has a very good Library, which was founded by the City, enlarged by the Gifts of several learned Men, and furnished with Mathematical Instruments. Mr. Thomas Reed, a very learned Man, was a great Benefactor to this Library, added many excellent Books to it, and gave an annual Salary of 400 l. Scots to the Library-Keeper. There's a Grammar-School and a Musick-School in this City; the former has 1 Master and 3 Ushers. St. Nicholas's Cathedral here is a handsome Edifice of Freestone with a lofty Steeple, resembling a Pyramid. It was formerly divided into 3 Churches. The Body of it is adorned with a Tower and Pinacles. In the Tower are kept the Courts of the Town and County. Here is also a Prison and a Workhouse with an Alms-House, 3 Hospitals, and a Custom-House near the Harbour.

2. Kintore, on the River Don, almost 9 m. N. W. of Old Aberdeen, is a Market-Town and a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now with four others sends one to that of Great Britain, and gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the noble Family of Keith, who is Knight Marshal of Scotland.

3. Innerury, or Innerourie, the chief Town in the District of Garrioch, stands at the Conflux of the Rivers Ourie and Don, above 2 m. N. W. of Kintore, is also a Market-Town, and being made a Royal Borough by K. Robert Bruce, used to send a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, but now with 4 others sends one to that of Great Britain. It gives Title of Baron to the Earl of Kintore.

4. Peterhead, a Sea-Port of considerable Trade, capable of 100 Ships, in the N. E. Part of the County, upon the Promontory called Buchanness, 20 m. N. E. of Old Aberdeen. 'Tis a Market-Town, and noted for the Pretender's Landing there in 1715.

5. Garrioch, which gives Name to its District, lies 3 m. N. W. of Innerury, and is the Seat of a Presbytery consisting of 15 Parishes. This District is encompassed by the Divisions of Strathbogy, Mar, and Formartyn, and part of Buchan, extends near 14 m. from E. to W. and 8 from N. to S. It lies in a Valley, water'd by two great, and many lesser Rivers, with fruitful Hills on both sides, and particularly the Mountain Bennachy, which rises with 7 Tops so high that Sailors see it as they pass by, tho 'tis almost 14 m. from the Coast. Here are plenty of Hares, Fish, Birds, particularly Partridges and Lapwings; but not much Pasture. The Country is well inhabited, and abounds with Gentlemens Seats, &c. particularly Lesley, the Seat of the noble and antient Family of Lesley, to the Chief of whom it gives Title of Earl. It is a fine Mansion on the River Gardie, above 6 m. N. E. of Innerourie.

6. Formartyn is another Division, which extends above 8 m. on the Coast from the River Don on the S. to that of Ythan on the N. 'Tis bounded with Mar on the S. Garrioch on the W. and Buchan on the N. It has no Town of Note, because of the Neighbourhood of Aberdeen, which engrosses all the Trade; but 'tis a fruitful, pleasant, and populous Country, inferior to no part of the Shire for the Goodness of its Soil, and the Genius of its Inhabitants, and has several Gentlemens Seats.

7. Kildrummy, a Market-Town, with an antient Seat that belonged to the late Earl of Mar, lies on the N. side of the River Don, near 13 m. W. of Innerourie. Here is an old Castle, supposed to have been built by the antient Scottish Kings, and in their Time fortified with a strong Wall and great Towers. At Innerbucket, 3 m. ÷ W. on the same River, in a Tract abounding with Pasture and Corn, is a fine Seat of the Duke of Gordon.

8. Strathbogy. 'Tis a Market-Town, with a Bridge on the River Dovern near its Conflux with the Bogy, 13 m. N. W. of Innerourie, and 24 from Aberdeen. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 11 Parishes. The Castle, which is one of the D. of Gordon's chief Seats, is large, and pleasantly situate with fine Gardens. It gives Name to one of the Divisions of this Shire, which has Bamf on the N. and W. Garrioch on the E. and Mar on the S. 'Twas erected into a Lordship by K. James VI. in favour of the Family of Gordon. 'Tis water'd by the Rivers Dovern, Bogy, &c. is fruitful in Corn and Pasture, has Black Cattle, Sheep, and Horses, enough for their own Use and Export; and is remarkable for fine Linen Yarn spun by the Women here, and sold to the Merchants. The Country is mostly inhabited by the Duke of Gordon's Vassals.

9. Alford stands almost 4 m. N. E. of Kildrummy, on the S. side of the Don, where it receives the Leochel. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery, containing 16 Parishes. At the Source of the River Dovern, in this part of the Country, there's a Valley between the steep Mountains of Buck, named Cabrach, which abounds with Pasture. The People here live in Tents during Summer, but generally remove in the Winter.

10. Ellen, almost 11 m. N. of Aberdeen, stands on the River Ythan, and is the Seat of a Presbytery, containing 8 Parishes.

11. Fordice is also the Seat of a Presbytery containing 8 Parishes.

12. Trintray, a Market-Town on the River Don, almost 6 m. N. W. of Aberdeen.

There are so many Seats of the Nobility, &c. in this Shire, that we cannot insist on them.

XXV. The Shire of Bamf,

HAS the Firth of Murray on the N. the Country of Murray on the W. the German Ocean on the E. and the Shire of Aberdeen on the S. It contains part of Buchan, Strath-Dovern, Boyne, Ainie, Strathyla, Strathavin, and Balveny. 'Tis 38 m. from E. to W. and 13 where broadest on the Bank of the Spey, which is its W. Boundary. The Climate and Soil is much the same with that of Aberdeenshire. It sent 2 Memb. to the Scots Parl. and now sends one to that Great Britain.

That Part which is called Buchan extends N. from the River Ugie to the Sea, and W. as far as the R. Dovern, which is 9 m. from N. to S. and 20 from E. to W. 'Tis water'd by abundance of Rivers, and divided into Corn-Fields and little Hills. There's no Tract of its Bigness in the whole Kingdom so free from Mountains. This County has been noted for its Earls both of the Cummings and Stuarts, and now gives Title of Earl to Erskin Lord Cardross, who is descended from the Stuarts, Earls of Buchan.

Places of chief Note in the Shire of Bamf are,

1. Bog of Gicht, now called Gordon-Castle, the Duke of Gordon's chief Seat, and the noblest Palace in the N. of Scotland, with pleasant Gardens, and a noble Park. It lies 36 m. N. W. of Aberdeen on the E. side of the River Spey, in that fruitful District called Ainie, of which the Duke is chief Proprietor.

2. Cullen, on the Coast of Murray-Firth, above 7 m. N. E. of Bog of Gicht, is a Market-Town, and a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 more in sending one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis the Capital of the District called Boyne, on the Coast, which is very fruitful. The Earl of Findlater has a House in the Neighbourhood.

3. Bamf, on the same Coast, at the Mouth of the Dovern, above 7 m. S. E. of Cullen. 'Tis the County Town, a Royal Bor. that formerly sent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 more in sending one to that of Great Britain. It has little Trade, except from its Corn and Salmon-Fishing, the Townsmen minding Agriculture more than Commerce. Most of the neighbouring Country is possess'd by the Ogilvies and their Vassals. The chief of the Family here is the Earl of Findlater; but the Earl of Airley is placed before him in the Lists of Parliament. We leave it to the Heralds to decide which of them is the Chief of this antient and noble Family.

4. Turreff, 7 m. S. E. of Bamf, lies on a River that falls into the Dovern. 'Tis a Market-Town, and the Seat of a Presbytery containing 10 Parishes. 'Tis one of the pleasantest Places in the Country, has many Gentlemens Seats about it; and the adjacent Country is noted for Hunting and Hawking.

5. Fraserburg, on the Coast of Murray-Frith, 15 m. E. from Bamf. 'Tis reckoned the chief Town of the District of Buchan. It was enlarged by Sir Alexander Frazer, Lord of Phillorth, who obtained great Privileges for it, and made a Harbour here.

6. Deer, on the River Ugy, 8 m. S. of Fraserburg. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 13 Parishes.

7. Innerugy, a small Town near the Mouth of the River Ugy, 6 m. E. from Deer. There's a Castle here, which, with another on the opposite Bank of the River Ugy, called Craigs-Tower, belonged to the late Earl Marshal, who was Lord of most of the Manors in the Neighbourhood before he forfeited.

Balveny is a mountainous District, on the W. side of this Shire, upon the River Spey. It abounds with Pasture and Wood. In this District lies Achindoun, a Castle belonging to the Duke of Gordon. Here's also a Rock, sufficient to afford good Whetstones and Hones for the whole Island. The People there cover their Houses with them instead of Slates. Here are also Springs of Allom-Water, and Veins of Stone from whence Allom is boiled.

Strathyla lies N. E. from Balveny, is fruitful in Corn and Grass, and abounds so with Lime-Stone, that they build their Houses with it. The Inhabitants make great Profit by selling their Lime, fat Cattle, and and fine Linen Yarn, at a weekly Market in the Village of Keath on the River Dovern, 5 m. ½ S. E. of Bog of Gicht.

Strathavin, is a Diſtrict on the River Avin, one of the cleareſt in the Nation, that falls into the Spey; and is the Paternal Inheritance of the Family of Gordon. 'Tis fitter for Paſture than Corn.

Murray, or Murray-Land,

HAS Murray-Firth on the N. Bamf on the E. and part of Badenoch and Aberdeenſhire on the S. 'Tis a large Country, and the Climate and Soil the beſt in all the North of Scotland: So that when the neighbouring Countries have Extremity of Cold and Snow, this ſuffers little Damage by either; and the Inhabitants boaſt that they have 40 clear Days in a Year more than the reſt of their Neighbours. It produces every thing that grows in any other part of the Kingdom, and abounds particularly with Corn and Fruit, which are gathered in ſo early, that their Harveſt is done when their Neighbours have ſcarce begun. The upper Part of the Country abounds with Paſtures. No Part of Scotland is better provided with Bread, Meat, Fruit, and Fiſh. Much of the Country is Champain, and ſometimes it riſes into pleaſant Hills. The Soil is generally ſandy mix'd with Clay, and very fruitful when manured. This Country gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Stuart.

'Tis divided into the Shires of Elgin and Nairn, and part of it belongs to the Shire of Inverneſs.

XXVI. The Shire of Elgin,

IS bounded by the River Spey on the E. the Shire of Nairn on the W. and Aberdeenſhire on the S. Our Map-Makers not having diſtinguiſhed the Boundaries betwixt the Shires, 'tis difficult to give the Extent of either; but that of Elgin lies betwixt the Rivers Findorn and Spey. The greateſt Breadth is 21 m. and Length 24. This Shire ſent formerly 2 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now ſends one to that of Great Britain.

Places of Note are,

1. Elgin, 9 m. S. W. from the Bog of Gicht, and 4 S. from Murray-Firth, near the River Loſſie, over which there's a Bridge not far from the Town. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 4 more in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 'Twas the See of the Biſhop of Murray, and had a Cathedral, which, for Magnificence and fine Architecture, was ſcarce exceeded by any in Europe, but is now in Ruins, having ſuffer'd much, as well as the Town, during the Wars with the Danes and Engliſh. It has alſo the Ruins of an antient Caſtle. The Sheriff keeps his Court here. It has a weekly Market, and is the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 13 Pariſhes. The Town lies in a fruitful Soil, and has plenty of all ſorts of Proviſions, being well ſupply'd by the neighbouring River with Salmon, &c. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Bruce, now Earls of Ailesbury in England.

2. Spynie, 2 m. N. from Elgin, was formerly the Seat of the Biſhop of Murray, and afterwards of a Branch of the antient Family of Lindſey, to whom it gave Title of Lord. Here's a noble Seat with fine Gardens on a Lake of the ſame Name, which is above 5 m. long, and about a m. ½ where broadeſt, has ſeveral Iſlands, and abounds with wild Fowl, particularly Swans, which feed on an Herb that never appears above Water. It has a ſtrait Stalk with a Cluſter of Seed on the Top, but no Flowers, and the Leaves are like thoſe of St. John's-Wort, but larger. Almoſt 3 m. to the E. lies Innes, the Seat of the antient Family of Innys.

3. King-Edward, a ſmall Town on the Loch of Spynie, ſtands in a fruitful Soil, and had its Name from K. Edward I. of England, who ordered a Palace to be built here when he eſpous'd John Baliol's Quarrel againſt Robert Bruce; but the Palace is now quite ruined.

4. Rothes, a Village and Seat on a ſmall River that falls into the Spey, 9 m. S. E. of Elgin. It gives Title of Earl to the Chief of the noble and antient Family of Leſley.

5. Forres lies on the W. ſide of this Shire upon a River that falls into that of Findorn, 9 m. ½ S. W. of Elgin. The County Courts were formerly kept here, whence ſome called it the Shire of Forres. The Town is as pleaſantly ſituated as any in the North, and had formerly a Caſtle, which belonged to the Kings of Scotland, but is now in Ruins. 'Tis a Market-Town, and a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and joins now with 3 others in ſending one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis the Seat of a Presbytery containing 10 Pariſhes. Near this Town there's a large Pillar of one Stone, being a Monument of a Victory obtained by Malcolm Mackenneth over Sueno K. of Denmark. The Inſcription is now worn off.

6. Kinloſs, above a m. N. W. of Forres, lies on a little River which falls into that of Findorn. It has the Ruins of an antient Abbey, and gives Title of Lord to the Earl of Elgin. There are many Gentlements Seats betwixt this Place and Elgin, of which we have no Deſcription.

The S. ſide of this Shire is called the Braes of Murray. 'Tis mountainous, but abounds with Paſture. The S. E. ſide is called Strath or the Valley of Spey, becauſe it lies on that River. We have already deſcribed this River, Page 236. There's a Lake on the W. ſide of the Braes above 3 m. long, and above one broad, called Loch na-dayrd, which has an Iſland, and a Caſtle upon it.

Abirlaur, near the River Spey, 8 m. S. E. of Elgin, is the Seat of a Presbytery conſiſting of 7 Pariſhes.

Abernethy, on the ſame River, almoſt 17 m. S. W. is the Seat of another Presbytery containing 5 Pariſhes.

XXVII. The Shire of Nairn,

HAS that of Elgin on the E. Inverneſs on the W. and S. and Murray-Firth on the N. The greateſt Breadth is 14 m. and Length 20. It formerly ſent 2 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with the Shire of Cromartie in ſending one by Turns to that of Great Britain. It has the River Nairn on the W. and Findorn on the E.

Places of Note are,

1. Nairn, at the Mouth of the River of that Name, on Murray-Firth, 7 m. S. W. of Forres. 'Tis a Royal Borough, ſent formerly a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with 3 more in ſending one to that of Great Britain; and gives Title of Lord to the antient Family of Nairn: The Honour was enjoyed by a Deſcendant of the Family of Athol, who marry'd the Heireſs, but is now outlawed on taking Arms for the Pretender. The Town had formerly a Harbour, till choaked up with Sands, which cover the Ruins of an old Caſtle.

2. Cadel-Caſtle lies about 4 m. S. W. of Nairn, is the Seat of a Branch of the Family of Campbel, has a Village of the ſame Name adjoining, and near it a Vein of Fire-Stone, with many Signs of Copper.

The S. W. Part of this Shire is called the Strath, or Valley of Nairn, becauſe it lies on that River, upon which are many Woods of Fir and other Trees, and Gentlemens Seats. In the S. Part of the Shire there's a Lake, called Moy, about a m. ½ long, and above a m. broad, with an Iſland, and a Caſtle upon it, belonging to the Chief of the Mackintoſhes.

Near the S. E. Side of the County lies Strath, or the Valley of Erin, on both ſides Findorn River. It has many Lakes and Mountains, yet abounds with little Towns, Villages, and Streams, and belongs to the Lord Frazer of Lovat and his Vaſſals.

3. Tarnway, above 3 m. S. from Forres, is a Seat, with a large Park, Gardens, and Woods, that belong to Stuart Earl of Murray.

4. Brodie, 2 m. N. W. of Tarnway, is the Seat of, and gives Name to, the Family of Brodie.

XXVIII. The Shire of Innerneſs, or Inverneſs.

IT formerly contained all the Country, from the Borders of Lorn to the Orkney Iſles, along the Weſtern Coaſt, beſides the Iſles on that Coaſt; and the Family of Gordon was its Hereditary Sheriffs: But now 'tis reduced to narrower Limits, and contains that Part of Murray-Land which lies near the Town of Innerneſs, Badenoch, Lochaber, and the S. Part of Roſs. So that 'tis bounded with Roſs and Cromarty on the N. Murray-Land on the E. the Weſt Iſlands on the W. and Lorn-Broadalbin and Athol on the S. and, according to Moll, is above 60 m. from E. to W. and 55 where broadeſt from N. to S. It has Iron Mines, and large Woods of Fir and Oak. The Sheriffdom is in the Gift of the King. It uſed to ſend 2 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now ſends one to that of Great Britain.

The chief Town is of its own Name, at the Bottom of the Firth of Murray, where it receives the River Neſs from Lochneſs, 103 m. N. W. of Edinburgh, and 11 S. W. of Nairn. It is a Market-Town and Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now with 3 others ſends one to that of Great Britain. 'Tis alſo the Seat of a Presbytery containing 13 Pariſhes. It has a Bridge of hewn Stone of 7 Arches over the River, and lies conveniently for Trade, with a Harbour for ſmall Ships open to the Firth; and has a conſiderable Commerce, with a Church for the Highlanders, and another for the Lowlanders. It has a Caſtle which was formerly the Reſidence of the Kings of Scotland, and ſtands on a Hill, from whence there's a fine Proſpect of the Town and neighbouring Country, which is very fruitful. The Duke of Gordon was Hereditary Conſtable both of the Caſtle and its Superiorities. It was ſeized by the Highlanders, who took Arms for the Pretender in 1715; but they were drove out by the Ld Lovat, and the Town was afterwards bravely defended by his Lordſhip and the Earl of Sutherland.

Lochneſs, the chief Lake in this Country, flows from the Lake Coich in the Mountains called Glendulſen, not far from the Iriſh Sea; from whence a Stream runs S. E. about 6 m. into the Lake Garriff, which is near 5 m. in Length, and communicates by a Rivulet about 3 in Length with the Lake of Eawich. From thence 'tis carried by a Stream of about 2 m. into that called Lochneſs, which runs to the N. E. about 22 m. within 4 of the Town of Inverneſs, where it empties it ſelf by the River Neſs into the Firth of Murray. This Lake is very deep, but never freezes, and retains its natural Heat, as the River does in the coldeſt Winter; which is aſcribed to Sulphur in the Soil. The Country on both ſides the Lake, higher up, is barren, eſpecially the E. which is very mountainous, and called Strath-Arkeg, or Eriggreg. 'Tis diverſify'd with Mountains, Lakes, Rivulets, and Villages, and belongs to the Lord Frazer of Lovat and his Vaſſals.

Lovat, which gives Title of Baron to his Lordſhip, is a Seat and Village almoſt at the End of the Firth of Murray, 6 m. N. W. of Inverneſs.

Collodden,

Collodden, a Seat belonging to a Branch of the Family of Forbes, lies 3 m. E. of Inverneſs, and was bravely held out by the Gentleman's Lady againſt the Highlanders in 1715.

Caſtle-Stuart, 2 m. N. E. from Collodden, is an antient Seat belonging to the Earls of Murray.

Kilraick, upon the River Nairn, about 6 m. S. E. from Inverneſs, is a Seat belonging to a Branch of the noble and antient Family of Roſs, who behaved bravely againſt the Highlanders in 1715.

The Country of Badenoch has Murray-Land on the N. Lochaber on the W. Athol on the S. and part of Murray-Land and the Braes of Mar on the E. 'Tis 33 m. from E. to W. where longeſt, and 27 from N. W. to S. E. where broadeſt. The Country abounds with Deer. That Part of it, on both ſides the Spey, is well inhabited, and has a Market-Town called Ruffen, about 24 m. S. E. of Inverneſs, together with many Gentlemens Seats.

Lochaber has Badenoch on the N. Athol and part of Badenoch on the E. Lorn and Broadalbin on the S. and a mountainous Tract on the W. towards the Coaſt. 'Tis above 20 m. from E. to W. and near 30 from N. to S.

The Name, in the old Scots Language, ſignifies the Mouth of Lakes; but Camden ſays, 'tis ſo called becauſe it lies on the Lake Aber. It abounds with Paſturage and Woods; and its Lakes and Rivers with Fiſh. It has ſome Veins of Iron, but not much Corn.

The Place of chief Note is Innerlochy, or Inverlochy, 45 m. S. W. of Inverneſs, and 97 N. W. from Edinburgh. It ſtands on a River that runs into Lochloll, was antiently a Place of great Trade and Strength, and held out always againſt the Picts; but 'twas deſtroy'd by the Danes and Norwegians.

It was much enlarged ſince the Revolution by a Fortification, called Fort-William, in Honour of K. William. It has a large Gariſon, and over-aw'd the neighbouring Highlanders when they took Arms for the Pretender in 1715.

XXIX. The Shire of Cromarty,

LIES on the other Side of Murray-Firth, N. from Inverneſs. 'Tis but a ſmall Shire, bounded with part of Roſs on the S. the Firth of Cromarty on the N. Murray-Firth on the E. and Roſs, of which it was once a part, on the W. 'Tis about 12 m. long, and 3 where broadeſt. It formerly ſent 2 Memb. to the Parl. of Scotland, and now joins with Nairn by turns in ſending one to that of Great Britain.

The chief Place is Cromarty, at the Mouth of the Bay of its own Name, 13 m. N. E. of Inverneſs. 'Tis a Market-Town, and gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the antient and noble Family of Mackenzie, who are Sheriffs of the County, a Poſt which formerly belonged to the antient Family of Urquhart in this Shire. The Bay or Firth of Cromarty is ſo ſafe for Ships, that Mariners gave it of old the Name of Portus Salutis. It abounds with Fiſh; and in ſome of the Rivers which fall into it, Pearls are found. It runs about 14 m. up the Country, and is near 3 where broadeſt. The E. of Cromarty and ſeveral other Gentlemen have Seats here. Milton is a Market-Town, 5 m. S. W. of Cromarty.

XXX. The Shire of Roſs,

HAS the Weſtern or Vergivian Sea, and Part of the Iſle of Sky, on the W. Strathnaver and Sutherland on the N. and N. E. Inverneſs, and Part of the Iſle of Sky on the S. and Cromarty and Murray-Firth on the E. It takes up the whole Breadth of the Iſland, and is much indented by Bays of the Sea on both ſides, eſpecially on the W. The Form is very irregular, becauſe it is much contracted on the N. E. and S. by the neighbouring Countries. 'Tis above 50 m. from S. to N. on the W. ſide, and about 60 where longeſt E. and W. but unequal both ways. The Soil is for moſt part mountainous, but abounds with Wood and Paſture, and feeds great numbers of Black-Cattle, Sheep, Horſes, Goats and Deer, and is well ſupplied with freſh-water Fiſh by Lakes and Rivers, and has abundance of Sea and Land-Fowl. In the Valleys on the E. ſide there's better Corn and Fruit than could be expected ſo far N. 'Tis divided into many Diſtricts. The Firſt on the S. W. is Glen-Elcheg, the Paternal Eſtate of the Earls of Seaforth, Chief of the noble and antient Family of Mackenzie, who had large Poſſeſſions in this Shire, till the Forfeiture of the laſt Earl for taking Arms for the Pretender. 'Twas at Glenchil in this Diſtrict where he and the late Marq. of Tullibardin, and others, were defeated in 1719. and a Body of Spaniards that came with them from Spain were made Priſoners, but he, and the Marquiſs, and other Highland Gentlemen eſcaped by Sea.

Ylen-Donnen-Caſtle, which lay on an Iſland in a Bay over-againſt the Iſle of Sky, belonged to the Crown, and was the antient Reſidence of the Earl's Anceſtors, who were Hereditary Governours of it, was at the ſame time blown up with part of the Magazine that he had placed there. Kintail, another Tract to the N. E. belonged to the Family of Seaforth.

The Lochs on the W. Coaſt abound with Herring in the Seaſon, and particularly Loch-Eu, which is divided into two Parts; one of 'em a Bay of the Sea, into which a River falls; the other a freſh-water Lake, about 9 m. where longeſt, and 3 where broadeſt. It has ſeveral Iſlands. There are great Woods on the ſides of this Lake, where abundance of Iron was formerly made.

Further N. on the ſame Coaſt, is Loch-Bryan, a Bay which runs 10 m. up the Country, is 3 m. broad at the Mouth, and famous for Herring-Fiſhing. It receives ſeveral Rivers, and the N. Bank has many Villages.

North from hence lie the Diſtricts named Coygach and Aſſynt; they are mountainous, but abound with Deer and other Cattle, have ſeveral Gentlemens Seats towards the Coaſt, and ſeveral Promontories with huge Rocks of Marble.

The middle Part of the Shire is called Ardroſs, mountainous and ſcarce inhabited, but left for Paſturage.

The N. E. Parts on the R. Okel and Charron, and Firth of Tayn, abound with Villages, and are pretty fruitful. This Firth runs up the E. ſide of the Shire about 25 m. as far as the Cape of Tarbat, divides Roſs from Sutherland, and is above 7 m. broad at the Mouth, but unſafe for Ships becauſe of Quick-Sands.

Ardmeanach, is Part of the Peninſula betwixt the Bays of Cromarty and Murray, 13 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ from E. to W. and 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ from N. to S. where broadeſt. It has high Mountains, but ſeveral of them are both pleaſant and fruitful. Camden ſays it was a Barony which formerly gave Title to the ſecond Sons of the Scottiſh Kings.

The chief Town is,

Chanrie, or Channonrie, ſo called becauſe it was formerly a Biſhop's See. It lies in a Valley, between pleaſant fruitful Hills, upon the Firth of Murray, almoſt 5 m. N. E. of Inverneſs, and 7 N. W. of Nairn. It had a ſtately Cathedral, Part of which ſtill remains, and a Caſtle where the Biſhop dwelt. 'Tis a Market-Town, the Seat of a Preſbytery containing 7 Pariſhes, and has a noble Houſe which belonged to the late Earl of Seaforth. Here is a Ferry over the Firth into the Shire of Murray. The next Harbour is Minlochy, 3 m. to the N. W.

Beaulieu, a Market-Town at the bottom of the Firth, 2 m. N. W. of Inverneſs, lies near the Mouth of the R. Farrar, was formerly noted for a pleaſant and rich Abby, and is now a Seat belonging to the Ld Lovat.

The next Town of Note in the Shire of Roſs is Dingwell at the Bottom of the Firth of Cromarty, 10 m. N. W. of Chanrie. 'Tis a Market-Town, the Seat of a Presbytery containing 13 Pariſhes, and a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now with four others ſends one to that of Great Britain.

Fowlis-Caſtle, 2 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ to the N. E. is the Seat of the Chief of the antient and honourable Family of Monro, who have a great Eſtate in this Country. They have always been ſtedfaſt to the Intereſts of Religion and Liberty ſince the Reformation, and made a noble ſtand againſt the Highlanders, who took Arms for the Pretender in 1715, and 1719. Ten m. to the E. on the ſame Coaſt, lies Balnagowan, the Seat of the chief of the antient Family of Roſs.

Kildun, a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. W. is a Market-Town, with a Caſtle of the Mackenneths, on the River Connal. And, Braan, 2 m. N. W. of Dingwell, is another Market-Town, and the Seat of the late Earl of Seaforth, who had a good Eſtate in the Neighbourhood.

Places of chief Note on the Firth of Tayne are,

Tayne, the County-Town, on the S. ſide, 12 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. E. of Dingwell. 'Tis a Market-Town of good Trade, the Seat of a Presbytery containing 9 Pariſhes, and a Royal Borough, which formerly ſent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now ſends one with four others to that of Great Britain. It lies in a fruitful Country, and was noted in the times of Popery for a Church dedicated to St. Dothes, to which the People went in Pilgrimage.

Fortroſe, a Royal Borough, with a Caſtle belonging to the late E. of Seaforth, is alſo in this County. It ſent formerly a Member to the Scots Parliament, and now with three others ſends one to that of Great Britain.

Strathcarron, is an inland Tract of this Shire, ſo called from the River which divides it. 'Tis a woody Country, abounding with tall Firs, Horſes, and Black-Cattle. The Sheriffdom of Roſs is in the Gift of the Crown, ſent formerly two Members to the Parliament of Scotland, and now one to that of Great Britain.

XXXI. The Shire of Sutherland,

HAS Part of Roſs and the Firth of Tayne on the S. and Caithneſs on the N. E. Part of Murray Firth on the E. and the Vergivian Sea on the W. 'Tis 46 m. from E. to W. where longeſt, and the greateſt Breadth from N. to S. including Strathnavern, is 35. It abounds with Paſture, excellent Barley and other Corn, Sheep, Black-Cattle, and Deer. The Valleys are very pleaſant and well inhabited; and tho 'tis ſituate ſo far N. it produces Saffron. It has three remarkable Foreſts, beſides other Woods, which have plenty of Deer and Fowl, eſpecially Hawks of all ſorts. There's one ſort of Bird peculiar to this Country, which they call Knag. 'Tis much like a Parrot, and digs its Neſt with its Beak in Trunks of Oak. The W. Part of this Country is more mountainous and woody than the other; and 'tis obſervable that all the Deer bred on the Mountain Arkil in this Tract, have forked Tails. Sutherland abounds with Bays, Rivers, and Lakes, and there's ſcarce a Farm in it which is not waſhed with freſh and ſalt Water; which makes the Valleys fruitful, and abound with Fiſh, Swans, Ducks, Geeſe, and many other kinds of Fowl, and in ſeveral of them Iſlands which are pleaſant Habitations in the Summer. In the River Synn, which never freezes, there's a Cataract formed by a Rock, where is a great Fiſhery of Salmons. The biggeſt Lake is Loch-Syn, towards the W. Part of the Shire, which is 14 m. long, and has Iſlands that abound with wild Beaſts, Geeſe, and Swans. Pearls of great Value are often found in the Lakes and Rivers. The Bays and Coaſts abound with Seals and Shell-Fiſh of all ſorts, and ſometimes with Whales. Here are Mines of Silver, Iron, Coals, Quarries of Free-Stones, and ſeveral Mountains of white Marble. No Rats will live in this Country, tho they ſwarm in Caithneſs, the next Shire. Here are many commodious Harbours, bours, from whence they export their Corn, Salt, Coal, Salmon, Beef, Wool, Skins, Hides, Butter, Cheese, Tallow, &c. It formerly sent two Members to the Parliament of Scotland, and now one to that of Great Britain. It gives Title of Earl to the chief of the antient and noble Family of Sutherland. The Earl is Hereditary Sheriff and Admiral of this Country, Assynt, and Strathnavern. He is a Branch of the Family of Gordon, but marrying the Heiress of Sutherland, has, according to the Custom of Scotland, assumed that Name. They claimed Precedency in the Parliament of Scotland as the first Earls of the Kingdom. All the Gentlemen of this Country hold of him, and particularly the Lords Rea and Duffus.

1. Dornoch, on the Bank of the Firth, opposite to Tayn, from which 'tis 4 m. 'Tis the chief Town of the County, was formerly a Bishop's See, and had a Cathedral, where the Earls of Sutherland have their Sepulchre. 'This Town is the Seat of a Presbytery containing 9 Parishes, and a Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, but now with four others sends one to that of Great Britain. Here are four Fairs every Year, much frequented. On the E. side of the Town there's a Monument erected in form of a Cross, commonly called Thanes or Earl's-Cross; and here's a Castle, one of the Seats of the Earl of Sutherland. Dunrobin, the principal Seat of the Earl of Sutherland, lies near 6 m. N. E. pleasantly situate on the Shore with Gardens and Orchards.

2. Brora, a Town at the Mouth of a River of its own Name, 3 m. N. E. of Dunrobin, is a Borough of Barony. Half a m. to the W. there are Mines of excellent Coal, and Salt-Pans, which not only supply the Country, but afford great Quantities of Salt for Export. There are several Fairs in other Towns of this Province, the chief of which is St. Andrews Fair at Godspey near Dornoch.

STRATHNAVERN,

WHICH is a Part of Sutherland, and gives Title of Lord to the Earl's eldest Son, has the Deucaledonian Ocean on the N. the Vergivian on the W. Caithness on the E. and Sutherland and Assynt on the S. 'Tis about 37 m. from E. to W. and near 23 from N. to S. where broadest. It derives its Name from the R. Navern, which runs thro it from N. to S. It abounds with high Mountains, upon which the Snow lies long, and has many Lakes and good Harbours, from whence the Inhabitants trade to foreign Parts with Timber, &c. Their Woods are much infested by Wolves. Here are great Herds of Black-Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Goats, and Deer. The Bays and Rivers are full of Fish, especially Salmon, which bring great Profit to the Inhabitants. They carry fat Black-Cattle and young Horses to the neighbouring Fairs. They export Salt, Beef, Hides, Deer-Skins, Sheep-Skins; Tallow, Butter, and Cheese. There are Iron-Works in this Country. The Inhabitants delight much in hunting, and have Venison always in plenty. The People of this and the neighbouring Country are strong, courageous, frugal, hardy, civil, chearful and sincere.

The Place of chief Note here is,

Tung, near the Mouth of the Bay of Kintail on the Deucaledonian Ocean. 'Tis the principal Seat of Lord Rea, Chief of the antient Sirname of Mackay, and Proprietor of this Part of the Country, which he holds of the E. of Sutherland.

XXXII. The Shire of Caithness,

HAS Pentland Firth on the N. Murray Firth on the E. Strathnavern on the W. and Sutherland on the S. 'Tis 30 m. from N. to S. and 20 from E. to W. 'Tis the most N. Part of Scotland, and divided from Sutherland by a Tract of Mountains. The Coast has abundance of Windings and Turnings. The Natives live chiefly by feeding Cattle and Fishing. The Sea here is very dangerous, even in calm Weather, except at stated times, because of terrible Vortexes, occasioned by the Repulse of the Tides from the Shore, and their Passage betwixt the Orkney Isles. The Soil on the Coast is low, produces Corn enough for the Natives and for Exportation, and abounds with all other Necessaries. There's plenty of Pasture in the Fields and Valleys, good Fowling and Hunting on the Mountains, and Fishing in the Sea. All things are very cheap here. The Soil is very moist and clayish, so that their Harvest is late, and the Corn not so good as that of Ross and Sutherland. Their Firing is Turf. The inland Country is full of Mountains. Here are many small Rivers, and Lakes full of Fish. The Shire is populous, and has many little Towns, Villages and Castles. The Earl of Braidalbin, who has a great Estate in this Shire, is Hereditary Sheriff. It formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now sends one to that of Great Britain, by turns with Bute. It gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the antient and noble Family of Sinclair.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Week or Wick, on the E. Coast, 39 m. N. E. of Dornoch. 'Tis a Market-Town, and Royal Borough, which formerly sent a Member to the Parliament of Scotland, and now sends one with four others to that of Great Britain. 'Tis the chief Town of the County, and has a good Harbour.

2. Castle-Sinclair, antiently named Gernico, at the bottom of a Bay, 3 m. N. W. from Wick, the chief Seat of the Earl of Caithness, and the best in the Country.

3. Thurso at the Bottom of the Bay, 11 m. W. of Wick, is a Market-Town, and has a Seat belonging to the Earl. In this Shire is a Presbytery of 12 Parishes.

The Islands of SCOTLAND,

ARE divided into 3 Classes; the Western Islands, called the Hebrides; those of Orkney and Schetland, called the N. Islands; and the third Class is those which lie in the Friths of Clyde and Forth. Most of the Western Islands belong to the Shire of Argyle; those of them that lie further N. belong to the Shires of Inverness and Ross; those in the Firth of Edinburgh belong to Fife and Lothian, and are there described; and those in the Firth of Clyde make up the Shire of Bute. The Islands in general are above 400; and the W. Islands make so considerable a Part of the Kingdom, that K. Rob. Bruce, who was a wise as well as a gallant Prince, gave Advice to his Nobles on his Death-Bed, his Son being then under Age, not to suffer any one Man to have the Government of them.

We cannot insist on the Description of them all, and therefore only take notice of the principal, as follows.

XXXIII. The Shire of Bute,

CONSISTS of the Isles of Arran and Bute, which lie in the Firth of Clyde, N. of Argyleshire, E. from Cantire, and W. from Renfrew, Cunningham, and Kyle. This Shire formerly sent two Members to the Parliament of Scotland, but now is joined with Caithness in sending one to the Parliament of Great Britain by turns. Stewart of Bute, E. of Mont-Stewart, is Sheriff.

1. Bute lies S. E. and N. W. is about 10 m. long, but the Breadth unequal, the broadest Place being 4. 'Tis separated from the Shire of Argyle on the N. by a narrow Strait, from the Isle of Arran on the W. by another, and lies 3 m. W. from the Coast of Cunningham. The N. Parts are mountainous, but afford good Pasturage and some Wood. The other Parts produce Oats, Barley, and Pease. The hectick Stone is found in many Places, and there's a Quarry of red Stone in the Island. The Climate is healthful, and the Inhabitants live to a great Age. 'Tis observed that the Small-Pox ordinarily happens here every 6th or 7th Year. The People speak both Irish and English, and wear the Highland Habit. There's a great Fishing of Herring and Cod on the Coast. The chief Proprietor is the E. of Mount-Stewart. There are 2 little Islands betwixt it and Cunningham, named Cumra the Greater and Lesser, which belong to Montgomery of Skelmerly. On the W. side is another small Island, called Mernock, which produces good Corn. The larger has a Chappel, and a Well which the Natives say is good against all Diseases; and the lesser one has many Deer. The chief Town of the Shire is Rothsay, near the middle of the Island on the E. side. 'Tis an antient Borough, sent formerly a Member to Parliament, but now joins with four others in sending one. It consists of about 100 Families, which subsist chiefly by Fishing and Agriculture. It gives Title of Duke to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. On the N. side are the Ruins of an antient strong Fort, with a Chappel and several Houses, Room enough to exercise a Batallion of Men, and a large House four Stories high. There are two other Forts on the W. side of the Island, and here are four Parish-Churches. Besides the E. of Mount-Stewart's, there are two other Gentlemens Seats in the Island.

2. Arran, is about 4 m. W. from the S. Part of Bute, and 6 E. from the Coast of Kintire. 'Tis 24 m. S. and N. and 9 where broadest from E. to W. It gives Title of Earl to the Duke of Hamilton. 'Tis mountainous in the middle, and slopes on each side towards the Coasts, which produce good Corn, as the Mountains do Pasturage. Here is Fullers-Earth and Chrystal, and some large Coppices. There are several small Rivers on both sides the Island, which yield Salmon and other Fish; and Herring, Cod and Ling abound on the Coasts. The Air is somewhat cold, and moist, but cleared by frequent Breezes from the Mountains, where there's plenty of Deer. Here are several Caves on the Coasts, one large enough to contain 100 Men, at the further end of which there's a Pillar cut out of the Rock, with a Deer, and a two-handed Sword engraven upon it. There are several lesser Caves adjoining. The Natives say that Fin Maccoul, a Giant noted for great Exploits, lodged with his Retinue in those Caves. The Minister sometimes preaches in one of them to the People who live at a great distance from the Church. In this Island are many large Stones, set up on one end, from 6 to 15 Foot high: Some of them stand single, and others are formed in Circles. They are thought to be sepulchral Monuments for great Men, because there's a Stone-Coffin near one of them. Others suppose the Circles to have been Heathen Temples or Places for administring Justice. There's an Eminence of a m. in compaſs on the Coaſt fenced about with a Stone Wall, ſuppoſed to have been a Fortreſs for the People to retire to in caſe of War, or, as ſome reckon, a Sanctuary. Here are many Horſes and Black Cattle of a middling Size, with abundance of Sheep and Goats, Sea and Land-Fowl. The Duke of Hamilton, who is chief Proprietor of the Iſland, has a Coroner, and Foreſter, &c. to take care of his Deer and other Game. His Grace has a Seat here at the Caſtle of Broadick, near the N. E. Corner of the Iſland. It is ſtrong and large, the Reſidence of his Steward, and of his Family when any of them come hither. He has another Caſtle at the N. end of the Iſland, near the Bay called Lochwiſtel. The Inhabitants conſiſt of ſeveral Tribes; and the oldeſt Family among them is that of Macklewis, or Fullerton, ſaid to be of 700 Years ſtanding. They were formerly the King's Coroners of the Iſland, and now hold that Place of the Duke of Hamilton, for which they have ſeveral Perquiſites; they proſecute Malefactors, and have power to ſummon all the Inhabitants to aſſiſt them in caſe of Reſiſtance. The People of this Iſland are well proportioned, generally of a brown and black Complexion, healthful and ingenious. They ſpeak Iriſh and Engliſh, have five Churches, and their Miniſters preach in both Languages. Here's a green Stone of the Figure of a Globe, and the ſize of a Gooſe-Egg. They ſay it belonged to a Chaplain of Macdonald of the Iſles, whom they call a Saint; and tho the People are Proteſtants, yet the credulous Vulgar have many Legends about its Virtues, and fancy it has a Property to remove Stitches; ſo that it has been carefully kept for ſeveral Ages by a Branch of the Family of Mackintoſh. There's a little Iſland called Lamlaſh, on the E. ſide of Arran, where there's a good Bay, and a Harbour.

3. Aliſa lies in the Mouth of Clyde, 6 m. S. of Arran, is a ſteep Rock, acceſſible only in one Place. People come hither once a Year to fiſh for Cod. It reſembles the Baſs in the Mouth of Edinburgh Firth, and abounds with Solan Geeſe, and Rabbets. It belongs to the Earl of Caſſils, has a Plain on the Top large enough to draw up 1000 Men, a Freſh-water Lake, and a Tower.

There are ſome ſmall Iſlands W. from hence, about a m. from the Promontory of Kintyre, where the Danes us'd to rendevous their Ships when poſſeſſed of the W. Iſlands; which are thoſe that follow, and belong to the Shire of Argyle. The Inhabitants ſpeak Iriſh, and wear the Highland Habit.

The Weſtern Iſlands in the Shire of Argyle, &c.

1. Kara, on the W. ſide of Kintyre, is about a m. round, has good Paſturage, ſtore of Rabbits, and a Harbour for Barks. It belongs to a Branch of the Macdonalds.

2. Gigay, about a m. further N. is 4 m. long, one broad, produces Corn and Paſturage, and abounds with Black Cattel, Horſes, and Sheep. It has no Wood, but ſome Buſhes of Juniper, and there's a Scurf on the Stones made uſe of by the Natives for dying Crimſon and Philamot. 'Tis poſſeſſed chiefly by the Macneils, who have their Burying-Place in the Church, with Tombs, that have two-handed Swords engraven upon them. Here are alſo ſome ſtone Monuments ſet up on one end. There's a Well which the Natives reckon good againſt all Diſeaſes; and tho Proteſtants, they have ſeveral traditional Legends about it.

3. Iſla, or Ila, 15 m. W. from Kintyre. 'Tis 24 m. long, and from 8 to 16 broad. It gives Title of Earl to the Duke of Argyle's Brother. It abounds with Corn and Cattle, has many Deer, Lead Mines, and ſtore of Lime-Stone. Here are ſeveral Rivers and Freſh-water Lakes, that abound with Salmon and other Fiſh. In ſeveral of thoſe Lochs are Iſlands with Forts. One called Loch Finlagan, in the S. W. Corner, which is about 3 m. round, abounds with Salmon, Trouts, and Eels, empties it ſelf by a River into the Sea, and has an Iſland where the Great Macdonald, who aſſum'd the Title of King of the Iſles, formerly kept his Court. The Ruins of his Palace are ſtill to be ſeen, as are alſo the Houſes of his Courtiers and Guards near the Banks of the Lake. Here are many Caves, one of 'em large enough for 200 Men, and divided into Chambers. Here's a famous Well, reckon'd good againſt all Diſeaſes, and a Chappel near it, for the Devotion of thoſe who drink the Water. Lochmadal, in the S. end of the Iſland, is a large Bay, 8 m. long, and 2 broad, and makes a good Harbour for Ships. Lochgruynord, on the W. ſide, is another Bay, 4 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ long, and 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ broad, with ſeveral Iſlands at the Mouth of it. Here are 6 Churches and a Chappel. Campbel of Caddel is one of the chief Proprietors, and Steward of the Crown here. There are Multitudes of ſmall Iſlands upon the Coaſts of this; ſome of which are inhabited. One of them, called Overſa, on the S. ſide, near the Mouth of Lochmadal, is remarkable for a tempeſtuous Firth betwixt it and Iſla, which is not paſſable by Veſſels but at certain Hours.

4. Jura, N. of Iſla, from which it is ſeparated by a Sound about a m. and $\frac{1}{2}$ broad, and 5 long, in which lie ſeveral Iſlands. Jura is about 24 m. long, from 6 to 7 broad, and belongs to the Duke of Argyle. 'Tis well inhabited on the Eaſtern Coaſt, abounds with Deer, Horſes, Black Cattle, Sheep, Goats, wild and tame Fowl. 'Tis reckon'd one of the moſt healthful Places in Scotland. The Air is very clear from the middle of March to Michaelmas. The Inhabitants are long lived. One of the Duke's Stewards, named Campbel, lived here to 106 Years of Age; and Mr. Martin ſays, that in his Time there was a Woman 140 Years old, who had all her Senſes perfect to the laſt, and a Man who lived 180. There are ſeveral large Caves, and a celebrated Well, good againſt the Stone and Nauſeouſneſs of the Stomach, with ſeveral other Fountains of excellent Water, and Rivers that have very good Salmon. There's a Bay called Lochtarbat, on the W. ſide of the Iſland. 'Tis 2 m. broad, 4 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ long, and has many ſmall Iſlands. The W. Shore has Coral and Coralline, and a ſort of white Dulſe. There are high Mountains in the middle of the Iſland, 4 of which are of a great Height, ſeen far at Sea, and called by Mariners the Paps of Jura.

5. Scarba, a m. N. from Jura, is 2 m. long, and near 2 broad, and has a Church. The People are Proteſtants, well proportioned, and generally black and healthful.

6. Oreuſa, 12 m. W. of Jura, is 4 m. long, and a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ broad. It has one Church, 2 ruinous Chappels, ſome Freſh-water Lakes, that abound with Fiſh, and in one of them an Iſland with a Fort. 'Tis fruitful in Corn and Graſs, has a Church, a Chappel, and the Remain of a Monaſtery built by the famous St. Columbus, to whom the Churc is dedicated. The Iſland belongs to Macduffy, who has a Burial-Plac in the Church, with the Tombs of ſeveral of his Anceſtors, on whic are engraved two-handed Swords, and a Ship under Sail. There wa a rich Crucifix in the Church adorned with precious Stones, the richel of which is kept by Macduffy, and is reckoned a Catholicon for al Diſeaſes by the ſuperſtitious People. The Remains of the Monaſter are encompaſs'd by a ſquare Stone Wall about 2 Stories high. Th Area is about 80 Paces, and there are 2 Squares within it with an tient Inſcriptions, not now to be read. The Black Cattle, Horſes and Sheep, are of a low Size. The People are well proportioned and of a black Complexion.

7. Colonſa, a little N. from hence, is only ſeparated from it whe the Tide is in, there being a Paſſage over the Sands at low Water 'Tis 4 m. long, and above 1 broad, *not very fruitful; but has abun*dance of ſmall Horſes, Black Cattle, and Sheep, one Church, and 2 ruinous Chappels, ſome Freſh-water Lakes that abound with Trouts and ſeveral Forts. Many Places of the Iſland are rocky and healthy, intermix'd with Ever-greens of Erica Baccifera, Juniper, and Cats-Tail This Iſland belongs to the Duke of Argyle. There are ſeveral othe ſmall Iſlands on the Coaſts of theſe not deſcribed.

8. Mull, 15 m. N. of Colonſa, is 24 m. long, and 24 broad. The Duke of Argyle is Proprietor, ſince the Family of Maclean was forfeited. 'Tis ſeparated from Lochaber by a narrow Channel. The Air temperately cold and moiſt, and qualified by Breezes from the Mountains. The Inhabitants uſe Aquavitæ, and Carmyl, an aromatick Root, when the Seaſon is very moiſt. There's a great Ridge of Mountains in the middle, one of which is ſo high, that 'tis ſeen from all the W. Iſlands, and a great part of the Continent. Here's good Paſturage. Their Horſes and Black Cattle are ſmall, but ſprightly, and the latter very good Meat. Here's ſtore of Sheep, Goats, Deer, Wild-Fowl, Sea-Fowl, and fine Hawks, Barley and Oats, great Variety of Plants, ſome Wood, and plenty of Turf and Peats. There are ſeveral Bays and Places for Anchorage. That of Duart, on the E. ſide, is moſt frequented; and Herring, Cod, Ling, Oyſters, Cockles, Muſcles, Clams, &c. abound on the Coaſt, eſpecially in Lochleffen Bay. Here are alſo Seals, Otters, Vipers, ſeveral Rivers that abound with Salmon and Pearl-Muſcles, and Freſh-water Lakes that abound with Trouts and Eels. The Iſle is very well watered with Springs; and they talk of one that has yellow Stones at bottom, which never grow hot, tho caſt into the Fire. Here are 3 Caſtles: The chief is Caſtle Duart, on a Promontory near the S. E. Corner of the Iſland, formerly the Seat of the Chief of the Macleans. Here are ſeveral old Forts, ſuppoſed to have been built by the Danes. The Inhabitants are Proteſtants, except a very few, have 7 Pariſh-Churches, and a little Chappel. The Florida, one of the Ships of the Spaniſh Armado, was blown up in a Bay near the N. E. Corner by one Smallet of Dumbarton in 1588. There was a great Sum of Gold and Silver on board her, which ſeveral have attempted to fiſh up, and recovered part of it, with ſome fine Braſs Guns. Black and white Indian Nuts are often found on the W. Coaſt. The Natives powder the Kernels of the black, and drink them in boiled Milk for a Diarrhæa. There are ſeveral Iſlands in the Bays, and ſome of them have Forts. There are many ſmall Iſlands on the Coaſt of Mull, and among others,

9. Iona, or Icolm-Kil, ſo called from the famous Columba, or Columbus. It is 2 m. long, and one broad. The E. ſide is fruitful in Corn and Graſs, and the W. high and rocky, with Quarries of Marble of ſeveral Colours and beautiful Veins. This Iſland was antiently a Seminary of Learning and Piety; ſo that it was reckoned the Mother-Church of the antient Scots and Picts. Columbus built 2 Churches and 2 Monaſteries here; one for Men, and another for Women, which were richly endowed by the Kings of Scotland, and the Lords of the Iſles. It became the See of the Biſhop of the Iſles, after the Scots loſt the Iſle of Man: and from the Church erected here to the Honour of our Saviour, the Biſhop was ſtiled Epiſcopus Sotorenſis. It is built in form of a Croſs: The Choir is 20 Yards long, the Body of the Church as much, and 2 Croſs-Iſles about 10 each. The Cupola is 21 Foot ſquare. There are 2 Chappels on each ſide the Choir; and at the Entrance of 'em are large Pillars neatly carved in Baſſo Relievo. The Doors and Windows are alſo curiouſly carved; and there's a large Altar of as fine Marble as can be ſeen any where. The Tombs of ſeveral of the Abbots, with their Statues in black Marble, are ſtill remaining; and there are Monuments of other Perſons of Note. On the S. ſide of the Church are the Sepulchres and Tombs of many Kings and Chiefs of Clans. In one of thoſe Sepulchres there's an Inſcription on the Tombs, which ſignifies that 48 Scots Kings were buried here. On one ſide there's another with an Inſcription, that 8 Kings of Norway are interred there; and on the Right-hand a third, denoting that 4 Kings of Ireland were buried there. The other moſt remarkable Tombs are thoſe of the Family of Mackinnon. This is much the ſtatelieſt, and has a Statue as big as the Life in Armour, with the Arms of the Family. There are alſo the Statues of many other Perſons of Diſtinction in Armour, particularly thoſe of the Macleans and Macdonalds. Near the W. end, in a little Cell is the Tomb of Columbus; which confutes thoſe Iriſh Authors who ſay he was buried in their Country. Near this Tomb there's a large Croſs of one entire Stone, being Red with a Mixture of Grey. It ſtands on a Pedeſtal of the ſame kind of Stone, has a large Crucifix engraven on one ſide, and a Tree on the other. At a little diſtance from the Church there's a Fort built of Stone, in form of a Baſtion. The Pavements of the 2 Monaſteries are of hard red Stone, and ſtill entire. There's a little Dock, where, they ſay, the Boat belonging to the Monaſteries was kept. Here are many Stones finely variegated upon the Shore. They ripen to a green Colour, and then are proper for Carving. The Natives look upon them to be fortunate. Macneil of Bara, and Macdonald of Benbecula, have each of them a Manuſcript Copy of Columbus's Life, writ in Iriſh. Bede, in his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, ſays of Columbus, that he came from Ireland in the Year 565 to preach to the northern Picts, in which he was very ſucceſsful. He adds, they gave him this Iſland, which was then called Hii; that his Succeſſors poſſeſſed this Monaſtery in Bede's Time; and that Columba was buried here in the 77th Year of his Age: That he likewiſe founded a Monaſtery in Ireland, from whence, and from

from this, his Diſciples founded ſeveral others in Britain and Ireland; that the Abbot was of no higher Order than a Presbyter, becauſe Columba was one; notwithſtanding which the Clergy of the whole Province, even the Biſhops themſelves, were ſubject to this Abbot and his College of Presbyters.

10. Liſmore lies in a Bay that runs up to Inverlochy, about 4 m. E. from the Iſle of Mull. It is 8 m. long, about 2 where broadeſt, and was formerly a Biſhop's See; from whence the Biſhop of the Iſles was called Biſhop of Liſmore. There are ſeveral other ſmall Iſles in the Neighbourhood that belonged to the Monaſtery; as Soa, which has good Paſturage for Sheep, and abounds with Sea-Fowl. Here's another, called the Iſle of Women, becauſe the Abbot would ſuffer no other in the Iſle of Iona but Nuns; ſo that the Tradeſmens Wives and Daughters were obliged to live here.

11. Skenny, about ½ a m. from Mull, has a Pariſh-Church, and abounds with Rabbets. In Lochſeafort, a Bay that runs on the W. ſide of Mull, are ſeveral Iſlands, the chief of which are Eorſa and Inchkenneth, both inhabited, and have Corn and Paſturage. The latter has a Chappel.

12. Ulva lies at the Mouth of the Lake, is 5 m. long, encompaſſed with Rocks and Shelves, but fruitful in Corn and Graſs, and has a commodious Harbour.

13. Coluanſa, or Colonſa, lies S. of it, is fruitful, and has a Wood of Hazel. W. from Ulva lies Gometra, about a m. ½ long, and ¼ broad, fruitful in Corn and Graſs. S. W. from Gometra, about 2 m. ½, lie 2 ſmall Iſles, called Kairnburg-Moor and Kairnburg-Beg, faced all round with Rocks, and of ſo difficult Acceſs, as well as ſtrong by Nature, that a few Men are able to defend them againſt 1000. They had a ſmall Gariſon in King William's Time, to keep the Highlanders in awe. S. from theſe lie ſeveral ſmall Iſlands, about which there's plenty of Cod and Ling. Near the N. E. end of Mull lies the Iſland Calve, about 2 m. round, which affords good Paſturage, and has an excellent Bay betwixt this Iſland and Mull, where Ships ride ſafe.

14. Tireiy, 10 m. W. of Mull, is 9 m. long, and 3 where broadeſt. It abounds with Corn, Cattle, Fiſh, and Fowl, and is reckoned the moſt plentiful of all the Iſlands. It has ſeveral Freſh-water Lakes, in ſome of which are Iſlands and old Caſtles; and here's a commodious Harbour for Boats. 'Tis almoſt cut thro the middle by Bays. The Tides ſometimes overflow part of it. Here are Hectick Stones, which the Natives uſe to ſtrengthen their Ale, by heating and putting them into it; and they uſe Malt-Cakes for the ſame end. They keep their Drink in large earthen Veſſels, which they reckon better than Casks; and they preſerve their Yeſt by an Oaken Withe, which they twiſt, and put into it, and then keep it in Barley-Straw. Their Horſes and Black Cattle are ſmall, and often reduced to eat Sea-Ware in the Winter and Spring. Indian Nuts are frequently found on the Coaſt, during a W. Wind. Mr. Martin ſays, that ſome Years before he wrote, which was in 1703, about 160 young Whales, the biggeſt not exceeding 20 Foot long, ran aſhore on this Iſland in a time of Scarcity, and were eat by the Inhabitants, who found them wholeſome and nouriſhing. Here's one Pariſh-Church, ſeveral Forts, and Circles of Stone ſet up as Monuments; and there's a Cave in the S. W. part, where the Natives take abundance of Cormorants by Night. This Iſland belongs to the Duke of Argyle. It being low and mooriſh, the Inhabitants are ſubject to the Ague.

15. Coll, above 2 m. N. from it, is about 9 m. long, and 1 m. ½ broad. Part of it is full of little rocky Hills, covered with Heath; but the N. ſide produces good Barley and Oats. Here are ſeveral Rivers that yield Salmon, and a Freſh-water Lake that has Eels and Trouts. In one of thoſe Lakes is a Caſtle. The Proprietor is one of the Macleans. The People live to a good Age; and the Cod and Ling about this Iſland are of a large Size. At the N. end are ſeveral little rocky Iſlands, dangerous to Sailors.

16. Rum, about 21 m. N. E. of Coll, and 4 Leagues S. of Skye. Part of it is mountainous and heathy, but the Coaſt arable and fruitful. 'Tis 16 m. long, and 6 broad. The Rivers afford Salmon; and here's plenty of Land and Sea-Fowl, and hundreds of Deer in the Mountains. Here are abundance of Caves, one Chappel, and one Anchoring-place. Maclean of Coll is the Proprietor.

17. Muck, above 2 m. S. E. of Rum. It is 4 m. round, ſurrounded with a Rock, has good Corn and Graſs, and excellent Hawks.

18. Egg lies 4 m. N. E. of Rum. 'Tis about 5 m. long, and 3 broad. The W. ſide is rocky and mountainous: The E. ſide plainer and arable. The whole is pretty good for Paſturage. In the S. end there's a Mountain, and on the Top of it a high Rock, about 150 Paces round, with a Freſh-water Pool in the middle. 'Tis acceſſible only by one Paſſage, which makes it a natural Fort. There's a Harbour on the S. E. ſide, and a Cave on the S. W. that will hold ſome hundreds of People. Here are two Wells, good againſt ſeveral Diſeaſes. Moſt of the Inhabitants are Papiſts; and the Iſland belongs to 2 of the Macdonalds. Here's a Church, and a ſepulchral Urn was found near it under Ground. It was full of human Bones without Heads; ſo that 'tis ſuppos'd they were cut off, and carried away by Enemies. A Stone Paſſage under ground was alſo diſcovered near this Urn.

19. Canray, 2 m. N. W. of Rum, is above 4 m. long, and 2 broad. It has plenty of Corn and Graſs; and the Coaſts abound with Cod and Ling. 'Tis for the moſt part ſurrounded with a high Rock. There's a rocky Hill on the N. end, which diſorders the Needle of a Compaſs, makes it turn round with great Swiftneſs, and ſettle due E. At the S. end there's a Rock which abounds with wild Geeſe. There's good Anchorage at the N. E. part of the Iſle. The Inhabitants are Papiſts, and the Proprietor one of the Macdonnalds.

20. Skye lies 7 m. N. of Rum, and is ſeparated from the Continent by a narrow Channel of about 3 Leagues; and at the Ferry it is ſo narrow, that a Man may be heard from one ſide to the other. It belongs to the Shire of Inverneſs, is 42 m. long, from 30 to 20 broad, and has 10 Pariſh-Churches. 'Tis very high Land both on the Coaſt and within the Country, where there are 7 high Mountains that lie near one another, almoſt in the Center of the Iſland. Here's ſuch plenty of Corn, that it ſupplies the neighbouring Continent with Barley and Oats. It has many excellent Bays and Harbours, convenient for Fiſhing and Trade, and about 30 Rivers which afford Salmon and other Fiſh, and many of them have Pearl Muſcles. Here are abundance of Freſh-water Lakes well ſtored with Trouts and Eels; and in one of them an Iſland with a Chappel. Moſt of the Bays abound with Herring all Summer. The Natives dry and preſerve them without Salt for 8 Months, without any other Art than gutting them, tying a Ruſh about their Necks, and hanging them up by Pairs upon Ropes. Cod, Ling, Mackarel, Graylords, Thornbacks, Haddocks, Whiting, Turbets, and Shell-fiſh, abound on the Coaſt, eſpecially Oyſters, of which the Spring-Tide ſometimes leaves many Horſe-loads on the Shore; and the Natives uſe the Sea-Plants Linarick, Slake, Dulce, and Alga marina for Phyſical Uſes. Here are many large Caves, from the Roofs of ſome of which drops a petrifying Water, that turns to a white Limy Subſtance. There's one Cave near Slate, the Seat of —— Macdonald, that is ſaid to be 7 m. long; and another near Portry, capable of containing 80 Men, with a Well in it; and the Paſs to it is ſo narrow by the ſide of a Rock, that one Man may defend it againſt hundreds. There are abundance of old Forts upon riſing Grounds on the Coaſt, ſaid to have built been by the Danes, ſo near one another, that by Beacons they could ſoon alarm the whole Iſland in caſe of an Invaſion. There are alſo many little Stone Houſes built under ground, for People to hide themſelves and Goods in time of War; and other little ones above ground, deſigned for Contemplation, becauſe capable of containing only one Perſon at a time. Here are many Monuments, ſome conſiſting of ſingle Stones ſet up on end, and others of many heaped together; but the Hiſtory of them is loſt. The Fuel here is Coal, Turf, and Peat, in the Aſhes of which are ſometimes found Cakes of Iron. Here's abundance of Horſes, Black Cattle, Sheep, Goats, and Hogs. The Black Cattle feed often in Winter on the Alga marina, and obſerve the Ebb very exactly for that end. Here are abundance of Land and Water-Fowl of all ſorts, and among others Hawks and Eagles. This Iſland yields Fullers-Earth, and white, red, and blue Clay, and ſeveral fine ſorts of red and white Earth, like melted Tallow. Here's alſo ſtore of Marl, black and white Marcaſites, variegated Stones of all Colours, Agat of ſeveral Colours; and Stones of a purple Colour flow down the Rivulets after great Rains. Here is alſo Chryſtal of ſeveral Colours, and one ſort of a purple Colour; black and white Marble, both very good: Free-Stone and Lime-Stone are here in plenty. The Lapis Ceraunius, or Cerna Ammonis, of different Shapes, is found here with various Impreſſions. The Natives call them Cramp-Stones, and ſay, that the Water in which they are ſteeped cures the Cramp in their Cattle. Velumnites, or Bat-Sones, are alſo frequent here; and the Natives give their Horſes the Water they have been ſteeped in to cure the Bats. Here's the Lapis Hecticus, Talk reſembling that of Venice, and Scurfs which grow on Stone, and dye a Crimſon and Philamot Colour. Here's plenty of very good Springs, ſeveral of them medicinal, and frequented by Strangers, as well as the Inhabitants, for Stitches, Head-aches, the Stone, Conſumptions, and Meagrims. Moſt of the Bays abound with Herring; but the moſt remarkable and beſt frequented for that end are the Lochs Effort, Stapan, Fallart, Scowſar, and that called the Kyle of Scalpa. Here are Otters and Seals; and the Hunters obſerve a big ſort of Otters with a white Spot on the Breaſt, which are very ſcarce, and hard to be kill'd. Among noxious Inſects, here are Serpents of ſeveral ſorts, againſt whoſe Poiſon the Natives apply the Rump of a Cock ſtripp'd of its Feathers, or Water in which the Sting of an Adder's Tongue has been ſteeped, new Cheeſe, and the Head of the Serpent that gave the Wound. The S. Parts of the Iſland, about Slate, are a Month earlier with their Graſs than the N. Parts. The Air is commonly moiſt and cold, which obliges the Natives to uſe Brandy and other ſtrong Liquors. The People are very dextrous at curing Diſeaſes with Simples of their own Product. The Iſland is divided into three Parts, poſſeſſed by different Proprietors. The S. Part, called Slate, belong'd to Sir Donald Macdonald Kt. and Bar. His Family is diſtinguiſh'd from all the reſt of the Name by being called Macdonald abſolutely, and by way of Eminence. He derives his Deſcent from Somerled Thane of Argyle, who came to be Lord of the Iſles by Marriage; and his Son being called Donald, all his Poſterity aſſum'd the Name of Macdonald, i. e. Donald's Son. He was the firſt who had the Title of King of the Iſles. His Family acquired alſo the Earldom of Roſs by Marriage; but one of the Sons taking Arms againſt his Father, becauſe he gave too much of his Eſtate to the Church and his Friends, the Father was ſo diſpleaſed, that he made over the Right of all his Eſtate to the King, which occaſioned the Fall of that great Family. Mr. Martin gives this Account from ſeveral Manuſcripts kept by the Genealogiſts of this Country. The Family was forfeited on their taking Arms for the Pretender. That Part of the Iſland N. of Slate is called Strath, and poſſeſſed by the Laird of Mackinnon, Head of an antient Tribe. N. W. of that lies Macleod's Country, poſſeſſed by Macleod, who derives his Deſcent from the Black Prince of Man, and is alſo Head of an antient Tribe. The Barony of Troterneſs, on the N. ſide of Skye, belonged to Sir Donald Macdonald. The Proprietors and all the People are Proteſtants, except a few of the meaner ſort, who are Papiſts. There are many leſſer Iſlands about Skye which depend upon it. The chief are, (1.) Soabrettil, on the S. Coaſt; 'tis 5 m. round, chiefly uſed for Paſturage, has ſome Wood, and is noted for abundance of Cod and Ling on its Coaſts. (2.) Oronſa, on the ſame Coaſt, a Peninſula at low Water, about a m. round, and is noted for excellent Graſs. On the N. Coaſt lie the following Iſlands. (1.) Pabbay, in a Bay betwixt Roſs and Skey, about 2 m. round, and has ſuch good Paſturage, that the Cows there give near double the Milk of thoſe in Skye. Here is alſo abundance of Lobſters with other Shell-Fiſh, and all the ordinary Sea-Plants. (2.) Scalpa, 2 m. ¼ N. W. of Pabbay, about ½ a m. N. of Skey. 'Tis almoſt 3 m. long, and above 2 broad, abounds with Corn, Graſs, and Wood, and has many Deer. 'Tis alſo famous for Herring and Cod-fiſhing, and abounds ſo with Oiſters, that commonly a Spring-Tide of Ebb leaves 15 or 20 Horſe-load on the Sands. (3.) Raorſa, or Raſa, on the ſame Coaſt, about 3 m. ½ N. W. is about 7 m. long, 2 where broadeſt, has good Paſturage, a pretty deal of Wood, and is well watered with Rivulets and Springs. One of the latter which runs down from a high Rock, petrifies into a white Subſtance, of which is made very fine Lime. Here are many Caves where People lodge in Summer when they come hither for fiſhing and grazing; and there's an old Caſtle with ſome Villages. Here are ſeveral Forts, ſuppoſed to have been built by the Danes. The Proprietor is one of the Macleods, who has as much reſpect from his Tenants, who are Proteſtants, as if he were a King: and when any Lady of this Family dies, they erect a Pyramid of Stone with her Name upon it to her Memory. His Seat is the Village of Clachn. It conſiſts of a Tower and leſſer Houſes; and he has an Orchard, which is not common in this Country. Off of the N. End lies Rona, an Iſland 3 m. round. It has very good Paſturage, but little Corn Ground; and moſt of the Rocks conſiſt of red Hectick Stone. Here's a Bay with abundance of Fiſh. Towards the N.E. Corner of Skye are ſeveral leſſer Iſlands, as (1.) Fladda, about a m. round, has good arable Ground. About a m. N. W. lies Aliſig, a high rocky Ground, yet fruitful in Corn and Graſs; and Herrings abound ſo much about it, that the Fiſher-Boats are often intangled by the Shoals. (2.) Troda, above 2 m. further N. W. is 2 m. round, and fruitfulin Corn and Graſs. (3.) Fladdachuan, Martin ſays 'tis 2 Leagues from the W. ſide of Humiſh Point, about 2 m. round, and much frequented in the Seaſon for Fiſh of all ſorts. Here are plenty of big Whales which purſue the ſmall Fry, and a Chappel with an Altar and a blue Stone upon it, to which the credulous Mob aſcribe great Virtues againſt Diſeaſes. This Iſland abounds with Sea-Fowl and Plovers that come hither from Skye in the beginning of September, and return in April. On the S. E. ſide there are 6 or 7 Rocks at the diſtance of a Muſket-Shot. One of them is called the Round-Table becauſe of its Form. 'Tis about 300 Paces round, flat on the Top, and has a deep Well of freſh Water, is only acceſſible at one Place by climbing, ſo that one Man at the Top of the Paſs is able to keep off 500. It belonged to Sir Donald Macdonald of Slate, and is ſometimes uſed as a Priſon. There's another high Rock on the W. ſide of this Fort, which may be ſecured with a few Hands. About ½ a League S. there's another Rock that abounds with Scurvy-Graſs of a ſweet Taſte, as the Coaſt does with Fiſh. There are ſeveral other little Iſles in the Neighbourhood that abound with Paſturage and Fiſh of all kinds, particularly Cod and Ling. Mr. Martin ſays that the Inhabitants of Skye and the neighbouring Iſlands are generally well proportioned, and for the moſt part black. They are liable to few Diſeaſes, which he aſcribes to their Temperance. He ſays he has known ſeveral of above 80 or 90 Years of Age, and that the Lady Macleod lived to 103, and at that Age had a lovely Head of Hair, good Teeth, and a lively Underſtanding. In ſhort, he ſays they are very ingenious, much given to Poeſy and Muſick, wherein they ſucceed well, and are capable of all Arts and Sciences. He inſiſts on many other Particulars, for which we refer to his Deſcription of the Weſtern Iſlands.

Proprietor

21. About 80 m. S. W. of Skye, and 18 m. W. of Tir-iy, are many ſmall Iſlands that belong to Mack-Neil of Barra. (1.) Berneray, about 2 m. round, has plenty of Fiſh and Fowl, and ſome Corn-Ground. The People preſerve their Sea-Fowl by ſalting them with the Aſhes of Sea-Ware, and putting them up in Cows Hides. They are very hoſpitable to Strangers, but have a peculiar Cuſtom of diſpoſing 'em by one in a Family, ſo that they ſeparate even Men and their Wives. They are very dextrous at climbing the neighbouring Rocks for Sea-Fowl and Eggs, of which and their Feathers they make conſiderable Profit. Mr. Martin ſays the Inhabitants of this and the other Iſlands belonging to Mack-Neil make Application to him for Wives and Huſbands; he names the Perſon, and gives 'em a Bottle of ſtrong Waters for the Marriage-Feaſt. Their uſual Addreſs to him is, that they want a Wife or a Husband to manage their Affairs, and beget him Followers; and he makes up the Match without any long Courtſhip, for he takes what Care he can that their Circumſtances may ſuit one another; and in caſe their Cattle fail by the Severity of Seaſons or otherwiſe, he provides 'em with new ones. And when any of his Tenants grow ſo old as not to be able to work, he maintains them; ſo that he is a ſort of Father as well as Landlord to them. He held his Lands in Vaſſalage of Macdonald of Slate, to whom he paid 40 l. per Annum, and was obliged to furniſh him a certain number of Men on extraordinary Occaſions, and to give him a Hawk if required. He is of a very antient Family, and according to the Highland Genealogiſts was the 34th Lineal Deſcendant that poſſeſſed thoſe Iſlands when Mr. Martin wrote in 1703. The other Iſlands belonging to him are Megala, Pappa, Linga, Fladda, Sundrera, Scarpa, Waterſa and Barra; the latter is the chief Part of his Eſtate. Theſe Iſlands are ſmall, and the Inhabitants ſubſiſt chiefly by Fiſhing and Paſture. The principal Iſlands belonging to Mack-Neil are, (1.) Waterſa, ſeparated from Barra by a narrow Channel. 'Tis noted for a ſafe Harbour capable of many Ships, and where thoſe of the greateſt Burden may ride ſafely. 'Tis frequented by great numbers of Fiſhing-Veſſels in the proper Seaſon. (2.) Barra, the chief Iſland in Mack-Neil's poſſeſſion: 'tis 7 m. long, but the Breadth unequal, the greateſt being about 3 m. 'Tis much indented by Bays, in which there are many Iſlands. The Produce is Corn and Paſturage. It has a ſafe Harbour on the N.E. ſide, and abounds with Cod, Ling, and other Fiſh on the Coaſts. In one of the Bays on the E. ſide there's an Iſland named Kiſmul with a ſtrong Caſtle, which is Mack-Neil's Seat. 'Tis encompaſſed with a Stone-Wall two Stories high, within which there's a Tower, with other Houſes, and a Magazine. It is kept with as much Care as any Gariſon; and Mack-Neil has a Conſtable and other Officers here, tho one would think there is no need of ſuch Precaution in ſo remote a Corner. Here's one Church and a Chappel near it, which is the Burial-Place of the Family. He and his Tenants for the moſt part are Papiſts, ignorant, and ſuperſtitious to a degree. 'This and the other adjoining Iſlands are called the Biſhop's Iſles, becauſe formerly under the Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of the Iſles. They are much frequented by Fiſhermen from Orkney, &c. Several of them abound with Corn and Graſs, and have convenient Harbours. In Barra there's a Fountain which flows from a high green Hill, the Stream of which carries down a ſort of Cockles in Embryo, and great Quantities of thoſe Shell-Fiſh are found in the neighbouring Sands.

22. Southviſt, lies 2 m. S. of Benbecula, 21 m. long, and from 3 to 4 broad. The E. Coaſt is mountainous, and generally heathy, but the W. ſide is plain arable Ground; and the Soil being generally ſandy, yields good Crops of Barley, Oats, and Rye, and it abounds with Cattle. Both the E. and W. ſides have freſh-Water Lakes, which afford Trouts and Eels, beſides variety of Land and Sea-Fowls. The arable Land is much damnified by the overflowing of the Lakes, ſeveral of which have ſmall Iſlands in the middle with old Forts. Ambergreaſe has been found ſeveral times on the Coaſts of this Iſland; at the S. end of which there's a violent and dangerous Current. The People here live long; Martin ſpeaks of one who in his time was 130 Years old.

23. Benbecula, lies 2 m. N. from South-viſt, and at Ebb the Channel betwixt them may be waded. 'Tis 3 m. long, and 3 broad, and has a Harbour for ſmall Veſſels which come hither to fiſh for Herring. Here are ſeveral freſh-Water Lakes well ſtocked with Fiſh and Fowl, and in thoſe Lakes are Iſlands with the Ruins of antient Forts. Here are ſeveral ſmall Chappels, and near one of them a Stone Vault lately diſcovered with ſmall human Bones, which the Natives who are Papiſts alledge to be thoſe of Pigmies; but there having been a Nunnery here formerly, they are ſuppoſed to be the Bones of their Baſtards: Sir Norman Macleod having ſuggeſted this to the Inhabitants, they have ſhut up the Vault, and ſuffer no body to ſee it. The Proprietor is one of the Macdonalds, and a Papiſt. There are abundance of ſpeckled Salmons on the W. ſide of this Iſland. There are ſeveral other Iſlands in the Neighbourhood which are dangerous to Sailors.

24. Northviſt, lies N. from Benbecula, from which it is ſeparated by ſeveral Rocks, little Iſlands, and a Channel about 3 m. broad. 'Tis about 9 m. S. and N. and 9 where broadeſt E. and W. but much indented both ways by Bays. Part of it is mountainous, and heathy, which ſerves for Paſturage, but the W. ſide is plain and arable, and the Fields in Summer are cover'd with Clover, Daiſies, &c. pleaſant to the Sight, and of a fragrant Smell. Their Barley, Oats and Rye yields from 10 to 30 fold in plentiful Years. Here's abundance of Black-Cattle and Sheep. This with the neighbouring Iſlands of Benbecula and Southviſt are by ſome Geographers reckoned one, becauſe at an Ebb the People may eaſily paſs from one to another, either upon dry Sands, or by wading, or upon Horſeback; and together they are about 33 m. long. They contain ſuch a multitude of freſh Water Lakes and Bays with Iſlands, that 'tis not poſſible to number them; and moſt of thoſe Lakes abound with Fowl, Sea and freſh-Water Fiſh; and Cod, Ling and Mackarel are brought into the freſh-Water Lakes by Spring-Tides. The chief Bays here are, (1.) Lochmaddy, on the S. E. ſide. The Name comes from three Rocks on the S. ſide of the Entry which abound with large Muſcles, which the Highlanders call Maddies. The Harbour is capable of ſome hundreds of Veſſels of any Burden. 'Tis famous for a great Fiſhery of Cod and Ling, and all other ſorts of Fiſh taken in thoſe Seas. This Loch has ſeveral Iſlands, and one near the S. ſide, called Nonſuch, becauſe Ships ride there very commodiouſly. Mr. Martin ſays that 400 Sail have been loaded here with Herring at one Seaſon. The Natives angle on the Rocks for Herring and other Fiſh. In this Harbour there's a ſmall Iſland called Vackſay, with the Ruins of an Houſe built by the Engliſh for a Magazine to keep their Casks, Salt, &c. for the Fiſhery begun here in K. Charles I's time, which was carried on with Succeſs, till the Civil Wars that followed ſoon after obliged the King to withdraw his Stock. Much of the Ground about this Bay is arable, and other Parts afford plenty of Turf and Peat for Fuel. Here's alſo ſtore of freſh Water, with abundance of large Oyſters and Clams. A little further S. is Loch-Eport, which has alſo good Harbour and ſeveral Iſlands. This Loch abounds with Seals, and in July the Spring-Tides carry in abundance of Mackarel, and leave many of them upon the Rocks. The common People preſerve them for ſome time by the Aſhes of Sea-Ware inſtead of Salt. A little further S. lies the Bay named the Kyle of Rona, becauſe of an Iſland of that Name within it. There's a Harbour on each ſide very convenient for fiſhing Cod and Ling which abound on this Coaſt; and there's a little Chappel in the Iſland for the Fiſhermens Worſhip, and burying ſuch as die in that Seaſon. Here are ſeveral Rivers which afford Salmon, and particularly one called Marled-Salmon, which are very ſhy and hard to be caught. Lobſters and other Shell-fiſh of all ſorts abound on the Coaſt. There are ſeveral antient Forts upon riſing Grounds, or on Iſlands in freſh Water Lakes, with a great many Stones ſet on end, and ſeveral Heaps, ſuppoſed to have been Monuments of Action, or Tombs for Perſons of Note. The leſſer Iſlands in the Neighbourhood, are Borrera a little N. which has a Harbour on the S. ſide. This Iſland is poſſeſs'd by one of the Macleans. Heisker lies about 3 m. W. of Northviſt, is 3 m. round, fruitful of Corn and Graſs, and has many Black-Cattle. The Inhabitants for want of other Fuel burn Cows-Dung, Barley-Straw, and dried Sea-Ware, and ſay the Bread baked by the Fuel of the latter reliſhes well. They ſalt their Cheeſe here with Aſhes of Barley-Straw, which they ſprinkle upon it for twelve Hours, and ſay if they lie longer it would ſpoil it. A great many Seals haunt about this Iſland, and the Natives for want of better Tackle, take them by a ſort of Purſe-Nets made of Horſe-Hair. On the S. ſide of Northviſt lie the Iſlands of Illeray; People may go to them on foot at low Water. They are three in Number, are each about 3 m. round, fruitful in Corn, and abound with Cattle. On the W. Coaſt of Northviſt lies Rock Eouſmil, famous for an annual Fiſhing of Seals about the end of October, ſo that 320 have been taken there at a time. The Natives ſalt them with the Aſhes of Sea-Ware, ſay they are good Food, that the Fleſh and Broth of the young is a good Pectoral, and uſed with ſucceſs in Diarrhæas, Dyſenteries, and Fluxes. They wear Girdles of their Skins againſt Sciaticas and Chin-coughs, and they uſe Thongs of them inſtead of Ropes for their Ploughs. Vela lies near the N. W. Corner of Northviſt, is 4 m. round, fruitful in Corn and Graſs, and has 3 Chappels. A League N. E. from hence lies Borrera, about 4 m. round, abounds with Graſs, and feeds many Cattle. Here is large and good Dulſe, which has a better Taſte, and requires leſs Butter than any other of the ſort. This was the common Burying-Place of the Monks of the N. Iſles. Lingay, ½ a League S. from Borrera, furniſhes the other Iſlands with Peat and Turf for Fuel. Mr. Martin ſays of Northviſt and theſe neighbouring Iſlands in general, that their Black-Cattle are ſmall, but their Beef ſweet and tender as any. They feed upon Sea-Ware in Winter and Spring. The Natives ſalt their Beef in Cows Hides, which they think keep it, and make it taſte better than in Casks. They ſend a great deal of it to Glaſgow, where 'tis barrel'd up and exported to the Indies in good condition.

There

There are alſo ſome hundreds of Deer in Northviſt, which feed on Sea-Ware in the Winter and Spring. Here are alſo Otters, Hawks, large Eagles, Pheaſants, Moor-Fowl, Tarmagans, Plovers, Pigeons, Swans in great numbers, and all the ordinary Sea-Fowls in the Weſtern Iſlands. The Eagles are very deſtructive to the Lambs and Fawns. Here is one ſort of Fowl named Colk, ſomewhat leſs than a Gooſe. It has Feathers of divers Colours, very beautiful, but they have no Stalks, and therefore are rather to be called Down. It has a Tuft on its Head like that of a Peacock, and a Train longer than that of a Houſe-Cock. There's another named Gawlin, ſomewhat leſs than a Duck, ſings always before good Weather; and ſome of the Highland Pipers have formed a Tune of its Notes, which the Natives think good Muſick. There's another called a Rain-Gooſe, which always makes a doleful Noiſe before a great Rain. Here are ſeveral other extraordinary Birds, as one called the Biſhop or Carara, is as large as a Gooſe, and has a white Spot on its Breaſt. For the reſt it is party-coloured, and its Fat is uſed by the Natives againſt the Sciatica. There's one called Goyſir, as big as a Swallow, which is obſerved to land only in the Month of January, when 'tis ſuppoſed to hatch. It dives with exceeding Swiftneſs, and when any numbers are ſeen together 'tis reckoned a certain Sign of an approaching Storm; and when the Storm ceaſes, they diſappear under Water. The Seamen call them Maliſigies, from mala Effigies, the Picture of Ill-Luck, which they often find to be true. There's another Bird called Sereacnanaittin, which is as big as a large Mull, but longer in the Body, and of a blueiſh Colour, but its Bill is of a Carnation. It ſhrieks moſt hideouſly, and is obſerved to be fonder of its Mate than any other Fowl; for when the Cock or Hen is killed, the Survivor makes a lamentable Noiſe about the Place for 8 or 10 days after. There's one called Faskidor, as big as a miadling Sea-Mew, which flies with exceeding Swiftneſs, and purſues leſſer Birds, and forcing them in their Flight to drop their Food, catches it before it falls to the ground. The Natives obſerve that an extraordinary Heat without Rain at the time when the Sea-Fowls lay their Eggs, makes them 8 or 10 days longer in laying them than in warm Weather accompanied with Rain. The many wild Geeſe here are very deſtructive to the Barley, notwithſtanding the Methods uſed for driving them away by Traps, Gun-ſhot, &c. There are ſome Flocks of barren Fowls of all kinds, which are diſtinguiſhed by their not joining with the reſt of their ſort, and they are commonly ſeen upon the bare Rocks without any Neſts.

The Air here is cold, and very moiſt, but the Natives qualify it ſometimes by drinking Uſquebaugh. The greateſt Snow falls with the S. W. Winds, but ſeldom continues above 3 or 4 days. The ordinary Snow falls with the N. and N. W. Winds, and lies deepeſt on the Tops of the Mountains. The Froſt continues till the Spring is pretty far advanced, when 'tis ſo ſevere that great numbers of Trouts and Eels die: but the Winter-Froſts have not this effect, becauſe, as the Inhabitants think, the Rains being more frequent in October, carry the Juice of the Plants into the Lakes, which nouriſhes the Fiſh in Winter; but in Spring the Water running with an uninterrupted Stream, carrys the Juice with it to the Sea, ſo that the Fiſh are deprived of that Nouriſhment, and conſequently of Life. The Natives are the more confirmed in this opinion, by obſerving that the Fiſhes in Lakes and Marſhes outlive both Winter and Spring-Froſts. The E. N. E. Winds always bring fair Weather in all the N. W. Iſlands, and the Rains are moſt frequent here in October and February. The Diſeaſes that prevail moſt, are Fevers, Diarrnæa's, Dyſenteries, Stitches, Coughs, Sciatica's, Megrims, and the Small-Pox commonly once in 17 Years. For Fevers they let Blood plentifully, againſt Diarrhæa's they uſe ſtrong Aquavitæ, with the Fleſh and Liver of Seals, and Milk wherein the Hectic Stone has been quenched. For other Particulars we refer to Mr. Martin.

The Inhabitants are generally well-proportioned, of an ordinary Stature, good Complexion, and healthful. Several of them live to 90, 93, and 100. They are very hoſpitable. This Iſland belonged to Mackdonald of Slate, and the People are Proteſtants.

25. About 3 Leagues ¼ W. lie ſeveral ſmall Iſlands called Hawsker. There are ſome Houſes upon them, but they are chiefly noted for vaſt Quantities of Fowl.

26. Eighteen Leagues W. from Northviſt lie the Iſlands of St. Kilda or Hirt. They are rather a Cluſter of Rocks than Iſlands, and take Name from the chief of them, which is called Kilda or Kildar from a Perſon that lived here. Hirt comes from the Iriſh Word ſignifying Weſt, becauſe they lie furtheſt towards that Quarter of any of the Scots Iſles. St. Kilda is about 2 m. long and 1 broad, and faced round with a ſteep Rock, except a little Bay on the S. E. ſide, where Veſſels ſometimes put in. In calm Weather one may eaſily land upon the Rock, and climb up to the Iſland. The Land riſes high in the middle, and there is one Mountain higher than the reſt. Here are ſeveral Fountains of good Water. Their Corn is Oats, and the largeſt Barley in the Weſtern Iſles. Their Cattle are of a low ſize, and their Sheep have big long Horns. This and the neighbouring Iſles of Soa and Borera are good for Paſturage, and have vaſt numbers of Sea-Fowl from March till September. Solan-Geeſe are ſo numerous here, that the Inhabitants keep yearly above 20000 in little Stone Houſes made on purpoſe. They uſe no Salt for preſerving them, but keep the Eggs of them and other Sea-Fowl ſome Months in Peat-Aſhes. Theſe Geeſe come hither in March with a S. W. Wind; and before the great Flock ſome arrive as Harbingers, which after flying round the Iſles go again to their Company, and in a few days come back with them. They ſtay here till September, build in the high Rocks, and fiſh, hatch, and make their Neſts by turns. They gather up Graſs or Sea-weed, or whatever they find floating on the Water for their Neſts. The Steward of St. Kilda told Mr. Martin that he found in ſome of their Neſts a red Coat, a Braſs Sun-Dial, Arrows and Molucca-Beans. They go a fiſhing to Iſlands above 30 Leagues diſtant, and carry 5 or 6 Herrings, entire in their Gorgets, which they ſpew out to feed their Young. The Natives make a Pudding of their Fat, which they put into the Stomach of the Birds, and boil it in Water-gruel as a Specifick againſt Coughs. The Fat is alſo found to be an excellent Vulnerary; and their Eggs eat raw, is a good Pectoral. Theſe Geeſe are reckoned the ſharpeſt-ſighted of all Sea-Fowls. When they fiſh for Herrings, they flie about 60 Yards high, and deſcend perendicularly; but after other Fiſh they deſcend obliquely. The Reaſon of the Difference is, that the Herrings ſwim in Shoals, and are more eaſily caught. They ſleep with their Head under their Wings, and one always keeps watch; but if that be ſurprized by the Fowler, which often happens, the reſt are eaſily taken by the Neck one after another. They are leſs than Land-Geeſe, their Colour white, except the Tips of their Wings which are black, and the Top of their Head which is yellow. Their Bill is long, very hard, and ſo ſharp, that when they deſcend after a Fiſh on a Board, which is ſometimes laid as a Trap to catch them, it pierces an Inch deep into the Wood. There's a barren Tribe of theſe Geeſe that always keep together, and never mix with the reſt that build and hatch. Here's another Bird called Fulmar, of a grey Colour, and the Size of a Moor hen. It has a ſtrong Bill with wide Noſtrils, and never goes to Sea but with a W. Wind. 'Tis ſuppoſed to pick its Food out of live Whales, and that it eats Sorrel, for both theſe ſorts of Food are found in its Neſt. When any one approaches this Bird, it ſpouts out at its Bill a great deal of pure Oil; therefore the Natives ſurprize the Bird by Gins, receive the Oil in a Veſſel, and uſe it in their Lamps, as they alſo do with Succeſs againſt Rheumatick Pains, Aches in the Bones, and againſt Tumours and other Swellings. They likewiſe uſe it for Purging and Vomiting. Here's plenty of large Cod and Ling about theſe Iſlands. The Inhabitants are about 200, well proportioned, ſpeak Iriſh only, and uſe the ſame Habit with other Highlanders, but more coarſe. They are ſubject to few Diſeaſes, but Mr. Martin ſays the whole number is ſeized with a Cough, Infants at the Breaſt not excepted, when any Strangers land and ſtay ſome days among them. He found this by Experience when here. Of late he ſays ſome of them have a Leproſy, which he aſcribes to their eating ſo much fat Sea-Fowl without Salt. He adviſed them to uſe Exerciſe, to forbear eating thoſe Fowl, and recommended to them Sorrel, which proved ſucceſsful. Both Sexes have a Genius for Poeſy, and ſucceed well enough in their own Language, which is very emphatical. The People are Proteſtants, but had ſome Mixtures of Superſtition, with a great deal of Ignorance, till ſince the Revolution that one was ſent by the Scots Society for propagating the Goſpel to be their Miniſter and School-Maſter. Martin ſays that when he was there, an ignorant Fellow had impoſed upon their Credulity and want of Knowledge, pretended that St. John the Baptiſt and the Virgin Mary had appeared to him, taught him Sermons, Prayers and Hymns, for the uſe of which he obtained Preſents and good Entertainment from the People: but his Knavery was diſcovered by his attempting to debauch ſeveral of the Women, ſo that when Mr. Martin came hither with Macleod's Steward who is Proprietor of the Iſlands, they brought him to a Recantation, and carried him off to the Iſle of Skye, where he ſeemed very penitent. Macleod uſually gives theſe Iſlands to a Cadet of his Family, who acts as his Steward, and comes once a Year to demand the Rents, which are paid in Down, Wool, Butter, Cheeſe, Cows, Horſes, Fowls, Oil, and Barley; and one of the Natives is appointed as Deputy to look after them. They have no Money, but barter with one another for what they want. The People are very plain and ſimple in their Manners, very exact in their Properties, Strangers to Vice, and live contentedly in a Village on the E. ſide of the Iſland in low Houſes of Stone cemented with Earth, the Roofs thatched and ſecured againſt the Winds by Ropes of Straw or Heath poiſed at the end with Stones. They make their Beds in the Walls of their Houſes, and lie on Straw, tho they have plenty of Down and Feathers, and they lodge their Cattle in the ſame Houſes in Spring and Winter. They have a large Boat which they uſe in common. In this they go out a fiſhing, or to bring Cattle and Fowl from the neighbouring Iſlands. They are wonderful dextrous at climbing the Rocks for Fowl and Eggs, and to that end, where the Rocks are ſteep, they make uſe of Ropes, let down ſome of their Number with Baskets tied to their middle, which they ſoon fill, and are drawn up again. They were wonderfully pleaſed at Mr. Martin's diſcovering to them that Chryſtal, of which there is plenty in the Rock, when ſtruck on the back of a Knife, would give Fire as well as Flint; for there was but one among them who had a Steel and Flint, which they made uſe of to kindle Fires when they went to the Deſert Iſlands for Fowl, &c. and the Man had a larger Share than any others of what they caught, for the Uſe of it. Some of them fall from the Rocks when they climb, upon which Occaſion their Wives and other Relations make doleful Songs; the chief Topicks of which are the Courage of the Deceaſed, their Dexterity in Climbing, and tender Affection to their Wives and Children. The Batchelors frequently venture their Lives by climbing to procure the good Eſteem of their Sweathearts, and bringing them home the fatteſt Fowl, as the Husbands do to their Wives. Here are fine Eagles and Hawks, which flie many Leagues for their Prey. There are no Land Fowl here, except Pigeons and Plovers. The richeſt Man in the Iſle has not above 8 Cows, 80 Sheep, and 2 or 3 Horſes. There were but 18 of the latter in the Iſland, which were chiefly employ'd in bringing home their Peats and Turf. And on All-Saints-Day they make uſe of thoſe Horſes for a Cavalcade by turns, without any other Accoutrements than a Halter inſtead of a Bridle. The Women are very well ſhaped, and many of them comely. A Pound of Horſe-Hair to make Gins to catch Fowl, is their uſual Portion. Mr. Martin publiſhed a little Book with an Account of thoſe Iſlands, to which we refer for further Particulars. He ſays the People were religious Obſervers of the Lord's Day.

27. Lewis and Harris are ſeparated by a narrow Channel and ſome Iſlands from North Viſt. They are commonly reputed 2 Iſlands, whereas they are but one; and together make 100 m. S. and N. and from 13 to 14 E. and W. according to Martin. They belong to the Shire of Roſs. Here's a great Number of Freſh-water Lakes, Bays, and Harbours. The Iſlands are divided by ſeveral narrow Channels, and diſtinguiſhed by divers Proprietors Names. That ſtrictly called Lewis, which is the N. part, is 36 m. long, and from 10 to 12 m. broad. The Air is temperately cold and moiſt, and the Iſland generally healthy. The Soil is arable for about 16 m. on the W. Coaſt, and in ſome Places on the E. but is generally ſandy, excepting the Heaths, which are partly of red, and partly of black Clay, of which their Women make Veſſels for boiling their Meat, and preſerving their Ale. It produces Barley, Oats, Rye, Flax, and Hemp. They manure the Soil with Sea-Ware, and are ſo induſtrious in cultivating their Ground, that about 500 are employed daily for ſome Months in digging, turning it up, and covering it with Sea-Ware; which ſort of Cultivation produces a greater Increaſe there than any other would do. They have little Harrows with wooden Teeth drawn by a Man, having a ſtrong Rope of Horſe-hair acroſs his Breaſt. They make Uſquebaugh, Aquavitæ, and ſeveral other Liquors of their Corn. All their Coaſts and Bays do in fair Weather abound with large Cod and Ling, Herring, and all other Fiſhes, taken in the W. Iſlands; but the Whales do very much interrupt the Fiſhing. The young Whales are eat by the common People, and reckoned very nouriſhing Food. The Bays afford plenty of Shell-Fiſh, as Clams, Oyſters, Cockles, Muſcles, Lympits, Wilks, and Spout-Fiſh, of which laſt they have ſuch Multitudes once in 7 Years, that the Inhabitants fatten their Ground with them. The Bays and Coaſts afford great Quantity of ſmall Coral; and the Freſh-water Lakes abound with Trouts and Eels. They have ſeveral Springs and Fountains of odd Qualities; as, one that never whitens Linen, and another that never boils Meat, tho kept on Fire a whole Day. There are many Caves on the Coaſt, which ſhelter great Numbers of Land and Sea-Fowl, Otters and Seals, which laſt the Natives reckon nouriſhing Food. Here are ſeveral natural and artificial Forts, and Heaps of Stones upon Heaths, ſuppoſed to be Monuments of Perſons of Note killed in Battle. The Cows here are ſmall, but fruitful, and their Beef tender. The Horſes are little, but as good for the Plough as the larger ſort, tho they have nothing to feed upon in the Spring but Sea-Ware. The Sheep here are exceeding fat, and have long Horns. Here are alſo Goats and Hogs.

The Inhabitants are well proportion'd, of a good Stature, generally of a light-brown or reddiſh Complexion, healthful, ſtrong, long lived, and of a ſanguine Conſtitution. The Small-Pox is very mortal to young People, but comes very ſeldom. The Diſeaſes moſt prevalent here, are Coughs, and ſome others; for which and their Cures we refer to Mr. Martin. They are in general ingenious and acute, have a mechanical Genius, and ſeveral of both Sexes are skilful in Poetry and Muſick. They are very hoſpitable, but of late Years grown poor. They are dextrous at Swimming, Archery, Vaulting, Leaping, are ſtout Seamen, and will tug at the Oar a whole Day with only Bread, Water, and Snuff. They viſit the neighbouring Iſlands once every Summer, and make a great Purchaſe of Fowls, Eggs, Down, Feathers, and Quills. As ſoon as they come upon Land, they turn round with the Sun, uncover their Heads, and thank God; and have ſuch a regard to the firſt Ground they ſet their Feet upon, that they reckon it a heinous Crime to eaſe Nature in the Place where the Boat lies.

There's a Promontory at the N. E. end of Lewis's Iſland called Eoropy-Pont, ſuppoſed to be the furtheſt to the N. W. of any Part of Europe. The Lands of Lewis are divided into 2 Pariſhes, which are Parſonages with a Miniſter to each; and they contain 24 Churches and Chappels, which were Popiſh Sanctuaries before the Reformation, and the Inhabitants had them in ſuch Veneration, that they would kneel at firſt ſight of a Church, tho ſome miles diſtant; and their Prieſts uſed to ſprinkle their Nets with Holy Water, and to pour ſome into the Bays, in order, as they pretended, to procure a good Herring-Fiſhing. But now they are all Proteſtants, except one Popiſh Family. On Michaelmas-Day both Sexes have an Anniverſary Cavalcade on horſe-back. Lewis was poſſeſſed for ſeveral Centuries by Macleod of Lewis; but ſince the Reign of K. James VI. of Scotland it was the Property of the Earls of Seaforth, till forfeited for taking Arms againſt K. George. The Natives put the Seeds of white wild Carrots into their Beer inſtead of Hops.

That ſtrictly called Harris is from 18 to 24 m. E. and W. and 4 to 6 m. broad. The Air, Soil, and Product are the ſame with that of Lewis, but more fruitful. The E. Coaſt is generally rocky and mountainous, covered with Graſs and Heath. The W. Coaſt is for the moſt part arable, but ſome Parts of the Hills on the E. ſide are naked without Earth. Sea-Ware thrown upon the dry ſandy Soil makes it fruitful. The Graſs on the W. ſide is moſt Clover and Daiſy, which ſmells very fragrantly in Summer. Here are many Creeks and Freſh-water Lakes, which abound with Trout, Eels, and Salmon: Each Lake has a River from it to the Sea, from whence the Salmon comes about the beginning of May, and ſooner, if the Seaſon be warm. They are commonly catched with Worms or Cockles by Anglers, when there's a warm S. W. Wind. Variety of excellent Springs come from all the Mountains of this Iſland. The Water is found very good againſt a foul Stomach, Colick, Stitches, and Gravel; but the Wells on the Plains near the Sea are not good. There are ſeveral Caves in the Mountains, and on each ſide the Coaſt. The largeſt and beſt fortified by Nature, is that in the Hill Ulweal, in the middle of a high Rock, which has ſo ſtrait a Paſſage, that only one at a time can enter, and one Man is able to keep off a thouſand; for with a Staff in his Hand, he may puſh the ſtrongeſt Man down the Rock. The Cave is large enough to lodge 50 Men, and has 2 Wells; one incloſ'd to keep out Dogs, becauſe they ſay, if a Dog does but taſte the Water, it preſently dries up; but the other is called the Dog's-Well, and only drank by them. There are ſeveral Forts here, ſaid to be erected by the Danes. They are of a round Form, with thick Walls, and a Paſſage in them to go round. Some of the Stones are very large, and they are built at convenient Diſtances on each ſide the Coaſt, beſides a Fort built in every one of the leſſer Iſlands. They have ſeveral large Stones ſet up on end, and Heaps of Stones on the Tops of Hills, on which they uſed to burn Heath as a Signal of an approaching Enemy; and at each Heap there uſed to be a Centinel to watch the Coaſt, and the Steward of the Iſle made frequent Rounds to obſerve them, and when he caught them napping, he ſtripp'd and turn'd them over for Puniſhment to the Proprietor of the Place. They reckon at leaſt 2000 Deer in the Hills and Mountains here, commonly called the Foreſt, which is 18 m. from E. to W. where none is permitted to hunt without a Licence from the Steward to the Foreſter. All their Shelter during Winter and Spring is their Graſs mix'd with Heath, there being not a Shrub in the whole Foreſt; and when a Storm comes, they flock to the Coaſt to feed upon Sea-Ware.

This Iſland abounds with Mertricks, about the ſize of a Cat. They have a fine brown Skin, and their Dung ſmells like Musk. Here are Otters and Seals, which the Natives take with Nets tied by a Rope to the ſtrong Sea-Ware growing on the Rocks. Here's Variety of Land and Sea-Fowl, and good Hawks. There are 2 ſorts of Eagles, the one large and grey, which devour the Fawns, Sheep, and Lambs; and a leſſer ſort, which is black, ſhaped like a Hawk, and more deſtructive to the Deer. The only venomous Creatures here are ſmall Vipers. They had formerly Rats which deſtroyed all their Proviſions, and conquered their Cats by Numbers; but at length the latter over-power'd them. The W. Shore of the Iſland abounds with curious Shells of various Colours; and there are Circles of Stones here much like that on Salisbury-Plain. The Natives find great Quantities of Os Sepiæ in the Sand, which they pulverize, and put in boil'd Milk for the Diarrhæa and Dyſentery, and rub the Eyes of Sheep with the Powder to take off the Film. They have Variety of Nuts, called Molucca-Beans, ſome of which are uſed as Amulets. Harris-Iſland is the Property of the Laird of Macleod, who with all the Inhabitants are Proteſtants.

The chief Lochs and Bays in this Iſland are, (1.) Lochtua, the fartheſt N. on the E. ſide. It runs 11 m. into the Iſland from N. E. to S. W. and is in moſt Parts from 2 to 3 m. broad, but ſeldom viſited by Ships, except in a Storm. (2.) Lochſtornway, 15 m. S. on the ſame Coaſt, a well-known and ſafe Harbour, that runs 3 m. into the Iſland, and is from 1 to 2 m. broad. There's a good Village at the Head of the Bay, with ſome publick Houſes, a Church, and a School for Latin and Engliſh. It has no Timber, but a few Birch and Hazel Trees on the S. W. ſide. At the W. end of this Bay ſtood a Caſtle, which was deſtroyed by the Engliſh in Oliver's Time. About 7 m. S. there's a good Harbour, called the Birkin-Iſles. There are ſeveral Ruins of antient ſtrong Forts in the Neighbourhood, with great Heaps of Stones on the Heaths, and other tall large Stones ſet up on end, as Monuments of Actions or Burials of great Men. Martin ſays, the moſt remarkable Monument that he ſaw here, was at the Village of Claſſerniſs, where are 39 Stones ſet up on end 6 or 7 Foot high, and 2 Foot broad each. They are cut in form of Pyramids, and placed in 2 Rows like an Avenue, which is 8 Foot broad, and the Diſtance betwixt each Stone is 6. At the N. end there's a ſingle Stone ſet up in the Entry; and at the S. end a Circle of 12 Stones of the ſame Height and Diſtance as the reſt; and one ſtands in the Centre of them, which is 13 Foot high, and ſhaped like the Rudder of a Ship. Without this Circle there are 4 Stones of the ſame Size and Diſtance at each of the S. E. and W. ſides. The Natives have a Tradition, that it was a Heathen Temple, and that the chief Druid, or Prieſt, addreſſed himſelf to the People from the big Stone in the Centre. About ¼ of a m. from hence, there's ſuch another Circle. (3.) Lochgrimſetter, 4 m. S. of Lochſtornway: there's a River of the ſame Name, which runs S. E. into this Bay from Lochlangavat, which is 6 m. long, and 3 and ½ where broadeſt, abounds with Fiſh, and has ſeveral Iſlands. (4.) Lochkeandluroy, is another Harbour, 3 m. S. of Lochgrimſetter. (5.) Locheriſport, 2 m. further S. runs 7 m. W. has good Anchorage S. and N. and an Iſland at the Mouth, called Columbkil, with ſome Houſes, and a good Harbour. (6.) Lochſeafort, 5 m. further, runs 7 m. ½ N. W. has a good Harbour on the S. ſide. It abounds with Coral; and Martin ſays, that on the W. ſide is Lochcarlway, a very large Harbour for Firſt-rate Ships, tho little known. It lies almoſt oppoſite to Lochtua, from which it is 3 m. W. It has an Entrance from the N. W. and the S. W. and is covered with the Iſland called Greater Bernera, which breaks the Wind and Seas that come in from the great Ocean on the W. On the N. ſide of the Loch 3 Stones are ſet up, of about 12 Foot high each. In this Lake, and the Bays above mentioned, there's plenty of large Cod, Ling, Herring, and all other Fiſh taken in the W. Iſlands; but the Fiſhing is much interrupted by Whales, ſome of them of a large ſize, that frequently over-turn the Fiſher-Boats, and devour the Men.

Next to Lochſeafort, which for ſome miles divides the Lewis from Harris, is a notable Harbour within the Iſland, which they call Scalpa, or Glaſs. 'Tis a m. ½ long from S. to N. and a m. broad. There's an Entrance on the S. and N. Ends of the Iſle, and good Harbours in each. Within the Iſle is Lochtarbat, running 4 m. W. It has ſeveral ſmall Iſles, and is ſometimes frequented by Herrings. Without the Loch there's plenty of Cod, Ling, and large Eels. There's a Freſh-water Lake at the Entrance of the Iſland, which affords Oyſters, and ſeveral ſorts of Fiſh, the Sea having acceſs to it at Spring-Tides. A League and ½ further S. is Lochſinisbay, an excellent, but unknown Harbour, with many Creeks beſides for ſmall Veſſels.

The moſt remarkable of the adjacent Iſlands are, 1. Bernera the Greater and Leſſer, at the Mouth of Lochcarlway. The Leſſer is 2 m. long, and half as broad. The Greater is 4 in Length and Breadth. Both are inhabited, and abound with Corn and Graſs. Upon an extraordinary Ebb here ſome Years ago, a Stone Wall about 40 Yards long, and from 5 to 7 Foot high, and regularly built, was diſcovered in the Sea, againſt which it is ſuppoſed to have been built as a Bank, but in time was over-flowed. Some Ambergreeſe has been found on the Coaſt of this Iſland.

2. The Flannan Iſlands, above 8 m. W. from the Coaſt. The Seamen call them North Hunters. They are 6 in number, belong to the Inhabitants of Lewis, who keep about 70 Sheep here, and come once every Summer for the Sheep, Fowls, Eggs, Down, Feathers, and Quills. On the biggeſt of theſe Iſlands are the Ruins of a Chappel, where the ſuperſtitious People perform many ridiculous Ceremonies. One of them is called the Iſland of Pigmies, becauſe many ſmall Bones, reſembling thoſe of Human-kind, are dug out of the ground. There are many other Iſlands on the Coaſt; ſome of which ſerve for Forts. Others are left for Paſturage, and abound with Fowl. The Sheep here are exceeding fat, and noted for long Horns.

3. Rona Iſland, about 20 Leagues from the N. E. Point of Lewis, is chiefly remarkable for the Simplicity of its Inhabitants. 'Tis about a m. long, and ½ a m. broad, and has a high Hill on the W. part, which is ſeen from Lewis in a fair Day. It is commonly given to one of the Miniſters of Lewis as part of his Glebe; and he comes hither once a Year to perform his Office, and receive his Perquiſites of Barley, Oats, Fiſh, Fowl, &c. Mr. Martin had the following Account from the Miniſter upon his Return from thence. They received him very affectionately, and ſaid, God ſave you, Pilgrim: You are heartily welcome; for we have had repeated Apparitions of your Perſon among us after the manner of the ſecond Sight. They conſiſt but of five Families; for the Iſland is capable of maintaining no more. Each Family mily killed a Sheep for his Entertainment, and the Skins were flay'd off ſo entire from the Neck to the Tail, that they reſembled a Sack, and were filled with Barley Meal for a Preſent to him, becauſe of his venturing himſelf on the great Ocean to come and inſtruct them in their Way to Happineſs. There's a Chappel here with an Altar, to which the ignorant Natives aſcribe ſeveral Virtues; and here they repeat the Lord's Prayer, Creed, and ten Commandments every Sunday-Morning. They have ſome Cows and Sheep, which, with their Barley, Oats, Fowl, and Fiſh, ſubſiſt them ſo, as they live a harmleſs and contented Life. They have no Money, nor do they know the Uſe of it, but barter with one another for ſuch little Things as they want. Every Tenant has his Dwelling-Houſe, one for his beſt Effects, a Barn, and an Houſe for his Cattle, with Porches before their Doors. The Houſes are of Stone cemented with Clay, and thatch'd. They are very exact in obſerving their Properties; and none of 'em injure another. When they had more Iſſue than the Iſland could maintain, they ſent the Supernumeraries to their Landlord in the Iſle of Lewis, who took care of 'em; and he ordered his Pariſh-Miniſter and a Servant once a Year to viſit the Iſland, and bring his Rents. The Miniſter, while he ſtays, inſtructs them, baptizes their Infants, and marries their Youth; and if there be more of the one than the other Sex marriageable, the Proprietor, when he knows it, ſends 'em a Supply from Lewis. Mr. Martin ſays, that when the Miniſter was there in his Time, there were three unmarried young Men, and but one unmarried young Woman. Two of the young Men courted her; and ſhe having married the one, the other ask'd the Miniſter to marry her to him too, that he might have her Year about, and not die Childleſs. The Miniſter ſmiled at the Man's Simplicity, inſtructed him better, and promis'd to bring or ſend him a Wife next Year. The third hearing this, and having got a Shilling from a Seaman that landed there, he would needs give it the Miniſter to ſend him a Wife too; for he thought the Shilling of an extraordinary Value: And accordingly both the young Men were provided with Wives. Buchanan ſays of the People of this Iſland, which may be applied to ſeveral of the reſt, that they were the only People of the World who never wanted any thing, and were ſatisfied with their Condition; and being equally ignorant of Luxury and Avarice, poſſeſs'd thro their Ignorance of Vice that Innocence and Tranquillity of Mind, which others could ſcarce attain by great Labour and the beſt Inſtructions. Mr. Martin ſays, that about 1689 that ſmall antient Race of People was quite deſtroy'd thus: A ſwarm of Rats, ſuppos'd to have come from on board a Ship, eat up all their Corn, and ſome Seamen having robb'd them of their Cattle, they were ſtarv'd before the Arrival of the Boat from Lewis. Upon which, another Colony was ſent thither. Abundance of Whales frequent the Coaſts of this Iſland.

4. Soulisker lies 4 Leagues E. of Rona, is a Rock of about a quarter of a m. round, and has abundance of Solan Geeſe, with Sea-Fowl of other ſorts, and particularly the Colck before mentioned: All which yield a conſiderable Profit to the People of Lewis.

There are 3 Iſlands near Uſhineſs-Point in Lewis, which are fruitful in Corn and Graſs; one of 'em ſo ſtrong by Nature, that it may be eaſily defended, there being only a narrow ſteep Paſſage to it on one ſide. The Cattle here are fatter than in the Iſle of Lewis. Here's a Quarry of blue Stone on the Surface of the Ground, which is ſo ſoft, that when firſt taken out, it is capable of any Impreſſion, or of being carv'd into any Figures, but grows afterwards very hard. Eagles do alſo build here.

The Natives in the Village Barvas, on this Coaſt, retain an antient Cuſtom of ſending a Man very early to croſs Barvas River on May-Day, becauſe they ſay, if any Females ſhould happen to croſs it firſt, it would hinder the Salmon from coming into the River all the Year round. There's a great Stone erected in this Pariſh above 20 Foot high, and almoſt as broad.

Martin mentions a Chaſe, or Foreſt, in Lewis Iſland, called Oſervaul, which is 15 m. in Compaſs, conſiſts of Mountains and Valleys, and affords good Paſture for Deer, Black Cattle, and Sheep. 'Tis ſurrounded by the Sea, except about a m. on the W. ſide. The Deer have no Wood to ſhelter in; and when the Snow and Froſt continue long, they are forced to feed on Sea-Ware.

The leſſer Iſlands, belonging to Harris, are, 1. Bernera, 2 Leagues S. of Harris, and 5 m. round. It produces Barley and Rye from 20 to 30 fold in Years of Plenty; and 'tis obſervable, that the Soil yields better when dug, than when ploughed. The Inhabitants manure it chiefly with Sea-Ware. Here's a Freſh-water Lake, in which are ſeveral Iſlands abounding with Land and Sea-Fowl. Here's alſo great ſtore of Eels. The Inhabitants catch 'em by Night in September, when they fall down in Heaps from a Rivulet which runs from the Lake to the Sea. This Iſland in Summer is covered with Clover and Daiſies, mix'd with Corn-Fields. The Sea-Plant, called Slake, grows alſo very thick among the Graſs, as it does upon the Tops of ſeveral Hills in Harris. Here are 2 Chappels, and ſeveral Stones ſet on end as Monuments.

2. Pabbay, half a League W. from Bernera, is 3 m. round, and abounds with Corn, Graſs, and Marl. Here are alſo 2 Chappels. The Steward of St. Kilda lives here: And the Inhabitants, when at Sea in time of a Storm, tie a Bundle of Puddings made of the Fat of Sea-Fowl to the end of a Rope, which, they ſay, calms the Sea; but at the ſame time it attracts Whales, which frequently endanger their Veſſels.

3. Sellay lies half a League N. of Pabbay, is a m. round, and has excellent Paſture for Sheep, which ſoon grow fat, and have very large Horns.

4. Taranſay, a little further N. is 3 m. round, abounds with Corn and Graſs, yellow Talk, and has 2 Chappels.

5. Gasker, 3 Leagues further W. is about half a m. round, and has the beſt Graſs in the W. Iſlands; ſo that the Cows here yield more Milk than others. Abundance of large Seals are caught by the Inhabitants.

6. Enſay, betwixt Bernera and Harris, is 2 m. round, fruitful in Corn and Graſs, and has a Chappel.

7. Quedam, a ſmall Iſland in the Neighbourhood, has a Vein of Adamant in its Rocks: And 'tis obſerv'd, that Mice can't live here; for when accidentally brought hither among Corn, they die immediately. There's a Tract of ſmall Iſlands betwixt theſe and North Uiſt, of the ſame nature with the reſt; and the Channels betwixt them are ſo ſmall, that it would ſeem they have been ſeparated by Storms.

8. Hermetra, one of the moſt S. of thoſe Iſlands, is 2 m. round, and has excellent Paſturage. Here are the Ruins of a Magazine, erected by the Engliſh in Charles I's Time for a Fiſhery, which was carried on here with Succeſs till the Civil Wars.

XXXIV. The Shire of Orkney.

The Orcades, or Orkney-Iſles.

THEY are divided from Caithneſs on the S. by Pentland or Pictland Firth, which is 12 to 16 m. broad, and 24 long. They have the Caledonian Sea on the W. the German Ocean on the E. and the Sea that divides them from Schetland on the N. They lie betwixt N. Lat. 58. 30. and 59. 25. are reckoned 32 in Number, but only 26 are inhabited. Authors differ about the Name of the Firth betwixt it and Caithneſs. Some derive it from the Picts, who antiently poſſeſſed the neighbouring Country; from whence being drove out by the Scots, they attempted the Conqueſt of Orkney; but being repuls'd by the Inhabitants, they were all caſt away in this Firth, as endeavouring to regain Caithneſs. Others derive the Name from the high Mountains of Caithneſs, which bound it on the S. Penthland, in old Scots, ſignifying a High-Land; and for the ſame reaſon they think the Ridge of Mountains W. of Edinburgh are called Penthland-Hills. This Firth is remarkable for its ſwift, violent, and contrary Tides, occaſion'd by the meeting of the Caledonian and German Seas, and the Multude of Iſlands and Rocks by which the Waves are pulſed. This makes ſuch a Conflict betwixt them, that they ſeem to mount up to the Sky, fill the Air as it were with Smoke, and cover the Firth with white Froth. This happens every Tide of Flood, even in calm Weather; but in Tempeſts 'tis much more frightful, and daſhes not only Veſſels, but Seals and other Fiſh in pieces againſt the Rocks, every Corner of which, according to a Saying of the Inhabitants, makes a new Tide. In calm Weather 'tis ſafely paſſed either at high or low Water by thoſe who know the Firth; but is always dangerous to Strangers, becauſe of many Whirlpools. Some think this proceeds from Gulphs under Ground, which ſwallow up the Water with ſo much Rapidity, that when Veſſels come near, they are drawn into them with ſo much Force, that they can neither eſcape with a fair Wind in their Sails, nor by tugging with Oars. But the Mariners of the Country either avoid 'em, or, if drove near them by the Tide, throw a Barrel, an Oar, or a Bundle of Straw into the Whirlpool, and paſs over ſafely while it ſwallows up thoſe Things, which are always caſt up again at the diſtance of a m. or more. Some aſcribe theſe Whirlpools, with more probability, to Rocks at the bottom of the Sea in form of Circles, like that near Sumbo, one of the Fero Iſlands. There are many other ſuch Tides betwixt the Orkney Iſlands. This Country and the Iſles of Schetland make one Shire, and ſend one Memb. to Parl. Lord George Hamilton, Son to William late Duke of Hamilton, and Uncle to the preſent, was honour'd with the Title of Earl of Orkney by King William III. for his eminent Services in War. And ſince that Time he has perpetuated his Fame by the great Share he had in the Victories at Blenheim, &c.

Theſe Iſlands are divided into North and South, according as they lie from the chief Iſland; and ſubdivided into Iſles, Holms, and Rocks. The Holms are ſmall Iſlands left for Paſturage, becauſe too little to be inhabited; and the Rocks ſerve only for Fowls to breed in. The Inhabitants did formerly ſpeak a ſort of Gothick, and have ſtill a Mixture of it, tho the Generality now ſpeak Engliſh according to the Scots Idiom. The common People live after the antient frugal manner; ſo that they are rarely troubled with any Diſtempers of Body or Mind, and moſt of them die with Age. This Way of living contributes to their Beauty and Stature; and their Ignorance of what is called Dainties preſerves their Health. They have Barley and Oats, of which they make Bread and Drink. They have good ſtore of Sheep, black Cattle, and Goats, and conſequently plenty of Milk, Cheeſe, and Butter. The Ewes bring forth commonly 2 Lambs at a time, and ſome 3 or 4. They have innumerable Flocks of Sea-Fowl, and ſtore of Fiſh. Their Horſes are very ſmall, but uſeful, and capable of great Fatigue. Here are no poiſonous Animals; and they have ſcarce a Tree or a Shrub, except Heath, Juniper, Myrtle, and wild Roſe-Trees; which is owing to the Neglect of the Inhabitants, and not to the Nature of the Soil, becauſe large Oak-Trees are frequently dug up in their Moſſes; and they have ſome Fruit-Trees, and others, in their Gardens at Kirkwall. The People of Rank are fond of Wine, when imported. They kept a large Cup, which they pretended was that of St. Magnus their Apoſtle; and in the Time of Popery uſed to fill it with Wine, when a new Biſhop came to them; and if he took it off at a Draught, they commended him highly, and look'd upon it as an Omen of future Plenty.

We come now to the particular Iſlands, and 1. Stroma. It lies ſo near Caithneſs, that it was always reckoned part of that Shire, and belonged to the Earls of Caithneſs. The Title to it was controverted by the Earls of Orkney, but decided in favour of the Earl of Caithneſs thus, The Orkney Iſlands have no venomous Animals, and if any be brought thither, they die immediately. The Experiment therefore was tried by bringing ſuch Animals from Caithneſs to Stroma, where they lived and bred. This Iſland is about a m. $\frac{1}{4}$ long, above $\frac{1}{4}$ a m. broad, and fruitful. About a m. $\frac{1}{4}$ W. from hence lies a Parcel of Rocks called the Men of May, or the Merry Dancers. They are dangerous to all but the Country Mariners, who know how to avoid them. About 7 m. N.E. there's another Ledge of Rocks called the Boars of Dungsby, becauſe they lie off the Cape of that Name. The contrary Tides abovementioned run chiefly betwixt thoſe and the Men of May. They are reckoned 24 in number, and run with ſuch Force, that a

Ship

Ship under Sail with the fairest Wind can make no way against them.

2. Souna or Swinna, 3 m. N. of Stroma; 'tis about 2 m. long, and 1 broad, is fruitful, inhabited by some Husbandmen, has a good Quarry of Slates and Multitudes of Fish about its Coasts. Near this are some of the Whirlpools above-mentioned, which are called the Wells of Swinna, and the contrary Tides run swiftly betwixt this Island and Caithness.

3. Pentland-Skirrys, is a small Island with some Rocks above 7 m. N. E. of Swinna. They are very dangerous to Sailors, but abound with Seals and Fowl.

4. Hoy, lies 3 m. N. W. of Swinna. It is about 12 m. long, and the greatest Breadth near 6. The E. Part is called Waes, fruitful and well inhabited, and by some reckoned a distinct Island, because joined to the other by a narrow Neck; and on the W. side, which is overflowed by the Spring-tide, there's a Rock joined to the Island by a very narrow Slip. 'Tis a strong natural Fort, and called Brabrugh. This Island has several fresh-Water Lakes and Rivers which abound with Trouts and other Fish. Here are several good Harbours, particularly that called North-Hope, one of the best in the World, and proper for the Fishing-Trade. The W. Part is mountainous, and from the Tops of these Mountains about the Summer Solstice, the Reflection of the Sun is seen all night, as if it were cover'd with a Cloud. Dr. Wallace says that for a great part of June in this Country, a Man may read a Letter in his Chamber by Day-light at 12 a-clock at night. Among these Mountains there are such deep Valleys as strike a Terror into Strangers that travel that way; for the Rocks are so high, and come so near together at Top, that but very little of the Sky is to be seen. On the Tops of these Mountains are wild Sheep. In a Promontory here named Lora-head, builds a Bird called Lyer, about the size of a Duck, extreme fat, and so delicious, especially if eat with Vinegar and Pepper, that the Natives venture their Lives to climb for it. They are let down by Ropes so contrived, that a Man may sit as easily almost as in a Chair; and thus sometimes they are let down above 200 Fathom in search of the Nests and young ones: they put 'em in bags, and sell them at good rates, because they are found no where but here. This Island has also a Sort of Hares as white as Snow, which are found no where else in the Country. In one of the Valleys there's a Stone called the Dwarfish-Stone: 'Tis 36 Foot long, 18 broad, 9 thick, and hollowed within by Art. It has a square Hole about 2 foot high, for an Entrance, and a Stone by it of the same dimensions for a Door. At one end within there's a Bed with a Pillow, artfully cut out of the Stone, large enough for 2 Men to lie on at length. At the other end there's a Couch, and in the middle a Hearth, and a Hole cut out above it for a Chimney. It lies a m. from any House in a Ground all covered with Heath, and is supposed to have been a Hermitage. On the Top of one of the Mountains there's a Fountain of clear Water, so light that a Man may drink what Quantity he pleases. On the N. Part of the Island there's a Church, a Gentleman's Seat, and several Farm-Houses. Near the Dwarfish-Stone there is an exceeding high Mountain, called Dwarf-Hill, near the Top of which in May, June, and July, about Noon, there is something that shines and sparkles admirably, and is seen a great way. Many have climbed the Hill to search for it, but could never find it. The Vulgar take it to be an inchanted Carbuncle; but Dr. Wallace in his Description of Orkney, supposes it to be Water that slides down the Face of a smooth Rock, and the Reflection of the Sun upon it causes the Lustre. The Winds blow with such Force here sometimes, that large Stones are by their Violence and that of the Waves, thrown up to the Tops of the Mountains next the Sea.

5. Flotta, a little W. of Hoy, abounds with Moor-Fowl, Fish of all sorts, is above 5 m. long, 3 ½ broad, has several Promontories, and is inhabited.

6. Gramsey is about 2 m. long, ¾ a m. broad, is fruitful in Corn and Grass, and abounds with Fish and Rabbets. Here's also a pleasant Inn for Strangers.

7. Carestone, in the Neighbourhood, is one of those called Holms, 2 m. ½ long, 1 ½ broad, has a Church, several Houses, a large and safe Harbour with publick Houses, where Strangers are very well entertained for a little Money.

8. Cava, S. E. from it, a small Island commodious for fishing, and abounding with Sea-Fowl, particularly a sort called Tyst, small but very fat.

9. Fara, S. E. from thence, is 2 m. long and 1 broad, pleasant and fruitful, and inhabited by some Families.

10. South Ranalsa, lies E. from Flotta, from whence 'tis separated by a narrow Channel. 'Tis indented by several Bays. The greatest length is about 6 m. and the Breadth 3. 'Tis fruitful in Corn and Grass, well inhabited, and has 2 Churches. Here are 2 good Harbours, safe against all Winds. There's a ruinous Church here, called Lady-Kirk, for which the Natives have a great Veneration. There are many Black-Cattle and Sheep, whose Wool the Natives do not shear, but pull off. Many of them are so wild, that they hunt them with Dogs. Here's a handsom Seat, and the Natives are reckoned the strongest of the Orkney Men, as well as the boldest Mariners. Burray, at the S. End, is the Ferry to Duncan's Bay in Caithness.

11. Burra, 2 m. N. is 5 m. long, and above 2 where broadest. 'Tis inferior to none of these Islands for Corn, has many Sheep, Black-Cattle, nimble little Horses, and Rabbets, and produces excellent Turf and Peat. Here was a very handsom Seat and a Chappel.

12. Pomona, or the Main-Land of Orkney, lies 3 m ½ N. of Burra, runs out into several Promontories, is 24 m. long, and from 6 to 9 broad. The Island is in general fruitful and well inhabited. The E. part, called Deerness, is a Peninsula joined to the other by a small neck. It is very pleasant, well inhabited, has a Church and several Gentlemens Seats. 'Tis supposed formerly to have been a Forest for Deer, from whence it had the Name. The Promontory on the N. end called the Mule, is very high, and the Waves in a Tempest beat violently against it, that the Water rises higher than the Cape; but there's a safe Harbour, called Deer-land, on the W. side of it, capable of the greatest Fleets. A little E. from hence lies the Holm of Coupinsa, which abounds with Corn, Grass, Fish, and Fowl.

Kirkwal, the chief Town of Orkney, and indeed of all the Islands, lies upon a Bay in the N. side of the Island, where it forms a large, safe and commodious Harbour for Ships. 'Tis a Royal Borough, formerly sent a Member to Parliament, and now joins with 4 others in sending one. 'Tis about a m. long, is the Seat of Justice for the Shire, and consists chiefly of one Street. The Houses are well-built, and most of 'em cover'd with Slate. Here was formerly a strong Castle, now in Ruins. Near it there's a stately Palace, formerly the Seat of their Bishop, and near to that another, begun by Patrick Stuart, E. of Orkney, but not finished, because of his untimely Death. Several of the Rooms are curiously painted with Scripture-Stories, and above his Arms there is this lofty Inscription, Sic fuit, est, & erit. Here's a stately Cathedral, dedicated to St. Magnus their Apostle. 'Tis built of hewn Stone finely polished, has 14 Pillars on each side, and a Steeple erected on 4 large Pillars in the middle, with a fine Ring of Bells. The Steeple is so strong, that 100 Men might defend it against 1000, if they have not great Guns. There are so many Turnings in it, that 'tis hard for a Stranger to find his way out or in. Here's a Free-School for Grammar, with several for Reading and Writing. They have a Market on Tuesdays and Fridays, and 3 annual Fairs; one on Palm-Monday, the other on Lammas-Day, and the third at Martinmas, and each continues 3 days. The Town is governed by a Provost, 4 Bailiffs and a Common-Council, and is the Seat of a Provincial Synod, and of a Presbytery, to which belong 18 Parishes. Dr. Wallace says there are 31 Churches in this Country, and above 100 antient Chappels. About 2 m. W. from the Town, on the other side of the Harbour, there's a very high Mountain, which is seen in all the Lands, and has a Beacon upon it to alarm the People in time of War. There are 2 other Harbours in this Island, one at Graham's Hall, and another at Cairstone, both large and safe. There are 9 Parish-Churches in the Island, with many Gentlemens Seats. Here are also Mines of good Tin and Lead, and several Lakes and Rivers that abound with Salmon and other Fish. These Islands are more populous than one would imagine; for Bleau in his Atlas says they rendevouzed at one time 10000 Men at Kirkwal fit to bear Arms, besides those left to cultivate the Ground. The Earl of Morton names the Steward of Orkney and Schetland, enjoys the Crown-Rents here possessed by his Ancestors, but redeemable by the Crown, to which he pays annually 600 l. The Rents that formerly belonged to the Bishop are now in the Crown. Molucca Beans are frequently found on the Coast, and here are several peculiar sorts of Fish and Fowl, for which, and an account of the Shells and Plants in this Country, we refer to Dr. Wallace. He supposes that the reason why Trees do not grow here to any considerable Height is, because the Sea dashes with such Violence against the Rocks in tempestuous Weather, that the Water is carried a great way on the Land, falls down like a Shower, and blasts Corn, and every thing else. They have very good Garden-Herbs and Roots, and the largest Artichokes that ever he saw. Here are many Otters, Seals, Spout-Whales, and Pollocks, which run sometime in great numbers upon the Shore where they are taken. In 1691, 114 run ashore at once near Cairstone. The usual Fish here are Ling, Keeling, Haddocks, Whiting, Mackarel, Turbet, Scate, Conger-Eels, Seals, Flukes, and sometimes Sturgeon, and Herrings in great plenty, Lobsters, Crabs, large Oisters, and such a multitude of Shell-fish of all sorts, that the whole Country is served with Lime made of their burnt Shells, which is very white and looks well in Plaister. Here's plenty of tame and wild Fowl, 8 or 9 sorts of wild Geese, and abundance of Plovers, Moor-Fowl, wild Ducks, Swans, Teal, and Curlews. Here are also Eagles and Hawks in most of the Islands, Veins of Marble and Alabaster, and abundance of Marle. Sometimes on the Shore are found Sperma-Ceti, Ambergreese, Water-Spunges, and many Cuttle Bones or Os Sepiæ. Kirkwall is the chief Place of Trade, from whence are exported yearly considerable Quantities of Butter, Tallow, Hides, Barley, Malt, Oatmeal, Fish, Salt-Beef, Pork, Rabbet-Skins, Otter-Skins, white Salt, Stuffs, Stockings, Wool, Hams, Quills, Down, Feathers, Tin and Lead. Near Kirkwall lies Damsa, a m. long, fruitful in Corn and Grass, and noted for a good Fishery.

Dr. Wallace says the Air and Clouds in this Country do by the Operation of the Sun sometimes generate Stones and other things; and gives an Instance that as some Men were fishing about a League from Coppinshaw, in a clear Day, a Stone about the Bigness of a Foot-Ball fell from the Air into their Boat, which sprung a Leak, and endanger'd their Lives. It resembled condensed or petrified Clay, and was a long time kept by Capt. Andrew Dick, then Steward of the Country, who told the Story to the Author. He adds that the Winters here are more subject to Rain than Snow, and the Rains sometimes fall down in Spouts. He says that in June 1680, after a great Thunder here, there fell down Flakes of Ice a Foot thick. In 1670 the Steeple of the Cathedral of Kirkwal was burnt by Lightning; and in 1680, 12 Cows standing in a Stall, 6 of them were killed by Lightning, and which was strange, tho they all stood side by side, it killed the first and missed the second, killed the third and missed the fourth, and so on till one half of them were killed.

The Claik-Geese or Barnacles, which were reckoned to breed in Trunks of Trees, or on the Timber of old Ships, and have been seen so frequently about this and the neighbouring Islands, have occasion'd many Debates among the Learned: Some denied the Matter of Fact as a thing impossible in Nature. Others who could not resist the Evidence of so many Persons of Credit, who had seen and attested that Birds of that sort hung to Trunks of Trees, &c. had recourse to such Philosophical Notions for explaining the Phænomenon, as made it still more ridiculous and incredible: but modern Authors have found out other more probable ways to solve the Difficulty. The first is Sir Robert Sibbald, in his 2d Part of the Nat. Hist. of Scotl. lib. 3. cap. 12. where he says those Shells stick to Sea-Ware or Logs of Fir, and suck Nourishment from them; that the Animal contained in those Shells is an unshapely Fish, with a multitude of Feet as small as Hair, which some mistake for Feathers. Sir Robert in his Book has given us a Cut of it. Dr. Wallace, in his Description of Orkney, has done the like, and he says he has seen thousands of those Conchæ sticking to Logs of Wood drove ashore in that Country, and also to the Rocks of the Island. But the Solution given by a later Author in his Curiosities of Nature, and Art,

Art, and Husbandry and Gardening; printed at London, pag. 311. ſeems to be more plain if the Fact be true, viz. that the Barnacles lay their Eggs as Fiſh do theirs, leave them to the Mercy of the Waves; and that as they float they ſtick to what they meet with, eſpecially rotten Wood, Sea-Weed, and other maritime Plants, on which we may obſerve a glutinous Subſtance; and that they are hatched by the Heat of the Sun.

Dr. Wallace gives us an account of ſeveral antient Monuments in this Country. The firſt is near Lake Stennis in this Iſland, over which there's a Cauſeway which ſerves for a Bridge, at the S. end of which there's a Circle of Stones about 20 Foot high, 6 Foot broad, and from 1 to 2 Foot thick each. Betwixt this Circle and the Bridge are 2 Stones of like Size, and about $\frac{1}{4}$ a m. from the other End of the Bridge there's a large Circle of the like Stones of about 110 Paces Diameter; and at the E. and W. ſide are green Mounts ditched about. Some think they were Camps of two oppoſite Armies; but the Doctor is of opinion that they were Heathen Temples, and that the Mounts were the Places where the Aſhes of the Sacrifices were laid together. This he takes to be probable, becauſe Boethius, in the Life of Mainus III. King of Scots, mentions ſuch Circles of Stones as Temples of the Gods erected by that King's Order, and wonders by what Engines they could erect ſuch large Stones. Dr. Wallace gives us a Cut of this Temple, and of a large high Stone Obelisk, of which there are many in this Country, which he ſuppoſes to have been ſet up as Memorials of Battles, and of great Men that fell in them, and were erected by order of Rutha the 7th King of Scots, ſays Boethius, in honour of ſuch Perſons as behaved well. The Dr. ſays they are ſo very large, that every one wonders by what Engines they could be erected in thoſe rude Times. He adds, that at the W. End of this Iſland, near Skeall, on the Top of high Rocks, above $\frac{1}{4}$ of a m. long, there is ſomething like a Street laid in red Clay, with reddiſh Stones of ſeveral Figures and Sizes, and the Images of divers things engraved on them, both on the upper and under Side. The neighbouring Gentry have removed many of the fineſt of them to adorn their Chimneys inſtead of Tiles. In the Sands of Skeall are found ſeveral Places built ſquare and well cemented, in which have been found Funeral Urns like thoſe of the Romans, with red Clay, and burnt Bones in them. He gives us a Figure of one of thoſe Urns, which reſembles an Earthen Pot, wider at the Top than Bottom, with Circles about it. He adds, that in many Places of the Country are little Hillocks, ſuppoſed to be Sepulchres of the Picts; and that in one of them were found 9 Silver Fibulæ, reſembling Half-Moons, but rounder. Here are alſo the Ruins of many Antique Buildings, call'd Picts Houſes. Moſt of them are now covered with Earth, and ſeem to have been Forts erected by the Picts and Danes.

In the Pariſh of Evie in this Iſland near the Sea are ſmall Hillocks, which during the Night frequently ſeem to be all on Fire, and the Church looks as if it were full of Candles; the Doctor takes it to be ſome glutinous Meteor which receives that Light in the Night-time.

The Doctor, as an Inſtance of the Longævity and Vigour of the People here, gives an Atteſtation by the Miniſter and other Gentlemen of this Pariſh, of one Margery Binbiſter, who in 1683 was brought to bed of a Son in the 63d Year of her Age. He adds that in the Pariſh of Ham there was one who lived above 80 Years in a married State with one Wife, and that when he wrote, which was in 1700, there was a Gentleman living in one of thoſe Iſlands, whoſe Father was 100 Years old when he was born, and lived till he ſaw Grandchildren by this Son. The W. ſide of this Iſland is full of Promontories, and ſteep Rocks, but fruitful, and has divers handſom Seats that belonged to ſeveral of the Biſhops and other Gentlemen; and near the Peninſula called the Brugh of Bipſa there's a noble Seat built in Form of a Monaſtery with a Fountain in the middle of the Area, and 2 long Galleries curiouſly painted.

13. Alhallow, at the N. W. Corner of this Iſland, ſmall, but remarkable for a good Fiſhery.

14. Rouſa, 2 m. N. from Pomona, is 8 m. long, 6 broad, has many high Promontories cover'd with long Heath; is well inhabited on the Coaſt, has good Corn and Turf, and abounds with Fiſh, Rabbets and Heathcocks.

15. Weyre lies a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. 'Tis 2 m. long, about 1 broad, and produces good Corn. Here are the Ruins of an antient ſtrong ſquare Caſtle trenched about. 'Tis thought to have been a Pictiſh or Daniſh Fort.

16. Egleſha, about a m. E. of Rouſa, is 3 m. long, 1 broad, has plenty of Corn, and a Church with a high Steeple, where they ſay St. Magnus is buried; and near the Church there's a handſom Seat belonging to a Gentleman. 'Tis pleaſant and fruitful, and has a ſafe Road for Ships betwixt it and Weyre.

17. Shapinſha, about 2 m. N. of Pomona, almoſt over-againſt Kirkwall. 'Tis about 6 m. long, 3 broad, has a ſafe and commodious Harbour, a large green Holm near it, abounds with Turf and Moor-Fowl, has a Church and a Gentleman's Seat.

18. North-Fara is above 5 m. N. E. of Egleſha, has ſeveral Holms belonging to it, is 3 m. long but narrow, lies on a raging Sea, is but ill inhabited, yet pretty fruitful and abounds with Fiſh.

19. Weſtra, a m. N. W. of Fara. 'Tis about 8 m. long, and from 3 to 5 broad. 'Tis pleaſant, fruitful, well inhabited, and has a convenient Harbour for Ships, defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, abounds with Rabbets; and the Inhabitants yield to none of the Orkney Men for Courage. Here are Graves found in the Sand, in one of which was a Man with a Sword in one Hand, and a Daniſh Ax in the other; and there were ſeveral who had Dogs, Combs and Knives found in the Graves with them. This ſeems to have been the Danes Way of Burial when they inhabited theſe Iſlands.

20. Papa-Weſtra, is a m. E. from the N. part of Weſtra, 3 m. long, a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ broad, and has a good Harbour betwixt it and the neighbouring Holm. 'Tis well inhabited, and abounds with Fiſh, Corn, and Rabbets. There's the Ruins of a Chappel here, called St. Tredwel's, with a Heap of Stones at the Door, it having been the Cuſtom of the ſuperſtitious People, as often as they paſſed by, to throw a Stone there by way of Offering.

21. Eda, 2 m. E. of North-Fara, is about 10 m. long in ſome Places, 5 m. broad, in others narrower. Moſt of it is covered with Heath, and abounds with Moor-Fowl, but is thinly inhabited, unleſs on the Coaſt. There's a good Harbour on the N. named Calf-Sound, betwixt this Iſland and a Holm. Here are ſeveral Pits where excellent Salt is made; and in a Promontory near the Harbour, build Hawks which are very much valued.

22. Stronſa, 4 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. E. of Eda, according to Stralloch's Map. 'Tis near 6 m. long, and above 3 broad, fruitful, well inhabited, and known to Mariners who go to fiſh in Schetland, becauſe of its commodious Harbour. Here's a Peninſula in the S. E. Corner, called Rauſin, that furniſhes the reſt of the Iſland with Turf. In the Links of it were found ſome Years ago the Remains of a Roman Urn.

23. Papa Stronſa, W. of Stronſa, over againſt the Harbour, is a m. long, but narrow, yet fruitful and pretty well inhabited.

24. Ouskerrie, a ſmall rocky Iſland N. E. of Stronſa, remarkable for a good Fiſhing on its Coaſt.

25. Sanda, lies W. from Stronſa. The Soil is very dry in the ſevereſt Winter, and exceeding ſandy, from whence it has the Name. 'Tis the biggeſt of the Orkney Iſlands next to Pomona, being 12 m. in length from Cape Spurnes to the Promontory of Lopnes or Toftnes, and 8 in breadth from Hauchneſs on the E. to Whytmailnes on the W. but elſewhere 'tis much contracted. 'Tis reckoned the moſt fruitful and beautiful of all the Orcades. It riſes high on the S. ſide, but lies ſo low on the N. that Mariners often run foul upon it unawares; and 'tis well for the Inhabitants that they do, for they have no Shrub, Turf, or other Fuel but the Wrecks of Ships, and are forced to dreſs their Proviſions, either with Straw, the Dung of Cattle, and the long Stalks and Leaves of Sea-Ware (which is very plenty in all theſe Iſlands) dried in the Sun, and reſerved for this Uſe. The better ſort ſend for Turf from Eda, as do alſo thoſe of North-Ranalſa. Here are abundance of Warrens; and Rabbets are, next to Fiſh, the chief Food of the Natives. Here's not only Fiſh of various ſorts in abundance, but Black-Cattle, Sheep, Corn, Hay and Paſture. Here are many Buildings, 2 Churches, and 2 Paſtors, one of whom does alſo officiate in the Church of North-Ranalſa. At the Chappel of Clet in this Iſland there's a Grave 19 Foot long, in which they ſay a Giant was buried, the Stone that is laid upon it is 12 Foot long.

26. North-Ranalſa, 3 m. W. is above 3 m. long, and a m. broad. 'Tis a low dry Iſland, has a Church in it dedicated to St. Olave, and much the ſame Conveniences and Inconveniences as Sanda.

Fara lies almoſt in the middle betwixt Orkney and Schetland, and is ſeen from both. It riſes up in three very high Promontories faced with Rock, and inacceſſible, except on the N. E. where the Land is lower, and forms a ſafe Harbour. 'Tis but thinly inhabited, becauſe the Inhabitants are liable to be plunder'd by the Mariners who come this way to fiſh. Their Hawks are accounted the beſt that are to be found; and go as far as Orkney for Moor-hens and other Prey, tho 16 Leagues diſtant. On the N. W. Part there's a vaſt Rock, which riſes like a Tower, is covered with Graſs, and feeds many Sheep. This Iſland is fruitful in Corn and Cattle, and abounds with Fiſh of all ſorts.

The Iſles of Schetland.

THEY lie N. E. from Orkney 21 Leagues, betwixt Lat. 60 and 61. 10. according to Stralloch's Map, and betwixt Lon. W. from London 1 $\frac{1}{2}$, and E. from London 35 m. Some think the Name to have been originally Sealand, becauſe of its being encompaſſed with the Sea. Others derive it from Highland, becauſe the Country is mountainous; and ſome from Schatland, from the German Word Schat, becauſe they formerly paid Tribute both to the Scots and Norwegians. The Tides betwixt theſe Iſlands and thoſe of Orkney are very impetuous, and the Seas always ſwell, eſpecially about Fair-Iſle.

Theſe Iſlands have Norway on the E. which is the neareſt Part of the Continent. The Air is cold and piercing, yet many of the People live to a great Age. Buchanan mentions one Lawrence in his time, who married when 100 Years old, lived 40 after, went out a fiſhing the very Day he died, and upon his Return expired rather by Age than any viſible Diſtemper. Mr. Martin ſays ſome of this Man's Offspring live ſtill in Orkney. The Inhabitants give an account of one Tairville, who lived 180 Years, and never drank any ſtronger Liquor than Milk or Water mixed with it. They ſay that his Son lived longer than he; and that his Grand-Son lived alſo to a great Age. The People are ſuppoſed to be originally Goths, becauſe of their Language and Cuſtoms; but they are now mixed with Scots Lowlanders, whom they imitate in Dreſs. They talk Engliſh, and are much improved by Foreigners and others who come thither to fiſh. Thoſe of Faſhion are neat enough in their Apparel and Houſes. The People in general ſeem to be religiouſly inclined, and all Proteſtants except very few. They are plain, good-natured, and make up any Quarrels that happen, by feaſting one another. About the Summer Solſtice they have ſo much Light that they can read all Night without Candles or Lamps. The Sun ſets betwixt 10 and 11, and riſes again betwixt 1 and 2 in the Morning. Their Days are ſhorter, and the Nights longer in Winter in proportion, which together with the tempeſtuous Seas, does for moſt part cut off all foreign Correſpondence from October till April, and often till May. A remarkable Inſtance of this happened after the Revolution, which tho it fell out in November, they heard nothing of it till May following, when a Fiſherman told them of it, and was impriſoned and indicted of High Treaſon for ſpreading ſuch News; but it was ſoon after confirmed, and he eſcaped. They are about 46 Iſlands in all, 40 Holms or leſſer Iſlands left for Paſturage, and 30 Rocks frequented only by Fowl. Only 26 of the Iſlands are inhabited. Schetland is divided into 12 Pariſhes, but has many more Churches and Chappels.

The chief Iſland is called the Main-Land. It is above 60 m. long, and 20 where broadeſt, but much indented by Bays. 'Tis for moſt part full of Moſſes, Bogs and Mountains, except on the Shores; ſo that 'tis fitter for Paſturage than Corn, with which they are moſtly ſupplied from Orkney; but they have Barley and Oats of their own Product. Their common Diſtemper is the Scurvy, occaſioned by their eating too much Salt-Fiſh, but Nature has furniſhed them with plenty of Scurvy-Graſs. Here's another Diſtemper called the Baſtard-Scurvy, that makes the Hair fall from their Eye-Brows, and their Noſes ſink in. And as ſoon as thoſe Symptoms appear, the Patients are remov'd to little Houſes built in the Field for that purpoſe, to prevent Infection. This happens only to the meaner ſort, who feed chiefly on Fiſh, and drink Butter-Milk mixed with Water. They pouder Snail-Shells, and mix it with their Drink againſt the Jaundice, which is found very effectual. Moſt of them live by Fiſhing and Fowling, are very expert with their Fire-Arms, and venture to Sea even in Winter with open Boats. Their Coaſts abound with Fiſh of all ſorts for moſt part of the Year, as Cod, Ling, Herring, Shell-Fiſh of all kinds, Whales, and Seals: and in Winter the common People burn Fiſh-Oil inſtead of Candles. Here are Otters, Fowl of all ſorts, particularly Geeſe and Ducks of ſeveral kinds; but ſome obſerve that Heathcocks, and other Fowls which frequent Heaths, cannot live here, tho the Iſland abounds with Heath.

Their common Drink is Whey, which the Natives barrel up, and keep in cold Cellars till 'tis very ſtrong. Some drink Butter-Milk mixed with Water, and the better ſort have good Beer and Ale. They have abundance of little Horſes called Skelties, fit both for Huſbandry, and the Saddle. They are natural Pacers, very ſprightly, and able to carry double, tho they have ſmall Legs, and are ſo light, that a Man may lift them from the Ground. They are of 2 ſorts, the beſt is black, the other pied. They live many times till 30 Years of Age, and are fit for Service all the while. Theſe Horſes are never houſed, and when they have no Graſs feed upon Sea-Ware, which is only to be had at the Tide of Ebb. Their black Cattle and Sheep are reduced to the like during Froſt and Snow. Their Ewes bring forth 2 or 3 Lambs at a time, and would be much more numerous, did not the Eagles deſtroy them. Here are vaſt Numbers of Crows, different from thoſe on the main Land, their Head, Wings, and Bill being black, and the Back, Breaſt, Tail, &c. grey. The Sea-Fowl ſerve the Inhabitants for part of their Food during Summer and Harveſt, and the Down and Feathers bring them great Gain. The ſeveral Tribes of Sea-Fowl here build and hatch apart, and each Tribe keeps cloſe together. Some of the leſſer Iſles are ſo crowded with them, that they fly ſometimes in ſuch Numbers as to darken the Air. They commonly arrive in February, ſit very cloſe together for ſome time till they recover the Fatigue of their long Flight, and after they have hatched their Young, and find they can fly, go away together to ſome unknown Place. The Inhabitants of the leſſer Iſles maintain themſelves in the Summer by Eggs and Fowl. The Men are dextrous Climbers, and are let down by Ropes with Baskets to catch the Fowl. Their Fuel is Turf, Peat, and Heath. They make coarſe Cloth, Stockings, and knit Gloves for their own Uſe, and for Sale to the Norwegians; but their great Export is Fiſh, by which they chiefly maintain their Families. They uſe no Phyſicians nor Surgeons. There are ſeveral antient Monuments in theſe Iſlands, particularly thoſe called the Picts Houſes.

There are 2 little Towns in this Iſland, the oldeſt of which is Scallaway on the W. ſide, Lat. 61. 12. It is ſmall, but the ordinary Place for adminiſtring Juſtice to the Inhabitants of thoſe Iſlands, is defended by a Caſtle of 4 Stories high, and the Inhabitants are about 100. The ſecond is Lerwick, on the E. ſide of the Iſland, Lat. 61. 18. 'Tis now increaſed by the Fiſhing Trade to about 300 Families.

The other Iſlands of moſt note, are,

1. Braſſa, on the E. ſide of the main Land, over-againſt Lerwick. 'Tis 5 m. long, 2 broad, has ſome arable Ground, and 2 Churches. 'Tis famous for its Sound, where the Dutch, Hamburghers, &c. commonly rendevouz 2000 Buſſes, when they begin their Herring-Fiſhing on the 24th of June, which continues till Auguſt or September. Thoſe of Hamburgh and Bremen come hither about the middle of May, ſet up Shops, and ſell Linen, Muſlin, Beer, Brandy, Bread, &c. which they barter for Fiſh, Stockings, Mutton, Hens, &c. When the Inhabitants ask Money for their Goods, they receive it immediately; and the Proprietors of the Ground are conſiderable Gainers by letting their Houſes and Shops to the Seamen. A Fiſh, called Tusk, abounds on this Coaſt, for which they fiſh about the end of May. 'Tis as big as a Ling, of a brown-yellow Colour, with a broad Tail, and better freſh than ſalted. They are commonly ſold at 15 or 16 s. the Hundred.

2. Whalſey, 7 m. ½ E. of the main Land, and 15 N. E. from Braſſa, is about 3 m. long, and the ſame in Breadth, and much infeſted by Rats, which deſtroy the Corn.

3. Skerries, 16 m. ½ N. E. 2 ſmall Iſlands, on which Ships are often caſt away. In one of them there's a Church.

4. Burray, 15 m. W. is 3 m. long, has good Paſturage, abounds with Fiſh, and has a large Church and Steeple. The Inhabitants ſay no Mice will live in the Iſland, and that they forſake the Place wherever the Earth of it is brought.

5. Vuſt, or Unſt, 27 m. to the N. E. is 8 m. long, one of the pleaſanteſt of the Schetland Iſles, and reckoned the moſt N. of all the Britiſh Dominions. It has 3 Churches, and as many Harbours. The Inhabitants of this Iſle ſay, no Cat will live in it.

6. Yell, about a m. ½ N. W. is 16 m. long, and from 8 to 10 in Breadth. It lies N. E. from the Main, and has 3 Churches and ſeveral ſmall Chappels.

7. Feſlar, 5 m. N. E. is 5 m. long, 4 broad, has a Church, and ſome of the Picts Houſes entire to this Day. The higheſt are not above 20 or 30 Foot high, 12 broad in the middle, and tapering toward both Ends. The Doors of the Houſes are low, the Windows long and narrow, and the Stairs go up between the Walls. They were built as Watch-Towers or Beacons. The Inhabitants ſay, that when a Veſſel ſails on the W. ſide of this Iſland, near the Houſe of Udſta, the Needle of the Compaſs is always diſorder'd.

8. Foula, or Thule Iſle, 6 Leagues W. of the Main, is 3 m. long, has an Harbour, and a Rock ſo high, that it is ſeen in Orkney. Some will have this to be the Ultima Thule of the Antients, and Camden gives into this Opinion; but Dr. Wallace, in his Deſcription of the Iſlands of Orkney, and Sir Robert Sibbald, make it much more probable from the Roman and other Hiſtorians, that the N. E. Coaſt of Scotland was what they called the Ultima Thule. But having no room to inſiſt on theſe Things, we refer the Curious to thoſe Authors for further Satisfaction.

IRELAND,

LIES W. from part of England and Scotland, from which it is ſeparated by that called St. George's Channel, or the Iriſh Sea; has the Scots W. Iſlands on the N. the Mouth of St. George's Channel on the S. and the W. or Atlantick Ocean, on the W. It lies betwixt Lat. 51. 16. and 55. 19. and Long. W. from London 5 ½, and 10. 34. So that the greateſt Length from S. W. to N E. is about 343 m. but 'tis much indented on the S. E. by St. George's Channel, and on the N. W. by the Atlantick, which makes the Length unequal. The greateſt Breadth is about 143; but 'tis ſo much indented, that the Breadth is alſo very unequal. It lies in the 9th and 10th Climates; ſo that the longeſt Day in the S. Parts is 16 Hours and ½, and the longeſt in the N. 17 ¼.

Authors are not agreed as to the Origin of the Name; but Camden thinks it moſt probably derived from the Iriſh Word Hiere, which ſignified Weſt, becauſe of its W. Situation. The antient Geographers call it Jerna, Juverna, Jouernia, Ouernia, Bernia, and Iris; ſo that 'tis more probable the preſent Name came from Iris than from Hiere. According to the antient Iriſh Authors, it was that which Plutarch called Ogygia; and they add, that when Gaothelus with his Wife Scota, Daughter to Pharaoh King of Egypt, came hither, which was about the time that the Iſraelites left Egypt, he call'd it Scotia from his Wife, and that the Language was from him called Gaothela. Whatever there be in this, it is certain that the Scots Highlanders call themſelves Gael and Gaelicks, and their Language Gaelick. Mr. Lhuyd, in his Iriſh-Engliſh Dictionary, calls it, according to the old way of writing, Gaoidhelge: all which ſeem to be derived from the Name Gathelus, or Gael; and that learned Antiquary calls the Iriſh the antient Scotiſh Language. Sir Peter Walſh, in his Proſpect of the State of Ireland, from the Year of the World 1756, to the Year of Chriſt 1652, ſays, the Iriſh call their own Language Gaodhlec, from Gathelus, whom they call Gaodhel; and that they call the Albion Scots Albanach Gaodhleach, which ſignifies an Albanian of Gathelus's Extraction.

We have not time or room to inſiſt upon the Debates about the Origin and Antiquity of the Iriſh Nation; but 'tis certain they are very antient, notwithſtanding the Objections made againſt it, becauſe of the fabulous Accounts of their own Monkiſh Writers, who ſeem to have vied with Geoffrey of Monmouth, and carry up their Antiquity as high almoſt as Noah. It ſeems, however, very probable, that the native or antient Iriſh are the Deſcendents of thoſe who came into the Country with Gathelus. Camden ſuppoſes them to be originally Britons; but the Iriſh themſelves ſay, the Britons deſcended from them; and that they and their Country were ſo named from Briotan, an Iriſh General, who with his Adherents landed in Scotland, and ſubdued the whole Iſland. Whatever there be in this, 'tis certain that the Welch, Iriſh, and Scots Highlanders Languages are originally the ſame, as appears by Mr. Lhuyd's Archæologia Britannica; and by conſequence, the People are of one Origin, tho it cannot now be determined which is the oldeſt Colony; yet Reaſon leads one to think, that Great Britain was firſt peopled, becauſe neareſt the Continent. The Country was called Scotia by Iſidore and Bede, becauſe the Scots, a People from Scythia, bore great Sway there, and afterwards brought the Name along with them to that Part of Great Britain now called Scotland.

The Natural Hiſtory, writ by Arnold Beate M. D. to the State in Ireland in 1657, is in ſubſtance as follows.

The Air is mild, being cooler in Summer, and warmer in Winter, than in England, and therefore not ſo proper for ripening Corn and Fruits. In Winter 'tis more ſubject to Wind, Clouds, and Rain, than to Froſt and Snow; ſo that the Moiſtneſs of the Air occaſions Rheums and Fluxes, eſpecially to Strangers. Therefore the Inhabitants drink Uſquebaugh to prevent thoſe Diſtempers.

The Soil is generally fruitful, but fitter for Paſturage than Corn. In ſome Places the Graſs is ſo long and ſweet, as would ſurfeit their Cattle if they were not reſtrained; and in other Places the Soil is ſo very fat, that Compoſt, as Dung, &c. ſpoils it.

Some Parts of the Country abound with fine Plains, others are mountainous and hilly, and ſome have a mixture of all 3, with very great Variety; and in ſome Places there are Ridges of Hills, which lie near one another, almoſt of equal Height, and ſeveral of them abound with with Pasture and arable Land. Several of these Ridges are from 10 to 12 and 50 m. long, especially in the County of Wicklow. The Ground is in many Places poor, in others stony, and interspers'd with small Rocks. In the N. Parts, the Tops and Sides of many of the great Hills and Mountains look as if they had been formerly ploughed. Some of their Mountains are very high, but not equal to the Pyrenees, Alpes, &c. as those betwixt Dundalk and Carlingford, which are seen 40 m. off, and many of them 50 m. at Sea. The fruitful Soil is in some Places black Earth, in others Clay, and elsewhere Mixtures of both, with Sand and Gravel; but Chalk Ground and red Earth are no where found in Ireland. These Grounds differ in Fruitfulness according to the Depth of the Mould, and the Nature of what lies next to it underneath; for the best Soil, if but a Foot or half deep, lying upon stiff Clay, or hard Stone, is not so fruitful as leaner Soil of a greater Depth that lies upon Sand or Gravel: Yet there are some Parts, where tho the good Mould is but thin, and the Ground underneath nothing but Lime-Stone, very fruitful in Corn and sweet Grass, upon which Sheep and other Cattle thrive exceedingly. This is ascribed to the Warmth of the Lime-Stone. In many Places there's abundance of long Grass, that no Cattle will touch, unless forced by Famine, 'tis so coarse and sour. This is ascribed to the Unfitness of the nether Crust, which hinders the free Passage of Rain and Water; and for the same Reason, where the Soil it self is fit enough for good Wheat or Barley, it will scarce bear any thing but Oats or Rye, and those none of the best; and some of the Valleys are so over-shadowed by high Mountains and Hills, that being deprived of the Sun-Beams, they are neither good for Corn nor Grass. It may, however, be said of the Country in general, that it has as good Pastures as any in Europe, and abundance of very good Corn. The Irish Cattle of all sorts are generally of a small size; but those brought from England thrive exceeding well, and neither degenerate in Size nor Goodness, and their Meat, as well as that of the native Cattle, exceeds the English in Sweetness. They improve those Lands that need it by Dung of all sorts, Ashes, Mud, Lime, Sea-Sand, and Marl.

There are some dry Heaths in Ireland, and for the most part on Mountains, but very few in plain Countries; and these dry Heaths are not altogether barren, but grassy between, and at the bottom of the Heath; so that when the Heath is burnt, the Land produces reasonable good sweet Grass for Sheep, and with a little extraordinary Labour and Cost, does also produce Corn: and several of the Heaths are mixed with Rows of Grass, which are pleasant and verdant all the Year, and feed abundance of Sheep.

There are many Bogs in this Nation of different sorts: Some of them cover'd with Grass, and look like pleasant Meadows, which prove dangerous to those that don't know them, who taking them to be firm Meadows enter upon them, and many times lose their Lives, and others escape with difficulty; for they are of an unequal Depth, from 2 to 6 or more Feet. Some of them are so dried up in Summer, that they may be passed without danger, and feed Multitudes of Cattle: But the deepest Bogs are not passable in Summer, except such as have some Paths of firm Ground, which are known only to those that live in the Neighbourhood; and the native Irish are expert in passing them. Some of those Paths shake as the Irish tread upon them, from whence they are named shaking Bogs.

Others are called Watry and Miry Bogs. They are likewise covered with Grass, yet so as the Water appears, that they are not dangerous to Travellers; and they yield for the most part very good Turf. They are commonly of large Extent. The Miry Bogs are usually less, and produce but little Grass. Others are called Hassocky Bogs. They are full of Mud at bottom, and covered with Water of different Depths; so that they might pass for Lakes, were it not that they are full of small Tufts of Reeds, Rushes, high Grass, and sometimes little Shrubs, with Plashes of Water betwixt each. The native Irish in Cases of Danger leap from Tuft to Tuft, and make their Escape. These Bogs are partly occasioned by Springs, and partly by small Streams, which run from higher Grounds, and Rain which has not a free Passage. Others are called Red Bogs, where those who dig Turfs do many times find large Fir, and other Trees.

The English have drain'd many hundred Acres of those Bogs, which make excellent Meadows and Corn-Fields.

There were formerly many large Woods; but they have been much diminished by the English, who cut them down to prevent their being a Shelter for Rebels; and they have been also much destroyed by the making of Charcoal for Iron Works. Yet several great Woods are still remaining in Ulster, &c.

The Mines in Ireland have been chiefly discovered, or at least made useful by the English since Q. Elizabeth's Time; so that a great many Iron Mines have been found out in several Parts. Of these there are 3 sorts: In some Places Oar is drawn out of Moors and Bogs with very little Charge, lying near the Surface of the Earth. The Oar is full of good tough Metal; but in melting is mixed with other sorts of Oar, because it is too harsh of it self, melts too suddenly, and choaks the Furnace. While the Oar is new the Colour is yellow, and the Substance somewhat like Clay; so that if long exposed to the Air, it dissolves to Dust or Sand of a black-brown Colour. The second sort is Rock-Mine, and hewn from Rocks with little Trouble. 'Tis not so rich as the Bog-Mine, and the Iron is very brittle, and scarce fit for any thing but Plowshares, unless it be mixed with other sorts. The third sort is dug out of the Mountains in several Parts. 'Tis of a grey Colour, and lies in Veins or Ridges, which are easily discern'd, is of a middle Substance, between the other two, is tough, and in many Parts as good as Spanish Iron. The English have reaped great Advantages from those Mines. For the manner of melting and working the Iron, we refer to the above mentioned Book.

The Author says he was informed by a credible Person, that some pure Gold has been found in a Rivulet that rises from Mountains in the County of Nether Tyrone. They have also Mines of Lead and Silver, which promised very great Profit before the Rebellion, there being a Lead Mine in the County of Antrim, which for 30 Pounds of Lead, yielded one of pure Silver. But these Mines having been destroyed by the Rebels in his Time, we have no account of their Improvement since.

Here are many Quarries of Freestone, Marble, Flints, Slate, and Sea-Coal; but their grey Freestone draws the Moisture of the Air continually, and grows wet both without and within, especially in rainy Seasons. The Marble is of several sorts: One is red, streak'd with white and other Colours, and is called by the Name of Porphyry. Other sorts are black, curiously streak'd with white, and some all one Colour. The chief Marble of this sort is near Kilkenny. When first dug, it looks grey; but when polished, has a fine bluish Colour, inclining to a black.

That called Black Slate, stops Bleeding of all sorts, and hinders the congealing of Blood within one's Body after Falls and Bruises.

The same Author mentions only one Coal Mine in the County of Carlo, in the Province of Leinster, which was discovered at the Bottom of an Iron Mine, but of little Use, except to the Neighbours, because far from navigable Rivers. So that the principal Fuel of the Nation is Turf, of which they have great plenty almost every where; and in Towns near the Sea, they are supplied with Coal from England and Scotland.

Here are also some Glass-Works; but the Sand for making it they have from England.

The Seasons of the Year are described by the same Author thus: The cold Weather sometimes begins in the middle or latter end of September, but commonly the beginning of October, and lasts 5 or 6 Months; yet the Cold is seldom violent. And tho they have 3 or 4 Frosts in a Winter, they seldom last above 3 or 4 Days at a time; and 'tis reckoned extraordinary if they continue 10 or 12, and freeze the Rivers so as to carry Men and Cattle. In general, the Winters are so mild, that the Cattle feed abroad in the Fields both by Night and Day; and such Herbs as die during Winter in England and the Netherlands, continue here all the Year long. In Summer the Heat is seldom very troublesome; and the Weather is so inclinable rather to Cold than Heat, that the Inhabitants can very well endure the Fire especially in wet Weather. Rain is very usual here all the Year long, excepting the Spring, when there's generally fair Weather for 5 or 6 Weeks; but it rains very much during the Summer, so that 'tis rare to have a whole Week without it, and frequently it rains 2 or 3 Days together. This is troublesome to the Inhabitants, and hinders the Fruit, Corn, and Grass from ripening in time, and makes it difficult for them to get in their Fruit, Corn, and Hay, unless they watch every Opportunity of fair Weather: yet there's as seldom Dearth in Ireland as in any other Country of Christendom; and most Years they have not only enough for their own Consumption, but for Export.

The Close of Autumn is commonly fair for some Weeks together, as in the Spring, but not so long; and after that few Weeks pass without 2 or 3 rainy Days: and 'tis commonly observed that it rains more by Day than by Night, it being usual to have fair Nights after great Rains. Excessive hot Summers and cold Winters seldom happen once in an Age; and the driest Summers do more good than hurt to the Country, and the Dearths generally happen by excessive Rain. But our Author is of opinion, this may be help'd by draining the boggy and watery Places, which increase the Moistness of the Air, as appears by several Places of the Country drain'd by the English. 'Tis observ'd, that before great Rain little or no Dew falls, unless during the clear Nights. This Country is also subject to dark Weather without Rain, which continues sometimes many Days, especially in Winter: and the Tops of the Hills are many times cover'd with thick Mists in a fair Day, and sometimes the middle of them is covered with Fogs, when the Sun shines on the Tops, and in the Valleys. Some Years they have no Snow at all, especially in the plain Country; and what Hail they have is small, and the Showers short. Hoar Frosts are common here, not only in the cold Months, but in the Spring. Thunder and Lightening happen seldom above once or twice in a Summer, and sometimes not once in a Year; and they are always so weak, that they seldom or never do any harm, or occasion Terror to the Inhabitants: and Earthquakes seldom happen in an Age. Winds are very frequent in all Times of the Year, especially in Winter, with Storms that continue several Days together. Their chief Storms blow from the W. and they seldom want Opportunities of coming to England by Sea, tho sometimes there is not so much E. Wind in 6 Weeks or 2 Months as to carry Ships from England to Ireland. The Summer, and chiefly the Spring, are least liable to this Inconveniency. As the W. Winds are more common on the Coast over-against Great Britain than the E. the S. Winds are much more ordinary there than those from the N.

Here are many Springs every where of cool, clear, and pure Water, with several medicinal ones near Dublin, &c. of the same nature with those called Spaws. There are many others, called Holy Wells by the Superstitious, who ascribe great Cures to them because dedicated to Saints, tho they have no more Virtue than other common Water. Our Author rejects the fabulous Fountains ascribed to this Country by Giraldus Cambrensis, whose Accounts of this Nation shew him to have been over credulous. Brooks and small Rivulets abound here, which fructify the Country, and turn Water-Mills; and those which come from Hills commonly over-flow the adjacent Country in time of Rain.

The chief River is the Shannon, which rises from Loch-Allen in the Province of Connaught, divides it from Leinster, and afterwards from Munster, runs through several considerable Lakes, and falls into the Sea betwixt Kerry-Point and Loop-Head, after a Course of 145 m. besides Turnings. The Bay at its Mouth is about 10 m. broad. The River is wide and deep in most Parts, and would be navigable a great way by big Ships, were it not for a Cataract about 6 m. above Limerick, so that 'tis not navigable by Ships above 50 m. Our Author says, that when the Earl of Strafford was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, he had this Cataract viewed by Persons of Skill, who told him, that the Channel might be turned another way, so as to avoid that Rock, for about 8000*l.* which would have been of vast Advantage to the Country; but it was never undertaken.

There are several other Rivers in Connaught, but none of them comparable to the Shannon. The most considerable next to that is the Suck, which falls into the Shannon a little below Athlone.

The 2 chief Rivers of Munster are the Sure and Broadwater. The City of Waterford lies upon the former, which a little below falls into a Branch of the Sea called Waterford Haven. The other, called Broad-water, or Blackwater, falls into the Sea at Youghall, where it makes a Tide-Haven. The next to these are the Rivers of Cork and Kingsale, which are remarkable only for the Ports they form at those 2 Towns.

The chief Rivers in the Province of Leinster are the Nure, or Oure, the Barrow, the Slane, the Liffie, and the Boyn. The Oure and Barrow join a little above the Town of Ross, and afterwards mixing with the Sure, fall into Waterford Haven. The Oure is navigable a considerable way by little Boats, as is the Barrow by larger ones. The Slane falls into the Harbour of Wexford.

The Liffie is called the Princess of the Irish Rivers, because Dublin, the Capital of the Kingdom, lies on its Banks, and a m. below falls into Dublin Bay. This River rises in Mountains S. of Dublin, about 10 m. but has so many Windings, that the Course of it is betwixt 40 and 50 m. before it falls into the Bay at Ringsend.

The Boyn rises in Kings County, not far from the Fountains of the Barrow, falls into the Sea in Drogheda Bay, and would be navigable by large Boats into the Country, were not the Channel obstructed by Wears.

The chief River in Ulster, which falls directly into the Sea, is the Band or Bann, which is navigable only a few Miles because of a great Rock which forms a Cataract within 3 m. of Loughneagh from whence this River flows, otherwise Vessels of considerable Burden might go through the Lough and up the River Blackwater, which is the most considerable that falls into the Lough. For the other Rivers of less Note, we shall have occasion to mention the chief of them in their proper Places.

The Loughs in Ireland are very numerous, but we shall only touch upon the principal. They are divided into salt and fresh Water Loughs. The latter are properly Inlets of the Sea at the Mouths of Rivers; the chief of which are, Lochcone or Strangford-Loch in the County of Down, Carrickfergus Bay which separates that County from Antrim, Lochfoyl in the County of Colerain or Londonderry, Loughswilly in the County of Donnegal or Tyrconnel, the great Lough thro which the Shannon runs from Limeric to the Sea, and the Lough of Cork.

The chief fresh Water Loughs are, Lough-Ern, in the Province of Ulster, which is formed of 2 Loughs, with a Channel or River betwixt them, and discharges itself into Donnegal Bay, a little below Bally-Shannon. In this Lough there are several Islands inhabited, where there's good Fowling and Fishing, and others are left for Pasture. Lough Neagh, in the N.E. Part of Ulster, discharges itself into the Sea by the River Ban, a little below Colerain. The Water of this Lake petrifies Wood; but that it turns any part of Wood into Iron, the Author of Ireland's Natural History says is a Fable. This is chiefly where the black Water falls into the Lough, Stones being found there of several Sizes and Shapes, which look like Pieces of Wood, and seem originally to have been so. For the rest of the Loughs we shall meet with them in their proper Places.

There are many good Havens and Harbours in Ireland, of which and the chief Roads we shall take notice in the Description of the most remarkable Towns upon them, and likewise of the Nature of the Coasts in their proper Places.

The principal Trade of Ireland for Export, consists in Cattle, Hides, Tallow, Suet, Butter, Cheese, Timber, Salt, Honey, Wax, Firs, Hemp, Linen-Cloth, Pipe-staves, great Quantities of Wool and Woollen Cloth of several sorts, as Freezes, coarse Rugs and Shagmantles, variety of Fish, as Salmon, Herring, &c. Fowl, some Lead, Tin, and Iron. The chief Riches of the antient Irish consist in their numerous Flocks of Sheep, which they sheer twice a Year, great Herds of Black-Cattle, and abundance of small Horses called Hobbys, noted for their soft and round Amble. Here's variety of Game of all sorts, but the antient Irish Gentry are not so addicted to Hunting as the English. The Country breeds no venomous Creature, and those brought from other Parts cannot live here; and 'tis observable that their Timber harbours no Spiders: but they are not yet rid of their Wolves and other Beasts of Prey.

We need not insist on the Manners and Customs of the People, for every one knows that the established Laws are much the same with our own; and that the British Inhabitants and most of their Posterity who are settled there, follow the Customs of those Parts of Great Britain from whence they came. The antient, or those called wild Irish, have been very differently represented, according to the Dispositions of the Authors who writ of them. Their own Writers complain that they have been very injuriously treated by most English Authors ever since the English Conquest in Henry IId's time. But this may be affirmed with Certainty, that since the antient Irish lost their Sovereignty, most of their own antient Families are extinguished, the Nation in general is much degenerated from their Ancestors in Valour, Learning, &c. and by being kept in subjection so many Years, and by the Influence of the Popish Clergy, on whom they have too much of a blind Dependance, most of them are extremely ignorant; and the Massacres and other Barbarities they have committed against Protestants seem more chargeable on their Bigotry and bad Principles, than on their natural Inclinations to Cruelty: yet it appears, even by their own Writers, that they have been much addicted to intestine War, Rebellions and Revenge; and the Contentions that happened among petty Princes, by whom they were governed, contributed much to those Barbarities, and at last exposed them to be an easy Conquest. Yet to do them justice, they have Reputation enough for Valour in foreign Countries, when trained to martial Discipline, tho they seldom defended their own well.

As to Religion, 'tis computed that about 8 Parts in 10 are Papists, but the Establishment is according to the Church of England; yet the Dissenters are reckoned double their Number.

Tho the Country be subject to excessive Wet, the People are as healthful and long-lived as in the neighbouring Countries. Many of them live to 80 or 90, and some above 100, and most of these aged Persons retain the Use of their Limbs and Senses to the last; and some Women have brought forth and suckled their own Children after 60. Scurvies and Quartan Agues are seldom known here, and the Tertian Ague is not so common as elsewhere; and the Plague is scarce heard of in an Age: but other Distempers of all sorts are as common here as in England. But here they are more subject to several sorts of Loosnesses; and they are peculiarly obnoxious to a sort of malignant Fevers they call Irish Agues, which are hard to be cured. The Rickets are common among the Children. We come now to the Geography.

Ireland is divided into 4 great Provinces, viz. Ulster, Leinster, Connaught, and Munster, and each of these are subdivided into Counties. After the English Conquest it was divided into that called the English Pale, and what was possessed by the antient Irish. The English Pale consisted only of 4 Counties, viz. Louth in Ulster, Meath, Dublin, and Kildare in Leinster. The Origin of which was thus. The English in the Reign of Henry II. did in a little time conquer great part of Ireland, and drove the Native Irish to the Woods, Mountains and Deserts; but the English quarrelling afterwards, and going to War among themselves, the Irish recovered most of the Country by degrees, and many of the English joining with them, little but the said 4 Counties continued under Subjection to the Crown of England: so that the English were in a manner impaled within them, and by some posterior Agreements the Irish were obliged not to come with Arms into the Pale, unless by the Consent of the Crown. But the English had little Influence on the rest of the Country; nor was it wholly reduced till K James I's Accession to the Crown of England, at which time the Country was repleniss'd with new English and Scots Colonies, which proved the chief Means of securing the British Interest and the Protestant Religion in that Kingdom; for the old English of the Pale were become so degenerated and such bigotted Papists for most part, that they joined with the Old Irish in the Rebellion and Massacre in 1641. But the English Jurisdiction is now again extended over the whole Kingdom, so that the Distinction of the Pale is in a manner forgot. We begin at the S. and first with the Province of

I. MUNSTER.

IT has that of Connaught and Part of Leinster on the N. the Atlantick on the E. and St. George's Channel on the S. by which 'tis much indented on the S. E. This Province extends from N. W. to S. E. 127 m. where longest, and 124 from E. to W. where broadest, but is very unequal both ways. 'Twas formerly a Kingdom of itself, called Momonia by the Latins, and by the Native Irish, Mown or Wown.

The Air is mild and temperate. The Soil in some Parts is hilly and woody, and Valleys adorned with Corn-Fields and Meadows. The chief Commodities are Corn, Cattle, Wood, Wool, Fish of all sorts, especially Herring and Cod. It contains one Archbishoprick, viz. Cashel, 5 Bishopricks, 7 Market-Towns, 25 Boroughs that return Parliament-Men, 66 antient Castles, and 80 Parishes. Waterford was formerly reckoned the chief City, but now Limerick. Here are many excellent Bays and Havens, and several of the Towns are rich. 'Tis divided into 6 Counties. This Province gives Title of Dutchess to her Grace the Dutchess of Kendal.

This Province was very much civilized, and improved by the English with stately Houses, Churches, &c. before the Irish Rebellion and Massacre in 1641. during which it suffer'd extremely. The Protestants here under the Lord Inchequin made a long and gallant Defence, and revenged the horrid Massacres by the Irish in several Parts of the Province; and they unanimously declared against the Cessation of Arms agreed on betwixt K. Charles I. and the Rebels. We begin at the N. side, and take the Counties as they lie in order.

I. Clare, alias Thomond County,

Has the Bay and County of Galway on the N. the River Shannon and the County of Limerick on the S. the Sea on the W. and the County of Tipperary on the E. from which 'tis also divided by the Shannon. The Form is irregular. 'Tis about 34 m. S. and N. and 39 E. and W. It gave Title of Viscount of Clare to Obrian, a Popish Family, now forfeited, and gives that of Earl of Thomond to a Protestant Branch of the same Name, who is reckon'd the second Earl in Ireland, descended from the Kings of Connaught, and created Earls by Henry VIII. The County is fruitful, and its Trade promoted by the River Shannon. 'Tis divided into 8 or 9 Baronies. It was formerly made a part of Connaught, but reunited to this Province at the Request of the Earl of Thomond. It sends 4 Memb. to Parl.

The Towns here are,

1. Ennis, the Shire Town, and the best in the County, about 100 m. S. W. of Dublin, and 17 m. N. W. of Limerick; has a Market, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. Clare, now reduced to a Village, lies about 2 m. S. and is the Seat of the Earl of Thomond.

2. Killaloo, on the Shannon, 18 m. E. from Ennis, formerly a Place of Note, but now only remarkable for the See of a Bishop. There's a Cataract in the Shannon here, which stops Vessels from going farther up.

3. Inchiquin, a Lordship, which gives Title of Earl to the Family of Obrian.

Other Market-Towns in this County are, 1. Kilfenora, 11 m. N. W. of Ennis. 2. Corofin, 6 m. N. W. of Ennis. 3. Tomgrany, 15 m. N. E. of Ennis. 4. Mount-Evers, 9 m. S. E. of Ennis. 5. Cowraclare, 18 m. S. W. of Ennis.

II. The County of Tipperary, or Holy Cross,

Has Clare, part of Galway, Limerick, and Cork on the W. the Province of Leinster on the E. part of Galway on the N. and Waterford on the S. 'Tis of a very irregular Form, 62 m. where longest S. and and N. and 35 where broadeſt E. and W. The N. part is mountainous and barren, but the S. fruitful and populous. 'Tis divided into 14 Baronies, has 5 Boroughs, and ſeveral other Market-Towns. Great part of it belong'd to the Family of Ormond, and 'twas one of their Titles. It ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. On the Coaſt of this County lie 3 Iſles, which go by the general Name of Arran, and give Title of Earl to a Son of the Family of Ormond.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Thurles, 64 m. S. W. of Dublin, a Market-Town, and had Barracks for Horſe and Foot during the War.

2. Caſhel, 11 m. S. W. of Thurles, and 74 from Dublin, is a ſmall Market-Town, and an Archbiſhop's See, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Iriſh murder'd many People here in 1641, kept others in a Dungeon a great while, and hanged many Miniſters. The Town is ill inhabited, having ſuffered much by War. It gives Title of Viſcount to Lord Bulkley.

3. Clonmell, on the River Shure, 12 m. S. E. of Caſhel, and 73 S. W. from Dublin; is the Shire-Town, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a good Market on Friday, and had Barracks for Horſe. It was formerly ſtrong, and held out againſt Oliver, who afterwards took it while he ſent a Detachment that defeated the Biſhop of Roſs, who came with an Army to relieve it, but was taken and hanged.

4. Carrick, a Market-Town, 10 m. further E. on the ſame River, had Barracks for Horſe. It was taken from the Papiſts by Oliver in 1649. Here was formerly a Seat belonging to the Family of Ormond.

5. Tipperary, formerly the County-Town, lies 10 m. S. W. of Caſhel. 'Tis now remarkable only for a Market, and giving Name to the County. There are ſeveral other Market-Towns here, of which we have no Deſcription. The N. Parts of this County are called Upper and Lower Ormond, which gave Title of Duke, as formerly of Marquiſs and Earl, to the noble and antient Family of Butler, which Title is now forfeited by the late Duke's eſpouſing the Intereſt of the Pretender.

6. Emly, 6 m. W. of Tipperary, gives Title of Viſcount to Fairfax, a Papiſt.

7. Cahir, 6 m. W. of Clonmell, a Market-Town, gives Title of Lord to Butler, a Papiſt.

Other Market-Towns and Places of Note in this County, are, 1. Kilnelagh, in Lower-Ormond. 2. Nenagh, 8 m. S. E. had Barracks for Horſe and Foot. 3. Silvermine, 6 m. S. had a Barrack. 4. Longford, 5 m. E. of Thurles, gives Title of Lord to Aungier, and had a Barrack. 5. Clonultag, 7 m. S. W. of Thurles. 6. Dundrum, 5 m. W. of Caſhel. 7. Feathard, 6 m. S. E. of Caſhel, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. Oliver took it from the Rebels. 8. Clogheen, 6 m. S. W. of Clonmell. 9. Ballyporen, 3 m. S. of Clogheen.

The Papiſts maſſacred abundance of Proteſtants in this County in 1641, after Quarter given, and buried ſeveral alive, after they had complied to hear Maſs.

III. The County of Limerick,

Has the River Shannon on the N. which divides it from Clare, Tipperary on the N. and E. Kerry on the W. and Cork on the S. It gave Title of Earl to the Popiſh Family of Dongan, now forfeited for Rebellion. It is 30 m. where broadeſt S. and N. and 37 where longeſt E. and W. but indented both ways. 'Tis fruitful and populous, but has few good Towns. The W. Parts are mountainous, the reſt of it plain, the whole is divided into 9 Baronies, and ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. There's a pleaſant Proſpect from St. Patrick's Hill into the Sea and along the Shannon.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Limerick, which gives Name to the County, and is its Capital. Part of it lies on the S. ſide of the Shannon, and Part in an Iſland formed by that River. 'Tis near 27 m. N. W. of Caſhel, and 88 S. W. of Dublin. It has a Harbour for Ships, tho 50 m. from the Sea, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. It ſuffer'd formerly very much in the antient Wars betwixt the Engliſh and Iriſh; and held out 3 Months in 1651 againſt Oliver's Troops, but was forced to ſurrender by Plague and Famine. 'Tis reckoned the ſtrongeſt Town in Ireland. 'Twas twice beſieged by K. William's Troops, firſt in 1690 without Succeſs, and afterwards in 1691, when it ſurrender'd on honourable Terms after the Defeat of Sarsfield, who came to relieve it. 'Tis neat, rich, populous, and ſtrong by Art and Nature, being encompaſſed by the Shannon. 'Tis the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Caſhel. The Cathedral and the Caſtle ſtand in the upper Town, which is joined by 2 fair Stone Bridges, ſtrengthned by Bulwarks and Draw-Bridges, to the lower Town, that is alſo well fortified.

2. Askeaton, 13 m. S. W. of Limerick, a Market-Town.

3. Kilmallock, 18 m. S. of Limerick, a Market-Town, rich, and populous, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gave Title of Viſcount to Sarsfield, a Popiſh Family. 'Twas formerly wall'd, and taken by the Oliverians in 1650.

Other Market-Towns here are, 1. Hoſpital, 8 m. N. E. of Kilmallock. 2. Drumcollogher, 12 m. S. W. of it. 3. Newcaſtle, 8 m. N. W. of Drumcollogher. 4. Ballingarry 5 m. E. of Newcaſtle. 5. Bruff, 9 m. N. E. of Ballingarry. 6. Barbkeal, 5 m. N. E. of Newcaſtle. 7. O-Brian, a Lordſhip S. of Limerick, which gives Sirname and Title to that noble and antient Family.

IV. The County of Kerry,

Has the Shannon on the N. Part of Cork and the Sea on the S. Limerick and Cork on the E. and the Sea on the W. 'Tis very unequal in length and breadth, being much indented by Bays. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 58 m. and E. and W. 45. It gives Title of Lord to Fitzmorrice, Lord Lixnaw. It is woody and mountainous, but in many Places has good Corn and Graſs. 'Twas formerly a County Palatine under the antient Earls of Deſmond, but deprived of thoſe Privileges, becauſe the Inhabitants rebel'd. The Papiſts murder'd many Proteſtants here in 1641. Deſmond was formerly reckoned a County of it ſelf, and under Earls deſcended from a petty Iriſh King, but is now divided betwixt thoſe of Kerry and Cork, and the Title of Earl of Deſmond is in Fielding. This County is divided into 8 Baronies.

Places of moſt Note are,

1. Liſtowel, a Market-Town on the N. ſide of the River Casbin.

2. Lixnaw, another, 6 m. S. W. which gives Title of Lord to Fitzmorrice.

3. Ardfert, 6 m. S. W. formerly the See of a Biſhop, but now united to that of Limerick. It lies 132 m. S. W. of Dublin, has a Harbour for ſmall Veſſels, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

4. Tralley, 4 m. S. E. has a good Harbour, near a large Bay of its own Name, 130 m. S. W. of Dublin, a Market-Town which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. 'Twas formerly the Seat of the Earls of Deſmond.

5. Caſtle-Iſland, 8 m. S. E.

6. Kilmurry, 1 m. E. gives Title of Viſcount to Needham.

7. Dingle, 22 m. S. W. from Trally, and 150 from Dublin, in a Peninſula near a Bay of its own Name. 'Tis the chief Market-Town of the County, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and lies very convenient for Trade. The Bay is one of the largeſt in Ireland, runs 28 m. up the Country, is 15 m. broad at the Mouth, and has ſeveral Harbours; among others, thoſe of Ventry, Dingle, and Caſtlemain, from a Town of that Name on the River Mana, 4 m. from the Bay, noted for giving Title of E. to Roger Palmer, whoſe Lady was one of K. Charles II's Miſtreſſes. Sir Richard Child has the Title now. Near the End of the Peninſula lie ſome rocky Iſlands, called the Blaſgues, the moſt Weſterly Part of Ireland: and N. E. from them lies Limerwick, a ſafe Harbour.

8. Kiboratan, 4 m. S. of Caſtlemain.

9. Killarny, 8 m. S. E.

10. Roſs-Iſland, in a Lake 2 m. S. W. where lay a Barrack of Foot.

11. In the S. W. Corner of this County lies the Iſland of Valentia, which gives Title of Viſcount to the Earl of Angleſey. It has a Harbour, a Village, and a Fort.

12. Mair, or Kilmare-River, is a Bay on the S. E. Corner of the County. It runs 23 m. within Land, is 5 m. wide at the Mouth, and a ſafe Harbour for the greateſt Ships.

V. The County of Cork,

Has Limerick on the N. the Sea on the S. Kerry on the W. Part of Tipperary, and Waterford on the E. The Form is ſo irregular, that both Breadth and Length are very unequal. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 55 m. and E. and W. 51. 'Twas formerly larger, and had the Title of a Kingdom. 'Tis divided into 15 Baronies, and ſends 26 Memb. to Parl. Part of it is mountainous and woody, and other Parts full of Marſhes. It gives Title of Earl to the noble Family of Boyle, Earl of Burlington in England.

Places of moſt Note are,

1. Charleville, in the N. Part of the County, called the Lordſhip of Orrery, which gives Title of Earl to Boyle. The Town lies 5 m. S. W. of Killmallock, 100 from Dublin, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Church-Town, or Burton, 5 m. S. W.

3. Buttevant, 5 m. S. E.

4. Donneraile, a Borough, 3 m. S. E. ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

5. Mitchel, 11 m. N. E.

6. Newmarket, 14 m. S. W. of Donneraile, had a Barrack of Foot.

7. Clamark, 4 m. S. E.

8. Mallo, a Borough, 6 m. S. W. of Donneraile, on the River Black-Water.

9. Fermoy, 13 m. E.

10. Curriglaſs, 8 m. S. E.

11. Killworth, 2 m. N. E.

12. Nelan, 3 m. N. W.

13. C. Lyons, 4 m. S. E.

14. Rathconnuck, a Borough-Town, 4 m. S. W.

15. Cork, Capital of the County, 13 m. S. W. of Rathconnuck, and 120 S. W. of Dublin. It lies in an Iſland of the River Lee, is of an oval Form, well fortify'd, and has Barracks for Foot. Part of the River, over which are Bridges, runs thro it, and forms a good Port, upon which there's a Key. The City is neat, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Caſhel, wealthy, populous, inhabited chiefly by Engliſh, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. It exceeds any Town in Ireland but Dublin in Riches. It made a brave Reſiſtance under the Earl of Inchequin againſt the Rebels in 1641, fell into their hands after the Ceſſation of Arms, but ſubmitted to Oliver Cromwell upon the Surrender of Wexford. Ships of great Burden come up to the Town, tho it be 10 m. from the Sea. The Duke of Marlborough took it from the Rebels in 1690, when the Duke of Grafton was killed before it. The Mouth of the Harbour on the Coaſt is 2 m. broad, but it grows wider within, where there's an Iſland called Great, 5 m. S. of the Town, with ſome Villages upon it.

16. Middletown, a Borough, 12 m. E. of Cork, upon a Creek in the N. E. Part of the Harbour. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

17. Cloyne, 3 m. ½ S. E. formerly a Biſhop's See, but now united to Cork.

18. Yellowford, 4 m. N.

19. Barrymore-Lordſhip, lies N. E. of Cork, and gives Title of Earl to the antient Family of Barry.

20. Caſtle-Martin, a Borough, 3 m. ½ E. of Middletown.

21. Youghall, 7 m. N. E. at the Mouth of the River Blackwater, a rich, populous, ſtrong Town, divided into Upper and Lower. It had formerly 2 Abbies, has one Church, and a Harbour with a Bar before it, which can't be paſſed but at high Water. The Harbour is commodious, and the Key well fenced. 'Tis a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The adjoining Country is very fruitful. This Town ſurrender'd to Oliver in 1649.

22. Kinſail, 13 m. S. of Cork, and 118 S. W. of Dublin, at the Mouth of Blandown R. The Town is fortify'd, has Barracks for Foot, and a Fort over-againſt it with the like. 'Tis the ſecond Town of the County, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a good Trade, is populous, ſtands in a fruitful Soil, and has one of the beſt Harbours in Ireland. Ships ride ſafe at the Key in 8 or 9 Fathom Water, and the Haven is capable of great numbers of Ships. The Town gives Title of Lord to the antient Family of Courcy. 'Twas surprized and fortified by 8000 Spaniards and Rebels in 1601, and besieged soon after by the Lord Deputy Blount. Tir-Owen the Rebel came to relieve it, but was defeated by a Detachment from the English Camp, upon which the Town surrender'd. It fell into the hands of the Rebels after the Cessation of Arms with them in K. Charles I's time, but surrender'd to Oliver in 1649. In 1690 the Rebels were also obliged to surrender it to the Duke of Marlborough, on condition of being convey'd to Limerick.

23. Bandon-Bridge, 7 m. N. W. upon the same River, is a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. It was possessed and fortified by the Irish Rebels, but obliged to surrender to Oliver.

24. Macroon, 16 m. W. of Cork, is a Market-Town, and has Barracks for Foot.

25. Enniskeen, a Market-Town, 6 m. W. of Bandon-Bridge.

26. Dunmanawan, a Market-Town, 7 m. S. W.

27. Clonekilty, a Borough near the Coast, 12 m. ½ S. W. of Kinsale.

28. Ross, 6 m. ½ S. W. of Clonekilty, upon the Coast. It was the See of a Bishop, but now united to Cork. The Harbour was very good, but is now spoiled by a Bar of Sand, and the Town reduced to a Village.

29. Skibereen, a Market-Town, 7 m. S. W. of Ross.

30. Baltimore, 6 m. S. W. of Skibereen, and 148 S. W. of Dublin. 'Tis a Borough, has a Harbour for Ships, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. It gives Title of Baron to Calvert, a Popish Family. The neighbouring Bay and Island are of the same Name; and within the Island there's a very good Harbour secure against all Winds.

W. from hence lies Downam's or Dunmanus Bay, so called from a neighbouring Village. 'Tis large, commodious, and a good Retreat for Ships in a Storm. That called Missen Head or Cape, on the E. side of it, is the most S. Point of Ireland.

31. Bantry, 10 m. N. W. of Skibereen, is a Market-Town, and gives Name to the neighbouring Bay, which is very large and commodious for Ships. It is remarkable for an Action betwixt some English and French Men of War in 1689, when the latter came with Provisions and Relief to the Rebels. The French had the greatest Loss, tho they had the Protection of the Bay, and double the number of Ships, and sailed off for fear of a second Engagement. The Mouth of this Bay is called Beerhaven, from an Island which lies in it. The whole Bay runs 20 m. into the Country, is 4 m. wide at the Mouth, and contains several Havens.

VI. The County of Waterford,

Has Cork on the W. Part of Kilkenny and Wexford on the E. Tipperary on the N. and St. George's Channel on the S. 'Tis so much indented as it admits of no regular Dimensions. The greatest Extent E. and W. is about 38 m. and S. and N. 25. 'Tis a pleasant fruitful Country, and divided into 6 Baronies. It gives Title of Earl to Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury in England, and sends 10 Memb. to Parl.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Waterford, on the River Sure, 74 m. S. W. of Dublin. 'Tis Capital of the County, the See of a Bishop, wealthy, trading, populous, and enjoys many Privileges. It sends 2 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis noted for being the Place where Richard Strongbow, Conqueror of Ireland, landed August 23. 1171. when he took this City after 2 Repulses. It was confirmed to him upon his marrying the Daughter of Dermont King of Leinster. In October 1172, Henry II. of England arrived here with an Army, when Dermont Maccarty King of Cork, and all the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland, submitted to him and his Heirs for ever. Yet in 1175 the Citizens massacred all the English that fell in their way; which was revenged on the Town by a Party that fled to Reginald's Tower. It was besiged by Oliver in December 1649; but the Weather being unseasonable, he was obliged to rise from before it: But it surrendered on honourable Terms Aug. 20. 1650. The Popish Rebels did a great deal of Mischief from hence in 1641. Both Town and Fort surrendered to King William in 1690. The Harbour is one of the best in Ireland, so that Ships of the greatest Burden come up to the City, which lies 4 m. ½ from the Mouth of the Sure, where it joins with the Nure and Barrow, and together form that called Waterford Haven, which runs 8 m. ½ up into the Country, where the foresaid Rivers join, and make a commodious Harbour every where. The Streets of the City are narrow and close, and the Situation not very wholesome, tho it lies convenient for Trade. It has Barracks for Foot.

2. Passage-Fort lies upon the Sure, 7 m. E. from the City, and was taken by Oliver's Troops, who at the same time took Duncannon, that lies on the other side the River.

3. Dungarvan lies on a Bay of its own Name, 21 m. S. W. of Waterford. 'Tis a Borough, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. and lies 92 m. S. W. of Dublin. 'Tis well fortified with a Castle, has a narrow-tide Haven, dangerous because of Rocks, and formerly gave Title of Baron to Talbot Earl of Shrewsbury, but was afterwards annexed to the Crown, because it lay commodious for reducing that Part of Munster.

4. Lismore, 11 m. N. W. of Dungarvan, was formerly a Bishop's See, but now united to Waterford. 'Tis in a decaying Condition; but still sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

5. Cappaquin lies over-against Lismore, on the E. side of Blackwater, about 2 m. E. 'Tis a Market-Town, has Barracks for Horse, and is noted for a Victory over the Popish Rebels in 1642 by the Lord Broghill, who soon after took the Castle of Ardmore, and put 140 of the Rebels to the Sword.

II. The Province of Leinster, or Lempster,

HAS those of Munster and Connaught on the W. Ulster on the N. and the Sea on the S. and E. 'Tis much indented by those other Provinces. The greatest Extent S. and N. is 133 m. and 63 E. and W. but much narrower in the S.

Before the English Conquest, this Province and Meath, now a part of it, had petty Kings of their own, whose Differences gave Henry II. of England a fair Opportunity of Conquest. The Air is clear and temperate, the Soil fruitful in Corn and Pasture, and would be more so, were the People industrious. Some Parts are woody; but the whole abounds with Flesh, Fish, Fowl, Milk, Butter, Cheese, and other Provisions. Here are many black Cattle, and of those small fine ambling Horses, called Hobbies. In short, 'tis the best inhabited Province of Ireland, being the Seat of the English Government and Pale, and most of the People are descended from the English Conquerors; but so much degenerate, that they were as treacherous, barbarous, and cruel to the Protestants in the Rebellion and Massacre of 1641, as the old Irish, made themselves Masters of the whole Province, except Dublin and Tredah, in a little time, and were as eager to throw off the English Government as any.

This Province gives Title of Duke to Meinhard Schombergh, Son to the famous Mareschal of that Name, who was created an English Peer by King William III. 'Tis divided into 12 Counties, 90 Baronies, and 926 Parishes under one Archbishop and 3 Bishops. Some compute the Boroughs that send Memb. to Parl. at 47, the Market-Towns and other Places of Trade at 63, and Seats and fortified Castles belonging to the English at 102. We begin at the N. and describe the Counties as they lie in order.

I. The County of Louth,

Has part of Ulster on the N. of West Meath on the S. of Ulster and that on the W. and the Sea on the E. 'Tis about 25 m. S. and N. where longest, and 10 where broadest E. and W. but unequal both ways. 'Twas always reckon'd part of Ulster; but Mr. Senex, in his Map, joins it to this Province; which seems to be reasonable, since 'twas part of the English Pale, all the rest of which are in Leinster. 'Tis fruitful enough in Corn and Grass, is divided into 5 Baronies, sends 10 Memb. to Parl. has 4 Boroughs, and 5 other Market-Towns.

Places of most Note are,

1. Carlingford, on a Bay of its own Name, 45 m. N. of Dublin. 'Tis a Borough, sends Memb. to Parl. has a well-frequented Market. It formerly gave Title of Earl to the Popish Family of Taff. The Bay is about 6 m. long, and 2 broad, and safe against all Winds, but not much frequented, because of dangerous Rocks at the Mouth.

2. Dundalk, on a Bay of its own Name, 7 m. S. W. of Carlingford. 'Tis the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Armagh, a Borough, and sends 2 Members to Parliament, has a good Market, and gives Title of Lord to —— Gorges. 'Twas betray'd to the Popish Rebels in 1641, but retaken by the Lord Moor and Sir Henry Tichbourn the beginning of 1642, who defeated 1500 Rebels in the Neighbourhood, and then storm'd the Town, tho it had a double Wall and Ditch, with a Morass on one side, the Sea on the other, and a strong Castle. This Loss did so enrage Sir Philemon Oneal, that he barbarously massacred many Protestants in Ulster after his Flight from hence. After the Cessation of Arms with the Rebels, it was garison'd by the Marquis of Ormond and them; but after Oliver storm'd Tredah in 1649, the Garison of Dundalk abandon'd the Place, and left their great Guns, &c. behind them. This Place is also remarkable for being strongly garison'd by the late King James II. in 1689, after burning the neighbouring Country. On Duke Schomberg's Approach with King William's Army, the Garison left the Place, and the Duke encamp'd near it for some Months, the late King James being in the Neighbourhood, with a far more numerous Army, and making a Shew of offering Battel; but the Plot of some French Papists in the Duke's Army to murder his Grace being discovered, and defeated, the late King drew off, and put his Men into Winter-Quarters, and the Duke did the like with his, having lost many of 'em by Fluxes, &c. The Town is now dismantled; and the Harbour not being safe, is little frequented.

3. Louth, 7 m. W. of Dundalk, a small Market-Town, gives Name to the County, as it did the Title of Lord to the Popish Family of Plunket, now forfeited.

4. Garland's-Town, on the Coast, 6 m. S. E. of Louth, a small Market-Town.

5. Atherdee, or Ardee, 5 m. S. W. has a Harbour for Boats, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. 'Twas seiz'd by the Popish Rebels in 1641, and a Retreat of the late K. James II. who made it part of his Winter-Quarters in 1689.

6. Dunleere, 4 m. S. E. of Ardee, a Borough, sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

7. Drogheda, or Tredagh, 7 m. S. E. of Dunleere, and 24 N. from Dublin, on the N. side of the River Boyn, and upon a Bay of its own Name. It had its Name from a Bridge over the River, was honour'd with a Mint and other Privileges by Edward II. of England, &c. has a Market, a Fair, a Harbour with a difficult Entrance, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis the chief Town of the County, and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Moor. 'Tis neat, strong, and populous. The Rebels in 1641 attacked it; but it was bravely defended by the Lord Moor and Sir Henry Tichburn. The Rebels attacked the Lord Moor's House at Millefont, in the Neighbourhood, which was gallantly defended by a small Garison, who surrendered on Terms when their Powder was spent, but were barbarously murder'd. 'Twas after the Cessation of Arms with the Rebels taken by the Duke of Ormond and Earl of Inchequin, but retaken by Oliver in 1649 after a Storm and a stout Resistance, in which above 4000 Men, found in Arms, were put to the Sword. It was garison'd by the late King James in 1689, but surrendered to King William after his Victory at the Boyn.

'Tis proper here to give an Account of the Battle which was fought a little W. of this Town. As King William made Dispositions to pass the River, and attack the Enemy, he received a Wound in the Shoulder with a Cannon-Bullet of 6 Pound: Upon which a treacherous French Papist in his Army rode over to the Enemy, and told them the King was kill'd; but it only rased the Skin. And the Wound being imme-immediately dreſſed, the King continued on horſeback 4 Hours, till the French and Iriſh were entirely routed. A Cannon-Bullet in the Heat of the Fight carried off part of his Majeſty's Boot, and broke the Leg of a Horſe that was next him. The gallant Duke Schomberg was killed in this Action, as he purſued the French thro a Village. King James fled to Dublin, and from thence to Waterford, where he embarked for France.

II. The County of Meath, or Eaſt Meath,

Has part of Ulſter on the N. Louth on the N.E. part of Dublin and the Sea on the E. Weſt Meath on the W. and Kildare on the S. 'Tis very much indented. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is about 32 m. and E. and W. 25. 'Tis rich, pleaſant, and populous, gives Title of Earl to —— Brabazon, is divided into 11 Baronies, and ſends 14 Memb. to Parl.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Kells, a Borough, 18 m. W. of Drogheda. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Viſcount to the Engliſh Earl of Cholmondley.
2. Oldcaſtle, a Market-Town, 10 m. N. W.
3. Aſhboy, 6 m. S. of Kells, a populous Market-Town and Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.
4. Navan, 7 m. S. E. of Aſhboy on the River Boyn, a Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has Barracks for Foot.
5. Duleek, 9 m. E. of Navan, a Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Baron to the Family of Bellew.
6. Trim, 5 m. S. E. of Aſhboy, on the Boyn, a Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. It has a Caſtle, and a good Trade, gave formerly Title of Lord to the Dukes of York. It was ſeized by the Rebels in 1641; but recovered by Sir Charles Coote, who routed an Army of the Rebels in 1642 that came to ſurprize him there, but was killed in the Purſuit. The Rebels took poſſeſſion of it again after the Ceſſation of Arms; but it was recovered by Oliver's Troops in 1649.
7. Skreen, 8 m. N. E. of Trim, a Market-Town, and Capital of its Lordſhip.
8. Ratoath, 12 m. S. E. of Trim, a Borough, Capital of its Lordſhip, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.
9. Rathmullian, 5 m. S. of Trim, a Market-Town.

III. The County of Weſt Meath,

Has part of Ulſter and Eaſt Meath on the N. Kings County on the S. Athlone on the W. and Longford on the N. and N.W. 'Tis very much indented. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 30 m. and E. and W. the ſame. 'Tis populous and fruitful, and divided into 11 Baronies. It gives Title of Earl to the Popiſh Family of Nugent, and ſends 10 Memb. to Parl.

Places of Note are,

1. Fore, a Borough, and Capital of its Lordſhip. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.
2. Caſtle-Pollard, 3 m. N. E. a Market-Town.
3. Delvin, a Market-Town and Caſtle, 6 m. S. E.
4. Mullengar, 11 m. S. W. the chief Town of the County, is ſtrong, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

Here are ſeveral other little Market-Towns, of which we have no Deſcription.

IV. The County of Longford,

Has part of Cavan on the N. Weſt Meath on the S. and E. and Letrim and Roſcommon on the W. 'Tis much indented. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 25 m. and E. and W. 15. 'Tis a rich pleaſant Country, divided into 6 Baronies, and ſends 10 Memb. to Parl. It gives Title of E. to the Family of Aungier. The Popiſh Rebels in 1641 committed many barbarous Maſſacres in this County, buried many Proteſtants alive, and murdered others after Promiſe of ſafe Conduct.

Places of Note are,

1. Granard, in the N. E. part of the County, on the Borders of Ulſter. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to —— Forbes, deſcended from Scotland.
2. Balnalee, or St. John's-Town, 6 m. S. W. of Granard, is a Borough.
3. Longford, Capital of the County, a Borough, with a Caſtle, Barracks for Horſe, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. The Rebels in 1641 committed barbarous Maſſacres here, and murdered the Engliſh who held out the Caſtle, but being reduced by Famine, ſurrendered on promiſe of Quarter. A Popiſh Prieſt begun the Maſſacre by ſtabbing a Miniſter as he came out of the Gariſon.
4. Edgworth, a Market-Town, 6 m. S. E. of Longford.
5. Lanesborough, 8 m. S. W. of Longford on the River Shannon, is a Market-Town, has Barracks for Foot, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Viſcount to —— Lane.

V. The County of Dublin,

Has Eaſt Meath on the W. and N. Kildare on the W. Wicklow on the S. and the Sea on the E. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 26 m. and E. and W. about 15. But 'tis much indented both ways. 'Tis fruitful in Corn and Graſs, abounds with Fiſh, tame and wild Fowl; is the moſt populous County of Ireland, and People of Quality have many Deer in their Parks; but the Woods are ſo cut down, that they uſe Turf or Seacoal for Firing. The S. Parts are ſomewhat mountainous. It ſends 12 Memb. to Parl. and is divided into 6 Baronies.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Luſh, 12 m. N. E. from Dublin, a Market-Town, where the Rebels of the Pale in 1641 iſſued a Proclamation for all the Gentry and Inhabitants thereabouts to rendevouz on pain of Death.
2. Swords, 5 m. S. W. of Luſh, and 7 N. E. of Dublin, is a Borough, Market-Town, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. Here the rebellious Nobility and Gentry of the Pale rendevouz'd in 1641, threaten'd to hang the Meſſenger ſent them by the Lords Juſtices to diſperſe, and bid their Lordſhips Defiance. From hence they ravaged the neighbouring Country, and threaten'd to attack Dublin.
3. Dublin, Lat. 53. 21. Long. W. from London 6. 41. and 7 m. S. W. from Swords. 'Tis the Capital of the Kingdom, called by Ptolomey Eblana, by others Dublinum, in Iriſh Ballaclay, i. e. a Town upon Hurdles, upon which they ſay 'twas founded. The Saxons called it Dufflin, or Divelin. It lies at the Mouth of the River Liffy, and is encompaſſed with fine Plains and Parks. The Foundation of it is aſcribed to the Danes and Norwegians. It has undergone many Viciſſitudes by Wars with the Danes and Engliſh Saxons. The Foundation of its preſent Grandeur was laid by Henry II. of England, who tranſplanted a Colony hither from Briſtol, and gave them all the Liberties of that City. After which it flouriſhed ſo much, that it was ſaid to rival London for Trade. 'Tis encompaſs'd by a ſtrong Wall of rough Stone, fortified with Ramparts towards the South, and has 6 Gates, with long Suburbs from each. It is reckon'd the largeſt and beſt built Town in the Britiſh Dominions next to London, which it very much reſembles in the manner of Building, and Names of Streets, &c. Towards the E. ſide of the City is the King's Caſtle, which is the uſual Seat of the Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governors. It was built by Archbiſhop Loundres in 1220, is defended by Ditches and Towers, but of no great Strength. It improves every day; and the City and its Boundaries are ſurveyed every third Year by the Lord Mayor and 24 Corporations. The Cathedral is very antient, and dedicated to St. Patrick, who is reckon'd the Apoſtle of Ireland. It has been built and enlarged ſeveral times by Kings, Archbiſhops, and other great Men. It has a very high Tower, and is a large ſumptuous Structure. The Chapter conſiſts of a Dean, a Chanter, a Chancellor, a Treaſurer, 2 Archdeacons, and 22 Prebendaries. Among other Monuments here, is that of Richard Strongbow Earl of Pembroke, who firſt conquered Ireland for the Engliſh.

Here's alſo an Univerſity, firſt attempted by Archbiſhop Bicknar in 1320. It was prevented by the following Wars; ſo that it owes its Foundation to Queen Elizabeth, who gave Commiſſion for erecting it March 30. 1592. The firſt Stone was laid by Thomas Smith Mayor of Dublin. Sir William Cecil, Lord High Treaſurer of England, was the firſt Chancellor; Archbiſhop Loftus of Dublin the firſt Provoſt; Lucas Challoner, William Daniel, James Fullerton, and James Hamilton the firſt Fellows; Abel Walſh, James Uſher, afterward Primate of Ireland, and James Lee the firſt Scholars; ſince which it has bred many conſiderable Men. The firſt Structure was a handſome College; and upon an Addreſs from the Iriſh Commons, the late King William III. gave 3000 l. for enlarging it, which has ſince been perform'd.

The City was antiently govern'd by a Provoſt; but Henry IV. in 1409, gave them liberty to chuſe a Mayor and 2 Bailiffs, which were afterwards changed into Sheriffs by Ed. IV. King Charles II. in 1665. allowed the Mayor to have the Title of Lord, gave 500 l. from the Crown to ſupport the Dignity, and a Collar of S S as a Badge of it, which being loſt when James II. was there, King William gave them another of near 1000 l. Value.

The other eminent Structures are, 1. The Tolſel, a handſome Pile, built at the Charge of the City in 1683, and under it Merchants have their Exchange. The Courts of Juſtice for the City are alſo kept here. 2. A Work-Houſe for the Poor, towards which the late Dutcheſs of Ormond was the chief Contributor. 3. An Hoſpital in imitation of that of Chriſt-Church in London, erected by voluntary Contributions of the Citizens in 1680, and called the Blue-Coat Hoſpital. 4. The Royal Hoſpital of Kilmainham, built at the Charge of the Army for aged and maimed Soldiers. 'Tis a ſtately, ſpacious, and commodious Structure, where about 500 Soldiers are maintained, and the Officers of the Hoſpitals have handſome Salaries, much after the manner of Chelſea Hoſpital. 5. An Arſenal, towards building of which the late E. of Wharton, when Lord Lieutenant, obtained 3 1000 l. from the Crown.

The chief Bridges here are, 1. That called Eſſex, in Honour of the late Earl, when Lord Lieutenant there. 2. Ormond and Arran Bridges, in Honour of the Duke of Ormond deceaſed, and his Son the Earl of Arran.

The chief Courts of Juſtice of the Kingdom, and the Meetings of Parliament, are alſo held in this City, which is much frequented on thoſe Occaſions by the Nobility and Gentry. Here are 13 Parochial Churches, beſides the Cathedral, and Chriſt's-Church, which is Collegiate. Their common Goal is that called Newgate.

The 24 Companies, or Corporations here, are, 1. Merchants; 2. Taylors; 3. Smiths; 4. Barber-Surgeons; 5. Bakers; 6. Butchers; 7. Carpenters; 8. Shoe-makers; 9. Sadlers; 10. Cooks; 11. Tanners; 12. Tallow-Chandlers; 13. Skinners and Glovers; 14. Weavers; 15. Sheer-Men and Dyers; 16. Goldſmiths; 17. Coopers; 18. Felt-Makers; 19. Stationers, Cutlers, and Painter-Stainers; 20. Bricklayers and Plaiſterers; 21. Curriers; 22. Hoſiers; 23. Brewers and Maltſters; 24. Joiners and Wainſcotters.

This City narrowly eſcaped being ſeized by the Rebels in 1641; their Plot for doing it, and making themſelves Maſters of the Caſtle, and murdering the Lords Juſtices, not being diſcovered till the 22d of October at Night, the next Day being deſigned for the Execution: but having failed in their Deſign upon the City, they murdered many hundreds of Proteſtants in the County, and not a few of them after promiſe of ſafe Conduct, as appears by Sir John Temple's Hiſtory, who has exhibited many Affidavits relating to the Maſſacre as they were placed in the publick Records. The Rebels advanced from Swords to attack the City; and at Clontarf, a Village on the Harbour, they ſeiz'd and plunder'd a Ship, deſign'd to make themſelves Maſters of the reſt, and to have blocked up the Haven: But Sir Charles Coote marched out of the City againſt them, recovered part of the Booty, and pillag'd and ſet fire to the Town, that it might not be a further Shelter to the Rebels, part of whom he ſurpriz'd, and cut off ſome of the Murderers at Santry. The City was by this means preſerved for a time, tho very much ſtraiten'd: But after the Ceſſation of Arms, it was like to have been loſt; for the Rebels having broke their Articles with the Duke of Ormond, advanced to beſiege it, and the Duke not being able to defend it, he ſurrendered it to Colonel Jones for the Parliament, and came over to the King, who was then in the Power of the Parliament's Army. The Rebels being alarmed at the News of the Parliament's liament's sending an Army to reduce them, they desired the Duke to be sent back, and promised absolute Submission to the King, and to obey the Duke as his Lieutenant in 1648. The Duke accordingly went, but Col. Jones still kept possession of the City, and the Rebels made new Attempts to take it; but upon the landing of the Parliament's Troops in 1649, Col. Jones marched out, defeated the Rebels in their new raised Works; and marching on, did also attack and defeat the Duke of Ormond at Rathmines, where he lay encamped with 19000 Men about a m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. from the City, killed 4000, and took near 3000, with many of Quality, among whom was the Duke's Brother. He took also their Guns, Ammunition, and Provision, with their Camp full of rich Spoil. This City was also in great danger bythe late K. James and his French and Irish Troops in 1690, when the Protestant Inhabitants dreaded a Massacre every day, and were not freed from their Apprehensions till after K. William's Victory at the Boyne: in remembrance of which, and of their Glorious Deliverer, they did in 1701 erect his Statue on Horseback in Brass on the College-Green, with this Inscription on the Marble Pedestal.

GULIELMO Tertio
Magnæ Britanniæ, Franciæ, & Hiberniæ Regi,
Ob Religionem conservatam,
Restitutas Leges,
Libertatem assertam,
Cives Dublinenses hanc Statuam posuere.

That is,

To the Honour of WILLIAM III.
Of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King,
For Preserving our Religion,
Restoring our Laws,
And Asserting our Liberty,
The Citizens of Dublin erected this Statue.

It was begun in 1700, finished in 1701, and opened with great Solemnity the first of July that Year, being the Anniversary of the Victory at the Boyne in 1690.

The Haven of this City has a Bar at the Mouth, upon which at High-flood and Spring-Tide, there is 15 and 18 Foot of Water, and at Ebb and Neap Tide but 6. With an ordinary Tide a Ship that draws 5 Foot of Water can't come up to the Key; but with a Spring-Tide Ships that draw 7 or 8 Foot may come to it: Those that draw more can come no nearer than Ringsend, within a m. of the City, and about 3 from the Bar. At Ebb the Haven falls dry, as well below Ringsend as above it, so as one may go round the Ships at Anchor on foot, except at 2 Creeks, one on the N. and the other on the S. side, where Ships at low Water ride in 9 or 10 Foot deep. Besides these Inconveniences, the Ships have scarce any shelter from Winds, either by Land or Sea, especially from S. W. whence Storms frequently drive 'em from their Anchors out to Sea.

4. Newcastle, 8. m. S. W. of Dublin, is a Borough, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Baron to the Right Honourable John Barrington, Lord Viscount Ardglass.

5. Rathcoot, a Market-Town $\frac{1}{2}$ a m. S. E. of Newcastle.

II. The County of Kildare, formerly called Offaly,

Has Eastmeath on the N. Catherlagh on the S. King's and Queen's-Counties on the W. and Dublin and Wicklow on the E. The greatest Extent from S. to N. is 37 m. and from E. to W. about 23, but both are very unequal, because it runs in a narrow Slip betwixt Dublin and Wicklow, and the like betwixt Queen's-County and Wicklow. 'Tis an open, pleasant, plentiful Country, abounds with Corn and Pasturage, and is well water'd. 'Tis divided into 8 Baronies, gives Title of first Earl of the Kingdom to the Family of Fitzgerald, who is of the ancient Giraldine English Race that helped to conquer Ireland; and sends 10 Memb. to Parl.

Places of Note are,

1. Kildare, the Capital, 25 m. S. W. of Dublin. 'Tis a Bishop's See, under the Archbishop of Dublin, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. Near it there's a Plain called the Curragh, large enough for a Camp of 10000 Men.

2. Naas, 9 m. N. E. of Kildare, is a Borough, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a good Trade, and is the Shire-Town. In the Neighbourhood there's a stately Seat named Sigginstown, built by the Earl of Strafford or himself when he was Lord Lieutenant.

3. Harristown, 4 m. S. from Naas, is a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

4. Kilculen, 3 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. of Harristown, has a Market.

5. Atoy, 10 m. S. of Kildare, is a Borough on the River Barrow, and has Barracks for Foot. This Town was assaulted by the Popish Rebels in 1643, and most of it burnt.

6. Kilrush, 4 m. N. E. of Athy, was burnt by the Duke of Ormond's Army in 1643, together with the Castle belonging to Col. Fitzgerald, one of the Popish Rebels. 'Tis also noted for a Defeat of an Army of the Rebels by the Duke of Ormond in 1642, when he took several of the chief Popish Lords that headed them.

7. Castle-Dermot, a Market-Town, 8 m. S. E. of Athy.

III. KING's-COUNTY.

Has Westmeath on the N. Queen's-County and Part of Tipperary on the S. Kildare on the E. and Part of the County of Galway and Tipperary on the W. The greatest Extent S. and N. is 37 m. and E. and W. 28; but 'tis very unequal both ways, and runs with a narrow Slip betwixt Tipperary and Queen's-County. 'Tis divided into 11 Baronies, and sends 6 Memb. to Parl. This County suffered much during the Rebellion of 1641, when many of the People were barbarously massacred by the Papists.

Places of most Note are,

1. Philipstown, or Kingstown, 15 m. N. W. of Kildare. 'Tis Capital of the County, gives Title of Baron to the Family of King, is a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Clanbullock, 5 m E. of Philipstown, has a Market.

3. Banahir, on the E. side of the Shannon, 24 m. S. W. of Philipstown, is a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

4. Tullimoor, a Market-Town, 6 m. S. W. of Philipstown.

5. Killeigh, a Market-Town, 4 m. S. E. of Tullimoor.

6. Ballybay, a Market-Town, 9 m. S. W. of Killeigh.

7. Shinroan, a Market-Town, 14 m. S. of Ballybay.

IV. QUEEN's-COUNTY,

Has King's-County on the N. and W. Part of Tipperary on the W. Part of Kildare and Catherlagh, on the E. and Kilkenny and Part of Catherlagh on the S. The greatest Extent S. and N. is 26 m. and E. and W. 25, but unequal both ways. It is full of Woods and Bogs, and divided into 7 Baronies, and sends 8 Memb. to Parl. Some hundreds of Protestants were cruelly massacred here by the Rebels in 1641.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Port-Arlington, in the N. Parts, 9 m. W. of Kildare. 'Tis a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Mountmelick, a Market-Town, 6 m. S. E.

3. Maryborough, or Queenstown, 9 m. S. of Port-Arlington, is a Market-Town and Borough, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Viscount to Lord Molineux, a Papist.

4. Stradbally, a Market-Town, 5 m. S. E. of Maryborough.

5. Mountrath, 6 m. W. of Maryborough, is a small Market-Town, and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Coote.

6. Grange, a Market-Town, 6 m. S. W.

7. Ballyroan, a Market-Town, 5 m. S. of Maryborough.

8. Ballynekill, a Borough, 5 m. S. of Ballyroan, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. It has a Castle which held out bravely against the Rebels in 1642, till it was relieved.

9. Rathdowny, a Market-Town, 8 m. S. E. of Ballynekill.

10. Durrow, a Market-Town, 5 m. E.

V. The County of Wicklow,

Has Part of Kildare and Dublin on the N. Kildare and Part of Catherlagh on the W. the Sea on the E. and Wexford on the S. The greatest Extent S. and N. is 34 m. and E. and W. 25, but very unequal both ways. 'Tis pretty fruitful, divided into 6 Baronies, and sends 10 Memb. to Parl. and is so much improved by the English, that 'tis inferior to few Counties in Ireland. It suffered much by the Massacre in 1641.

Places of most Note are,

1. Blessington, 14 m. S. W. of Dublin; 'tis a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl. It gives Title of Viscount to Lord Boyle. Here are 3 Castles on the River Liffy, 2 m. N. E. of it.

2. Dulavan, a little Market-Town, 10 m. S. W.

3. Wicklow, on the Coast, 25 m. S. E. of Dublin, gives Name to the County, of which 'tis Capital, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. has Barracks for Foot, and gives Title of Baron to Lord Maynard. It has a Harbour for Ships, but 'tis not above 10 Foot at high Water.

4. Baltinglass, 20 m. S. W. is a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

5. Macridina, or Cary's Fort, 11 m. S. E. of Baltinglass, is a Borough, and sends 2 Memb. to Parl.

6. Aghrim, a small Market-Town, 2 m. S. of Cary's Fort.

7. Tinnenaly, a small Market-Town, 4 m. S. E. of Aghrim.

8. Clonegall, a Market-Town, 7 m. S. W. of Tinnenaly.

9. Carnew, a Market-Town, 5 m. E. of Clonegall.

10. Newcastle.

VI. The County of Catherlagh,

Has Part of Kildare and Wicklow on the N. Wexford on the S. Part of Queen's-County, and Kilkenny on the W. and Part of Wicklow and Wexford on the E. The greatest Extent S. and N. is about 26 m. and E. and W. 17, but very unequal both ways. It runs in with a narrow Slip betwixt Kilkenny and Wexford. 'Tis pretty fruitful, woody, divided into 5 Baronies, sends 6 Memb. to Parl. and suffered much by the Massacre of 1641. It belonged formerly to the Dukes of Norfolk, but was annexed to the Crown in Henry VIIIth's time.

Places of Note are,

1. Catherlagh, the County-Town, on the River Barrow, 10 m. S. E. of Baltinglass, and 38 from Dublin. 'Tis a Borough, has a Castle and Barracks for Horse, sends 2 Memb. to Parl. and formerly gave Title of Viscount to the Family of Ogle.

2. Hackets-Town, 11 m. E. has a Market.

3. Tullogh, 6 m. S. E. of Catherlagh, is a Market Town, and has Barracks for Horse. It surrender'd to the Rebels in 1641, on promise of Quarter, but the Garison and People were cruelly murdered.

4. Old-Laughlin, 7 m. S. E. of Catherlagh, a Borough, sends 2 Memb. to Parliament. 'Twas once a Bishop's See, but now united to that of Wexford.

5. Laughlin-Bridge, 2 m. E. a Market-Town, where many Protestants were massacred in 1641, and thrown into the River Barrow.

VII. The County of Kilkenny,

Has Queen's-County on the N. Waterford on the S. Tipperary and Part of Waterford on the W. and Catherlagh and Part of Wexford on the E. The greatest Extent S. and N. is 40 m. and E. and W. 20, but unequal both ways. 'Tis a pleasant and fruitful Country, well inhabited, but in the S. Parts mountainous. It is divided into 11 Baronies, and sends 16 Memb. to Parl. It suffered extremely by the Massacre in 1641, and and is more beautified with Towns and Caſtles than any County in the Kingdom.

Places of chief Note are,

1. Kilkenny, the Capital, on the R. Nure, 10 m. E. of Old-Laughlin, and 54 S.W. of Dublin. 'Tis the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Dublin, neat, large, ſtrong, populous, and is reckoned to be the richeſt and moſt trading Inland Town in the Kingdom. 'Tis divided into the Engliſh and Iriſh Towns. In the Iriſh Town lies the Cathedral; but the Biſhop has alſo the Title of Oſſory, from a Lordſhip in this County, which gives Title of Earl to a Branch of the Family of Ormond. The Engliſh or New Town is the chief, and the other but a Suburb. Here's a Caſtle named Butler, that was the chief Reſidence of the Family of Ormond. This City has ſuffer'd much; for many of the Inhabitants were maſſacred by the Rebels in 1641. They made it their chief Seat, and fixed a ſupreme Council here under the Pope's Nuncio, with a Deſign to ſhake off the Engliſh Government. It had a very ſtrong Gariſon of Rebels in 1649, when it was taken by Cromwel upon Terms, after a very bold Attack, and a deſperate Defence under the Governour Sir Walter Butler. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has Barracks for Foot.

2. Gauran, 7 m. S. E. is a Borough that ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gave Title of Baron to the late Ld Cutts. 'Tis a populous Town, has a ſtrong Caſtle, which was taken by Oliver in 1649. The Duke of Ormond's own Regiment was in Gariſon under Command of Col. Hamilton, a Kentiſh Man; who being too late in beating a Parley, he himſelf and all the Commiſſion Officers but one were ſhot to Death, and a Popiſh Prieſt their Chaplain hanged.

3. Callen, 9 m. S. W. of Kilkenny, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has Barracks for Foot. It gives Title of Viſcount to the Family of Cokayne.

4. Thomas-Town, 8 m. E. is a Borough that ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

5. Knocktopher, 4 m. S. W. of the latter, is a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

6. Enniſteague, on the W. of the Nure, 4 m. S. E. of Thomas-Town. 'Tis a little Borough, and was walled in 1649, when taken by Part of Cromwel's Troops.

VII. The County of Wexford,

Has Wicklow on the N. the Sea on the S. Part of Catherlagh and Kilkenny on the W. and the Sea on the E. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is about 38 m. and E. and W. 23. but 'tis unequal both ways It abounds with Corn and Graſs, is divided into 8 Baronies, ſends 18 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to the Talbots Earls of Shrewsbury. It ſuffered much, and had many Proteſtants murder'd by the Papiſts in 1641.

Places of Note are,

1. Gory, or Newborough, in the N. E. Part of the County, 20 m. S. W. of Wicklow. 'Tis a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb to Parl.

2. Ferns, 3 m. S. W. of Clamoulin, on the River Ban. 'Twas formerly a Biſhop's See, but now united with Laughlin to that of Wexford.

3. Enniſcorthy, at the Conflux of the Urrin and Slane, a Borough 14 m. S. W. of Newborough.

4. Roſs, 15 m. S. W. on the E. ſide of the Barrow. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has Barracks for Horſe. It was very ſtrong, and held out by the Rebels, after murdering a great many Proteſtants in the neighbourhood, againſt the Marquiſs of Ormond in 1643, tho he defeated an Army of the Rebels near it. After the Ceſſation of Arms with the Rebels, he put a ſtrong Gariſon of them and his own Men into it; but Oliver forced it to ſurrender in 1649, when part of the Gariſon joined him, and the reſt had leave to march to Kilkenny.

5. Wexford, at the Mouth of the Slane, 16 m. S. E. of Roſs, a Market-Town and Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. It was the firſt Colony of the Engliſh, who took poſſeſſion of it in 1170, and in thoſe Days was reckoned the chief Town in Ireland. 'Tis ſtill a fine large Place, with Barracks for Foot, and a commodious Harbour, with 3 or 4 Fathom Water under the Caſtle, near the S. E. end of the Town, where the Ships come to an Anchor. There are 2 or 3 Sand-Banks juſt before the Haven, which ſerve as Bars to it; but then there are ſuch Shallows within them, that all Veſſels bound hither which draw more than 10 Foot Water, are obliged to lade and unlade in a Creek near the Mouth of the Haven on the S. ſide, 3 m. from the Town, where there's Water enough, but no Shelter from the S. W. Winds, which come to this Place over Land. Oliver took this City and Caſtle by Storm in 1649, and put all in Arms to the Sword.

6. Tagmon, 6 m. W. of Wexford, a Market-Town, and Borough which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

7. Clammer, 6 m. N. W. another Market-Town and Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

8. Bannoe, 4 m. S. on the Bay of Ballyheig, which is alſo a Market-Town and Borough that ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

9. Duncannon, 5 m. W. Here's a conſiderable Caſtle, with Barracks for Foot, that commands Ships which go either to the Harbour of Waterford, or the Borough of Roſs.

10. Feathard, 3 m. S. of Duncannon, on the ſide of a Bay, has a Harbour for Ships, is a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. It was ſurrender'd to Oliver in 1649.

III. The Province of Connaught,

HAS the Sea and Part of Ulſter on the N. Munſter and Galway Bay on the S. and Part of Ulſter, Leinſter, and Munſter on the E. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 100 m. and E. and W. 81, but 'tis unequal both ways, being much indented by the Sea and other Provinces. It has many convenient Bays and Creeks for Navigation. In ſome Places it abounds with Corn and Graſs, in others 'tis full of Woods and Bogs, which make the Air unwholeſome, and there are but few Parts of it well cultivated, ſo that 'tis reckoned the worſt of the 4 Provinces. It has 1 Archbiſhoprick, 5 Biſhopricks, 27 Boroughs and Market-Towns, 24 old Caſtles, beſides Fortreſſes of a later Erection, and contains 366 Pariſhes. It was formerly a Kingdom by itſelf, but reduced in the time of Hen. II. yet afterwards ſo neglected that the Natives proved very troubleſom to the Engliſh. 'Tis divided into 5 Counties, which are ſubdivided into 51 Baronies. We begin at the N.

I. The County of Mayo,

Has the Sea on the N. and W. Slego and Roſcommon on the E. Galway on the S. E. and S. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 45 m. and the greateſt E. and W. 55, but very unequal both ways, being much indented by the Sea and neighbouring Counties. 'Tis fruitful, pleaſant, and abounds with black Cattle, Sheep, Deer, Honey, Hawks; is divided into 9 Baronies, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. In the N. W. Corner there's a ſort of Peninſula joined to the main Land by a narrow Iſthmus; on the N. ſide of which lies that called Broadhaven, which is a Bay with a good Harbour; and on the S. ſide lies that called Blackſod Harbour. In this Peninſula there are 2 ſmall Barracks. About 7 m. S. croſs the Bay, lie the 2 Iſlands of Achill, with a Sound betwixt them, and ſeveral good Harbours, ſafe againſt all Winds, but not frequented, except when Ships are forced in by a Tempeſt. There's a good Salmon-Fiſhery in a River which falls into the Bay N. of thoſe Iſlands.

Places of Note are,

1. Killala, upon a Bay in the N. E. Corner of the County, 59 m. N. of Galway. It was formerly called Lade, and is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Tuam.

2. Moyn, or Mayo, reckoned the County-Town, is a m. S. E. of Killala, was once the See of a Biſhop, and had a famous Monaſtery, but is now decayed. It gives Title of Viſcount to the Family of Bourk. Abundance of Proteſtants were barbarouſly maſſacred here and in other Places of the County during the Rebellion of 1641.

3. Caſtlebar, 22 m. S. of Killala, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has Barracks for Foot.

4. Ballinroal, a Borough, 15 m. S. E. of Caſtlebar.

Weſt from hence is Lough-Mask, 11 m. long, and 5 where broadeſt. It abounds with Fiſh, and has 2 Iſlands, upon which were Caſtles belonging to the Family of Bourk. In the neighbourhood live thoſe People called Gall glaſſes, deſcended from the Scots of the Weſtern Iſles. They fought in Armour with two-edged Battle-Axes. The other Inhabitants of this County were for moſt of the ſame Origin, or antient Iriſh mixed with a few Engliſh.

In the Lordſhip of Tirawley, near Killala, which gives Title of Baron to —— O Hara, the Iriſh drove 40 Engliſh, who had turned Papiſts, into the Sea, with their Wives and Children, ſaying, 'Twas beſt for them to die while they were in a good Mind.

II. The County of Slego,

Has Mayo on the W. the Sea on the N. Letrim on the E. and part of Mayo and Roſcommon on the S. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 35 m. and E. and W. 33, but very unequal both ways, and runs out in a Point to the N. as far as Donnegal Bay. It abounds with Paſturage and Cattle, is divided into 6 Baronies, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. It ſuffered much by the Popiſh Maſſacre in 1641.

The only Place of Note here is,

Slego, the County-Town, on a Bay 25 m. N. E. of Killala. It has Barracks for Foot, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a little Harbour where Ships of 200 Tun may ride, and gives Title of Viſcount to the Family of Scudamoor. 40 Engliſh and Scots were in 1641 locked up here in a Cellar, where they were all murdered in one Night by a Butcher; and many others were barbarouſly murdered by Popiſh Soldiers, on pretence of conducting them to Places of Safety; and in this Town they forced a young Man to kill his Father, and hanged him when he had done. In 1689 a Body of Inniskillingers defeated a much greater number of Iriſh Rebels, conſiſting of 5000 of the late K. James's Troops, as they came to attack this Town, killed 800, and took 4 of their Colonels, with 15 Captains and 200 Men. The Rebels took it in 1690, but with very great Loſs, and allowed the People, whoſe Ammunition was ſpent, to march out upon Articles. In 1691 'twas recovered by a Detachment of General Ginkle's Army under Command of the Lord Grenard. Here is a ſtrong Caſtle.

III. The County of Letrim,

Has Slego and part of Roſcommon on the W. Donnegal Bay on the N. Longford on the S. and the Counties of Fermanagh and Cavan on the E. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 44 m. and E. and W. about 16, but much narrower in the middle, and indented both ways It abounds with Paſture and multitudes of Cattle, is divided into 5 Baronies, and ſends 6 Memb. to Parl. It was chiefly poſſeſſed by the O Rorks, till they were forfeited for their Rebellion in Qu. Elizabeth's time.

Places of Note are,

1. Letrim, 22 m. S. E. from Slego, formerly the County-Town, but now decayed, and noted only for giving Title of Baron to Ld Sherard.

2. Carrick-Drumruſk, 3 m. S. of Letrim, a Borough with Barracks for Foot.

3. James-Town, 3 m. S. E. of Carrick, is likewiſe a Borough with Barracks for Foot.

IV. Roſcommond County,

Has Mayo and part of Galway on the W. Slego on the N. Letrim, Longford, Weſt Meath, and part of Kings County on the E. and part of Galway on the S. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 52 m. and E. and W. 25. but the Breadth is very unequal, being much contracted both on the S. and N.

'Tis a plain Country, abounds with Corn, Graſs, and great Herds of Cattle, is divided into 6 Baronies, and ſends 8 Memb. to Parl. The Popiſh Rebels in 1641 maſſacred many Proteſtants here, put Fire into ſome of their Mouths, and then ripped up their Bellies.

Places of Note are,

1. Abbey-Boyl, in the N. part, 7 m. N. W. from Carrick. 'Tis a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Tulsk, 13 m. S. is a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

3. Elphin, 5 m. N. E. of Tulsk, the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Tuam.

4. Roſcommon, the County Town, 10 m. S. E. of Tulsk, is a Borough, that ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has Barracks for Horſe, and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Dillon.

5. Athlone, on both ſides the River Shannon, 14 m. S. E. of Roſcommon, is by ſome placed in this County, and by others in that of Weſt Meath; but the Barony lies in this County. 'Tis a ſtrong Town, was reckoned the Key of Connaught, is divided into 2 Parts by the River; that on the E. ſide called the Engliſh, and that on the W. the Iriſh Town. It has a handſom Caſtle, built by Order of Queen Elizabeth, and was the Seat of her Viceroy while employed againſt the Rebels of Connaught. Here's a beautiful Bridge of hewn Stone over the River. This City is the See of a Biſhop, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. King William's Troops attack'd it in 1690 without Succeſs; but in 1691 they took it, after an obſtinate Defence, and put all that made Reſiſtance to the Sword, kill'd above 1000 Iriſh, and took 300, among whom was Major-General Maxwell. This was chiefly owing to the Valour and Conduct of General Ginkle, General Mackay, &c. and the former, who commanded in chief, was thereupon honoured by King William III. with the Title of Earl of Athlone.

V. Galway County,

Has Mayo and Roſcommon on the N. the Sea on the W. Galway Bay, Clare, and Tipperary on the S. and part of Roſcommon, Kings County, and Tipperary on the E. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 48 m. and E. and W. 64. but very unequal both ways. The W. ſide runs out into a ſort of Peninſula. The County in general abounds with Corn, Paſture and Cattle, and the S. and E. Parts are beſt inhabited. 'Tis divided into 17 Baronies, and ſends 8 Memb. to Parliament. Abundance of Proteſtants were murder'd here during the Maſſacre of 1641.

Places of Note are,

1. Tuam, 16 m. N. E of Galway. 'Tis the See of an Archbiſhop, who has 3 Suffragans. 'Twas once a famous City, but now much decayed. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Viſcount to the Family of Wenman.

2. Athenree, 10 m. E. of Galway, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has Barracks for Foot. It is a large walled Town, but ill inhabited, and gives Title of Baron to Lord Bermingham.

3. Galway, in an Iſland on the Bay of its own Name, 10 m. W. of Athenree, and 93 S. W. from Dublin. It is ſtrong, neat, and rich, and reckoned the third, and according to ſome the ſecond Town in Ireland. The Houſes are built of Stone, in form of Towers. It lies well for Trade, and has the greateſt Commerce of any Town, next to Dublin. At the Rebellion of 1641, the City would neither admit the Iriſh nor Engliſh into it, till the Rebels becoming Maſters of the neighbouring Country, the Citizens joined them; and after the Ceſſation of Arms, ſubmitted to the Duke of Ormond as the King's Deputy; but in 1651, 'twas forced to ſurrender to Major-General Ireton and Sir Charles Coote. 'Twas afterwards viſited by a Plague, which in 18 Months ſwept off 12000 of the Inhabitants. It held out for the late King James in 1690, and admitted the French Troops after ſome Difficulty: Upon which Lauzune, the French General, put to death ſome who had oppoſed his Entrance. It was reinforced by Tyrconnel in 1691; but in Auguſt that Year, was forced to ſurrender to General Ginkle on Terms. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to Hen. de Maſſue Marquiſs of Ruvigny in France, who was firſt made Viſcount, and then Earl, by King William. It was ſubject in Spirituals to a Warden, who conteſted the Archbiſhop of Tuam's Juriſdiction, and pleaded that it was a Peculiar. It is the beſt Harbour in the Province, the Bay running above 30 m. up the Country, and being ſheltered at its Mouth by the Iſles of Arran, thro which there are 3 Paſſages for Ships, beſides the N. Paſſage at the Mouth of the Bay; but the moſt common is that called the N. Paſſage betwixt the S. Iſland of Arran and other Iſlands on the N. ſide, which has ſo many Sands and Rocks, that 'tis not ſafe to approach the N. Shore. At the Mouth of the Haven there's a ſmall Iſland, called Mutton, at the E. ſide of which Ships may anchor in 5 or 6 Fathom Water; but only ſmall Veſſels can go up to the Town. On the N. ſide of it lies Lough Orrib, or Corbes, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Bay, a little above the City. This Lake is 18 m. long, but of different Breadths, the greateſt from S. to N. being 5 m. 'Tis navigable, contains many Iſlands covered with Graſs and Pines.

4. Aghrim, 25 m. E. of Galway. It is a Caſtle and Village, noted for a great Victory over the Iriſh and French by General Ginkle in 1691, when the French General, St. Ruth, with 7000 Men, were killed, and about 650 taken, with all their Tents, Baggage, Cannon, Arms, Ammunition, 12 Standards, and 32 Colours.

5. Clonfert, 10 m. S. E. of Aghrim, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Tuam, but otherwiſe a poor Village.

IV. The Province of Ulſter,

HAS the Deucaledon Sea on the N. and E. the W. Ocean and part of Connaught on the W. the Iriſh Sea, with the County of Louth on the E. and the Province of Leinſter on the S. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 100 m. and E. and W. 112; but 'tis unequal both ways, being much indented by the Sea and the neighbouring Provinces. The Air is healthful and temperate, being cooled by various Winds in Summer, and qualified by moderate, Rains in Winter. 'Twas formerly a Kingdom of it ſelf, and was ſcarce ever entirely reduced by the Engliſh, till after the Acceſſion of James I. to the Crown of England. It has many great Lakes and Rivers, that abound with Salmon and other Fiſh. Here are many thick Woods, ſtore of Corn and Graſs, and Multitudes of Sheep and black Cattle. 'Tis divided into 9 Counties, has one Archbiſhoprick, 6 Biſhopricks, 58 Market-Towns and Boroughs, 214 Pariſhes, and 30 Caſtles, beſides fortified Towns. It formerly gave Title of E. to the Duke of York. This Province ſuffered much by Tir Owen's Rebellion, which having deſtroyed many of the Inhabitants, King James I. encouraged the Engliſh and Scots to ſend Colonies thither. 'Twas the firſt and principal Scene of the Bloody Rebellion and Maſſacre by the Papiſts in 1641, moſt of the Towns, Forts, Caſtles, and Gentlemens Houſes, being ſurprized by the Popiſh Rebels under Sir Phelim Oneal, &c. or delivered to them by Treachery. This Province was then in a flouriſhing Condition; and the Engliſh having married and intermixed with the Iriſh, lived among them in all Security, which was the main Cauſe of their ſudden Deſtruction. The Curious may find many Particulars of this barbarous Maſſacre in Sir John Temple's Hiſtory of the Iriſh Rebellion, and in Ruſhworth, Part 3. Vol. 2. particularly Page 788. where it appears upon Affidavit that above 152000 Proteſtants were murdered in this Province in the firſt 4 Months of the Rebellion; and that during the firſt 3 Months an Account was taken by the Popiſh Prieſts, thereunto directed by ſome of the chief Rebels, of 104700 Proteſtants cut off here.

I. The County of Donnegal, or Tyrconnel,

Has the Sea on the N. and W. the Bay of Donnegal and the County of Fermanagh on the S. and the Counties of London-Derry, Tyrone, and part of Fermanagh on the E. The greateſt Extent S. E. and N. W. is 64 m. and E. and W. 31. but unequal both ways. This County had its Share of the Maſſacre in 1641. 'Tis for the moſt part plain and fruitful, abounds with Harbours, is divided into 5 Baronies, and ſends 12 Memb. to Parl.

Places of Note are,

1. Letterkenny, a Market-Town, near the S. end of Lough Swilly. This Lough is ſalt Water, runs above 20 m. S. into the Country, is about 5 m. broad at the Mouth, has an Iſland called Inch, and abounds with Fiſh. There are many Villages and Gentlemens Seats on the Banks of this Lake, which makes a very good Harbour. 9 m. W. from it, on the ſame Coaſt, lies Sheep Haven, which is a Bay of the Sea, and a very good Harbour.

2. St. John's-Town, on the River Foyl, 9 m. E. of Letterkenny, and 5 S. W. from London-Derry, is a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

3. Rapho, 5 m. S. W. of St. John's-Town, is the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Armagh, has a ſtately Caſtle, which is the Biſhop's Seat, and a handſom Free-School.

4. Lifford, on the Foyl, 4 m. S. E. of Rapho, a Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Baron to Lord Fitzwilliams.

5. Donnegal, which gives Name to the County, is 23 m. S. W. of Lifford, on the E. ſide of Donnegal Bay, is a Borough, that ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to the Engliſh Family of Chicheſter. It has a large wide Haven, but at the Entrance are dangerous Shelves and Rocks, ſo that it requires a Pilot.

Lough Dirgh, 6 m. E. from hence, is noted for an Iſland, where the Papiſts fancied St. Patrick had his Purgatory; and that if any enter'd the ſame, and ſtaid the appointed Time, they would certainly ſuffer, and ſee very ſtrange and terrible Things. The Legendaries gave out, that St. Patrick obtained it of God by his Prayers, to convince Unbelievers of the Immortality of the Soul, and of future Torments. This Fable was deviſed ſome Ages after St. Patrick's Death; and the Cheat was managed by ſome Friars, who lived in the Iſland, and made the deluded Pilgrims believe many idle Stories. They firſt prepared them by exceſſive Faſting and Watching, telling them of ſtrange Apparitions: After which they put them into the Cave, which they had made on purpoſe, and incloſed ſo as to make it dark enough; and leaving them there for ſome Hours, they grew in a Maze, and when brought out, would tell ſtrange Stories of what they had ſeen and ſuffered.

The Cheat was never fully diſcovered till the latter end of James I's Reign, when Richard Boyle Earl of Cork, and Adam Loftus Viſcount of Ely and Lord Chancellor, being Lords Juſtices of Ireland, ſent ſome Perſons of Quality to view the Place, and enquire exactly into the Matter. Theſe Gentlemen found that this pretended Entrance to Purgatory was only a little Cell hewed out of the rocky Ground, without any Holes, and ſo ſhallow, that a tall Man could but juſt ſtand upright in it; and it was not capable of containing above 6 or 8 Perſons. When the Door was ſhut, it was perfectly dark; ſo that the Pilgrims who were perſwaded to go into it, being prepared as above mentioned, had their Heads perfectly turn'd. Upon this Diſcovery, the Lords Juſtices ordered the Friars Houſes to be demoliſhed, commanded them to quit the Iſland, and the Cell to be broke open and expoſed to the Air, as it has been ever ſince; which put a final end to the Deluſion.

6. Killybeggs, on a Bay of its own Name, 12 m. W. of Donnegal, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has a Harbour for ſmall Veſſels.

7. Ballyſhannon, 9 m. S. W. of Donnegal, upon a River which runs out of Lough Ern into Donnegal Bay. It has Barracks for Foot, and a Harbour, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Baron to the Folliots.

II. The County of London-Derry,

Has Donnegal on the W. the Sea on the N. Antrim on the E. and Tyrone on the S. The greateſt Extent S. E. and N. W. is 34 m. and E. and W. 26. but unequal both ways. 'Tis a champaign and fruitful Country, divided into 5 Baronies, and ſends 8 Memb. to Parl.

This

This County had its Share of Proteſtant Blood-ſhed in the Maſſacre of 1641, when the Rebels poſſeſſed all the County, except London-Derry.

Places of Note are,

1. Newtown Limnevadde, 10 m. S. W. of Colrain, upon the Roe, which falls into Lough Foyl, is a Borough, has a Harbour, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

2. Garvagh, a Market-Town, 9 m. S. E. of the former. The Rebels murdered 600 Proteſtants here in 1641.

3. London-Derry, or Derry, Capital of the County, lies on the W. ſide of the River Foyl, 5 m. S. W. from the Lake of that Name. 'Tis ſmall but neat, is the See of a Biſhop Suffragan of Armagh, gives Title of Earl to ——Ridgeway, and has a conſiderable Trade. The Engliſh and Scots held it out bravely againſt the Rebels in 1641, ſo as they could not take it by Fraud or Force. It was reduced almoſt to Extremity by Famine in 1649, and beſieged by the Lord Ardes in the King's Name, after the Duke of Ormond had made a Ceſſation of Arms with the Rebels, and became their General; which was reckoned ſo diſhonourable, that even Owen Roe-Oneal, an Iriſh Papiſt, joined with the Troops ſent from England, and relieved the Town. As its holding out then was of the greateſt Importance to the Britiſh and Proteſtant Intereſt, the brave Defence that it made againſt the late King James II's French and Iriſh Troops, from the 7th of December 1688, to the laſt of July, 1689, was of no leſs Service to the ſame Intereſts. The holding out of ſo long a Siege was ſo much the more remarkable, becauſe it was neither well fortified, nor had any Gariſon or Stores of Proviſion or Ammunition; nor did the Townſmen think of making any Defence, till prompted to it by David Cairns Eſq; a Counſellor at Law, a Gentleman of Scots Parentage, who had a good Eſtate in the Town, adviſed them to ſhut their Gates, upon the Approach of an Iriſh Regiment that came by the late King James's Order to take Poſſeſſion of the Town. The Engliſh and Scots Inhabitants being encouraged by ſome of their Brethren, who fled hither for Protection, made one of the braveſt Defences that is to be met with in Hiſtory, tho Relief was ſo long a coming to them from England, that many of 'em died of Want, beſides what were killed in the Defence of the Town, and making Sallies, wherein they were very ſucceſsful, and chiefly under the Conduct of Colonel Murray, of Scots Parentage, who in a Salley kill'd a French General-Officer, call'd Mamon, before the Walls. The People were reduc'd to the utmoſt Extremity by Famine, when Major-General Kirk, who had lain a great while in Lough Foyl without doing any thing for Relief of the Town, was obliged by the Orders which the ſaid David Cairns Eſq; had procur'd from Court, to ſend 2 Ships with Proviſions, which broke the Enemy's Boom laid a-croſs the River, and notwithſtanding the Fire of the Enemy's Cannon from ſeveral Forts, got up to the Town; and in 2 Days after the Enemy broke up the Siege, and marched off. This City belongs to London, the Corporations of which had it granted to them as a Colony in 1612 by King James I. and then built the City. The Streets are broad and well paved, the Houſes handſome, and for the moſt part of Free-ſtone. The Market-Place is ſpacious; and King William III. built them a Town-Houſe, in conſideration of their brave Defence. Here's a handſome Key, and Barracks for Foot. The Walls of the Town are of Stone. Lough Foyl, which ſerves it inſtead of a Road, is a Bay of the Sea, 14 m. long, and 7 where broadeſt. The Entrance is narrow, being little above a m. broad; and tho there be Sands near the Entrance, there's a Channel broad enough for Ships to paſs in 14 or 15 Fathom Water, and it has 8 or 10 Fathom at the Mouth. There are alſo very great Sands in the Lough, but a broad Channel betwixt them 4 and 5 Fathom deep. The River which goes up to the Town is from 10 to 12 Fathom deep; and at the Key 'tis from 4 to 5; ſo that 'tis one of the beſt and moſt commodious Harbours in Ireland.

III. The County of Antrim,

Has the River Bann on the W. which divides it from London-Derry, the Sea on the N. and E. part of Armagh and Down on the S. and part of the latter on the S. E. The greateſt Length S. and N. is 45 m. and the greateſt Breadth E. and W. about 25. but 'tis unequal both ways. 'Tis a pretty fruitful County, but marſhy in the N. Parts, and gives Title of Earl to the antient Family of Macdonalds, is divided into 9 Baronies, and ſends 12 Memb. to Parl. In 1641, the Iriſh Rebels murder'd ſome Thouſands of People in this County.

Places of Note are,

1. Colrain, on the E. ſide of the Bann, 10 m. N. E. of Limnevadde. Moſt of the Lordſhip of Colrain lies in the County of London-Derry; and before the building of that City it was called the County of Colrain. 'Tis a fortified Town, and defended on the W. ſide by the River Bann, which forms the Haven, and falls into a Bay about 2 m. $\frac{1}{2}$ below the Town. This River is remarkable for a noble Salmon-Fiſhing; but the Channel being narrow, the Stream runs ſo ſtrong, that the Haven is of difficult Entrance; and having but little Depth, Veſſels that draw 8 Foot cannot enter it till three quarters Flood. Three hundred Proteſtants were by Sir Phelim Oneal's Order murdered near this Town in 1641 by the Iriſh Guards, given them on pretence of a ſafe Conduct. This Town is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. gives Title of Baron to —— Hare, and has Barracks for Foot.

2. The Giant's-Cauſeway, 4 m. N. E. of Dunluce, is a remarkable Pile of Rocks, which runs out N. into the Ocean, and looks like a raiſed Cauſeway. It runs from the bottom of a high Hill; and at low Water it appears about 600 Foot long, and from 120 to 140 broad, tho how much farther it runs into the Sea, is not known. In ſome Places 'tis 36 Foot high, and in others about 15. It conſiſts of many thouſand Pillars, moſt of them perpendicular, and very cloſe to one another. Moſt of them are pentagonal and hexagonal, and ſome heptagonal, and from 15 Inches to 2 Foot diameter, and conſiſt of ſeveral Joints of different Heights, one of them alway concave, and the other convex in the middle. Some of them have the convex Part upwards, and others downwards. That called the Great Cauſeway, is 314 Yards long, and the Imperfect Cauſeway 120. The Country People tell many Fables about them, and fancy it was a Work of Giants. There are many other Pillars of the ſame ſort upon this Coaſt. They ſeem to be a ſort of Marble; and when ſtruck with another Stone, or a Bar of Iron, ſend forth a nauſeous Scent, like burnt Horn. The Curious may ſee a large Account, and a Draught of them, in Lowthorp's Abridgement of the Philoſophical Tranſactions, Vol. II. p. 511, &c.

3. Antrim, 3 m. S. E. of Randalls-Town, gives Name to the County, is a Market-Town and Borough, has a Harbour for Boats, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to the Family of Macdonnal, or Mackonnell, originally deſcended from the Macdonalds of the Scots Weſt Iſles. Lough Neagh, at the N. E. End of which this Town lies, is reckoned the largeſt in Ireland, being 19 m. from S. W. to N. E. and above 8 where broadeſt. It receives ſeveral Rivers, of which the Bann and the Blackwater are chief, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Sea by the Bann. It abounds with Fiſh, has ſome Iſlands, and is noted for turning Wood, eſpecially Holley, into Stone.

4. Carrickfergus, 12 m. E. of Antrim, on a Bay of its own Name. Some call it Knockfergus, and ſome Cragfergus. The Name was deriv'd from Fergus I. King of Scotland, who in his Return thither, after quelling a Rebellion in Ireland, was caſt away by a Storm in this Bay. 'Tis Capital of its Lordſhip, a fortified Town, and is reckoned Capital of the County. It has a pretty good Trade, a well-frequented Market, and an excellent Harbour, with a ſtrong Caſtle on a Rock, formerly a Palace and Magazine for Arms, and has Barracks for Horſe and Foot. It ſurrendered after a ſhort Siege to the late Duke of Schomberg, who landed here when ſent by King William III. to reduce Ireland. It ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

5. Belfaſt, 8 m. S. W. of Carrickfergus, near the bottom of the Bay, where the River Logan falls into it. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a well-frequented Market, and is one of the moſt trading Towns in the North of Ireland. 'Tis fortified, and has a good Harbour.

6. Lisborn, or Lisnagarny, lies on Logan Water, 7 m. S. W. of Belfaſt, is a Borough and Market-Town, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a Harbour, and gives Title of Viſcount to —— Vaughan of Cardiganſhire in Wales, as it did formerly to the Family of Loſius, the laſt of whom was killed before Limerick in 1691.

On the E. Coaſt of this County lies the Iſle of Magge 6 m. long, and 2 where broadeſt. There's a Harbour, called Old-Fleet, betwixt it and the Main. It has ſeveral Villages, and is ſuppoſed to have been the Seat of the Monaſtery Magio, ſo much commended by Bede. Oppoſite to this Iſland lie the Glinnes, or Valleys, along the Coaſt, a Territory formerly belonging to the Biſſets of Scotland, who were Lords of them, and were afterwards claimed by the Macdonnalds of the Scots W. Iſles, who continually ravaged this Country till King James I's Time.

IV. The County of Tyrone,

Has London-Derry on the N. and N. E. Donnegal and part of Fermannagh on the W. part of Antrim and Armagh on the E. and part of Fermannagh, Monaghan, and Armagh on the S. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 35 m. and E. and W. 41. but very unequal both ways, becauſe much indented by the neighbouring Counties. It is pretty mountainous in ſome Parts, but fruitful in others; is divided into 4 Baronies, gives Title of Earl to the antient Family of Powers, and ſends 10 Memb. to Parl. The Earls of this County were formerly very rebellious. One of them gave great Trouble to the Engliſh in Q. Elizabeth's Time, being ſupported by the Spaniards; and they ſcarce ever lived in Peace till James I's Time. Many Hundreds of Proteſtants were cruelly maſſacred here by the Iriſh in 1641.

Places of moſt Note are,

1. Strabane, on the River Foyl, almoſt over-againſt Lifford, 11 m. S. W. of London-Derry. It has a Harbour for Ships, is a Market-Town, and Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. is Capital of its Lordſhip, and gives Title of Viſcount to Hamilton, Earl of Abercorn in Scotland.

2. Dungannon, 7 m. S. W. of Stewards-Town, is a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has a Market, and is reckoned the chief Town in the County. It gave Title of Viſcount to —— Trevor. The Fort here was ſeized by the Rebels in 1641, and many hundreds of Proteſtants were drowned, and otherwiſe murdered in this Town and Neighbourhood; and among others, 18 Scotiſh Infants were hanged on Clothiers Tenterhooks; and a young Scotsman had his Belly ript up, and one End of his Guts faſtened to a Tree, which they forced him to run round till they were all drawn out of his Body, ſaying they would try whether a Scotſman's Guts or a Dog's was longeſt. At the Pariſh of Killamen near Dungannon in this County they drowned 300 Proteſtants in one Day, and murdered 1200 others, with the Miniſter of the Pariſh, afterwards; and they likewiſe maſſacred Man, Woman, and Child in the Barony of Munterlong in this County, and above 12000 were murdered in the Neighbourhood of Dromore, 6 m. S. W. of Omagh, as they were making their Eſcape to the County of Down. In 1649, Cromwel's Troops took this Place from the Rebels.

3. Mountjoy, a ſmall Town and ſtrong Fort, 7 m. N. E. of Dungannon, on the Bank of Lough-Neagh. It gives Title of Viſcount to —— Steward, as it did formerly to Blunt, who in Queen Elizabeth's time was Lord Deputy. It was ſeized by the Iriſh Rebels in 1641, when they drowned above 1000 Proteſtants in the neighbouring Lough, beſides thoſe they cut off by Sword, Fire and Famine in the adjacent Engliſh Plantations.

4. Augher, 14 m. S. W. of Dungannon, a Borough taken by the Rebels in 1641; and during the Siege they were ſo brutiſh as to cut Collops out of the live Engliſh Cattle, ſo that they ran about roaring till they died.

5. Clogher, 2 m. S. of Augher, the See of a Biſhop Saffragan of Armagh, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

V. The County of Fermannagh,

Has part of Donnegal and Tyrone on the N. Cavan on the S. and Monaghan on the E. 'Tis 35 m. S. E. and N. W. and 25 S. and N. where broadeſt. Here are many Woods and Bogs, and in ſome Places good Paſture.

Paſture. 'Tis divided into 8 Baronies, ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. It gives Title of Viſcount to —— Verney of Bucks.

Lough-Ern runs from S. E. to N. W. through the middle of the County, is 24 m. long, and 11 broad, at the N. End. 'Tis divided into 2 Parts which communicate by a Canal, has many Iſlands, and abounds with Fiſh.

Places of moſt Note are,

1. Iniskilling, on the Canal by which the 2 Parts of Lough-Ern communicate. It lies 40 m. S. W. of London-Derry, is the chief Town of the County, ſmall but ſtrong, ſtands in an Iſland, is defended by 2 Forts, and has Barracks for Horſe. 'Twas taken from the Rebels in Queen Elizabeth's time after an obſtinate Defence, and is famous for the great Services performed by its Inhabitants and the neighbouring Proteſtants, who all went under the Name of Iniskilling Men after the Revolution.

2. Liſnack, a Market-Town, 6 m. S. W. of Brooksbarton. Near this Place the Iniskilling Men defeated a conſiderable number of the Rebels commanded by Col. Hamilton in 1689.

3. Newtown-Butler, 4 m. S. E. of Liſnack, noted for a conſiderable Victory obtained by the Iniskilling Men under Col. Worſeley, conſiſting of 1200 Horſe and 1500 Foot in September 1689, when they turned the Rebels Cannon upon them, killed 2000, forced 500 into Lough-Ern, where they were drowned, and took 300, among whom was Lieut. Gen. Mackarty and above 50 other Officers.

4. Liſgool, a Caſtle on the Bank of the Lake over againſt Iniskilling, was ſet on Fire by the Rebels in 1641, and 152 Men, Women, and Children burnt. It appears by Sir John Temple's Hiſtory of the Rebellion, upon Depoſitions of credible Perſons, that multitudes of Proteſtants were killed in this County in cold Blood. There are ſeveral Barracks and other little Market-Towns in this County, of which we have no Deſcription.

VI. The County of Cavan,

Has Fermannagh on the N. Longford and Weſtmeath on the S. Letrim on the W. part of Monaghan, Meath, and Louth on the E. 'Tis 40 m. S. E. and N. W. and 25 where broadeſt from E. to W. 'Tis divided into 7 Baronies, ſends 6 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Earl to —— Lambert.

Places of Note are,

1. Belturbet, 3 m. S. E. of Lough-Ern. 'Tis a Borough, and has a Harbour for Boats on the River Ern, and Barracks for Horſe. It gives Title of Baron to Ld Fermannagh. The Popiſh Rebels in 1641 drowned many Proteſtants in the River here. Sir John Temple gives the Depoſition of a Gentleman of Note, that the Corps of 30 Perſons drowned here that had not appeared above Water for 6 Weeks, came floating up to the Bridge, as O Rely, Sheriff of the County, by whoſe Orders they were drowned, paſſed the ſame.

2. Cavan, the County-Town, lies 7 m. S. E. of Belturbet. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. has Barracks for Horſe and a Fort. Great part of this Town was burnt in 1690, with all the Rebels Forage; and Col. Worſely, with the Iniskillingers and 1000 regular Troops defeated the Duke of Berwick in the Neighbourhood with 4000 Rebels, and killed 500. The Duke was wounded, another General Officer killed, and 200 of the Rebels taken.

3. Kilmore, 3 m. S. W. of Cavan, is only noted for being the See of a Biſhop, Suffragan of Cork.

VII. The County of Monaghan,

Has Tyrone on the N. Meath on the S. Fermannagh and Cavan on the W. and Armagh on the E. The greateſt Extent S. E. and N. W. is 32 m. and E. and W. 30. It abounds with Hills, Woods, and Marſhes, is divided into 5 Baronies, and ſends 4 Memb. to Parl. It gives Title of Baron to the Family of Blaney. Many Proteſtants were murder'd here by the Rebels in 1641, after Quarter given.

Places of Note are,

1. Monaghan, the County-Town. 'Tis a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. A Fort was erected here in Queen Elizabeth's time to curb the Rebels.

2. Clouniſh, 3. Caſtle-Blaney, Market-Towns.

VIII. The County of Armagh,

Has Lough-Neagh on the N. part of Tyrone and Monaghan on the W. Louth on the S. and Down on the E. The greateſt Extent S. and N. is 29 m. and the greateſt Breadth E. and W. 13. 'Tis ſaid to be richer in Paſture and Corn than any County in Ireland, the Soil being ſo fat, that manuring ſpoils it. 'Tis divided into 5 Baronies, and ſends 6 Memb. to Parl. The Papiſts maſſacred thouſands of Proteſtants in the County in 1641.

Places of Note are,

1. Charlemont, upon the River Blackwater, in the N. E. Part of the County, 5 m. S. E. of Dungannon. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and gives Title of Viſcount to —— Caulfield. It had the Name from Charles Blunt Ld Mountjoy, who built a ſtrong Fort here in Queen Elizabeth's time. The Rebels in 1641 drowned 52 Proteſtants here, and compelled a Woman to hang her own Husband; and in the Neighbourhood burnt many Proteſtants alive in their Houſes. In 3 neighbouring Pariſhes they murdered 1528, 300 of whom were ſtripped naked and put into the Church of Loghal, 4 m. S. E. of Charlemont, 100 of them were murdered there, 2 quartered alive, and the reſt drove out naked into the Cold, and murdered by Iriſh Women and Children, as appears by Sir John Temple's Hiſtory; who ſays that above 4000 Proteſtants were drowned in this County, and that the Rebels forced the Children to carry their aged Parents to be drowned in the River Toll. Duke Schomberg took it by Stratagem for King William, having ſuffered it firſt to be relieved by a Detachment ſent from the late King James's Army with a Convoy of Proviſions, and then blocked up the Place, ſo as the Detachment ſoon conſumed the Proviſions they had brought, and the Gariſon was obliged to capitulate in May 1690.

2. Blackwater, a Town on the River of that Name, 2 m. S. E. It had a ſtrong Fort, which was taken by the Rebel E. of Tyrone in 1598, after having held out gallantly till the Gariſon was almoſt famiſhed. 50 Proteſtants were murdered by the Rebels in the Church here in 1641.

3. Portendown, or Portnadown, 8 m. E. of Charlemont, a Town with a Bridge over the Ban, to which about 1300 Proteſtants were drove at times, pricked forward by the Rebels Swords, and forced over the Bridge into the River, where they periſhed.

4. Legacory, another Market-Town, 6 m. S. E. of Charlemont. In 1641 the Rebels murdered 200 Proteſtant Families in the neighbouring Pariſh of Kilmore.

5. Armagh, 7 m. S. of Charlemont, gives name to the County, is a Borough, and ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. 'Tis the See of the Ld Primate of Ireland, and is ſaid to have been founded by St. Patrick about 445. It formerly had an Univerſity and a famous Monaſtery, but was burnt by the Danes. The Cathedral and Town were alſo burnt by the Rebel Tir-owen in Q. Elizabeth's time. It was afterwards rebuilt and gariſon'd by the Engliſh, but never recovered its antient Luſtre.

6. Moyra, 4 m. N. of Dundalk, remarkable for one of the moſt difficult Paſſes in Ireland.

IX. The County of Down,

Has Carrickfergus Bay and Part of Antrim on the N. Carlingford Bay and part of Louth on the S. Armagh and part of Antrim on the W. and the Iriſh Sea on the E. The greateſt Extent S. W. and N. E. is 44 m. and E. and W. 30. 'Tis very fruitful and populous on the E. ſide, but other Parts are encumber'd with Woods and Bogs. 'Tis divided into 8 Baronies, and ſends 14 Memb. to Parl. It gives Title of Viſcount to —— Dawney in England. Many thouſands of Proteſtants were maſſacred in this County by the Iriſh Rebels in 1641.

Places of Note are,

1. Bangor, on the N. Part of the County, on Carrickfergus Bay, 6 m. S. E. of that Town. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has a Harbour where D. Schomberg landed part of his Forces from England when he was ſent againſt the Rebels in 1689.

2. Newtown, at the N. End of Strangford-Lough, 4 m. S. of Bangor. 'Tis a Borough, ſends 2 Memb. to Parl. and has a Harbour for Ships. Strangford-Lough, upon which it lies, runs 18 m. up the Country, has ſome Iſlands in it, and at the Mouth 'tis called Strangford-Bay. The broadeſt Place is about 4 m. There runs a great Tide in this Lough which makes the Harbour unſafe.

3. Hillsborough, 13 m. S. W. is a Borough that ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

4. Dromore, 4 m. S. E. of Moyra, is a ſmall Biſhoprick and a Market-Town, which gives Title of Baron to —— Fanſhaw. In Glenwood, near this Place, above 1200 Proteſtants were murder'd in 1641.

5. Killyleagh, a Market-Town and Borough on the Bank of Strangford-Lough, where it has a Harbour for Barges, 10 m. S. E. of Cumber. The Iriſh Rebels maſſacred many hundreds of Proteſtants in and about this Town in 1641.

6. Down-Patrick, 4 m. S. W. of Killyleagh, at the S. End of the Lough, a Market-Town, and Borough, which ſends 2 Memb. to Parl.

7. Ardglaſs, upon the Coaſt, 6 m. ½ N. E. from Down-Patrick, gives Title of Viſcount to the Right Hon. John Lord Barrington, Baron of Newcaſtle near Dublin.

8. Newry, on the River Lagan, 8 m. S. W. of Rathfriland, a Market-Town and Borough, with Barracks for Foot. The Rebels poſſeſſed themſelves of this Town in 1641, and ſeized the King's Magazine of Arms and Ammunition, and murdered many Proteſtants. It was retaken by the King's Troops in 1642, which ſo enraged Sir Phelim O Neal, that he ſet fire to the Town and Cathedral of Armagh, and murder'd all the Proteſtants, Men, Women and Children, in the adjacent Country. The Paſs near this Town was guarded by a great number of Iriſh under the D. of Berwick in 1689; but upon the Approach of King William's Army under D. Schomberg, the Iriſh abandoned the Paſs, and ſet fire to all Places in the neighbourhood: upon which D. Schomberg ſent the Rebels Word that if they continued that barbarous Practice, he would ſpare neither Man, Woman or Child of the Iriſh Papiſts; which put a ſtop to their burning the Country. The Rebels ſurprized this Town in 1690, and killed the Centinels that guarded the Bridge, but were ſoon drove out with Loſs by the Engliſh Gariſon.

ASIA,

Its Name, and Antient Diviſions.

THE Greeks, according to their poetical Humour, derive the Name from Aſia a Nymph, Daughter to Oceanus and Tethys, Wife to Japhet, and Mother to Prometheus; but the moſt probable Derivation is either from a Town of that Name in Lydia, according to Suidas, or from the Hebrew word Aſi, i. e. the Middle, becauſe Aſia Minor lies betwixt Africa and Europe: and that being the firſt part of the Country call'd Aſia, the Name was communicated to the whole, which was afterwards divided into Aſia Major and Minor, and theſe again were ſubdivided as follows; Aſia Major contain'd the Aſian Sarmatia and Scythia, Serica, Gedroſia, Carmania, Drangiana, Aracoſia, Sogdiana, Parapomiſus, Bactriana, Hyrcania, Margiana, Parthia, Perſia, Suſiana, Media, Albania, Iberia, Colchis, Armenia, Meſopotamia, Aſſyria, Babylonia, Arabia, Syria, Paleſtina, Phœnicia, Cilicia, Cappadocia, Galatia, Pontus, Bithynia, Pamphylia, Lycia, the Iſle of Cyprus; and on the Eaſt, China, the Indies, and adjacent Iſlands.

Aſia Minor comprehended Phrygia, Myſia, Lydia, Caria, Æolis, Ionia, Doris, and the Iſle of Rhodes.

Scythia was that Country which lay next the Tanais or Don. Next to it lay Sarmatia, betwixt that River and the Volga, and on both ſides Mount Imaus. Then follow'd Serica and Sogdiana, which now make part of Tartary; Serica is properly what we call the Kingdom of Cathay. Antient India was bounded on the Weſt by the River Indus, on the North by the Emodian Mountains, on the Eaſt by the Damaſian Mountains and the Meander, and on the South by the Seas. It was divided by the Ganges, and is ſaid to have contain'd five thouſand Cities, of which Nyſa was the Capital. Perſia antiently contain'd Gedroſia, Carmania, Drangiana, Aracoſia, Parapomiſus, Bactriana, Margiana, Hyrcania, Parthia, Perſis, Suſiana, Aſſyria, and Media.

The Diviſions of this vaſt Country differ'd according to the Humour of the Conquerors and Great Princes, who bore the chief Sway in it from time to time. The Aſſyrians, while their Empire laſted, poſſeſs'd the greateſt part of it, viz. all that now belongs to the Turks and Perſians; they were ſucceeded by the Medes, they by the Perſians; the latter by the Greeks under Alexander the Great, and to the Greeks ſucceeded the Romans, who made it a particular Dioceſs of their Empire, and eſtabliſh'd a Proconſular Province, which they call'd by the Name of Aſia; the Metropolis of which, and of the whole Dioceſs, was Epheſus, the Reſidence of the Proconſul, whoſe Juriſdiction extended over the Helleſpont and the Iſles, their Capital Cyzicum. The other Provinces were under the Government of a Vicar or Lieutenant, and call'd by the Names of Pamphylia the firſt, the Capital Pergus, and ſecond the Capital Sidon.

Lydia, the Capital Sardis; Caria, the Capital Aphrodiſus; Lycia, Capital Mirus; Lycaonia, Capital Iconium; Piſidia, Capital Antioch; Phrygia Salutaris, Capital Sinnada; and Pacatiana, Capital Laodicea; and the Iſlands, which had two Metropolitan Towns, viz. Rhodes, and Mitylene in the Iſle of Lesbos. Theſe made up the twelve Provinces of the Dioceſs of Aſia, when the Notitia of the Empire was form'd.

There were other Diviſions made by the Romans, as Citerior and Ulterior, intra Taurum & ultra Taurum, for which we refer to Strabo, Pliny, and Tully. It is certain that the Name was not always of the ſame Extent, and Authors differ about that of Aſia Proconſularis. Archbiſhop Uſher, from the Authority of Scripture, thinks, that Lydia only was the Proconſular Aſia, becauſe Acts 16. 6,7. it is ſaid of St. Paul and his Companions, when they had gone thro Phrygia and the Region of Galatia, they were forbidden by the Holy Ghoſt to preach the Word in Aſia. The Curious may ſee more of this matter in that Great Man's Aſia Proconſularis, and in the Book de Locis Hebraicis in Apoſtolorum Actis. The Archbiſhop thinks, that what the Romans call'd Aſia Propria, was diſtinguiſh'd from Aſia peculiarly ſo call'd; and he is of Opinion that the ſeven Churches, mention'd in the Revelation, were all of them in Lydia, becauſe they are plac'd in that Country by antient Authors.

When Chriſtianity prevail'd in this part of the World, the Eccleſiaſtical Provinces were the ſame with the Civil, as were the Seats of the Metropolitans: The Biſhop of Epheſus was Exarch of the whole, till the Patriarch of Conſtantinople obtain'd that Dignity, as next in Honour to the Biſhop of Rome.

Its preſent BOUNDARIES.

IT has the Icy-Sea on the North; that call'd the Eaſtern Ocean, or Indian Sea, and New-Holland on the South; Europe and Africa on the Weſt; and that nam'd the Company's Land, Japan and New-Guinea, on the Eaſt. Geographers moſt commonly divide it from Europe on the North-Weſt by the River Oby, tho ſome carry it almoſt as far that way as Archangel. 'Tis divided from European Muſcovy, and Little Tartary, by the River Tanais or Don, as far as Latitude 50, and then by a Line along the Rivers Irtis and Oby, as may be ſeen in the Map. 'Tis ſeparated from European Turkey by the Archipelago, the Straits of Conſtantinople, and a Line drawn thro the Black Sea to the River Don: and 'tis divided from Africa by the Iſthmus of Suez, which ſeparates it from Egypt, and by the Red-Sea and Straits of Babelmandel, which divide it from the reſt of Africa; ſo that the Countries which bound upon it to the Weſt are certainly known, but how far it reaches towards the other Quarters, or whether it does not join with America, is not yet diſcover'd.

Our Maps place it betwixt South Latitude 10. and North Latitude 73. including the Iſlands; according to which its greateſt Extent from South to North is about 4980 Miles on the Eaſt-ſide: but then 'tis much more contracted on the Weſt-ſide, as appears by the Map. Taking in Japan, and the Land of Jeſſo, it lies betwixt Longitude Eaſt from London 25 and 147. The greateſt Extent from Weſt to Eaſt is about 3800 Miles, but then it is much contracted toward the North and South-Eaſt.

The Qualities of ASIA, and its People.

IT has the Preference to the other Parts of the World, becauſe Man was created here, and the reſt of the Earth was peopled by Colonies from hence, who ſpread the knowledge of Religion, Government, Arts, and Arms into the other Quarters. It was alſo the Place of the ſecond Propagation of Mankind by Noah and his Family after the Flood; laid the Foundations of the firſt great Empires, was the Redence of God's peculiar People the Iſraelites, and the Place where our Saviour was incarnate, planted his firſt Church, and compleated the glorious Work of Redemption: ſo that it may juſtly be ſaid to have been the Scene of the greateſt Wonders of Providence.

The Climate and Soil differ according to their Situation. In ſome Places under the Torrid Zone they have a perpetual Spring, without thoſe ſcorching Heats that are in other Parts of the World under that Zone, but moſt of it lies in the Northern Temperate Zone; and that beyond the Arctick Circle is ſubject to the ſame violent Colds and Froſts that are common to thoſe Countries.

In the main, it may be reckon'd the moſt fruitful and rich part of the World. It abounds with Corn of all ſorts, Rice, excellent Wine, and ſuch noble and curious Fruits under the Torrid Zone, as are not to be found elſewhere. The Author of the Atlas Hiſtorique, in his 5th and 6th Volumes publiſh'd at Amſterdam in 1719. ſays, in his Diſſertation upon Aſia, that it is more bountiful and liberal to Mankind than any other part of the Globe. It furniſhes not only every thing neceſſary for Life and Health, but all that Avarice, Vanity, and Senſuality put a value upon. It ſupplies moſt other Parts of the World with the richeſt Spices, Drugs, Plants, Simples, Pearl, Diamonds, and other precious Stones; and ſo abounds with Gold, that the Sand of the Rivers furniſhes ſufficient Quantities, without the trouble of digging for it in Mines as elſewhere; and it has Silver, with other Mines of all ſorts. Here is Store of Cattel, Wild and Tame, for all Uſes: It exceeds the reſt of the World for Camels, Dromedaries, Elephants, &c. and their Mountains and Foreſts abound with all ſorts of Game. They have great variety of Wild and Tame Fowl for Profit and Pleaſure: Their Seas and Rivers are well ſtor'd with Fiſh of all ſorts, beſides many unknown in other Parts: They furniſh the reſt of the Globe with vaſt Quantities of rich and curious Silk, Calicoes, Muſlins, Tapeſtries, Sables, and the richeſt of other Furs, Coffee, Tea, Incenſe, Cedar, &c. and they exceed all Nations in their curious Manufacture of Porcellain, Varniſhes, Lackers, and fine durable Colours. As they abound in ſumptuous antient and modern Structures, Nature has provided them with noble Quarries of Marble, Jaſper, Alabaſter, Agat, &c.

But with all theſe Advantages the Inhabitants in general ſeem never to have been very happy; for moſt of them, except thoſe who live in Tartary, and other Northern Parts, have always been accounted effeminate, and ſwallow'd up in Luxury and Idleneſs. As it was the firſt Scene of true Religion, it was alſo the firſt of Idolatry; and they have always been noted for a ſlaviſh Temper, and a Fondneſs for Deſpotical Government, eſpecially the Eaſtern Parts; whence Tacitus took occaſion to ſay, Suetus regibus Oriens: and it was ſarcaſtical enough upon Alexander the Great, when one of his Flatterers boaſted that he had conquer'd Aſia in leſs time than his Father Philip ſubdu'd Greece, That Philip had Men to deal with, whereas Alexander had none to encounter but Women. At the ſame time it muſt be own'd, that the Aſiaticks are capable enough of Arts and Sciences, eſpecially the Chineſe and other Eaſterly Nations, for which they are apt to overvalue themſelves, and boaſt that they are born with two Eyes, whereas the reſt of Mankind have but one.

As to their Religion, tho their Country was the original Seat of the Truth, and of the Old as well as the New-Teſtament Churches, they have always had a ſtrong Inclination to Idolatry, which has now ſwallow'd up the far greateſt part of the Country, and ſeems chiefly to be owing to their Luxury, that has drench'd them in all ſorts of Vice.

The greateſt part of them are Mahometans and Pagans. The former are divided into ſeveral Sects, and the Diviſions of the latter are endleſs. Here are abundance of Jews and Chriſtians; the latter are divided into Greeks, who have their Subdiviſions, into ſome call'd the Chriſtians of St. Thomas, &c. and the Papiſts have likewiſe ſpread their ſeveral Sects into the Empire of China, the Turkiſh Dominions, and elſewhere, in ſuch Illands and Places of the Continent as are ſubject to France, Spain, and Portugal. Here are alſo great Numbers of Proteſtants, eſpecially in the Dutch Dominions, and in the Engliſh and Daniſh Factories.

For their Language, the antient Hebrew, Chaldee, and Syriack are not now ſpoke any where as National Tongues; ſo that the moſt prevailing Languages at preſent are the Arabick, the Tartarian, and Chineſe. The Japoneſe and Armenian are not of ſo large an Extent, tho the latter be much us'd for Commerce in Perſia, Turkey, &c.

MUSCOVITE ASIA.

WE begin the Geography of this Country with an Account of the Czar's Aſiatick Dominions: but Authors differ as to the Weſtern Boundary of Aſia on that ſide, ſome making it a Line from the Don, or Tanais, to the White-Sea, Eaſt of Archangel; ſome from the Don to the River Kama; but moſt from the Don to the River Oby, or from the Caſpian Sea to the Rivers Irtis and Oby. We have already deſcrib'd the Northern Parts of the Czar's Dominions as far as the Oby, and for the reſt ſhall chiefly follow the Account of his Ambaſſador Ides, who travell'd thro thoſe Countries to China by Land in 1692. and made his Obſervations on the Spot, or from the Relations of thoſe who knew the Countries he deſcribes. The Length of the Czar's Dominions on this ſide, according to thoſe who place the Weſtern Boundary of Aſia near Archangel, is 2280 Miles from thence to the Eaſtern Ocean, or Sea of Amour; but if we place the Boundary at the River Oby, 'tis but 2110. However, ſince his Dominions in Europe join thoſe in Aſia, they loſe nothing of their real Extent, wherever the Weſt Boundary of Aſia be fix'd. The greateſt Breadth of his Aſian Dominions, from the Borders of Independent Tartary on the South, to as far as is known of Nova Zembla on the North, is 1440 Miles, but not of equal Breadth, becauſe indented by the Tartarian and Chineſe Dominions. His Empire here is call'd Muſcovite-Tartary in general, and divided into ſeveral Provinces and People, tho they go for the moſt part by the name of Samoiedes, eſpecially in the North.

We begin with Great Permia, a Province which Ides places on the South-ſide of the River Kama, that he makes the Boundary betwixt Europe and Aſia. He does not give the Extent or Limits of the Province, but mentions the following Places here: The firſt is Kaigorod, a pretty large and ſtrong City on the Kam or Kama, which is navigable here, runs South, and falls into the Wolga. This City is the Seat of a Wayvod, and lies in Latit. 61. Longit. 45 ½. two hundred and ſeventy miles South-Eaſt of Archangel. 2. Solikamskoi, the chief City of Great Permia, Latit. 59. Longit. 45 ½. on the River Kam: A fine large rich Town, with ſeveral conſiderable Merchants. Their chief Trade is in Salt, made from fifty Salt-Springs, twenty five and thirty five Ells deep: 'Tis carry'd down the River in great flat-bottom'd Veſſels, from ſixteen hundred to two thouſand Tun, without any Iron-Work about them; they are from thirty five to forty Ells long, carry ſeven or eight hundred Men, have Kitchens, Bagnios, and other Conveniences, and a Maſt with a Sail thirty Fathom broad, which they uſe when they come up the River; but downward they only uſe Oars till they come to the Wolga, where they diſpoſe of the Salt at ſeveral Markets. He ſays Kama is a very fine River, abounds with all ſorts of Fiſh, and the Banks are adorn'd with many Villages and Towns, Salt-works, fruitful Corn-Grounds, and large Fields beautify'd with Variety of Flowers. From hence he ſail'd into the River Zawaia, which falls into the Eaſt-ſide of the Kama. This River has alſo beautiful well-peopled Banks, but the Veſſels are tow'd againſt the Stream. The neighbouring Hills have plenty of beautiful Flowers and Plants, and all ſorts of wild Beaſts. The Country is inhabited by Wogulskian Tartars, a Branch of the Siberians, and ſtupid Heathens. 3. Wergaturia, one hundred and twenty Miles South-Eaſt from Solikamskoi, near the Head of the River Tara, lies on a Rock, is well-peopled with Muſcovites, and the Capital of its Diſtrict.

SIBERIA, or SIBIRIA, in Muſcovite Aſia.

AMBASSADOR Ides extends this Country from the Borders of Samoeida the whole Length of Aſia, and from the North-Sea as far South as Latitude 51. ſo that it contains moſt of the Czar's Aſiatick Dominions, inhabited by Tartars of ſeveral Denominations.

Father Avril a Jeſuit, ſent by Lewis XIV. of France to diſcover a way by Land to China, ſays the Country was found out thus: The Zaporagian Coſſacks, beyond the Nieper, being ſubdu'd by the Muſcovites, and willing to ſhake off their Yoke, remov'd, by way of Caſan, to the Rivers Kama and Irtis; at the Conflux of which and the Tobol, they built Tobolski, the chief City of Siberia, extending their Conqueſts to the River Oby. They call'd the Country Siberia, from Siber, a Slavonick word, which ſignifies North; and finding great Advantages by the Trade of Sables and other Furs, they enlarg'd their Boundaries, by hunting as far as the River Tamur or Amur, which gives name to the Amoerſian Sea, that ſeparates Aſia from Japan. He adds, that the Tartars, who conquer'd China in 1644. came from the Countries bordering on this River.

Mr. Ides ſays, that Siberia became ſubject to the Czar thus. A Robber call'd Jeremack Timiefewik, plunder'd the Czar's Frontiers; and being purſu'd, he and his Company fled up the River Kama Northward, and then by the River Juzawaia to the South-Eaſt, where they apply'd to one Stroginoff, a Great Man, for Protection, and that he would intercede with the Czar for their Pardon; upon which Condition Jeremack promis'd to conquer all Siberia for the Czar. Stroginoff furniſh'd him immediately with Veſſels, Men, and Arms for the Expedition: Jeremack advanc'd as far as Tobolsko, the Reſidence of a Tartar Prince, which he took with ſmall Loſs, ſent the Prince Captive to Muſcow; and going on with his Conqueſts, was attack'd by a Body of Tartars near Tobolsko, where he was drown'd as he ſtepp'd from one Veſſel to another, and many of his Men cut off. In the mean time the Czar had granted his Pardon, and ſent a great many Muſcovite Officers, who fortify'd and gariſon'd the Places taken by Jeremack, and ſoon compleated the Reduction of the Country. The Grandſon of the Tartar Prince whom Jeremack took, is ſtill entertain'd at Moſcow, and honour'd with the Title of the Siberian Czarowitz.

Ides ſays, the Frontiers of Siberia are very well gariſon'd; that he was the firſt German that ever travell'd thro thoſe Countries to China; that he took the Latitude of the Places himſelf, but owns the learned World is much oblig'd to the late Burgomaſter Witſen of Amſterdam, who was the firſt that drew a Map of thoſe Countries, and diſcover'd to us the Provinces of Siberia, the Calmucks, and Mongalian Tartars, &c. as far as the Wall of China. From this Map Ides made and improv'd his own, which is bound up with his Travels.

He ſays, the Natives of Siberia are Pagans, but the Cities are fill'd with Ruſſians and Coſſacks. They pay yearly to the Czar above one hundred thouſand Pound Sterling in Sables, Martins, and black Foxes Skins, which are ſold from ten to fifteen Pound a-piece. They catch the Ermins in Traps, but ſhoot the Sables with Arrows in the Noſe, that they mayn't ſpoil their Skins; or make Fires under the Trees where they haunt, and being ſoon ſtifled with the Smoke, they fall down and are caught. The Czar's Officers encourage Diligence in the Natives, by allowing them to hunt now and then for themſelves.

The Siberians are generally ſtrong, and have large Heads: They own there is one God that made the World, and believe a Reſurrection, but know nothing of future Rewards or Puniſhments: They deny the Being of Devils, becauſe they never ſaw any: They bury Money, Apparel, and Ornaments with their Dead, howl over them in a diſmal manner; and the Husband muſt continue a Widower for a year after the Death of his Wife; that is to ſay, he muſt not take another in her place, for they allow Polygamy, and have as many Wives as they can keep. When any of them is near her time, ſhe muſt retire to a Hut in a Wood till ſhe be deliver'd, and not come near her Husband for two Months. They buy their Wives from their Relations, have no Prieſts to perform the Ceremony, and they marry no nearer than the fourth Degree of Conſanguinity. When the Ambaſſador adviſ'd them to turn Chriſtians, and alledg'd it would be better for them both here and hereafter; they anſwer'd, that they daily ſaw ſome Ruſſians in a ſtarving Condition, and for a future Life they would adhere to the Opinion of their Anceſtors.

They live in ſquare wooden Huts, make their Fire in the middle, and as ſoon as the Wood is burnt to a Coal, cover the Smoke-Hole in the Roof with Ice, which reverberates the Heat, and lets in Light. Here are great Herds of Elks, which they hunt for Food, cut them in pieces, hang them round their Houſes to dry; and when they ſtink by Rain, dry them again, and eat them as a nice Dainty. They catch wild Beaſts by making Huts in the Woods, plant Bows in them, to which they faſten a String with a Bait, which as ſoon as the Beaſt pulls, the Arrow flies into their Fore-Parts. They alſo dig Pits in the Woods, which they cover with Reeds and Graſs, that the Beaſts may fall in, which frequently happens; and they are ſo fond of Dogs which are good Hunters, that when any ſuch die, they erect Huts to their Memory. They eat neither Fowl, nor Hogs, and live chiefly upon what they kill with their Arrows. They have no Chairs nor Stools in their Houſes, but a broad Bench round the Room about one Ell high, and two broad. Upon theſe they ſit with their Legs croſs under them, like the Perſians, and ſleep upon them at Night.

We return to the Geography. The Uſimzi Tartars lie in the South Part of this Country, betwixt Latitud. 50, and 60. and joining with thoſe of Aſtracan, Baskirzi, and the Calmucks, who are their Neighbours, do ſometimes invade Siberia; which obliges the Czar to curb them by his Gariſons, and force them to pay their Tribute of Furs and Honey. To this end his gariſon'd Towns of Saraput on the Kama, Lat. 55. Long. 52. and Saratoff on the Wolga, Lat. 51 ½. Long. 49. are of very great uſe. Theſe Tartars are valiant, ſit their Horſes well, are dextrous with their Bows and Arrows, very ſtrong, have long Beards; and the Hair of their Eyebrows is ſo thick and long, that they ſeem to unite. They have a peculiar Language, and their Religion is a mixture of Paganiſm and Mahometaniſm. The Calmuck Tartars, who border on Aſtracan and the Caſpian Sea, do likewiſe join with ſome other independent Hoards to infeſt Siberia. They have ſtore of Barley, Oats, Buck-Wheat and Honey, and are clad like the Muſcovite Peaſants. They inhabit chiefly betwixt the Rivers Tobul and the Oby, about the Lake call'd Jamiſowa, Lat. 46. Long. 75. This Lake abounds ſo with hard Salt, that about twenty five Ruſſian Veſſels come annually hither, with a Convoy of two thouſand five hundred well-arm'd Men, dig up the Salt like Ice on the Shore, and load their Ships with it, which occaſions frequent Skirmiſhes with the Calmucks. The Czar has another Gariſon at Cungun on the Kama, Lat. 56. Long. 52. which curbs theſe and the Uſimzi Tartars, who live diſpers'd in Villages and Towns well-built after the Ruſſian Faſhion, near the Kama and Wolga.

Utka, on the South-ſide of the River Zawaia, Lat. 55. Long. 55. is a ſtrong Caſtle belonging to the Czar, and protects the Tartars in the Neighbourhood who ſubmit to his Majeſty and pay him Tribute, being a ſtrong Frontier againſt the Uſimzi and Baskirzi Tartars, who lie South of it. Tora, on the River Irtis, Lat. 54. Long. 65. is another good Frontier for the ſame end.

Neuianskoi, Lat. 55. Long. 59. on the River Newa, 120 miles S. E. from Utka, is another Frontier-Caſtle againſt thoſe Tartars. The Country betwixt Utka and this Place is fruitful, well ſtor'd with Woods, pleaſant Fields, and Arable Land, Brooks and Pools; and well inhabited by Ruſſians, who have all Neceſſaries for Life, and afford them to Travellers very cheap. The River here is navigable, ſo that there is an eaſy Paſſage by Water to Tumeen, which lies 95 Miles Nor. Eaſt upon the ſame River, near its Conflux with the Tara. The Shores on both ſides are well-inhabited by Ruſſians in Villages and Caſtles. Tumeen is ſtrong by Art and Nature, populous and inhabited chiefly by Ruſſians. About a fourth part of the People are Mahometan Tartars, who drive a conſiderable Trade with the Calmucks and others who live diſpers'd in the neighbouring Country, and ſubſiſt chiefly by Agriculture and Fiſhing. The chief Furs of theſe Parts are the Skins of red Foxes, Wolves, and Bears; but at a few Miles diſtance there's a Wood which abounds with the fineſt grey Squirrels, whoſe Skins keep their Colour, and don't change like others. The Leather is very ſtrong, when prepar'd; and there being none ſuch in the Muſcovite Empire, they are preſerv'd for the Czar's Uſe, and the ſelling of them to Merchants is forbid on the penalty of great Fines. They kill and eat all the other Species of Squirrels that come among them. From hence there's a Paſſage by Water to the River Tobol, which falls into the Irtis.

Tobolska lies on the other ſide of the Irtis, over againſt the Mouth of this River, about 211 Miles North Eaſt from Tumeen, Lat. 56. Long. 62. The Shores of the River as far as Tobolska are low, and overflow'd with Water in the Spring; but further within Land on each ſide, the Country is pretty well peopled by Mahometan Tartars and Ruſſians. This River abounds with all ſorts of excellent Fiſh. Tobolska, or Tobolskoi, is the chief City of Siberia; it ſtands on a high Hill, is naturally ſtrong, and has a large Stone-Cloiſter with Watch-Towers, which ſerve inſtead of a Fortification. It has a vaſt Juriſdiction: The Province is very well peopled by Ruſſians, Mahometan Tartars, and Heathens, who are Tributaries to the Czar. The Tartars, who dwell on the River Irtis, have a great Trade with the Calmucks, and carry their Goods to China. It would be the ſhorteſt way to that Country from hence, thro the Calmucks Territories, by the Lake Jameſowa, were it not that the Calmucks and other Tartars are ſo much addicted to Robbery. Corn, Fiſh, Fleſh, and Fowls are very cheap here. A fat Ox may be bought for 11 s. a large Hog for 3 s. 6 d. a hundred pound weight of Rye-Flower for 1 s. 6 d. and a Sturgeon of forty pound weight for 6 d. and Wild-Fowl and Veniſon of all ſorts cheaper than their Beef. This City has uſually a Gariſon of 9000 Men, and in the Neighbourhood there are ſeveral thouſands of Tartars ready to ſerve the Czar on Horſeback, againſt the Calmucks, Koſak Orda, Bucharian, and other Tartars. 'Tis alſo the Seat of the Metropolitan, who is ſent hither from Moſcow, and exerciſes his Juriſdiction over all Siberia and Dauria. The Tartars in the Neighbourhood are Mahometans, and their chief Prieſt an Arabian, whom they reverence ſo much, that for his ſake they highly eſteem every body that can write or read Arabick. Their Moſques have large Windows round them, which are all ſet open when at Devotion. Mr. Ide, was admitted to ſee them, becauſe of his own Character, and the Authority of the Vaywod who went with him. They leave their Shoes or Slippers at the Door; the Floor is cover'd with Tapeſtry; they ſit down in Rows, with their Legs folded under them. The Chief Prieſt has a white Callico Robe and Turbant. One cries out behind the People with a loud Voice, which is a Signal for them to fall on their Knees. Then the Prieſt utters ſome words, and afterwards cries out, Alla, Alla, Mahomet, which the whole Aſſembly roars out after him three times ſucceſſively, with their Faces to the Ground. Then the Prieſt looking into both his Hands, as if he was reading, repeats the ſame words; and both Prieſt and People conclude their ſhort Devotion, by looking firſt over the right, and then over the left Shoulder.

The River Irtis, on which this City ſtands, riſes in the Calmuck Country, Latitud. 44. and after a Courſe of 1020 Miles, in a direct Line, beſides Windings and Turnings, falls into the Oby, Lat. 62. Long. 65. The Eaſtern Shore is mountainous, and has ſome Woods of Cedar; the Weſtern Shore is Paſture-Ground, and abounds with black Bears, Wolves, red and grey Foxes.

Samoroskoi-jam lies on the Eaſt-ſide of the Irtis, 270 Miles N. E. from Tobolsko, near which there's a River, which falls into the Oby; and on its Banks are the beſt grey Squirrels in Siberia, except thoſe in the Neighbourhood of Tumeen. Moſt of the Inhabitants of this Country are Ruſſian Jamskicks, in the Czar's Pay, to furniſh the Vayvods and others, who travel about his Affairs to Siberia, with Carriages and Men for Paſſage by Water in Summer, and over the Ice in Winter to Surgut on the Oby: for this end they keep great numbers of middle-ſiz'd Dogs, with ſharp Noſes, long-erected Ears, and Tails crooked like Wolves and Foxes, which they reſemble ſo much, that they are ſuppos'd to be of a promiſcuous Breed with thoſe Animals. Theſe Dogs draw their Sleds in Winter, ſometimes two, and ſometimes ſix being yok'd to a Sled, which is made ſo light, that they run very ſwiftly over the Snow, and will carry three hundred weight. When they want Proviſions, the Maſter takes his Gun and goes to the Woods, where he never fails of ſtarting Game, gives the Fleſh to the Dogs, and takes the Skins to himſelf, which many times are of black Foxes, and turn to great Profit. From hence to the Mouth of the Oby 'tis 375 Miles. This River riſes in the ſame Latitude with the Irtis, and after a Courſe of about 1530 Miles, falls into the Straits of Weygatz, over againſt Nova Zembla. 'Tis a very large River, but ſcarce ever navigable to the Sea, the Mouth of it being choak'd up with Ice. There are ſeveral Towns upon both Banks below Samoroskoi-jam, but we have no Deſcription of them.

Surgut, on the Eaſt-ſide of the Oby, Lat. 71. Long. 66. about 115 Miles South-Eaſt from Samoroskoi-jam, is a City ſubject to the Czar. The neighbouring Country abounds with thoſe call'd Croſs-Foxes, whoſe Skins are a mixture of black and grey. Here are alſo red Foxes and Hyænas, which are very miſchievous Creatures: They lurk upon Trees, and when a Hart, Elk-Doe, or Hare, &c. runs under them, they leap upon them, gnaw a Hole in their Bodies, the Pain of which forces them to lie down, and then they become their Prey. Here are vaſt Numbers of Beavers, of whoſe Cunning the Natives tell very incredible Stories.

Narum, on the Eaſt-ſide of the Oby, 210 Miles South-Eaſt from Surgut, is a ſtrong Gariſon of the Czar's Coſſacks, and defended by a Caſtle. The neighbouring Country abounds with ſuch Foxes and Beavers as above-mention'd, and particularly black Foxes, whoſe Skins being the richeſt and fineſt in the World, are reſerv'd for the Czar. Some of them are valu'd at a hundred and a hundred and fifty Pounds a Skin, and are blacker than the beſt Daurian Sables. Here are alſo the largeſt and the fineſt Ermins in Siberia, ſome pale, and others as black as Pitch.

The Southern Banks of the Oby, as far as this Place, are inhabited by Oſtiacks. They have Idols of Wood and Earth in the form of Men and Women, and call them Saitans. They ſometimes dreſs them in Silks, after the Ruſſian Faſhion, and place them in Huts made of Bark. On one ſide they hang a Bunch of Human and Horſe-Hair, and on the other a Veſſel with Milk-Pap, which they thruſt into the Mouth of the Idol, till it runs out in ſuch a manner, as would make one vomit to ſee it. The Oſtiacks worſhip them ſtanding upright, toſſing their Heads up and down, and whiſtle as we do when we call a Dog. Some of them came aboard the Ambaſſador's Ship to ſell Fiſh, where one of his Servants having wound up a Nuremberg Bear in Clock-work, which plaid on a Drum, and turn'd his Head and Eyes, the Oſtiacks took it for a Saitan, danc'd exceſſively to its Honour, and ask'd if it was to be ſold; ſaid, 'twas the beſt Saitan they ever ſaw, and that if they had ſuch a one, they would hang him all over with black Fox and Sable Skins. The Ambaſſador order'd it out of their ſight, to prevent their farther Idolatry. They marry their neareſt Relations, and have as many Wives as they can keep. They lay up no more Proviſion than will juſt ſerve for Winter. They have plenty of Fiſh, and ſometimes ſell twenty great Sturgeons for three Penniworth of Tobacco. They drink Arack diſtill'd from Mare's Milk, and eat the Bulbs of yellow Lillies powder'd and boil'd in Milk. They are of a middle Stature, their Hair yelloviſh or red, their Faces and Noſes diſagreeably broad, their Clothes of Sturgeon and other Fiſh-Skins, and their Shoes and Stockings the like. Their Weapons are Bows and Arrows, or large Knives faſten'd to Sticks of a Fathom long. When they go a Bear-hunting, or other Expeditions, they carry their Idols with them; and, when ſucceſsful, adorn them with rich Furs, which hang about them till they rot, for they reckon it Sacrilege to take them away. When overtaken with ſevere Froſts, which frequently happen, eſpecially on the Oby, they throw off their Clothes, and leap into the deep Snow, that they may die the ſooner. Their Houſes are ſorry Huts, and they have ſome petty Princes, who levy the Tribute, and pay them to the Czar's Vayvods. One of them invited the Ambaſſador to his Palace, which conſiſted of a few Huts made up of Barks of Trees. He had four Wives, two of them old, and two young; one of the latter had a red Cloth Coat with Strings of Glaſs Coral about her Neck and Middle, and in the Curls of her Hair. The old ones preſented him each with a Barrel of Birch Bark full of dry Fiſh; and the latter with the like Barrel of Sturgeon-Fat, as yellow as Gold. The Furniture of the Palace was ſome Cheſts and Cradles made of Bark, fill'd with Shavings of Wood, almoſt as ſoft as Feathers, and the Children lay naked among them. The Ambaſſador treated this Prince and his Ladies with Brandy and Tobacco, which thoſe People are mighty fond of, and have a very odd way of ſmoaking, which he deſcribes thus: They ſtick a Pipe, made on purpoſe, into a Stone-Kettle, take ſome Water in their Mouths, ſuck out a whole Pipe at once, and ſwallow the Smoke; which throws them into Convulſions, and many of them loſe their Lives by it. In Winter they live in Caves, the Entrance into which is a Hole on the Surface of the Earth, which ſerves them both for Door and Chimney. They lie round the Fire at night, and when wet by Snow or Rain, turn the wet Side to the Fire. When an Oſtiack is jealous of his Wife, he offers the ſuſpected Perſon ſome Hair of a Bear-Skin: If he be innocent, he takes it; but if guilty, confeſſes: for they believe that if a guilty Perſon take the Hair, he'll be torn in pieces by a Bear in three days time. They likewiſe offer them Bows, Arrows, Knives, and Axes; and believe if the guilty Perſon takes them, that he will be kill'd by one of the ſame Inſtruments in the like time.

Theſe People have no Corn, Temples, or Prieſts. Their Fiſhing-Veſſels are made of Bark, ſew'd together two or three Fathom long, and one Ell broad, with Ribs of thin Wood on the Inſide; and with theſe ſlight Veſſels they make a ſhift to ride out the greateſt Storms. The Eaſt-Shores of the Oby are for the moſt part very barren, becauſe of the extreme Cold.

Tomski, Lat. 51 ½. Long. 74. lies on the River Tom, which falls into the Eaſt-ſide of the Oby, 340 Miles South-Eaſt from Narum. 'Tis a large, fine, ſtrong Frontier-City, gariſon'd by Ruſſians and Coſſacks, to prevent the Incurſions of the Tartars. Thoſe in the Neighbourhood are Tributaries to the Czar, and the Subjects of neighbouring Tartar Princes join with the Ruſſian Merchants here in carrying on a conſiderable Trade to China. The Journey being perform'd in twelve Weeks, but attended with great Difficulties, Travellers muſt carry all Neceſſaries along with them on Camels thro the Calmucks Country, &c. and the ſandy Deſert, till they come to Kokoton, which lies in Lat. 42 ½. Long. 102. 1320 miles from Tomskoi: but none except Tartar Merchants can travel this way, nor they without Danger, the Country is ſo infeſted with Robbers.

Karſnoijar, or Kraſnowar, on the Weſt-ſide of the River Jeniſia, Lat. 51. ½ Long. 82. about 178 miles Eaſt from Tomskoi, is another large Frontier-Town, with a ſtrong Gariſon of Coſſacks maintain'd by the Czar to curb the Kirgizen Tartars, who are ſo faithleſs, that tho at Peace with the Siberians, they make frequent Incurſions; ſo that the Governour keeps a Party of Horſe ready Day and Night before his Houſe, and the Coſſacks generally make ſevere Reprizals upon thoſe Tartars, who are a warlike People, and extend as far South-Eaſt as the Mongalian Diſtricts, which is 720 miles. The Men are vigorous, tall, and have broad Faces; they are arm'd with Bows and Arrows, Coats of Mail, and Lances. They live for the moſt part on Mountains to prevent a Surprize; and their Language is partly that of the Crim-Tartars, and that of the Calmucks. From hence along the River Jeniſia, the Country is inhabited by Tonguſians and Burattians.

Jenizeskoi lies on the Weſt-ſide of the River Jeniſia, about 300 miles North from Karſnoijar. 'Tis a ſtrong Gariſon, conſiſting chiefly of Horſe to defend the Country againſt the Mongalians, and their ſubordinate Clans. The City is large, populous, and well-fortify'd, and has ſeveral Villages and Cloiſters in the Neighbourhood, which is fruitful in Corn, and has plenty of black Cattel and Fowl. The Tonguſian Heathens, who live on the River, and in the neighbouring Countries, are ſubject to its Juriſdiction, and pay a Tribute of Furs to the Czar. The Climate is ſo cold, that there are no large Fruit-Trees, but they have black and red Currants, Strawberries, Gooſeberries, &c.

The River Jeniſia riſes on the Frontiers of the Calmucks and Mongalians, and after a Courſe of 1740 miles falls into the Northern Icy-Sea. Moſt of its Shores are inhabited by Ruſſians: It abounds with Fiſh, and receives ſeveral other fine Rivers, inhabited chiefly by a wild ſort of Tonguſians or Samoieds. There are ſeveral other Towns upon this River, but not deſcrib'd. The wild Inhabitants live chiefly by Hunting, and have no other Arms but Bows and Arrows. They carry their Wives and Children into the Woods a hunting, without any Proviſions, rely altogether upon what they can kill, and ſtay upon the ſpot till they eat it up. The Country has many white and brown Foxes, a multitude of Squirrels, a few Sables; and what Furs they catch, they ſell to the Ruſſians.

Togviskoi, on the Weſt-ſide of this River, Lat. 64. Long. 74. and Mungaſia, Lat. 66. Long. 70. are two large Towns, which drive a conſiderable Inland Trade in Furs, Sea-Horſes, and Mammuts Teeth; and in Summer ſend Boats by the Rivers to the Sea, to catch Sea-Horſes and Seals.

Betwixt the Rivers Oby and Jeniſia, the Country is full of Woods, and ill-inhabited. Mr. Ides ſpent five Weeks betwixt them on the River Keta, which falls into the Oby, a little South of Narum, being oblig'd to tow againſt the Stream, and ſcarce ever ſaw a Man but now and then an Oſtiack, who immediately fled to the Woods, when they ſaw the Ambaſſador's Veſſels; ſo that he and his Retinue were in danger of being ſtarv'd by Hunger and Cold. The River Keta runs thro a plain Country full of Woods and Shrubs, and the Channel ſo crooked, that he could make but little Expedition. There are few Fiſh in the River, but he and his Company were much reliev'd by ſhooting Wild-Fowl, ſuch as Pheaſants, Partridges, Woodcocks, &c. which came in great Flocks to drink at the River.

Among the Hills North-Eaſt of Jenezeskoi, there are found Mammuts Tongues and Legs, and likewiſe on the Shores of this River and others, as far as the frozen Sea. The Natives ſay this Creature is very like an Elephant, but the Teeth firmer and more crooked. Some of them fancy that they were Elephants drown'd by the general Deluge, and others pretend they live under Ground, and have ſeen the Earth heave up and fall down as they walk'd about. Mr. Ides ſaw ſome of their Teeth black and broken, and others in good Condition and equal to Ivory, of which the Muſcovites make Combs, &c. but what Creatures ſoever they be, he ſays that their Heads and Bones are frequently found in the Banks of thoſe Rivers, when broke by Shoals of Ice. Lower down the River, at a Place call'd Fugania, the Inhabitants ſend out Veſſels a Whale-Fiſhing with good Succeſs; but they muſt watch their Opportunity when the Wind blows from the Land, and drives the Ice out to Sea.

A hundred miles South from Jenezeskoi, the River Tunguska falls into the South-ſide of the Jeniſia; and about ſeventy miles up this River to the Eaſt there's an Iſland called Ribnoi, inhabited chiefly by Ruſſians, which is richly ſtor'd with Sturgeons and other Fiſh. In this River there's a Cataract, or great rocky Water-fall of half a mile, with high Rocks on both ſides; and it is ſo rapid and noiſy, that in ſtill Weather it may be heard twelve Miles. 'Tis very dangerous for Veſſels to paſs either up or down: Thoſe that go down muſt be provided with Rudders fore and aft, and Rowers on both ſides; and the Pilots give their Orders to the Rowers by Signs with a Handkerchief, becauſe no Voice can be heard. It runs ſo ſwift, that Mr. Ides ſays, he has ſeen Ships paſs it in twelve Minutes, and Veſſels are frequently caſt away, unleſs they have very experienc'd Pilots; but the Water ſwells ſo in Winter, that 'tis then paſſable by Sleds. The Veſſels always unload before they paſs it, and the Goods are carried over Land to Places, where they are again put on board. Such as go againſt the Stream, ſpend ſix or ſeven Days with Men continually towing them, and frequently caſting Anchor, to prevent being carried back.

Mr. Ides ſays, the Tonguſians who live in theſe Parts, are tall, ſtrong Men, and have long black Hair, which they tie up in form of a Horſe's Tail, and let it hang over their Backs: that both Sexes go naked in Summer, except a Leather Girdle of about three Hands breadth, which they tie over their Waſte to cover their Pudenda. The Women adorn their Hair with pieces of Coral and Iron, and both carry a Pot on their left Arms full of old ſmoaking Wood, to drive away the Gnats which peſter them in Summer. They make ſeveral Figures on their Foreheads, Cheeks, and Chins, with a Needle and greaſy black Thred run thro their Skins; and this they think a mighty Ornament. In Winter, they have Coats of Doe-Skin border'd with Dog-Skin, and a Piece on their Breaſt hung with the Hair of Horſe-Tails. They have no Woollen or Linen, make their Nets and Sowing-Thred of Fiſh-Skins; and when they go a Buck-Hunting, wear a Roebuck-Skin, with the Horns ſticking upon the Crowns of their Heads, by which they creep near and ſhoot their Game. Their chief Diverſion is to form themſelves into Rings, and one ſtands in the middle with a long Staff, and ſtrikes the Legs of one in the Company, who if he be not nimble enough to avoid the Blow, is duck'd. They lay their Dead upon Trees till the Fleſh rot off, and bury the Bones. They have no Prieſts, but Conjurers, who uſe ſtrange Diabolical Charms and Habits, and ſeem really to be poſſeſſed when they conſult the Devil to diſcover a Thief, &c. The Natives ſtand much in awe of thoſe Fellows, and give them their full Demands to anſwer their Queſtions. The Huts, Idols, and Boats of theſe Tunguſians, are much the ſame with thoſe of the Oſtiacks. They live in Summer by fiſhing, and in Winter by hunting and ſelling of Furs. Eaſt from hence, Lat. 55 ½, Lon. 87. lies Ilinskoi, a Gariſon of the Czar's; and 120 miles South, another call'd Buratskoi, from the Buratti, a Clan of Savage Tartars. They are Pagans, and extend as far Eaſt as the River Selinga, and as far North as the Lake Baikal. They abound with Cattel, and a peculiar ſort of hairy Bulls. They live in low wooden Huts, and ſubſiſt chiefly by hunting. In Spring and Autumn they go out by hundreds on horſeback, encompaſs their Game in a Ring, drive the Deer, &c. cloſe together, let fly their Arrows, and ſeldom miſs. Each Huntſman has thirty Arrows, and every one knows his own by a peculiar mark; but they frequently ſhoot one another. When the Hunting is over, they flay their Game, cut the Fleſh from the Bones, dry it in the Sun, live upon it ſo long as it laſts; and when that's done, go a hunting for more. Their Country abounds with Musk-Cats, wild Sheep, large Camels, and Oxen fit for thoſe that travel to China; and they barter them for Clothes, Furs, and Gold and Silver Bullion; but will take no Coin. The People are ſtrong, and like the Chineſe Tartars. In Summer they wear ſlight red Cloth, and in Winter Coats of Sheep-Skin. They are very naſty, and never waſh themſelves, or cut their Nails. Marry'd Women wear their Hair in two Plaits, mix'd with pieces of Tin. The young ones pleat their Hair ſo as it ſtands an end, and makes them look like the Pictures of Envy. Their Idols are the Carcaſſes of Bucks, Sheep, &c. fix'd on Poles before their Houſes, which they worſhip on their Knees, bowing their Heads and claſping their Hands, without ſaying one Word. They have a ſort of Prieſts, whom they kill when they think fit, and bury them with Clothes and Money, that they may go beforehand to pray for them. When any of them is obliged to take an Oath, they go to a Hill near the Lake Baikal, where they ſwear, and believe that a falſe Swearer will never come down alive. This Hill ſeems to be their chief Idol; for they not only worſhip, but offer Sacrifices of Cattel to it.

Jekutskoi, on the River Angara, Lat. 53 ½. Lon. 92. near the Weſt-ſide of the Lake Baikal, is a conſiderable City, lately rebuilt and fortify'd by the Czar, and has large Suburbs. The neighbouring Country abounds with Corn, Salt, Fleſh, and Fiſh; many Ruſſians have ſettled hereabouts, and improv'd Agriculture. Near the City there's a Cave, from whence a Flame iſſued with great Violence for ſeveral Years, but now there's only a little Smoke. Earthquakes are pretty frequent here in Autumn, but don't do much damage. In the Neighbourhood there's a fine Cloiſter, where reſided a Mongalian Lord who embraced the Greek Religion, and put himſelf under the Czar's Protection. The Mongalians have Prieſts and Nuns, who uſe Roſaries of Beads at their Devotions. One of thoſe Nuns was this Lord's Siſter. She ſeem'd inclinable to turn Chriſtian; and own'd that the Chriſtians God was ſtronger than theirs, whom he had beat out of Heaven.

Baikal-Lake, Lat. 52. Lon. 95. is the Weſt Frontier betwixt Siberia and Dauria on this ſide. Ides ſays, 'tis 40 German Miles long, and 6 broad, the Water freſh and of a deep green colour. It has multitudes of large Sturgeons, Jacks, Sea-Dogs, and other Fiſh, and ſome Iſlands. It freezes over in Winter, when the Ice is 1 ½ Ell thick. Travellers paſs it then with Horſes, Oxen, and Camels, ſharp ſhod: but it is dangerous, becauſe of the high Winds common at this Seaſon, and the rending of the Ice by the Wind pent up under it, which frequently makes a noiſe like Thunder-Claps. The River Silinga falls into it from the South, and the River Angar runs out of it Weſtward ward into the Jeniſia. The Country-People fancy that thoſe who are upon it, and don't call it a Sea, will certainly be drown'd. Theſe Parts abound with fine black Sables, and are inhabited by Mongalians and Burattians.

DAURI, or DAURIA Province.

THE firſt Place here belonging to the Czar is Kabania-Caſtle, at the South-end of the Lake Baikal; and farther to the South-Eaſt, Lat. 53. Lon. 92. lies Ilunskoi, a very large Town, inhabited moſtly by Ruſſians, who live by Sable-hunting. Tunkienskoy-Caſtle, in Lat. 52. Lon. 90. has a ſtrong Gariſon of Coſſacks to cover the Country from the Incurſions of the Mongalians,&c. Udinskoy, Lat. 53. Lon. 94. on the Eaſt-ſide of the River Selinga, where it falls into Baikal-Lake, is a Fortreſs upon a Hill on the River Uda, with a ſtrong Gariſon of Ruſſian Coſſacks to curb the Mongalians. There's a Town at the foot of the Hill. Here are no Trees, but ſtore of Garden-ſtuff, Roots, &c. Jarauna, Lat. 52. Lon. 96. 80 miles South-Eaſt from Udinskoy, is another Coſſack Gariſon, inhabited by Ruſſians, who live by Sable-hunting. The Country betwixt it and Udinskoy is deſolate. The River Uda has few other Fiſh than Jacks and Roach; but annually in June, there come ſhoals of Fiſh, like Herrings, againſt the Stream, from the Lake Baikal, ſo thick that they almoſt cover the Surface of the Water; and the Inhabitants take them with Bags in greater quantities than they can uſe. This part of the Country is alſo ſubject to Earthquakes. The Koni Tunguſians, who live South of this Town, and along the River Angara, are Pagans, but keep fair with the Czar's Subjects; and many of them grow rich by catching fine and beautiful Sables, and ſelling them to the Ruſſians, &c. The Country abounds with fine Lynxes and Squirrels, and ſeveral Lakes which yield plenty of Fiſh: and on their Mountains there are Trees with red Fruit, which in taſte and colour reſemble Apples, and therefore they are call'd Apple-Mountains. One of the Tonguſian Princes came to wait on Ambaſſador Ides, and had ſuch prodigious long Hair bound up in a Leather Band, and wound three times about his Shoulders, that the Ambaſſador was very curious to ſee it: and having treated this Prince with Brandy, which thoſe People are very fond of, he was ſo complaiſant as to untie his Hair; which the Ambaſſador meaſur'd, and found it four Dutch Ells long: and he had a Son of ſix Years of Age, whoſe Hair was an Ell long. Theſe People bury their Dead with their Clothes and Bows, ſhoot the Deceaſed's beſt Horſe, and fix him upon a Pole by his Grave.

Selenginskoi, Lat. 51. near Lon. 95. on the Eaſt-ſide of the River Selinga, is another of the Czar's Frontiers, with a ſtrong Gariſon of Horſe to curb the Mongalians: and is the fartheſt South of any of his Gariſons on this ſide.

Telimba, Lat. 53. Lon. 104. about 70 miles Eaſt from Jarauna, is another Gariſon Town, inhabited by Ruſſians; and the neighbouring Country yields rich black Sables. Betwixt this Place and Jarauna there are many Rocks and Moraſſes.

Nerzinskoi, on the River Nerza, where it falls into the Schilka, Lat. 53. Lon. 105. is the Metropolis of Dauria, 180 miles Eaſt from Telimba. 'Tis pretty ſtrong, well furniſh'd with Braſs Guns, and has a great Gariſon of Horſe and Foot. It lies betwixt high Mountains, but has Champain-Ground enough for their Camels, Horſes, and black Cattel; and Arable Land ſufficient for the uſe of the Inhabitants. About 15 miles round the Country is inhabited by Ruſſians and Coſſacks, who ſubſiſt by Tillage, Grazing, and Fiſhing. Among the Hills, and about the City, there's abundance of Plants, and among others Baſtard Rhubarb, with many Flowers common to us, and others unknown to our Climate, which are very fragrant. There are two ſorts of Tunguſians ſubject to the Czar, who are obliged to be ready with Horſe and Foot againſt the Roving Tartars. They are Pagans, and under a Prince of their own, formerly ſubject to the Emperor of China; but upon a Diſguſt, he put himſelf and his Clan under the Czar's Protection; and has embrac'd the Greek Religion. He is able in a day's time to raiſe 3000 Horſemen arm'd with Bows and Arrows, who are ſo brave, that 50 of them will beat 400 Mongalians. Thoſe near the City ſubſiſt by Grazing; and ſuch of them as live on the Rivers Schilka and Amur, maintain themſelves chiefly by hunting black Sables. This City makes a tolerable Appearance for that part of the World; and has a large wooden Caſtle, where the Governor reſides. All the Citizens are Soldiers, allow'd great Immunities, and drive a conſiderable Trade with China.

The Tonguſians in theſe Parts live in Huts, which they remove on occaſion. Both Sexes are ſtrong, broad-fac'd, ride on horſeback, and are very expert Archers. Their common Drink is Water, but the better ſort drink a ſort of black Tea and Arack diſtill'd from Mare's Milk, which is as ſtrong as Malt Spirits. Their Cows will not ſuffer themſelves to be milk'd, which is the reaſon why Mare's Milk is ſo much in uſe here. The Natives hunt in Spring and Autumn for their Winter and Summer Proviſions, dry their Fleſh in the Sun, and inſtead of Bread uſe the Bulbs of yellow Lillies, of which they make ſeveral Diſhes. They have a peculiar ſort of Arrows with which they ſhoot Fiſh; and a very odd cuſtom of taking an Oath, either to clear themſelves or accuſe others. They take a live Dog, which they lay on the Ground, ſtab him, and ſuck out all the Blood; and this is reckon'd a ſufficient Confirmation of what they ſay. The Governor of Nerzinskoi keeps the Children of the principal Tunguſians, as Hoſtages, and treats them well; which keeps thoſe People in Obedience.

Argun, or Argunskoi, on the River Argun, lies 60 miles South from Nerzinskoi, Lat. 51 ½, near Lon. 105. The Country betwixt Nerzinskoi and this Place, is for moſt part ſtony and mountainous, but mix'd with fine large Valleys and Streams, with Herbs, Flowers, lofty Cedars, and Woods of Birch. Mr. Ides obſerv'd in theſe Valleys ſeveral hundred of ruinous Caſtles that were built during the Wars betwixt the Weſtern Tartars and the Kingdom of Nieucheu, as it is now call'd by the Chineſe. This Monarchy reach'd as far South and Eaſt as the Chineſe Wall, and Weſt as Nerzinskoi, which was the Capital, and therefore call'd Nieucheu. It extended likewiſe betwixt the River Amur, the Chineſe Wall, and as far Eaſt as the Sea. Argunskoi is the fartheſt Frontier which the Czar has to the South-Eaſt towards China. 'Tis ſtrongly gariſon'd by Ruſſians, and defended by a Caſtle. The People in the Neighbourhood are the Tunguſi Komni, a fierce warlike Nation, and can on a ſudden bring 4000 Horſemen arm'd with Bows and Arrows from theſe Quarters only, into the Field. They pay the Czar a Tribute in Sables, Linx, and fine grey Ferret-Skins; and keep the Mongalians ſo much in awe, that they only venture now and then to ſteal away ſome Cattel by night. The Tunguſians wear Sheep-Skins in Winter, and Boots like the Chineſe with broad Fur Caps, and a Girdle about their Waiſts, faſtned with thin Iron Plates, and an Arrow, on which they make a ſort of piping Muſick. Their Summer Dreſs is blue Chineſe Callico quilted with Cotton, but they wear no Shirts; and in Summer ride with their Heads ſhav'd, leaving only a Lock behind. They are ſtrong and broad-fac'd, like the Calmucks, and naturally have little or no Beards. The Women are clad much in the ſame manner, and are chiefly diſtinguiſhed by plaited Locks of Hair which hang down on each ſide their Face, adorn'd with Rings of Silver or Tin. They buy as many Wives as they can keep, and are not much concern'd at their having liv'd with other Men. They believe there's a God in Heaven, but pay him no Worſhip, and by Night they apply themſelves to their Idols, by beating Drums and Exorciſms for Succeſs in Hunting or War. They truck Furs with the Chineſe Tartars for Callico, Linen, and Tobacco, to conſiderable Advantage.

By a Treaty betwixt the Czar and the Emperor of China, in 1689. the River Argun which riſes in the Mongalian Country, Lat. 45. and falls into the Schilka or Amur, Lat. 51. was made the Boundary of their Dominions on that ſide. The Weſt of the River belongs to the Czar, and on the Eaſt begins the great Tartarian Wilderneſs.

The River Gorbiza, which falls into the Schilka or Amur, Eaſt of Nerzinskoi, Lat. 51 ½. Lon. 105. ſeparates the Czar's and the Chineſe Dominions on that ſide. The Eaſt of the River, as far as the Sea, belongs to the Chineſe; but the Weſt ſide, and the Country North of it, belong to the Czar, whoſe Dominions extend from the River Tugur, which falls into the Eaſtern Sea, Lat. 56 ½. Long. 120. to the North Sea. The Country betwixt this River and that of Uda, which falls into the Eaſt Sea at Lat. 60. yleids great quantities of black Sables, and their Banks are inhabited by Tunguſians, Alemurians, and Coreſians. The latter ſeem to have come from Corea, which is diſtant but one day's ſail with a favourable Wind. They are ſaid to have ſettled firſt on the great River Amur, which falls into the Eaſt Sea about Lat. 45 ½. and afterwards ſpread farther. Thoſe who live on the Coaſt, depend chiefly on Fiſhing; but many of the Inland People grow very rich, by great numbers of the beſt Sables, and other Furs which they ſell.

There comes annually from the Iſlands in the Eaſtern Sea to the Banks of the Tugur and Uda, a People well dreſs'd in fine Surtouts of Fur, with ſilken Coats under them. They are a tall manly People with great Beards, come in ſmall Barks from the Iſlands which may be ſeen from the ſhore, buy Girls and Women from the Siberian Tartars and Tunguſians, and give them rich Sables and black Fox-Skins in exchange. They ſay their Iſlands abound with thoſe Commodities, and ſollicit thoſe People to come and trade with them. They pretend that all the Country from the River Lena to the Eaſt Sea, did formerly belong to them; and their Language has an Affinity with the Natives of that Country.

The Woods Weſt from the Rivers Tugur and Uda, are ſtrongly guarded by the Ruſſians and their Subjects, to prevent the Chineſe Tartars from hunting Sables there.

Northwards from the River Uda, to that call'd the Icy or Holy Cape, on the North Sea, the Coaſt abounds with Whales, Sea-Horſes, and Sea-Dogs. Kamzatka, on the Coaſt, Lat. 71. Lon. 123. is the chief Town in that part of the Country, and by ſome reckon'd Capital of its Province. It lies near a Gulph that yields prodigious numbers of Sea-Horſes, and other Fiſh. The Inhabitants are the Xuxi and Koeliki, who have a peculiar Language. Thoſe next the Sea are clad in Seal-Skins, and live in Caverns under ground; but the People of the Inland Country are enrich'd by their Fur-Trade, and abound with Deer, which they hunt, and eat raw, as they do alſo their Fiſh. They waſh themſelves in their own Urine, are treacherous, and their chief Arms are Slings, which they uſe with great Dexterity. The Country from hence to the Holy Cape, about Lat. 75. Lon. 132. is cover'd with Snow, but not very deep, becauſe it falls only in the beginning of Winter. The Sea about the Icy Cape is crowded with Iſlands. The Climate here is ſo very cold, that the Sea is cover'd with Mountains of Ice, and ſometimes is frozen up for two or three Years ſucceſſively, as happen'd from 1694, to 1697.

Weſt from the Icy Cape, along the Coaſt, lie the Diſtricts of Anadirskoy and Sabaliskoy, inhabited by the Xuxi, &c. and ſome of their Rivers abound with fine Herrings, Sturgeons, Sterbeth, &c. The Inland Country has many Winter-Houſes, call'd in their Language Simouio, inhabited by Ruſſian Coſſacks, who collect the Czar's Taxes and Tolls, and particularly Sables.

The great River Lena, which riſes near the Lake Baikal, Lat. 55. near Lon. 95. ſeparates the Provinces of Siberia and Dauria, on this ſide, and after a Courſe of 1080 miles, falls into the Icy Sea. It receives many other Rivers on both ſides, along which there are multitudes of fine black Sables, and other Furs; ſo that the Tartars ſell 1000 Ermins for about 40 s. On the Banks of thoſe Rivers there's ſuch plenty of Corn and Cattel, that all ſorts of Proviſions are very cheap. Along the Banks of the Lena, the Skeletons and Teeth of Mammuts are frequently found, when the Shoals of Ice upon a Thaw break the Shore.

The City Jakutskoy, on the Weſt-ſide of this River, Lat. 67. Lon. 101. is the Capital of all this Northern Province, and the Seat of a Muſcovite Governor. From this City they ſend Barks in Summer, which fiſh when the Seas are open, along the Coaſt as far at Kamzatka, for Sea-Calves, Morſes, &c. and make abundance of Train-Oil. The neighbouring Heathens, who are a Branch of the Tartars, make uſe of ſmall Leathern Boats, with which they row very ſwiftly on this River. The Country about this City, and the River Amga, is inhabited by a People call'd Jakutiſians. They have upper Coats of various-colour'd Furs ſew'd together, and border'd with Buck-Skin. They have long Hair, wear no Linen, keep as many Wives as they can maintain, make uſe of Stags for carrying Burdens and Riding, and go a vaſt way in a little time. They pretend to be the Offspring of the Calmucks, and that they were drove to this Country by the Ruſſians. They believe a Supreme Being, who gives them Life, and every thing elſe; and have a great Feſtival in the Spring, when they make great Fires, and ſprinkle Arack towards the Eaſt in honour of this Being; and when any one of them dies, his neareſt Relation is bury'd alive with him, to keep him Company in the other World. Their Language is a Dialect of the Bulgarian. They are much afflicted with the Scurvy, for which they eat raw Fiſh and a ſort of Tar, with ſucceſs. Other parts of this Country are inhabited by Heathens call'd Jugogayers, who when their Relations die, cut off their Fleſh from their Bones, dry the Skeleton, hang it with pieces of Glaſs of ſeveral colours, and carry it round their Huts by way of Worſhip. The Coaſt from the River Lena to the River Traida, in Lon. 75. is little known, the Sea being unnavigable becauſe of Ice; and the Inhabitants betwixt this River and Jeniſia, are Samoieds.

Having thus deſcrib'd the Czar's Dominions in Aſia, it remains that we give an Account of a Ridge of Mountains which runs through this vaſt Country, and are by the Inhabitants call'd Pojas, or the Ridge of the World. Mr. Ides ſays they begin at the Lake Peterskoi, Lat. 62. Long. 60. run thro the Province of Wergaturia, from thence South to the Caſtle of Utka, Lat. 55. Long. 55. then further South to the Borders of the Calmucks, Lat. 50. run Eaſt thro that Country, and the Borders of Siberia, along by the Heads of the Rivers Oby and Irtis; then South to the Head of the River Jeniſia; and afterwards, in ſhape of an Elbow, to the North-Eaſt and South; then South along the River Selenga, and from thence Eaſt to the ſandy Deſarts in the Mongalian Country, where they are interrupted for ſome Days Journey. Then they run South as far as the great Wall of China, and at laſt Eaſt to the Sea. Theſe Mountains are very troubleſome to paſs, beſides the great Danger that Travellers run for want of Proviſion for themſelves and their Cattel, and the Ambuſcades of Tartars who lie in wait for them; and in Summer frequently ſet fire to the long ſcorch'd Graſs in the Valleys, which runs like Wildfire, puts the Lives of Men and Beaſts in danger, and gives the Tartars an Opportunity to ſurprize Travellers during the Clouds of Smoke.

We muſt alſo obſerve, that M. de L'Iſle and others, repreſent in their Maps a Chain of Mountains, which run out into a Point on the N. E. Quarter of Aſia, near Lat. 60. and ſay, 'tis not known where that Point ends, or whether it may not join to ſome other Continent; but ſince Ambaſſador Ides has no ſuch thing in his Map, we muſt leave the Reader to his own Judgment of it, eſpecially ſince that Ambaſſador had a better Opportunity to know that Country than any other European.

GREAT TARTARY

IS ſo call'd, to diſtinguiſh it from Little Tartary in Europe. Under the Name of Great Tartary was formerly comprehended not only all that part of Muſcovite Aſia, already deſcrib'd, but all the Country South to the Frontiers of Perſia, the Dominions of the Mogul, India, and China, and from the River Don, or Tanais, to the Eaſt-Sea, that divides the Lands of Jeſſo and Japan from the Continent of Aſia. But the more antient Name was that of Scythia, divided into Scythia on this ſide, and on the other ſide the Mountain Imaus; part of the ſame Ridge of Mountains which Ides has deſcrib'd as above, and which they extended from Lat. 40. to the frozen Ocean, over againſt Nova Zembla.

For the Subdiviſions of antient Scythia, we refer to Cellarius and others, who treat of antient Geography.

Hiſtorians and Geographers did formerly give very fabulous Repreſentations of this Country, and of their Grand Cham. Authors are divided about the Origin and Hiſtory of the Tartars. Some derive the Name from the word Tatari, which in Syriack and Hebrew ſignifies a Remnant, as if they were deſcended from the ten Tribes of Iſrael, carry'd away by Salmanaſſer. Others from a River and Country nam'd Tatar, which Burgomaſter Witſen takes to be the River Quantung on the Frontiers of China, where it falls into the River Amur. But the moſt probable ſignification of the Name is Invaders or Robbers, and that they were at firſt compos'd of ſeveral Nations, who ſhook off the Yoke of their Tyrant; and joining together for common Liberty were call'd Tartars, by thoſe whom they reſiſted or invaded. Their Name came to be firſt known and formidable in Europe about 1168. when they ſubdu'd part of Muſcovy, and ſettled in the Taurica Cherſoneſus, now the Crim. They are ſaid to have been oppreſs'd by the King of Tenduc, whom they defeated, and ſettled their Leader Cingis-Chan upon the Throne about 1202. Theſe Authors make the Great Tamerlane his fifth Succeſſor, and a Prince of the Blood-Royal. The beſt Account we have of him is his Hiſtory writ by Mr. Sainctyon, dedicated to Lewis XIV. and publiſh'd by his Authority at Paris in 1677. He wrote it from the Memoirs of Alhacent, a famous Arabian, who attended that Prince in all his Expeditions, and was his Hiſtorian. He makes him Son to Og King of Zagatai, the antient Parthia; ſays he was born Anno Chriſti 1335. and that his Name ſignify'd Celeſtial Grace: whereas others derive it from Timur, which ſignifies Iron, becauſe he was always in War; and Lenk, which ſignifies Lame, becauſe he was born with a Weakneſs in one Leg. He diſcover'd a Greatneſs of Soul from his Infancy, upon which his Father had him inſtructed by the beſt Maſters of all Faculties in thoſe days, and he was particularly well vers'd in Aſtronomy, Aſtrology, and the Zoroaſtrian Divinity. He exceeded all the Youth of his time in military Exerciſes, ſo that he was the Delight of Mankind. His Father growing old, reſign'd him the Government, and appointed two of his greateſt and ableſt Lords to be his Counſellors, till he came of Age. Being at Peace with his Neighbours, in the beginning of his Reign, he apply'd himſelf to his Studies and Devotion, and by his Mildneſs and Affability gain'd the Hearts of all his Subjects, ſo that they regarded him as their common Father. He was very religious, believ'd in one God the Creator of all things, gave every one liberty, who believ'd the like, to worſhip him in their own way, but was a mortal Enemy to Idolatry. He very much favour'd the Chriſtians: ſo that, according to this Hiſtorian, he wanted nothing of a Chriſtian but the Name, and moſt of his great Exploits were owing to the Conduct of Axalla a Chriſtian, originally a Genoeſe, and bred up with him from his Youth. Tamerlane was very beautiful and majeſtick, and pretended to be deſcended from Sampſon, which made him the more reſpected by his Subjects, and dreaded by his Neighbours. His firſt War was with the Muſcovites, who invaded Caſan and Aſtracan, and pillag'd his Frontiers. He commanded his Army in Perſon, defeated them in a great Battel, forc'd them to ſue for Peace, and pay him Tribute. This rais'd his Character ſo much, that the Great Cham, his Uncle by the Father's ſide, gave him his Daughter and Heireſs, and appointed him Succeſſor. After this, by Order of his Uncle, and in conjunction with his Troops, he prepar'd to invade the Emperor of China; during which Expedition he fell ſick, which gave an Opportunity to ſome great Tartar Lords to form a Plot againſt his Succeſſion, on pretence that he was a Parthian, and that it was below the Dignity of the Tartars to be govern'd by a Foreigner. Accordingly they broke out into a Rebellion under Calix, one of their chief Nobles, which oblig'd Tamerlane to return. He fought the Rebels, and after a great and bloody Battel, wherein he was diſmounted, and in danger of his Life, he was ſeaſonably reſcu'd by his Chriſtian General Axalla, who routed the Enemy, and took their General, that was afterwards beheaded, with two hundred of the chief Rebels, which put an end to the Rebellion. After this Victory he march'd againſt China, defeated and took their King, with two of his Confederates; who expecting to be put to death by the Conqueror, according to the barbarous Cuſtom of their own Country, he generouſly reſtor'd them to their Thrones, on condition of becoming Tributaries, and paying the Charges of the War. They gave him Hoſtages of the Royal Blood for performing the Treaty, and the River Quantung was eſtabliſh'd as the Border of the two Empires. He tranſported the chief of the conquer'd Chineſe into his own Country, and ſent Parthians in their ſtead, to keep the ſubdu'd Provinces in Obedience. After this Victory he return'd with his Queen, who attended him all the while, to his Father-in-law, who met him at a good diſtance from his Capital, and wou'd have alighted from his Horſe to receive and embrace him as his Sovereign; but Tamerlane would not admit of it, and on the contrary alighted from his own Horſe, and paid all the Homage and Reſpect to the old Cham that was due from a Subject, which more and more endear'd Tamerlane to the Tartars.

His next Expedition was againſt Bajazet the Sultan of the Turks, at the Deſire of the Greek Emperor Paleologus, whom Bajazet had beſieg'd in Conſtantinople. Axalla, who was related to that Emperor, commanded in chief under Tamerlane; and Bajazet hearing of his March, rais'd the Siege, encounter'd Tamerlane in a Plain near the Euxine Sea, but was defeated and taken Priſoner by Axalla; tho the Victory was chiefly owing to Tamerlane's own Conduct and Courage, who had a Horſe kill'd under him, and was wounded with a Lance. Our Author ſays, that in this great Victory the Turks had 60000 Men kill'd, and Tamerlane 20000. One of his Priſoners was the Deſpot of Servia, who being a Chriſtian, Tamerlane treated him civilly, yet reproach'd him for taking Arms againſt the Chriſtians; but being perſuaded that he did it not out of Affection to Bajazet, but to ſave his own Dominions, he gave him his Liberty. Tamerlane order'd Bajazet's two Sons to be treated like Priſoners of Quality, and ſent them at length to the Emperor of Conſtantinople for their Education. And after ſolemn Thanks to God, for putting ſo great an Enemy of himſelf and all Mankind into his hands, he order'd Bajazet, who rav'd like a Man in Deſpair, wiſh'd for Death, and anſwer'd him haughtily, to be ſhut up in an Iron Cage, and made uſe of it as a Foot-ſtool on ſolemn Occaſions, when he mounted his Horſe. Upon this Victory all the Aſiatick Provinces, formerly conquer'd by the Turks, ſubmitted to Tamerlane, and he was congratulated by a ſolemn Embaſſy of Nobles from the Greek Emperor, who ſubmitted himſelf and his Empire as Homagers, for having ſo ſeaſonably reſcu'd him from Bajazet's Fury; but Tamerlane reſtor'd him generouſly to the full poſſeſſion of his Empire, which was ſuch unexpected Tidings of Joy to the Emperor, that he went in Perſon to Burſa to thank him, and Tamerlane return'd with him incognito to Conſtantinople, where the Emperor made him magnificent Preſents, and ſwore a perpetual Alliance with him.

After this Tamerlane made war upon the Sultan of Egypt for aſſiſting Bajazet; and being join'd by 10000 of the Greek Emperor's beſt Horſe, conquer'd Syria, India, Egypt, and the greateſt part of Africa: and in his Return viſited Jeruſalem, paid his Devotions at our Saviour's Sepulchre, and ſubdu'd Perſia. He return'd with great Triumph to his own Country, and then to Tartary, where he had quiet poſſeſſion of the Empire after his Uncle's Death, and was joyfully receiv'd by his Empreſs, who had borne him a Son during his Abſence. As he was on an Expedition to ſubdue the Empire of Greece, the new Emperor of which had made a League with the Turks, he was taken ſick, which oblig'd him to return to his Capital; where, on his Death-Bed, he receiv'd receiv'd the News of Axalla's Victories, sent for the Prince his Son, gave him excellent Advice, recommended him to Axalla's Care, and soon after dy'd, resigning his Soul with great Submission into the hands of God, to whom he ascrib'd all his Victories. He took particular Delight in reading the History of our Saviour, and his Miracles. He dy'd in the 66th Year of his Age, A. C. 1405. Mr. Saintlyon says, he far surpass'd Cæsar and Alexander, had all their great Virtues, and none of their Vices, and extended his Conquests further than either of them. The Great Maurice of Nassau, Prince of Orange, always carry'd his History in his Pocket, and preferr'd it to Cæsar's Commentaries and Xenophon's Cyropaidia, as a more proper Model for great Generals and Princes. Alhacent says, he was succeeded by Sentrachio his eldest Son; but Letrachio the younger rebell'd and carry'd the Sovereignty, which ruin'd the Grandeur of the Family, and the greatest Empire then on Earth. We have little Certainty about his other Successors; but Allau, one of them, is said to have turn'd Christian. Some derive the Great Mogul from a third Son of Tamerlane, but of that in its place. Upon the whole, what is said by antient Historians of the Great Chams of Tartary, must either be referr'd to Tamerlane and his Predecessors, or with some Qualifications to the Chams of Zagatay or Tanguth; for there has been no such Prince as the Great Cham of Tartary, properly speaking, in Asia, for many Years.

The Geography of TARTARY.

THE Atlas Historique divides Great Tartary into twenty five Parts; but many of them are already describ'd in Muscovite Asia, and some of the rest belong to the Empire of China, which we refer to their proper Place.

The Country in which the Tartars are now properly Sovereigns, extends almost from the Volga on the West, to the Indian Sea on the East. 'Tis bounded by Muscovite Asia on the North; the Caspian Sea, the Mogul's Dominions, and those of China on the South; but is much contracted to what it was formerly in breadth, and divided into so many Hords and Clans, under petty Princes for the most part, that they make nothing of their antient Figure. 'Tis divided into the Territories of the Usimzi, Calmuck Tartars, &c. Independent Tartary, Western Tartary, and Eastern Tartary; the last of which belongs to the Chinese, and each of these have their Subdivisions under peculiar Princes, but none of our Maps are distinct as to their Boundaries.

We shall begin at the West, and take them East, as they lie in the Map. The Usimzi Tartars lie East from the Volga, and are curb'd by Muscovite Garisons on the North-East, and West by the Nagay Tartars, subject to the Muscovites. On the South South-East from the Usimzi lie the Baskirzi Tartars, curb'd likewise by Muscovite Garisons. East from them lie the Calmucks, and other Hords, as far as the River Oby, who are also bridled by Muscovite Garisons. The Czar makes them yearly Presents to prevent their Incursions into his Dominions, and because of the Men and Horse which they are oblig'd to furnish him with on Occasion. They are very troublesome to the neighbouring Tartars, and were particularly so to the Nagaians, till the Muscovites furnish'd the latter with Cannon and other Fire-Arms. Their chief Cham pretends to be descended from Tamerlane, and is so powerful, that both the Muscovites and Usbeck Tartars court his Friendship. Some say he is always clad in white, and serv'd in Gold-Plate. His Subjects live in movable Tenets, and roam about with their Flocks of Cattel. The River Jaick runs thro part of their Country, falls into the Caspian Sea, Lat. 45. Long. 85. and is so well stor'd with Fish, especially Sturgeon, that the Inhabitants easily catch them on the Banks, with Hooks fasten'd to the ends of Poles. The River is large, and the Country on both sides abounds with Wood, Grass, Herbs, and wild Fruit-Trees. There are many Caves on these Coasts of the Caspian Sea, frequented by multitudes of Swans, that cast their Feathers every Midsummer, of which and their Skins the Russians make great Profit. There are several other wandring Clans on the East side of this River, and the North East of the Caspian Sea, who are valiant, have Princes of their own, but the Country is barren, the People miserably poor, live in wretched Huts on Horse-Flesh and Mare's Milk, and what they can plunder from their Neighbours. They sometimes put themselves under the Protection of the Persians, and at other times under the Czar. They are for the most part Mahometans, and tho govern'd by particular Lords, they chuse one to govern the whole Community, whom they call Schamkall; upon whose Death all those Lords meet, sit down in a Circle, into which a Priest throws a golden Apple; and he that is first touch'd by it, is appointed Successor. The Calmucks in general are divided into Black, White, Brown, and Fugitives, and inhabit chiefly betwixt the Caspian Sea and Long. 85. and betwixt Lat. 40, and 50.

On the South-East of the Caspian Sea, lie those call'd Turcumans and Usbeck Tartars, whose Country has part of Persia on the West, the Calmucks and Turchestan on the East, and part of the Mogul's Dominions on the South. Some include this Country in Independent Tartary, and make Zagatay, the Hereditary Dominions of the Great Tamerlane, the Western Part of it. He himself extended his Country as far North as Latit. 50. and about Long. 60. he erected a Pillar with the Date of his Expeditions this way. What was his Country, is reckon'd the best inhabited part of Tartary, and has a great Trade with Persia. The Inhabitants are the most civil and cunning of the Western Tartars, have been sometimes subject, and sometimes Enemies to the Persians, and been at War with the Indians and Chinese. They have excellent Manna, which they sell to the Chinese, and have Silk in exchange, which they sell to the Muscovites. Sir John Chardin says, they are call'd Usbecks, which signifies a hundred Lords, because of the many Principalities into which their Country is divided. He was invited by an Ambassador of one of their Princes at Ispahan, to his Master's Court at Balki, where he promis'd him good Entertainment, and Vent for his Merchandize; but Sir John being inform'd by the greatest Merchants at Ispahan, that several Armenian Merchants had been murder'd and plunder'd there, notwithstanding their Passports, he did not comply with the Invitation. He says the Ambassador and his Retinue were intolerably ragged and nasty, look'd like Highway-men, and liv'd like Beasts. They were about four Inches lower than Europeans, but more bulky in proportion, with red large square Faces, flat Noses, and little Eyes; and so like the Chinese, that he believes they were of the same Origin. They are so zealous for Omar, who made them first Mahometans, that they hate the Persians who follow Ali, and commonly say, The Jews ride to Hell on the Persians Backs. 'Tis usual for them, when they travel to Persia, to bind themselves by Oath, to kill any one that curses Omar, tho they should die for it. They perform it accordingly; and thus the Train of one of their Ambassadors was all cut off at Ispahan: and ever since, when any of them come thither, Proclamation is publish'd by Sound of Trumpet, forbidding any one to curse Omar so loud as the Usbecks may hear it. Sanson the Missionary says, they are formidable Enemies to the Persians, whose Country they invaded in his time. They have swift indefatigable Pads, and carry but little Provisions, for they eat their Baggage-Horses raw, and when they are overtaken with Thirst in the Desarts, prick their Necks, and suck their Blood; so that the Persians, who live more luxuriously, are not able to pursue them thro the scorching Desarts. The chief Places here are,

1. Samarcand, Lat. 40. Long. 66. Ptolemy calls it Maracanda, and Strabo Paracanda. Bessus, one of Darius's Murderers, was seiz'd here, and deliver'd to Alexander, who put him to death. 'Twas in this place where he also cut off his Friend Clytus, who sav'd him at the Battel of Granicus. Spitamenes held it out some time against the Macedonians, and fled hence to Bactria. 'Twas the Place of the Birth, Death, and Seat of the Great Tamerlane, who enrich'd it with the Spoils of the East, and made it a magnificent City, but 'tis now much decay'd. It has still an Academy, which he founded, and is highly esteem'd by the Mahometans. Avicenna the Philosopher is said to have been born here in 880. It was a great Mart for some Ages, betwixt the Indians and Roman Subjects.

2. Bochara, on the River Oxus, seventy Miles South-West of Samarcand; 'tis now the Capital of the Usbecks, was formerly encompass'd with an earthern Wall, and divided into three Parts, two were the King's, and the third was for Merchants and Markets of every sort. Most of the Houses were of Earth, when Jenkinson was here; but they had many Houses, Temples, and Monuments of Stone, with Baths sumptuously and artificially built and gilt. The Prince's Revenue is but small, arising from the Tenth of what's sold in the City; yet once a Year the Place is much frequented by Merchants from Persia, Russia, &c. 'Tis the Seat of a Metropolitan, who depose the King at pleasure. Jenkinson says, one of them, in his time, murder'd the Prince by Night in his Chamber, because he lov'd the Christians.

3. Balke, or Balch, 120 miles S. E. from Bochara, is also a Town of Trade, and the Residence of a Prince, to whose Court Sir John Chardin was invited.

4. Irken, 210 miles N. E. of Samarcand, is the Residence of the Calmucks Prince.

Turchestan, or Tocharestan, lies S. and S. E. from Zagatay. Herbert makes it the original Country of the Turks, the Posterity of Togamah, the Son of Gomar, who was shut up in these Parts by Alexander the Great, and made no Appearance till the long Wars betwixt the Emperor Heraclius and Chosroes the Persian. It has old Cathay and sandy Desarts on the West. Eusebius says, that in his time it was well govern'd, and disallow'd of Idolatry, which some ascribe to the Jews that mix'd with them, and others to the preaching of the Apostles St. Thomas and St. Andrew. It had then many Towns of Note, and some make the Kingdoms of Little and Great Tibbet, Cascar, &c. with Capitals of their own Names, parts of this Country; which they say produces Corn, Wine, Flax, Hemp, Cotton, excellent Rhubarb, Jasper, and other precious Stones. But Ides makes the present Names Bugaria and Zagatay Kabul.

E. S. and S. E. from hence lie the Mongals, or Mongalian Tartars, as far as East Tartary, divided into many Hords or Clans. They possess a vast Tract of Land, and are under many Princes, whose Jurisdictions are not well distinguish'd in our Maps; but there are three of 'em who seem to be the chief. Ides says, that in his time these three were Brothers, and that the People are suppos'd to be of the Race of Gog and Magog. The eldest Brother was the Kuttugt or High-Priest of the Nation. His Residence was at Kudack, near the Head of the River Selinga, Lat. 43. Lon. 95. This is suppos'd to be the Vicar of the Great Lama, or Tartar Prince and Idol, of whom Authors have told such strange Stories. According to some, he has his Residence in the Fortress of Beatalac, near Barantola, in the Kingdom of Tangut, betwixt the great sandy Desart, the Kingdom of Tibet, and Frontiers of the Mogul's Country, Lat. 36. Lon. 95. He is worshipped like a Deity by the Mongalians and other Tartars, who send for his Blessing from the remotest Parts. Athanasius Kircher, and others, say, the greatest Tartar Princes and Lords esteem themselves happy if by rich Presents they can obtain some of his Excrements dry'd, which they put into a Gold Box, and carry about their Necks as a Preservative against all Calamities; and sometimes mix his Excrements and Water with their Medicines. They are made to believe, he never dies, but renews his Age, like the Moon; and the Lama's or Priests about him carry on the Cheat, by having always in readiness one as like him as they can, bury the Lama secretly when he dies, and set up the other in his stead. They keep him in a secret part of his Palace, which is adorn'd with Gold, Silver, and Precious Stones, and enlighten'd by costly Lamps. He sits on a rich Throne to receive Adoration, but no Man is suffer'd to come very near him. Kircher says, that in 1629, when the chief Monarch of the Tartars conquer'd China, his Tartar Subjects would needs have him go and worship this Idol; but Father Adams, a Christian, who was intimate with that Prince, dissuaded him from it; so that the Lama was only admitted to the Garden of his Palace at Pekin, where he receiv'd the usual Presents, but the Emperor would not see or pay him Adoration: which pleased the Chinese, who curs'd the Lama, and charg'd him with being the Author of all their Calamities, instead of giving them his Blessing. The inferior Lama's who attend him, have a sort of loose Habits of red or yellow, much of the same fashion with those in which the Apostles are usually painted. Magnillans thinks this proceeds from an Account in the Chinese Chronicles, that one Tamo, an excellent Man, came and taught them a holy Law, and did many Miracles among among them during the Reign of the Family of Han, that was Cotemporary with our Saviour; but not meeting with the desir'd Success, he return'd to India. This is suppos'd to have been the Apostle St. Thomas, who is said to have preach'd in those Parts; and there are still a great many Christians in the East Parts of Asia, who call themselves by his name.

This Lama is in the Language of the Country nam'd Prestigiani, i. e. Apostolick; which Europeans not understanding, call'd him Pretty Janni, and afterwards Prester John: whom by mistake the Portuguese Missionaries took for the Emperor of Abyssinia, because that Prince is a Christian, and has a Cross always carry'd before him, and that upon enquiry they could hear of no such Christian Prince in East-India, where they suppos'd him to have liv'd. Father Avril and others take the Lama to be the elective Successor of Prestigiani, who was the Patriarch of the Christians in Tartary, and invested also with the Temporal Power of a Prince; that his chief Residence was in Indostan or Great India, now the Mogul's Country, where he defeated the Tartars sent against him by the Great Cham, according to St. Anthony's History, Tom 3. and Paulus Venetus, who having been long at the Court of the Great Cham, places the Lama in Tenduc, alias Tangut, much the same where Ides now places him: but the Country being over-run with Paganism, the Tartars have set up their Lama in his stead. The Name signifies a Cross, and those who adore this Idol, still wear Crosses about them, which they preserve with great Care.

This Lama now has only the Superintendency of Religion, and his Deputy manages all Temporal Affairs. This Deputy was the eldest of the three Brothers, who, Ides says, govern'd the Mongalians in chief, and with his second Brother put himself under Protection of the Emperor of China, against the chief Prince of the Calmucks, by whom they suffer'd much in 1688, and 1689; but their third Brother robb'd and plunder'd where-ever any Booty was to be had, made Incursions even to the Chinese Wall, and shar'd his Prey with the neighbouring Tartar Hords, to keep 'em firm in their Allegiance to him. These Mongalians do for most part keep fair with the Muscovites, but hate the Bogdoi or Eastern Tartars ever since they conquer'd China and united with that Empire: in the Description of which, we shall give an Account of them.

TURKET in ASIA.

IS bounded on the West by the Straits of Constantinople, the Archipelago, the Mediterranean, the Isthmus of Suez, and the Red-Sea; on the East by the Dominions of Persia, the Persian and the Arabian Gulphs; on the South by the Straits of Babelmandel and the Eastern Ocean; and on the North by the Black Sea and Circassia: So that it lies betwixt North Lat. 14, and 45. which from South to North is 1860 Miles. The Breadth East and West is betwixt Long. 25, and 60. but not equal, being indented by the Mediterranean, the Red Sea, and the Gulph of Persia. The greatest Breadth is in Arabia, from Geddo on the Red Sea, to Cape Rozalgate, which is about 900 Miles. The narrowest Place is betwixt Alexandretta on the Mediterranean, and the Frontiers of Persia, about 315 Miles. The greatest Breadth in the North-part, is from the Archipelago to the Frontiers of Persia, about 600 Miles.

There is such Variety of Climates and Soil in this vast Country, that we cannot pretend to give any Account of its Product in general, some of it being very fruitful, and other Parts very barren; and many of the fruitful Places lie uncultivated, because of the Severity of the Turkish Government, and the Incursions of the Arabs: so that we must refer the Accounts of the Product to the particular Countries, as we describe them. The Asiatick Turks in general are charg'd with being much given to Sensuality and Idleness. The Inhabitants are for the most part Mahometan, with a considerable mixture of Jews, but a greater of Greeks; and in the trading Towns there are Protestants and Papists. The Country in general has suffer'd much by War, Pestilence, and Earthquakes.

NATOLIA.

WE begin with this Country, according to the Course of the Map. It is by some call'd Anatolia and Ænatole, and by the Turks Nadula; all which signify its Eastern Situation from Europe. It was formerly call'd Asia Minor, and most of it lies in form of a Peninsula, betwixt the Black Sea on the North, the Straits of Constantinople and the Archipelago on the West, the Mediterranean on the South, and Armenia on the East. But the Turks divide it into Modern Natolia, which is the West Part of the Country; Amasia, which is the North Part; Carmania, the South Part; and Aladulia the Eastern. The Country in general, betwixt the Archipelago and the Frontiers of Armenia, is about six hundred Miles long: and betwixt the Mediterranean and Black Sea three hundred and eighty broad. It lies betwixt Lat. 35. and 42. and Lon. 28. and 41. so that the longest Day in the North is about fifteen hours ¼, and in the South about fourteen hours ½. In the West Part lay Mysia Major and Minor, South from the Propontis or Sea of Constantinople. East from that Sea lay Bithynia, South from Mysia Minor lay Æolis near the Coast, South from thence lay Ionia, and South from thence upon the Mediterranean lay Doris. All this is now call'd Natolia Modern or Proper. East from Bithynia lay Pontus; East from thence Galatia, a large Country. All these three have the Black Sea on the North, and go by the name of Amasia. The latter reach'd as far South as Mount Taurus. South-East from Æolis and Ionia lay Phrygia Major and Minor, bounded on the North by Mysia Major and Pontus, on the East by Galatia, and on the South by Lycia and Pamphylia, which reach to the Mediterranean Sea. The North part is included in Natolia, and the South is nam'd Carmania. East from Pamphylia lay Cilicia, which had the Mediterranean on the South, part of Armenia and Syria on the East; 'tis also included in Carmania: Cappadocia lay North of it, was a large Country, bounded by Galatia on the West, Armenia on the East, and the Black Sea on the North, and is now part of Aladulia and Amasia.

The Metropolis of Natolia Proper was the antient Cotiæum, or Cotyæum, now Chiutaie, formerly a Bishop's See, and the Seat of the Grand Signior before the taking of Constantinople: It lies in Lat. 41. 8. Long. 32. 90. miles South-East from Constantinople, and is the Seat of the Beglerbeg, Bacha, or chief Governor of Natolia. Other Places of Note are,

1. Scutari, which is reckon'd a Suburb of Constantinople, and lies East from it on the other side the Strait, near a Cape antiently call'd the Ox-Passage. From whence it is plain, that the Bosphorus began here. The Current is so strong, that there's no crossing directly betwixt this Place and Constantinople, so that they embark at Cape des Estiees on the Asian Side. Tournefort, in his Voyage to the Levant, publish'd in 1718, says Scutari is the principal Rendevouz of Merchants and Caravans from Asia to Europe, that it was formerly the Port of Chalcedon, and the Persians, when they attempted the Conquest of Greece, made it the Place of their Arms and Treasure, whence it was call'd Chrysopolis. The Athenians made it a Place for exacting Tolls on such as us'd the Black Sea, and wall'd the Town. The Persians afterwards destroy'd it, but the Turks, contrary to their Custom, have rebuilt it, and now 'tis a large beautiful Town. Licinius was taken here, and carry'd to Thessalonica, where he was beheaded by Order of Constantine the Great. The Tower of Leander is just by Cape Scutari, on a Rock, two hundred Paces from the Town. 'Twas built by the Greek Emperor Emanuel, who erected another at the Convent of St. George on the European side, with a Wall into the Sea, and a Chain betwixt the Towers, to hinder Ships from passing the Canal of the Black Sea; but the Turks demolished the Wall, and made use of the Stones elsewhere. 'Tis a square Tower, with some Cannon, but no Garison, so that 'tis of little use. Tho it carries the Name of Leander, the Amour betwixt him and Hero was carry'd on at a great distance on the Canal of the Dardanelles.

2. Chalcedon, by some confounded with Scutari, from which it lies at a small distance, almost over against Constantinople, on the East-side the Strait. 'Twas a very antient City, thought to have been built 148 Years after Rome, and had Temples dedicated to Apollo and Venus. Here Cotta Governor of Bithynia hid himself, during the War with Mithridates, and hither the Roman Admiral Nudus retir'd, after that Prince had defeated him by Land. The fourth General Council was held here against the Eutychians in 451, when 'twas made a Metropolis. It gave the Name of Bosphorus Chalcedonicus to the Straits on which it lies, is now a ruinous Village of about seven or eight hundred Houses, but has still the Remains of some fine Buildings and Fortifications, and the Greeks perform their Worship in the Ruins of a Church, which they think to be St. Eufemia, but that was in a Suburb a Mile out of Town. Tunnies and other Fish abound here.

3. Nicomedia, or Comedia, now Nicor or Ismit, twenty Miles South-East from Scutari, noted for the Baptism of Constantine the Great. 'Tis pleasantly situated at the bottom of a Bay, on the side of a Hill, where there are Fountains, Vineyards, Corn, and Gardens with excellent Fruit, and as good Melons as any in the World. 'Twas nam'd from Nicomedes King of Bithynia, who enlarg'd it; it is noted for the Death of Hannibal and great Numbers of Martyrs. Thevenot says, it has many Remains of Antiquity, that in his time it had 30000 Inhabitants, bitants, many Greek Churches, and a great Trade in Silk, Cotton, Wool, Linen, Fruit, Earthen and Glaſs Ware, and the Dock where Ships were built for Conſtantinople. Diocleſian liv'd here, as did Conſtantine the Great, while Conſtantinople was enlarg'd and rebuilt. It had many Greek Churches, fine Moſques, Market-Places, and Inns; and tho once the Metropolis of Bithynia, is now almoſt deſolate. On the right ſide of the Bay there's a medicinal Fountain, much frequented for Diſeaſes of all ſorts.

4. Nice, now Iſnich, at the Eaſt-ſide of a Lake or Bay, ten Miles South from Nicomedia. Medals were coin'd here in honour of Domitian, by which it appears to have then had the Precedency of the other Towns in the Province. It is famous for the firſt general Council againſt Arius in 325. 'Tis ſtill large, contains about 10000 Greeks, Jews, and Turks. It is ſurrounded by Walls full of round Towers, but the Covered Way is ruined. Here are many Remains of Pagan and Chriſtian Antiquities, but much defac'd by the Turks. The Town is almoſt ſquare, lies in a fine Plain, the Streets are neat; and the People trade to Conſtantinople with Corn, Fruit, Linen, and Cotton. On the North-Eaſt there's a Ridge of Hills, where there are Woods, Vines, Orchards, and Fountains.

5. Pruſias or Pruſa, now Burſa or Bourſe, about 60 Miles South-Weſt from Chiutaye, and thirty South-Weſt from Nice, at the Foot of Mount Olympus, was the Seat of the Kings of Bithynia, and the Reſidence of Aſclepiades the Phyſician, and of the Ottoman Emperors before they ſettled in Europe. It lies near Mount Olympus, and differs from that built by Hannibal, which lay forty Miles further to the North-Weſt, according to Cellarius. Spon and Wheeler ſay the Avenues to the Town are very pleaſant, being ſhaded with Nut, Cheſnut, and Mulberry-Trees; that the great Road is very large, embelliſh'd with Gardens on both ſides, and aſcends gradually to the Town, which is ſtill one of the beſt in theſe Parts, and defended by a Caſtle on a neighbouring Hill. 'Twas taken from the Emperors of the Eaſt by the Turks in 1300 by Stratagem, was about ſix Miles round, and in their time contain'd about 62000 Jews, Greeks, and Armenians. The Grand Signior had a Seraglio here. There are many Moſques, the chief of them that of Aladine, a ſquare Structure, with twenty five ſmall Domes of an equal Size on the Roof. Another was a Greek Church, built in form of a Croſs, with a Dome in the middle, and a Choir of Marble. 'Tis now the Mauſoleum of the Sultan and his Ladies, who took the Town, and contains the Tombs of Bajazet's Children. The Walls of it were built with the Ruins of the antient Town, and has many Columns and Pieces of Marble mix'd with other Stones. Here's a fine Exchange. The Town is well ſupply'd with Fountains, and curious Baths pav'd with white Marble. Some of them are ſo hot, that they boil an Egg. The Water is impregnated with Vitriol, and much frequented. A River with three Bridges over it runs by the Walls. Here are the Tombs of many Sultans, built like Chappels, lin'd with Marble and Jaſper, the Domes painted with Azure and fine Ornaments in Gold and Red, the Floors cover'd with Tapeſtry, upon which lie the Coffins of the Sultans, with their Arms and Turbants about them. The chief Trade here is in Stuffs of Silk, Silver, Gold, and fine Wool, made uſe of for the Seraglio of Conſtantinople; and they have a conſiderable Profit by the Paſſage of Caravans betwixt Aleppo, Smyrna, and Conſtantinople. The Armenians have a Church and a Biſhop here, and there are many Inns for Merchants, with each of them a Moſque and a Fountain, which with the publick Moſques make up two hundred in all. The Caſtle or Fortreſs is encompaſs'd by a Wall, which ſeparates it from the City, and has four Gates. No Chriſtian is allow'd to enter it. About a League from the Town there are many other Baths of admirable Workmanſhip much reſorted to.

Monſieur Tournefort, in his Voyage to the Levant, ſays, it is the biggeſt and moſt magnificent City in Aſia; by which we muſt ſuppoſe he meant Aſia Minor; that it has above three hundred Minarets or Towers of Places of Devotion; that here is an old and a new Seraglio, the former on a ſteep Hill, and very magnificent; that in the Exchange are to be found all the Commodities of the Levant, beſides the Manufactures of the Town; that the Workmen here, as well as the Silk, are the beſt in Turkey, and imitate mighty well the Tapeſtries of France and Italy; that their Moſques are very fine, moſtly cover'd with Lead, and both theſe and their Inns have fine Domes. The Inhabitants conſiſt of 12000 Families of Turks, 400 of Jews, 500 of Armenians, and 300 of Greeks. The Circumference is about three miles. The Suburbs are vaſtly larger, finer, and better peopled than the City, and fill'd with Jews, Armenians, and Greeks, for none but Mahometans are allow'd to dwell in the City. The Jews have four Synagogues, the Greeks three Churches, and the Armenians but one. The Jews here ſpeak as good Spaniſh as at Madrid, that Language being preſerv'd here ever ſince their Anceſtors were forc'd out of Grenada. Here are ſeveral Royal Colleges where Scholars are maintain'd and taught the Arabick and Alcoran gratis. Here's a Baſſa and an Aga of the Janizaries, who commands a Gariſon of 250 Men. The Fortifications of the Town are very indifferent, and as it lies near the ſide of Mount Olympus, 'tis commanded by ſeveral Hills.

Near this City lies Mount Olympus, the higheſt in Aſia Minor, and ſeen at Conſtantinople, tho twenty five Leagues diſtant.

Two Leagues from hence is the Town of Philadar, inhabited by Chriſtians, who are double-tax'd by the Turks, and more ſeverely treated than others, becauſe they made a noble Reſiſtance before they ſubmitted.

6. Montagna, or Nicopolis, about eight Leagues North of Bourſe. Thevenot ſays, it ſtands on the Bay antiently call'd Cianus Sinus, and tho but a ſmall Town, drives a great Trade with Conſtantinople, by means of the Bay, and commands all the Trade of Bithynia by its nearneſs to Burſa. 'Tis inhabited by about 6000 Greeks, Jews, and Turks, who are all Merchants.

7. Libyſſa, Lebuſſa, or Gebiſe, at the Weſt-end of the Aſcania Palus, twenty three miles South-Weſt from Nicomedia, and twenty Eaſt from Pruſias, noted for the Death and Tomb of Hannibal, who poiſon'd himſelf here, when he knew that he was to be deliver'd up to the Romans. 'Tis now only an inconſiderable Village.

8. Loupadi, the antient Loupadium, or, as ſome think, Apollonia, lies, according to Wheeler and Spon, three miles below the Aſcania Palus, on the ſide of the River, which comes out of the Lake, and falls into the Granicus. Cellarius places it about fifteen miles North-Weſt from Burſa, and repreſents the River Cyzicus-Rhyndacus running by it, and falling into the Propontis, without any Communication with the Granicus: But Spon and Wheeler having been on the Place, are more to be credited than the Maps, which they ſay miſplace this Town and the Palus Aſcania, and put it too near the Sea, from which 'tis at leaſt a Day's Journey. 'Tis a very antient Town, as may be ſeen by the Columns and Marble mix'd with the Stones of the Walls, built by the Greek Emperors, with round Pentagon Towers, twenty Paces from one another; but 'tis now ruinous, moſt of the Houſes of Earth, and the Inhabitants ſcarce a thouſand. The Entrance into the Town is by a wooden Bridge, built on the Ruins of one of Stone.

9. Cyzicus, at the Mouth of the River Æſepus, on the Bank of the Propontis, about thirty three Miles North-Weſt from Burſa. 'Tis now call'd Chizico, and by ſome Spiga, Spinga, and Palormi. It was built ſeventy years after Rome, and lies in an Iſland ſo cloſe to the Continent, that the Maps take little notice of its Separation. The Town had two Harbours capable of two hundred Gallies, and was formerly an Archbiſhoprick under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and the Metropolis of the Helleſpont. Florus makes it the Rome of Aſia, calls it a noble City, and takes notice of its Caſtle-Walls, Harbour, and Marble Towers. It had a magnificent Temple of poliſh'd Marble, every Stone of which is ſaid to have been join'd to another by a Line of Gold. Mithridates beſieg'd it in vain, and loſt 30000 Men before it. 'Twas afterwards ruin'd by an Earthquake, and its Marble tranſported to embelliſh Conſtantinople. The Iſland on which it ſtands was noted for fine Quarries of Marble, and join'd by two Bridges to the Continent by Alexander the Great. A little Weſt from hence lies the Iſland Proeconneſus, now Marmora, ſo call'd from its Marble Quarries, about twenty miles in compaſs, and well inhabited. It has two Towns of ſome Note, call'd Gallioni and Craſſio, and the Greek Monks have ſeveral Hermitages and Convents here. The Iſlands of Aveſia, Contalli, and Gadoro lie near this Iſland, and are call'd by the ſame Name. Thevenot ſays, they abound with Cattel, Corn, Wine, Fruits, and Fiſh, and have alſo ſome Hermitages. He adds, that there is another Knot of Iſlands in the Propontis nearer Conſtantinople, call'd the Pope's Iſles, becauſe inhabited by Monks and Prieſts. They are Paradiſes by Situation, but the Turks of Conſtantinople, when drunk, do ſo rifle them, that no body cares to live in them but a few Greek Monks, who plant no more than what ſerves their own Uſe.

10. Parius, or Parium, now Pario, lies twenty five miles South-Weſt of Cyzicus, at the Mouth of the Propontis, where 'tis join'd by the Helleſpont. 'Twas formerly a noble Town, with a good Harbour, and a Roman Colony.

11. Lampſacus on the Helleſpont, at the Mouth of the River Granicus, fifteen miles South-Weſt of Parius, had an excellent Port, and was antiently call'd Pityuſa; it can ſhew ſeveral Inſcriptions and antient Monuments. There are excellent Vines in the Neighbourhood, of which the Turks make Brandy, and uſe it liberally, tho Wine be forbidden them. The antient Inhabitants of this City were noted for their peaceable Temper, but they grew ſo vicious by their beaſtly Worſhip of Priapus, a Native of this Place, that they became univerſally hated, and Alexander the Great reſolv'd its Deſtruction. They ſent Anaximenes as Ambaſſador to him to prevent it, to whom Alexander ſwore, he would deny whatever he requeſted; whereupon he craftily petition'd him to deſtroy the City, by which means it eſcap'd at that time. When Themiſtocles was in Exile, Xerxes King of Perſia gave him this Town, that it might furniſh him with Wine, as he did Magneſia, to furniſh him with Bread, and Myrcus with Meat. The Turks, to whom it is ſubject, call it Lepſick and Laſipio. It was an Archbiſhoprick, famous for a Demi-Arian Council in 364. but is now only a ſmall Town, inhabited by Turks and a few Greeks. Geographers place this and the two foregoing Towns in the Country of Myſia, as they do the two following, viz.

12. Abydus, now Avido, on the ſame Coaſt, thirty miles South-Weſt from Lampſacus, noted for the Amours of Hero and Leander, and the Bridge which Xerxes built here over the Helleſpont. The Inhabitants were antiently effeminate Sycophants, whence came the Proverb, Ne temere Abydum. When it was beſieg'd by Philip, Father to Perſeus King of Macedon, and deſpair'd of Relief, the young Men of the Town, who had ſworn that they would rather die than fall into his hands, ſet fire to the City, kill'd all the Inhabitants they met with, and then murder'd themſelves. When the News of this Reſolve was brought to Philip, he was ſo far from preventing it, tho the Gates were open'd to him, that he barbarouſly ſaid, he would give them three days time to die, and till that was over, he ſuffer'd none of the Soldiers to enter the Town. It was betray'd to the Turks in the Reign of Orchanes, the Son of Ottoman, by the Governor's Daughter; who falling in love with Abderachmen, a young Turkiſh Gallant, whoſe Valour ſhe had ſeen from the Caſtle, ſhe threw a Letter to him over the Walls, promiſing to let him and a Party into the Caſtle in the Night-time, which was accordingly done, and the Town has ſince continu'd in the hands of the Turks.

13. Dardanum. Buno thinks it lay where the Caſtle Dardanelles now ſtands, at the mouth of the Helleſpont, ſeventeen miles South-Weſt from Avido, and gave name to the Diſtrict of Dardania. The Dardanels are two ſtrong Caſtles, built by Mahomet II. on the Bank of the Straits of Gallipoli, betwixt the Archipelago and the Straits of Marmora; the one in Romania in Europe, where ſtood Seſtos, and the other in the place of Abydos in Aſia above-mention'd, as the Turks fancy'd; but there are no Remnants of Antiquity near thoſe Caſtles: and it appears by Strabo, that Seſtos lay almoſt four miles from Abydos, and the narroweſt place in the Canal is three miles further.

14. The Ruins of Troy, antiently call'd Ilium or Troja, lie under Mount Ida, near the Mouth of the River Scamander, below the Conflux of the Simois, not far from the Mouth of the Helleſpont, ſeven Leagues South-Weſt from the Dardanelles, and thirty from Bourſa. 'Twas reckon'd the moſt flouriſhing Town of Aſia, and its Ruins teſtify its antient Magnificence. It held out ten years Siege againſt the Greeks, who at laſt took it by Stratagem, and deſtroy'd it. Ilium was the Name of the Town, and Troy that of the Country. Its famous Harbour is now almoſt choak'd up by Sand. The greateſt part of both Myſia's were ſubject to Priamus King of Troy; but Troas was a distinct Government from it. That call'd Ilium Novum, or New Troy, was about four miles from the Old. It afterwards grew to be a walled Town, and was enlarg'd by Alexander the Great. The Trojans in general were so much noted for Luxury, that Pertus Trojanus was a Proverb for a luxurious Man, as Equus Trojanus was afterwards for a deceitful Stratagem. The adjacent Country is now almost desart, but the Ruins of abundance of Columns and Pillars of Egyptian Marble, with the Remains of Towers and Castles, are still found about it and the Harbour, the Basin of which seems to have been a mile and half round. Here are also the Ruins of Marble-Stairs, a Theater, Palaces, Temples, &c. with lofty Gates, that seem to be of Roman Workmanship in the time of Augustus, who sent a Colony hither, as appears by the Reverse of several Medals with this Inscription, Colonia Augusta Troas. The Grand Signiors have brought abundance of Columns from thence to adorn their Mosques at Constantinople. Authors are not agreed, whether the Ilium Novum, or that call'd Alexandri Treas, which lies about thirty miles South from Troy, was the Town built and encourag'd by Alexander the Great; but 'tis more likely to be Ilium Novum, which Alexander began to enlarge, and it was finish'd by Lysimachus, who call'd it Alexandri Troas. Cameleons are found in the Neighbourhood.

15. Pergamus, formerly the Metropolis of Mysia Olympica, upon the River Caycus. 'Tis now call'd Pergamo, but Authors differ about its Situation: Some place it nearer the River and the Sea, and some further from them; but according to Dr. Smith, in his Septem Asiæ Ecclesiarum Notitia, it lies sixty four miles North from Smyrna, at the foot of a high steep Hill. 'Tis noted by the Antients for giving Birth to Galen the Physician, who mentions a Library here of two hundred thousand Volumes, and for the Invention of Parchment, which had the Name Pergamen from it. It lies in a pleasant Plain, about twenty six miles long, and five where broadest; part of it is cover'd with Olives, part cultivated, and the rest left for Pasturage to numerous Herds of Cattel. It is chiefly noted for having been one of the seven Churches of Asia. The Ruins of the Cathedral, dedicated to St. John, and of other sumptuous Structures with fine Marble Pillars, shew its former Magnificence; but the brutish Turks break them when they dig them up, to set at the Ends of their Graves, and deface any Images of Men or other Monuments found upon them. It appears, by several Inscriptions, to have been the Seat of Roman Proconsuls and Proprætors. Here are many fine Buildings of square Stone, which have escap'd the Fury of the Turks. There are vast Ruins without the City of arch'd Work, and some Remains of a Roman Theatre. The River Selimus, or Selinus, runs thro the upper part of the City, over which there are many stately Arches. It was the Seat of several great Kings, who reign'd over the neighbouring Country, made a great Figure, and were several times in Alliance with the Romans. They reign'd over most part of that afterwards call'd Asia Propria; and the Town and Country continu'd under the Western and Eastern Empires of Rome and Greece, till it was swallow'd up by the Turks. 'Twas defended by a Castle on the Top of Mount Pindasus, which is now in Ruins. The Turkish Inhabitants are so very idle, that rather than cultivate the rich neighbouring Soil, they chuse to live by robbing Merchants and others, who travel thro the Plain. The few Greeks here live chiefly by Husbandry, and are allow'd a small Church.

16. Thyatira, another of the seven Asian Churches, now call'd Akhisar, and by some Tire or Tiria. It lies near the River Lycus, in a fine Plain, twenty miles long; part of it sow'd with Corn and Cotton, and the rest uncultivated, or cover'd with Tamarisk. Some thought Tiria, within a Day's Journey of Ephesus, to be the Place: but Sir Paul Ricaut, when English Consul at Smyrna, first discover'd its true Situation, and Spon and Wheeler found a Greek Inscription here, mentioning the most potent Senate of Thyatira, and many other Monuments of its Antiquity and former Grandeur. Some place it on the River Sarabat, sixty Miles South-East from Pergamus, and forty North-East from Smyrna. Here are several Monuments with Greek Letters, erected for Roman Governors of the Place. Most of the Houses are now of Turf, or Mud-Wall. The Inhabitants are about four or five thousand, and all Mahometans, the Remains of the Christian Churches being turn'd into Mosques, and the noble Marble Columns made use of for supporting their Inns and Market-Houses. The chief Trade is in Cotton, and it is now and then frequented by Armenian Merchants. The Town is water'd by a Stream from a neighbouring Hill, so that every House is well furnish'd with cool, light, and pleasant Water. The Air is wholesome, and the adjacent Country rich and pleasant.

17. Philadelphia in Lydia, another of the seven Asian Churches. Dr. Smith places it twenty seven miles North-East from Sardis, at the foot of Mount Imolus, on the Front of a Hill. It forms a beautiful Prospect from the neighbouring Plain, which is very pleasant, and well water'd by Streams from the Mountain, as the Town is by the River Cæstrus. It had formerly a treble Wall on the side of the Plain, and was defended on the other by the Mountains. It held out against the Turkish Emperors, after they had subdu'd all Asia Minor; but at last was taken by Bajazet, after an obstinate Defence. He barbarously reveng'd their standing out against his Predecessors and himself, by putting the brave Citizens to death. He built a Wall of their Bones, mix'd with Lime and Stone, a Mile and an half South of the Town, and destroy'd it so, that few of their antient Monuments are left. Their great Church is in Ruins, and the rest turn'd to Mosques, except twelve possessed by the Greeks, whose Priests say, they have very antient Manuscripts of the Gospels. Their chief Subsistence is from the Caravans betwixt Persia and Smyrna, next to which 'tis the most considerable Town in these Parts. Spon and Wheeler say, the Inhabitants in their time were about 8000, and 2000 of them Christians.

18. Sardis in Lydia, another of the seven Asian Churches, now call'd Sardo, lies on the River Pactolus, near the foot of Mount Imolus. 'Twas the Residence of King Cræsus, who is said to have got most of his Riches from the Gold found in the Sand of the River, but there's none now. 'Twas taken by the Greeks, who cut off the Persian Garison, and this brought on the War betwixt them, Darius and Xerxes. On the North there's a great Plain, well water'd by Streams. 'Twas defended by a Castle on a steep Hill, reckon'd impregnable before the Invention of Guns. From this Hill there's a noble Prospect of the neighbouring Country, and the Meanders of the River thro the Plains. Tavernier says, it held out six years against Tamerlane, but thinks that a neighbouring Village of the same Name was the place of the City mention'd in the Revelation. Here's nothing but mean Huts, except a large Inn for the Caravans, that pass thro it betwixt Smyrna, Aleppo, and Persia. The Inhabitants are for most part Shepherds, who look after Flocks in the Plains; and there are a few Christians who live upon Gardening, but are miserably oppressed, and have neither Minister nor Church. Here are several Monuments of their antient Magnificence, as Marble Columns above thirty foot high, the Ruins of their Great Church, and a noble Structure near it; and one of the Churches, now a Mosque, has polished Marble Pillars, which sustain its Portico. Here's also a Pillar in the Castle, with an Inscription, shewing that Tiberius rebuilt the City, after it had been ruin'd by an Earthquake.

19. Ephesus, forty five miles South-East of Smyrna, and five East from the Sea, with which it had a Communication by the River Cayster, was powerful in Shipping, and the greatest Emporium of Asia on this side Taurus. 'Twas govern'd by a Senate, and in matters of consequence all the People were consulted. Authors differ about the Founder, and the time when. Pliny calls it the Eye of Asia, and a Work of the Amazons. Lysander the Lacedemonian did much increase its Trade; and there are several antient Medals of this Town extant, and particularly of Vespasian, with an Inscription, bearing that it was the Capital of Asia Sacra, and govern'd by its own Laws. 'Twas chiefly remarkable for Diana's Temple; which Pliny says was two hundred, others say four hundred years a building, at the Charge of all Asia Minor; that it was four hundred twenty five foot long, and two hundred and twenty broad, had a hundred twenty seven Marble Pillars sixty foot high, and seven in Diameter. 'Twas lin'd with Plates of Brass, and other Metal. The Walls were of great Stones, mix'd in some Places with Brick. Herodotus places it betwixt the Town and the Harbour. Sir Paul Ricaut, who went to view the Place, thinks the Temple stood without the City, where there are the Ruins of more large and stately Buildings than any of the rest. He and his Company descended about thirty Steps under those Ruins, with Lights in their Hands, and found so many narrow Passages with Turnings and Windings, that they were forc'd to make use of a Clue of Thred for their Guide. Some call'd it a Labyrinth, but he took it to be the Foundation of the Temple built in this manner according to the best Rules of Architecture, to support a Structure of that Weight and Magnificence. The Air was moist, and yet of a suffocating heat, and the Place was full of large Bats, that struck several times at their Torches. Spon and Wheeler view'd the same Vaults, and think they were made for Cisterns and Aqueducts, there being Water still running in some of them. Pliny says, the Temple was founded in a marshy Soil ('tis supposed for fear of Earthquakes) which made the Foundation more chargeable than all the rest of the Work. They laid Coals and Wool, mix'd with other Materials, before they began to build. One of the most remarkable things in the Temple was a Statue of Hecate, so finely polished, that it dazzled one's Eyes: It was called Hecate Triformis, having a Head like the Moon, a Serpent on one side, and a Bow on the other.

Sir Paul says, the first Temple was built by Cherfiphron, and spared by Xerxes, when he burnt all the others in Asia. It was burnt at last by Eroftratus, to perpetuate his Name by this Piece of Villany, the same day that Alexander the Great was born. It was rebuilt afterward with greater Magnificence by the Citizens; but not being compleated, Alexander the Great offer'd to finish it, provided his Name should be put upon it as the Builder of the whole: but the Ephesians not willing to lose this Honour, one of them wittily answered him, That it was not proper for him, who call'd himself a God, to contribute to the Temple of another. All the Priests were Eunuchs, held in very great Honour, and were assisted in their Service by Virgins. Sir Paul says, nothing appears more stately, as one approaches this City, than the Castle on the Hill, and the lofty Fabrick of St. John's Church, now a Turkish Mosque, which has many stately marble Pillars. At the entrance of the Town there are Pillars of Porphyry, and an uneasy Passage over the Ruins of Temples and Palaces.

Spon and Wheeler say, there's no City in the World which has so many great and melancholy Remains of its antient Magnificence; for every where one meets with the Ruins of Marbles, Pillars, Statues, and Walls heap'd upon one another. The Castle, which stands on a Hill, seems to be the Work of the Greek Emperors, and has several Basso-Relievo's, one of which represents Achilles dragging Hector round the Walls of Troy. It appears by the Compass of the Ruins, that the City was very large. Their Aqueducts were brought from a great Distance, several Arches of them are found six miles from the Town, with Inscriptions to Diana, Marcus Aurelius, and the Emperors Tiberius and Augustus. It continued a flourishing City till the Turkish Emperors removed to Constantinople. Near the Ruins of the Temple there is a stately Lavatory of Porphyry, six yards Diameter, in which they pretend St. John baptized Multitudes; and not far from it is the Cave of the seven Sleepers, who retired hither from Diocletian's Persecution, and slept two hundred years, according to the Legend. On the top of a neighbouring Hill there's a square Tower, called St. Paul's Prison, from whence there's a pleasant Prospect of the Windings of the River Cayster. Here's nothing now but a few earthen Cottages among the Ruins, inhabited by Shepherds and Farmers; and very few Christians are left in this once famous Church, over which it is said St. John the Evangelist presided till the 101st Year of Christ. The third General Council was held here against the Nestorians. Many of the Pillars and Marbles have been carried off to adorn the Mosques of Constantinople.

Monsieur Tournefort, who was here in 1702. says, 'twas inhabited by thirty or forty Greek Families, who were not capable of understanding the Epistle St. Paul wrote to their Predecessors. The Turks live in the Citadel upon a little Hill, which commands the Plain. The Inclosure is fortified with many Towers, but has nothing magnificent. A little to the South there are the Remains of the old one, which are much better, and the Works covered with the finest Marble. There still remains that called, The Gate of Persecution, a fine Structure, with three Bas-Reliefs upon the Mould. The Greeks and Turks call the Town Aiasalone, which is supposed to be a Corruption of of the Greek words Agios Theologos, i. e. St. John the Divine. He ſays, in the Temple there were the Performances of the beſt Sculptors in Greece, the Altar was the Work of Praxiteles. It had excellent Paintings, Apelles and Parrhaſius, the beſt Painters of Antiquity, being Epheſians. There are many antient Medals of this City and Temple, for which we refer to Tournefort. The Soothſayers here, on the Day when Alexander was born, cried out, that the Deſtroyer of Aſia was come into the World. He came hither after the Battel of Granicus, and ſettled a Democracy. It was taken and retaken afterwards by his contending Succeſſors, and honour'd by the Reſidence of Roman Proconſuls and Emperors. The Roman Gariſon was terribly maſſacred here, by Order of Mithridates King of Pontus. Hannibal had an Interview here with Antigonus, to concert meaſures againſt the Romans. Scipio plundered the Temple, and others were built here to Julius Cæſar, and the City of Rome. The Town was rebuilt by Tiberius, plundered afterwards by the Perſians and Scythians; and 'tis probable the Temple was finally deſtroyed by virtue of Conſtantine the Great's Edict, for demoliſhing all Heathen Temples. The Mahometans took it in the Reign of Alexis (ſays his Daughter Anna Comnena) but they were defeated by his Generals in the Neighbourhood, and the City retaken. The Mahometans recovered it in 1283. and Tamerlane, after he defeated Bajazet, expoſed the City and its Neighbourhood to Plunder for a Month. 'Twas ſeveral times after taken and retaken by Turkiſh Princes, who contended for it; and falling at laſt into the hands of Mahomet I. it has continued ever ſince in the Ottoman Power; but the Trade was removed to Smyrna and Scala Nova. The Mouth of the Harbour is now choaked up with Sand.

20. Scala Nova lies South from Epheſus three hours Journey, and was built by the Chriſtians after the Deſtruction of that City. The Turks name it Couſada. 'Tis a very handſome ſquare City, well-built and paved. Here are about a thouſand Families of Turks in the Town, ſays Tournefort, ſix hundred of Greeks, ten of Jews, and ſixty of Armenians in the Suburbs. The Greeks have a Church, the Armenians none, and the Jews a Synagogue; the Turkiſh Moſques here are ſmall. There's a Caſtle upon a Rock in the Sea that commands the Harbour, which is a Station for a Navy. Here are twenty Janizaries in the Caſtle, and eighty in the Town. The Avenues to the City are thro pleaſant Vineyards. Their Trade is in Red and White-Wine, dried Raiſins, and Goat-Skins dreſſed like Spaniſh Leather; but they muſt load no Goods for Smyrna, except Corn and Kidney-Beans. Here are a great many old Marbles brought from Epheſus.

21. Miletum, now Palatſchia. Geographers differ as to its Situation, and ſome miſtook Melaſto for it, becauſe of the Likeneſs of Names. The true Miletum was diſcovered by the Engliſh at Smyrna, who found a curious Inſcription on a Marble here, which is ſtill to be ſeen, and has the words, ΠΟΛΙΣ ΜΙΛΗΣΙΩΝ, i. e. the City of the Mileſians, five times upon it. The Town lies a day and a half's Journey South from Epheſus, near that called the Great Meander, to diſtinguiſh it from the Cayſter or Little Meander. It was the Birth-place of Thales the Aſtrologer, one of the ſeven Greek Sages; of Cadmus, the firſt Author of Orations in Proſe, and Writer of the Mileſian Hiſtory; and of Anaximander, the Natural Philoſopher. The Mileſians were ſo addicted to Luxury, that Ariſtides the Philoſopher wrote a Book againſt them. It was famous for Wool and Coverlets. St. Paul ſent for the Elders of Epheſus hither. Mela ſays, it was the chief Town of Ionia, famous for Arts and Arms, made a brave Defence againſt Alexander the Great, and ſent Colonies to other Places. The Oracle of the Branchidæ lay in the Neighbourhood; and when Xerxes burnt its Temple, the Mileſians rebuilt it ſo large, that it reſembled a Village. Spon and Wheeler ſay, it was almoſt as famous as Epheſus, and had a ſhare in its Fate, being nothing now but a Heap of noble Ruins, mix'd with Shepherds Huts.

22. Melaſto, miſtaken for Miletum, was Strabo's Mylaſa; it lies two days Journey further South, and tho formerly rich, is remarkable for little now but the Ruins of noble Temples and other Structures.

23. Smyrna, called now Iſmir by the Turks, another of the ſeven Aſian Churches, over which Polycarp, St. John's Diſciple, preſided, and where he was martyred. It lies at the Mouth of the River Sarabat, where it falls into a Bay of the Archipelago, about twenty miles North from Epheſus, according to ſome Maps; but Dr. Smith, who was in the Place, makes it forty ſix, and Spon and Wheeler a day and half's Journey. Sir Paul Ricaut ſays, it was antiently ſituate upon thoſe called the Windmill-Hills; but being ruined by Earthquakes, was moſt of it rebuilt where it now ſtands. Authors differ about its Antiquity; ſome aſcribe the Name and Foundation to Tantalus, others to Smyrna an Amazon, who is repreſented in antient Medals with a double Axe, and a little Buckler, ſays Spon and Wheeler. There's a Marble Buſt of her at the Entrance of the Fortreſs, which ſome have taken for Apollo, and others for Semiramis; and the ignorant Inhabitants take it for a Queen of Smyrna, cotemporary with Alexander the Great. The Turks have much defaced it. Philoſtratus ſays, it was the moſt beautiful Town in the World; the antient Inhabitants were noted for Luxury and Valour, whence Mores Smyrnæi came to be a Proverb for both together. Strabo ſays, the Founders were Epheſians; Herodotus and Velleius Paterculus aſcribed it to the Æolians. It was afterwards deſtroyed by the Ionians, and the Inhabitants retired to Epheſus. The Ionians repaired it, and made it an Emporium. The Lydians afterwards demoliſhed it, but 'twas rebuilt by Antigonus and Lyſimachus. It appears by Medals, in the time of the Roman Emperors, that it was reckoned the Metropolis of Aſia; and one of the Arundel Marbles, publiſhed by Mr. Prideaux, makes it the largeſt and moſt ſplendid City of that Country. The River Melas runs by its Walls, and is famed for a Cave near the Head of it, where Homer is ſaid to have compoſed his Poems, and was hence called Meleſigenes. Strabo ſays he was a Native of the Town, and that his Image was placed on the Portal of Janus's Temple. This River is now only a Brook, the Water being drained off for their Gardens and Mills. It was taken by the Venetians in 1344, but retaken by the Turks in 1428. It had formerly ſuffered much by ſix Earthquakes, and the Greeks apprehended it would be ruined by a ſeventh; which, ſome ſay, happened the 30th of June, 1688. at Noon-day, threw down many of the Houſes, and ſhattered all the reſt; and a few hours after a Fire broke out of the Ruins, which conſumed all that was left but a few ſcattered Houſes: five thouſand People were deſtroyed, and the remaining Foreigners retired to Scio.

Tournefort ſays, 'tis one of the largeſt and richeſt Cities, has the fineſt Port in the Levant, capable of the biggeſt Navy, which always occaſioned its being rebuilt, after it was ſeven times deſtroyed by Earthquakes. 'Tis a Rendevouz of Merchants from the four parts of the World, and a Magazine of their Goods. He was here in 1702, ſays the Inhabitants were fifteen thouſand Turks, ten thouſand Greeks, eighteen hundred Jews, two hundred Armenians, and as many European Chriſtians. The Turks have nineteen Moſques, the Greeks two Churches, the Jews eight Synagogues, the Armenians one Church, and the Papiſts three Convents and a Biſhop, who has an hundred Roman Crowns per ann. the Greek Biſhop fifteen hundred, and the Armenian Biſhop has more from the Alms of his Nation than both of them. The Engliſh, Dutch, French, and Venetian Conſuls have Chappels in their own Houſes, Liberty of Conſcience being allowed here. The French had then thirty Merchants well ſettled, beſides many other French, who drove a ſmaller Trade, and two Genoeſe Merchants under their Protection. The Engliſh were as numerous as the French, and had a flouriſhing Trade: The Dutch Merchants not above twenty, but well ſettled, and much eſteemed. Sir Paul Ricaut ſays, that the Conveniency of its Port and Harbour, in one of the fineſt Bays in the World, made the Chriſtians chuſe it for the chief Scale of the Turkiſh Empire. Their Trade having increaſed the Grand Signior's Revenues, his Miniſters thought fit to incourage it; and the famous Viſier Achmet, the Son of Kuperli, conſidering that the antient Royal Structures were deſtroyed, the Aqueducts decayed, and that it had no publick Edifices ſuitable to the State of ſuch an Emporium, he erected, at his own Charge, a noble Exchange, and a ſumptuous Inn with a Bagnio and Stables, all of free Stone, and covered with Lead, except the Stables. He alſo built a noble Cuſtom-houſe on Piles of Wood within the Sea, a ſtately Aqueduct, which ſupplied all the new Buildings with Water, and he added ſeventy three Fountains to the ten old ones; ſo 'tis as well furniſhed, in that reſpect, as moſt Cities in Aſia. The Cuſtoms demanded here are from three to eight per cent. according to the Difference of Nations. The Engliſh are moſt favoured, and the Armenians leaſt. If any defraud the Cuſtoms, their Goods are not forfeited, but made to pay double. The Harbour is eight Leagues round, with good Anchorage every where; there's a leſſer within for the Turkiſh Gallies. The Town lies in the Center of the Levant Trade, eight days Journey from Conſtantinople by Land, four hundred miles by Water, twenty five days Journey from Aleppo by the Caravans, ſix from Cogna, ſeven from Cutaya, and ſix from Satalia. The Situation of the City is admirable, along the Shore, at the foot of a Hill which commands the Port, and part of it is on the Front of that Hill. The Streets are better paved and enlightened, and the Houſes better built than any upon the Continent. The lower part of the Town being among Bogs and Fens, the Vapours in Autumn occaſioned malignant Fevers, that were very fatal to the Engliſh; but the Ditches being drained, the Bogs turned to Gardens, and the Air purified by the numerous Fires of the new Buildings, 'tis now as healthful as any other Maritime Town of the Levant, and more renowned than any City of Aſia Minor. The Frank or Chriſtian Street runs the whole Length of the City, is the beſt, and ſo little frequented by Turks, that it looks as if one were in Chriſtendom. The Merchants of all Chriſtian Nations are very civil to one another, uſe their own Cuſtoms, Language, and Diverſions; and at Chriſtmas, &c. have handſome mutual Entertainments, and compliment the Conſuls, who all live in the ſame Street. This Quarter would be very fine, were there a Key at the Port, but the Sea beats up to the Sides of the Houſes.

The Caſtle ſtands on the Shore, is a ſquare Fort, the Sides about an hundred Paces long, flanked with four mean Baſtions, and defended by a ſquare Tower in the middle. The Incloſure is low, with Battlements, and the Guns big, but without Carriages. 'Tis ſurrounded with Marſhes, which are paſſable, and abound with Snipes. At the foot of one of the Hills, which face the Road, there are hot Baths, all neglected but one, near which lie the Ruins of Apollo's Temple.

Here's a Magazine for preſerving the Merchants Goods in caſe of Fire, and each Apartment has an Iron Gate and Iron Windows. 'Twas built by the Grand Viſier in 1677, and 1678. Upon the Top of the Mountain are the Ruins of an old Citadel, built by the Greek Emperors. On the Deſcent are the Remains of St. Polycarp's Chappel and his Tomb, and on the Front of the Hill above the City the Ruins of an Amphitheatre, where 'tis ſaid he was expoſed to wild Beaſts. At the foot of the Mountain near one end of the Town, the Greeks, Jews, Armenians, and European Merchants have their Burial-Places incloſed with Walls, and near them the Ruins of that called, The Temple of Cybele, the Mother of the Gods, one of the moſt famous that was in Aſia Minor. About a good League from the City, in the Plain of Haſelaer, are the Ruins of Janus's Temple; his Statue, with two Faces, was dug up here ſome years ago, and bought by the Venetian Conſul. In the ſame Plain, about half a League from the Town, are the Ruins of part of the old City. Here moſt of the old Statues, &c. are dug up, four of which were lately bought by the French Conſul, and ſent to his Maſter Lewis XIV. Medals, and other Greek and Roman Antiquities are found here in great Quantities, for which we refer to Spon, Wheeler, and Tournefort, and the Atlas Hiſtorique.

Tournefort mentions Signior Lupazzolo, a Venetian Conſul here, who was an hundred and eighteen Years old, had about ſixty Children by five Wives, beſides what he had by Miſtreſſes and Slaves; and at that Age he had a Daughter who was but ſix Years old.

The Trade here is chiefly managed by the Jewiſh Brokers. The Perſian Caravans arrive here continually, from All-Saints to May and June. They bring ſometimes two thouſand Bales of Silk in a year, beſides Cloths, Drugs, Cochineal, Indico, Sarſaparilla, Goats-Hair, and Thred made of it. The French Merchants, he ſays, bring from Smyrna, Brazil, Campeachy, Verdigreaſe, Almonds, Tartar-Powder, Cinnamon, Cloves, Ginger, and Nutmegs; and import there French Cloths and Serges, Pinchinets, Florence Sattins, Paper, fine Tin and Steel, Enamels, Earthen Ware, and the Foines of Dauphiny, which are as much eſteemed as thoſe of Armenia and Georgia.

ſo that as much of them as ſerve for Fur to a Veſt, is ſold from fifty to eighty Crowns. The French having thus eſtabliſhed their Trade here, have wiped off the Reproach formerly caſt upon them by the other Chriſtians, that they were only Bonnet Merchants, becauſe the chief of their Importation here was woollen Caps. They likewiſe bring from hence rough and ſpun Cotton, fine and baſtard Woollens, and thoſe of Metelin, Nut-Galls, Wax, Scammony, Soap, Valanede, Rhubarb, Opium, Aloes, Tutty, Galbanum, Gum-Arabick, Gum-Adragant, Gum-Ammoniac, Semen-contra, Frankincenſe, Zedoaria, large and ordinary Carpets. In ſhort, all ſorts of Commodities are tranſported from hence out of Aſia to Europe, and from Europe into Aſia.

Here's good Hunting and Fowling in the Neighbourhood, and their Francolins are reckoned better than our Partridges. Their River-Fiſh are not good, but they have excellent Sea-Fiſh of many kinds, particularly Pilchards, Herrings, and Oyſters. Tunny-fiſhing is the moſt profitable on this Coaſt; but being a Royal Fiſhery, the Grant of it is ſold yearly for a great Sum. Cuttle-Fiſh abound here, which tho its Blood be black as Ink, Du Mont ſays is very good Food, when well ſeaſoned. Here's alſo a Fiſh called Sea-Knives, becauſe they reſemble the Hafts of Knives made of Horn. They ſhine by night wherever they are put, and even in the Mouths of thoſe that eat them, ſays Du Mont, but are not wholeſome. Thoſe called Sea-Cheſnuts are common here, and of an exquiſite Taſte. When cut in two, there appears a thing like a Roſe, which contains Eggs of a yellowiſh Purple Colour, that are very delicious, but of no great Subſtance. Here's another Fiſh, which he calls a Pulp: It floats on the Surface of the Water like a ſlimy Scum, and when turned up, appears to be an Animal, with many long Legs like thoſe of a Spider, and at each Leg a Bag full of Liquor as clear as Water. 'Tis of different Colours, according to the Seaſon and Nature of the Soil. It catches its Prey with its Legs, and frequently drowns Men, who have the Misfortune to meet with it as they waſh themſelves in thoſe Seas; for it not only holds them faſt with its long Legs, but by diffuſing the venomous Liquor from its Bags, deprives them of Motion, and raiſes Inflammations in the Parts it ſeizes. Here are alſo many Sea and Land-Tortoiſes.

The moſt common Trees of the adjacent Country, are Orange, Citron, Lemon, Myrtle, Apricock, and Roſemary. They have Woods of Pomegranate-Trees, but their Oranges and Apricocks are not very good. 'Tis the ſame as to their Pears, Cherries, Gooſeberries, and Peaches. Here's abundance of Olives, but neither the Fruit or Oil ſo good as thoſe of Europe. They have very good Grapes, of which they make Wine and Tarts. The Air of this Town and Country is very hot in Summer, and would be inſupportable, were it not for the Sea-Breezes. The Turks in theſe Parts have a very convenient Method to warm themſelves in Winter: They put upon their Sofas a Square, or Polygon-Table, of three or four foot Diameter, and fifteen or eighteen Inches high. It has Boards at Top and Bottom. They ſet a little Pan of Fire, in a Place made on purpoſe betwixt the Boards, then cover the whole with a large Carpet lined with Cloth, which hangs down above a foot all round. The Company place themſelves about the Table, and all enjoy the Benefit of it at once, which is much more convenient than the Dutch Stoves.

24. Clazomene lies in a Peninſula near Smyrna; and, according to Tournefort, within the Road. Mr. Sherrard, the Engliſh Conſul there in 1702. whom he commends as a Perſon of great Learning, informed him, that they think the Village of Vourla, and the little adjacent Iſlands of that Name, to be the Place where it lay. It was once a flouriſhing and illuſtrious City, and had a great ſhare in the Peloponneſian War. It was ſeized by the Perſians, and afterwards by Alexander the Great, who joined the Iſland to the Continent by a Jettee of two hundred and fifty Paces long, and made a Road by Land betwixt it and Erythræa, then a famous Sea-Port over againſt the Iſle of Chios. It formerly kept in awe Smyrna, and all the adjacent Country upon the Bay, and was a Retreat to the Ionians after the Perſians took Sardis. This City is mentioned in ſeveral Roman Medals. 'Tis noted for the Birth of Anaxagoras the Philoſopher, who ſtudied ſo hard, that he neglected all other Affairs, and became an abſolute Pedant.

25. Laodicea, by the Turks called Eskihiſſar, i. e. Old-Caſtle, was another of the ſeven Churches, and Metropolis of Phrygia Pacatiana. This Town being now deſtroyed, Authors differ much about its Situation; but our Maps commonly place it Lat. 37 ½. and Long. 34. about 135 miles N. E. from Philadelphia. Spon and Wheeler ſay, there was nothing of it remaining in their time, but a Mill and four Marble Theatres that were entire, and near one of them a Greek Inſcription in honour of Titus Veſpaſian. Sir Paul Ricaut being at a Town called Dingizlee in this Country, ſays, the Greeks there ſuppoſed that Place to be Laodicea, becauſe of its pleaſant Situation; it being planted with all ſorts of Fruit-Trees, and ſo well watered with fine Streams, that for Air and Fruitfulneſs the Turks compare it to Damaſcus. There had been ſeveral Chriſtian Churches in it, then turned into Moſques; and the Greeks were allowed a little Chappel, and had a pretty good Trade in Begaſines: but Sir Paul not being ſatisfied that this was the Place, and at the ſame time told by ſome Turks, that there were great Ruins at four miles diſtance, he went thither, and found it had been a City of vaſt Circumference, ſituate on three or four Hills, according to Pliny's Deſcription. By this he concluded it was the true Laodicea, which old Geographers called Dioſpolis. He ſaw here three of the Theatres above-mentioned, and a Circus; which, by an Inſcription, appeared to have been Veſpaſian's. The moſt fruitful and delicious Plains of Phrygia lay about it.

26. Magneſia, now Mangreſia, twenty miles South-East from Thyatira, and forty five miles North-East from Sardis, betwixt the Rivers Pactolus and Hermus. It is much noted for its large Plains, remarkable for ſome great Actions betwixt Ageſilaus and Tiſſiphernes, and Scipio and Antiochus, who here diſputed the Empire of Aſia; and Scipio obtaining the Victory, which was the firſt the Romans won in this Country, it ſecured their poſſeſſion till the Wars of Mithridates. Tournefort, who was here in 1702, ſays, moſt of the Inhabitans are Mahometans. The Jews have three Synagogues, and the Armenians are alſo tolerated. The Citadel and Seraglio are ruinous, and the chief Trade of the Place is in Cotton. The Plain is almoſt covered with Tamariſks, and little of it cultivated, tho its Fruitfulneſs was antiently taken notice of in Roman Medals. It lies in the Neighbourhood of Mount Sipylus, from whence the Mother of the Gods Cybele, or rather Sypilene, took her Name, becauſe worſhipped in a particular manner on this Mount. Hence we find her often repreſented on the Reverſe of Medals of Magneſia. This Town was the Seat of ſeveral Emperors of the Eaſt; 'twas taken by the Turks under Bajazet, and Tamerlane made it his Reſidence and the Receptacle of his Plunder, after he defeated Bajazet. Amurath II. Emperor of the Turks, choſe it for his Retreat, as did his Son Mahomet II. 'Twas alſo the Reſidence of the Great Emperor Solyman II.

Not having room to inſiſt on antient Towns, of which nothing is now left but Ruins, we proceed to the remarkable Places in being on the Black Sea, as we find them deſcribed by Tournefort, who is one of the laſt that travelled thoſe Parts. He tells us, that the Black-Sea has nothing black in it beſides the Name; the Winds are neither more frequent nor furious than in other Seas, and the Water and Sand is as clear. The ſeeming Danger and Darkneſs of its Coaſts is owing to the Woods that overſhade it, and look duskiſh at a diſtance; therefore what is ſaid of it by Ovid, Valerius Flaccus, and other Latin Poets, muſt be aſcribed to Poetical Liberty, and the Unskilfulneſs of Sailors in thoſe days. The Greeks and Turks who frequent it now are little better, for they have no Sea-Charts, and ſcarce know the uſe of the Compaſs, but coaſt it along. The worſt is, that few of its Ports are good, and moſt of its Roads unſheltered. The Veſſels made uſe of here by the Turks are Saicks or Feluccas with four Oars, which hale aſhore every Evening, and never put out but in a Calm or in a fair Wind, when they uſe a four-corner'd Sail. Tournefort ſet out hither from Conſtantinople, and ſays all the Coaſts quite to Trebiſond are admirable for their Verdure, and moſt of the Woods extend far into the Land. The Places he takes notice of, are,

(1.) Penderachi, or Eregri, a little Town built on the Ruins of the antient Heraclea. He mentions neither Longitude nor Latitude, but Cluverius's Map of Natolia places it in Lat. 43. 3. and Long. from Teneriff, 54. 2. Tournefort ſays, that to judge by the Ruins and Walls, it ſeems to have been one of the fineſt Cities in the Eaſt, and the ſquare Towers from Diſtance to Diſtance have been the Work of the Greek Emperors. On every hand here are Columns, Architraves, and Inſcriptions, very much defaced. On one of the Marbles there's an Inſcription of the Emperor Trajan. It is built on a high Coaſt, commands the Country, and Landward there's a plain Gate of great Marble Stones, beſides other Remains of Antiquity; at a further Diſtance Eaſt from the Town there are Marſhes. The Antients ſay it had a very good Harbour, but now it is not ſo; for the Old Mole, repaired by the Genoeſe, when Maſters of this Country, is quite ruined. The Foundation of the Town is aſcribed to Hercules, who was held in great Veneration here, as appears by Medals; but Tournefort heard nothing of the Cavern, by which he is feigned to have gone down to Hell, and brought out Cerberus.

(2.) Amaſtris, now Amaſtro, a poor Village on the Ruins of the antient Amaſtris. The Situation is advantageous, on the Iſthmus of a Peninſula; but the Ports there mentioned by the Antients, are now filled up by Sand. This Town belonged to the Empire of Trebiſond, and was afterwards poſſeſſed by the Genoeſe, from whom Mahomet II. took it. On this Coaſt the Turks imploy abundance of Workmen, to prepare Timber and Rigging for their Fleet. The Country, he ſays, is excellent, abounds with Corn, Rice, Meat, Butter and Cheeſe, and the People are very temperate. From hence, he ſays, the Sultans had their ſtrongeſt Fleets in the time of their Conqueſts, and nothing would be eaſier than to reſtore their Navy by good Management.

(3.) Sinope ſtands on the Iſthmus of a Peninſula, about ſix miles in Circuit, ending in a conſiderable Cape. Here he blames the common Geographers for ſetting it down on an open Shore, without the appearance of any Porte, tho it has two very good ones, well deſcribed by Strabo. It lies in Lat. 41. and Long. Eaſt from London 36. The advantageous Situation invited the Mileſians to ſend a Colony hither, and the Inhabitants fortified the Avenues of their Cape againſt Mithridates, who at laſt made it the Capital of his Dominions; but it was afterwards conquered by the Romans under Lucullus, who delivered the Citizens from the Tyranny of the Mileſians. Tournefort brought a Medal from thence, with a Head, ſuppoſed to be that of Lucullus; and on the Reverſe a Cornucopia, to denote the Riches of the City. The preſent Walls, built by the laſt Greek Emperors, had double Ramparts, defended by Towers moſtly Triangular and Pentagonal. The Caſtle is very much neglected, and the Gariſon ſmall. The Turks will admit of no Jews, and oblige the Grecks to lodge in a great Suburb, which has no Defence. The Town is commanded by Hills on the Landſide, and would require two Fleets to beſiege it by Sea. Here are no Inſcriptions to be ſeen, but abundance of Fragments of Marble Pillars ſet in the Walls, and vaſt Quantities in the Burying-Place of the Turks, with Chapiters, Baſes, and Pedeſtals, taken from the Ruins of the magnificent Temples, Gymnaſium, Forum, and Portico's, mentioned by Strabo. They have excellent Wine, Water, and good Olives; but our Author found no extraordinary Plant here, except a Species of Wormwood, that grows on the Shore; he ſuppoſes it to be the Abſynthium Ponticum of the Antients. This City was under ſeveral Princes, and became a Principality independent of Trebiſond; but was ſurrender'd to Mahomet in 1461. tho the Turkiſh Prince, to whom it then belonged, had four hundred Cannon mounted on its Ramparts. Diogenes the Cynick was a Native of this Place, which was once ſo powerful, that it was reckoned the chief Town of Pontica, and ſent out Colonies, which erected ſeveral others. Our Author ſays, the Terra Sinopiana, deſcribed by Strabo, is not green, as ſome believe, but a kind of Bolus found in the Neighbourhood. He ſuppoſes it to be a natural Saffron of Mars, yet he allows there may be a ſort of green Earth in this Country, becauſe Chalcondylus ſays, there is excellent Copper near it; and our Author ſuppoſes that green Earth to have been nothing but natural Verdigreeſe, as it is found in the Copper Mines.

(4.) The River Halys. Our Author encamped on the Shore of an Iſland, formed by its Branches forty eight miles Eaſt from Sinope. He corrects the Miſtakes of Geographers, who make the Courſe of this River from the South, whereas it comes from the Eaſt, as is rightly rightly said by Strabo, a Native of the Country. It rises in the Greater Cappadocia, from whence it runs West, and then North, thro Paphlagonia. It took its Name from the Salt-Grounds, thro which it passes. Our Author says, all those Parts abound with Fossile Salt, which is found even in the great Roads and Arable Lands, and approaches a little to bitter. The Coasts from Sinope quite to Bithynia, are covered with Timber proper for building Ships. The Fields are full of Olive-Trees, and here's great Store of Walnut and Maple.

(5.) Amysus, an antient Colony of the Athenians, which a long while defended its Liberty, as appears by antient Medals. Alexander the Great restored its Freedom: It held out bravely against Lucullus, and when Callimachus their Engineer found he could no longer defend it, he set fire to it; which Lucullus endeavoured to extinguish, and was favoured in his Design by a sudden Rain, which saved part of the Town. Lucullus rebuilt the rest, and affecting to vie with Alexander in Clemency, restored its Liberty. 'Twas afterwards called Pompeiopolis. Pharnaces, the Son of Mithridates, took it after an obstinate Siege, and cut off the Inhabitants; but he was subdued by Cæsar, who restored the Town its Liberty. Mark Anthony put it again into the hands of its Kings; but Augustus restored its Freedom. On which Occasion there was a Medal struck, with the Head of Cæsar of one side, and Justice on the Reverse, holding a Pair of Scales; but this famous Town is now dwindled to a Village.

(6.) Themiscyra, or Themiscyrene Pontica, remarkable for its beautiful Plains watered by the River Casalmac, the largest on this Coast, and antiently known by the name of Iris. This Country is the Place where the Amazons had their little Empire. The Coast is very delightful, being divided into Woods and Lawns, which begin from Sinope. Tournefort found here that called the Elephant-Plant, whose Flower resembles the Head of an Elephant and its Proboscis.

(7.) Cerasonte, a pretty large Town, at the foot of a Hill, between two very steep Rocks. There's a ruinous Castle built by the Emperors of Trebisond, on the Summit of a Rock, on the right Hand, as one enters the Port, which is proper enough for small Vessels. It is remarkable for the Review of the ten thousand Greeks, who had been at the Battel of Babylon, and retired hither, fighting their way homewards. They lodged here ten days after their Fatigues, and when reviewed by their Generals, were found to be diminished only fourteen hundred. They were kindly entertained here, because this Town was a Greek Colony. The adjacent Country consists of little Hills covered with Woods, where Cherry-Trees grow wild. St. Jerom thinks the Latin Name Cerasus came from this Town. Ammianus Marcellinus says, Lucullus was the first that brought Cherry-Trees hence to Rome, after he had defeated Mithridates.

(8.) Tripoly lies further East on the same Coast, is a Port mentioned by Arrian and Pliny, and has high Rocks covered with many Trees on one side, Mountains covered with Wood on the other, and a Rock with a Castle at the Entrance of the Harbour. There's a River which falls into the Sea three miles below it, where Copper-Mines were formerly wrought, and Recrements of that Metal are still found here. All these Coasts are very agreeable, and Nature has preserved its Beauty here, because for a long time there have not been Inhabitants enough to exhaust it.

(9.) Trebisond lies farther East on a Bay, in our Maps, Lat. 41. Lon. 41. but the French Academy make it Lat. 40, 45. and Long. 63. 'Twas called Trapezus, from the Greek word Trapezion a Table, because the Plan of the Town is a long Square. It was founded by a Greek Colony from Sinope, received the ten thousand Greeks that retired from Babylon with great Kindness, and entertained them a Month. It was taken by the Romans from Mithridates, and retaken from them by the Scythians. Zosimus says, it was then a great City, well peopled, fortified with a double Wall, and the neighbouring Inhabitants had retired thither with their Wealth. There were ten thousand Men added to the Garison, who trusting to their Strength, and fancying themselves secure, were surprized by the Scythians in the Night, who got over the Walls by heaping up Fascines, killed many of the Troops, demolished the Temple, and carried off a great number of Captives with immense Riches. It fell afterwards under the Greek Emperors, who established a Duke here, and allowed him the Title of Emperor of Trebisond. This Sovereignty began in 1204. under Alexis Comnenes, and ended in 1461. when Mahomet II. dethroned David Comnenes, and carried him to Constantinople with his Family, where he and they were murdered. The Town lies on the Shore, at the foot of a steep Hill; the Walls are almost square, high, embatteled, and stand upon the antient Foundations; but are not the same described by Zosimus, being since built of the Ruins of antient Edifices, as appears by Marbles and Inscriptions in several Parts of them. The Town is large, but ill-peopled. Here are more Woods and Gardens than Houses, which tho well built, are but one Story high. The Castle is large, stands on a flat Rock, commanded by other Heights, and is much neglected. It has fine Ditches cut in the Rock. There is a Greek Inscription on the Gate, signifying that the Emperor Justinian repaired this City. The Haven, called Platana, lies East of the Town, and was repaired by the Emperor Adrian, which occasioned a great Trade. Apollo was adored here, as appears by Medals with his Head; on the Reverse of one there's an Anchor, and on that of the other the Prow of a Ship. The Mole, which the Genoese built here, is almost destroyed; for the Turks neglect repairing such Works, so that 'tis only now fit for Saicks. There's a Convent of Greek Nuns in the Town, and an antient Greek Church of Santta Sophia, two miles from it, part of it turned to a Mosque, and the rest in Ruins. The Country is fruitful, and abounds with fine Plants; particularly about the Convent of St. John, twenty miles to the South-East, where the Mountains produce Beach, Oaks, Elms, Guaiacs, Ash and Fir of a prodigious height. This Convent is built of Wood, close to a steep Rock, in one of the finest Solitudes of the World, where there are charming Prospects. The Monks are forty, taken up with their own Business, and know nothing of Learning, Politeness, or Cookery. The way up to their House is by a very coarse Staircase, consisting of two Trunks of Ash laid against the Wall, and instead of Steps, have only a few large Notches cut with Axes from Space to Space, and on each side a Pole to hold by, when they clamber up and down. All the Parts round this Convent are a perfect Image of Nature. A vast number of Springs form a lovely Stream full of excellent Trouts, and which runs thro verdant Meads and shady Groves; but the Monks have no Taste for those things. They possess the Country for above six miles about, have several Farms among those Mountains, and many Houses, with a Monastery in Trebisond, but dare not build any thing handsome, lest the Turks should exact upon them. There's a fine Species of Fir here, which our Author says he never saw any where else.

North from hence lies Mingrelia, part of the antient Colchis, and as some will have it of Georgia. Sir John Chardin, who travelled the Country, says, 'tis much less than the antient Kingdom of Colchis, and only 110 miles long, and 60 broad; but our Maps make it about 240 miles from South to North, and 120 from East to West. 'Tis divided into Proper Mingrelia, Imaretta, and Guriel, to which some add a fourth, called Abassa or Abagassa, all included in what was antiently named Colchis Propria. Some place the South Boundary at Trebisond, but Authors agree better on the North Boundary, which is Corax or Caucasus, a Chain of Mountains which run thro the Isthmus, betwixt the Black and the Caspian Seas, and are reckoned the highest in Asia. The Portæ Caucaseæ, or Pass of Caucasus, is described by Pliny to be a great Work of Nature, inclosed by rugged Mountains, and the Pass shut up at both ends by Gates fastened with Iron Beams. In the middle there was a River of a noxious Smell, and on the Rock beyond a strong Castle named Cumania, to curb the neighbouring People. Tacitus confounded this with the Caspiæ Portæ, which lay a great way East from it. The Macedonians, out of Flattery, called Parapomisus in India by the name of Caucasus, that it might be thought Alexander had passed it. The Holstein Ambassadors think, that Curtius was not much in the wrong to say, that Caucasus crossed all Asia, because the Mountains of Ararat and Taurus come so near it, that they look like one continued Chain. Sir John Chardin says, the Top of this Mountain is covered with Snow, which the Natives pass with flat Sandals to keep them from sinking; and the Guides make long Prayers to their Images against high Winds, which frequently bury Travellers in the Snow. This Mountain, tho desert for some Leagues, is in many Places fruitful to the Top, yields Honey, Wheat, Gum, Fruit of many sorts, and feeds large Herds of Hogs and other Cattel. Sir John says, the Vines are so luxuriant, that they run up to the Tops of the highest Trees, and yield good Wine. The Inhabitants on or about the Mountain live in wooden Huts, are for most part Greek Christians, use the Georgian Ceremonies, are fresh complexioned, and their Women handsome. At the bottom of the Mountains there's a large fruitful Plain, watered by the River Kur, which has many Villages, and the Ruins of Castles and Churches destroyed by the Turks. This Country is famous for the Expedition of Jason and his Argonauts for the Golden Fleece, which the Poets have set off with so many Fables; the Moral of which seems to have been, that it was a Country rich in Gold; it being the Custom of the Inhabitants, says Strabo, to lay Fleeces in the Stream, to catch the Gold which the Water brought down from the Mountains.

Sir John says, 'twas antiently fortified against the Abcas on the North, now the Circassians, by a Wall sixty miles long, near the Ruins of which there's a thick Forest. The Country is full of Hills and Plains, almost covered with Wood, except some Arable Land, which they are forced to preserve, by continually grubbing up the Roots of Trees that spread into it. The Air is temperate as to Heat and Cold, but unwholesome, because of the continual Wet which in the Summer breeds pestilential Vapours. Their Fruits are wild, and have little Taste, except their Vines, which are good. The Soil is so moist, that they never plow it for Wheat or Barley, but sow them carelessly on the Ground; and for other Corn, they plow with Shares of Wood. Their common Grain is Gomm, small as Coriander-Seed, and resembling Millet: It makes a Bread palatable, cooling, and laxative. Those of Quality have wheaten Bread for a Rarity. Here's plenty of Millet, and some Rice. Their Pork is excellent, as are their wild Boars, Deer, Hares, Partridges, Pheasants, and Quails; and they have likewise some Water-Fowl and wild Pigeons. Here's but little Beef, and their Goats-Flesh not good. The Nobility spend most of their time in Hawking, and delight much in that of Herons, which they let go as soon as they cut off the Tufts of their Heads, with which they adorn their own Caps. They dispose of the Lives and Estates of their Tenants, sell their Wives and Children at pleasure, and oblige them to furnish all manner of Provisions. They decide Quarrels among their Vassals amicably, but determine their own by Arms, and never go abroad without Lances, Bows, or Swords. They wear a thin felt Cap in Summer, and a furred one in Winter. They have but one Shirt, and one Pair of Breeches per annum, which they seldom wash, but shake them once or twice a Week over the Fire to clear them of the Vermin, with which they are sufficiently pestered. The Men are well shaped, but extremely wicked, and glory in Theft and Robbery. They have as many Wives as they can keep, sell their Children, and if they have not enough to maintain them, think it Charity to murder such as are newly born, and those who are sick and past Recovery, because they think it frees them from a great deal of Misery. Both Sexes are excessive Drinkers: The Men entertain one another with Stories of Wars and Robberies, and the Women with obscene Discourses. The latter are generally handsome and witty, paint their Eyebrows, and, if coarse, dawb their Faces all over. Their Habit is like the Persians, but their Head-Dresses like Europeans; and they are in general deceitful, cruel, and impudent. They have only a few Towns on the Coast, but their Villages are very thick. The Houses are all of Timber, the poorer sort have none but of one Story, and the rich none of above two. They sit as well as lie upon Beds and Couches, because of the Moisture of the Earth. They have no Windows nor Chimneys, and the whole Family lie and eat together in one Room. On working Days the Servants have nothing but Gomm, and the Masters Pulse, with dried Fish or Flesh; but on Holidays, and at Feasts, they have Beef, Pork, or Venison.

There are nine or ten Castles, the chief of which is Ruis, the Residence of their King. He with his Queen and Servants eat together without distinction. When the Weather is fair, they eat in open Courts, and if cold, make rousing Fires, for they abound with Wood. He has about twenty thousand Crowns per annum from Customs, selling of Slaves, Fines, &c. He lays this up, becauſe his Slaves ſerve him for nothing, and his Lands furniſh him with more Proviſions than he can ſpend. The Country is but thinly peopled, becauſe of the great Numbers ſold to the Perſians and Turks. He has not above 4000 Men fit to bear Arms, about 300 of which are Foot, and the reſt Horſemen; for he has great numbers of good Horſes, the keeping of which coſt little, for they are neither fed with Corn, nor ſhod. On ſolemn Occaſions he has two hundred Gentlemen at Court, but otherwiſe not above an hundred and twenty.

The Trade here is by way of Barter, there being no ſet Price for Money; what's current here being Piaſters, Dutch Dollars, and Georgian Abaſſis.

Their Religion was formerly that of the Greek Church, and they pretend to have been converted by the Apoſtle St. Andrew. Their chief Biſhop is named Catholicos, but the Prince chuſes and depoſes him at pleaſure. His Revenue is great, he has four hundred Vaſſals who furniſh him with Neceſſaries and many Superfluities. He ſells their Children to the Perſians and the Turks, and never viſits his Dioceſs but to rake in Money. He has ſix hundred Crowns for conſecrating a Biſhop, one hundred for every ordinary Maſs, and eight hundred when he ſays one for the Dead. His Religion conſiſts in abſtaining from Fleſh and Wine during Lent, and in long Prayers; but he is ſo wretchedly ignorant, that he can ſcarce read his Breviary. He is obliged once in his Life to viſit the Church of Pigivitas, where they fancy St. Andrew preached, and there he conſecrates the Oil for anointing new-born Infants. He has ſix Suffragan Biſhops, as ignorant and abſolute over their Vaſſals as himſelf. They take no care of the Prieſts or People, but adorn their Cathedrals and Images as ſufficient Atonement for their Sins, are clad in Scarlet and Velvet, and differ only from the Secular Nobility by wearing long Beards, and black high-crowned Hats. The Prieſts are numerous, as great Slaves as the Laity, ſcandalouſly ignorant, and have no Reſpect ſhewed them but when they ſay Maſs or Grace. Their Churches are naſty as Stables, and their Images ill kept: They worſhip thoſe moſt that are fineſt, or moſt noted for Cruelty. Their chief Saint is St. George. They never ſay Maſs in Lent, but on Saturdays and Sundays, becauſe they think it ſpoils their Faſting: They conſecrate levened or unlevened Bread, have wooden Chalices and Pattins, laugh at Tranſubſtantiation, anoint the Foreheads of Children as ſoon as born, but don't baptize till the Parents be able to feaſt the Prieſt, the Godfather, and Gueſts, and then waſh the Child all over. They reckon a future Life, the Reſurrection, and Day of Judgment, to be Fables deviſed by Men. Husbands buy their Wives, give moſt for a Maid, leſs for a Widow, and leaſt for a divorced Woman. Barrenneſs, or an ill Temper, they reckon a good Cauſe of Divorce. None of them read the Bible, but the Women repeat ſome Stories of the Goſpel by Tradition. They ſign with the Croſs, when they drink Wine, or eat Pork, and pray to their Idols for Proſperity to themſelves, and Ruin to their Enemies. They ſacrifice like the Jews, and never abſtain from Work but at Chriſtmas and Eaſter, when they feaſt to exceſs; but riot moſt, and put on their beſt Apparel, when an Idol is carried thro their Country, and make it Preſents. On the Death of Relations, the Women tear their Clothes, Hair, and Fleſh, beat their Breaſts, cry, yell, and gnaſh with their Teeth. The Men do the like, ſhave their Heads and Beards, and continue mourning forty Days; after which they bury the Corps, feaſt their Relations and Neighbours; and the Biſhop, that ſays Maſs, has the Horſe, Weapons, Plate, Clothes, or other valuable things belonging to the Deceaſed: the Prieſts perſuade them to keep up thoſe barbarous Solemnities, tho they ruin many Families. They have no Bells in their Churches, but the Prieſts call them together, by knocking on a great Board with a Stick.

They have a ſort of Monks of the Order of St. Baſil, whoſe chief Religion is to obſerve their Faſts. They have Nuns of the ſame Order, but no Nunneries or Vows, ſo that they quit when they pleaſe.

Sir John ſays, the neighbouring People live after the ſame manner in all reſpects; only thoſe who border on Perſia and Turkey are the moſt civilized; and ſuch as border on the Turks and Scythians the moſt barbarous.

The Country of Guriel is but ſmall, and lies along the Coaſt from the River Phaſis to the Caſtle of Gom, which is gariſon'd by Turks. The Inhabitants of Caucaſus, who border on Mingrelia, were antiently Chriſtians, but profeſs no Religion now, and live by Rapine. They are tall and portly, the moſt daring Robbers and Aſſaſſines in the World; their Language and Looks diſcover their ſavage Diſpoſitions. They have ſcarce any thing of Humanity but Shape and Speech, and are as brutiſh and cruel as the Lions, Leopards, Wolves, and Jackalls that infeſt their Country. The Turks call them Black Circaſſians, not from their Complexion, which is fair, but becauſe their Country is always darkened with Fogs and Clouds.

The only Harbour to which Ships come in Mingrelia, is Iſgaour; where the Traders build Huts of Boughs during the Seaſon, but at other times it is deſart.

Imeretta, antiently Iberia, and the Country of the Iberi, from whom ſome derive the Spaniards, lies South from Mingrelia, is ſixty miles long, twenty ſix broad, full of Woods, Mountains, and lovely Valleys, which yield Corn, Pulſe, Herbs of all ſorts, and maintain great Herds of Cattel. The antient Iberians were a warlike People, and uſed to ſet up as many Pillars about the Graves of the Men, as they had killed Enemies in their Life-time. They were divided into Tribes, who had all things in common, and the eldeſt was their chief Ruler. They married always in their own Tribes, as the Jews did, and fancied themſelves to be the Offspring of David by Uriah. They are ſaid to have been firſt converted by a Chriſtian Captive, whoſe Prayers reſtored their Queen when given over by Phyſicians; upon which their King ſent and obtained Miniſters from Conſtantine the Great. They were afterwards of the Greek Church, but their Patriarch reſiding for moſt part at the Monaſtery of St. Katherine on Mount Sinai, his Diſtance and Neglect gave the Mahometans an Opportunity to pervert them. Dr. Heylin ſays, the Jeſuits got a Settlement among them about 1614. by the following Cheat: The Perſians invaded the Country, carried off the Prince's Mother, and put her to death, becauſe ſhe would not turn Mahometan. Some of the Jeſuits travelling in Perſia at that time, laid hold of the Opportunity, to ingratiate themſelves with the Prince of Imeretta. They cut off the Head of a dead Woman, whom they found in the Road, anointed it with Oil and Odours, brought it with them to Imeretta, pretended it was the Head of that Princeſs, who they told the Prince was a bleſſed Martyr, deſiring leave to plant it in a Monaſtery, and to have the keeping of that Relick. The Prince thus impoſed upon, allowed them the Church of St. George at Aberdal. The Jeſuits, who had Skill in Phyſick, and adminiſter'd the ſame to ſick Perſons with Succeſs, gave out that the Cures were miraculous, and performed by the Lady's Head. This raiſed their Reputation, and they managed it ſo cunningly, that they undertook none but whom they found to be curable, and ſent the reſt on Pilgrimages, or to do Penance, by way of Preparation. Thus they gained many Proſelytes, and had almoſt perſuaded the Prince to ſubmit to the Pope; but a Lady, who had been carried off with the Princeſs, and was kept as a Slave by a Perſian Lord, wrote a Letter to the Prince, that her Maſter, by her Perſuaſion, had obtained his Mother's Body, and embalmed it; ſo that he might ranſom it if he pleaſed. At the ſame time two Travellers from Perſia confirmed the Account; adding, that they ſaw the Jeſuits cut off the above-mentioned Head: on which they were firſt impriſoned, and then baniſhed the Country; the Prince having ranſomed his Mother's Body, and being fully convinced of the Cheat.

Sir John Chardin ſays, The preſent Inhabitants differ little from the Mingrelians: that they have ſome Iron Mines and Money coined in their own Country; that the King of Imeretta formerly governed Mingrelia, Guriel, and the Abcas, after they ſhook off the Yoke of the Greek Emperors; but falling into Civil Wars, called in the Turks to their Aſſiſtance, who made them Tributaries: ſo that now their King is obliged every year to give eighty Boys and Girls, from ten to twenty years of Age, to the Grand Signior; the Prince of Guriel ſends forty ſix. The Prince of Mingrelia pays ſixty thouſand Ells of Linen; but the Abcas have ſhook off the Yoke, and joined with the Circaſſians, on whom they border. Places of Note here are,

1. Amarghia on a River, about two miles Eaſt from the Black-Sea, Lat. 44. near Long. 45. Sir John ſays, it conſiſts of two hundred Houſes, but ſo far diſtant from one another, that the Town is two miles long. The Turks come hither with Barks to buy Slaves. Wine and Proviſions are plentiful and cheap here.

2. Further up the ſame River lies Sapias, where are two Churches; one of them belongs to the Theatin Friars, who came hither in 1627. as Phyſicians. They have good Employment that way, but none of the People embrace their Religion.

3. The River Phaſis lies nine miles South from hence. Sir John ſays, 'tis a mile and a half broad at the Mouth, ſixty Fathom deep, the Water muddy and thick, but good to drink when ſettled. Here are ſeveral Iſlands covered with Wood, which form a delightful Proſpect. The Temple of Rhea, which ſtood upon one of them, was afterwards a Chriſtian Church, but now in Ruins.

4. Gonie, ſixty miles further South, is a large Caſtle, with a Town on the Eaſt-ſide of the Black-Sea, a Village of wooden Houſes, and a Cuſtom-houſe: There the Officers are very rude, and exact what they pleaſe, without regard to the Orders of the Porte.

5. Akalzike, ſixty miles further Eaſt on Mount Caucaſus, is a Town of four hundred Houſes. Sir John ſays, here's a ſtrong Caſtle fortified with double Walls, and flanked with Towers. 'Tis the Seat of a Turkiſh Baſſa, whoſe Soldiers are quartered in the adjacent Villages. 'Tis watered with the River Cyrus, now Kur, which riſes near it, and falls into the Caſpian Sea. The Inhabitants are Turks and Armenians, Georgians, Greeks, and Jews: The latter have a Synagogue, and the Chriſtians have Churches here.

6. Usker, on the Road betwixt Akalzike and Gonie. The Turks have a Caſtle here built on a Rock, within two Leagues of the Mountains which ſeparate Perſia and Turkey. Here's a Gariſon and a Cuſtom-houſe, under a Turkiſh Sangiack.

We return to the Inland Parts of the North-ſide of Natolia. Places of Note here are,

(1.) Angora, or Angori. The Turks pronounce it Engour. 'Tis the antient Ancyra, was a nobly City in Livy's time, and repaired by Auguſtus, as appears by Medals. It is alſo famous for the Victory of Pompey over Mithridates King of Pontus in the Neighbourhood, for that of the Romans over the Gauls, who deluded them here by a Conference, and for that of Tamerlane over Bajazet the Turk. It was formerly an Archbiſhop's See, and a Council was held here againſt Hereticks. Tournefort, who was in this Place, takes notice of a noble Monument erected here for Auguſtus, of which he gives a Draught. It was of white Marble, and extraordinary beautiful. The Stones were cramp'd together with Pieces of Copper. The chief Walls are ſtill thirty foot high, or above. The Front entirely deſtroyed except the Door, by which they went out of the Veſtibulum into the Houſe. 'Tis twenty four foot high, and nine foot two Inches wide. Its Poſts, which are of one piece, are two foot three Inches thick. The Houſe, beſides the Veſtibulum, is fifty two foot long within, and thirty ſix and a half wide. There remain three grated Windows with Marble with great Squares. On the ſide of the Door, which is full of Ornaments, there is the Life of Auguſtus in fine Latin, and handſome Characters, but much defaced by the Peaſants, who pulled out the Copper, by which the Stones were cramped together. It was a Prytaneum, where the Romans had their Feaſts at their publick Games, as appears by ſeveral Medals. There are divers Greek Inſcriptions on the Outſide of the Walls, for which we refer to our Author, who ſays, It was the greateſt Monument that ever was raiſed for Auguſtus in Aſia; and now, within the Circumference, there's the Ruins of a Chriſtian Church, a few ſorry Houſes, and ſome Cow-houſes. He ſays, it has been one of the moſt illuſtrious Cities of the Levant, and he pleaſes himſelf much with the Hiſtory of the Exploits of the antient Gauls his Countrymen in theſe Parts, ſays they ſpread Terror all over Aſia, and made large Conqueſts. He thinks they came from about Toulouſe. The Inhabitants of this Town he ſuppoſes to be the principal Galatians, to whom St. Paul directed his Epiſtle. It was twice Neocore, which was the Name given to thoſe Towns that were allowed to erect Temples in honour of the Emperors whom they deified. It was taken by the Perſians in 611. and ruined in 1101. by Raymond Count of Tholouſe and Provence, during the Holy Wars, when Godfrey of Bouillon was choſe King of Jeruſalem. But this numerous Army, which conſiſted of 100000 Foot and 50000 Horſe, was ſo routed by the Mahometans near the River Halys, now Caſalmac, that the Generals had much difficulty to retire to Conſtantinople. This Town was taken by the Tartars in 1239. and afterwards the chief Seat of the Ottomans. He ſays, it is now one of the beſt Cities in Natolia, and every where ſhews Marks of its antient Magnificence. In walking the Streets, one ſees abundance of Pillars and old Marbles, and a ſort of red Porphyry with white Spots. Here is alſo red and white Jaſper with large Spots. Moſt of the Pillars are ſmooth and cylindrical, ſome are channelled ſpirally, others are oval, adorned with a Plaitband before and behind, which alſo runs along the Pedeſtal and Capital; an Order which, he thinks, no Architect has mentioned. There are fourteen Steps at the Door of one of their Moſques, made up of Baſes of Marble Pillars placed upon one another. Tho moſt of the Houſes are of Clay, yet in many of the Walls are fine Pieces of Marble. The City-Walls are low, and have very ſorry Battlements: They are built indifferently of antient Pillars, Architraves, Capitals, Baſes, &c. mixed with ordinary Maſonry, which quite ſpoils their Beauty. There are many Inſcriptions upon thoſe antient Pieces in the Walls. Moſt of them are Greek, ſome Latin, and others Arabick. Our Author ſets down many of them, which we can't inſiſt upon. The Caſtle has a triple Incloſure, and the Walls are of large white Marble Stones, and others reſembling Porphyry. In the firſt Incloſure there's an Armenian Church, built, as they ſay, twelve hundred years ago. 'Tis ſmall and dark, but partly enlightened by a Window thro a ſquare Piece of poliſhed Marble, which ſhines like Iſing-glaſs, and caſts a ſort of reddiſh Light. This Incloſure is full of Pedeſtals and Inſcriptions, one of which mentions Julian the Apoſtate. He ſays, an Antiquary might find a whole year's Work in copying them. The Chriſtians Church-yard is full of Greek and Latin Inſcriptions; and without this City, about St. Mary's Convent, there are many fine antique Marble Pillars, &c. with Inſcriptions of the Emperor Marcus Aurelius, and other Romans. He found two modern Epitaphs in Latin, one of Sir John Roſs a Scotchman, who was buried there in 1668. and one of Samuel Farrington an Engliſhman, Son to a London Merchant, who died here in 1660. The Town is commanded by a Baſſa and 300 Janizaries in Gariſon. The Inhabitants conſiſt of 40000 Turks, 5000 Armenians, and 600 Greeks. The Armenians have ſeven Churches, beſides the Monaſtery of St. Mary, and the Greeks have two. Caravans paſs frequently thro this City to Smyrna, Pruſa, &c. In the neighbouring Fields there are the fineſt Goats in the World: Their Hair is of a dazzling white Colour, as fine as Silk, curls naturally in Locks of eight or nine Inches long, is worked up into fine Stuffs, eſpecially Camlets, for they ſuffer none to be carried off unſpun, becauſe the People are maintained by the Manufactory. There are none of them further than four or five days Journey from the Town, for the Breed degenerates when carried elſewhere. The Thred of this Hair is ſold from four Livres, to twelve or fifteen per Oque, each containing three Pounds four Ounces; and ſometimes for twenty or twenty five Crowns, but that's made up only for the Grand Signior's Seraglio. They work it here without mixture, and it is the chief Riches and Trade of the Place. The Goats feed on the young Shoots of Herbs, which it is ſuppoſed occaſions the Beauty of their Hair, that degenerates when they change Climate and Paſture.

Thalouſe

(2.) Tocat, antiently Eudoxia, 150 miles Eaſt from Angora, Lat. 40. Long. 39. is a large handſome City. The Houſes are well-built, and for moſt part two Stories high. The Situation is ſingular, part being in Valleys, and the reſt on rugged Hills, ſo that it looks like an Amphitheatre. For want of Ground, they have built upon two frightful perpendicular Rocks of Marble, on one of which there's an old Caſtle. The Streets are well paved, which is rare in the Levant. The Hills, on which the City lies, have ſo many Springs, that each Houſe has its Fountain. Here are 20000 Turkiſh, 4000 Armenian, and 400 Greek Families. The Armenians have ſeven Churches, the Greeks only a Chappel, which they ſay was built by the Emperor Juſtinian. 'Tis governed by a Biſhop, Suffragan to the Archbiſhop of Neo-Cæſarea. The Turkiſh Moſques here are very many, and there are twelve of them which have Towers. The City is governed by a Cadi and a Weyvod, and gariſoned by 1000 Janizaries under an Aga, and ſome Spahis. The chief Trade here is in Copper-Veſſels, which are handſomely made, and tranſported to Conſtantinople and Egypt. They have their Copper from Mines, within three days Journey of Trebiſond, and others that lie on the ſide of Angora. Here's alſo a Manufacture of yellow and red Turkey Leather, and of painted Cloth, not ſo beautiful as that of Perſia. He ſays, this Place is the Center of the Trade of Aſia Minor, for Caravans go and come from it to Diarbekir, Sinope, Pruſa, and Smyrna. The Neighbourhood produces Wine and Fruits. The Armenians bring Silk hither from Perſia, which is wrought up here into ſlight Pieces, ſewing Silk, and Silk for Buttons; but they have more Profit by carrying it to Smyrna, where they have thirty Crowns for what coſt them twenty. In the Country, betwixt this Town and Angora, are many Vineyards, well cultivated Fields, numerous Villages, and Pieces of antique Columns in their Church-yards.

(3.) Amaſia lies forty eight miles North-Weſt from Tocat, and was noted for the Birth of Strabo, deſcended from a Family of Crete. This City was formerly large and remarkable, but now much leſs than Tocat.

(4.) Sivas, by ſome thought to be Sebaſtia, a very antient and famous City. 'Tis ſixty miles South from Tocat, and the Seat of a Baſſa, ſo that Tocat depends upon it. This City is now ſmall, and chiefly noted for the Reſidence of the Baſſa. It was taken from the Greeks by Bajazet in 1394. and retaken by Tamerlane in a very remarkable manner. His Men opened Paſſages under Ground at a mile from the City, without being ſuſpected by the Inhabitants, and undermined the Walls, which they ſupported with Pillars of Wood as they took out the Stone. When the Work was finiſhed, Tamerlane ſummoned the Town; the Gariſon, knowing nothing of their Danger, defied him: upon this his Men ſet fire to the Pillars that ſupported the Wall, which fell on a ſudden. Tamerlane's Troops entered the Town, made a dreadful Slaughter, tied ſuch as they took Neck and Heels, threw them into the Ditches, covered them with Earth, and left them to die gradually. He razed the City; and tho part of it has been rebuilt ſince, it has never recovered its Splendour, tho it retains its antient Rank.

5. Cæſarea, or Keſarea, formerly Neo-Cæſarea, now called Nixara by the Turks, lies about 65 miles S. W. from Tocat, and 60 N. W. from Sivas. 'Tis ſtill the Metropolis of Cappadocia, tho now almoſt in Ruins. The Archbiſhop has the firſt Rank among thoſe who are ſubject to the Patriarch of Conſtantinople. The famous St. Baſil was Paſtor here; and there are Inſcriptions which mention him. The neighbouring Country produces many fine Plants and Vegetations of Stone, of a ſurprizing Beauty. Tournefort ſays, that in breaking Pebbles and pieces of Rocks, he found ſome covered over with Chryſtallizations, part of them reſembling candy'd Citron and Orange Peel, others Mother of Pearl, and ſome of a Gold colour.

There's little remarkable in the South part of Natolia, wich lies in the Mediterranean; for the once famous Cities of Halicarnaſſus, Tarſus, &c. are ſo entirely ruin'd, that Geographers are not agreed about their Situation. Here's no Port of any Note now, but Satalia, antiently Attalia, which lies on a fair Bay, Lat. 36. Lon. 34. It is fortify'd and defended by a Caſtle, and has a commodious Harbour; but the neighbouring Gulph, formerly call'd Sinus Attalicus, is dangerous.

The Iſlands of NATOLIA.

THEY lie in the Archipelago and Mediterranean. The chief are,

1. Tenedos, over-againſt Troy, 12 miles Weſt from the Aſian Shore. The Name came from Tenes, or Tennes, a Prince who brought a Colony hither from about Troy, and was worſhipp'd as a God after his death. It was one of the firſt Conqueſts of the Perſians, retaken by the Athenians, fell under the Romans, and is now poſſeſs'd by the Turks, ever ſince 1657. that they retook it from the Venetians. Tournefort ſays it is 18 miles round. The Emperor Juſtinian built Granaries here of an extraordinary ſize, which are now in Ruins. Here's the moſt delicious Muſcat Wine in all the Levant. It has a Town of the ſame Name, defended by a Caſtle upon an adjoining Hill, and the Town is encompaſs'd with old-faſhion'd Walls. The Greeks retired hither from the Siege of Troy, and from hence ſurprized that Town, when the Trojans thought they were gone quite off. Here alſo Lucullus defeated Mithridates.

2. Mitylene, or Metelin: 'Twas formerly inhabited by the Æoles, and has the preſent Name from its chief Town. Geographers differ about its Extent, ſome making it 137 miles in compaſs, ſome 168, and others 195. It was famous for generous Wine, beautiful Women, and good Muſicians. It has alſo produced very great Men. It lies over-againſt Pergamus in Aſia, and the Sea betwixt them is 7 miles and a half broad. Tournefort ſays, there is nothing left of the antient magnificent City, but Ruins of Marble Columns, with blind Inſcriptions, and their number is incredible. Moſt of them are of White or Aſh-colour'd Marble. There are abundance of Medals of this Town, with the Heads of the Heathen Gods, Roman Emperors, &c. Pittacus, one of the ſeven Sages of Greece, Alcæus the Poet, Sappho the Poeteſs, Diophanus the Rhetorician, Theophanes the Hiſtorian, Pompey's Friend and Sharer in his glorious Actions, were all Natives of this Iſland, as were many others whom we can't inſiſt on. Epicurus, Diogenes Laertius and Ariſtotle, did alſo reſide here; and Marcellus made it his Retreat after the Battle of Pharſalia. The Soil is good, produces Wheat, excellent Oil, the beſt Figs in the Archipelago, and its Wines keep up their antient Reputation. The Mountains are cool, and in many places cover'd with Wood. On the Ruins of antient Mitylene, there's a Town now call'd Caſtro. It lies on a Bay with a Harbour, with a long Mole. There are about 120 Villages in the Iſland. The Iſland was alſo noted for Jaſper and Pine-Trees. Here are many Turks mixed with Greeks, and ſeveral Harbours beſides Caſtri; the beſt of which is Jero, or Port-Olivier, reckon'd one of the largeſt and handſomeſt in the Mediterranean. The antient Inhabitants were ſo corrupt in their Morals, that it was thought a great Reproach to ſay one liv'd like a Lesbian. Their Women were alſo accounted immodeſt, but at preſent they are reckon'd better than ſome of their Neighbours, tho they expoſe their Breaſts too much. They have plenty of Sheep and Horſes. The latter are of a ſmall ſize, but ſtrong, and full of Metal.

3. Scio, formerly Chios, it lies over-againſt Smyrna: 'tis 120 miles in Circuit. Tournefort ſays, the Port is the Rendevous of all Ships that go either to Conſtantinople, or from thence to Syria in Egypt, tho it be none of the beſt. There's a ſorry Mole, built by the Genoeſe, level with the Surface of the Water. The Entrance is narrow and dangerous, becauſe of Rocks that are but juſt covered with Water; and could hardly be avoided, were it not for a Light-Houſe on the Rock of St. Nicholas. Here is generally a Squadron of Turkiſh Galleys. The Town is large, pleaſant, and the beſt built in the Levant. The Houſes are handſome and convenient, the Terraſſes well cemented, and the Building after the Genoeſe Mode. The Streets are pav'd with Flint-Stones. The Venetians beautify'd it in the laſt War, by levelling the Houſes about the Caſtle, and making a fine Eſplanade. The Caſtle is an old Citadel, built by the Genoeſe on the Bank of the Sea, and defends the Town and Port. Here's a Gariſon of 1400 Men, and the Town is encompaſs'd with round Towers, and an indifferent Ditch. Within the Caſtle there are cluſters of Houſes, inhabited by Muſſulmen, and the Latin Gentry. It lies on the Eaſt-ſide of the Iſland, was taken by the Venetians in 1694, and retaken by the Turks next Year, when the Gariſon precipitantly abandon'd it after the defeat of the Venetian Fleet near the Iſlands of Spalmadori. The Turks enter'd it as a conquer'd City, and the Greeks threw all the blame of the Venetian Invaſion upon the Latins, tho they had no hand in it; ſo that four of the moſt eminent Papiſts that had born the chief Offices were hang'd; the reſt were forbid to wear Hats, ordered to ſhave their Heads, and quit the Genoeſe Habit. They were not allow'd to enter the the City on Horſeback, and were commanded to ſalute the meaneſt Turk they met. Their Churches were pull'd down, or turn'd into Moſques. Their Biſhop and about 70 of the beſt Families follow'd the Venetians to the Morea. And whereas the Papiſts had by the French King's means the publick Exerciſe of their Religion with as much freedom as in Chriſtendom, with their Poſſeſſions, and the Clergy in their proper Habits, they have now no Place of Worſhip, but the French Vice-Conſul's Chappel. They had ſeven Churches in the Town, beſides others in the Country. The Cathredal and the Dominicans Church are turn'd into Moſques; the Jeſuits Church is made an Inn, and ſome are pull'd down. The Prieſts were allow'd to ſay Maſs in 10 or 12 Greek Churches; and ſome Gentlemen had Chappels in their Country-houſes. The Biſhop had 200 Crowns per Ann. from the Pope, beſides conſiderable Perquiſites: yet there are ſtill 24 Prieſts here, beſides French and Italian Monks who have loſt their Convents. Their Nuns are not cloyſter'd, nor reckon'd very chaſte.

The Greek Biſhop is in very good Circumſtances. He has many Churches in the Town, and the Iſland is full of Chappels. The Greek Monaſteries have large Revenues. About five miles from the Town, they have their chief Convent call'd Neamoni, or New Solitude. It is ſo large, that it looks like a Town, and its Revenues are 60000 Crowns per Ann. Thevenot ſays they had a Million in their Treaſury. The Monks or Caloyers are 150. They never eat together but on Sundays or Holidays, and at other times provide for themſelves as they can. The Houſe allows them nothing but Wine, Bread, and Cheeſe; yet ſome of them live well, and keep their Horſes. Every Monk pays 100 Crowns for admiſſion, and muſt give all they have at death to the Convent, except a third, which they may leave to one of their Kindred, on condition he turn a Member of their Society. Their Church is dark, yet reckon'd one of the beſt in the Levant, and is entirely Gothick. The Painting is very coarſe, tho loaded with Gilding. The Emperor Conſtantine Monomachus is ſaid to have built it, and is painted there with his Name, as are all the other Saints. The Columns and Chapiters are of Jaſper, but clumſily diſpoſed, and the Stone not poliſh'd. There are Quarries of it near this Church, and in many other places of the Iſland.

The Country in general is mountainous and rugged, and moſt of the Woods deſtroy'd; yet in ſome places there's abundance of Orange, Citron, Olive, Mulberry, Myrtle, Pomgranate, Turpentine, and Maſtick Trees. They have Corn, but not ſufficient for their Conſumption. They have abundance of excellent Wine, which is very Stomachick, and that about Ariuſa exceeds all others in deliciouſneſs of taſte; and from the Vineyards of Meſta the Antients had what they call'd their Nectar. Near the Town of Scio they plant their Vines on Hills, cut the Grapes in Auguſt, and let them dry in the Sun for ſeven or eight days before they preſs them. They mix a ſort of white Grapes among the black ones, when they make the beſt Wine; and in making their Nectar, they mix a Stiptick Grape. Here is not much Oil, the beſt Crop yielding but 200 Hogſheads. The French bring a great deal of Honey and Wax from hence. Their chief Manufacture is Silk, of which they make commonly 30000 Pound weight per Ann. Moſt of it is work'd up into Velvet, Damask, or other Stuffs, for Aſia and Africa; and ſometimes they mix them with Gold and Silver. The Merchant pays the Cuſtom, which is twenty Pence for every Pound of Silk. The Turks and French pay Three per Cent. for all the Commodities they buy in the Iſland, and the Jews and Armenians pay Five. Theſe Duties are farmed at 25000 Crowns per Ann. payable to the chief Treaſurer at Conſtantinople. The other Commodities of the Iſland are Wool, Cheeſe, Figs, and Maſtick. They ſpend many Figs in making Brandy, and export conſiderable Quantities. This Iſland has been long noted for Maſtick, reckon'd the beſt in the World. There are 22 Villages where the Lentisk or Maſtick Trees grow, and all thoſe Trees belong to the Grand Signior. They are wide ſpread and circular, and 10 or 12 Foot high. The biggeſt Trunks are a Foot diameter; the Bark is greyiſh, rugged, and chapt. The Branches have many Boughs, with Leaves growing in divers Couples. The Fruit grows in Bunches, like Grapes, and each Berry has a white Kernel. They bloſſom in May, but the Fruit does not ripen till Autumn and Winter. They begin to make Inciſions the firſt of Auguſt, cut the Bark croſs-wiſe, with large Knives, without touching the young Branches; next day the Juice diſtils in ſmall Tears, which harden on the Ground, are carefully ſwept up and ſifted from the Duſt, which ſticks ſo to the Faces of the Workmen, that they muſt rub them with Oil before they can get it off. The height of the Crop is about the middle of Auguſt, if the Weather be dry; but if rainy, the Tears are all loſt. The ſame Inciſions yield Maſtick in the end of September, but in leſſer quantities. An Account of it is taken annually, and the Grand Signior has 286 Cheſts, weighing 100,025 Oques. The Planters pay but half the Capitation that others do, and are allow'd to wear a white Saſh round their Turbant, like the Turks. None but thoſe authoriz'd muſt carry Maſtick from the Villages where 'tis made, on pain of the Galleys. Such Planters as have not enough to pay their Quota, muſt buy or borrow from others. They who have more, ſell it privately, and ſometimes compound with the Cuſtom-houſe-Officer, who takes it at a Crown per Oque, and ſells it again for two or two and a half. The Ladies of the Grand Signior's Seraglio conſume a great deal; they chew it by way of Amuſement, or in a morning to ſweeten their Breath. They uſe it alſo in perfuming Pots; and put ſome into their Bread before 'tis bak'd. 'Tis good for Diſtempers of the Stomach and Primæ Viæ, ſtops bleeding, and fortifies the Gums.

Turpentine Trees grow here without Culture, on the Borders of Vineyards and Highways. They are as high and full of Branches as the Lentisk; the Bark aſh-colour'd and chap'd; the Leaves a bright Green, aromatick and ſtiptick. The Fruit grows like Bunches of Grapes. Inciſions are made in the Trunks of the biggeſt with Hatchets, from the end of July to October. The Turpentine runs down on flat Stones placed on purpoſe. 'Tis an excellent natural Balſam, a ſovereign Stomachick, and provokes Urine. 'Tis ſold on the ſpot for 30 or 35 Parats per Oque, of which the Iſland does not produce above 300.

Tournefort went to ſee what they call'd Homer's School and Houſe here, at the foot of Mount Epos, near the Sea, four miles from the Town. 'Tis a flat Rock, in which there is hew'd a ſort of round Baſon 20 Foot diameter, the Edge made ſo as to ſit on; and in the middle of the Baſon there's a piece of a Rock cut like a Cube or Dye, on which 'tis ſuppoſed he ſat. Leo Allatius, a very learned Man, and Native of Scio, has been at very great pains to prove Homer to be his Countryman; and all Authors agree that the Homerides, ſuppoſed to be the Deſcendants of Homer, dwelt in this Iſland; and 'tis probable that they cauſed this Rock to be cut for a School to young People that were willing to learn his Works: but whether he was born here or at Smyrna, is ſtill controverted by the Learned; yet theſe two bid the faireſt of all the Seven who pretend to it. His Works have been reviſed ſo often by Criticks and Wits, who undertook to reſtore his original Beauties, and have made ſo many Alterations, that 'tis probable he would ſcarce know them himſelf if he were alive. His Houſe where they ſay he compoſed moſt of his Poems, is near Voliſſo, or Boliſſues, in a place which bears his Name, on the North-ſide of the Iſland, in the midſt of the Arviſian Fields that furniſh the Nectar, which help'd to elevate his Genius.

He adds, 'tis pleaſant living at Scio. The Women are better bred there than in other Parts of the Levant, and neat, tho their Dreſs be odd, and their Coats very ſhort. Here's plenty of Wild Fowl, and great Flocks of Partridges as tame as our Hens; and they are carried out to the Fields by a common Keeper in every Town and Village, who brings them back in the Evening, after calling them together by a Whiſtle; and they go without Confuſion to their Owners Houſes. The Iſland produces very fine Plants: They boaſt that Ion the Tragick Poet, Theopompus the Hiſtorian, and Theocritus the Sophiſt were born here as well as Homer. The Country, in time of Peace, is governed by a Cadi, and in time of War a Baſſa commands the Troops. The Cadi is one of the firſt Rank, and named by the Mufti of Conſtantinople. They have not above 150 Janizaries here in time of Peace, and 3 or 400 in time of War. There are reckoned in the Iſland 10000 Turks, 3000 Latins or Papiſts, and 100000 Greeks. The Capitation is divided into three Claſſes, the higheſt ten Crowns per Head, the ſecond five, the loweſt two and an half, and every one pays three Parats for their Acquittance; Women are excuſed. They have a fanciful way of impoſing this Tax: they meaſure the Necks of Men with a String, double the Meaſure, put both Ends into the Party's Mouth, and throw the String over his Head; which if it get clear thro the Meaſure, he pays, otherwiſe he is exempt. They pay no Land-Tax, but only ſome arbitrary Impoſts to clear the Debts of the City, the Affairs of which are managed by four Deputies elected once per annum, and eight Antients; in each Village they chuſe two Adminiſtrators, and four Antients.

Other Places of Note here, are,

(1.) Calimacha, their principal Maſtick Town. Thevenot ſays, it is populous, has ſix Greek Churches and a Nunnery, with thirty other Greek Churches in the Neighbourhood.

(2.) Cardamila, eighteen miles from Scio, near Port Dolphin. Here are the Ruins of a Temple dedicated to Neptune, and near it a fine Spring out of a Rock; but Tournefort does not think this to be the Fountain where Stephens the Geographer ſays Helena uſed to bathe. It forms a pretty Caſcade, but there are none of thoſe fine Marble Steps mentioned by Thevenot; and our Author ſuppoſes he was miſinform'd, and confounded this Place with the Fountain of Sclavia, that runs in a Marble Bottom, in one of the moſt delicious Spots of the Iſland, which is ſhewn to Strangers as one of its Wonders. Tournefort adds, that he could hear nothing of the Scio Earth, nor of the Fountain mentioned by Vitruvius, which depriv'd thoſe that drank its Water of their Senſes, tho he enquir'd about them of a learned Phyſician, who was a Native of the Place, and ſtudy'd at Paris. Thevenot ſays, the adjacent Country yields about 170 Tun of Wine per annum, and that ſome Pieces of Gold, Silver, and Copper, coin'd by the Emperor Conſtantine, were lately dug up in the Neighbourhood.

(3.) Cambia, noted for Woods of Pines, with which the Turks build Galleys; as alſo for a ſtrong Caſtle on a Rock. Over againſt it is Mount St. Elias, with a Church dedicated to him. 'Tis the higheſt Mountain in the Iſland, and the Top generally covered with Miſt and Snow. Near this Place there is a hot Bath, proceeding from Sulphur, and by the Natives call'd Holy Water. It has cured many Diſeaſes, and muſt be drunk with Caution, becauſe it works violently.

(4.) St. Helena, built on a Rock, has about 200 Inhabitants, two Churches, and a Chappel; but they are ſo ignorant, that if a dead Body does not corrupt in 40 days, they think it turns to a Hobgoblin.

(5.) Voliſto has 300 Houſes and 1500 Inhabitants. It lies on a Hill, and has a Caſtle built by Beliſarius, the Emperor Juſtinian's General. The neighbouring Country is pleaſant and fruitful, and produces 5000 weight of Silk per Ann. with which they pay their Tribute. The Inhabitants are vicious, and thought to be under a Curſe, becauſe, tho the Country be fruitful, they generally want Bread.

(6.) Armolia, one of the Maſtick Villages, has 500 People, ſeveral Churches, and a ſtrong Caſtle, which defends them from the Corſairs.

(7.) Meſta, a ſtrong little Town, with ſeveral Churches, and two Harbours. It lies in the renown'd Arviſian Fields, which produce the Grapes that yield Nectar.

(8.) Pergi has 2000 Inhabitants, 30 Churches, and a ſtrong Tower. Thevenot ſays of the Country in general, that here were many populous Towns, with Caſtles and Towers built round the Iſland at four miles diſtance from one another, to prevent the Incurſions of the Turks from Natolia, who uſed to carry off their Goods and People: they preſerv'd their Liberty better than any of the neighbouring Iſlands, and enjoy'd their own Laws and Cuſtoms upon paying their Tribute. But the caſe is much alter'd ſince the Venetians were laſt forced from the Iſland; for the Turks now uſe them like a conquer'd People. Weſt from hence, lies Pſara, or Pſyra, a ſmall Iſland, that has great Herds of Aſſes, which die as ſoon as tranſported elſewhere, ſays Bleau.

4. Samo, or Samos, lies about 40 miles S. E. from Scio, over-againſt Scala Nova, on the Continent, from whence it is 25 miles W. 'Twas once a Commonwealth of Note. Tournefort, who was here in 1702, gives a very large Deſcription of it. He ſays, while Greece was in its Splendor, this Iſland was populous, and well cultivated. In his time, it contain'd about 12000 People, all of the Greek Church, except three Turkiſh Families belonging to the Cadi, the Aga, and his Deputy, who who took care of the Turkiſh Government. The People liv'd at eaſe, and were not oppreſs'd. Their Capitation was only 6400 Crowns. The Cuſtoms were farmed at 10000, and the Aga who collected it, raiſed as much for himſelf. The Greek Prieſts had ten Pence for every Capitation-Billet. Their Biſhop had 2000 Crowns per ann. beſides conſiderable Perquiſites by bleſſing the Waters and Cattel on the firſt of May, all the Milk and Cheeſe of that day, and two Beaſts out of every Flock. When a Greek dies without Male Heirs, the Aga ſucceeds to all but his Gardens, which fall to the Daughters; and the firſt offer is made to them when the Eſtate is to be ſold. The Women are naſty and coarſe, and clothe after the Turkiſh manner. The Prieſts are only Peaſants, advanced for ſaying Maſs by heart. They are above 200, and the Monks more; ſo that the Iſland is govern'd by Churchmen. Here are ſeven Friaries, four Nunneries, and above 300 private Chappels. The chief Towns are governed by two Prieſts and four Burghers annually choſe, and each Village by two Adminiſtrators. The Land-Tax is about 12000 Crowns, and a 10th of all the Corn, Fruit, and Roots. Here's abundance of Melons, Lentils, French Beans, &c. and Muſcadine Grapes, which make excellent Wine when carefully look'd after by the Merchant: but the Greeks know not how to order it, and commonly mix it with Water. There are about 3000 Barrels made there in a Year, each Barrel weighing 158 Pounds 4 Ounces; and a Load, which is a Barrel and half, is ſold in the place from four to ſeven Livres and half, and the Red Wines at four Livres, which is good and deep-colour'd, if not mix'd with Water. The Greeks pay four or five per Cent. or more, as the Cuſtom-houſe Officers pleaſe, for exporting Wine; and the French half ſo much. The Grand Signior has 40 Sous per ann. for every 50 Paces long, and 20 broad of a Vineyard. They make annually 900 Barrels of Oil of the ſame weight with the Wine, and they ſell it very cheap. Here's plenty of white Millet, Barley and Wheat; with the latter they load three Barks every year at leaſt, for France; and the like of Cheeſe, which they ſell for two Crowns per hundred weight. They have very large Figs, which they dry only for their own uſe. The North part of the Iſland yields annually about 400 Quintals of Pitch, from their Pine-Trees. They ſell it at a Crown per Quintal, but it pays 4 per Cent. Cuſtom. Here are great numbers of Oaks, and they make conſiderable Profit of their Acorns, which they ſell to Tanners. Their Silk is fine, and is worth from four to five Livres per Pound. They export to the Value of 25000 Lib. per ann. They gather about 200 Quintals of Honey, and 100 of Wax per ann. the Quintal being 140 Pounds here, as in moſt Parts of Turkey. They ſell the Honey for a Crown per 50 Pound weight, and the Wax for nine Pence or ten Pence a Pound. The Scammony here is not good, gripes hard, and works violently both ways. The Country abounds with wild Fowl, and tame Poultry of all ſorts. The Partridges are ſo numerous, that they are ſold for three Pence a Brace: and here are likewiſe Heathcocks, which they call Meadow-Partridges, becauſe they frequent the Marſhes. Hares, wild Boars, and Goats, are numerous, but they have few Deer. Their Horſes and Mules are not handſom, but ſerviceable. Here are many Beeves, but their Sheep are few in proportion. The French load a Bark with Wool once per ann. and buy two Ounces weight for two Sous. Here are Iron Mines, and very fine Bolus, of a deep red, being a natural Saffron of Mars, from whence they extract Iron by help of Linſeed Oil. 'Tis ſuppoſed the antient Earthen-Ware, of which the Samians were the Inventors, were made of the Earth about Bavonda; but now 'tis quite neglected, as are alſo the two ſorts of white Earth uſed medicinally by the Antients; nor do they make any Inquiry for the Samian Stone, which was ſo much uſed for poliſhing Gold, and healing many Diſtempers. The Emery-Stone and Oker are common here, as is a black fine inſipid Earth, which dyes black. The Mountains here are of white Marble, very cool, full of Springs, cover'd with Trees, and pleaſant.

There's a Strait on the Weſt, betwixt this Iſland and that of Fourli, eight miles broad, and call'd the Great Bogas; and another in the Eaſt, betwixt Samos and Natolia, call'd the Little Bogas, about a mile broad, and three long. They are both haunted by Corſairs, which cruize on the Ships that muſt paſs this way betwixt Conſtantinople, Syria, and Egypt. Places of Note here are,

(1.) Vati, a Village of 300 Houſes and 6 Chappels, on a Bay, in the North-ſide of the Iſland. 'Tis but ſorrily built, tho one of the chief places here, and the Reſidence of a French Vice-Conſul. 'Tis the beſt Harbour in the Iſland, and capable of a large Fleet. The Town ſeems to have been of vaſt Extent by its Ruins.

(2.) Cora, in a Bay, on the South-ſide of the Iſland. The Name ſignifies a City, tho it contains but 600 Houſes, and moſt of them empty, ſince it was ravaged by the Venetians. It lies within two miles of the Sea, near the Ruins of the antient Samos. The Air is unwholeſom, becauſe the Waters which formerly ran into the Sea, ſtagnate in the neighbouring Plain; yet the adjacent Country is fruitful and pleaſant. This Town is the Seat of the Cadi and the Aga of the Janizaries.

(3.) The Ruins of Samos ſhew it to have been a very great Town, with a Jettee or Mole of 250 Paces into the Sea, and 20 Fathom high; ſo that it was conſiderable for Shipping. It was divided into the upper and lower Town; and by the Remains of Marble Walls, &c. appears to have been very noble, and beyond any thing in the Levant. All the Redoubts were of Marble, and they had their Salley-Ports. Here are the Ruins of Theatres, Temples, and Chappels, Columns and Portico's: but Tournefort ſaw no Inſcriptions that could be underſtood, they are ſo defac'd. Here are alſo the Ruins of a noble Aqueduct, and certain Caverns, which the Country-People ſay have ſerv'd for above 2000 years as places of Shelter for the Cattel. Herodotus ſays, the Samians bored an Opening 875 Paces long thro a Mountain, 150 Fathom deep, in which they formed a Canal 20 Cubits deep, and three Foot broad, to convey a fine Spring to the Town; which Tournefort ſuppoſes to be that of Metelinous, on the other ſide of the Mountain. Here are alſo the Ruins of a Temple dedicated to Juno the Protectreſs of the Iſland, half a mile from the Sea. The Temple was burnt by the Perſians, but rebuilt not long after, and enrich'd with Preſents.

(4.) Cacoperata Chappel lies in a Cavern, and is a moſt diſmal Hermitage, of difficult Acceſs: The Path that leads to it, is about 300 Paces long, being cut in the craggy Rock, and in ſome places not above half a foot broad, with dreadful Precipices on both ſides.

(5.) Nicaria, 18 miles S. W. from Samos, formerly called Icaria, becauſe Icarus the Son of Dædalus was drown'd near it. 'Tis narrow, and has a Ridge of Mountains in the middle, cover'd with Wood, which furniſh it with Springs. 'Twas never populous, but antiently ſerv'd the Samians for Paſture. The preſent Inhabitants are about 1000, have two Towns of about 100 Houſes each, and ſeveral ſmall Villages. They live by ſelling Plants of Pine and Oak, and Timber for Building and Fuel, to Scio and Scala Nova. They are very poor, and beg when abroad; which is owing to their Lazineſs, in not improving their Ground. They have little Wheat, but plenty of Barley, Figs, Honey, and Wax. They half-bake their Bread on a flat Stone, and no more at a time than ſerves for a day. They allow Women with Child and Strangers a double Portion of it. They are half Savages, and churliſh. The Biſhop of Samos is their Dioceſan. Here's a Protopapas and 24 Papas, who perform Worſhip according to the Greek Church. Their Language is nearer the old Greek than that of the other Iſlands. Here's but one Monaſtery, call'd St. Lesbia, and but one Monk belonging to it. Here are no Turks, but their Affairs are manag'd by two Adminiſtrators choſen annually. They pay a Capitation and Cuſtoms to the Officers of Scio, for liberty to ſell their Wood. They grind their Corn by Hand-Mills, which they buy from Milo, for a Crown or 7 s. 6 d. a-piece. Here are but two Ports, and neither of 'em very good. They lie 60 miles diſtant; one looks toward Scio, and the other to Samos. At the latter there's an old Tower, which ſerves for a Light-houſe; for when the Sea runs high, this Channel is dangerous. Thevenot ſays here's White-Wine as clear as Water, and paſſes almoſt as ſoon as drunk. The People are well-ſhaped and ſtrong, and the Women uſurp the Maſtery over their Husbands. The Emperors of Conſtantinople baniſh'd People of Quality hither. Tournefort ſays, Thevenot miſtook this Iſland for Niſſaro, when he ſpeaks of the famous Divers.

(6.) Pathmos, or Patmos; now Patmoſa, or Patino. Tournefort ſays 'tis 45 miles S.W. from Nicaria, and 40 from Samos. 'Tis about 18 miles round, but reckoning the Turnings and Windings from Cape to Cape, it may be accounted 30. 'Tis one of the worſt Rocks in the Archipelago, bleak, without Wood, and very barren; it abounds with Hills and Mountains, Partridges, Rabbits, Quails, Turtles, Pigeons, and Snipes. They have little Wheat, Barley, or Wine, and not many Figs. The People live chiefly by their Induſtry, and fetching Corn from the Continent in little Veſſels for thoſe that employ 'em. Here are not above 300 Men, but the Women are twenty times ſo many. They are naturally pretty, but deform themſelves by painting. The Houſes are better built than in the neighbouring Iſlands; and here are 250 Chappels arch'd and neatly cover'd. They are under the Biſhop of Samos. Their Civil Affairs are manag'd by two Adminiſtrators choſen annually, who levy their Taxes, which amount to 1000 Crowns, beſides Preſents to the Captain Baſhaw, and his Officers who come for it. Here are none but Greeks, and one of them performs the Office of Conſul for France, tho he has no Patent, but ſays the Family has done ſo for three Generations.

This Iſland has very good Ports, where the Venetian Fleet uſed to winter during the Wars of Candy. That called De la Scala is the beſt in the Archipelago. 'Tis a large Bay, which runs almoſt through the Iſland to the Weſt, and its Entry lies N. E. Near which there's another call'd Sapſila, which runs S. and opens to the N. Eaſt from that on the North-ſide of the Iſland there's another call'd Gricou. But the Corſairs infeſt them, and have forc'd the Inhabitants to retire from La Scala two miles up the Hill, near St. John's Convent.

Tournefort ſays 'tis like a Citadel, with ſeveral irregular Towers, but a very ſubſtantial Building, on a ſteep Rock. The Emperor Alexis Comnenes is ſaid to have founded it. The Chappel is ſmall, and ſorrily painted, after the Greek way. The Revenue of the Convent is 6000 Crowns per ann. Their Church-Plate is handſom, and they are allow'd two large Bells over the Gate-way, becauſe the Turks have a Veneration for St. John: 100 Monks belong to it, but not above 60 reſident, the reſt being ſent to look after their Farms in the neighbouring Iſlands. Here's the Body of a Saint, who they ſay perſuaded the Emperor to build the Monaſtery, and demand a Crown for ſhewing it.

The Hermitage call'd the Apocalypſe, lies on the ſide of a Mountain, betwixt the Convent and Port de la Scala. 'Tis poor, depends on the Convent, and in 1702 was given by the Superior to an antient Biſhop of Samos for 200 Crowns. St. John, who was baniſh'd hither, is thought to have writ the Revelations in this place. The way to it is very narrow, cut out of the Rock. The Chappel is about eight or nine Paces long, and five broad. The Arch-work is Gothick, and pretty enough. On the right is St. John's Grotto, the Entrance about ſeven foot high, with a ſquare Pillar in the middle. Over-head there's a Chink thro which they fancy the Apocalypſe was dictated to St. John. The Grotto is low, and has nothing remarkable. They pretend that pieces of the Rock expel evil Spirits, and cure ſeveral Diſeaſes.

(7.) Calamo, now Claros, lies near Pathmos, is about 40 miles round, and mountainous, but has good Harbours. Some of the Hills are ſo high, that Epheſus, tho 80 miles diſtant, is ſeen from them. 'Twas formerly conſecrated to Apollo, from hence nam'd Clarius.

(8.) Lero, now Oleron, or Leria, near Claros, 18 miles round, is populous, inhabited by Greeks and Turks, and furniſhes the neighbouring Countries with Aloes.

(9.) Langæ, or Lango, antiently Cos, Coos, or Caris. Thevenot calls it Stanchio; and Iſola Longa, makes it 70 miles round, and 78 miles S. from Samos. It has a Town of its own Name, famous for the Temple of Æſculapius, which was made rich by Preſents. Hippocrates the Phyſician, Apelles the Painter, and other learned Men, were born here. The Inhabitants were eloquent, and thoſe of Chio talkative; whence the Proverb, Chius Coum loqui non ſinit. It riſes in the Eaſt part with graceful Mountains, from whence flow many pleaſant Streams that fructify the Iſland, which yields a pleaſant Proſpect at Sea. It was famous for excellent Wine, much valu'd by the Romans.

It abounds with Cypreſs, Turpentine, and other Trees, both pleaſant and medicinal. The Turks will not ſuffer the Cypreſs-Trees here to be cut. Thevenot ſays, there's a Tree here of that vaſt extent, that 2000 Men may ſtand under it: the Branches are ſupported by Pillars, and there are Barbers-Shops and Coffee-Houſes, &c. form'd by them. Apelles drew the Picture of Venus here, riſing naked out of the Sea. He aſſembled all the beautiful Women of the Iſland, and united their beſt Features and Lineaments in this one Piece. Auguſtus brought it to Rome, and dedicated it to Cæſar, as that of the Mother of the Julian Family; and eaſed the Inhabitants of Cos of their Tribute, for allowing him to take this Picture out of her Temple. This Iſland was alſo fam'd for fine thin Stuffs, call'd Veſtimenta Coa, ſuppoſed to be like our Tiffany. The Town is ſtill large, and defended by a Caſtle near the Harbour, which is ſecur'd by a good Mole, and kept in repair by the Turks, who have Galleys to guard it againſt Pirates, it being the place where Ships uſually touch in their Paſſage betwixt Conſtantinople and Egypt.

Bodron Caſtle is plac'd by Thevenot over againſt Stanchio or Coos, at twelve miles diſtance; the Harbour was good, but now ſo much choak'd up with Sand, that large Ships can't enter it. There are ſeven Gates at the Entry of the Caſtle, over which are three hundred Coats of Arms of the Knights of Rhodes that commanded here. Beyond the ſixth Gate there's a Platform, with ſix Cannon pointed towards the Sea. The laſt Gate is of Iron, and has a Guard always kept at it. The Caſtle is ſtrong, the Walls high, and built of ſuch Stone as Guns can't hurt. The Sea encompaſſes one Side, which is mounted with Cannon, to hinder the Approach of Ships. 'Tis very ſtrong on the Land-ſide, and can't be approach'd by Horſe; yet it may eaſily be taken, by cutting off the Water brought to it by an Aqueduct. The Houſes are ruinous, and there are many antient Marbles among them. The adjacent Country abounds with Vines, Fig-Trees, and other ſorts of Fruit. In the Town of Haranges there are many antient Marble Houſes, and near them the Ruins of a ſtately one that belong'd to Hippocrates.

9. Nio, formerly call'd Ios from the Ionians, its firſt Inhabitants. 'Tis twenty four miles from Naxos, and forty miles round, noted for the Tomb of Homer, who dy'd here in his way from Samos to Athens. His Mother was born here, and Aulus Gellius will have him alſo to be a Native of this Place; but nothing of his Tomb now remains, or any Footſtep of Antiquity. The Town ſeems to be built on the Ruins of old Ios, round the Caſtle like an Amphitheatre. The Port is one of the ſafeſt in the Archipelago, and the Entry S. and S. E. The Iſland is well cultivated, and pays five thouſand Crowns per ann. to the Grand Signior. The Wheat here is much valu'd, Oil and Wood are ſcarce, and it has now no Palm-Trees. The People are ſo thieviſh, and given to pirating, that the Turks call it Little Maltha. 'Tis frequented by other Pirates, becauſe of its good Harbours, which afford Retreat to the largeſt Fleets. The Pilots here are the beſt in the Levant, and know all the Coaſts of Syria and Egypt. The Latins have one Church here, and the Greeks ſeveral.

10. Santorini, or Santerini, formerly Thera, lies betwixt Candy and the Cyclades, is thirty ſix miles round, and ſhap'd like an Horſe-ſhoe. However pleaſant it was of old, 'tis now cover'd over with Pumice-Stone, the Coaſts become inacceſſible and rugged by Earthquakes, and it has loſt all its fine Towns. Port St. Nicholo here reſembles an Half-Moon, and tho it looks fine, has no Anchorage, the Bottom being never yet found by any Plumb-Line; and there are ſeveral Iſlands at the Mouth of it, that were rais'd out of the Sea by Earthquakes, and one no longer ago than 1707. The Eruptions then infected the Air, ſo that many People dy'd, and others grew blind. Tho the Soil be mere Pumice, yet the Inhabitants have by Induſtry made it like an Orchard. Here's little Wheat, but ſtore of Barley, Cotton, and Wine, that has the Colour of Rheniſh, but is more ſpirituous. The Women cultivate the Vineyards, while the Men are abroad ſelling the Wine. They have little other Fruit but Figs. Firing is ſo ſcarce, that they buy Wood by the Pound from Scio, and bake Bread but three or four times per annum, which is a ſorry black Biſcuit of Barley. They kill Beeves but once a year, and ſteep the Fleſh in Vinegar wherein Salt has been diſſolv'd, expoſe it to the Sun till as hard as Wood, and then eat it dry or boil'd. They have no Fiſh, ſo that their chief Food is Beans, Peaſe, and Eggs. The People are about ten thouſand, have ſeveral Towns and Villages, and pay ten thouſand Crowns per annum to the Grand Signior. They are moſtly Greeks, and about one third of them Papiſts. Both of them have a Biſhop. The Gentry live at Scuro, a ſmall Town on a Rock, at the further end of the Port, where the French Conſul reſides, and the Jeſuits have a good Houſe. Here are both Greek and Popiſh Nuns, who make excellent Callicoes.

Pirgos is the prettieſt Town in the Iſland, on a Riſing-Ground, with a Proſpect of two Seas and fine Vineyards. There's but one ſorry Spring of Water in the Iſland, but they have Reſervatories for Rain. Moſt of the Houſes are Caverns dug in the Pumice, arched over with light reddiſh Stones that look to be half Pumice. The Rocks about the Port are Iron-colour'd, and have no Graſs. Here's a Marble Chappel dedicated to St. Stephen, on a Mountain of that Name; and on a Hill there are the Ruins of an antient Town and Marble-column'd Temple. They had antiently a fine Town, where they conſecrated Monuments to the Roman Emperors Tiberius, Claudius, &c. of which Monſieur Tournefort exhibits the Inſcriptions.

11. Nanfio, antiently Membliaros, is ſixteen miles round, has no Haven. The Mountains are bare Rocks, but have noble Springs. The People are all of the Greek Church, idle, and ſubſiſt chiefly by Onions, Wax, and Honey. Partridges abound ſo much here, that the Inhabitants, to prevent their Increaſe and deſtroying their Corn, take up all the Eggs they can, and twelve thouſand ſometimes, which they uſe in their Sauces; yet ſtill they are very numerous, but there is ſcarce Fewel to dreſs them. Here are the Ruins of a Temple of Apollo, with fine Marble Columns, Architraves, &c. The People are govern'd by one or two Conſuls, whom they chuſe annually.

12. Stampalia, formerly Aſtypalæa, 33 miles South-Weſt from the Coaſt of Natolia, and 90 Weſt from Rhodes. It has a Town of the ſame Name, that was famous for a Temple of Apollo. Here's a ruinous Caſtle, with the Arms of France, Venice, and Tuſcany. Their chief Church is that of St. George. The Inhabitants are Greeks, and their Dioceſan the Biſhop of Siphanto, who lives here ſometimes. There's no other Place inhabited, the Iſland being barren, and without freſh Water.

13. Scarpanto, in the mid way betwixt Crete and Rhodes, was formerly nam'd Carpathos, from whence the neighbouring Sea was call'd Mare Carpathium. Some make it ſixty, others eighty miles round. The Soil is mountainous, and has Quarries of excellent Marble. It had formerly four Cities, but none now except Scarpanto, which has a pretty good Harbour. The Town was well fortify'd when poſſeſs'd by the Knights of Rhodes, who us'd it as a Curb on the Trade betwixt Conſtantinople and Egypt. It was alſo long poſſeſs'd by the Venetians, but now by the Turks. Moſt of the Inhabitants are of the Greek Church; but the Iſland being infeſted by Pirates, is ill-peopled.

14. Rhodes, formerly call'd Ophiuſa, Aſteria, Ethræa, Trinachia, Pæeſſa, Corymbia, Atabyria, Macaria, and Oloeſſa, lies South and North at the Mouth of a Bay on the Coaſt of Natolia, from whence it is about twelve miles South. Authors differ as to its Extent; ſome make it 103 miles round, ſome 125, and others 140. Sanſon makes it 50 from South to North, and 23, where broadeſt, from Eaſt to Weſt. Some pretend it was firſt peopled by Dodanim, Grandſon to Japhet, whom the Greeks call Rhodanim, miſtaking the Hebrew d for an r. The Inhabitants were ſo conſiderable by Sea in Florus's time, that he calls them Populus Nauticus. They were alſo ſo remarkable for their Power and Government, that for many Years they commanded the neighbouring Seas, and their Laws were us'd to determine maritime Cauſes, till ſucceeded by thoſe of Oleron. It was ſo much bleſs'd with the Gifts of Nature, as gave the Poets occaſion to ſay, That Golden Showers rain'd upon it. It was ſo famous for military Power, that it gave a great deal of Trouble to the Greeks in their Conqueſts; but at laſt became their Aſſociate, for which it had large Poſſeſſions in Aſia during the Wars of Antiochus. It gave alſo a great deal of trouble to the Romans, but afterward apply'd to them for Protection againſt the Macedonians; upon which the Romans became their Maſters, and fix'd a Governour here, who preſided over the Province of the Aſian Iſles. It became one of the principal Univerſities of the Roman Empire for Eloquence, Philoſophy, and Mathematicks; ſo that Cæſar and Tiberius both ſtudy'd here. The Romans delighted in it, becauſe of its ſerene Air; and were ſo fond of its excellent Wine, that they us'd it in their Sacrifices, and thought it too good for any but the Gods and themſelves. Solinus ſays, the Air here is never ſo cloudy as to hinder the Sight of the Sun. It gave Birth to Cleobulus, one of the ſeven Sages, contends for that of Homer, and was honour'd with that of Chares, who made the famous Coloſſus, of which in its place.

There are many antient Medals of this City, one mentioned by Spanheim, with a Greek Inſcription, ΕΛΕΤΟ ΡΟΔΙΩΝ, denoting their Liberty, which was afterwards reſtrain'd or enlarg'd as the Romans pleas'd. They had ſeveral Towns, which were ſeparate Republicks, but at laſt all center'd in that of the Town of Rhodes. They continu'd under the Empire of the Eaſt and Weſt till 1124. when it was taken by the Venetians, but recover'd from them in 1227. by the Greeks, from whom the Turks took it in 1283. The Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem took it from the Turks, by the help of the Emperor of the Eaſt, in 1308; defended it gallantly afterwards, and repuls'd Mahomet the Great with Shame and Loſs in 1480. But Solyman the Magnificent attack'd them in 1522, with 200000 Men and 300 Ships; and in 1523, Jan. 1. the Knights were oblig'd to ſurrender, by the Importunity of the Gariſon and Townſmen, who loſt 90000 Men during the Siege. The Knights in the Town were 600, and the reſt of the Gariſon at firſt but 5400. Thevenot ſays, it was taken more by Treachery than Force; and that the Great Chancellor of the Order being diſguſted becauſe he was not choſe Great Maſter, diſcover'd the weakeſt Place to the Turks, by a Letter faſten'd to an Arrow, which he ſhot into their Camp. The Turks did ſo much honour to the Valour of the Knights, that they ſtill preſerve their Houſes, Arms, Statues, and Inſcriptions, in the ſame State as they left them.

Thevenot gives the following Account of the Town: It has two Harbours, a larger and a leſſer; but the former not very ſafe, when the Wind blows hard from N. E. to S. E. At the Entry on the Right, the Turks have built a new Tower in the place of an old one, with a Baſtion behind, and a Curtain that reaches the Walls of the Town, all well mounted with Cannon. Over againſt this Tower ſtands the Caſtle of St. Angelo, now ruinous. This Caſtle, and the above-mention'd Tower were built in the Place where formerly ſtood the Feet of the Great Coloſſus. Pliny ſays, it was of Braſs, ſeventy Cubits high; and that after it had ſtood fifty ſix years, it was overturn'd by an Earthquake. 'Twas reckon'd one of the ſeven Wonders of the World, and of ſo monſtrous a Size, that two Men were ſcarce able to fathom one of its Thumbs. It carry'd a Lighthouſe in one hand, and a Scepter in the other. The Diſtance betwixt one Foot and t'other was above fifty Fathom, ſo that Ships eaſily paſs'd betwixt its Legs. Its Head reſembled the Image of the Sun: It was twelve years a making, and coſt King Demetrius three hundred Talents. The Saracens are ſaid to have broke it to pieces, and their General ſold the Metal to a Jew, who loaded 900 Camels with it, and ſold it at Alexandria in Egypt. The leſſer Port, or that of the Gallies, is a good Harbour, capable of many Veſſels; but the Mouth of it ſo narrow, that only one Galley can enter at a time, and it is ſhut up every night with a Chain. On the ſide of the Harbour there's a Piazza, adorn'd with Trees and a Fountain; at the bottom of it lies the Arſenal and Dock for building Ships. The Town is ſmall, but ſtrong, and well fortify'd with good high Walls, planted with Falcons; and in the lower part there are Port-Holes for great Cannon. The Walls are treble, with fortify'd Towers at proper Diſtances, and the Works command one another. The Streets are broad, well pav'd, and cover'd with Pent-houſes on each ſide, to ſhelter People from the Sun, &c. The middle of the great Street, call'd that of the Knight of St. John, is pav'd with white Marble. On both ſides are the Houſes of the former Knights, and here ſtands alſo the Palace of the Great Maſter, which is kept in good Repair, but no body lives in it. The great Church of St. John is a noble Structure, now turn'd to a Moſque. There are ſeveral other ther fair Buildings erected by the Chriſtians ſtill remaining. The Turks have always a Squadron here, commanded by a Bey, to cruiſe on the Ships of Maltha.

Moſt of the Iſlanders are Greeks, but miſerably oppreſs'd; and the Jews who live here came originally from Spain. The adjacent Country abounds with Wheat, Honey, Wax, Olives, Citrons, Figs, and Oranges. The Manufactures are Soap, Camlets, and Tapeſtry; here are alſo ſome Mines of Iron and Copper. The Town is a Mart for moſt of the Commodities of the Archipelago; as Corn, Wine, Oil, Raiſins, Wax, Honey, Cordovants, Cotton, with Yarn and Stuffs of it, Vermillion, Damasks, and other Silk Stuffs. No Chriſtian is allow'd to lodge in the Town, but only in the Suburbs.

15. Cyprus lies near the bottom of the Mediterranean, Lat. 35. about 50 miles Weſt from the Coaſt of Aſia, and 211 Eaſt from Rhodes. 'Tis about 170 miles long, 46 where broadeſt, and the largeſt Iſland belonging to Natolia. It had antiently many Names, which we can't inſiſt upon. The preſent is deriv'd from the Cypreſs-Trees, with which it abounds. The Air is hot and ſultry in the Summer, and frequently dries up their Brooks. The Inhabitants have always been noted for Laſciviouſneſs, on which account the Iſland was conſecrated to Venus, who was hence ſirnam'd Cypria; and by the lewd Worſhip of that Idol the Women became extreme impudent. The preſent Inhabitants are in general accounted warlike, ſtrong, nimble, hoſpitable to their Neighbours, and civil to Strangers, except Jews, whom they don't ſuffer to enter the Iſland; becauſe, in the Reign of Trajan, a multitude of thoſe People, from Egypt and other Countries, invaded it under one Alexander, kill'd many of the Inhabitants, and were not drove out but with great difficulty by that Emperor's Lieutenant. They boaſt that the Poets Aſclepiades and Xenophon, Zeno and Apollonius the Philoſophers, Barnabas, St. Paul's Companion, and Epiphanius the Biſhop of Salamis, who wrote againſt Hereſies, were Natives of this Iſland. Chriſtianity was planted here by Paul and Barnabas, as appears by Acts 13. 4. They continu'd in Communion with the Greek Church, till the Venetians, when Maſters of it, brought in Popery. Their Biſhop antiently look'd upon himſelf to be an independent Primate, and was conſecrated by his own Clergy. They had an Archbiſhop and fourteen Biſhops, till Pope Innocent III. reduc'd them to four Sees, in each of which he allow'd a Greek and a Latin Biſhop, gave the Revenues to the latter, and the former liv'd on Contributions. In Ptolemey's time it was divided into four Diſtricts, according to its principal Towns: It was govern'd by Kings, before the Romans maſter'd it; and Ptolomey, the laſt of them, poiſon'd himſelf, when he heard that the Romans were coming againſt him. Porcius Cato ſubdu'd it, and brought more Money from thence into the Roman Treaſury, than had been done by any Conqueror before his time. After the Diviſion of the Empires, it continu'd under that of the Eaſt till 1181. when Richard of England being drove a-ſhore here by a Tempeſt, and ill-us'd by the Inhabitants, ſubdu'd, and gave it to Guy of Luſignan, Titular King of Jeruſalem. It continu'd in his Poſterity for ſixteen Deſcents; Janus, the thirteenth from Guy, ſubmitted as Tributary to the King of Egypt. His Grand-daughter Charlotte was outed by her Baſtard-Brother James; and when ſhe came to Rome to ſollicite Help againſt him, her Ladies behav'd ſo lewdly, ſays Volaterranus, as the antient Cypriots did when they worſhip'd Venus. Her Brother James was ſucceeded by his Son, who dying ſoon after, the Venetians adopted his Mother Catherine Cornaro for their Daughter, and protected her; on condition that ſhe ſhould reſign to them, on the failure of her own Iſſue: which happening in 1473, they ſeiz'd it, paying annually 40000 Crowns to the Turkiſh Sultans. But in 1570. Solyman II. claim'd it as Lord of Egypt, and his General laid ſiege to Famaguſta, their ſtrongeſt Town. The Venetian Governor made a gallant Defence for four Months, when loſing all hopes of Relief, he ſurrendred on honourable Terms; but the barbarous Turks murder'd him with the chief Inhabitants, and have ever ſince poſſeſs'd the Iſland. The Duke of Savoy claims the Title of King of Cyprus, becauſe Queen Charlotte's ſecond Husband was Lewis Prince of Savoy, one of his Anceſtors.

The chief Towns are,

(1.) Famaguſta, which lies in a Valley betwixt two Capes, is about two miles round, encompaſs'd by the Sea on two ſides; and the others are defended by a Stone-Wall, Bulwarks, and a Ditch. The Haven lies over againſt Tripoly in Syria, opens to the South-Eaſt, is cover'd by two Rocks, betwixt which there's a Paſſage of forty Paces broad into the Harbour, which is ſafe, tho not large, and ſhut up by a Chain at night. It was very rich when taken by the Turks, and before that a great Check to their Power by Sea and Land. Tavernier ſays, they keep it in good Repair, and have built a Citadel for its Defence. They have turn'd the Churches into Moſques, allow the Chriſtians to keep Shops in the Town by day, but they muſt lodge in the neighbouring Villages by night. The Governor is independent of the Baſſa of the Iſland, and maintains a Galley at his own Expence.

(2.) Nicoſia, lies about the middle of the Iſland, in a plain and fruitful Country, encompaſs'd with a Wall exactly round, was nine miles in Compaſs; and for Situation, Magnificence, and Number of People, was formerly compar'd to Florence. The Venetians added new Fortifications, put 250 Cannon upon the Walls, and adorn'd it with noble Palaces; but the Turks took it in 1570, at the third Aſſault. Tavernier ſays, that now 'tis but three miles round. The Turks pull'd down the Venetian Palaces, in hopes of finding Treaſure, and ſold the Materials to build new Houſes. The noble Cathedral, and ſome of the Monaſteries, are turn'd into Moſques. The Greeks are allow'd four Churches, the Latins two, and the Armenians one here; but the Tribute on Chriſtians is ſo heavy, that many chuſe to turn Turks rather than pay it. The Air is temperate, and the neighbouring Soil fruitful, but the Fortifications much neglected.

(3.) Ceirnes, thought to be the Ceraunia of the Antients: It was ſtrong by Art and Nature, but ſurrendred by the cowardly Venetian Governor to the Turks, before they attack'd it. It lies near the Sea, and is now only defended by a ſmall Fortreſs. The Greeks have a handſome Monaſtery here, and their Revenues ariſe from Cotton. The Air here is reckon'd more wholeſome and temperate than in any other part of the Country.

The chief Mountain is Olympus, very high, of a large Compaſs, and at the end of every League has a Greek Monaſtery, with a Fountain. It produces Trees and Fruits of all ſorts. They pretend to have a true Piece of our Saviour's Croſs, left them by Helena, Conſtantine's Mother, who order'd a Church to be built on this Mountain, at her Return from the Holy Land.

It is not worth while to inſiſt on the antient Towns and Places here, now in Ruins: as Jupiter's Temple at Salamis, where they ſacrific'd Men the firſt Day of the Year.

There's good hunting in the Iſland, which is fruitful, but ill inhabited, becauſe of the Severity of the Turks. Their Gardens are always ſo full of Flowers, that the Spring ſeems to be perpetual. The Cotton-Wool here is the beſt in the Eaſt, and the chief Material of their Trade. They have but little Silk, and that not good. They made formerly great ſtore of Sugar, till one of their Baſſa's burnt up all the Canes. When the Turks took the Iſland, they murder'd or carry'd off all the Gentry to ſecure their Conqueſt, but left the meaner People, who are moſtly Greeks, clad after the Italian manner, but retain their old Cuſtoms and Religion, have one Archbiſhop, and three Suffragans. Here are ſeven or eight Villages of Maronites, who came from Mount Lebanon, ſpeak Arabick at home, but Greek among the Iſlanders, and are Papiſts. Here are alſo Armenians, Cophtis, and Neſtorians, who all have the Freedom of their Religion; but the young Women dare ſcarce go to Church, for fear of the Turks.

The Country People catch vaſt Numbers of Birds among the Hills in September and October, of the ſize of Larks; they pickle them up with Vinegar and Salt, and ſend about a thouſand Barrels of them per annum to Venice, where they are much eſteem'd, and yield the poor Villagers moſt of their Money. This Iſland is much infeſted with Locuſts, which hover in the Air like Clouds during the Heats, and ſometimes deſtroy all their Corn and Fruit; but are frequently drove into the Sea by Northerly Winds. Here are three ſorts of Earth made uſe of by Painters.

II. ARMENIA.

AUTHORS differ about the antient Extent of this Country; and as we have not room to enter into their Diſſertations, we ſhall keep to modern Accounts. The Country now ſo call'd, lies Eaſt from Natolia, and Weſt from Perſia, has Mingrelia on the North, and Diarbeck and Curdiſtan on the South. The greateſt Extent from South to North is 255 miles, and from Eaſt to Weſt about 260. It lies betwixt Lat. 33 ¾. and 41 ¼. in the 5th and 6th Climates, and their longeſt Day is about fifteen hours. 'Twas formerly divided into Major and Minor, but this Diviſion is now obſolete; and Turcomania, ſuppos'd to be the Original Country of the Turks, is the South Part of it.

Sanſon ſays, the Air is wholeſome, and more inclinable to Cold than Heat; it produces more Corn and Fruit than Wine, yields Bole Armoniac, Amomum, and Silver Mines. It has excellent Paſtures, chiefly for Horſe, and formerly us'd to furniſh the King of Perſia with 20000. He has ſtill ſome Places of Note here, but moſt of it belongs to the Turks. Sir John Chardin ſays, the Name is deriv'd from Aram-Noah, becauſe the Ark reſted in this Country; and adds, that 'tis one of the moſt lovely and fruitful Countries in Aſia. Places of Note are,

1. Erzerum, or Erzeron the Capital, near the Head of the Euphrates, Lat. 40. Long. 40 ½. Tournefort ſays, 'tis a pretty large Town, five days Journey from the Black Sea, and ten from the Borders of Perſia. It lies in a fine Plain, at the foot of a Chain of Mountains, where it ſnows in June, when the Heats in the Valleys are troubleſome from ten in the Morning till four in the Afternoon. The Harveſt here is not till September, and there's Ice at the Autumnal Equinox. Here's no Fewel but Pine wood or Cows Dung: The former is dear, and not to be had in leſs than two or three days Journey, for there's not a Buſh in the Neighbourhood. The Cow-Dung Smoke makes every thing ſmell of it, ſo that 'tis very cold and unpleaſant to be here in Winter. They have good Butchers Meat, had they Fire to dreſs it, and they have excellent Fruit from Georgia. The neighbouring Hills furniſh the Town and Country with excellent Water; but their Wine and Brandy is very bad and dear, and the Turks frequently baſtinade thoſe who ſell them, rather becauſe they are bad, than contrary to their Law.

The Town is incloſ'd with double Walls, defended by ſquare or pentagonal Towers; but the Ditches ſorry, and ill kept. The Beglerbeg of the Province has an old ill-built Seraglio, and the Aga of the Janizaries lives in a Fort in the higheſt part of the Town. Hither he ſummons the Baſſas, or others of Note, when the Grand Signior orders it; and upon the Capigi's ſhewing his Orders from Court, their Heads are cut off without further Ceremony. There are about 18000 Turks, 6000 Armenians, and 400 Greeks in the Town; and about 60000 Armenians, and 10000 Greeks in the Province; 12000 Janizaries zaries in the Town, and 50000 in the Country. Inſtead of receiving Pay, they buy the Privilege to gain the Aga's Favour, who is almoſt abſolute; and by this means they are allow'd in all manner of Inſolence to the other Subjects. Moſt of theſe Janizaries are Trades-People, and thoſe who are truly Janizaries have but very ſmall Pay allow'd by the Grand Signior, and the Aga puts the greateſt part of it into his own Pocket.

The Armenians have a Biſhop and two Churches here, ſome Monaſteries in the Country, and own the Patriarch of Erivan. The Greeks have a Biſhop, and one poor Church; they are moſtly Tinkers, inhabit the Suburb, work on Copper brought from the neighbouring Mountains, and the Veſſels they make are carry'd to Turkey in Europe, Perſia, and Mogul. Here's alſo a Trade in Marten-Skins, which are common in the Country, and they make rich Furs of their blackiſh Tails. Abundance of Gall-Nuts are brought hither from Woods of Oak, within five or ſix Days Journey, and the Trees are carefully preſerv'd by the Baſſa's Order.

The Town is a Thorow-fare and Reſting-place for the Merchandize of the Indies, eſpecially when the Arabs lie in watch for the Caravans, that chiefly bring hither Perſian Silk, Cotton, Drugs, and painted Cloth; but ſell nothing here by Retail. Vaſt Quantities of Madder are brought from Perſia, Rhubarb from Usbeck Tartary, and Wormſeed from Mogul; all theſe Goods are carry'd hence to Trebiſonde, where they are ſhipp'd for Conſtantinople. Cavier, or the Spawn of ſalted Sturgeon from the Caſpian Sea, is ſold here; but ſo hot and ſtinking, that they call it a Breakfaſt for the Devil.

The Beglerbeg, or Viceroy here, commands all the Baſſas of the Country, and has 150000 Crowns per ann. by his Exactions on Merchandize and Money, and the Sale of Offices thro the Province to the higheſt Bidder. Every one, except Turks, that go from this Country to Perſia, muſt pay five Crowns, and five per Cent for the Money they carry out, tho it be only to bear their Expences. They alſo exact five Crowns of every Stranger that comes to the Town, or more, according to what they judge them worth; are very ſevere upon Miſſionaries; and that they may not eſcape, ſearch all Strangers, to ſee if their Crowns be ſhav'd. The only way to avoid this, is to have a Paſſport from Conſtantinople, or a Recommendation from the French Ambaſſador there to the Baſſas on the Frontiers; for the French King is better known to the Muſſulmen than the Pope, whom they only call the Mufti of Rome.

Merchandize here pays 9 per Cent. 6 to the Grand Signior, and 3 to the Beglerbeg. The Sultan has beſides from this Province annually 500000 Crowns, 150000 from the Armenians and Greeks, and a Land-Tax from the Poſſeſſions of the Spahis.

Tournefort ſays the Town ſtands in a Peninſula, betwixt the heads of the Euphrates: the firſt Stream runs a day's Journey from the City, and the other about two days. The Fountains are 250 miles diſtant from one another, lie Eaſt in Mountains, not ſo high as the Alps, but cover'd with Snow almoſt the whole year. The two Streams meet at Mommocotum, three days Journey South of the Town, are there call'd Ferat, and begin to carry ſmall Veſſels; but the Channel is ſo full of Rocks, that there's no making a Paſſage from hence to Aleppo, without clearing it, which would be a much ſhorter and ſafer way, for Caravans take 35 days from Erzeron to Aleppo, and the Road is very dangerous, for the Arabs rob to the very Gates of the Town. The Curds, ſuppos'd to be the antient Caldeans, roam alſo about the Country till the Snow obliges them to retire, and frequently plunder the Caravans by force, or ſteal their Goods where they encamp by night. They own no Subjection to any Prince, and the Turks ſeldom puniſh them when taken up for Murder or Robbery, but extort Money from them; ſo that the Caravans are often obliged to bribe thoſe Rogues, and pay them two or three Crowns per Head. All the Caravans of the Levant, and even thoſe bound for the Eaſt-Indies, do now paſs by way of Erzeron; for tho the Roads of Aleppo and Bagdat are ſhorter, the Arabs, who have revolted from the Turks, ſays our Author, and poſſeſs'd themſelves of the Country, make thoſe Roads unpaſſable.

Tournefort ſays, that in the Fields about this City, there's a fine Species of Poppy, from which the Turks don't extract Opium, but eat the Heads of it when green, as a Delicacy, tho they be very ſharp and hot. Here's alſo a ſort of Stones, harder than Lapis Lazuli, mix'd with ſome Threds of Gold; and the Inhabitants ſay there are Mines of Silver in the Neighbourhood. Our Author went from hence to view one of the Fountains of the Euphrates, in Company of an Armenian Biſhop, for whom the Curds had a Reſpect. He ſaw many of them by the way, and they came up on Horſeback with their Lances; but when they ſaw the Biſhop, forbore plundering the Company, and march'd peaceably off, after being treated with Brandy. They roam about from Paſture to Paſture with their Flocks, and have portable Tents cover'd with thick coarſe brown Cloth; and inſtead of Walls, have Cane Lettices, of the height of a Man, lin'd with Mats. When they remove, they fold up their Tents like a Skreen, and lade them with their Implements and Infants on Oxen and Cows. Their Children are almoſt naked in the coldeſt Seaſon. The Men have good Horſes, and have no Arms, but Lances. The Women travel upon Horſes and Oxen, look as fierce as the Men, are ſtrong and vigorous, but ugly; have little Eyes, very wide Mouths, Hair black as jet, and a ruddy Complexion, but not clear. Such as are betroth'd, have a Ring thro one of their Noſtrils. They decamp from this Country the beginning of October, and go to Curdiſtan or Meſopotamia, during the Winter.

Barley grows ripe here in 40 days, and Wheat in 60. The Soil is impregnated with foſſile Salt; and tho the Ground is not hard, yet they yoke two pair of Oxen or Buffaloes to the Plow, and turn the Soil deep up to mix it more throughly with that Salt, which otherwiſe would burn up the Corn. Moſt of the Country betwixt this place and Teflis, is low, well cultivated, and water'd, eſpecially the Corn Ground, by Channels cut out on purpoſe: but the Froſt by night keeps the Corn and Plants backward, tho the Heat in Summer is very ſtrong by day.

2. Cars, by the Turks call'd Agem, is the laſt Place on this ſide poſſeſs'd by the Turks, near the Frontiers of Perſia. Tournefort ſays, Sanſon places it wrong, at the Conflux of two imaginary Branches of the Euphrates, which form a conſiderable River that runs to Erzeron; for it ſtands on a River that comes from the great Plain betwixt itſelf and Erzeron, and at laſt joins the River Arpagi, which falls into the Araxes that empties itſelf into the Caſpian-Sea. Some Maps place it 16 miles N. E. of Erzeron; but it muſt be more, for Tournefort and the Caravan was ſix days travelling betwixt the two Towns, tho he does not tell the diſtance. 'Tis the Seat of a Baſſa, lies on a Bank expoſed to the S. E. almoſt of a ſquare form, and has a Caſtle on a very ſteep Rock at the upper end of the Town, which is kept in tolerable repair, but defended only by old Towers. The Town is not large, has a deep Valley behind it, thro which the River winds and turns, forms an Iſland, runs under a Stone-Bridge, turns ſeveral Mills, and waters the adjacent Fields and Gardens. He ſays the Town is dangerous, on account of Thieves, and the Exactions of the Turkiſh Officers upon Strangers. The City is ill peopled, being emptied by Recruits to the Sultan's Troops, who rendevous here. Sanſon ſays, the adjacent Country is moſtly inhabited by Chriſtians; and the Turks among them are ſo ſuperſtitious, that they will not waſh in the Rivers, becauſe they think them polluted by the Chriſtians; and therefore have Wells and Ciſterns of their own. The River Arpagi is a Frontier on this ſide, betwixt Turkey and Perſia.

III. SYRIA.

THE Country which antiently went by this Name, was of a very large Extent, and Cluverius ſays contain'd Aſſyria, Meſopotamia, Babylonia, Phœnicia, and Paleſtine, and ſome are of opinion that it included all thoſe Countries, which are mentioned in Scripture with the Name of Aram, as Aram-Naharaim, &c. ſo that it conſtituted the firſt of the four great Monarchies, and was promiſcuouſly nam'd Syria, or Aſſyria; but in the Scripture 'tis mention'd as a ſeparate Country from Aſſyria and Canaan. Syria, properly ſo call'd now, has Natolia on the North, the Holy Land on the South, the Mediterranean on the Weſt, and part of Arabia, Diarbeck, and Armenia on the Eaſt. The greateſt Extent from South to North is about 300 miles, and from Eaſt to Weſt about 250. We can't inſiſt on its antient Diviſions, nor ruinous Places, but ſhall keep to the modern Accounts.

Luyts ſays the Air is temperate and healthful, the Soil deep, level and pleaſant, and feeds vaſt Herds of Cattel, and particularly Sheep, whoſe Tails weigh from 25 to 30 Pounds, as Travellers ſay. It abounds with Corn, Grapes, Figs, Oranges, Lemons, Melons, Honey-Canes, Cotton, Dates, Spices, and Medicinal Herbs, except towards Arabia; and where any part of it lies waſte, it is owing to the Incurſions of the Arabs, the Tyranny of the Turks, and the frequent Revolts which ariſe from thence.

Moſt of the Inhabitants are Mahometans: here are alſo many Chriſtians. 1. Thoſe called Melchites, who conform to the Canons of the Councils ratify'd by the Emperor Leo, and are numerous in other parts of the Eaſt, ſays Dr. Heylin: in the main Points they follow the Doctrine of the Greek Church, and diſclaim the Pope's Authority. Their Patriarch formerly reſided at Antioch, but now at Damaſcus. 2. Thoſe called Maronites, from a Monaſtery on Mount Lebanon. While the Weſtern Chriſtians poſſeſſed the Holy Land, they ſubmitted to the See of Rome, but afterwards return'd to their own Patriarch, who reſides chiefly at Tripoli. They made a ſort of Submiſſion again to Rome in the Papacy of Gregory XIII. but their Patriarch ſtill retains his Power, and they uſe their own old Syriack Liturgies, give the Sacrament in both kinds, hold with the Greeks in ſome Points, and with the Eutychians in others: they always call their Patriarch Peter, and think him that Apoſtle's Succeſſor. They have a College at Rome, which ſpreads the Popiſh Opinions among 'em, all they can. They have Monks which ſeem to be the remains of the antient Syrian Hermits, and are under no Vows of Chaſtity, Poverty, or Obedience. 3. Jacobites, ſo called from Jacobus Syrus, their Founder. They have a Patriarch who aſſumes the Title of Antioch, and is always call'd Ignatius, becauſe they reckon him the Succeſſor of that Martyr. They hold but one Will and Nature in our Saviour, communicate in both kinds, allow Prieſts Marriage, reject Purgatory and Prayers for the Dead; but ſome of them ſubmit to the Pope, and have a Patriarch of his Nomination. They are moſt numerous in Meſopotamia.

Here are alſo Druſians, whoſe Religion is a Compound of Chriſtianity, Mahometaniſm, and Paganiſm. They are ſuppoſed to be the Remains of the Weſtern Chriſtians that fled to the Mountains when the Turks reconquer'd the Holy Land, who not being able to ſubdue them totally, becauſe of their inacceſſible places, allow them Peace and Liberty. But they have ſo far loſt their Religion, that ſome of them only retain Baptiſm. They abhor Circumciſion, freely drink Wine, and allow Marriage with Daughters, Siſters, and Mothers.

The Curds are alſo in this Country, but chiefly in Meſopotamia, and by M. Tournefort's Account, ſeem to be much the ſame with the Druſians; for they call themſelves Jeſides, or the Followers of Jeſus, but worſhip worship the Devil more than God, and give this Reason, That God is a good Man, and does no body hurt; but the Devil's a mischievous Fellow, and must be pleas'd with Sacrifices. Their chief Residence here is in the Mountains, that border on Armenia: They are thought to be of Parthian Extraction, and were very expert Archers; but those whom Tournefort saw, us'd only Lances. Places of Note here are,

(1.) Scanderoon, or Alexandretta. 'Tis said to have been built or repair'd by Alexander, because of his Victory near it over Darius. It lies in Lat. 36½. Long. 39. in the North-East Corner of the Mediterranean, among Marshes, which make the Air unwholesome; so that it would have been deserted long ago, but for its Harbour and the Residence of Christian Factors; because 'tis the next Port to

(2.) Aleppo, which is 62 miles S.E. from Scanderoon, Lat. 35 ½. Lon. 40. Some take it to be Sephervaim, mention'd 2 Kings 17. 24. others to be the antient Berœa. Thevenot says, 'tis one of the best trading Cities in Turkish Asia. The Air is so hot, that in June the Thermometer usually rises to the thirtieth Degree; yet so thin and wholesome, that People lie by Night on their Terrasses without danger from May till the middle of September, and from May till July there's scarce a Cloud to be seen. It lies on four Hills, is six miles round, is said to contain 250000 Souls; 16000 of them Greeks, 12000 Armenians, 10000 Jacobites, and 1200 Maronites, who have all their Churches. The Greeks have an Archbishop, the Jacobites a Bishop, the Maronites here depend on the Pope; and the Papists have three Churches, serv'd by Dominicans and Jesuits. Tavernier says, here are 26 Mosques, 3 Colleges for Students, 40 Inns, and 50 publick Baths. The Trade here is in Silks, Camlets, Nut-Galls, Valanede, Soap, Drugs, &c. The English, Dutch, French, Italians, Arabians, Persians, and Indians have Consuls here, and the former three Magazines or Store-houses for Goods. The City is govern'd by a Bassa; he has a Guard of 300 Men, and commands the whole Country from Scanderoon to the Euphrates, having nine Sangiacks under him. Here's also an Aga with 400 Janizaries, who has power both within and without the City, and the Keys of the Gates are brought him every Night. The Governour of the Castle has 200 Musqueteers, and the Aga or Captain of the City has 300 Harquebusses. There's a Sub-Bassa, who is Captain of the Watch, goes the Rounds every Night with the Officers, and executes the Bassa's Sentence upon Criminals. The Town and Suburbs are divided into forty five Wards; it has twelve Gates, and three large Suburbs. The Cadi is sole Judge in all Civil Matters, makes and dissolves Marriage-Contracts, confirms Acts of Purchase and Sales, and creates Masters of every Trade to prevent Frauds. The Castle and Town are of an oval Figure, the former is mounted with thirty Cannon. The Walls of the Town are not strong, but founded on a Rock, and have Towers at each sixty Paces. The Christians live for most part in the new Suburbs. Without the Prison-Gate there are several fair wide Caves, cut above a hundred Paces into the Rock. Here they make Ropes, and dry Grapes for Brandy.

The Houses here are better built than in most other Places of Turkish Asia, are generally but one Story high, terrass'd at top, and have Domes. Here are many fair Cans or Inns, particularly the great one, where the English and French Consuls, and several Merchants reside. The Portal is fine, with Roses neatly carv'd upon it. It has two great strong Iron Gates, half a foot thick, and studded all over with large Nails. They open into a large Court, where there's a Mosque in form of a Dome cover'd with Lead. Here are very fair Bazars and noble Houses, with lovely Halls and Fountains in the middle, and three Divans cross-wise, all of Mosaick Work to the Top, and built with white and black Stones chequer-wise. Here are other Divans encompass'd with high Marble Pillars, having large Windows, with Mats to sit on for Conveniency of the Air and Prospect. The great Mosque has a large Court pav'd with black and white Marble, and a great Basin, with a Dome in the middle, supported by six Marble Pillars, and on the Southside a Fountain cover'd with a Dome of the like Structure. Round this Court there's a Gallery of seventeen Arches on a side, and eleven at each end, under which the Turks say Prayers after their Purifications. On the North-side, against the middle of the Front, is the Stone-Pulpit of John of Damascus, who formerly preach'd in this Church. Here are several other very large Mosques, and one particularly near the Great Can, with a noble Court, and two Ranges of Pillars that support Galleries. The Dome is fair and high, and cover'd with Lead, as are most of the Domes of the City. Here are many high slender Stone Minarets or Towers, from whence the Priests call the People to Prayer. Here's a stately Convent of Turkish Monks, with a noble Fountain, a large Hall pav'd with grey Marble, and cover'd with a great Dome, as is also their Mosque. They have a Fish-Pond in a Court, and a Canal fac'd with Marble. Here's abundance of Fish, but the Turks permit none to be taken, on pretence that those who eat them fall sick. This Place is shut in with a thick Stone-Gate, whose Hinges are of one piece with it self.

Here's Plenty of Grapes in the Neighbourhood, and they anoint the Roots of the Vines with a kind of Asphaltum, to prevent the Grapes from being destroy'd by Worms. Every Family makes their own Wine, which is strong and white. The Christians here make good Brandy, but the Turks don't think it strong enough unless mix'd with Allum. The Town is supply'd with good Water by Aqueducts, from a River two Days Journey from the Town. It is muddy, but they put it into great Jars of unburnt Clay, thro which it distils into Receivers, and then 'tis fit for Use. Here's plenty of Trouts, Eels, and Crabs, Mulberry-Trees, and very good Cucumbers, which they eat green, Skin and all. Their Salt is brought on Mules from a Place N. E. a day and half's Journey, which is made of Rain-Water, that falls into a spacious low Place like a Pond; and the Salt extracted out of the Ground covers the Waters, congeal, and is form'd into Cubes like Sea-Salt, but is not so good. Here's good Turkey Leather made, but no Stranger is allow'd to see them prepare it. Here is also a considerable Trade in a sort of Goats Hair, of which they make Hats, and in Materials for a good Blue Dye. Near one of the Gates there's a Sepulchre, which they call St. George's, and has always a Lamp burning before it; and under one of the Gates there's a Place which the Turks hold in great Veneration, because they think Elijah dwelt there; and here are Lamps continually burning.

(3.) Antiochia, lies near the Mouth of a River on the Coast, thirty miles South from Scanderoon, and forty eight N. W. from Aleppo. 'Twas formerly the Capital of Syria, and the Seat of their Kings. It was a noble large City, and famous for all sorts of Learning; but its greatest Glory was its being the first place where Christians were call'd by that sacred Name: Therefore Justinian, who repair'd it after 'twas burnt, call'd it Theopolis, or The City of God. It was the Residence of several Roman Emperors, and of their Præfectus Prætorii Orientis. There's nothing of its Antiquities now remaining, but the Ruins of the Walls and of a Temple. The Ground within is planted with Fig and Almond-Trees like a Forest; except a small part on the Southside, where are a few modern Buildings cover'd with Bulrushes. Daphne in the Neighbourhood, and once so famous because of its pleasant Situation, is also quite ruin'd.

(4.) Hamsa or Hama, antiently Emesa or Emissa, sixty four miles South from Aleppo, was once famous for being the Seat, as some say, of the Emperor Heliogabalus, and a Temple dedicated to the Sun, but now much decay'd. Thevenot says, it is still a pretty Town, wall'd with black and white Stone half a Pike high, and fortify'd with twenty six round Towers. It has six Gates, and five Churches. The chief of them, built by Helen, Mother to Constantine the Great, is seventy Paces long, eighteen broad, and is supported by thirty four Pillars, most of them Jasper. Here's a small Stone Chest, wherein they pretend to have St. John Baptist's Head, and keep a Lamp burning before it. In the Walls there are Marbles with Greek Inscriptions, Roses and other Figures, curiously engraven. 'Tis now a Mosque, and has a Pond near it, which the Turks use for their Ablutions. There's another call'd St. George's, where Christians are allow'd to worship, on bearing half the Charge of the Lamps. The Town is well water'd, and is the Seat of a Sangiack: The Castle on the neighbouring Hill is in Ruins.

(5.) Tortosa on the Coast, forty five miles N. W. from Hamsa, was formerly call'd Antaradus. 'Twas famous during the Holy Wars; but Thevenot says, there's nothing now left but its fine Castle, and the Ruins of a noble Church.

(6.) Tripoly lies on the Coast, thirty miles South of Tortosa, and call'd Tripoly in Syria, to distinguish it from that on the Black Sea. Thevenot says, 'tis a pretty Town with a neat Castle, encompass'd with Gardens of Orange and white Mulberry Trees, and has several Towers on the Coast planted with Cannon. 'Tis the usual Place where Pilgrims arrive from Europe to visit the Holy Land, and the Seat of a Bassa, who has four Sangiacks under him. The Town is divided by a River, and commanded by the Castle built on a Hill, where there's a strong Garison of Turks. The Houses are two or three Stories high with Platforms. Most of the Streets are narrow, except that leading to the Bridge of Aleppo, which is cover'd and arch'd over; as are the Markets, where they sell all sorts of Commodities. Here are abundance of fine Mosques. The Inhabitants are skilful in Manufactures of Silk, and dying of Purple. The Harbour, which is form'd by a Point of the Plain, is not capable of great Ships; so that they lie off a League or two at Sea near some Islands. Here are several fresh-water Fountains within the Sea-Mark, and two large vaulted Baguios fac'd with Marble. Every House has a Fountain, but the greatest Beauty of the Town is their Gardens, which lie on the Declension of Mount Lebanon, and the Palm-Trees on the neighbouring Coast. The Staple was remov'd from hence to Aleppo, because the Emir, or Prince of the Town, drown'd the Crews of some French Ships. The neighbouring Plain is very fruitful, and yielded annually 200000 Crowns to their Counts, when possess'd by the Christians. 'Tis encompass'd by a Wall, and defended by seven Towers. The Inhabitants keep many Silk-Worms, which yield them great Profit. Their chief Trade is in Silk, Ashes, Cotton, Yarn, Raisins, Soap, and Candles. 'Twas formerly the See of a Bishop, Suffragan of Tyre. Most of the Inhabitants are Turks. Here are many Greeks and Maronites: The former live in the Town, the latter in a neighbouring Village. Their Patriarch sometimes resides here. Here are also many Jews of Spanish and Portuguese Extraction; they are oblig'd to wear a red Cap half a foot high, and flat at top. The Maronites wear a strip'd Cap of a different Fashion, and European and Greek Christians wear Hats or black Caps, for none but the Turks may wear Turbants. Mr. Maundrel says, that in the Fields, near the Shore, there are many Ruins and Pillars of Granate.

(7.) Bayrut, or Baruth, formerly Berytus, a Town famous in Antiquity for Greek Learning and Law. The Romans made it a Colony, and placed two Legions here, as appears by Medals of Augustus and Trajan. Maundrel supposes the Idol Baalberith had its Name from hence: He tells us, it lies in a fruitful Soil, which abounds with Springs. Their Prince Faccardine enlarg'd his Dominions, but was dispossess'd by the Turks, and his noble Orange-Garden is now made a Sheepfold. There's another Garden, with several Ruins of Statues, &c. and a Tower sixty foot high at one Corner, whose Walls are twelve foot thick, and from hence there's a fine Prospect of the City. The Turks have turn'd the Great Church to a Mosque. There's a little one possess'd by the Greeks, adorn'd with many old Pictures; and there's a Greek Inscription of Conartus, the first Archbishop of the Town. At the end of the City there are several Pillars of Granate and other Ruins, and Latin and Greek Inscriptions. They pretend to shew, in the Neighbourhood, the Den where the Dragon lay, and the Place where St. George kill'd him, to rescue the King of the Town's Daughter. Here are the Ruins of a Theatre and Amphitheatre, said to be built by King Agrippa. 'Tis the best trading Town in this part of Syria for Tapestry, Silks, Camlets, Ginger, Cinnamon, Nutmegs, Pepper, Cassia, Rhubarb, and Cochineel. The Sea-Banks abound with Gourds, Mulberry, Lime, and Pine-Trees. Monconys says, that in the neighbouring Hills there are Stones which resemble Olives, and others whose Inside represents the Genitals of Men and Women.

(8.) Sidon on the Coast, about thirty miles South from Baruth: It was famous both in sacred and profane History for Arts and Trade. 'Tis call'd the Great Sidon, Josh. 11. 8. Some ascribe its Foundation to Sidon, the eldeſt Son of Canaan; others derive the Name from a Hebrew word, which ſignifies Fiſhing. Strabo aſcribes the Invention of Arithmetick and Aſtronomy to the Inhabitants, who, being great Traders, firſt brought them in uſe. It is mention'd in Medals ſtruck by Auguſtus, and there are ſeveral Pillars in the Neighbourhood with Inſcriptions to ſome of the Roman Emperors. It is now but a little Town, tho formerly the chief City of Phœnicia, and a Place of great Trade. Monconys ſays, here's a fine ſquare Market for Cotton, built of free Stone, with ſeven great Arches on every ſide, Warehouſes under them, a large Gallery over them, and behind the Gallery Chambers for Merchants all round like a Cloiſter, and a Terraſs-walk at the top, of eighty Paces long, from whence there's a fine Proſpect of the Town, Sea, and Fields. The Fortifications are ruinous. There's a Tower on one ſide the Port, with a ſmall Gariſon. One of their Caſtles is ruinous; the other ſtands an hundred Paces in the Sea, to which there's a Cauſeway ſupported by Arches, and next the Harbour it has ſome Cannon. Coppin ſays, the Town extended three miles along the Coaſt, but now not above a quarter of that ſpace, and the Inhabitants may be about 6000. The Town is govern'd by an Aga, who has 300 Soldiers in the Caſtles and Town. Here are two large Cans for Merchants, with Courts in the middle, and Galleries and Chambers all round. They have but one Gate each, which is kept by a Turk; the largeſt is poſſeſs'd by the French, the other is for Mahometans and Chriſtians of different Nations. The Aga has a Crown a Month for every Chamber, but thoſe who pleaſe may buy them, and have leave to ſell them again. In the French Can there's a Society of Jeſuits, with Surgeons and an Apothecary, becauſe the Plague is frequent here. Whenever it breaks out, the French ſhut themſelves up in their Can, and ſuffer none to enter it till they be inſpected and perfum'd. One of the chief Commodities here is Damaſcus Raiſins, which the Baſſa farms, and none muſt buy or ſell them but his Farmer, who is oblig'd to be moderate in his Prices, leſt the Merchants ſhould leave them in his hands. The other Commodities are Oil, Aſhes, Egyptian Soap, Rice, blue Silks, Turkey Leather, Sena, Piſtachios, Cotton, and Bufflers Skins. They import from Europe Sattins, Damasks of Genoa and Lucca, Scarlet and light-colour'd Cloth, and Paper. The Papiſts have a Church here, the Maronites a Chappel, the Greeks a Church, and the Turks fourteen Moſques. Proviſions are very cheap, and their Bread white and good. The temperate Air here attracts wild Beaſts and Birds in great numbers to the adjacent Country. Partridges are ſo plenty, that thirty two have been bought for a Crown. The French Conſul has alſo the Title of Conſul of Jeruſalem, and is oblig'd to go thither in Pilgrimage every Eaſter. Chryſtal-Glaſs is aſcrib'd to the Invention of the Inhabitants, who have been noted for Ingenuity in all Ages. Solomon and Zorobabel had their chief Workmen for their Temple from hence. They are call'd the wiſe Sidonians, Zech. 9. 2. Tyre is ſaid to have been planted by a Colony from hence. The Town was taken by the Saracens in 636. and by the Weſtern Chriſtians in 1103. St. Lewis King of France repair'd it in 1250. The Saracens took it again in 1289. The Emir Faccardine made this Place Capital of his Dominions, and reſided in the Caſtle, which runs out into the Sea. He ſtopp'd up the Entrance of the Harbour on the ſide of the Town, for fear of being ſurpriz'd by the Grand Signior's Galleys; which, Mr. Maundrel ſays, obliges Ships to ride under a ſmall Ledge of Rocks about a mile from the Town. Faccardine being taken, and put to death, the Town has been ſince govern'd by a Turkiſh Baſſa and Aga. There's abundance of noble Ruins in the Neighbourhood, which ſhew the former Extent and Magnificence of the Town. The Suburbs are full of Gardens, planted with Olive, Mulberry, Tamarinds, and Sycamore Trees. The Silk-Worms are preſerv'd in little Huts under the Mulberry-Trees, and thrive well, unleſs diſturb'd by violent Claps of Thunder. In a Hill, half a day's Journey from the Town, there are Stones found which exactly reſemble Fiſh. The Tide is very regular here, but ſo ſmall, that 'tis ſcarce diſcernible.

(9.) Mount Lebanon begins in the Neighbourhood of Sidon, and, according to Cluverius, extends as far as Cœloſyria. Buno, in his Notes upon him, ſays, it begins at a Hill call'd The Face of God, near Tripoly; and that Antilibanus, ſo call'd, becauſe it lies over againſt the other, begins in the Neighbourhood of Sidon. Strabo makes the Valley betwixt them Cœloſyria. The Atlas Hiſtorique begins this Range of Mountains about four or five miles North of Sidon, and joins them with thoſe of Hermon, Weſt of Damaſcus, from whence there's a Ridge that encompaſſes the Holy Land on the Eaſt and South. Lebanon is the moſt famous Mountain in all this Country; and Dandini, who was ſent hither to the Maronites as Nuncio from Pope Clement VIII. in 1599. and whoſe Miſſion was printed at Paris in 1656. ſays, 'tis a Ridge of high rocky Mountains, a good day's Journey in breadth, and four or five in length. Both Libanus and Antilibanus are call'd Lebanon in Scripture. The Valley betwixt them is about twenty five miles broad on the Coaſt, and the Length of it fifty. Bochart derives the Name from a Hebrew word that ſignifies white, becauſe the Tops of theſe Mountains are always cover'd with Snow. It was formerly well planted with Cedars and other Trees, and abounds with Quarries of white Marble, ſo that it furniſh'd Timber and Stones for Solomon's Temple. Moſt of the Beaſts us'd in Sacrifice were fatted in its Vallies; and it produc'd ſuch Store of Frankincenſe, that Libanus and Thus became ſynonymous. The Rivers Jordan, Pharphar, and others, have their Riſe in theſe Mountains; Jordan runs Eaſt into the Dead Sea, and the reſt Weſt into the Mediterranean. Dandini makes the Compaſs of thoſe Mountains ſix or ſeven hundred miles, and ſays, that the Inhabitants having fill'd up many of the leſſer Valleys with Stones and Earth, a great part of it reſembled a pleaſant fruitful Plain, that it abounded with Corn and excellent Wine, Olives, Cotton, Mulberry-Trees, Honey, Wax; Cellarius adds Cypreſs, Pines, Box-Trees, and Firs. Galen ſays, that in his time the Bees did ſo abound in the Woods here, that the Honey dropp'd from their Hives on the Trees, ſo that the Inhabitants us'd to ſay, God rain'd Honey upon them from Heaven. Manna and Aromatick Herbs were alſo here in great plenty; and Dandini ſays, here are multitudes of large Sheep, Boars, Bears, Tygers, Eagles, Pigeons, Partridges, and all other ſorts of Fowl; that the Inhabitants plow'd their Vineyards, planted their Vines in Ranks at a conſiderable diſtance, and let them creep on the Ground: That their Grapes were as large as Plumbs, and of a delicate Taſte, ſo that he does not wonder that the Iſraelites were charm'd with the Bunches of Grapes which Joſhua and Caleb brought from the Holy Land, and 'tis probable theſe might be better, becauſe it lies South of Mount Lebanon. Theſe Mountains are chiefly inhabited by Maronites, of whoſe Religion we have already given an Account. Heylin reckon'd them about 12000 Families. Dandini ſays, that in his time they ſuffer'd no Turks among them, that they dwelt in ſorry Villages and mean Houſes; and tho there were Perſons of Quality and Wealth among them, they affected to ſeem poor, to avoid the Exactions of the Turks. Moſt of them went bare-legg'd, but wore Turbants and Veſts like other People of the Levant. They were of a good Stature and mild Temper, yet inclinable enough to War, and had Bows, Arrows, Arquebuſſes, Scimeters and Daggers. They eat croſs-legg'd upon Mats or Carpets ſpread on the Ground, were very liberal of their Wine, and lik'd their Gueſts the better the more they drank. They entertain'd Strangers very kindly without any Ceremony, ſlept on Carpets ſpread on the Ground, and cover'd themſelves with Cotton Clothes. They were very juſt in their Contracts, took one another's Words before Witneſſes, and ſometimes made their Bargains in writing themſelves, for they had no Scriveners. They made great Lamentations for their Dead, and the afflicted Family dreſs'd no Victuals for ſome time, but was ſupply'd by their Friends that came to condole with them. Their Women were very modeſt in Apparel and Behaviour, cover'd their Faces with Veils when they met Strangers, ſat apart from the Men at Church, and no Man offer'd to riſe from his Seat till all the Women were gone out; ſo that Leudneſs was ſcarce to be heard of among them. Their Patriarch, in Dandini's time, had ſubmitted to the Pope, his Juriſdiction extended over all the Mountains, he had ſeveral Aſſiſtants, and his Revenues were about three or four thouſand Crowns per ann. The Patriarch and Biſhops were choſen out of their Monks. Their Prieſts were very ignorant, and thought it enough if they could read, write, and underſtand a little Chaldee for their Worſhip, their own Language being Arabick. None but ſuch as were bred in their College at Rome, underſtood any thing of Philoſophy or School-Divinity. The Prieſts, Deacons, and Subdeacons were oblig'd to marry, except they were Monks, becauſe the Inhabitants were otherwiſe jealous of them, eſpecially if young. They knew nothing of Printing, but wrote with a ſort of Canes from the Right to the Left like the Jews. They were govern'd by an Emir under the Grand Signior, but ſo heavily oppreſs'd by Exactions, that many of them left the Country.

(10.) Tyre on the Coaſt, about twenty miles South from Sidon. 'Tis famous in ſacred and profane Hiſtory: Iſa. 23. 12. 'tis call'd the Daughter of Sidon, as being a Colony from thence; and, ver. 8. the Merchants of Tyre are call'd Princes, and her Merchants the Honourable of the Earth. 'Twas powerful in Shipping, ſent Colonies to the remoteſt Parts then known, was famous for Arts and Arms, and its Purple Dye, proceeding from a ſort of Fiſh, not now to be found there. Bochart ſays, there were four Towns of this Name in Phœnicia, two in the Continent, and two in Iſlands; but this on the Coaſt was moſt famous, and call'd, Joſhua 19. 29. a ſtrong City. It held out long againſt Alexander the Great, when 'twas ſo rich, according to ſome Authors, that there were a thouſand Families here, whoſe Servants brought Water from the Wells in Veſſels of Gold. It's ſaid they had Pillars of Gold and Emeralds, and the Town including Pale-Tyrus, was nineteen miles round. 'Twas once a Confederate, and afterwards a Colony of the Romans. When Chriſtianity prevail'd in that Country 'twas an Archbiſhop's See, and maintain'd its Religion and Liberty with great Bravery during the Holy Wars, till ſubdu'd by the Turks in 1290. Here's nothing now but a few Houſes with noble Ruins. 'Tis ſubject to the Emir of Sidon, and the great Harbour is ſtill good.

(11.) Ptolemais, Acre or Acra, once a famous and magnificent City, about twenty eight miles South of Tyre, and ninety three North of Jeruſalem. 'Twas the Reſidence of the Perſian Kings during their Wars with Egypt, became ſubject to the latter, and was nam'd Ptolemais by one of their Kings. 'Twas alſo a Roman Colony, famous during the Holy Wars, and ſometime poſſeſs'd by the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem; but has now only a large Can for French Factors, a Moſque, and a few Cottages among the noble Ruins of Palaces, Temples, Convents, &c. deſtroy'd by the Turks, when they took it in 1291.

(12.) Mount Carmel begins in the Neighbourhood of this Town. 'Tis famous, in the ſacred Hiſtory, for the Miracles wrought by the Prophet Elias. The Carmelite Monks, who have a Monaſtery here, pretend to ſhew the Places where Elias hid himſelf for fear of Jezebel, and where they ſuppos'd he receiv'd Ahab when he came to conſult him. The Carmelites here go barefooted, avoid Converſation, eat no Fleſh, nor drink Wine, nor ſuffer any Pilgrims to do ſo in their Convent; but Thevenot ſays, they are few in number, and ſubſiſted chiefly by the Alms of the French Merchants at Acre or Ptolemais. Here are Ruins of other Convents. The Mountain and neighbouring Country is ſubject to an Emir, who pays an annual Tribute of Horſes to the Grand Signior. Luyts diſtinguiſhes this Mount from another in Judea, where Nabal dwelt.

(13.) Bellebec, or Baalbec, the antient Heliopolis, reckon'd in Caloſyria; both Names ſignify the Town of the Sun, which was worſhipped here. It lies about thirty miles North of Damaſcus. Maundrel ſays it lies pleaſantly on the Eaſt-ſide of a Valley, is of a ſquare Figure, encompaſſed with a good Wall, but the Houſes mean. The old Wall which encompaſs'd the City was built of vaſt Stones, from twenty one to twenty Yards long. Lucas ſays that it lies among fine Gardens well water'd; that here are ſeveral Houſes cut out of Rocks, with divers Apartments. On the Walls of the Town there are great ſquare Towers at regular Diſtances. The Town, he ſays, is inhabited by thirty Chriſtian Families, ſome Jews, and ſeven or eight thouſand Turks. But the moſt remarkable Thing is the Ruins of an antient magnificent Heathen Temple and a Caſtle, both of admirable Workmanſhip, with Marble Columns of the Corinthian Order, &c. and Multitudes of Figures in Baſſo Relievo. By ſeveral Inſcriptions, it appears pears to have been of Roman Workmanship. And Lucas says there are so many remarkable Ruins and Monuments here, as would require above a Week to view them.

(14.) Damascus, now called Scan by the Turks, lies forty five miles East from Sidon, Lat. 33. Long. 39. 'Tis famous both in sacred and profane History. 'Tis situate in a Plain encompassed with Hills. Julian the Apostate, in his Epistle to Serapio, calls it the City of Jupiter, the Eye of the East, and says it excell'd all others for Magnificence of Temples, the Temper of the Seasons, its excellent Fountains, numerous Streams, and Fruitfulness of its Soil. 'Tis water'd by the Pharphar, Ptolemey's Chrysorrhoas, or Golden River. It rises in the neighbouring Mountains with a rapid Stream; and so well supplies the City, that almost every House has a Fountain, and some of them large ones of Marble, which contain Fish. Its Streams also are deriv'd thro the Streets to their Gardens and Orchards, in which there's Variety of choice Fruits; and from hence we had our Damascens, and Damask Roses: Rose-Water is sold here in Bottles, like Wine. The adjacent Country abounds with Wheat, and Vines which bear Grapes all the Year. Lucas says here are Bunches of Grapes which weigh above forty Pounds. The Town is so pleasant, that 'tis said Mahomet forbore coming to it, lest being ravish'd with its Pleasures, he should forget his proper Business, and make it his Paradise: But one of his Successors made it his Royal Seat. Here was a Castle reckon'd impregnable till taken by Tamerlane; who also destroy'd a stately Church here, with thirty thousand Turks. They say it had forty noble Porticos, and nine thousand Lanthorns of Gold and Silver. The Town is next in Rank to Aleppo, and has been long famous for Trade. The Inhabitants are industrious and ingenious, and noted for making Arms, and branching of Sattins, &c. which we call Damasks. It's noted in Scripture for its Kings, &c. the Birth of Eleazar, Abraham's Steward, and the Conversion of St. Paul in his Journey towards it. 'Tis now the Seat of a Beglerbey, who commands ten Sangiacks. 'Tis also the See of a Greek Patriarch translated from Antioch. Bouffingault says here are separate Wards for every Trade and Calling, shut up at Night by Gates, and with great Iron Chains by Day, to keep off Beasts of Burden. He says there are twenty thousand Men employed in making Sword-Blades, Scimitars, Bridles, Knives, and all sorts of fine Work of Iron and Steel, the Water being excellent for tempering Metals. The chief Commodities here are Wines, Prunes, Raw and Wrought Silks: and all the Commodities of Turkey, Arabia, and India, are brought hither by Caravans, which come and go from hence to Constantinople, Bagdat, Aleppo, Egypt, Mecca, and India. Most of the Commodities of Europe are brought hither by the Venetians. Here are several fair Bazars, or Exchanges, where they sell Commodities of all sorts: The largest consists of eighteen Arches, and two Rows of Shops on each side. Thevenot says it is not above a League and half in Compass; but the Suburbs are twice as big as the Town. Maundrel says 'tis two miles long, and encompass'd with Gardens for thirty miles round. He mentions a Coffee-House that holds four or five hundred People, and has an Apartment for Summer, and another for Winter. That for Summer is a small Island, encompass'd with a large Brook, shaded over head with Trees, and in Autumn with Mats. Here the Turks regale themselves with Greens and Water; which, with a beautiful Face, they say is the best Antidote against Melancholy. The chief Structures here are their Mosques; and the most remarkable of them are, 1. The great Mosque, formerly a Church, built by the Emperor Heraclius in honour of Zachary, Father to John the Baptist, who they say is buried here. It's thought to have been the Church of St. John of Damascus. The Mahometans put off their Shoes when they pass thro the Court to it; and no Christian must enter it on pain of Death. 'Tis three hundred Paces long, and sixty broad. The Court is pav'd with transparent Stones, resembling Looking-Glass; and round it are Pillars of Marble, Jasper, and Porphyry, of incomparable Workmanship, which support an Arch curiously painted in Mosaick. The Porch has twelve large Copper Doors emboss'd with Figures, supported by Pillars of Porphyry, with gilt Capitals. The Walls are painted with curious Figures in Gold and Azure. Here are a great many Lamps continually burning before a Hole grated with gilt Iron Bars, where they say Zachary's Head is kept. On each side this Mosque there's a square Steeple; one of them call'd the Messiah's, because the Turks reckon that Christ will return into the World by it. On the South-East and North sides of this Mosque there are fine Brazen Gates. 'Tis reckon'd one of the most stately Mosques in the Turkish Empire. 2. The Mosque, which they say was the Chamber of Ananias, when commanded by God to go to Paul. It was once a Christian Church, well ceil'd, and pav'd with Mosaick. It goes under ground by fourteen Steps from that which they call Ananias's House. Here's also his pretended Tomb, which the Turks respect much, and shew it to Strangers for Money. Near this is the House where they say Ananias instructed Paul, and the Fountain where they suppose he was baptiz'd, and recover'd his Sight. The East-Gate is St. Paul's, where was formerly a Church dedicated to him, 'tis now a Can; but the Steeple, of very old Workmanship, remains. And near this Gate they shew the House from whence the Apostle was let down over the Wall, to avoid the Fury of the Jews. Not far from hence there's a square Tower on the Walls, with Stones in which are cut the Arms of France and Scotland, suppos'd to be erected by some French and Scotish Princes during the Holy War. Here's a Mosque called the Green one, because the Steeple is fac'd, and the Roof cover'd with green-glaz'd Bricks, the Colour of their Prophet Mahomet, who they say ventur'd so far, but wou'd go no further. It has a large Court finely pav'd, a Fountain in the middle, and a Portico supported by eight Marble Pillars of the Corinthian Order, with as many Domes covered with Lead. Here are two other Mosques, formerly Christian Churches, with the Sepulchres of some Kings of Damascus: One of them is lin'd with Marble of different Colours, cover'd with a fine Dome, and has curious Painting in Mosaick. They pretend also to shew an Hospital built by Naaman, Lieutenant of the King of Damascus, for Gehazi the Prophet Elisha's Servant, and other Lepers. Over-against the West Gate there's a Tomb of St. George the Porter, who they say was beheaded for assisting in St. Paul's Escape. 'Tis built of Free-Stone, cover'd with a Pavilion in form of a Pyramid, has a Lamp continually burning; and on his Anniversary, both Papists and Turks repair to it, on pretence that his Reliques perform miraculous Cures. When the Papists die, their Bodies are brought hither; and after the Office for the Dead is over, are carried to their Place of Burial.

The House, of this City are built of Brick and Earth, and look mean, but are beautiful within. On one side of the City lies that called the Green, or Meidan. 'Tis a large Grass-Field encompass'd with Gardens, and has a River running thro them. Near the middle there's a Pillar fix'd in the Ground four-foot high, where they pretend God made Adam. On one side of this Field there's a great Hospital for Pilgrims: It has a large Cloyster cover'd with little Domes, and has many Chambers for Pilgrims of all Religions, who are maintain'd here for three Days at the Sultan's Charge. It has likewise a Cloyster for poor Scholars, with a Mosque and fair Gardens: And here's a great House, where they make Biscuit for Pilgrims to Mecca. The Sultan gives them two hundred Camels-Load, and as much Water.

The Capuchins, and other Monks, live in the Quarter of the Maronites, and the Jesuits in that of the Greeks. The Inhabitants suffer no body to ride with both Legs on one side of the Horse, because they say Gog and Magog, who rebelled against God, rode in that posture. The Turks leave a Column of Earth on the top of their Tombs, with a Hole, thro which they pour Water every Week on pretence of cooling the Dead. Widows go to their Husbands Graves to consult them, and fancy that the next Night they have an Answer. The Maronites, and other Eastern Christian Women, make a great noise when they mourn for their Dead; some sing, others cry, smite their Breasts with folded Hands, and sometimes form themselves into Rings, snap their Fingers against one another's Noses, and keep Time to their Songs, while others howl and cry. Most of the Streets are arch'd over, against the Sun and Rain. And almost in the middle of the Town there's a high Castle, of an Oval Form, built for the most part of square Free-Stone; and has fourteen large square Towers on the Walls, and some Cannon. There's a Court of Guard, with Arms hung in Order; a large arch'd Hall, that leads to the Room where the Divan is held, which is painted with Gold and Azure, after the Mosaick Way; and in the Court are three Basins of excellent Water. The Ditches are half a Pike's depth, and twenty Paces wide; and there's a Stream runs thro the Castle, with which they can fill them on occasion. On the Banks of the Ditch there are white Mulberry-Trees and Vines. The Castle has but one Gate on the East-side, with a Draw-Bridge kept up by Stone-Chains, of an admirable Contrivance, each Chain consisting of sixteen Links, about two Fathom long, and one and a half wide each, cut out of one Stone. The Walls of the Castle and Towers are fourteen foot thick. Near the Church of St. Thomas, which is ruinous, there's a small Tower of square Stones, with as many empty square Spaces betwixt the Stones, many of which are fill'd with the Heads of the Pagans call'd Druses, which a Bassa order'd to be cut off when he took them, and their Emir or Prince. Near it there is a fine Fountain with several Spouts, and a great square Basin, Benches about it cover'd with Tapestry, and Stages with Musicians, to entertain the Drinkers. There are fifteen hundred Janizaries; five hundred constantly in the City for its Guard, five hundred to convoy the Caravan to Mecca, and five hundred to attend the Grand Signior when he goes to Bagdat. They are allow'd a Privilege beyond others, which is to fight on horseback, and they have five Aspers per Day. Here are a great many Cooks, because the Inhabitants dress no Meat in their own Houses; and in one of their Streets, where Meat is retail'd, there's a Gate of Metal, which they say was taken from the Temple of Jerusalem. The Town is encompass'd by double Walls, well built with fair Battlements, flank'd at certain Distances with round and square Towers. The inner Walls are about four Fathom, and the outer three Fathom and a half thick, and about five foot of Ground betwixt them, fill'd with Earth; and round the Walls there's a Ditch five Fathom broad, and two and a half thick. The City has eight Gates, which Maundrel says are adorn'd with Marble Portals, curiously carv'd and inlaid. On the Inside there's generally a large square Court, beautify'd with fragrant Trees, Marble Fountains, Divans richly gilt, furnish'd with Carpets and Cushions, and floor'd with Marble. Their Garden Walls are made of great pieces of Earth, fashion'd like Bricks, harden'd in the Sun, two Yards long, one broad, and half a Yard thick. The Houses in the Outparts are also built with these, very coarsely daub'd over; so that in time of a violent Rain the Streets become like a Quagmire. The Suburbs are large, have many fine Houses, Gardens, and stately Mosques. In the neighbouring Plain there's the finest Alabaster, and red soft Earth, which is a sovereign Remedy for the Bitings of venomous Beasts, and Fractures of Bones.

Half a League from the City there's a barren Rock, where Mahometan Priests live in Cells like Hermits, and near it a Cave, whither the seven Sleepers are said to have retir'd during the Persecution, and the Grotto where Elijah was fed by a Raven. Within two Leagues of the Town lie the Ruins of a Church, said to have been built on the Spot, where St. Paul fell from his Horse upon hearing the Voice from Heaven. Three Leagues from this City lies a Place call'd Baal Bel, where they pretend that Cain and Abel sacrific'd, and the latter was murder'd; and a League further they pretend to shew the Place where Abraham defeated the five Kings that carry'd away Lot Prisoner. By all this it appears, that the Turkish Legendaries vie with those of the Papists for Fables.

Here, and in the Neighbourhood, they don't thresh their Corn, but cut the Straw with Iron Pinsons fasten'd with Wood-Rollers, drawn over the Corn by a Horse. The Corn slips thro the Teeth. They separate it from the Straw and Chaff by throwing it up into the Air; and feed their Horses twice a day with the Straw, Chaff, and Barley. Lucas says, the Sheep here are very large; and their Tails so big, that they are drawn in Wheel-Barrows, and some of them weigh sixty Pounds.

All Sects of Christians are allow'd their Worship and Churches here. The Papists have several Churches and Monasteries, and the Jews their Synagogues. The Wines here are heady and strong. The common sort drink much Butter-Milk and Whey.

(15.) Palmyrene, formerly a distinct Kingdom, and supposed to be that call'd Aram-Soba in Scripture, has proper Syria on the West, and Euphrates on the East. It was made a distinct Province by the Romans, who called it Syria Salutaris secunda. Rehob and Hadad-Ezer, who made war against Saul and David, were Kings of this Country. The History

History of their Wars, and of the Defeats they received from the Israelites, is found 1 Sam. 14. 47. 2 Sam. 8. 3. Ch. 10. 19. and 2 Kings 14. 28. 'Twas also famous in the Time of the Romans for the noble Atchievements of Zenobia Wife to Odenatus, who was Partner of the Sovereignty with the Emperor Gallienus. She was at last taken, and led in Triumph thro Rome by Aurelianus. This was likewise the only Province which held out against the Western Christians, when they subdued the rest of Syria.

The Country was called Palmyrene from Palmyra, its chief Town, about fifteen miles East from Damascus, Lat. 33 ½. Long. 41. Pliny says it had a noble Situation, and rich Soil, was water'd with pleasant Streams, and encompass'd with large Fields, as if it had been separated by Nature from the neighbouring Countries. 'Twas the Cause of long Contentions betwixt the Parthians and Romans, lay betwixt their Empires, was caress'd by both, and permitted for some time to continue a free State. Josephus thinks it to be the same with Tadmor, one of the Towns built by Solomon in the Wilderness, as in 1 Kings 9. 17, 18. and 2 Chron. 8. 3, 4. He says the Syrians call'd it Tadmor in his Time, and the Greeks Palmyra. 'Twas afterwards repair'd or enlarg'd by the Emperor Adrian, destroy'd by Antiochus, and repair'd again by Aurelianus. There is now nothing of it left but noble and stupendous Ruins of Piazzas, Palaces, and Columns, so numerous that they resemble a Forest, square Towers and Sepulchres of Marble and Porphyry. The Curious may find a large Account of it in Seller's Antiquities of Palmyra, publish'd by the Printers to our Royal Society in 1696. and in the Collections of Curious Travels by the said Society, with Mr. Halley's Account of the City, and his Remarks upon the Inscriptions. Some English Merchants went from Aleppo to this Place in 1678. and 1691. to view these noble Ruins. The most remarkable Things they took notice of in their Journey, were, 1. A Fountain of Purging-Water in a Desart, near which they found some Arabs making Ashes for Soap, which they sell at Tripoli, &c. They make them of a Weed which is shap'd like Coral. It has no Leaves, but produces a Stalk with several Branches; looks somewhat like Camphire, but more round; and when burnt, runs into Cakes like the Cinders of a Forge. The Arabs in these Parts feed on Antelopes, and creep behind their Asses while they shoot them. The third Day's Journey they found the Ruins of several Churches, with Greek Inscriptions, of a large Town, and a noble Aqueduct cut thro Rocks. The fourth Day they came to the Ruins of another Town, where they also found Greek Inscriptions, but so defac'd, that they could not read them. As they travell'd thro the Desart, their Horses frequently sunk into Holes made by Rats, which have a Bush of Hair at the end of their Tails, and are eat by the Arabs. Here they found Turpentine Trees, that bear abundance of small Nuts, resembling Pistachio's in Colour and Relish. They are good to quench Thirst when green; and the Arabians pickle, and make Oil of them. The sixth Day they found another Aqueduct of five miles long, about a Yard broad, three quarters of a Yard deep, with Paths on both sides for two Persons to walk a-breast, and at every twenty Yards distance a Vent for the Air, with small Mounts of Earth rais'd to keep the Sand from falling into the Aqueduct, which 'tis suppos'd was for carrying Water to Tadmor. They also found Quarries of fine Stone, which were made use of to build that City. In this Desart they met the Emir of Tadmor, and another Arabian Prince, who had before-hand sent one to spy them, and obliged them to give him Money and Goods, to the Value of fifteen hundred Dollars, to let them pass. He treated them in his Tent with Coffee, Camel's Flesh, and Dates, and told them if they had not submitted, he would have fought them; and for that end had fifty Camels laden with Sand-Bags with Holes, that cou'd be open'd to make the Sand fly in the Travellers Eyes when he came up to them. The Bassa of Aleppo resented this Violence, and getting him in his hands by Stratagem, put him to death. These Merchants say that Tadmor lies an hundred and thirty miles S. S. E. from Aleppo, which agrees with our Map.

The Merchants, who went to Tadmor in 1691. travell'd from thence to the Euphrates; and in their Journey saw a long Ridge of Hills, which the Natives said contain'd rich Minerals, and Quarries of Marble, that were made use of for building Tadmor. They afterwards came to a Village with Hot-Baths, where the People flock'd about them in Multitudes, and most of the Children were stark naked. It was the Residence of a Deputy-King of the Arabs, who entertain'd the Merchants in his Hut with Pillau and Rice, and demanded a Tribute of the Merchants: But understanding they were his King's Friends, he desisted, and begg'd their pardon. He liv'd in a Cottage of Stone and Earth, cover'd with Faggots, but not so as to keep out Rain; yet he was reckon'd a Prince of an illustrious Family among the Arabs. In the Road towards Bagdat they saw the Ruins of a considerable Town, and a Church that had formerly been Christian; and likewise the Ruins of a Monastery, built of Rock-Alabaster from the neighbouring Quarries, which reflected the Beams of the Sun so as to dazzle their Eyes. They perceived some Greek Inscriptions on the Stones, writ from the Right to the Left, after the Eastern manner. The fourth Day's Journey from Tadmor, they came to the Banks of the Euphrates, found it about half a Musket-shot over, and the Water very refreshing after travelling thro Sandy Desarts. Next Day they travell'd along the Bank of the River, with Hills of Marble, and other fine Stone, on one hand, and delightful Groves of Tamarisk, Mulberry-Trees, &c. on the other, and had a pleasant Prospect of Mesopotamia beyond the River, and saw nothing but Ruins and inconsiderable Villages on the Banks. They Day following they came to the Ruins of a City called Baulas, formerly the Seat of a Turkish Bassa, and then came to the King of the Arabs Tents, where they were nobly entertain'd, with three hundred other Guests. The Treat consisted of Camel's Flesh, Broth made of Rice, Currants, and Spices, and Rice dress'd after several manners, all serv'd up in Wooden-Bowls, some larger, and some lesser. The Arabs had no Knives, Forks, Spoons, nor Trenchers, but the English had large Wooden-Spoons set before them; and an Officer stood in an empty Space in the middle, and holding a long Wooden-Ladle with both Hands, reach'd every one what they call'd for. The King sat higher than the rest, in a leaning posture, on a Place rais'd with Cushions, Quilts, and Carpets, and others sat cross-legg'd. Our Merchants sat on the left Hand, which is reckon'd the Post of Honour. They had no other Drink but Coffee and sour Milk.

IV. The HOLY LAND.

UNDER this Name is generally comprehended the Kingdoms of Israel and Judah, and some take in the Land of the Philistines. The Map of it in the Atlas Historique for 1719. which is the last that has been publish'd, makes it 180 miles from South to North, and 144 where broadest from East to West in the South part, but not above 72 in the North. It has Syria on the North, Arabia Petræa on the South, the Mediterranean on the West, and Desarts on the East. It lies, according to the Atlas Historique, betwixt Lat. 30. ½. and 33, 34. and the Long. is betwixt 36 and 38. so that it is in the fourth and fifth Climates, and their longest Day about fourteen hours fifteen minutes.

This Country was honour'd with the first National Establishment of the true Religion, with our Saviour's Incarnation, and his finishing the glorious Work of Redemption. It was also the Place where the Gospel was first preach'd, and the Foundation of the Christian Church laid; but has since for many Ages been a melancholy Scene of the Divine Vengeance, as our Saviour foretold the Jews upon their rejecting him.

The best Description of the antient State of this Country, is that given by Moses, Deut. 8. 7, 8, 9. where he calls it a good Land, a Land of Brooks, of Water, of Fountains and Depths, that spring out of the Valleys and Hills; a Land of Wheat and Barley, Vines, Fig-Trees, and Pomgranates, of Oil, Olive, and Honey; a Land wherein was Bread without Scarceness, where there was no lack of any thing, whose Stones were Iron, and out of whose Hills was dug Brass.

Bleau, in his Atlas, gave the following Account of it: The Air was very temperate, so that they were never troubled with excessive Heats or Colds. The Soil was naturally fruitful and fat, so that it needed no manuring with Lime or Dung, and was easily plow'd with one Yoke of Oxen. It produc'd Roses, with many other fragrant Flowers, and Herbs of its own accord: and their Corn was so good and sweet to the Taste, that the Bread of Jerusalem was preferred to all others. It abounded with Pulse of every sort, had Fruit of all kinds in such plenty, that it might be called perpetual, because when the old Fruit was ripe, new Fruit was in Bud on the same Branch, and with these Buds they made excellent Pickles. They had delicate sweetmeats of their Citrons; and their Apples, called those of Paradise, sometimes hung by hundreds in a Cluster as big as Eggs. The Skin was thin, but when par'd off, the Fruit had an excellent Taste. Their Vines yielded Grapes three times a year, and their best Wine was about Bethlehem. They abounded also with Dates, Melons, Cucumbers, Sugar-Canes, Cotton, Turpentine, Cedar, Cypress, and other Trees, that produc'd Balsam: but now the Country is in most places desolate, and what's otherwise is govern'd by Arabian Princes, Tributaries to the Grand Signior.

Maundrel, in his Travels, observes, that Pilgrims and others, when they see so many Rocks, Mountains, and Precipices, which contradict the Ideas they had form'd of the Pleasantness and Fruitfulness of this Country, it startles their Faith, and makes them think it scarce possible that it should maintain such Numbers, as could furnish 1300000 fighting Men, as is mention'd 2 Sam. 24. 9. according to the Musters which Joab gave to David. But to solve this Difficulty, he answers, that there's nothing upon Earth more fruitful than the plain Country, and Valleys; that the Rocks and Hills appear to have been antiently cover'd with Earth; that there are still many Signs remaining of the Industry of the People on all the Hills of the Country, where they had made Fences of Stone along the side of the Hills like Walls, which kept in the Mould; and in this manner they form'd many Beds of excellent Soil from the bottom to the tops of the Mountains; that these Beds were very proper for Corn and Garden-Stuff, which is the chief Food of the Inhabitants for several Months; that the most rocky part might serve for Vines and Olives, as is plain from Experience: and Josephus says, that the great Plain by the Dead Sea produc'd such Herbs and Shrubs as fed Bees, which supply'd the Country with Honey, as the numerous Herds of Cattel in the Valleys supply'd them with Milk and Meat. We may add, that there's no forming any Idea of its antient State when under a Blessing, from its present State under a visible Curse.

The Country being now for most part a Wilderness, there is no need of being particular in the Topography of its ruin'd Citys and Towns, especially since Geographers and the best Antiquaries differ about their Situation. We shall therefore only give an Account how their Tribes lay, and of what Places are now remaining, as follows, beginning at the North. The Tribe of Asher lay in the North-West Corner of the Country; that of Napthali lay betwixt it, and the half Tribe of Manasseh beyond Jordan; the Tribe of Zebulon lay South from those of Asher and Napthali, betwixt the Mediterranean and the the Sea of Galilee; South from Zebulon and the River Kiſhon lay the Tribe of Iſſachar; South from it lay the other half of the Tribe of Manaſſeh, and Eaſt from that beyond Jordan lay the Tribe of Gad; South from the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, on this ſide Jordan, lay the Tribe of Ephraim; South from that lay the Tribe of Benjamin; South and Weſt from thence lay the Tribe of Dan; South from it lay that of Simeon; and South and Eaſt from it lay the Tribe of Judah, with the Country of Edom on the South. The Land of the Philiſtines lay Weſt from the Tribes of Judah and Dan along the Coaſt of the Mediterranean; and on the other ſide Jordan, and the Salt or Dead Sea, lay the Tribe of Reuben. Places of Note now remaining are,

(1.) Jeruſalem, Lat. 31 ½. Long. 37 ½. 105 miles South-Weſt from Damaſcus. The beſt Account of its antient State is in the Bible, which being in every one's hands, we refer to it. This City was not only the chief of Paleſtine, but of all the Eaſt, and indeed of the World, becauſe of the Temple, and the Manifeſtations which the Great God was pleas'd to give there of himſelf. The beſt Deſcription of that ſacred Structure is in 1 Kings 6, 7, 8. and 2 Chron. 3, 4, 5. which we need not repeat. The Prodigiouſneſs of the Work may be underſtood by the Numbers of Men employ'd about it, 1 Kings 5. 14, 15, 16. being 163300. and notwithſtanding this Number, it was ſeven years a building, ver. 38. The beſt Account given of it by any uninſpir'd Writer, is that of Lewis Capel, Profeſſor of Hebrew, and D. D. in the Univerſity of Salmure in France, who learnedly diſcuſſes the Miſtakes of Joſephus, in what he differs from the Scripture-Account, and alſo conſiders the Deſcriptions of Villalpandus and the Talmudiſts. He reckons the Height of the Temple 120 Cubits, which is 82 yards, three Inches; and the Height of the Courts half ſo much. The Front on the Eaſt-ſide was ſuſtain'd by Ramparts built up from the Valley 300 Cubits. This made the whole Height on that ſide 420. add to the Flower on the Top of the Porch 60 more, it makes 480. which at two foot and an half per Cubit, was 1080 foot high. The Length of the Ramparts, which ſupported the Wall, was at Top 800 Cubits, and at bottom 1000, and the Breadth 100. The Buttreſſes, which ſupported the Rampart, were of the ſame Height, ſquare at top, 50 Cubits broad, and jutted out at bottom 150. The Stones of which they were built, Joſephus ſays, were forty Cubits long, and twelve thick, and eight high, all of Marble; and ſo exactly join'd, that they look'd as one Stone.

The Columns of Parian Marble were 1453. and the Pilaſters join'd to the Walls and Buttreſſes above twice the Number. They were built of Stones ſo thick, as three Men could ſcarce fathom, and none leſs than 15 Cubits high. The Capitals were of the Corinthian Order, and beautiful to a wonder. The Windows were 2246. beſides thoſe in the Pavement, which gave Light to the Apartments under Ground. The Length of the Wall, which incloſ'd the whole, was 770 Cubits on each ſide, and the whole Circumference 3081 ½. It was ſix Cubits and an Hand-breadth high, and of the ſame breadth, with Marble Rails, betwixt Cubical Pillars of the ſame Size with the Wall. The Space betwixt the Outer Wall and the Porch of the Gentiles, was 37 ½ Cubits broad, and 768 ¾ long. The Porch of the Gentiles was 687 ½ Cubits long, and 43 ¾ broad. The Wall of it to the Dome 25. and the Heighth of it 43 ¾. The Court of the Gentiles 50 broad, and 600 long.

The Wall of the Courts was 500 Cubits long on each ſide, 66 Cubits high, and had a threefold Order of Columns. The height of the Gates, in which was a fourth Order of Columns, was 78 Cubits, and that of the Caſtles, in which there was a fifth Order, 90. The Areas of the ſeven ſquare Courts of Iſrael were 100 Cubits. That of the inner Court, where the Houſe of God ſtood, was 100 broad, and 250 long; each Area had Galleries of its own Length, and 50 Cubits broad. The ſix little ſquare Caſtles, at the Corners of the Areas, were 50 Cubits long, and 20 broad. There were ſix Gates, three outer ones into the Court of Iſrael, and three inner ones to that of the Prieſts, which were 50 Cubits long and 20 broad; the empty Space betwixt thoſe, call'd The Thalami of the Gates, was ten Cubits, and the Thalami were ſix, each of them ſix Cubits ſquare, and encompaſs'd with Rails. The Poſts were ſix Cubits thick, and the opening of the Gates 13 Cubits high and 8 broad.

The Houſe of God he deſcribes thus: The Breadth of the Tower was 64 Cubits, the Height 125. The Porch 12 ½ broad, and 20 long. The Holy Place 20 broad and 40 long, including the Wall of 2 ½ thick, and 20 high, which divided the Sanctuary from the Holy of Holies, and had no Windows. In the whole Structure there were 712 Chambers, moſt of them ſquare, 12 Cubits long, and many of them more; the Paſſage betwixt them on each ſide was 487 Cubits long, and 12 broad. The Apartments under ground were Store-houſes for the Tenths and Firſt-fruits of the Nation, and Kitchins for ſacred and common Uſes. Over the Sanctuary and Sanctum Sanctorum was a vaſt Wardrobe, where the Table, Curtains, and other Things belonging to the Tabernacle, with the ſacred Offerings, were kept. The common Beams were 12 ½ Cubits long, 1 ½ thick, and 1 ¾ broad: Thoſe that went the whole Breadth of the Temple were 54 Cubits long, 2 ½ thick, and 3 ½ broad, all of Cedar, adorn'd with Sculptures, Carv'd Work, and Gold Plates. The Floor of the whole Structure, eſpecially of the Galleries, was paved with rich Stones of various Colours in Chequer-Work. The Walls, Roof, and Floor of the Sanctuary were cover'd with Plates of Gold, faſten'd by Golden Nails of 25 Ounces each; their Heads of curious Workmanſhip, differently engraven, and adorn'd with precious Jewels of various Colours, ſet in ſuch order, and ſo poliſh'd, that they ſhone like Stars. See 2 Chron. ch. 3, & 4.

There belong'd to the Temple 440000 Veſſels of Gold, and 1340000 of Silver, amounting to 108000 Talents and 2000 Shekels of Gold, and a Million of Silver. The Gold reduc'd to a Cubical Form would have fill'd a Room of 10 Cubits ſquare, and the Silver one of 20; which, according to Capel's Computation, amounted to 984,640,203 l. Sterling Value. Villalpandus computes the Value of Gold, Silver, and Braſs, laid out upon the Temple, at 6904,822,500 l. Sterling, beſides the Wages, Diet, and Preſents to the Workmen. And the Charge of the other Materials and Jewels is reckon'd to exceed this Sum: which can't ſeem unlikely, if we conſult 1 Kings, Chap. 6, 7, & 8. and 2 Chron. Chap. 3, 4, & 5. 1 Chron. 28. 11, &c. Cap. 29. 1——9.

The Court of the Prieſts, into which none elſe might enter, ſtood next the Temple, contain'd the Brazen Altar and Laver. The Court to which the People repaired for Sacrifice, Prayer, and performing their Vows, was ſeparated from this by a Wall; and in the middle of it there was a Brazen Scaffold 5 Cubits long, 5 broad, and 5 high, erected by Solomon, 2 Chron. 6. 13. In Imitation of the Porch he built before the Temple, many others were afterwards erected in this Court to keep the People from Rain, and the whole Court was call'd Solomon's Porch. Without that was the Court of the Women, in which was the Poor's-Box; from whence it was call'd the Court of the Treaſury, John 8. 20. Betwixt theſe two laſt Courts there was an Aſcent of 15 Steps, on which the Levites uſed to ſing thoſe 15 Pſalms which immediately follow the 119th, and are therefore called Songs of Degrees or Steps. So far was reckon'd Holy Ground, into which none might enter but natural Jews and Proſelytes of the Covenant. The Court of the Gentiles ſtood without the laſt, into which thoſe called the Proſelytes of the Gate were admitted: 'Twas ſeparated from the other by a Wall of 3 Cubits, which had an Inſcription upon it, ſignifying that no Alien muſt enter into the Holy Place. Here the corrupt Jews ſuffer'd a Market of Sheep, Oxen, Doves, and the Tables of Money-Changers; all which our Saviour drove out, and reſtor'd it to its primitive Uſe, of being a Houſe of Prayer for all Nations. To this Wall betwixt the Court of the Jews and Gentiles the Apoſtle alludes, Eph. 2. 14. when he ſays, Our Saviour has broken down the Wall of Partition betwixt us, making one of twain.

Capel reckons that the Temple and its Courts were capable of containing 300354 People, allowing a ſquare Cubit to every Perſon.

By all this it appears to have been the moſt magnificent, moſt ſumptuous, and beſt-contriv'd Structure that ever was in the World: Nor are we to wonder at it, ſince the Wiſeſt and Richeſt of Kings perform'd it by the Divine Inſtruction, 1 Chr. 28. 11, &c. David, according to Villalpandus, left towards it, in Gold and Silver, &c. 911,416,207 l. Sterling. Solomon's own Revenue is computed by that Author at 100 Millions of Crowns per Ann. beſides the great Quantities of Gold he had from Ophir, and the Preſents made him from all the Earth, as 'tis expreſs'd 1 Kings 10. By which his Riches became ſo immenſe, that he made 200 Targets of Beaten Gold, weighing 600 Shekels each, and 300 Shields of the ſame Metal, of 3 Pound weight each. All his Drinking Veſſels, and thoſe of his Houſe in Lebanon, were of Gold; Silver, which he made as common in Jeruſalem as Stones, being nothing valued in his Days, as we find it in the ſame Chapter. The Prieſts of the Temple had 10000 Veſtments of Silk, with purple Girdles; and there were 2 Millions of purple Veſtments for the Singers, according to Joſephus.

This Glorious Temple was deſtroyed, and all its rich Furniture carried away by Nebuchadnezzar, as we find it 2 Kings 24, & 25. The ſecond Temple was built at the end of the 70 Years Captivity, but came far ſhort of the former. Heylin, from the Authority of Joſephus, ſuppoſes that the ſecond Temple was pull'd down, and another built in its place by Herod the Aſcalonite, little inferior to that of Solomon. But this muſt be a Miſtake; and 'tis probable that Herod only repair'd the ſecond Temple, becauſe of the Promiſe in Haggai, Chap. 2. ver. 9. That the Glory of the latter Houſe, built by Zorobabel, ſhould be greater than that of the former; alluding to our Saviour's coming to honour that Temple with his Preſence, in which reſpect it was more glorious than that of Solomon, tho otherwiſe ſhort of it for Magnificence and Riches. This ſecond Temple was, according to our Saviour's Prediction, deſtroy'd, together with the City, by Titus Veſpaſian in the 69th Year of Chriſt, tho the Temple was burnt againſt the Will of that General, who deſign'd its Preſervation for the Honour of the Roman Empire. Joſephus ſays, when Titus enter'd the City, he admir'd the Strongholds and Towers which the Jews had deſerted, and ſaid, Surely God aſſiſted us in this War, and drove the Jews from thoſe Fortreſſes, from which no human Power cou'd ever have forc'd them. He adds, that 1100000 People died by the Sword, &c. during this Siege, and 87000 were taken captive; and the City was ſo totally deſtroy'd, that not one Stone was left upon another, as our Saviour foretold, Mark 13. 1, 2, &c. This Deſtruction happen'd during the Solemnities of the Paſſover, to which the Jews repair'd from all Nations: So that the Number of Perſons deſtroy'd here at that time can't ſeem hyperbolical; for Ceſtius, Nero's Lieutenant of Judea, ſent him word that at a Paſſover in his Time the High Prieſt number'd 2 Millions and 700000 People that came to make their Offerings.

A. C. 132. the Emperor Adrian began to rebuild the City, and call'd it Ælia Capitolina: But the Jews having made a Rebellion, he forbad them to enter, or ſo much as to look upon the Town at a diſtance; and in contempt of them, order'd the Figure of a Swine to be erected over the Gate of Bethlehem, and built ſeveral Heathen Temples here; which ſtood till the Emperor Conſtantine, who repeopled the Town, order'd them to be demoliſh'd, and built Churches in their ſtead. In 614 it was taken by the Perſians, and continued under them, the Saracens, and Mahometans, till the Reign of Charlemain, to whom it was reſign'd by the King of Perſia in 807. After his Death it was retaken, and kept by the Infidels till 1099, when it was reconquered by Godfrey of Bouillon, who was made King of it. In 1187 it was retaken, with all the Holy Land, by Saladine King of Syria and Egypt; at laſt it fell to the Grand Signior in 1517, and is ſtill in the hands of the Turks.

Modern Authors give the following Account of its preſent State: That it is about a League in Circuit, which may eaſily be walk'd in an Hour's time; the Streets narrow, crooked, ill-contriv'd, and full of Ruins; the Houſes all vaulted, and like ſo many Pigeon-Houſes. Here are no Squares, or open Places, but the Courts of the Temple, of the Holy Sepulchre, and the Market. 'Tis full of Aſcents and Deſcents, and encompaſs'd with other Hills, which make the preſent Situation unpleaſant. Moſt of the Town is now about Mount Calvary, which the Turks have wall'd in, becauſe they may the better exact from Chriſtian Pilgrims, who come to viſit it on account of our Saviour's Sufferings. The Walls of the Town are of hewn Stone, with little Towers and Battlements; but it has no Ditch, except on the ſide of the Valleys. It has ſix high large Gates plated with Iron; but the Turks let Strangers in only ſide-ways, and have wall'd up that called the Gate of the Temple, on pretence of a Prophecy that their Deſtruction will enter at that Gate. Bleau ſays, many of the old Places lie without the preſent Walls, and new ones are taken in. The Town, he ſays, is 1200

Paces long. The chief Structure is a Church built by the Christians on the Foundation, as they say, of Solomon's Temple. 'Tis a noble Structure, contains many old and late Monuments; but is now turn'd into a Mosque, and no Christian or Jew is suffer'd to look into the Court before it, which is 280 Paces long, and 150 broad. In the Centre of this Area there's an Octogonal Temple, which they call Solomon's. 'Tis fac'd with Parian Marble ten Foot high, and the rest is Chequer-Work of varnish'd Bricks, which shine gloriously when the Sun is upon it. 'Tis 250 Paces in compass, has four Gates, every Corner has four Windows, and in the middle there's a Dome with sixteen, and a little Crescent at top. It has two Rows of Marble Pillars within; and in the middle the Turks shew a three-corner'd Stone, upon which they pretend that Jacob slept when he had his Vision. That thought to be Pilate's Palace, now the House of the Turkish Governor, lies near it; and from hence Christians are allow'd to see it. In the South-corner of the Area there's a fine Structure with two Domes, now also a Mosque. They call it the Temple of Presentation, and suppose our Saviour was presented here to Old Simeon. Maundrel says, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre lies on Mount Calvary. The Founders cut down several parts of the Rock, and raised others to make an Area for the Church; but the Father-Guardians pretend that care was taken to alter none of those Places that were the immediate Scenes of our Saviour's Passion. Here they shew the Place where the Cross was fix'd, and the Sepulchre where he lay, which looks like a Grotto above ground, the Rock about it being all cut away. We refer to Mr. Maundrel for the other Particulars, and the Account he gives of the superstitious Devotions and ridiculous Processions, and other Performances of the Greeks and Papists here, such as the Ceremony of representing the Passion; for which they have an Effigies so contrived, that its Limbs are soft and flexible, as if they were real Flesh. With this they personate the Crucifixion, the taking down the Body from the Cross, the Embalming, Burial, &c. They shut it up in the Sepulchre till Easter-Morning; and next Day mark such Pilgrims as have a mind to it with the usual Figures in their Arms, as a Testimony that they have been there. Near the Hole of the Rock, in which they suppose the Cross stood, he saw the Cleft mention'd Matt. 27. 51. He says it is a Span wide at the upper part, and two deep; after which it closes, but opens again below, as he saw it in another Chappel under this, and runs down an unknown depth. He adds, that Sense and Reason shew it to be a natural and genuine Breach, that could not be counterfeited by Art, for the Sides of it answer like two Talleys, and it runs in such intricate Windings as no Instrument cou'd possibly reach. On Easter-Eve he saw the Greeks and Armenians perform the Ceremony of what they call the miraculous Fire, that descends from Heaven into the Holy Sepulchre; during which they act all manner of antick Tricks in the most distracted and indecent Postures, tumbling round the Sepulchre like Tumblers on a Stage, and carrying one another about with their Heels upward. The Priests, who manage the Cheat, let a Pigeon into the Cupola to personate the Descent of the Holy Ghost, and after all the Lamps and Candles are put out before Witnesses, and the Door of the Sepulchre sealed up, two Priests, who carry on the Intrigue, come out with blazing Torches in their Hands, pretending them to be lighted by the miraculous Fire. All the People crowd about them for a Share of the Flame, at which they light Wax-Candles, and daub Pieces of Linen with the Wax, being so foolish as to believe that a Shrowd so smutted will secure them from the Flames of Hell. Our Author says, they shew many Places memorable for particular Facts related in Scripture; but the City having been entirely destroy'd by the Romans, and so much alter'd since in its Situation and Dimensions, there's no relying upon any thing that does not carry its own Evidence with it, as the Mountains, the Cleft made in the Rock, &c. which in their own Nature were not changeable; and that most of the rest are the Inventions of Priests and Monks, who reap gain from it, and are conniv'd at by the Turks because of the great Revenues they have from the Taxes on Pilgrims, &c. who come to visit those Places. On the South-side of Mount Moriah he saw divers large Vaults, running fifty Yards under Ground at the foot of the Mount, divided into two Isles, arch'd at top with huge firm Stone, and supported with tall Pillars of one entire Stone, and two Yards in diameter each. He supposes it to be an under-ground Work, to enlarge the Area of the Temple, as mention'd by Josephus.

The Valley of Hinnom begins at the foot of Mount Sion; and near it, on the West, is the Potters-Field, purchased with the Silver which Judas had to betray our Saviour, and is therefore named Campo Santo. 'Tis but thirty Yards long, and fifteen broad; and here is a Charnel-House. The Mouth of this Valley is cross'd by that of Jehosaphat. And here he saw the Pool of Siloam, now used by a Tanner. On the other side the Valley lies the Village of Silee, where Solomon is thought to have kept his strange Wives; and above it the Hill where he erected the High-places. Crossing this Valley there's an Ascent to Mount Olivet, in which there are Grotto's with intricate Windings under ground, and twelve arch'd Vaults, where the fabulous Monks say the Apostles compos'd the Creed. There are the Ruins of a high Tower, and of a large Church on the top of the Mount, that were built in honour of our Saviour's Ascension, and the Appearance of two Angels to the Apostles afterwards. From this Mount there's a Prospect of Jerusalem, and the Parts adjacent, of the Dead-Sea, Jordan, the Desart where our Saviour was tempted, and of Arabia. Without the Gate of Damascus they shew a large Grotto, where they say the Prophet Jeremiah wrote his Lamentations. 'Tis now a College of Mahometan Priests, and much respected by Jews and superstitious Christians. Near this Place, and on the North-side of the Town, are those famous Grottos which they call the Sepulchres of the Kings; but those of Israel and Judah being buried elsewhere, as appears by the Scripture, they are supposed to be the Sepulchres of Hezekiah and the Sons of David, mentioned 2 Chron. 32. 33. However that be, Maundrel says they cost so much Labour and Treasure to hew them out of the Rocks, and have so many Apartments, and those of such curious Workmanship, that they may justly be called Royal. They have Niches in which there were formerly Stone Coffins, cover'd with handsome Lids carv'd with Garlands; but most of them now broke. Some of the Chambers have Stone Doors of the same sort of Rock, with Hinges of the same piece.

Here is also the Tomb of Zacharias Son of Barachias, mentioned by our Saviour Matt. 23. 35. 'Tis cut out of the Rock on the side of Mount Olivet, has four Columns on each side, and over them a Timber Roof in form of a Pyramid. In the Back-part there's a Window. The whole is of one Rock, takes up about eighty Foot, and is almost now cover'd over with Earth. A little further is Absalom's Tomb, the finest Monument in these Parts. 'Tis made round at top, and ends in a Point resembling a round Steeple, with a sort of Crown at top. The Structure is thirty Foot high, and supported by twenty Columns cut out of the Rock; and the whole takes up eighty Foot and a half.

Bleau says, the most common Language here is that of the Turks and Moors. They are govern'd by three Magistrates: The first a Bassa, who has the chief Authority; the second a Cadi, who is supreme Judge of Criminal and Civil Affairs; the third a Sub-Bassa, who commits, prosecutes, and executes Offenders.

Other Places of Note still remaining in this Country, are, (1.) Bethany, where Lazarus was raised from the Grave by our Saviour. It lies at the foot of Mount Olivet, near two Miles from Jerusalem; is now only a small Village inhabited by Arabian Peasants. Here are the Ruins of a Castle in which they say Lazarus dwelt; and at the bottom of a small Descent near it, they shew the Sepulchre from whence he was raised. They go down to it by twenty five Steps, at the bottom of which there's a small square Room, and a lesser one about a Yard and half deeper, where they say the Corps was laid. The Turks use it as a Place of Devotion, and demand Tribute from Christians who come to see it.

From this Place towards Jericho there's an intricate Way, thro Hills and Valleys that are now barren, but have remarkable Signs of the Husbandmens Labour in former Days. Some Leagues further, in the same Road, is the Desart where our Saviour was tempted. 'Tis a miserable barren Place, with high rocky Mountains, so torn and disorder'd, as if the Bowels of the Earth had been turn'd out by an Earthquake. In the deep Valleys betwixt them are the Ruins of Cells and Cottages of antient Hermits. From the top of these Mountains there's a Prospect of those of Arabia, the Dead Sea, and the Plain of Jericho. On one side of this Plain lies the Mountain, whither they suppose the Devil carried our Saviour. It is now called Quarantania, because of our Saviour's forty Days Fast. 'Tis exceeding high, of a difficult and dangerous Ascent; has a small Chappel at top, and another about half way up, with Caves where Hermits us'd formerly to lodge.

About a mile further in the Plain, is that call'd the Fountain of Elisha, because he miraculously cur'd its Brackishness at the Request of the Men of Jericho, 2 Kings 2. 19. Maundrel says, the Water falls into a Basin about nine Paces long, and five broad, from whence issue several Streams that water the Plain.

(2.) Jericho. This Town, once so famous, is now a poor Village of Arabs, who shew an old square Stone Building in the South-part of the Town, which they say was Zachæus's House. Maundrel takes no notice of the Palm-Trees and Balsam-Trees, for which this Plain was once so remarkable, that Josephus call'd it the Divine Field. And Tacitus says, that in his Time the Balsam of those Trees was a Juice as thick as Milk, and highly valued for its healing Virtue; that if any Iron Tool was applied to the Branches, they trembled, so that they were cut with sharp Stones or Shells, to let out the Juice. The Plain he says was an hundred Stadia in compass, well inhabited, and had a Royal Palace.

(3.) Paradise. Luyts says, some Learned Men are of opinion that it lay in this Plain; which brings us naturally to say something on that Subject. Herbinius, in his Dissertationes de admirandis Mundi Cataractis, publish'd at Amsterdam in 1678. has a large Dissertation on this Head. He conceives it was bounded by Mesopotamia, Armenia, and the neighbouring Countries; and has drawn a Plan of it, to which we refer. He draws the Geometrical Line of Eden from the West thro Phenicia, the Land of the Philistines, and Egypt, as far almost as the Mouth of the Nile; from the South he draws it thro Arabia Petræa and Deserta; from the East, by way of Chaldæa, Babylonia, and Assyria; and from the North, by way of Armenia, descending thro Cilicia and Syria to the Land of Damascus: So that he takes room enough for it. We cannot insist on the Arguments he brings to support his Opinion. Dr. Wells, in his Geography of the Old Testament, seems to agree with Bochart, Bishop Patrick, Spanheim, and others, who place it in the South Tract of Babylonia, or Mesopotamia, betwixt the Tigris, Euphrates, and the neighbouring Rivulets; and they pitch particularly on the Place where the Euphrates and Tigris unite into one Stream, and that where they divide into two Branches, betwixt the 32d and the 34th Degree of North Lat. and place the Garden it self upon the East-side of that Stream, just above the Division. Dr. Wells makes part of the Garden on the side of the River, a little above where it is divided into the Pison and Gihon, which fall into the Persian Gulph. He makes Hiddekel to be the Tigris, places the Land of Havilah betwixt Arabia Deserta and Petræa, on the N. W. End of the Persian Gulph, and the Land of Cush opposite to it, on the East-side of the River Gihon. He quotes many Authors to prove that all the Marks of Paradise given by Moses agree to this Country. But Cellarius says very judiciously, That after the different Opinions of so many Learned Men, one does not know which to follow. He rejects that of Josephus, who makes the Nile and Ganges two of the Rivers of Paradise, because of their too great distance. He leaves those to their own Opinion, who place it further from the Tigris and Euphrates: But he supposes it lay East from Palestina, or Arabia Petræa, in which Moses wrote; and since he mentions the Euphrates, there can be no dispute as to that River. He says the Learned in Etymologies derive Tigris from Hiddekel; for by cutting off the Aspirat, according to the Greek Custom, there remains Dekel, or Degel; and the [l] being chang'd into [r], as the Greeks do frequently in proper Names, we have Deger, or Tiger, from whence comes the Name Tigris, as Bochart shews at large, and Dr. Wells agrees with him. Upon the whole, Cellarius owns there are Difficulties that attend each of those Opinions. He thinks that Paradise was in Mesopotamia, Babylonia, or Caldæa; but in what Place, or what that River was issuing from the Land of Eden, and afterwards dividing it self into four Heads, cannot certainly be determin'd: for he agrees with Herbinius, that many Things have been alter'd by the Flood, which make it impossible for us to be at any certainty in this Matter.

(4.) Rama,

(4.) Rama, noted for the Maſſacre of the Infants by Herod, in order to deſtroy our Saviour. It lay about ſix Miles North-eaſt from Jeruſalem, and was once a conſiderable Town. Thevenot ſays, that in his Time it was pretty large; and that where Nicodemus's Houſe ſtood there was a Convent, a Church, and a Houſe for lodging of Pilgrims. The Doors of the Houſes were low, to hinder the plundering Arabs from riding into them. Here were ſeveral French and Dutch Merchants, who traded in Oil, Soap, Cotton, Thred, and Cloth. The neighbouring Country is ſometimes much infeſted by Locuſts. The Baſſa of Gaza diverts himſelf in the Neighbourhood, by hunting Wild Boars and Jackals. The Houſes are low, and built of Freeſtone, with arch'd Roofs, except a few that are terraſs'd at top. Here are extraordinary Melons, abundance of Colliflowers and Tobacco.

(5.) Bethlehem, noted for our Saviour's Birth, lay about ſix Miles South-weſt from Jeruſalem. Maundrel ſays he ſaw the Place where they ſay our Saviour was born, the Manger in which he was laid, the Chappels of Joſeph the Virgin's Husband, of the Innocents, and ſeveral others, and the School of St. Jerom. The Greeks, Armenians, and Latins, have Convents here, and a Door from each into that called the Chappel of the Holy Manger. Near theſe Convents there's a Grotto in a Chalky Rock, where they ſay the Virgin hid her ſelf with the Divine Infant before ſhe fled to Egypt. The Prieſts aſcribe the Whiteneſs of the Grotto, tho of natural Chalk, to ſome Drops of the Virgin's Milk, and ſay this Chalk increaſes Milk in the Breaſts of thoſe that give ſuck. Thevenot ſays, St. Jerom's School is ſupported by eight Pillars of Granate, and the Turks have made it a Stable. In his Oratory, where he tranſlated the Bible, is his Tomb, and thoſe of ſome others, upon which he wrote Epitaphs. The great Church, built by St. Helena, was beautiful, ſpacious, and reckon'd one of the fineſt in the Levant; but the Turks have carried off the fine Marble. Pilgrims have Marks made on their Arms here, as at Jeruſalem; but the Prieſts are not ſo dextrous, for the Pain of it ſometimes throws them into Fevers. The remarkable Places in the Neighbourhood are, 1. The celebrated Fountains, Pools, and Gardens, about a League from the Town, ſaid to be the Contrivance and Delight of King Solomon, to which they ſuppoſe him to allude, Eccleſiaſtes 2. 5, 6. The Pools are three in a row, one above another; ſo that their Water runs from the firſt into the ſecond, and from that into the third. They are each about ninety Paces broad; the firſt a hundred and ſixty long, the ſecond two hundred, and the third two hundred and twenty. Some alledge this to be the Sealed Fountain, to which Solomon alludes Cant. 4. 12. Maundrel ſays, they might eaſily be ſealed up; for they lie under ground, and have no Avenue but by a little Hole like the Mouth of a narrow Well, thro which one deſcends with difficulty about four Yards; and then there's a vaulted Room fifteen Paces long, and eight broad, with a leſſer adjoining, both cover'd with handſome Stones of antient Workmanſhip. Here are four Fountains convey'd by a little Stream into a Baſin, and from thence by a large ſubterranean Paſſage to the Pools before mentioned, and part of the Water is carried by an Aqueduct round the Mountains to Jeruſalem. Below the Pools there's a narrow rocky Valley, enclos'd on each ſide by high Mountains; which the Friars think to be the Garden of Flowers that Solomon alludes to. Maundrel doubts whether this was the Seat of the Garden, becauſe of the rocky Soil; but believes the Fountains to be really Solomon's, becauſe there is not the like ſtore of excellent Spring-Water in Paleſtina. Near thoſe Pools there's a noble Caſtle of modern Structure. 2. A Convent dedicated to Elias, where the Greeks ſhew a hard Stone, which they pretend was his Bed; and near it a Well, where they ſay the Star appear'd to the Wiſe Men, and directed them to the Houſe where our Saviour was born. 3. Rachel's Tomb, which, tho it may be the Place of her Interment, is a modern Structure. 4. The Field where the Shepherds watch'd their Flocks when the Angels told them of our Saviour's Birth. They pretend likewiſe to ſhew other Places about this Town mentioned in Scripture; but as they have nothing to ſupport their Conjectures beſides Tradition, we paſs them over.

(6.) Gaza, which formerly belong'd to the Philiſtines. It lies in the South-weſt Corner of the Country, near the Coaſt, and not far from that call'd the Brook of Egypt. It was a celebrated City, as we find in the Scriptures. Thevenot ſays, here are many noble Ruins, and a ſmall Caſtle, kept in good Order, with a Seraglio for the Baſſa's Wives. He adds, that there's a good Bezeſtan here, a large Greek Church, and ſeveral fine Moſques fac'd with the Marble of antient Structures; but the other Houſes ſo mean, and the Inhabitants ſuch Slaves, that they dare keep nothing handſome about them, tho the neighbouring Valleys are fruitful; and that there are three hundred Villages ſubject to its Juriſdiction, all govern'd by a Turkiſh Emir. There's nothing elſe left in all this famous Country of the Philiſtines worth taking notice of.

(7.) The River Jordan. It riſes from two Fountains, called Jor and Dan in Galilee, near the moſt northerly Part of the Holy Land, almoſt at the Foot of the Mountains called Antilibanus. The Streams join near the Ruins of Cæſarea Philippi, run thro the Lake of Meroe, then thro the Sea of Galilee, and at laſt the River loſes it ſelf in the Dead Sea, or Lake of Sodom, after a Courſe of about an hundred and fifty Miles, beſides Turnings and Windings. Janſon ſays, it forces its way thro the Dead Sea, and at laſt is ſwallow'd up in an Abyſs. Thevenot, who ſaw it, ſays 'tis half as broad at Jericho as the Seyne at Paris, muddy, and full of Fiſh. Mr. Maundrel ſays, the Plain thro which he paſſed to Jordan is barren, produces nothing but Samphire, and other Marine Plants; and the Ground is ſo impregnated with Salt, that in Places where the Water had ſtagnated, he found Cruſts of Salt upon the Surface of the Ground. Within a Furlong of the River he ſaw the Ruins of a Convent and Church, dedicated to John the Baptiſt, near the Place where they ſuppoſe he baptized our Saviour, and ſome Marks where the River had over-flow'd its Banks. After paſſing the Outer-Bank where it over-flows, there's a level Strand of about a Furlong before one comes to the proper Bank, ſo covered with Buſhes and Trees, as hides the River till we come to it. In theſe Thickets, Lions and other Wild Beaſts harbour; and being waſh'd out by the Overflowing of the River, gave occaſion to that Alluſion, Jer. 49. 19. and Ch. 50. 44. He ſhall come up like a Lion from the Swelling of Jordan. It was twenty Yards broad here, above a Man's height in depth, and ſo rapid, that there's no ſwimming againſt the Stream. The Greeks, and other Chriſtians, come hither on Holy Monday to perform their Devotions, waſh, bathe, and have Water pour'd upon their Heads, in remembrance of our Saviour's Baptiſm, pay a ſtrong Guard of Turks to ſave them from the Arabs, and carry off Water, Earth, Mud, and Sticks, which they keep as Reliques.

(8.) The Lake of Geneſareth, thro which this River runs, is very clear, wholeſome, grateful, abounds with many ſorts of Fiſh of an excellent Taſte and Shape. The Atlas Hiſtorique makes it above twenty miles long, and twelve broad: But the Fiſhery is neglected, becauſe of the heavy Tax laid on them by the Turks. 'Tis alſo called the Sea of Galilee, and Lake of Tiberias.

(9.) The Lake Aſphaltites, Dead Sea, Salt Sea, or Lake of Sodom, lies in the South and South-eaſt part of the Holy Land, betwixt Lat. 30, 31 ½. Authors differ about its Length and Breadth: Some make it 120 miles S. and N. and 70 E. and W. which is a groſs Miſtake, as appears by all our Maps. Its Length, according to the Atlas Hiſtorique, is 45 miles S. W. and N. E. and the greateſt Breadth E. and W. about 16. Maundrel ſays the Water is clear, ſalt to the higheſt degree, and extreme bitter and nauſeous. He ſwam in it, found it bore up his Body with an uncommon Force; but that its Vapours kill Birds that attempt to fly over it, or Fiſhes that come into it; that it buoys Men up to the top, if they wade navel-deep; or that there grow any ſuch Apples about it as are fair without, and Duſt within; he ſays are Fables. He could ſee none of the Ruins of Sodom, &c. but the Guardian and Procurator of Jeruſalem told him, that when the Water was low they had ſeen the Ruins of Pillars and other Buildings. 'Tis ſometimes ſwell'd by Rains and melted Snow that comes down from the Mountains. The Guides told him that on a Cape at the Weſt-ſide of the Lake there's ſtill part of the Pillar of Salt, into which Lot's Wife was turn'd; but he did not believe it. Abundance of Bitumen, reſembling Pitch, is gather'd on its Shores, and is not diſtinguiſhable from it but by the ſulphurous Smell: 'Tis us'd for Shipping, and good for Ulcers and Wounds. He found black Pebbles on the Shore, which put into the Fire ſend forth a Smoke and intolerable Stench; but loſe nothing of their Bulk, tho they do of their Weight. On the Eaſt and Weſt 'tis enclos'd with high Mountains; on the North it receives Jordan, and is bounded by the Plain of Jericho; on the South the Country is level. In the neighbouring Plains he perceiv'd a ſtrong Scent of Honey and Wax, and ſaw Multitudes of Bees ſucking the ſalt Weeds produc'd here. He ſaw thorny Buſhes, with ſmall Leaves, that bear a Fruit like a green Walnut: The Arabs bray the Kernels, put 'em in ſcalding Water, ſkim off the Oil that riſes a-top, and prefer it to Balm of Gilead for inward Bruiſes or green Wounds.

(10.) Galilee, ſo famous for our Saviour's Education, and ſojourning there ſo long as to be called a Galilean, lies in the North part of the Holy Land, was divided into Upper and Lower, and part of it call'd Galilee of the Gentiles, or Nations, becauſe inhabited, according to Strabo, by a Mixture of Egyptians, Arabians, and Phenicians. Authors are not agreed as to the Boundaries of the two Galilees; but that call'd Lower Galilee, about the Sea of Galilee, or Tiberias, was the Place where our Saviour did moſt ſojourn. Here are no Remains of any Place of Note now but the following.

1. Cana of Galilee, ſo call'd to diſtinguiſh it from Cana in the Tribe of Aſſer. The Atlas Hiſtorique places it in the Tribe of Zebulon; and Thevenot ſays, that in his Time it was only a ſmall Village, tho by the Ruins it appears to have been a very large Place. They ſhew'd him a Church on a Hill, where they ſay the Marriage was ſolemniz'd, at which our Saviour was preſent; and a Fountain from whence the Water was brought that our Lord turn'd to Wine. The Church and Convent built here by St. Helena, Conſtantine's Mother, were turn'd into a Moſque.

2. Tiberias, on the S. W. part of the Sea of Galilee, from hence alſo call'd the Lake of Tiberias. Monconys ſays, it appears by the Ruins to have been a very large City, and to have had ſumptuous Structures. 'Tis now a very mean Village. There are Baths near it, call'd the Baths of Emaus. They proceed from hot Mineral Springs, much eſteem'd for their Medicinal Virtues. They do not boil up as other Springs, and their Heat is very moderate. It was on the Eaſt-ſide of the Lake of this Name, that Chriſt miraculouſly fed the Five thouſand with five Loaves and two ſmall Fiſhes.

The chief Towns of Lower Galilee are, 1. Sepphoris, antiently a large ſtrong City, five Miles from Nazareth, and lately the Reſidence of the Emirs of Sidon, but now a poor Village. Here is a Caſtle called Zaphet, in which reſides the Turkiſh Sangiack, who governs this Province. Mr. Maundrel ſays, the fine Plain of Zebulon begins here.

2. Mount Tabor. Joſephus makes it thirty Stadia high, and inacceſſible on the North-ſide, with a Plain of twenty ſix Stadia; on the top wall'd round. He himſelf fortify'd it during the Roman War. Polybius ſays Antiochus took it by Stratagem. Cellarius ſays it has two Summits, and two different Names; that the Aſcent of the one is fifteen, and the other thirty Stadia. Lightfoot places it about ten miles N. W. of Capernaum. Tho it be the common Opinion that our Saviour was transfigur'd upon this Mount, yet the Learned are not agreed about it. Mr. Maundrel ſays, that in the Area on the top there are three contiguous Grottos made to repreſent the Tabernacles which St. Peter propos'd to erect there. It took Mr. Maundrel and Company almoſt an Hour to aſcend it. The Area is a fruitful delicious Plain, two Furlongs in length, one broad, of an oval Figure, and enclos'd with Trees on all ſides, except on the South. It has ſeveral Ciſterns of good Water. The Mount is round, beautiful, and high, ſtands by it ſelf in the Plain of Galilee at a ſmall diſtance from other Hills. From hence there's a pleaſant Proſpect of the Mediterranean, and all the neighbouring Country. It abounds with Oaks, Turpentine-Trees, Vines, Olives, and other Fruit-Trees. Among the Woods there's abundance of Wild Beaſts and Fowl, and many Flowers nouriſh'd with the perpetual Dew that falls here. Monconys ſays, there are the Ruins of a fine City on the top, with a Ditch cut out of the Rock. The Monks who come hither from Nazareth on the Day of our Saviour's Transfiguration, pretend to ſhew the particular Places of this Mount mentioned in the Goſpel.

3. Nazareth. Maundrel says it lies about six miles West from Mount Tabor. 'Tis now an inconsiderable Village on the top of a high Hill, by which the Brook Kishon runs from the Sea of Galilee into the Mediterranean.

Here they pretend to shew the Grotto of the Annunciation, where the Angel spoke to the Blessed Virgin; and a Convent near it inhabited by seven or eight Monks, continually expos'd to be plunder'd by the Arabs, who are Masters of the Country. The Structure has been fine, but now ruinous. Near this Place they shew Joseph's House, and the Synagogue where our Saviour preach'd that Sermon, Luke 4. which did so much provoke the Jews; and the Precipice from which they threaten'd to throw him down.

4. Mount Hermon lies S. E. from Tabor, and is compos'd of a Ridge of Hills, and sometimes call'd Gilead. Maundrel says that he and his Company were sufficiently taught by experience what the Psalmist meant by the Dew of Hermon, their Tents being as wet with it, as if it had rain'd all Night. He also takes notice that the Brook Kishon, in the Neighbourhood, swells exceedingly by Rains which fall down from the Hill in Torrents, as he supposes it did when Sisera's Army was ruin'd by it, Judges 5. 21.

5. Naim, South of Mount Tabor, mentioned by Luke, Chap. 7. as a City, but now only a Village. 'Twas the Place where our Saviour restored the Widow's Son to Life. It stands on the side of the Plain of Esdraelon, part of which is sown with Cotton, and the rest uncultivated, and full of Thistles.

6. Samaria, formerly the Metropolis of the Kingdom of Israel, and a fine large City, forty five miles North from Jerusalem. 'Tis now in Ruins, and inhabited only by a few Moors, who have rais'd themselves little Cottages of Stone without Mortar. The Turks have turn'd the Church of St. John Baptist here into a Mosque, and pretend to shew the Tombs of the Baptist, Elisha, and Abdias, in a Chappel under the Mosque. The District of Samaria was formerly very fruitful.

7. Sichem, or Sichar. Maundrel says it consists of two Streets, that lie parallel under Mount Gerizim; is populous, and the Seat of a Bassa. The Samaritans have still a Temple here, which they frequent at certain Seasons for Worship. Mr. Maundrel saw a Mosque in the Valley without the Town, built, as is supposed, over the Tomb of Joseph, whose Bones were interr'd here when the Israelites brought them from Egypt. Not far from hence he saw Jacob's Well, noted for the Conference betwixt our Saviour and the Woman of Samaria, John 4. There was formerly a large Church over it, now almost destroyed. Mr. Maundrel says the Well is cover'd with a Stone-Vault, is dug out of a firm Rock, about three Yards in diameter, and thirty five in depth, five of which he found full of Water. He supposes the neighbouring Valley to be the Field given by Jacob to his Son Joseph, John 4. 5. and therefore call'd Sichem's Field. There's a Stream runs through it, which makes it green and fertile.

8. Joppa, which we find in Scripture serv'd as a Sea-Port to Jerusalem, from whence it lay thirty five miles N. W. 'Twas formerly a famous Place, tho now for the most part desolate, the Haven quite spoil'd, the Houses only some matted Tents rais'd against the Rock, in which they have dug some Grottos. Pilgrims from Europe to the Holy Land commonly put in here, where there's a Lodging for them on the Shore, possess'd by Monks, who furnish the Pilgrims with Horses, Guides, and Passports, at fourteen Crowns a Man.

9. Lidda, where St. Peter cur'd Æneas of the Palsy, Acts 9. 34. lies about six miles and a half West from Joppa, was formerly Capital of a Toparchy, but now a small Village, with some Remains of St. George's Church, where Christians have a small Place for Worship. This Church was built by a King of England during the Holy Wars. The Situation of the Town is pleasant, in a woody Country.

V. DIARBECK.

UNDER this Title the Turks comprehend all their Dominions formerly known by the Name of Mesopotamia, Babylonia, Chaldea, and Assyria, as far as the Frontiers of Persia. The North part of this Country goes under the Name of Armenia Major, or Turcomania, part of which we have already describ'd.

Diarbeck, formerly Assyria, lies betwixt the Euphrates and Tigris, and is divided into Diarbeck proper, the antient Mesopotamia, Terak, formerly Chaldea, Babylonia, and Turkish Curdistan, formerly Proper Assyria.

Places of Note are, (1.) Diarbekir, on the Bank of the Tigris, and near the Head of that River, Lat. 37 ½ Long. 40, 44. an hundred forty eight miles N. E. from Aleppo. 'Tis one of the most populous and trading Towns of Asian Turkey. 'Twas antiently call'd Amida, and now Caramit; but the Turks generally call it Diarbekir. 'Tis encompass'd with a double Wall; and there are sixty two Towers on the outermost. It was repair'd by Constantine the Great, as appears still by some Latin and Greek Inscriptions. The Tigris forms a Half-Moon before the Town, and the Descent to that River is steep; but about a League above there's a Canal cut from the River, which waters the Town. And here all the red Maroquins are wash'd, which are the most beautiful in the East, and employ a great Number of the Inhabitants. Here's also a Manufacture of red Cotton Cloth. The neighbouring Soil is fruitful. Their Wine and Bread is excellent, and the Pigeons better than any in Europe. Here are about 20000 Christians, two Thirds of whom are Armenians, the rest Nestorians, a few Jacobites, and some Capuchins, who have no Monastery, but lodge in an Inn. The Bassa is one of the most considerable of the Turkish Empire, is able to bring 20000 Horse into the Field, and keeps always a good Body on foot against the Curds and Arabs, to prevent their plundering Merchants and Travellers. The River is always fordable here, except when swell'd by Rain or melted Snow, and then they pass it a League higher over a Stone Bridge. Here are large Inns on both sides the Tigris for the Caravans to and from Persia; and on the Road near it there's a Chappel with a Dome, where they pretend Job was buried. 'Tis much frequented by Pilgrims; and a Turkish Hermit has a Cell near it. There are three fair Piazzas in the Town, and a magnificent Mosque, formerly a Christian Church.

(2.) Van, a large City on the N. E. end of a Lake of the same Name, an hundred eighty miles N. E. of Diarbekir. 'Tis an impregnable Castle on a Mountain, with a Turkish Garison. The Lake is famous for a sort of Fish like Pilchards, which the Inhabitants take in great Numbers. They are much valued in Persia and Armenia, where they eat them to relish their Wine.

(3.) Betlis lies at the S. E. end of this Lake, about ninety miles N. E. from Diarbekir, betwixt two Mountains. 'Tis a strong Castle on the top of a Mountain; is the Seat of a Prince, who is independent both on the Turks and Persians, tho encompass'd by their Dominions. He is able to raise 25000 Horse, besides Foot: And the Town and Castle are so strong, and advantageously situated on a Mountain in a Pass, which ten Men may defend against a thousand, that both are oblig'd to keep fair with him; for 'tis in his power to hinder the Passage of the Caravans betwixt Aleppo and Tauris, the Road from Aleppo, within a Day's Journey of the Town, being cut out of the Rocks betwixt two Mountains, and broad enough only for a Camel to pass.

(4.) Ourfa, or Orfa, on the East-side of the Euphrates, ninety miles S. W. of Diarbekir. Tavernier makes it the Capital of Mesopotamia: The Inhabitants think it the Place where Abraham dwelt, and where the antient Edessa stood. They pretend to shew the Castle where King Abgarus liv'd when he sent a Message to our Saviour, and other Things which smell of the Legend, as the Turret of the Castle where Elijah liv'd; the Ruins of Nimrod's Throne, and Grottos where he quarter'd 10000 Soldiers, &c. The Town-Walls are ten miles round, of Free-stone, with Battlements and Towers; but the Houses ill built, and many of them ruinous. 'Tis the Seat of a Bassa, with a Garison to curb the Arabs. Here are many pleasant Gardens, water'd by artificial Channels, two Churches, and a handsome Monastery. The Water here is the best for dying yellow Cordovans, their chief Manufacture, and the neighbouring Country produces good Wine. Here's a Well which they pretend flow'd miraculously from the Place where Abraham was thrown head-long into a Furnace under Nimrod's Throne, and fills a neighbouring Canal; and without the South Gate of the City there's another, which they say cur'd Job and King Abgarus of their Leprosies, on which account it's much frequented for that Distemper. On the South-side there's a large ruinous Castle, with Ditches cut out of the Rock.

(5.) Telghiouran, about thirty three miles East from Ourfa, a large Town, but ruin'd by the Turks, and now inhabited by 100 Armenian Families, with a Turkish Garison and an Aga, who takes Tolls of the Caravans. The Harvest in this Country is in July, and the Wind about Mount Taurus so hot, that, Thevenot says, 'tis scarce to be endur'd.

(6.) Bir, on the East-side of the Euphrates, thirty miles South-West of Ourfa. It has two large old Castles, one of them the Seat of a Bassa, who has a Garison of 200 Foot, and 400 Horse. The Fortifications and Guns are mean. Here's a Ferry over the Euphrates, and Inns on both sides for Entertainment and Defence of the Caravans, and Apartments cut out of the Rock for such as have not room in the Inn on the other side. The Town has store of good Provisions, and particularly of excellent Bread, Wine, and Fish.

(7.) Merdin, West of the Tigris, about twenty five miles South of Diarbekir, a Town four or five miles round, with a Castle a mile in Circuit, on a Mountain, so strong, that the Turks think it impregnable, and say, Tamerlane could not take it after three years Siege. 'Tis govern'd by a Bassa, who has a Garison of 600 Men, and the Christians here have a Bishop.

(8.) Gezire, a Town on an Island in the Tigris, 72 miles South-East of Diarbekir. 'Tis the Seat of a Bey, has a fair Bridge of Boats, and is a Rendevouz for Merchants to buy Nut-Galls and Tobacco. The Country from hence to Tauris in Persia looks very poor, and has neither Towns nor Villages, but Houses scatter'd within Musquet-shot of one another; yet Tavernier says, there's no Country where more Money is laid out, and where People are more nice in examining its Weight and Goodness. Their Galls are the best of the kind. Their Tobacco is valu'd, and every House has a Vineyard, where they dry their Grapes, for they make no Wine.

(9.) Amadie, 75 miles East of Gezire, on a high rocky Mountain, that takes an hour to travel up. 'Tis a large City, the Seat of a Bey, who is able to raise 8000 Horse, and more Foot than any of his Neighbours. Here's a great Piazza full of Merchants Shops; the Assyrians bring Nut-Galls and Tobacco hither to sell.

(10.) Carasara, a large Town, 72 miles West from Gezire, formerly inhabited by Christians, as appears by the Ruins of eight or nine Churches, and other noble Remains, with Rooms and Apartments cut out of the neighbouring Rocks, now become Shelters for Robbers, who plunder Caravans.

(11.) Mosul, 72 miles East from Carasara, on the West-side of the Tigris, near the Ruins of antient Nineveh, for which some Authors have have miſtaken it. The Town makes a great Show without by its Walls and Battlements; 'tis about a League round. Here's a Stone Caſtle of an oval Figure, with Walls of three fathom high toward the River, and a Ditch on the Land-ſide. 'Tis the Reſidence of a Baſſa, who commands 3000 Horſe. The Town is ruinous, but noted for a great Concourſe of Merchants, who bring Gall-Nuts, &c. from Curdiſtan, and ſet up their Tents in the Market-Place. Here are ſome Greeks, Armenians, Neſtorians, and Maronites, and there were ſome Capuchins; but they were oblig'd to quit the Place, becauſe the Baſſa tax'd them heavily. Here's a Bridge of 30 Boats to an Iſland in the River, from whence there's a Cauſeway to the other Shore, and when the River overflows they take down the Bridge. The Heat is exceſſive in Summer, but they have good Melons and other cooling Fruits. Thevenot ſays, there's a dangerous Wind call'd Samiel, which reigns by Land from this Place to Surat, ſuppos'd to be the Eaſt Winds mention'd by Job. It is mix'd with Streaks of Fire, as ſmall as Hair, which kill thoſe who breathe it; ſo that they fall inſtantly dead, or if they have time to ſpeak, cry out that they burn within. When they are lifted up, they are as black as a Coal, and the Fleſh comes from their Bones; ſuch as perceive it coming, frequently eſcape, by falling with their Faces flat to the Ground. He ſuppoſes it to proceed from ſulphureous Exhalations, that kindle by being toſs'd in the Wind; 'tis chiefly felt on the Banks of the River, but not on the Water, thoſe inflam'd Vapours being diſpers'd by the Breezes, or moiſt Air that riſes from the River. The Tigris is ſo full of blind Rocks, that they uſe a peculiar ſort of Boats here to carry Paſſengers and Goods; they tie together with Ropes a number of Borachios, or large Bladders of Goats-Skin, into which they blow Wind by Reeds; upon theſe they faſten Hurdles of Poles, with Withies, over them they raiſe four Benches of Poles, two foot and a half high, and the like diſtance from one another; over theſe Benches they lay other Hurdles, on which they place the Goods and Paſſengers, and leave a Border round them of two or three foot broad, they are in the whole about four Fathom long and two broad, and five or ſix foot high: two Watermen row them, and one wets the Borachios every half quarter of an hour, otherwiſe they ſquat and ſink. They have neither Maſt, Sail, Stem, nor Stern, ſo that they row any way, but commonly ſide-ways.

(12.) Niniveh. The Ruins of this once famous City lie on the ſide of the Tigris, over againſt Moſul. The Largeneſs of it may be conjectur'd from Jonah 4. 11. where 'tis ſaid there were 120000 Perſons that knew not their right hand from their left, which muſt needs be underſtood of Infants. Strabo ſays, it was much larger than Babylon, had many Fields, Gardens, &c. within the Walls: and Diodorus Siculus makes it 480 Stadia in Compaſs. The Walls were ſaid to be 100 foot high, and ſo broad, that three Carts might go on them a-breaſt. There were 1150 Turrets 200 foot high each upon the Walls, ſo that it was thought impregnable. Sardanapalus held it out three years againſt the Medes, &c. till an Inundation of the River, which threw down twenty Furlongs of the Wall, did ſo terrify this effeminate Prince, that he burnt himſelf and his Treaſures in the midſt of his Strumpets, and the Town at laſt was entirely deſtroy'd by the Medes, according to the Prophecy of Nahum, ch. 3. Tavernier ſays, that the Ruins are ſtill to be ſeen for above a League on the Eaſt-ſide of the Tigris, with many Vaults and Caverns, and a Moſque on a Hill, where the Turks pretend Jonah was bury'd. They cover his ſuppos'd Tomb with a rich Carpet, keep Tapers and Lamps always burning in the Moſque, with two Prieſts continually reading the Alcoran; and ſuffer no Chriſtians to enter the Place without Money, and pulling off their Shoes.

Thevenot takes notice of the following remarkable Places and Things betwixt this Place and Bagdat: 1. Several Hills of Sulphur, where the Inhabitants dig that Mineral, which they purify and melt into Canes. He ſuppoſes that the dangerous Wind Samiel has its deſtructive Quality from the Vapours which riſe out of thoſe Hills, and ſays, the Smell of the Sulphur is very offenſive to thoſe who go by Water. 2. Alihamam, a Village on the Meſopotamian Shore, a day's Journey by Land from Moſul, much frequented for its hot ſulphureous Baths, that are good againſt Leproſies, &c. 3. Aſſigner, where there's a Cataract over the Foundations of an antient Bridge, ſuppos'd to be built by Nimrod. Paſſengers are oblig'd to land before they come to this Place, that the Boats may more eaſily ſhoot it; and are forc'd to arm themſelves againſt the Arabs and Lions, till they embark again. Here are alſo the Ruins of an old Caſtle, ſaid to be built by Nimrod, with many high Hills of yellow Sulphur, which ſmell ſtrong. Near this Place the Zarb, a great River, which comes from the Mountains of Curdiſtan, falls into the Tigris, and on the Meſopotamian ſide are Woods of Tamariſk and Liquorice. They infuſe the latter in their Water, which makes it wholeſome, and prevents the exceſſive Sweats and Bliſters, which it otherwiſe occaſions to thoſe who drink it. They alſo mix it with pounded Sumack, a Grain like Hempſeed, which makes the Water red, cool, and wholeſome; and if mix'd with a little Salt, 'tis the more pleaſant. They alſo uſe the Sumack in Broth for the bloody Flux. 4. Altendachy, a Hill from whence the Arabs dig Gold. Near this Place begin the Mountains of Cordaſſi, mention'd by Curtius, and ſuppos'd to reach to the Indies. Here the Tigris ſwells to a prodigious height in the Spring, overflows the Country, and looks like a Sea. 5. Old Bagdat, where he went aſhore, but he and the Company were quickly forc'd on board, for fear of the Wind Samiel, the Air being as hot as Fire. Theſe Parts are mightily infeſted by Lions, Jackals, and Caracoulacks, which reſemble large Cats, but have black Ears half a foot long. The Lions here frequently ſwim in the River, and ſnatch Men out of the Boats, which oblig'd him and his Company to fire conſtantly, when they came near thoſe Places; yet the Arabs are ſo little afraid of thoſe Lions, that they purſue them with Sticks. 6. Mendeli, the fartheſt Town which the Turks have on this ſide towards Perſia: 'Tis a ſmall Place, encompaſs'd with Palm-Trees, and defended by a Caſtle and Towers built of Mud-wall. The Road betwixt this Place and Bagdat is good in Summer, but infeſted by Robbers.

(13.) Bagdat, Long. 47 ½. Lat. 33 ¼. lies about 165 miles South-Eaſt from Moſul, on the Eaſt-ſide of the Tigris. 'Tis commonly miſtaken for Babylon, tho Tavernier ſays, it lies at a great diſtance from the Ruins of that City. The Walls of this Town are of Brick, and have large Towers like Baſtions, on which they had ſome ſorry Cannon. The Town is, according to Thevenot, three Leagues round, has three Gates on the Landſide, and one towards the River. Here's a Bridge of 53 Boats, about the breadth of a Boat from one another. They have a large Caſtle from one of the Gates to the River, encompaſs'd with a ſingle Wall, and adorn'd with little Towers, on which were about 150 Cannon without Carriages. The Moat is narrow and ſhallow, and they have no Draw-bridge before the Gates. The Gariſon in his time was 900 Foot, 60 Gunners, and 4000 Horſe. The Governor is generally a Baſſa or Vizier, has 700 Horſe under his own Command, the reſt of the Troops being under their own Agas. Thevenot makes the Inhabitants about 15000, and ſays, there's a Suburb on the other ſide the River, at the end of the Bridge, which they undo every night to prevent a Surprize. There are many empty Spaces within the Walls. The Turkiſh Gariſon is very licentious, and ſo mutinous, that the Officers dare ſcarce puniſh them. This occaſions the Grand Signior to keep a great many Chriſtians in Pay, for Defence of the Town and neighbouring Country. It was betray'd to the Turks in 1638. by the Gariſon, who were ſo diſguſted at the depoſing of their old Governor, and the King of Perſia's ſending a Favourite in his ſtead, that juſt as the Turks were preparing to ſtorm, they ſurrendred the Town, on condition of marching out with Bag and Baggage; but, contrary to Agreement, were murder'd. The Civil Government is in the hands of a Cadi, who alſo acts the part of a Mufti, and has a Treaſurer under him for the Revenue. Here are only five Moſques, two of them very well built; and ten Inns, of which only two are good, the Houſes are mean; but the Bazar is beautiful, arch'd, and water'd four times a day at the publick Charge, for the Merchants could not otherwiſe endure the Heat, which is ſo great, that they all ſleep by Night on their Terraſſes. They have ſtill a conſiderable Trade, but much ſhort of what it was in the time of the Perſians, becauſe the Turks murder'd the rich Merchants when the Town was ſurrender'd. 'Tis much frequented by Pilgrims of the Sect of Haly, who, they ſay, liv'd here; and there's a Sect of Mahometans call'd Hereticks, who will ſcarce eat or drink with other Mahometans, Jews, or Chriſtians, and reckon themſelves polluted if they do. When the Grand Signior was here in 1639. one of thoſe Fellows, a Water-Carrier, refus'd Water to a Jew, and gave him ill Language; upon which the Cadi order'd the Fellow to be baſtinado'd, made him drink Water out of the ſame Cup with the Jew, and told him, that Jews and Chriſtians were God's Creatures as well as Mahometans: which has pretty well cur'd them of their Superſtition. The Women of this ſort, when their Husbands die, pull off their own Headclothes, diſhevel their Hair, dawb their Faces with Soot, and friſk about in a ridiculous manner. The other Females outvie them in apiſh Tricks, beat their Faces, dance to the Beat of Drums, and then ſet up mournful Cries. Poor People attend the Corps to the Grave with Banners, and Creſcents at the ends of Sticks, and ſing diſmal Songs. Women muſt not go abroad here but to Sepulchres on Thurſdays, when they pray for the Dead; and married Women are allow'd to go to Baths, to waſh and perfume themſelves on Wedneſday Mornings, becauſe Husbands, by their Law, muſt bed with their lawful Wives on Thurſday or Friday Night. They are ſometimes allow'd to viſit their Relations, but ſo muffled up, that none can know them in the Street. The Perſian Women always go abroad on horſeback; and the Courtezans, to diſtinguiſh themſelves from the reſt, put their Feet in the Stirrups, whereas the others put them only in the Stirrup-Leathers. They are richly clad, after their manner, and wear Jewels about their Necks, Wriſts, and hang them like Bracelets about their Faces. The Arabian Women wear large hollow Rings thro the Griſtle betwixt their Noſtrils, and make a black Circle round their Eyes, which they fancy preſerves them from the Heat of the Sun. Moſt of the Chriſtians here are Neſtorians, and allow'd a Church. The Armenians and Jacobites have none, but worſhip with the Capuchins. The Jews come hither in Pilgrimage to the Sepulchre of Ezekiel, who they ſay was bury'd about a Day's Journey from hence; and the Armenians go in Devotion to the Chappels of St. Elias, Simon, and Jude, who they ſay were martyred here. The Inhabitants generally burn Oil of Naphta inſtead of Candles. Thevenot takes notice of a conſiderable Miſtake in ſome Maps, which place this Town a great way below the Conflux of the Euphrates and Tigris; whereas thoſe Rivers don't join till ten or twelve Days Journey below it: but in Winter, when they overflow the Country, they ſeem to join near it. There are ſeveral Canals betwixt thoſe Rivers, below the Town.

(14.) Babylon, formerly the Metropolis of this Country, and the largeſt, oldeſt, and moſt famous Town in the World, is now ſo much ruin'd, according to Scripture-Prophecy, for the Wickedneſs of the Inhabitants, that Geographers cannot agree where its Ruins lie. We paſs over the romantick Accounts given by the Antients of the Tower and City, and refer to the Scripture for the trueſt Account of them. When Alexander the Great took it, 'tis ſaid he found 200000 Talents of Gold here, and deſign'd to have made it the Seat of his Empire, but was poiſon'd in a Debauch. Herbert ſays, that the Ruins of Seleucia and Cteſiphon in the Neighbourhood confound Travellers, and are frequently miſtaken for the Ruins of Babylon. Hackluyt ſays, he ſaw the Remains of the Tower, which at a diſtance reſembled a great Mountain. The Ruins, then ſtanding, were a quarter of a mile in Compaſs, built with Sun-dry'd Bricks, half a yard thick, and three quarters of a yard long each; and the Building as high as the Stone-work of St. Paul's Steeple in his time: But ſome think theſe to be rather the Ruins of Seleucia, becauſe they lay on the Tigris, whereas Babylon lay on the Euphrates. Tavernier ſays, that at the dividing of the Tigris, a little below Bagdat, there are the Ruins of a City, which the Chronicles of the Country ſay was Old Babylon; that ſome of the Walls were then ſtanding, and ſo thick, that ſix Coaches might go on them a-breaſt; that in a wide Plain there was a vaſt Heap of Ruins, which the Vulgar thought to be Nimrod's Tower; but Rauwolf, a German Phyſician, who ſaw its Ruins in 1574, ſays, they lie near a ſmall Village on the Euphrates, a day and half's Journey from Bagdat. The adjacent Lands are ſo deſolate and barren, that one would doubt of its antient Fertility, and the Largeneſs of the City, did not the vaſt Ruins, ſtill to be ſeen, baniſh all Cauſe of Suſpicion. He ſaw the Arches of a Bridge over the River, which is half a mile broad, and very deep there; and thoſe Arches were of Brick, wonderfully compacted. A quarter of a mile below the Village he ſaw the Ruins of a Caſtle, and beyond that the Ruins of the famous Tower, then a Receptacle for Serpents, and other venomous Creatures; among which there were dangerous Lizzards with three Heads. All over thoſe Plains there were Ruins of great high Buildings and arch'd Towers, of admirable Architecture. Among others there was one call'd Daniel's Tower, which was then inhabited, and from whence the Ruins of the vaſt City might be ſeen. All this is a viſible Accompliſhment of the Prophecy of Jeremiah, ch. 50. and 51. v. 37. That Babylon ſhould become Heaps, a Dwelling-Place for Dragons, an Aſtoniſhment and a Hiſſing, without an Inhabitant. And, ver. 43. Her Cities are a Deſolation, a dry Land, and a Wilderneſs, wherein no Man dwelleth.

VI. BASSORA,

IS a Kingdom, or Baſſaſhip, and that which is call'd Terack Proper. The Capital is of the ſame Name, Lat. 31. Long. 49. 195 miles South-Eaſt from Bagdat, below the Conflux of the Euphrates and Tigris, near the North-Weſt end of the Gulph of Baſſora or Perſia. Thevenot ſays, the great Barks that come by Water from Bagdat, take uſually fifteen or ſixteen Days, becauſe of the Turnings of the River, and the Difficulty of Paſſage; and 50 or 80 Days upwards againſt the Stream: and it is about 12 Days Journey by Land. 'Tis encompaſs'd with earthen Walls, about ſix Leagues round, but there are many empty Spaces within. It has only two Gates, one of them towards Bagdat. There's a Canal from the River thro the Town. The adjacent Territory is very fruitful, being twice a-day moiſten'd by the Tide, which runs four Days Journey above the Town, and riſes a Fathom and half at the City; but 'tis not ſalt, tho the Soil is; for in ſome Places where they dig two Fathom deep, they find Salt-water. Here are more Palm-Trees in the adjacent Country than any where elſe. Here's plenty of Pot-Herbs, Wall-Fruit, Grapes, Melons, Pomegranats, and Lemons, but none of them keep long, the Seaſon being then moiſt and hot. The Harbour is good and ſafe, capable of the greateſt Fleets, lies about 15 Leagues from the Sea, and, Thevenot ſays, the Needle declines here about thirteen Degrees and an half, from North to Weſt. It lies conveniently for Commerce with moſt Parts of the World. European Goods are eaſily tranſported from Aleppo to Bir, and from thence down the Euphrates hither; thoſe of Perſia, by the Ports of Comron and Congo, and thoſe of Arabia and the Indies by the Perſian Gulph. 'Tis much frequented by Ships with Indian Commodities ſince the Decay of Ormus, but they muſt obſerve the proper Monſons for going out and coming in. During the four Months of the Monſon, the Town is crouded with foreign Merchants. In July, Auguſt, and September, the Heat is almoſt inſupportable, eſpecially during a South-Weſt Wind; ſo that the People then lie upon their Terraſſes. Tavernier ſays, that in July 1665, 4000 People were kill'd there by the Wind Samiel in three Weeks time. In the hot Seaſon they have Water continually at their Mouths, but 'tis not wholeſome, becauſe they don't clean their Canal. They are then troubled with Swellings, which reſemble Plague-Sores, but few die of them. They are aſcrib'd to the bad Water, and their eating ſo many Dates. From the end of October till Jan. the Evenings and Mornings are very cold. Prodigious Numbers of Locuſts fly by this Place four times a year, and are carry'd by Winds to the Deſarts where they die, otherwiſe Chaldea would be laid waſte. The Inhabitants are not allow'd to make Wine or Brandy, tho they have plenty of Grapes. This City in general is well built, and has ſeveral publick Squares. Here is a large Market-Houſe before the Baſſa's Palace, where there are Culverins mounted for its Defence. Here are alſo many large Bazars where Goods are ſold; great Quantities of Dates and ready Money are tranſported hence to the Indies. There's a Canal from the City to the River half a League long, which bears Veſſels of 150 Tun, and is commanded by a Port at the mouth of it. The Country is ſo low, that were it not for a ſtrong Wall of Free Stone, that runs along the Shore for a League, the Sea would overflow the Country. The Turks took this City from the Arabs above an hundred years ago, and it has been ſince govern'd by a Baſſa, who is in a manner hereditary; for he always takes care to obtain the Reverſion for his Son by Preſents, pays only one thouſand Pound per ann. beſides Preſents to the Great Courtiers. He has power of making Leagues with Foreigners; and from his Dominions, and the Cuſtoms here, which are four per cent. and nine Pence on every Date-Tree, with which the Country is cover'd for thirty Leagues, he has 800000 Piaſters per annum. He preſerves ſo much Liberty and good Order for the ſake of Trade, that People may walk the Streets all night without Danger. The Date-Trees are planted by digging Holes in the Ground, where they put a quantity of Date-Nuts in form of a Pyramid, and cover them with Earth, from whence riſes a Palm-Tree. The Natives diſtinguiſh them into Male and Female, and ſay the latter will bear no Fruit, except the Male be planted near them; and others ſay, that except they take a Flower from the Male in Bloſſom, and put it into the Heart of the Female, a little above the Stem, the Fruit will fall off before it be ripe. The Baſſa has a great Sum annually for guarding the Perſian Pilgrims to and from Mecca. The Chriſtians here are Jacobites, Neſtorians, and thoſe of St. John, call'd alſo Sabæans, who, Thevenot ſays, are moſt numerous, and are more Heathens than Chriſtians. They pretend to derive their Religion from John the Baptiſt, and have many fantaſtick Ceremonies and Opinions, which Thevenot and Tavernier recount at large, but we can't inſiſt upon them. Moſt of thoſe People are Mechanicks, and few of them rich. There were 25000 Families of them in this City and Country, but many of them retir'd to Perſia, the Turks having treated them cruelly, becauſe they held that every one but themſelves would be damned.

VII. ARABIA,

REACHES from North Lat. 10½ to 36; ſo that from South to North 'tis above 1500 miles. It is betwixt Long. 35 and 60; and the greateſt Breadth, from Jodda on the Weſt to Cape Roſelgate on the Eaſt, is about 900 Miles. But 'tis much contracted in the Middle and at both Ends, eſpecially on the North, where it runs in a narrow Point betwixt the Holy Land, Syria, and Diarbeck. It lies betwixt the 5th and 14th Climates. Their longeſt Day in the South is 14 Hours 30 Minutes, and in the North 18 Hours and a half.

Tho it be reckon'd to the Turkiſh Empire, it is more for Protection than Dependance, the Turks having little in poſſeſſion but the North Parts. The Cherif of Mecca, reckon'd a Deſcendant of Mahomet, has very large Dominions; and there are many other Princes in this Country who reckon themſelves independent. It has Aſia Minor on the North, the Arabian or Great Indian Sea on the South, the Red Sea on the Weſt, and the Perſian Gulph on the Eaſt.

The whole is commonly divided by Geographers into Rocky, Deſart, and Happy Arabia, and makes the largeſt Peninſula of the known World. The Air in general is very hot, the Country full of Sands, Deſarts, and Mountains, has few Rivers or Fountains, and it ſeldom rains here; ſo that were it not for plentiful Dews, the Natives could not ſubſiſt. The Country is beſt inhabited on the Coaſts; and the Trading People hold moſt of their Markets by Night, becauſe of the Heat.

Authors differ about the Origin of the Name and People: Some derive the Name from the Hebrew Word Harabi, a Robber or Thief, a Practice theſe People have always been guilty of. To this St. Jerom thinks the Prophet alludes, Jer. 3. 2. In the Ways thou haſt ſet for them, as an Arabian in the Wilderneſs. Others derive it from the Hebrew Ereb, and Arabem, a mix'd Multitude: So that their Name agrees to their Character both ways. Bochart derives thoſe of Arabia Fœlix from Joctan the Son of Shem, and the reſt from Chuſh the Son of Cham. But no doubt they have been mix'd with other People ſince, as appears by Jer. 25. 24. where they are call'd the mingled People that dwell in the Deſart. 'Tis alſo well known they were mix'd with Saracens, the Etymology of whoſe Name includes both a Thief and a Deſart. They were alſo mix'd with thoſe People whom the Iſraelites drove from the Land of Canaan, and encounter'd in their Paſſage to it. But tho they were very antient, they ſeem never to have made any great Figure till the Declenſion of the Roman Empire, when Heraclius Emperor of the Eaſt made uſe of them againſt the Perſians, and taught them Military Diſcipline; and they not thinking themſelves enough rewarded for their Service, ſurpriz'd Damaſcus, which they made the Seat of their Government five hundred Years, fell in with Mahomet's Doctrine, as beſt ſuited to their licentious way of living, and ſubdued Syria, Phœnicia, and Paleſtine. They afterwards eſtabliſh'd four other conſiderable Empires: The firſt at Mecca and Medina, which extended over all Arabia. The ſecond at Bagdat, which commanded Meſopotamia, Chaldea, Parthia, much of Perſia, and Cilicia: The third in Egypt: And the fourth and largeſt in Barbary, including all the Coaſt of Africa, as far as the Straits of Gibraltar; and from that Country they ſubdued Spain. During their greateſt Proſperity they were invaded in Aſia Minor by the Turks, and after ſeveral Battels came to an Alliance. The Turks embrac'd Mahometaniſm as agreeable to their vicious Inclinations; and at laſt, by the juſt Judgment of God, ſubdued the Saracens or Arabians, depriv'd them of all their Empires, but what they retain in Africa and in ſome Parts of Arabia. Thoſe of Arabia Fœlix are curb'd by the Turkiſh Gallies on the Red Sea: The reſt are drove to the Mountains of Syria and Idumea, and the Deſarts of Lybia and Thebais, where they live chiefly by plundering the neighbouring Countries and Caravans. The Baſſas of Syria and Egypt do what they can to ſuppreſs them, and cut off off such as fall into their hands; but Multitudes of them still subsist by retiring to the Mountains and Desarts, where no Army can reach them. Those in the Desarts of Syria live chiefly by making and selling Pot-Ashes, and are Mahometans, of the Sect of Abulbazar, Mahomet's Son-in-Law. The Persians supply them with Powder and Fire-Arms, to annoy the Turks, who forbid selling them any on pain of Death. Those in the Desarts about Egypt are the most miserable, except a few to whom the Turks give Lands on the Frontiers, that they may defend them against the rest.

Such as live in Towns apply themselves to Trade and Sciences, wherein they succeed well, as appears by their antient Performances in Physick, Philosophy, and chiefly in Astronomy and the Mathematicks. The Figures we use in Arithmetick are ascrib'd to their Invention; and the Portugueze, who traded with them, say, that several of their Princes have fine Libraries, with many Latin and Greek Authors compleat, of which we have only Fragments. The wandring Arabs are of a middling Size, nimble, fierce, good Horsemen and Archers, have swift Horses and Dromedaries, think themselves the noblest Race of Mankind, avoid mixing with others, call those who live in Towns Moors, i. e. Idle Cowards, and glory in the Name of Saracens, which signifies Plunderers. The Grand Signior keeps 30000 Men to defend the Pilgrims, who go to Mecca and Medina, and the Caravans, against them, and gives considerable Presents every Year to the Cherif of Mecca, the greatest of the Independent Arabian Princes, for that end.

Their Language is Arabick, derived from the Hebrew, and thought very necessary for understanding the Old Testament. They are fond of it, fancy it to be the Language spoke in Paradise; and 'tis the Learned Language wherever Mahometanism prevails, because they allow the Alcoran to be read in no other. We shall give the Description of the particular Countries and People in their proper Places.

ARABIA PETRÆA, or the ROCKY,

IS the N. W. Corner of the Country. Authors differ about its Extent; but Maps represent it now as having the Holy Land on the North, the Red-Sea on the South part of that Sea, and the Isthmus of Suez or Egypt on the West, and Desart Arabia on the East, which make it 180 miles South and North, and 150 East and West. It includes the antient Idumea on the North, and some extend it a good way into the Dominions of Mecca on the South. 'Tis for most part desart, and chiefly noted for the Encampments of the Israelites forty Years after their coming out of Egypt; so that the best Account of its antient State is to be had from that part of the sacred History. 'Tis now under the Turkish Beglerbey of Cairo. Places of note are, 1. Harach, or Horac, the Remains of Petra, once its Capital, which some say gave Name to the Country, tho the Latin Name is certainly derived from its Rocks. Authors differ about the Situation of Petra, but that now call'd Harach, or Horac, suppos'd to be its Remains, lies on the Isthmus near the Frontiers of Egypt, Lat. 31. near Long. 35. an hundred and five miles N. E. from Cairo in Egypt, and an hundred and eleven S. W. of Jerusalem. 'Tis but a small Place situate on a Rock, and the See of an Archbishop, Suffragan to the Patriarch of Jerusalem. 2. Tor, or El Torre, an hundred and fifty miles South from Harach, on the most southerly part of the Country, betwixt two Bays of the Red-Sea. 'Tis an open Town with a Castle, and a good Harbour, has about four hundred Houses; is inhabited by some Christian Merchants, Jews and Moors. Goods are unloaded here to be carried by Land to Suez on the Isthmus, an hundred and twenty miles N. W. at the end of the West Gulph, which is not navigable by large Vessels any further than Tor, because of Rocks. The Water here being nitrous and salt, and the adjacent Country desart, and of difficult Access, occasions the Town to be ill inhabited. The Turks have an Aga and Garison here, and the Greeks a Monastery of thirty Monks, very poor, who gather Stones that resemble Mushrooms, Shrubs and Branches of white Coral, with pretty Shells of different sorts, that they sell to Travellers, their Monastery being mostly built of such. Some think that the Israelites passed the Red-Sea near this Town.

A DESCRIPTION by Modern Travellers, &c. of the Remarkable Places in the Wildernesses of this Country, mentioned in Scripture.

1. PIHAHIROTH, the Pass where Pharaoh thought to have surpriz'd the Children of Israel, near the Red-Sea, Exod. 14. is describ'd by Monconys, who was on the Place, thus: The Tops of the Mountains on each side the Pass are cover'd with large black Rocks, eat by the Air which comes from the Sea; and on the Flanks of one of 'em there was a grey-colour'd soft Earth, in which were Caves made by the Force of the Winds; and the volatile Salts, brought thither by those Winds, form in that Earth vast Numbers of Stones like Snails, with a Crust that shines like Chrystal, and consists of small Grains. The Mountains are steep and high on both sides, the Pass betwixt them thirty or forty Paces broad. At the end of those Mountains there's a vast Plain that reaches to the Sea, of which there's a noble Prospect when one comes three hundred Paces within the Mountains. The Pass is two Leagues long, and the Plain at the end to the Sea, is about two broad. The Inhabitants say, the Sea is always boisterous where Pharaoh and his Host were drown'd; and Monconys says, 'tis about three quarters of a League broad.

2. Marah, noted for the bitter Waters which made the Israelites murmur, till they were sweeten'd by a Miracle, Exod. 15. 24, 25. Coppin says, it lies twenty miles East from Suez, and about half a League from the Bank of the Red-Sea. The Wells are seven or eight, at a small distance from one another. The Ground where they rise is somewhat higher than that about it. They bubble up with large Springs, and the Streams which run from them are lost in the Sand. Abundance of Sena and Colloquintida grow near them. The Water is nitrous and salt, and, Monconys adds, hot and ill-tasted. Travellers are forc'd to make use of it, because there's no other within two Days Journey. About that distance from hence, Monconys says, he came to a pleasant Fountain and Stream in a Valley, where the Water was very good, and their Camels drank of it, having had no other for two and twenty Days. Abundance of Partridges and other Fowls came to drink of that Water. The Arabians who lodge in the neighbouring Caves, come frequently arm'd to hinder Travellers from watering there unless they pay for it, or be strong enough to repulse them. The adjacent Country is mountainous and rocky, and produces wild Caper-Trees, whose Fruit is yellow, of the Size of small Eggs, and full of Grains, which taste like Mustard. The Arabians eat them raw, or steep'd in Vinegar, and value them highly. The Heat is so violent here, that farther within Land their Water, tho salt, quickly spoils; and they mix it with Vinegar before they can drink it.

3. Elim, where the Israelites encamp'd near twelve Wells and seventy Palm-Trees, Exod. 15. 27. Coppin says, 'tis about half a League from Tor. The Wells, he says, abound with Water, but salt, hot, and unpleasant; yet Vessels which land there are oblig'd to use it, because there's no other in a great way. There are abundance of Palm-Trees in the Neighbourhood; and the Greeks of the neighbouring Monastery reap great Profit from the Dates, which are the best in the Country. Coppin says, in his Journey from Marah to Mount Sinai he saw great Flocks of large Ostriches, who tho they cou'd not fly, yet ran so fast, fluttering with their Wings, that a Horse can't over-take them. They have Heads, Necks, and Bunches on their Backs like Camels; from whence the Turks name them Camel-Birds. They throw Stones backwards with their Feet upon those who pursue them. Tho they be very swift they soon tire, when the Arabs ride up to them full speed, cut a Hole in their Throats, and tie their Necks strait under the Hole: Then three or four of them toss the Ostrich from side to side for a time, untie its Throat, and there issues from the Hole a great deal of Matter like Butter, which they reckon good Food, but laxative.

Monconys, in his way from Marah to Mount Sinai, found many fine Valleys, with abundance of small transparent Flint-Stones of several beautiful Colours, and saw great Numbers of huge Serpents. The Heat is excessive here, and the Mountains full of black Veins that resemble Coal. The Valleys abound with Cassia-Trees, which produce Frankincense. They are disagreeable to the Sight, have few and small Leaves, but Branches full of large Prickles like Thorns; so that they look like wither'd Bushes. The Arabs feed their Camels among those Mountains; and live on their Milk during the Summer. Among those Mountains there are Trees which bear a sort of Wool like Cotton, but not so fine, nor white; and others that have Leaves and Flowers of a fine Scent, which the Arabs give to their Cattel. Among those Mountains there are several Descents in the Roads, full of great Stones, which make the Ways dangerous. On the Tops of the Mountains there are several fine Plains, and in their Sides many Caves, where the Arabs lay up Provisions for themselves and their Camels; which no others meddle with but in case of necessity, so that they bear it patiently. The Wilderness of Sinai is higher than the rest of the Country, and encompass'd with Rocks and Hills for ten or twelve miles. The Road up to this Desert is cut out of the Rocks like Stairs. Passengers walk it on foot, because it is troublesome to the Camels. Coppin found two Greek Monasteries here, and several Veins of Chrystalline Rocks. He makes this Wilderness 260 miles from Cairo, but our Maps about 150. Towards the North-side of the Plain lie the Mountains Horeb and Sinai: The latter is highest, and now call'd the Mountain of St. Catherine. These Mountains are very steep and high, but not proportionably broad. There are Ways cut up to the top of them, but the Ascent difficult. At the foot of Mount Horeb there's a Greek Monastery call'd St. Saviour, where Pilgrims lodge. It stands at the end of a large green Plain, and is suppos'd to be the Place where Moses kept his Father-in-Law's Flock, and saw the Burning-Bush, Exod. 3. It is a large Monastery, but irregular; consists of several Courts: And they have a Church of fine Workmanship, and Gilding within; and the Pavement of Marble, artfully laid in form of Roses. The Vestments and Plate are very rich. The Monks are kept under severe Discipline, and oblig'd to work, except when at Devotion. An Archbishop resides here, and has wonderful rich Vestments, resembling those of the Jewish High Priests, which were presented to the Monastery by a Czar of Muscovy. Here's a great number of Silver Lamps, and an Altar of white Marble, with a Table of the same, over the Place where 'tis suppos'd Moses saw the Burning-Bush. The great Altar near St. Catherine's Shrine is also of white Marble of curious Workmanship, with Foliage in Basso Relievo, after the antique Manner, and cover'd with Cloth of Gold. This Convent is said to have been built by the Emperor Justinian. They have a separate Altar for Roman Catholicks who travel this way, but don't communicate with them. Their Water comes from a Fountain in Mount Horeb. Their Garden is large, well kept, produces all sorts of Fruit proper to the Climate, as Peaches, Figs, Grapes, Almonds, Dates, &c. Thevenot says, there are 14000 Steps from this Monastery to the Top of the Mountain. He adds, that the Impostor Mahomet was Camel-driver to this Monastery; and being weary one day with fetching in their Provisions, he fell asleep before the Gate, when an Eagle came and hover'd a long time over his Head. The Abbot perceiving it, ask'd Mahomet when he waked whether he wou'd be kind to them when he became a great Lord. Mahomet replied, he was never like to be one. But the Abbot insisting upon his Answer, he said he would do them what Good he was able. The Abbot desir'd it under his Hand; but Mahomet not knowing how to write, dipp'd his Hand in Ink, laid it upon a clean Sheet of Paper, and gave it the Abbot as a Sign of his Promise. He confirm'd it when he came to his Grandeur, but on condition that the Monks should give Victuals to the neighbouring Arabs. They did so for a great while, and let down Bread to them in the Basket with which they took up Pilgrims: But the Arabs coming sometimes four hundred in a Day, and having frequently taken away their Corn as coming to the Monastery, the Greeks left it, and retir'd to that of Tor.

The

The Reader is left to his own Judgment as to this Legend. Monconys, who was here in 1647, says, the Greeks were then in possession of it; that Solyman, Emperor of the Turks, took away the Paper which Mahomet had daub'd with his Hand, left them a Copy of the Privileges given them, and confirm'd them; that over the great Gate of the Convent there's a Safe-guard in Arabick, which they say was given them by Mahomet, engrav'd upon Marble, to which the Arabs pay a mighty respect. At a considerable distance in the same Plain there's a Rock near that call'd the Monastery of the forty Martyrs, supposed to be that which Moses brought Water from by Miracle. 'Tis mention'd by Coppin, Thevenot, and Monconys, who say there are a great many Holes in it, and the Marks of the Places where the Water run down on both sides. Monconys says, it was the most remarkable Thing he saw, and what satisfy'd his Curiosity most; and that there are no other Rocks nor Stones near it. He went up to the Tops of those Mountains, where he saw the Ruins of many Hermitages, and a hollow Rock, where they suppos'd Moses staid during the forty Days of his abode in the Mount, and receiv'd the Law. There's a large Prospect from hence of the Red-Sea and neighbouring Country. In the neighbouring Plain he saw the Place where they say Corah, Dathan, and Abiram were swallow'd up, a great Stone upon which the Brazen Serpent was erected, and two hollow ones suppos'd to be the Mold in which Aaron cast the Golden Calf, and abundance of Hillocks, where they think the Men were buried that Moses ordered to be slain for worshipping that Idol. This shews how little credit is to be given to the Legends of Monks; for the Place where Corah and his Companions were swallow'd up was near Mount Hormah, on the Border of the Amalekites, Numb. 14. 45. compar'd with Numb. 16. and the Brazen Serpent was set up near Mount Hor, Numb. 21. 3, 4, & 8. and the Rock which Moses fetch'd the Water from lay in the Desart of Zin, Numb. 20. which all lay at a great distance from Sinai.

Thevenot says, the Arabs who live in these Wildernesses wear Drawers, with Vests of Sheep-skin, and turn the Wool outward in hot Weather. The Women are very ill clad, and cover their Faces with a Linen Cloth, with Holes for their Eyes. Their Tents are made of Goats-skin, and very ugly. Their chief Dainty is a sort of Bunns bak'd on Embers, and mix'd with a little Butter and Honey. The Desarts are possess'd by Tribes, and govern'd each by a great Scheik, or Captain who presides over the Captains of Families, that administer Justice, and punish by Death, or otherwise, as the Crime deserves. If the Captain of a Family dies without Sons, the Family chuses one out of their Number, and pray the Great Scheik to approve their Election. If the Great Scheik die without Sons, the whole Tribe elects his Successor. The Turkish Bassas give an Allowance to those Scheiks to keep their Tribes in Peace, and the Caravans allow 'em Money for safe Passage; so that those poor Fellows think themselves great Princes. Sultan Amurath would have confin'd them to live in Towns; but they refus'd it. They keep constant Spies to observe the Designs of the Turks, that they may resist if able, and fly if otherwise; and when they fly, no Army can pursue them without danger of being ruin'd by Hunger or Thirst, over-whelm'd with Tempests of Sand, or continually gall'd by them from the Mountains and Passes. Their Arms are Lances, Scimiters, long Daggers, and Bucklers made of the Skins of Fish. They feed their Horses and Camels, as they do themselves, with Milk, dried Flesh, Butter, and Wheat, which makes them very strong. Their Horses are very swift, and well train'd; but when press'd, they retire on their Camels, because swifter. In War the Great Scheiks are their Leaders. When they marry, the Bridegroom feasts the Relations on both sides; but if the Bride's Friends dislike the Match afterwards, they repay the Treat, and the Marriage is dissolv'd. They all pretend to be Mussul-Men, yet have no great regard to the Alcoran, and make their Prayers only in the Name of God.

ARABIA DESERTA.

THIS of vast Extent, and takes in most of the Country. It lies betwixt Lat. 19. and 35. which makes nine hundred and sixty miles from South to North. It has Syria on the North; the Holy Land, Arabia Petræa, and the Red-Sea on the West; Diarbeck, Bassora, and part of Arabia Fœlix on the East and South. Its greatest Breadth from East to West is four hundred and eighty miles; but 'tis much contracted at both Ends. Antiently all the Country but Arabia Fœlix was call'd by this Name. Luyts says, it is less mountainous than the other Arabia's; but has more sandy Desarts, except near the Euphrates, where 'tis more fruitful, and better cultivated; but in other Parts 'tis desart, without Man, Bird, or Beast. The antient Inhabitants are nam'd Kedarims in Scripture, from their dwelling in Tents. Almeira, and other Places that we describ'd in Syria, are reckon'd to the North Parts of this Country; and able Criticks are of opinion that Uz, or Uzitis, Job's Country, lay in the North Parts of it, near the Euphrates. Cellarius places his Seat about sixty miles S. E. from Palmyra, or Tadmor. The Wise Men who came from the East to visit our Saviour are suppos'd also to be of this Country; for Ptolemey, and several of the Fathers, and Cellarius, place their Habitation South from the Land of Uz. We have no Certainty of the Situation of their antient Towns, mentioned by Ptolemey, on the Euphrates and the Persian Gulph. The chief of them now is reckon'd Anna on the Euphrates, about 120 miles N. W. from Bagdat. It consists of two large Streets along the River, one inhabited by Mechanicks, and the other by People of the better sort. 'Tis about six miles long. The Houses are but one Story high, built of Plaister. There are pleasant Gardens for a League round, and Houses of Pleasure, no where else to be found in the Country. Some say they have many Princes, most of whom are Vassals to the Turks, but some of them to the Persians, to whom the People are most inclin'd. Others say they have one chief King, who has about 2000 Men constantly in Arms, lives in Tents, which he removes at pleasure for Pasturage; they are always plac'd like regular Streets, his own Pavilion being in the middle; and the Quarters of the Noblemen, Tradesmen, and Strangers that follow him, are so distinguish'd that they may be easily known. The Atlas Historique, in the 5th Volume, printed in 1719, the last who has writ of them, gives this People a much better Character than former Authors have done: He says they are naturally grave and moderate, and affect so much Wisdom in their Actions and Looks, that scarce any thing can move them to Laughter when they come to be marriageable. The Men wear long Beards, speak little, and scarce ever interrupt one another. They bear patiently the Prattling of their Women and Children, and other talkative Persons, but are best pleas'd with those who can speak quick, and pronounce well. They avoid saying any thing that they think contrary to good Manners, are averse to Evil-speaking of one another, have a great Veneration for Bread and Salt; and when they earnestly request any thing from those they eat with, they obtest them by the Bread and Salt which stands betwixt them; and in the same manner they swear their affirmative and negative Oaths. They always sit on the Ground before their Princes and Strangers; and lest they should happen to put their Hands to their Posteriors, they always comb their Beards with the right Hand, and support it by their left. They have such Veneration for Beards, that they never shave them, but look upon them as a sacred Ornament, given them by God to distinguish them from Women: They likewise esteem them as a Mark of their Authority and Liberty, and look upon the Persians, who shave the upper part of their Cheeks, as Hereticks. Their Wives and Children kiss the Beards of their Husbands and Fathers when they salute them, and the Men do the like to one another.

The Dominions of the Cheriff of Mecca, lie on the West side of this Country, along the Red-Sea. Authors are not distinct as to their Extent. The Northern Boundary is Arabia Petræa, and some reckon Teham or Taham the South Boundary, according to which the Length from South to North is 540 miles; but how far they extend East, is not mark'd in our Maps. They are also call'd by the name of Hijar. The Atlas Historique, Vol. 5. publish'd in 1719, corrects an Error which several good Authors have fallen into, by making the Grand Signior Sovereign of Mecca and Medina, and the Cheriff, or Prince of Mahomet's Race, who governs there, only his Vassal. He says, 'tis true that the Turks destroy'd the Empire of the Caliphs, Mahomet's immediate Successors; and upon this the Grand Signior by Right of Conquest succeeded to all the Dignity and Authority of those Caliphs, and became the Chief of the Religion which is own'd by the four chief Mahometan Sects: But that 'tis also true, that on the Declension and Division of that Empire, Mahomet's Race reserv'd the Sovereignty and the Possession of those two famous Towns, and the Country where they lie, without Opposition from the other Mahometan Princes, or any Dependance upon them. On the contrary, the most powerful Mahometan Princes have an extreme Veneration for the Cheriffs and the Places which they possess, and frequently send them Offerings, and very considerable Presents; and among all their pompous Titles, the Grand Signiors call themselves Servants of the two sacred Towns of Mecca and Medina. The same Author corrects another Mistake of Geographers, who place Mecca and Medina, and the Countries depending upon them, in Arabia Fœlix; but makes it a distinct Province, as we have said already. He adds, that frequent Wars happen among the Branches of the Family, and particularly betwixt the Cheriffs of Mecca and Medina, in which case the Grand Signior as Caliph takes upon him to determine the Differences, and sometimes dethrones one Cheriff, and sets up another; but he must always be one of the same Family, the Grand Signior having no Authority to deprive the Family of that Succession: tho Selim I. and Solyman the Great, his Son, did attempt that Sovereignty, and by their Fleets in the Red-Sea made themselves Masters of the Coast of Arabia, and part of the Kingdom of Yemen, but their Successors soon lost those Conquests. So that except Gedda, or Jodda, which is properly the Port of Mecca, and lies about forty two miles West of it, the Turks have nothing in this Part of Arabia: but here they keep a Bassa, who has little Authority. The Town is wealthy, well built, and populous, but not fortified.

Places of Note in the Cheriff's Dominions are,

(1.) Medina, which the Arabs call the City of the Prophet, because Mahomet was buried here. It lies in Lat. 25. Long. 42. ninety miles East from the Coast of the Red-Sea, and an hundred and eighty N. W. from Mecca. The Town has about 1200 Houses, and those but of one Story, except such as belong to the Clergy, who are much rever'd here on pretence of their Sanctity, and their great Skill in explaining the Alcoran. Here are many considerable Mosques; the chief is that call'd the Most Holy, because of Mahomet's Tomb. 'Tis supported by four hundred Columns, on which hang above three hundred Silver Lamps. It has a small Tower lin'd with Plates of Silver, and the Floor cover'd with Cloth of Gold. Here Mahomet's Coffin is kept under a Canopy of Cloth of Silver embroider'd with Gold, which the Bassa of Egypt sends annually with great Magnificence by Order of the Grand Signior. The Story of his being put into a Coffin, which is drawn up to the Roof of the Temple by the Force of an Adamant, is a Fable: As Christians are not allow'd to come within fifteen Leagues of this Place on pain of Death, we have no other Accounts but those given by Mahometans. Yet some of the other Pilgrims that had been to see it, and afterwards turn'd Christians, say, that the Coffin is supported by black Marble Pillars; that 'tis cover'd with a Carpet of green Velvet sent thither annually by the Grand Signior; when the old one is cut into innumerable Shreds, and sold as Reliques to the Pilgrims, by which the Priests grow rich. 'Tis encompass'd with Balusters of Silver, hung with such abundance of Lamps, that the Smoak darkens the Place. Without the Balusters there are Iron Grates, to prevent its being stole. The Windows of the Tower in which it stands have Silver Grates, and the Wall at the Head of the Tomb is adorn'd with precious Stones of infinite Value, presented by Mahometan Emperors and Princes. Among others there's a Diamond two Inches long, and one broad. Below it there's a Half-Moon of Gold set with Diamonds of great Value. The Tower is hung with red and white Damask, with these Words embroider'd in Arabick, God is God, and Mahomet is his Prophet: The Doors of the Gallery round it are of Silver. This Mosque is an hundred Paces long, and ninety broad, has two Gates and a vaulted Nave. The Bulk of the Pilgrims are not allow'd to see the Tomb, but must content themselves with the Sight of the Tower.

All

All Turks are oblig'd by their Principles to visit it once in their Life-time; but the Rich are dispens'd with for Money, and the Rabble who do it are reckon'd Saints ever after.

(2.) Mecca, by some thought to be Ptolemey's Mechara. It lies in Lat. 21 ½. Long. 42. about thirty six miles East from the Red-Sea. 'Tis suppos'd to be Mahomet's Birth-Place. It stands in a Valley surrounded with Mountains, thro which there are four Passes to the Town. The neighbouring Territory is so barren, that it affords nothing for Man, Bird, nor Beast. They have no Water in the Town but what is brought from elsewhere, which makes it very dear; but the Superstition of the Mahometans, and the continual Rendevous of Pilgrims, supply those Defects, so that they have Provisions in plenty. The Cheriff of this Place is one of the most powerful Princes of Arabia; and has large Presents from all other Mahometan Princes to protect the Pilgrims and Caravans. The City consists of six thousand Houses, most of them Brick, and terrass'd at top; but the Town is not fortified. Thevenot says, no Christians are allow'd to come within five miles of it, on pain of being burnt without Mercy. Authors are not agreed whether this Place be that of Mahomet's Birth or Burial. The most considerable Thing here is the Mosque, which is the best frequented by Mahometans of any in the World. The Turks alledge that Abraham built his first House on the Spot where the Mosque stands, and that Mahomet was born here. They call it the House of God; and it is surrounded with a Wall to keep People off. 'Tis seen at a great distance, because of its high Roof, in form of a Dome, and two Towers extraordinary high, and well built. It has above a hundred Gates, with a Window over each. The Plan of the Mosque is low, so that they descend to it by ten or twelve Steps. The Richness of its Tapestries and Gildings is wonderful, especially in that Part which they call Abraham's House: The Entrance into it is by a Silver Door, of a Man's height. On one side of it lies a Chappel, with a deep Fountain of salt Water, which they throw upon the Pilgrims to expiate their Sins. Thevenot says, the Mosque which they call the House of God is but fifteen Foot long, twelve broad, and five Fathom high. The Door of Silver is a Fathom and a half high, a Fathom wide, opens with two Leaves; and they go up to it by a portable Ladder, and kiss the Door. 'Tis girt with two Belts of Gold, and has a Spout of Gold to carry off the Water. The Dome and the Roof are supported by three Pillars of Aloes-Wood as big as a Man's Body, and three Fathom and a half long, of one entire Piece each. 'Tis hung with red and white Stuff. Near the Door there's a Black Stone, as big as a Man's Head, which they say was brought white from Heaven by the Angel Gabriel, but became black for the People's Sins. He that can first kiss it on a certain Day is esteemed a Saint, but by the Mob's crowding so much to kiss his Feet, he is frequently stifled on the Spot. This Stone was held in great Veneration by the Arabs long before Mahomet; and when those of Carmat carried it off when they took Mecca, they refus'd a great Sum offer'd for its Redemption: But it was restor'd about two and twenty Years after. The Pilgrims kiss this Stone; and fancy the Chappel where it is was built by Abraham and Ishmael. This Chappel is named Caba, and cover'd with Black Silk, and girt about with a Golden Belt, which the Grand Signior renews every Year. This Caba is twenty seven Cubits high, twenty four long, and twenty three wide.

This Temple is never enter'd but four times a year; one of them their Ramadan, when they wash it with Rose-Water: But Persons of Quality may enter at any time on paying an hundred Chequins. 'Tis cover'd on the outside with rich Stuffs presented by the Grand Signior, and other Mahometan Princes, and frequently renew'd. The old Stuffs, when their little Beyram, or Easter, falls on a Friday, belong to the Grand Signior, who cuts them in pieces, and gives them to new Mosques, which is judg'd a sufficient Consecration. At other times they fall to the Sultan of Mecca, who takes off the Gold, cuts the rest to pieces, and sells them as Relicks to the Pilgrims; by which, and other Exactions, he raises great Sums.

The Vaults of the Mosque, and the Shops round it, are fill'd with a prodigious Quantity of rich Merchandize, particularly precious Stones, and aromatick scented Powders. When the Pilgrims come hither, there's a great Fair of all the rich Commodities of the Indies, and the Caves in the Mountains serve for Shops.

The Atlas Historique gives a very particular Account of the Pilgrimage annually made unto Medina by the Turks from Grand Cairo in Egypt, where they rendevous on this account in October, sometimes to the Number of Four Thousand. They chuse a Leader, whom they call Hamirag, who with three hundred Men, arm'd with Musquets and Cross-Bows, defend them in their Journey and Return against the Arabs, who lie in ambush to surprize them. There's usually six thousand Camels for the Pilgrims, their Provisions, and Baggage; and the Grand Siginor allows annually 600000 Ducats, which is near the fourth part of the Revenues of Egypt, for the Charge. The Mendicants travel on foot; but there's a number of Camels order'd for them in case they be sick, or otherwise disabled. The Horse begin the March, and are follow'd by the Sutlers, Bakers, Cooks, Smiths, and other necessary Tradesmen, who have each a Camel. Then come the Horses of the Hamirag, who is in a Calash drawn by two Camels, and attended by a great Number of others, some laden with Necessaries, and others led for the Use of the Sick. Next come the Camels of those of Quality. After them a Multitude of Musqueteers and Pilgrims a foot, follow'd by a Body of Janizaries arm'd with Musquets, and having Feathers in their Caps. The Chiefs of the Caravan, and other Officers, come next; and a Camel with a Gold Pavilion, and a great Number of other Camels bring up the Rear. When they come to Mecca, this Pavillion is offer'd to Mahomet's Tomb; and the Camel is exempted from bearing any more Burdens while it lives. From Mecca they go to Medina, to see Mahomet's Sepulchre. This Journey is perform'd in forty Days, twenty of which they spend at those two Places. The Cheriff of Mecca, upon the first Advice of the Pilgrims Approach, retires to the Mountains with his Army of 10000 Horse, and 20000 Foot, for fear of being surpriz'd, and outed of his Dominions by the Turks; and threatens to cut off their Water if they stay any longer than twenty Days: For one of his Predecessors was attack'd and defeated by a Sultan of Egypt, on pretence that he had exacted upon his Sultaness, who came thither in Pilgrimage, and disown'd any other Mahometan King. That Sultan oblig'd the Cheriff and his Successors to ride bare-foot, which they have always done since.

The Pilgrims are oblig'd to perform many ridiculous Ceremonies; the chief of which are, to strip themselves naked at a Place called Raback, two Days before they come to Mecca, having only a Napkin about their Necks, and another about their Privities. Thus they continue eight Days: During which they must not be shav'd, buy, sell, or kill any thing, not so much as a Flea, nor must they speak a hard Word to their Servants or Slaves, on pain of giving Alms to the Poor, or Sheep for Sacrifice. When they come to Mecca, they go seven times round the Temple: The three first times very quick, shaking their Shoulders, to signify their Readiness to go and fight those who worship more Gods than one. They say their Prayers with ridiculous Postures, in Imitation of a Priest, who goes before them, and is their Posture-Master. Then they sacrifice Sheep, a good part of which they distribute to the Poor; and go to the Valley of Mina, where they shave themselves, and pare their Nails, &c. Next they go to Mount Arafat, a short Day's Journey, every Man carrying forty two Stones with him to throw at the Devil's Head, who they fancy tempted Abraham there when he was going to sacrifice Ishmael, not Isaac. Their Priests tell them likewise, That Adam and Eve, when drove out of Paradise, wander'd two hundred and twenty Years upon this Mountain, without seeing one another, till they met together by chance at the Top; and that Eve threw Stones at the Devil here, for shewing her Face in a Glass, and telling her that it was the Picture of another Woman whom Adam courted. Mouconys and others say, the Pilgrims are sometimes 200000 in Number; and that on the tenth Day, which is the most solemn, their Priests preach to them on this Mount. After which they descend to the Valley, where they sacrifice Multitudes of Sheep, a great part of which is given to the Poor. They rest in the same place on the eleventh Day, and depart on the twelfth, when the Cheriff sends them his Blessing. Thevenot says, that above six thousand of the Caravan died by hot Winds, and other Hardships, betwixt Cairo and Mecca, when he was there; that the Goods of all the Deceas'd belong to the Hamirag, who is absolute Master of all while he is with them; so that the poor People are deluded to undertake these Pilgrimages for the Profit of the Priests, and of those Officers. The Atlas Historique says, the Grand Signior presents the Cheriff annually with a Helmet of Gold, and 250000 Ducats for himself and his Family. The Cheriff in return presents the Grand Signior with two hundred Pieces of fine Silk, and four pound weight of Balm; gives half a Pound to the Governor of Cairo, and as much to the Hamirag. Betwixt Medina and this Place, there's a Desart, call'd the Sandy Sea, where the light Sands are blown up and down by Winds, to the great danger of Travellers, who are oblig'd to guide themselves by a Mariner's Compass.

The Desarts, East from this Country, are divided into several Provinces, not worth insisting upon, being chiefly inhabited by wandring Thievish Arabs, call'd Bengebers, who continually infest their Neighbours, plunder the Caravans, and, if not well guarded, force them to pay Money.

Tehama Province lies South from the Dominions of Mecca, along the Red-Sea. Authors differ as to its Boundaries: But according to the Atlas Historique, who has the latest Map of those Parts, it has Part of Yemen on the South and East, is three hundred eighty miles long, but narrow, except the South part, which is two hundred broad. The only Place of note, according to him, is Zibit, suppos'd to be antient Saba, Lat. 15. Long. 42. It lies on a River near the Sea. The Nubian Geographer says, it was in his Time the Centre of the Trade of Ethiopia, Egypt, and China. Heylin makes it the Capital of the Province of Hadramut, which is contrary to the latest Maps. He adds, it had a good Trade in Sugar, Spice, and Fruits. It formerly belong'd to the Turks, but was taken from them by the King of Moca.

The Kingdom of YEMEN, or ARABIA FOELIX.

THE Atlas Historique says, Yemen is the greatest part of Arabia Fœlix, and the Name given to the Whole. It reaches from Moca on the Red-Sea to the Entrance of the Gulph of Ormus, North of Cape Rozalgate; so that East and West 'tis about a thousand miles, but the Breadth unequal, for it is contracted at both Ends; and the greatest Breadth from South to North is about five hundred and seventy. The North Parts are sandy Desarts, and uninhabited Mountains. He says, that in this Country only, of all Arabia, are to be found Coffee-Trees, and chiefly in three or four Districts among the Mountains, which have store of other Trees and Fruits, good Springs of Water, agreeable Breezes of fresh Air, and almost a continual Spring. But that Part of it on the Red-Sea is barren, and produces nothing in some Places for twelve Leagues together. This Country is govern'd by a Family descended from Ali, but not in a lineal Succession; for he of the Family who has most Friends and Power carries it, and sometimes imprisons or puts his Competitors to death. He who was King in 1708 succeeded his Brother, tho he left a Son, who was then only Governor of a Town. The King has a Seraglio of six or seven hundred Women of different Nations, and among them Georgians of great Beauty, and Arabian Ladies who are very fair. They are kept in the Castle of Mouab, the Town where he chiefly resides. It lies on the South Front of a little Mountain, and was built by the King who reign'd in 1711. At a quarter of a League's distance he has built a Castle, which he also call'd Mouab, upon a higher Mountain, which he uses as a Country Seat, and a House of Pleasure. About two Leagues and a half from Mouab he has built a Citadel on a little Mountain, where there's a Garison, and the Place is mounted with a great Number of Cannon. Hither he retires in time of War, if he think himself not strong enough to encounter his Enemies. Mouab, which in the Maps is spell'd Mawb, lies near Lat. 15. Long. 48. The Palace at Mouah is very large and commodious, according to the Manner of the Country; but the Architecture and Furniture very mean. The King's Habit is very plain, being only of fine Cloth, green or yellow, without any Ornament. He wears a Turbant, which is a sort of Veil of white Silk that covers all his Head, and is tied under his Chin like our Womens Sarsenet-Hoods. Our Author supposes he affects this Plainness out of some Principle of his Religion, because he looks upon himself as a Pontiff of Mahomet's Law; and that 'tis generally observ'd in Mahometan Countries, that their Muftis, Priests, Judges, and other Ministers of Justice, affect an extraordinary Modesty in their Apparel. He goes bare-legg'd, and bare-footed. The Ladies of his Seraglio come and go betwixt the Castle and the Palace, where about thirty of them have a particular Apartment. They are usually carried in a sort of Cradle cover'd with Scarlet, and fix'd on the Back of a Camel so, as they may sit or lie; and when they come out, have their Faces cover'd with a fine thin painted Cloth. Most of the Women of this Country wear a large Gold Ring thro the Gristle betwixt their Nostrils; and on their Arms, Wrists, and Ancles, Circles of Gold or Silver; and are always strongly perfum'd. They are allow'd to visit one another in the Evening; but the Jealousy of their Husbands is such, that they dare scarce take the Air upon the Terrasses of their Houses.

The King gets up every Morning by Day-break, dines at Nine a-clock, goes to bed again at Eleven, and at Two in the Afternoon the Drums beat, and the Hautboys play. The Drum-Major is only allow'd the Privilege of entring the King's Apartment, whether he be asleep or awake. He wears a large Girdle adorn'd with Plates and Hooks of Silver, has a Palm-Tree embroider'd on the Front of his Turbant, and a Silver Chain tied several times round it in a whimsical manner. As soon as he gives notice that the King is awake, the Princes and Grandees go and kiss his right Hand, which he holds on his Knee, and entertain him till the Time appointed for Prayer or Business. He has also set Times for visiting his Wives, and walking, sups at Five, and goes to bed at Eleven.

His only Pomp is when he goes out of Town on Fridays to a Plain a quarter of a League distant, to perform his Devotions and Office of Pontiff, a thousand Soldiers fire their Pieces at the Gate of the Palace, and begin the Cavalcade. Two Ranks of them wear Hats cut in a Point, which they call Ali's Ensign. Two hundred of the Horse-Guards follow, on very fine Horses neatly harness'd, and arm'd with Scimeters, Carbines, and Half-Pikes with Fringes near the Point. The Officers of the Houshold and the Courtiers, richly clad and well mounted, come next. Then the King at a little distance on a very fine white Horse, with one of his Sons on each hand, mounted on fine Horses, with rich Caparisons. An Officer on a high Horse carries a Canopy over the King's Head of green Damask, with a Border of red Silk, and a Gold Fringe all round: On the top of the Canopy there's a gilt Silver Globe, and on the top of that a gilt Pyramid. After the King comes an Officer on horseback, with the Alcoran in a red Bag; and at his Side another Officer with the King's Standard, which is a square Piece of green Damask with a Gold Fringe, and some Arabick Characters embroider'd on it. Then another Officer with the King's Scimiter, the Handle and Scabbard very rich. Drums, Timbals, and Hautboys play during the whole March; and there's laid on the Road fifty of his finest Led-Horses, with Housings and Caparisons richly embroider'd, and the Bridles adorn'd with Silver and Gold. At one side of the Saddle there's a rich Scimiter, and at the other a Battel-Ax. They are follow'd by fifty Camels richly equipp'd, with Pack-Saddles that have great Silver Pummels, and large Tufts of black Ostrich-Feathers on their Heads.

These Horses and Camels march before the King, and go several times round the Pavillion erected for him. He enters it for an Hour, begins the publick Prayers, and afterwards makes a sort of Sermon, in which he praises God, and celebrates the Memory of Mahomet. The Princes, and the rest who attend him, say the same Prayers, imitate him in every thing, for the Tent is open, and all may see him. After Prayers for himself and the Royal Family, he mounts on horseback, the Soldiers make three Volleys when he comes out, and he marches back in the same manner as he came, under the Acclamations of the People; and every one that pleases has liberty to kiss his Hand as he goes and comes. When he enters the Palace, part of the Horse go along with him, and the rest stay without, where they perform Exercises in form of a Battel. 'Tis observ'd that he has no Temples, which is suppos'd to proceed from his Jealousy, lest he should be murder'd in a Mosque, as was his supposed Predecessor Ali, Mahomet's Son-in-Law.

Other Places of Note are,

(1.) Moka, or Mocha. It lies in Lat. 12 ½. near Long. 45. on the Coast of the Red Sea, near the Straits of Babelmandel. The Atlas Historique says, it has now a better Trade than Aden, about ten thousand Inhabitants, besides some Armenians, and many poor Jews in a Suburb, all tawny, but well shap'd and very civil. The Walls of the Town are one half Stone, and the other of Mud-wall. It has four Gates, but no Ditches, and several Towers, some of which are mounted with Cannon. These Towers are inhabited by Soldiers, who patrol by Night, and stay by Day at the Port and in the Market-place to prevent Disorders; for in this Country they are very careful to keep the publick Peace and a good Police. They carry Criminals before the Governour, who punishes them according to the Report of the oldest commanding Officer. These Soldiers are about five or six hundred, and rendevouz every day from Noon till two a-clock in the great Square, to attend the Governor to the Mosque, who goes thither in great State, attended by all his Family, Officers, and People of Note well mounted, carrying along with them the Standards of the King, Mahomet, and Ali, the Kettledrums playing all the while. When he comes out of the Mosque, the Foot make a Volley; and their Pieces being always charg'd with Ball, they frequently do mischief.

The Women here, except a few of the common sort, are never seen abroad by Day, but in the Evening have liberty to visit one another, have a Lanthorn carried before them by a Slave, and are follow'd by the Women-Servants. When they meet a Man, they draw up close to the Houses, and let him pass, without speaking a word. They have always a large Veil of fine thin colour'd Cloth, which hides their Faces, but they can see others well enough thro it. They wear little Buskins of Maroquin. Some of them are very handsome, and for the most part are no browner than the Spaniards. The Country in general is dry, and has no Water but what is salt or nitrous; but the Territory of Moca is the worst of all. It seldom or never rains here, but towards nine or ten in the Morning there's a very fresh Breeze from the Sea, otherwise the Heat would be insupportable. When it does rain, the Soil is cover'd with a Crust of Salt, and what they use in this Country is made almost without any Labour, by making Ditches, into which the Sea flows; and when it ebbs, the Salt grows so hard in a little time, that the People dig it out like Stones.

This Country is said by some to have had Kings of its own, who are also call'd Kings of Aden, but both of them now belong to the King of Yemen.

The King of Moca, according to the Report of an English Surgeon, who was sent for from the East-Indies to his Court, liv'd formerly at a Place nam'd Kuddera, at a great distance from the Sea, where, he says, the Climate was temperate and healthful, the Situation pleasant, and in some Places they had pure delightful Streams; that in Summer it was not so hot, but that one might wear a Coat of fine English Cloth without Inconveniency; that the Winter Mornings and Evenings were sharper than might have been expected from the Latitude, and the Natives, to allay the Cold, burnt rich warm Perfumes, which reviv'd their Spirits, and warm'd the Rooms. This Country, he says, abounded with Myrrh, Manna, Incense, Cassia, Balm, and Gums of several sorts, which were sold very cheap. They had two Corn-Harvests a year, and Plenty of Grapes, and the best of other Fruits common to Europe, besides Mangoes, Dates, Pomgranates, &c. of an extraordinary Size and Taste. Their Mutton was fine and sweet, but their Beef coarse. They had store of wild Beasts and Fowls, besides those common to us; and on the Coast they abounded with Fish. He gives also a mighty Character of their then King for Justice, Clemency, and Bounty, and particularly of his Charity to the poorer sort of his Subjects.
